Just last week reported wounded in the battle of Italy, Lance Corporal Chester Lott Sheppard, son of Mrs. M. Sheppard, 46 Marmora St., is now reported dead of wounds. Graduating from Lawrence Park High School in Toronto, he enlisted with the Toronto Scottish non-permanent, taking his initial training at North Bay. He later transferred to the Tank Corps and received his training at Camp Borden, going overseas a year ago last summer. He was through the battle of Sicily and while in Italy last fall narrowly escaped when his tank was blown up, but all its occupants escaped uninjured.

His twin brother, Trooper Gordon Sheppard is also in Italy attached to the Tank Corps Headquarters, having transferred to the Tank Corps from the Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment, to be with his brother while they were still both in England.

The Sheppard twins are grandsons of Mr. Chester Lott, retired Canadian Pacific Railway agent here, and Gordon attended Trenton High School when he lived with his grandparents in Trenton. Their 21st birthday was spent in Italy on January 3rd.

Police Court.

A motorist charged with careless driving in Trenton Police Court, on Tuesday before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd was fined $25 and $13.50 costs. According to the evidence the driver, drove through a red traffic signal at the corner of Dundas and Front Streets and when in front of the Selrite Store he sideswiped a car which was proceeding in a westerly direction and then his car plunged for the north side of Dundas and collided with a parked car, and according to the evidence, had it not been there, the car would probably have crossed the sidewalk and gone through the front of the Selrite Store. No injuries resulted but considerable damage was done to all three cars.

Mr. Farrell, M. Batchelor, M. Newton, R. W. Sturdy, were all fined $10 and costs for breach of the Liquor Control Act.

R. Meinheart was assessed $4.50 for failing to observe a traffic signal, Erwin Kliger was fined $12 and costs when charged with careless driving, as was John Covell.

Hugh Curry charged with reckless driving, resulting in personal injury, had his case enlarged for one week.

J. A. Carr, on a charge of breach of the Highway Traffic Act failed to appear and the court ordered personal service of the summons. He had failed to answer the summons sent to him through the mail.

M. Sheppard and M. Donnato were fined $7.50 each for speeding.

Two were fined $1.00 each for breaches of the parking by-law, and a case of reckless driving and an L.C.A. case were enlarged.

A local coal dealer was fined $50 and costs under the Wartime Price and Trade Board.

County Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., prosecuted for the Crown and Norman Butler prosecuted for the Wartime Price and Trade Board.

POINT TRAVERSE

Jumping Meadow Mice Are Found At South Bay

Point Traverse, Jan. 19 — Last summer while harvesting Hay, a South Bay farmer reports the finding of a pair of very unusual animals, which even local naturalists know little about. They were a species of jumping mice found in Ontario, namely the jumping Meadow Mouse. Both rodents had very long tails and long hind legs and were able to jump surprisingly long distances.

In 1930 the Royal Ontario Museum of Zoology conducted a survey of Prince Edward County and found the jumping mouse to be the only one present although the woodland jumping mouse occurs on the mainland north of Prince Edward and may possibly occur very rarely here. The woodland form is a little larger than the meadow jumping mouse, is orange rather than yellow in color and has a white tip to the tail. As its name implies it prefers the open woodlands rather than the meadows frequented by the meadow jumping mouse. They belong to a quite different family than our other Ontario mice, being distinctly related to the jerboas famed for their jumping ability. Jumps up to twelve feet long have been recorded of our Ontario jumping mice.

The discovery of the jumping mice at South Bay, is believed to be the first that such species have been found in South Marysburgh township.

Ice Harvesting

The harvesting of a great many tons of ice at the fishing colony here is expected to get under way this week. The ice is stored for the summer's requirements, which is used for icing and packing lake fish brought in to the fishery by commercial fishermen during the season.

Drew Will Confer With Officials Of Federal Gov't

Toronto, Jan. 19. (CP)—Several members of Premier Drew's Ontario government were expected to be in Ottawa today and tomorrow to confer with Federal officials on Dominion-Provincial problems.

Premier Drew planned to fly to Ottawa this afternoon after attending Sir William Mulock's 100th birthday reception. It was reported the Premier would urge a Dominion-Provincial Conference to discuss plans for Social Security legislation.

Mines Minister Frost, who will address the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy in Ottawa tonight, was to discuss mining and financial matters with Federal officials. He is provincial treasurer as well as Mines Minister.

Modification of restrictions on the use of copper and aluminum in extending rural power lines is being sought by Hon. George Challies, Minister Without Portfolio and Vice Chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario who left for Ottawa last night. The Commission is reported to have plans for serving an addition 4,000 customers through construction of about 400 miles of primary power lines.

Bracken Says Farmers Should Get Fair Deal

Regina, Jan. 19 (CP)—John Bracken, National leader of the Progressive Conservative party, told a nomination meeting here Monday night that "the only thing I would like to do before I pass on is to try and put the farmers on a fair and even keel."

John G. Diefenbaker of Prince Albert and sitting member was unanimously nominated candidate for Lake Centre constituency in the next Federal general election.

"I've lived on a farm all my life," Mr. Bracken said. ". . . I want to correct the inferior position into which agriculture has been allowed to fall."

The Progressive Conservative leader said that if the Dominion government's newly-announced hog policy was good today "then it was good three months ago." He said there was justification for a policy of improving hogs but none for taking $3 from a man because his hog was a pound overweight, referring to penalties on low grade animals.

A report (not carried by The Canadian Press) with the Federal Progressive Conservative party intended to liquidate the Saskatchewan Conservative organization was denied by Mr. Bracken.

The published report indicated the purpose of Mr. Bracken's trip to Saskatchewan this time in company with R. A. Bell, Federal organizer, was to:

(1) Liquidate the existing Saskatchewan Conservative party.

(2) Re-establish in its place a progressive movement which would appeal to the supporters of the old western Progressive party of about 1921.

Report Not Correct

"I don't ordinarily comment on newspaper statement but this refers to you in Saskatchewan and it is not correct," Mr. Bracken said.

"It is without foundation," he said. "We have made no such proposal and we don't intend to. We have no intention of interfering with your business."

He said his party would seek to raise prices by increasing demand through expansion of home and foreign markets, not by decreasing the supply.

"No agriculture can be sound with prices going up and down all the time," he added.

"If they can put a ceiling on prices in wartime then they can put a floor under them in peace time."

He said that the world of yesterday offered these challenges to the world today:

1. Cure unemployment.
2. Fair prices for farmers.
3. Conserve human resources.
4. Develop the country's human resources.
5. Re-establishment of economic security to do away with fear.
6. Banish ever re-occuring wars.

LONDON LETTER

By DOUG HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, Jan. 19 (CP)—This is by way of being an note of sympathy to Joe Goebbels because old Joe must be getting somewhat disgusted and even a bit discouraged with the English after all these months of frustration.

Joe has worked hard. You have to say that for him. But look what happens.

He makes a particularly stout speech. He bloats the press and the air with tales of London skulking in her undergrounds of shivering in her homes, of The City plotting Germanic destitution, of Prime Minister Churchill being at the very minimum a scoundrel.

And what do the English do?

The odds are they print his speech in full or in part on the front pages of their newspapers. They've done it time and again.

Joe threatens reprisals for the bombing of Berlin. London, Joe says, will pay a grisly price.

And what do the English do?

They jump on his words with quiet zest as the basis for another bet. They gamble that there will be an alert tonight or that there won't be an alert tonight. They gamble on the time Joe's planes will get here and how many of them won't go back.

Or they gamble that the R.A.F. will push the words down Joe's throat and raid Berlin again.

If he wins the Englishman will inwardly rate Joe a passing good bloke. And if he loses, he probably won't rate Joe in a category any lower than he assigns a dissappointing greyhound or a newspaper editor who ends an editorial with a word he wasn't betting on.

This betting is a sombre business for the Englishman and anything Joe can do to help is appreciated. After all a fellow does have to keep this war-making in perspective.

The status Joe holds in the affections of the English at the present time has a good deal of kinship with that of the squander bug. Some bureaucrat brought this scrawny symbol of waste into the world to promote the frugal life.

The Englishman, ever the unpredictable, took it to his heart with a chuckle. He thought the loathsome qualities of the squander bug frightfully quaint.

And so is with Joe.

There is a considerable basis for the parallel, too. After all Joe does possess many of the lesser qualities of the insect.

LIBERALS DISCUSS PARTY POLICY

Toronto, Jan. 19 (CP)—Party policy was under discussion Tuesday at a caucus of the 15 Liberal members of the Ontario legislature and Liberal candidates defeated in the Aug. 4 provincial election. Harry Nixon, party leader, said plans had been made for the caucus before Christmas and that Mitchell Hepburn, former Liberal Premier and now Independent Liberal member for Elgin, had been invited to attend.

$20,000 FIRE AT COLLINS BAY

Kingston, Jan. 19 (CP)—Damage estimated at $20,000 was caused yesterday by fire which destroyed the general store and apartments at Collins Bay owned by George Wise.

The building, formerly the Pitch Tavern Hotel, was believed to have been constructed some time previous to 1817. Wise purchased it a few years ago and remodelled it with apartments. He was the only occupant at the time of the fire.

Partisans Trap 400 Motorized Nazi Vehicles

London, Jan. 19—(CP)—Yugoslav partisans have trapped a German motorized division of 400 vehicles near Lipovac in Western Bosnia and wild fighting now is progressing through rugged hill country against the encircled Nazis and a second division rushed to its assistance, Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today.

The Nazi relief expedition, Tito's broadcast communique said, broke through Partisan lines toward Jajce, Tito's former headquarters, 30 miles south of Banja Luka on the Vrbas River. Bitter fighting ensued and the issue apparently was still in doubt at the time the bulletin was issued.

Meanwhile units of the 3rd Yugoslav Corps, suddenly taking the offensive, were reported pushing the Germans back in Eastern Bosnia. The heaviest fighting was in the Tuzla area, where the Partisans were attacking in force.

Continued fighting against Germans and Chetniks in southern Hercegovinia was reported. In Lika province in Croatia the Germans were still attacking in an attempt to breach Yugoslav lines guarding liberated territory.

Sen. Robertson Says King Should Represent Canada

Saskatoon, Jan. 19, (CP)—Canada, "virtually the leader of the smaller countries among the United Nations, should be represented at the Peace Conference by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, said Senator Wishart Robertson of Halifax here Tuesday night.

Mr. Mackenzie King is "beyond a shadow of a doubt the man most likely to open up the free channels of trade", he told the annual meeting of the Saskatchewan Liberal Association Council.

Senator Robertson, president of the National Liberal Federation, declared that the Prime Minister could well be the master architect of the future and maintained that no other party was so well equipped as the Liberals for the task ahead.

Canada, he said, was in a position to exercise a profound influence on larger nations. She was "virtually the leader of the smaller countries among the United Nations" and occupied a unique position as the only country among smaller nations to extend mutual aid and a free-will relief fund to Russia.

Senator Robertson claimed that the other two parties, Progressive Conservatives and C.C.F. would not be effective at a peace conference.

"The Conservative Party in Canada have displayed very little interest in trade agreements with the exception of the Ottawa agreements and they almost wrecked the British Commonwealth in the process", he said.

"The C.C.F. leader and his followers have attached so little importance to the subject that their influence, under these circumstances, would be of a very ineffective nature".

Eire Letter

By JOSEPH DENNIGAN

(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Dublin, Jan. 19 (CP)—One of the chief features of Eire's political controversy for six or seven years has been the example of New Zealand. Labor speakers in the Dail as well as on the platform say that what the New Zealanders can do in the matter of social services could just as easily be accomplished in Eire.

This country has no diplomatic representatives in either Australia or New Zealand and it is only recently that the government appears to have got a report on the situation in that Dominion.

The "Irish press" which gives the government point of view, contrasted the economic position of both countries. New Zealand has 43,000,000 acres of farm lands, against Eire's 11,750,000. New Zealand's 860,000 farming families have an average of 490 acres each whereas the average in Eire is 30 acres.

New Zealand has a population only half the size of Eire ,but its industrial and agricultural production is many times greater. This, it is explained, is why the New Zealanders are able to pay old age pensioners 30s a week against Eire's 10s.

Eire's latest public elementary school in Dublin is claimed to be the biggest of its kind in Europe. It covers more than eight acres in buildings alone. With playgrounds the site covers 12 acres in the north Crumlin area of Dublin. Accommodation is provided for more than 3,000 children. Room for theatres and cinemas has been provided.

The school will be under Roman Catholic management and the patronage of "Our Lady of Good Counsel."

Corkonians, inhabitants of Eire's second city—are to make a new drive against their slums. With materials in short supply, it will be tough going but plans have been made for use of commodities which can still be obtained. The Cork city engineer has designed a concrete house which will require woodwork only in the doors and windows. Roofs will be made of concrete or arched Gothic design.

Wooler

Wooler — Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Bell accomanied Mr. and Mrs. W J. Bell to Trenton on Friday where they were calling on friends.

Rev. N. C. Gay made a business trip to Cornwall and Ottawa last week returning home on Saturday.

Mrs. Walter Nancarrow and children of Trenton and her husband, a private stationed in N.S., were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Nancarrow and Mrs. Katie Crews during Mr. Nancarrow's furlough.

Mrs. Clarence Cole spent a few days visiting relatives at Niagara Falls and Burgessville.

Mr. David Teal who was taken by ambulance to Belleville General Hospital, is reported as improving.

Pte. Elmo Gainsforth, who is overseas, extended sympathy to his sister-in-law, Mrs. Hugh Gainsforth owing to the passing of her late husband, by means of a cablegram.

Miss Roma Austin, nurse-in-training at Western Hospital in Toronto was a tea hour guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Austin on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Mitchell of Smithfield were afternoon callers of Mr. and Mrs. A. Bell on Saturday.

The many friends of Messrs. Osborne and Delmer Searle of Cobourg and Roblin respectively and their sister, Mrs. N. Reed of Ivanhoe, extend their sympathy owing to the passing of their mother, Mrs. A. Outingdyke.

Mrs. Gerald Nichol is a patient at St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto.

Overheated furnace pipes at the residence of Mr. Bruce Ellis on Friday afternoon caused Mrs. Ellis and Mrs. Everett Ellis much alarm as both men were absent from home at the time. The timely assistance of wood sawyers at Mr. J. P. McAuley's averted a possible disaster.

Mrs. A. G. Austin is recuperating from an attack of flu.

Recent dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hubble were Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Terrill and Mr. and Mrs. Percy Gooding with their son Alfred.

AMATEUR BOXER MISSING IN ACTION

Toronto, Jan. 19 (CP)—WO. Nick Leoni, formerly well known as an amateur boxer, is missing in action, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Leoni, were informed officially Tuesday. Leoni was the rear gunner on the "Ruhr Express," the first Canadian-built Lancaster which took part in the 1,000-ton raid on Berlin last Nov. 27.

MILD WEATHER IN SASKATCHEWAN

Regina, Jan. 19 (CP)—The popular song of several years ago "It's June in January" might well have been written for Saskatchewan's weather. In the southern areas of the province, where the temperature should be ranging anywhere from zero down to 40 below at this time of the year, it rained steadily late Monday for the better part of two hours. The mercury touched a high of 41 above.

London — (CP) — Home Secretary Herbert Morrison told the House of Commons 316 persons are still under detention under defence regulation 18B.

250,000 NAZIS AT LENINGRAD FACE CAPTURE

Govorov's Armies Seek to Encircle Foe in Salient

Gains of 12 Miles Made Through 25-Mile Gaps in Nazi Defences

REDS TAKE NOVGOROD

By JAMES M. LONG

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 20 —(CP)—Marshal Joseph Stalin announced in an order of the day today the capture of Novgorod at the northern tip of Lake Ilmen in the sixth day of the Russians' Leningrad offensive.

Novgorod had been the lower peg of German defences in the Leningrad area. It is approximately 100 miles southeast of Leningrad.

With this long-standing bastion swept away, the Red army was freed for a mighty push northward in an effort to join Gen. Jeolid A. Govorov's forces shoving southward from Leningrad. The way also was cleared for the Russians to thrust westward toward the Baltic.

Stalin's order of the day, addressed to Gen. Kirkilj A. Meretskov, said the Volkhov army had forced both the Volkhov river and the upper part of Lake Ilmen, presumably by crossing on the ice. The bastion thus was outflanked both on the north and south sides. Earlier today the German High Command had announced evacuation of the important communications centre.

Moscow, Jan. 20 —(AP)— Gen. Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad offensive, rolling across fields wet with a January thaw, threatened with encirclement a great German siege army of perhaps 250,000 men —dug into a vast honeycomb of defences to hold the eastern tip of Nazi lines which formerly embraced the landward approaches of the city of Peter the Great.

Pouring through 25-mile gaps blasted by Govorov's guns and Stormovik planes, for gains up to 12 miles, the Soviet hammerheads were pounding toward Krasnogvardeisk and Dyetskoye Selo.

The offensive brought immediate peril to large number of Germans to the east who once held a strip of land reaching to Lake Ladoga.

Maze of Defences

To hold their narrow salient the Germans had massed a huge army in the finger just south of Lake Ladoga and turned their positions into a solid maze of emplacements, trenches, dugouts and traps. A quarter of a million men may be in this area.

One of Govorov's strongest blows was struck through the hills to Pulkovo, 10 miles south of Leningrad, which an Izvestia dispatch called the "key" to the Germans' Leningrad line.

Izvestia said the battle had moved so far from Leningrad that people in the southern and southwestern sections of the city for the first time in two years could not hear the sound of the guns.

It was clearly evident that Govorov, a hero of the Russian counter-offensive which relieved Moscow two years ago, packed the greatest punch of any Soviet offensive yet launched in the Leningrad area.

Novgorod Ablaze

Some 80 miles south of Govorov's spearheads, Gen. Kirkill A. Meretskov's Volkhov army punched north and northwest of Novgorod through broken German defences, having cut the railway both northeast and southwest of the ancient city and isolating it except for a few secondary highways.

The push to the south of the city was facilitated, it was disclosed, by thick ice on Lake Ilmen which permitted the Russians to make crossings.

Red Star said the city's buildings were burned or in flames, the woods destroyed, parks cut into trenches and "every inhabitant" forcibly removed by the Germans.

North of the city the Russians were about 27 miles east of the trunk line running southward from Leningrad through Dno, Nevel and Vitebsk.

In the push immediately before Leningrad, the Russian communique said 20,000 Germans had been killed since Saturday. In addition to recapture of the two fortresses, the Russians took Peterhof, summer home of the Czars, captured more than 1,000 Germans, smashed seven German divisions and took many of the great 16-inch guns with which the Nazis shelled Leningrad.

36 Field Pieces Captured

In the region of Pulkovo, 10 miles south of Leningrad, site of Russia's celebrated astronomical observatory, the Russians gained grim revenge by capturing 36 of the 152 heavy siege pieces that have been shelling Leningrad for more than 27 months, the bulletin said.

On the Volkhov front of Novgorod and on Lake Ilmen directly south of the city, the Russians announced that Gen. K. A. Meretskov's forces had cut the Leningrad-Novogrod direct rail line at Bolotnaya, a more easterly line at Podberechye, and both the highway and railway between Novgorod and Shimsk to the southwest.

To celebrate the northern triumphs, Premier Marshal Stalin ordered a 20-round salute from 224 cannon in Moscow last night. Units which took Krasnoye Selo and Ropsha will bear the names of those towns.

(The Moscow radio said last night warships of the Soviet Baltic fleet had shelled German positions on the Leningrad front to help open the offensive. Coastal batteries joined in the bombardment, said the broadcast, recorded by the United States office of War Information.)

Seize Long-range Guns

The northern Red Army seized the bulk of the specially-designed long-range guns which had hurled steel and destruction into the former Czarist capital of Russia for more than two years of siege.

The troops joined forces after striking out in two powerful prongs south of Leningrad and from Oranienbaum, the Soviet bridgehead on the gulf of Finland to the west of the city.

(This juncture, closing a seven-mile gap between the two spearheads, either trapped Germans who had held a narrow stretch of the gulf of Finland coast just west of Leningrad, or drove them out.)

At the same time a third thrust just north of Lake Ilmen, 100 miles southeast of Leningrad, had virtually isolated the German base city of Novgorod.

(The German communique announced that Nazi forces had evacuated Novgorod.)

The Red Army units, which carried through one of the best manoeuvres of the war, drove to within 13 miles of the East-West railway from Tallin in the Baltic state of Estonia to Vologda, a junction on the Moscow-Leningrad line.

Except for one highway this railway was the only communication line available to the Germans holding the German salient reaching to within a few miles of Lake Ladoga, east of Leningrad.

The Empire Will End War Stronger Than Ever Says Lord Beaverbrook

By ROSS MUMRO

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 20 —(CP Cable)— The Empire will end the war stronger than ever, Lord Beaverbrook said yesterday in an address to the House of Lords on post-war civil aviation in which he said "it is our aim to make civil aviation a guarantee of international solidarity and the mainstay of world peace."

There are vital issues of post-war flying for which it will be necessary for the great powers to prepare a preliminary agreement, said Lord Beaverbrook who is Lord Privy Seal in the Churchill government and charged with drawing up Britain's post-war aviation plans.

Britain is ready to undertake such discussions at any time, he said, but at present she is waiting for the United States to complete its survey.

Speaking of the Empire's place in post-war aviation, Lord Beaverbrook said:

"Our Empire can be made to yield to the new science of transportation over the sea and through the air. I hope we shall make good use of our opportunities. We did not in the past.

"We have mastered the art of war and we are determined to master the art of peace. We have an Empire of solidarity and single purpose with strength that may not be challenged; respected by all Nations that will be free from bondage; trusted by the United States and Russia.

'Our Empire will end the war stronger than ever before, firmly established and determined to extend and develop our latent resources to the utmost.

"The youth who fought the battles most be in our minds. Development of airways of Empire must be their instrument of the future."

Lord Beaverbrook, who was making his first House of Lords speech since taking on his new responsibilities, said Britain has many bases at her disposal, scattered over the Empire and other lands.

"I don't of course propose to deal today with bases in the Dominions," he said. "Necessarily they must be separately dealt with. They will be the subject for discussions between Britain and the Dominions. But as for bases under our control, the government has no desire to exclude aircraft from other nations. We demand no prescriptive rights for the use of airfields for ourselves. Rather we mean to use them for the purposes of steadily developing civil aviation throughout the world."

Lord Beaverbrook praised the skill of Britain's aircraft industry and forecast a great performance in the manufacture of civil aircraft in peacetime.

"We will need machines for great trunk routes which will link the Empire but also aircraft of smaller sizes for internal and feeder lines," he said. "We shall want to operate from the snows of the north to the heat of the equator. Those are our objectives. How many aircraft shall we need? I set down the figure at 2,000 as a tentative proposal but I cannot really suggest any figure."

Earlier in the debate the Marquess of Londonderry said the British Overseas Airways Corporation is a "monopoly instrument" and said that its usefulness is coming to an end. This brought a reply from Lord Beaverbrook that the B.O.A.C. has no monopoly. It has a monopoly of subsidies for overseas air traffic but nothing else, he said.

fic but nothing else, he said.

CANADIAN ARMY CASUALTIES SHOW LARGE INCREASE

Fighting of Past Four Weeks Costs 138 Killed and 532 Wounded

TOTAL TO JAN. 18, 2,073

Ottawa, Jan. 20 (CP)—Unofficial taubiation of Canadian army casualty lists, issued since the last official report covering the period from the start of the Italian campaign to Nov. 23, confirms a London dispatch Jan. 17—passed by British censors—from Ross Munro, Canadian Press War Correspondent, that casualties in the Moro Valley adn Orton abattles in December were heavy.

Within the last four weeks casualties have been roughly three times greater than in the previous four weeks. The comparative figures are 284 for the four weeks ended Dec. 21, compared with 695 for a similar period ended Jan. 18. This was an indication of the rising tempo of the Italian campaign which began Sept. 3.

An unofficial casulty total for the Italian campaign up to yesterday was 2,073. In the 38-day Sicilian campaign the army reported a total of 2,439 casualties.

Yesterday, compilation was based on official defence headquarters totals up to Nov. 23 and a check of casualty lists issued since that time. Headquarters have not issued a breakdown of casualties suffered in the various war theatres since the Nov. 23 totals.

Here are the comparisons

—Official—

Sicily 475......1,814......150....

Sicily: Killed 475; Wounded, 1,741; Missing, 150—Total 2,439.

Italy (To Nov. 23): Killed 238; Wounded, 811; Missing, 45—Total 1,094.

—Unofficial—

4 weeks to Dec. 21: Killed 64; Wounded, 204; Missing 16—Total 284.

4 weeks to Jan. 18: Killed 138; Wounded, 532; Missing, 25—Total 605.

Italy total to Jan. 18 (includes official and unofficial): 2,073.

Total of 869,321 Men Taken Into Dominion's Forces to Sept. 30 Last

Ottawa, Jan. 20 —(CP)— The total intake of men into the armed forces from the start of the war to last Sept. 30 was 869,321, it was disclosed today in statistics compiled by the Wartime Information Board and published in its monthly handbook "Canada At War."

The figure does not indicate present strength of the forces as it makes no allowance for discharges, retirements and casualties. After allowing for 1,731 men taken on strength outside Canada the total enrolments, compulsory and voluntary in Canada, were 867,590, 35.1 per cent of the male population between the ages of 18 and 45.

Figures by Districts.

The tabulation breaks down the enrolments by military districts and shows Military District No. 2, Toronto, leading the others with a total intake of 197,335 men or 42.7 per cent of the male population of military age in that district.

Intake in other military districts, with percentage to male population 18 to 45 in brackets, follows:

M. D. 11 (Victoria) 68,262 (42.4); M. D. 6 (Halifax) 59,325 (41.8); M. D. 7 (Saint John, N.B.) 38,803 (41.3); M. D. 10 (Winnipeg) 77,776 (39.5); M. D. 3 (Kingston, Ont.) 72,316 (38.7); M. D. 13 (Calgary) 67,884 (38.1); M. D. 12 (Regina) 68,262 (35.7); M. D. 4 (Montreal) 104,141 (23.5); M. D. 5 (Quebec) 37,855 (17.7); M. D. 1 (London, Ont.) 64,232 (37.3).

The navy's total intake was placed at 75,757; army 589,106 and air force, 204,456.

Breakdown of Figures.

The army total was broken down to show voluntary enlistments, call-ups under the National Resources Mobilization Act and transfers to other services and volunteering of called-up men.

Appointments and enlistments (voluntary) total 500,605; enrolments under the N.R.M.A., 125,640, making a gross total intake of 625,245 men. That total was increased by 791 men taken on outside Canada and reduced by 37,930 men who transferred to the navy or air force after being called up volunteered for general service and thus counted again in the total of volunteer appointments and enlistments.

Figures on transfers from the navy and air force to other services were not given but a note attached to the table says the numbers were small.

COAST BATTERIES ATTACK CONVOY IN DOVER STRAIT

Long-Range Artillery Duel With French Coast Batteries Lasts 3 Hours

ONE SHIP SUNK

London, Jan. 20—(CP)—British coastal batteries opened up on a German convoy in Dover Strait shortly after dawn today, touching off a duel with Nazi long-range guns on the French coast which continued sporadically for almost three hours.

Shells fell in the Dover area during the exchange, which was the heaviest in weeks, and residents in that area huddled in basement shelters for nearly four hours before the alert was lifted.

The channel was shrouded in mist when the British batteries opened fire. Within a minute after they had lobbed over the first shell German guns between Boulogne and Calais replied.

It was believed the British bombardment was directed against a convoy which had been sheltering in a French channel port for several days and had tried to slip out under cover of the mist. The British guns fired about 80 rounds. They sank a large vessel near Cape Gris Nez.

Madrid Tells Of Torso Murderer At Large in Berlin

Madrid, Jan. 20—(AP)—A Berlin wartime horror, a Torso murderer who apparently strikes during bombing raids, was disclosed yesterday by a police appeal in German newspapers for aid on discovering two missing heads.

Workers cleaning up bomb debris have found in different houses the torsos of a woman of about 30 and a girl about 8.

Two days earlier a customs guard at the Swiss frontier found their arms and legs in a suitcase aboard the Berlin-Basel express. The gruesome work apparently was done by someone with a knowledge of surgery, said the German accounts.

Without disclosing how the conclusion was reached, the police placed the time of the crimes as during a British bombing raid Nov. 24.

A reward of 20,000 marks is being offered for information in the cases, according to the German papers received here.

MAY HAVE HIT OIL STORES

Chungking, Jan. 20 —(AP)— United States bombers attacked targets in French Indo-China Tuesday and Wednesday, hitting at the dock and railway areas of the port of Campha and bombing and strafing Japanese barracks at Mon Kay.

A communique said heavy black smoke at Campha indicated oil stores had been hit.

All aircraft returned safely.

BRITONS WARNED OF PEACE-TALK NAZI PROPAGANDA

Moscow Paper Points Out Nazis' Attempt to Split Allies

OPEN DISCUSSION

London, Jan. 20—(AP)— Britons were warned today to be on guard against a wave of insidious peace-talk propaganda inspired by the Germans as rumors printed earlier in the week by the Russian communist organ Pravda continued to have repercussions in both London and Moscow.

The warning, voiced by the London Press, coincided with a similar admonition by the Moscow magazine "War and the Working Class," which called for cleansing of the political atmosphere from "poisonous gases" spread by the Nazis in an effort to split the Allies.

The article appeared on its face to be an attempt to dispel the impression created by Pravda, which on Monday published a rumor that the British had secretly been discussing possible peace terms with German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop.

Although the rumor was denied immediately by the British Foreign Office, a dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent Eddy Gilmore in Moscow last night said the relationship between Russia and her Allies— Britain and the United States —was the biggest single topic of conversation in the city and foreign observers were disturbed by the situation—chiefly because they did not know what to make of it.

Russian newspapers have informed their readers of the British denial of the Pravda rumor, but the Soviet government has remained silent.

British Press Warning

The London Daily Express, owned by Lord Beaverbrook, led the British press in warning Britons to be on guard against German peace-talk propaganda.

"Manoeuvres that emanate from the brains of Nazi leaders require our closest observation and our open discussion," the Express said. "Let us come right out into the open on these machinations, confident that discussion will serve a good purpose."

The Moscow radio broadcast early today Foreign Secretary Eden's statement to the House of Commons yesterday on Russian-Polish relations, in which he emphasized that Britain was hopeful of bringing about a friendly settlement between the two countries.

The broadcast, recorded by the Soviet Monitor, was at dictation speed for the benefit of the Russian provincial press.

GRANT AND LEE THERE, WHY NOT LINCOLN?

Savannah, Ga., Jan. 20—(AP)— Capt. R. D. Grant came into a base warehouse and met another officer who introduced himself: "I'm Lee." "I'm Grant," said Grant. Then Lee turned, motioned to a nearby officer and said: "Grant, meet Lincoln."

3 MERCHANT SHIPS SUNK, 5 DAMAGED IN RABAUL HARBOR

100 Allied Planes At Low Level Score Hits On Every Ship in Roadstead

18 JAP PLANES DOWNED

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Jan. 20 —(AP)— Forty Allied torpedo and dive-bombers covered by 60 fighters smashed through heavy Japanese plane interception and anti-aircraft fire to sink three big merchant ships and damage five more in Simpson Harbor at Rabaul, New Britain, Monday, an Allied communique reported today.

More than 100 enemy planes tangled with the raiders in the assault, the communique said. Eighteen of the Japanese planes were knocked down and probably 15 more. Allied losses were 10 fighters, one dive-bomber and one torpedo plane.

Besides the three ships which were seen to blow apart and sink, two others were left burning and probably sinking while three more were seriously damaged, the communique said. Some returning pilots expressed belief six ships were sunk.

Pitching their attack at low level, the Allied planes hurled 1,000 and 2,000-pound bombs to score hits on every vessel in the harbor.. The planes came from fields recently completed at Bougainville in the Solomons, and pilots described the assault as the most devastating air blow ever made by land-based planes on shipping at the enemy's big base.

(Japanese Imperial Headquarters' version of the raid, as reported by Tokyo radio, said around 200 American planes came over Rabaul and 102 of them were shot down, but the raiders sank two vessels.)

Allied air raids on Rabaul harbor and airfields since Jan. 1 have cost the Japanese 152 planes shot down with 42 more probables, and 11 merchant vessels sunk or left in a sinking condition, against the loss of 32 Allied planes.

Meanwhile, United States planes, striking westward into the Japanese Caroline Islands, have attacked Kusaie Island, an air base midway between Tarawa and Truk, major Japanese base in that area, it was reported yesterday.

3,500 Bodies Already Cremated In Wrecked City

San Juan, Argentina, Jan. 20 — (AP) — Authorities announced today that 3,500 bodies have been cremated since the devastating earthquake last Saturday.

This toll was expected to be increased by the finding of additional victims as the work of clearing away debris continues and by deaths among 300 persons known to have been critically injured.

Evacuation of four blocks surrounding the main plaza in the centre of San Juan has been ordered and the government, fearful of epidemics, has urged all who can to leave the city. However, many persons have refused to relinquish their search for relatives.

Controls Broken, Wounded Pilot Bombs Target, Brings 'Fort' Back

A Bomber Base in England, Jan. 20 — (AP) — With the body of his co-pilot slumped in the cockpit and painfully wounded himself, Lieut. Dean M. Radtke, 22, of Morrice, Mich., stuck to his battered controls and brought a Flying Fortress 300 miles back from a raid on Germany Jan. 1, practically one-handed.

Radtke collapsed the moment the big ship rolled to a stop and the other members of the crew had to pry his fingers loose from the controls. One hand had been sliced by fragments of the same German cannon shell which killed co-pilot Lieut. Robert J. Digby, 23, of Battle Creek, Mich. Radtke also suffered slight fragment wounds on his neck and arms.

Inside the Fortress, after its battle with 10 Nazi fighters, was a mess of blood-spattered broken controls. One engine had been shot out of the fuselage and the wings were shredded to ribbons.

The fight with the German interceptors took place before the target was reached, but Radtke, brushing the blood from the shattered instrument panel, refused to turn back without dropping his bombs and he also managed to hold his ship in tight formation during the greater part of the rest of the trip.

Capture of Tufo Carries the Thrust Over Appian Way

Nazi Opposition Severe All Along The Front of at Least Seven Miles

NEARING CASSINO

By EDWARD KENNEDY

Associated Press War Correspondent

Algiers, Jan. 20 (AP)—British troops of the 5th Army have enlarged their bridgeheads above the Garigliano River to three miles in depth at places, capturing three villages, and today are storming the outskirts of Minturno.

Allied headquarters announced the advancing forces have enveloped the villages of Argento, Tufo and Suio. Capture of Tufo carries the thrust across the Appian way — ancient road to Rome—and within a mile and a half of Minturno itself.

German opposition was reported severe all along the front of at least seven miles where the British began their drive with a night attack Monday.

In the area north of Cassino, now under fire of United States artillery, American patrols again crossed the Rapido River to probe German defences there. Still farther inland French troops of the 5th Army made contact with the enemy, but no details were announced.

Achieved by Smoke Screen

The Allied communique did not mention the Adriatic front where correspondents in the field reported that a lull broken only by patrol activity and shellfire had developed following a one-day thrust Monday by Canadian troops at the German defences south of the Arielli River guarding the road to the port of Pescara.

Yesterday Douglas Amaron, Canadian Press war correspondent, reported that the Canadians returned to their original positions after the Monday attack during which they attained some of their objectives and erased a number of German strongholds — heavily - defended houses in fields south of the Arielli.

The British crossing of the Garigliano, the first action on this sector in two months, was achieved under cover of a smoke screen, and was supported by an amphibious operation in which some troops were moved by sea to a point on the Tyrrhenian coast just above the river's mouth.

Some troops moved across the stream on rafts and small boats while others swam the river. The river averages 700 yards in width in its lower reaches and is too deep for wading.

Encounter Heavy Fire

The British encountered minefields, fire from machine-guns placed in caves and on heights rising from the stream and a sheet of artillery fire from guns farther back, but they fought uphill to deepen their bridgeheads. Additional British forces were moving across the river as the bridgeheads were widened.

Some of the fighting now raging on the farther bank is 500 feet above sea level on the slopes of the Arunci mountains which are 3,000 feet high in some places. Extensive fortifications around Castel Porto, about two miles north of the river bank and some six miles inland apparently have been chosen as the key German defence area.

Prisoners taken indicated the German defence was largely in the hands of the 94th infantry division, which put in two counter-attacks near the coast.

Heavy Fighting Spreading Along The Croat Coast

London, Jan. 20—(AP)—Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) reported today heavy fighting was spreading along the Croat coastal area below Fiume where the Germans have sprung a new drive apparently aimed at preventing Yugoslav partisans from developing a threat to the naval base from the south.

Tito's communique, broadcast by the free Yugoslav radio and recorded by The Associated Press, said the Germans had launched two drives toward the coastal area, one in Croatia and the second in Western Bosnia and that fighting was mounting in intensity.

One German column lashed out from Gospic, 12 miles from the Adriatic coast in Western Lika Province toward Otocac, 30 miles to the north, and the Port of Senj, 12 miles west of Otocac. Other German forces apparently were attempting to drive through toward the Adriatic from the Western Bosnian town of Mrkonjecgrad.

Attempt Fails

Partisan troops threw attacking Germans back near the Croatian town of Banova Jaruga with heavy losses, Tito's bulletin said, and repulsed all enemy attempts to breach their lines near the town of Oalj, west of Zagreb. German motorized columns were attacked near, Ljubljana, Slovenian city 35 miles from the Italian frontier and more than 400 Germans officers and men were killed.

Further to the south in the Ogulin-Karlovac sector, 40 miles east of Fiume, units of the 370th German division were defeated with heavy losses. Railway wrecking partisan detachments cut the Pletdrnita-Katela-Batrina line in Croatia and wrecked the Zagreb-Belgrade trunk railway at five more points.

Three hundred Germans were reported killed in continuous fighting around the town of Gacko in Hercegovinia.

River Can be Forded

The Rapido river where American patrols crossed is 15 or 20 feet wide and can be forded by troops, but its banks are steep and bridging is necessary to get tanks, guns and vehicles across. The stream widens to about 60 feet where it joins the Garigliano, four miles south of Cassino.

The floods of a month ago have receded along both the Garigliano and Rapido, and the weather was cold and clear along the whole front except near the Adriatic where the 8th Army carried out patrols under cloudy skies.

The 5th Army's capture of Tufo placed the British three miles beyond the Garigliano.

Why go to Florida seeking recreation in the wintertime, especially if it's only golf that's desired?

On Wednesday afternoon Walter Belair and Bob Hart, two well known local golfers, procured their golf clubs and hied themselves to the Bay of Quinte Country Club where they enjoyed nine holes.

"Jack McKeown, who's down in Florida, has nothing on us now," chorused the two local golfers," who claimed they enjoyed the afternoon's golf and intend to attempt some more January golf.

While attempting the turn off Pinnacle Street into Market Street at midnight Wednesday a Collacutt bus, driven by Elwood Cox of Oshawa skidded on the icy pavement and sideswiped a parked Bescoby transport, the bus driver reported to the nearby police station. Minor fender damage resulted.

RELIANCE EMPLOYEES HOLD SKATING PARTY

Although the weather was not exactly fitting for winter sports, the Reliance Aircraft and Tool Company Employees' Association held a skating party and ice carnival for the employees of the plant at the Hume arena last night.

Several races and stunts scheduled had to be abandoned owing to the soft ice, but the winners of races held included Frank Butler winning the men's race with Harry McGuire second. In the mixed race Gene Rosebush and Miss Hazel Meeks won in a close contest against Frank Butler and Miss Arlie Gilbert. Door prizes were won by Miss Ursella Driver and Dr. F. R. Ross. The ladies were somewhat shy when calls came for a speed contest for the fair sex, none accepting the challenge.

Harold Kurtz acted as master-of-ceremonies with Roland Pryke and Gene LaBonne in charge of the races. Refreshments were served during the evening including sandwiches, coffee and cake. A delightful evening of skating was enjoyed.

MOTORIST REPORTS HIT-RUN DRIVER

Early Wednesday evening Edna Steenburg of East Dundas Street in Trenton, reported a hit-and-run motor accident to city police here Miss Steenburg told police what appeared to be a Chevrolet sedan had clipped the left rear fender of her car while passing and had failed to stop. She was unable to obtain the licence number of the speeding vehicle.

SEVERAL GUARD RAIL POSTS FOUND BROKEN

As the result of wet and ice-covered highways, traffic police of the O.P.P. today are investigating the report of a number of guard rail posts having been broken off on Highway No. 2, two miles south of Marysville. Traffic Officer Harry Caldwell received the information at noon and left to investigate.

NO CRIMINAL CASES AT SPRING ASSIZES

Not a single criminal case is listed for trial at the Spring Assizes of the Supreme Court scheduled to open at the Court House before the Hon. Mr. Justice Barlow on Monday next, according to information released by Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn today.

Two damage actions are on the docket, one of which has already been settled. The case settled is that of the estate of the late James Hart versus James Whalen, Belleville and arose out of a fatal accident that occurred adjacent to the city in August of 1942. The other damage action, Draycott vs. Sine, is the result of personal injuries sustained during an accident Nov. 12th, 1942.

Five divorce motions are also on the docket.

FINE BOSTON BULL IN DOG POUND

A well-bred female Boston bull dog was found wandering at large on Albert St. yesterday and given into the custody of Thos. Thorne, custodian of the dog pound. The dog had a dog collar, but no dog licence tag to indicate ownership. It will be kept the necessary 48 hours and unless claimed, then disposed of.

CADET G. B. THOMAS COMPLETES COURSE FOR LIEUTENANCY

A Belleville boy, G. P. Thomas, 12 Albion St., was among the members of a large class of officers who recently completed an advanced course in artillery training at the artillery training centre at Petawawa, it is announced through the Canadian Army Public Relations branch. Members of the class who completed the course will be qualified as lieutenants, it was stated.

MAN CHARGED WITH FAILURE TO REGISTER

Failing to notify the authorities of the National Mobolization Board regarding his change of address resulted in Roy Curran of Trenton being apprehended by Constable M. A. McNairn of the R.C.M.P. yesterday. Curran was later released on bail to appear in Trenton police court charged with failing to observe the National Mobiliation Regulations next Tuesday.

ALEMITE GIRLS DEFEAT FLYERETTES

The Stewart-Warner Alemite girls' basketball squad won a last minute victory from the Flyerettes of Mountain View, Wednesday evening on the latter's court. The score was 17-16 with the winners being behind 13-9 at the half way mark. Walker and Mundinger were the best for the losers with Marion Salisbury and Dorothy Rowbotham being the best for the winners. Incidentally Dorothy Rowbotham scored the winning basket with only seconds to play. There was a large attendance at the contest and at the conclusion the visiting team was royally entertained by the girls from the Mountain View station.

SON TELLS MOTHER NOT TO WORRY

Sgt. Gordon S. Yearwood, who was wounded in Italy on December 12th, has written to his mother, Mrs. W. H. Nobes, College Street, telling her of how he was wounded. He states in his letter: "Well mother, I got it Sunday a.m., but don't worry my wounds are only minor. I was a bit too slow for the machine gun bullets and I got one through the knee. My leg is in a cast and am resting in hospital. I have been very fortunate so please don't worry".

Juvenile Court Favored By Counties Council

Cobourg, Jan. 20 — (CP) — Proposal of Judge J.C.M. German of Cobourg that a juvenile court be established here as a means of combatting delinquency received the hearty endorsement of the legislative and by-laws committee in Northumberland and Durham counties council yesterday.

Judge German's proposal was contained in a letter to the counties council, which was referred to the legislative and by-laws committee. The committee expressed itself in accord with the suggestion and recommendation that the council act upon it. It is thought the recommendation will in all probability be endorsed when the report of the committee comes before the whole council.

PUSSY-WILLOWS FOUND IN BUD

Further evidence of the exceptionally mild winter which has been experienced in the Bay of Quinte district this season was seen this week when pussy-willows, some in bud and others burst open were cut in the vicinity of Belleville. Apparently even the shrubs have been misled into the belief that Spring is just around the corner. The pussy-willows were cut by Mr. Sidney Galpin, North Park St., on the right-of-way of the Canadian National Railways in the vicinity of the roundhouse.

Kinsmen Club To Help Chapters

Branches of the I. O. D. E. across Canada are making a concerted drive to provide better reading material for the members of Canada's armed services in the matter of good books. These books will be placed in the camp libraries of the armed services across the Dominion where sailors, soldiers and airmen can have access to good reading matter during recreation and rest periods.

nI order to assist this worthy cause the entire receipts of Saturday night's weekly Kinsmen Club bingo will be equally divided between the two local branches of the I. O. D. E., the Argyll and St. Julien chapters, Kinsmen officials announced today.

$15,000 Will Be Spent On Dock Repairs

Following suit with several other Ontario centres who report divers going swimming in a hole chopped in the ice, Belleville has also been visited by a diver—but of a rather different sort, and strictly on business.

High water prevalent in the Belleville Harbor last summer damaged piers and framework of the Imperial Oil Company docks at the harbor necessitating repairs and yesterday an inspection of the damage by a diver was made. A channel approximately 400 feet in length was cut in the harbor ice with a diver from Wiarton making the descent to ascertain what repairs will be needed. The diver was under water for approximately three hours.

Following investigation it was asertained that considerable repairs would be necessary and it has been decided to reconstruct the dock. Creosote piles will be driven with the structure to be given a concrete top. Cost is estimated in the neighborhood of $15,000 with the McNamara Construction Co. being awarded the contract. Work is expected to commence immediately.

Jim Follwell Meets Friends in Iceland

A letter has been received by Alderman Frank P. Follwell, brother of Jim Follwell, Y.M.C.A. supervisor now with the R.C.A.F. overseas, telling of his safe arrival in Iceland. Jim was formerly with the "Y" at Owen Sound before proceeding overseas. At the time of his embarkation he was of the opinion that his destination was the British Isles. He reports in his letter that he believes Iceland is a beautiful country . . . in the summer.

Jim flew from the East Coast to his present location and immediately took up his duties as director of "Y" activities with the British troops stationed in that section of Iceland where he finds himself. He reports that he has met several friends who attended the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph with him, and that he has met Alec Hillman who he knew quite well during his school days in Belleville, having attended the Collegiate with him. Alec Hillman is from across the bay at Rossmore. Another friend of former days, Frank Armitage of Napanee, is also on the same station with Jim.

Reviving these old acquaintances has brought much pleasure to Jim and has made up a lot for the wintry condition of his present situation. He states in his letter that he has been up a number of times for a "flip" in the company of his friend Armitage, and reports that he is sure he will like Iceland after he becomes accustomed to the climate.

POLICE COURT

Immoral Act Brings Jail Term

Convicted of committing an immoral act in his home, Archie Helm, of Cashel Township, was sentenced to serve three months in the common jail after pleading guilty to the charge before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in County Police Court here Thursday. As a sequel to the charge Helm's sister-in-law, Mrs. Jessie Helm, of the same address, was given a year's suspended sentence after pleading guilty to the same charge. Both families resided in the same house, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., informed the court.

Mrs. Helm's husband, who is a brother of the convicted man, is serving overseas.

"You had better get out of that house," His Worship warned Mrs. Helm. The convicted man was also in the armed services, but was recently discharged, the crown added.

Fined $44.75.

Hurson Card, Bancroft, pleaded guilty to failing to re-register as provided under the National Mobilization Regulations. He pleaded guilty and paid $44.75, including costs. Later Constable McNairn, of the R.C.M.P., procured a court order to transfer Card to military district headquarters in Kingston where he is to be turned over to the military authorities.

Convicted of cruelty to animals in a previous court, an elderly Thurlow Township lady was represented in court today when it was learned that all stock on the elderly woman's farm had been disposed of as directed by His Worship a fortnight ago. A fine of $5 and costs was paid.

A charge of assaulting a police officer preferred against Anthony Cain, of Corbyville, will be heard in the afternoon session. This charge arose out of a disturbance at an auction sale on the farm of Emerson Hough, Sidney, last week, Provincial Constable Jas. Driscoll revealed.

Highways North Of City Slippery In Some Sections

Many highways in the district to the north of Belleville were generally in a very slippery condition Thursday morning, it was stated by county councillors who motored to the city for the morning session. Although rain fell in Belleville, freezing to the bare pavement, the precipitation at Marmora and Tweed was in the form of snow, it was stated.

The county road between Foxboro and Madoc was in a particularily slippery condition, according to Warden Thos. Fleming, who intimated the hills in the West Huntingdon district were dangerous. Sanding operations had not been carried out by mid-morning. The Tweed highway was slippery toward its southern extremities but sanding operating were in progress while the Marmora road had also been sanded.

With Wednesday night's fall of snow there is now fairly good sleighing as far south as Tweed, while the depth of snow quickly increases as one travels north. At Coe Hill snow is up to the knees in the bush, while the same depth is evident at Bancroft and Maple Leaf.

Girl Killed, Six Injured When Car Hits Truck

Toronto, Jan. 20. (CP) — One girl was killed and six persons hurt when the car in which they were riding crashed into the rear of a stalled truck north of nearby Richvale early today. Four of the injured were soldiers stationed at Camp Borden.

Police said a registation card in the handbag of the dead girl identified her as Nora Galman, 21, of Toronto.

In hospital here with injuries decribed as serious are Teresa Savage, 20, and Sally E. Berard, 20, both of Toronto, Ptes. J. A. Inman, M. Perlstone, B. A. Stone and S. Thompson, all members of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps.

Stone, driver of the car, said he and his companions were returning to Camp Borden and picked up the three girls hitch-hiking on the highway leading north from Toronto.

Floyd Treanor of Meadowvale, driver of the truck owned by Northern Transport Ltd., Toronto, said the transport stalled when a battery connection broke. Before he had time to place flares at the rear the car collided with the truck, he said.

Sick and Barefoot Woman Rescues Boy Through Hole in Ice

Toronto, Jan. 20. (CP)—Mrs. Lena Burkosy of nearby Long Branch, barefoot and wearing only night clothes, left her sick-bed yesterday to rescue a five-year-old boy who had tumbled through a hole of the ice in the Etobicoke River.

Lying flat on the ice, she managed to reach the youngster as his grip on the ice edge began to loosen. The boy was not identified. Mrs. Burkosky saw the boy struggling in the water when she glanced from her bedroom window.

Review of C.A.S. Given Council By T. D. Ruston

Superintendent Appeals for More Social Outlets for Wives and Children of Servicemen

59 WARDS IN YEAR

An appeal for organizations and individuals in Belleville and Hastings County to give more attention to the provision of wholesome social outlets for servicemen's wives and for their families was heard at county council, when members were addressed by Captain T. D. Ruston, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society.

Presenting a resume of his work at council Wednesday afternoon, Mr. Ruston told members that supervision of allowance payments to soldiers' wives, where incapability of efficient self-supervision had been shown, had tremendously increased the work of his department. At the present time allowance cheques of 44 county servicemen were being supervised and budgeted each month. A definite lack of organization for the assistance and guidance of soldiers' wives was evident, he said.

"It's all very well to take up subscriptions to provide comforts for the boys overseas," stated Mr. Ruston, "and it shows a fine spirit of loyalty and patriotism. But at the same time don't let us forget the soldiers' wives and young children at home."

59 Children Made Wards.

Referring briefly to the regular work of the Children's Aid Society, Mr. Ruston stated 59 children had been taken into their care during the past year. Better times, however, have made it possible for greater collections from parents toward the upkeep of children and the Society had been able to turn back to the county approximately $2,000. Despite this costs of the Society had gone up but children still were cared for at less than the 75 cents paid by the county. "And the children haven't suffered," he said.

H. B. Fetterly appealed to councillors on behalf of the Victorian Order of Nurses, who he contended did considerable work within a three-mile radius of the city. He cited the growth of the V.O.N. in Belleville, its expansion making it necessary to increase the staff from one nurse to three at present and asked for the usual grant of $50. The request was referred to the Patriotic Committee.

Referred to Committee.

Grant requests from the O.C.R.A. and from the Navy League of Canada were referred to Ways and Means.

Lincoln County asked concurrence in a resolution providing for the establishment of a $5 bounty for killing foxes, but after discussion it was decided that no action be taken on the matter. In view of the fact that increased supplies of ammunition were promised for civilian use in the future it was thought hunting of foxes would become more prevalent.

Communication from the area engineer of the Department of Highways at Bancroft regarding a county resolution that St. Lawrence Street in Madoc be taken over was read in council. According to the engineer arrangement could be made for the Department to take over the central 20 foot portion of the road which is the connecting link through the village on No. 7 Highway. The county, however, would be expected to maintain curbs and ditches outside the twenty feet.

Heavy Truck Traffic.

Reeve George West of Madoc stated the reason for asking the Department to take the portion of road over was that there was heavy truck traffic on this street from which the village derived no revenue. The Department had formerly agreed to take over the street on the above conditions but the village council contended the entire roadway maintenance costs should be assumed. The matter was left for decision between Madoc village council and the Department.

A tentative auditors' report was submitted to council by S. C. Gay and E. C. Townsend, auditors, indicating the county finances were in a splendid condition. At the conclusion of the session councillors accepted an invitation from Mr. Elmer Sandercock to attend a chicken supper at the county home Thursday evening.

FAILED TO TAKE OWN ADVICE

New York, Jan. 20—(AP)— For years Paul R. Estes, a broker, has told his clients not to keep their securities at home as they might be stolen. Today police are investigating the disappearance of approximately $4,300 in stocks and bonds—stolen from a desk in Estes' home.

Motor Dealers Belleville Branch Elect Officers

Ben Sadouski and Howard Moore of Federation Special Speakers

TRADE REVIEWED

Showing full confidence in the ability of their past year's officials, the entire slate of officers for the Belleville branch of the Federation of Automobile Dealer Associations for Canada, was retugned to office at the organization annual meeting and election of officers held at the Hotel Quinte, Wednesday evening.

The Association's president for 1944, will be J. B. Boyce, with Leo Riggs, as vice president; J. J. Trudeau as secretary and Cecil Baker, as treasurer, with Perc. Dulmage as director. Special representative last year with voting power at national convention, was Harry Moorman.

Last evening's meeting was representative of the automotive retail trade in Hastings and Prince Edward counties with dealers from as far north as Bancroft and as far south as Picton being in attendance. Guest speakers for the evening were Mr. Ben Sadouski, vice president of the Federation; and Mr. Howard Moore, general manager of the same organization.

Work For Trade.

As member of the advisory committee to the motor vehicle controller, Mr. Sadouski, told dealers the work this committee had been doing with regard to retail sale regulations of tire chains, anti-freeze and the establishment of the automotive industry as an essential business in the eyes of selective service. He also touched briefly on the used tire situation and on illegal practices in the automotive retail trade.

Mr. Moore gave a comprehensive outline of the Federation organization, the work it had done since its inauguration and its aims for the future. It had been responsible, he said, for a transition in dealer thinking and in their realization that the trade was an important part of the national economy.

Stressed Branch Importance.

He particularly stressed the importance of the local organizations, from which Federation was made up, and indicated that individual members had a greater responsibility other than attendance at meetings and paying their dues. Competition would be keen in the post-war period but good sound business management with a wealth of experience would make for successful business.

Collectively speaking there was no such thing as a post-war problem, Mr. Moore contended. Rather this should be viewed as a series of problems which must be tackled separately and thought out on the same basis. The Federation did not know any more than the private dealer, just what problems might be expected to face the automotive retail trade, when these problems would arise, or what these factors would be. "Remember", he advised, "the Federation is just a composite "you", if you do not know the problems, neither do we".

The Federation was claimed not to be seeking a power organization, but rather a unity, which would express the voice of the trade when asked by the govenment. The Federation appreciated that restrictions and ceilings were necessary in time of national stress and were offering co-operation all along the line. "From time to time we will offer suggestions for the betterment of the trade", Mr. Moore concluded, "and we only trust you will appreciate the advantages offered".

A Dinner Meeting.

The evening's program took form as a dinner meeting over which Mr. Boyce presided with entertainment being provided by the Belleville Quartette composed of Messs. Moorman, Bankier, Evans and Thomson with Leo Riggs at the piano. The quartette rendered "Boys of The Old Brigade", and "Hie Away Home", while instrumentalists Jack Green and Ronnie Moorman delighted with cornet numbers. During the course of the evening, Mr. Moorman, as special representative, gave a brief report of the Federation annual meeting held recently in Montreal.

Obituary

MRS. MARY ANNE JONES
(Bancroft)

Bancroft, Jan. 20—Mrs. Mary Anne Jones passed away at her home on Bridge Street, Bancroft, Tuesday, January 18th in her 82nd year following a brief illness. The late Mrs. Jones was born in Brantford where she spent her early years. She had spent the past thirty years in Bancroft living with her daughter Miss Eudora Jones. She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Hazel Stackhouse, and Miss Eudora Jones of Bancroft, Mrs. Cragg of Toronto and Mrs. Hunt of New York; also two sons, Mr. Gordon W. Jones of Bancroft and Mr. Grant Jones of New York. The late Mrs. Jones was a member of the United Church, and is one who will be greatly missed by those of the village, as her loving and kindly manner won her many staunch friends.

The funeral service was held at her late residence Wednesday morning at 9.00 a.m. the Rev. Robert McLaughlin officiating. The body was conveyed by the local undertaker Mr. F. A. Towle to Port Perry where interment was made Wednesday afternoon in the family plot in Pine Grove cemetery.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. W. F Wiggins, Daniel Goodwin, Lorne Reid, Emerson Laundry, F. J Follis and J. M. Joynt.

The many and beautiful floral tributes showed the esteem in which the late Mrs. Jones was held by her many friends of the village.

LATE MISS MARY GRIFFIN

The funeral of Miss Mary Griffin took place this Thursday morning from the residence of her brother-in-law, Mr. F. S. Anderson, 209 John Street, to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father C. E. Baker, who also said the committal prayers at St. James' Cemetery.

During the Offertory Mr. Ed. Brown sang, "Pray for the Dead," and at the close of the Mass he sang "Nearer My God to Thee."

The bearers were Messrs. J. Vincent Doyle, A. B. Collins, Frank Cushing, James Cowan, Walter N. Belair and F. McMahon.

LATE MRS. HANNAH PRIDMORE

Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 19th., the funeral of Mrs. Hannah Pridmore, widow of John Thomas Pridmore, took place from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Russell E. Smith, 140 William Street. The service in the home was conducted by Major William Marsh of the Salvation Army, assisted by the Rev. H. O. Eastman, pastor of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church.

Interment took place in Belleville Cemetery and the service at the grave side was conducted by Major William Marsh, the Rev. H. O. Eastman and Sergt.-Major Hart.

The bearers were Messrs. B. W. Brown, D. Wardle, H. Green, G. Cornish, T. Law and Sergt.-Major Hart.

MR. JAMES McCANN
(Brighton.)

A highly respected resident of Brighton, Ont., in the person of James McCann, died at his home late Wednesday evening, after a lengthy illness. He was born on the Ridge Road, Rawdon Township, 74 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John McCann. In early life he moved to Stirling, where he was employed with the old Grand Trunk Railway for many years. Later he entered the butcher business moving to Brighton, where he has resided for the past 25 years. He has been living retired for some years. The late Mr. McCann was an ardent angler and enjoyed the outdoor life. He was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and leaves to mourn one son, Kenneth McCann at home, one sister, Mrs. James Snider, Brighton, and one brother, Mr. John McCann, also of Brighton.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

Pepless Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did—even look healthy and strong, yet—you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.

Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.

Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. They are world-noted for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams Pink Pills today.

Sir William Mulock at 100

All Canada has been doing honor to "the Grand Old Man," Sir William Mulock, who on Wednesday marked the one hundredth anniversary of his birth.

Sir William is a man of great vitality and on the eve of his centennial anniversary he officiated as Chancellor of the University of Toronto in the conferring of the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws on Crown Prince Olaf of Norway. That was a memorable occasion when a man of the great age which Sir William has reached should take part in paying honor to the representative of the stout democratic land of Norway, whose heroism will go down the ages. The aged Chancellor, whose mind is as bright as ever it was, might well be taken as a symbol of the youthfulness of democracy which is steadily crushing the forces of aggression and tyranny and which will continue to flourish on the earth.

Sir William Mulock was honored as the great Canadian he has been and is, by the Dominion on his natal day. The Prime Minister of Canada, the Right Hon. W. L. M. King, and many others from all walks of life, paid honor to a statesman who has been tireless in his devotion to the interests of Canada, who sixty-two years ago was first elected to the Commons and who occupied the seat of the Township of York for the period of 23 years until his retirement. He had never lost an election. Forty-eight years ago he became Postmaster General of the Dominion and in his nine years in that post he brought in penny postage and introduced the Canada-Australia Imperial Cable. He served from 1900 to 1905 as head of the Department of Labor which he had reorganized, and at the same time retained his portfolio as Postmaster General.

To the Province of Ontario he gave years of service as Chief Justice of the Exchequer Division of the High Court of Justice and later became Chief Justice of this province.

His life covers the widest span of any man who has been in public life in Canada. From 1844 he can look along a century of progress and can testify to the steady development of the Dominion. The decades he has seen pass by with a patriot's satisfaction and devotion at the course of Canada's growth in every sphere of the national life. The fact that he has been in public life has given him unusual opportunity for a sane outlook upon life, both public and private.

He has looked upon many phases of national life which are now long since gone and his life is richer for that wide experience. Despite his years he has kept young in spirit and is as keen an observer and participant in life as those of many years younger.

At the same time he has reached the august age of serenity, a rich reward for a long and well-spent life, lived on that even plane which has meant for him a century of years, with the promise of more years to come. Nature and heredity have been kind to him and he has used these blessings of life as a public-spirited man would use them. Age has not meant for him what it so often means for others, a forced seclusion or retirement. The years have not shut him from the broad movement of life for he lives so much in this present day and as a part of the present age.

Beloved Padre Scott Dies

Archdeacon Frederick George Scott, known to thousands of Canadians as "Padre" Scott of the Canadian Corps in the First World War, has died at the age of 82 years. In spite of his great age he had been active up to a few weeks ago. His mind was as keen as ever and he who had been the beloved padre of the Canadians in the war of 1914-1918 desired at the age of 78 at the opening of the Second World War to enlist and play his part. Though he was rejected on account of age he served the nation in every effort possible and used his fine gift of poetic composition to further the cause of the Allied Nations.

In the first war he had been wounded and he was honored with the Distinguished Service Order.

He was a prominent churchman. He had travelled Canada much and ever since the former war he had been in demand for veterans' gatherings and patriotic meetings. He was never so happy as when with the men with whom he had served in war more than a quarter of a century ago. He was a deep inspiration to the Canadian people and he will be long remembered.

His verse is marked by fervid passion and power. He wrote many poems patriotic in their inspiration during his long life. In these latter days of the Second World War he wrote a number of pieces of verse, one of them, known as "The Alliance," runs as follows:

Heart unto heart, unfolding one great aim—
A world redeemed from tyrants and their shame,
Americans and British side by side
Breast now the flood of wrong's unhallowed tide.

Brothers in blood, brothers in mind and soul,
Your phalanxed strength in one long battle roll
Is herald of the dawn that ends the night
And rampant forms of hatred puts to flight.

Out of the wrack and turmoil of the time,
With strong endeavor in a cause sublime,
Ye are God's pledge that men shall one day see
The downfall of man's blood-red tyranny.

In April, 1915, in a field near Ypres, a place and name indelibly impressed on the minds of Canadians, he wrote "Requiescant" which is marked by depth of emotion and sublimity of thought:

In lonely watches night by night,
Great visions burst upon my sight,
For down the stretches of the sky
The hosts of dead go marching by.

Strange ghostly banners o'er them float,
Strange bugles sound an awful note,
And all their faces and their eyes
Are lit with starlight from the skies.

The anguish and the pain have passed
And peace has come to them at last,
But in the stern looks linger still
The iron purpose and the will.

Dear Christ, who reign'st above the flood
Of human tears and human blood,
A weary road these men have trod,
O house them in the home of God.

Goering's New Name

(Chicago Daily News)

Remember when Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering told the Germans that if one single Allied bomb ever fell on Berlin, his name would be Meyer?

Berliners haven't forgotten, either. Today, tense with the "dull, whining note of fear" that Prime Minister Churchill once promised Germany, they await still another British blitz from the "Seeing Eye" bombers that penetrate even the heaviest clouds—and they remember.

That's why, as a Swedish traveller reports, Goering is known now, from one end of Berlin to the other, by just one name, Herr Meyer.

Like so many other things the Nazis told their people, Goering's prediction is a difficult one to explain when the skies are filled with Royal Air Force bombers.

Warships Train Girls

Girls employed making shells in Belfast, Northern Ireland, were recently taken for a voyage on an armed trawler which had been on Russian convoys. They fired their own shells under the direction of gun crews. Sir Bazil Brooke, Prime Minister, said that interest in the work at the factory had increased enormously. A naval gun has been installed in one factory to demonstrate the shell made there, and this has increased production.

NO COMPLAINER

I'm told that I shouldn't, and I'm one that wouldn't,
My grievances air when I write.
I never say sadly that things have gone badly,
My letters are cheery and bright.
A gloomy epistle's as bad as a missile
Intended his courage to shake,
So, daily I write him this news to delight him—
Canned salmon is better than steak.

I tell not a word of the troubles I've heard of.
To keep him light-hearted I wish.
I wouldn't upset him with grumbling or fret him
By saying I'm fed up on fish.
I won't say I sicken of a la king chicken,
For that would be spilling the grief.
I won't set him thinking morale here is sinking
For want of a cut of roast beef.

My letters are cheery and not a bit dreary.
I give him the good news he begs.
I don't even pound out that mother has found out
A dozen new ways to cook eggs.
Let him keep repeating what sailors are eating,
That chow in the Navy is great.
That what was once "ham on," today is pale salmon,
Is something I'll never relate.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

January 20th., 1924.

Since the incorporation of Belleville as a city there have been twenty-nine Mayors, sixteen of whom are living. Following is the list: Alex. Robertson, 1878-1879; R. S. Patterson, 1880-1881; Nelson Lingham, 1882-1883; J. W. Dunnett, 1884-1885; Henry McIninch, 1886; W. H. Biggar, 1887; Dr. B. S. Wilson, 1888; W. J. Diamond, 1889; Geo. S. Tickell, 1890; E. Guss Porter, 1891; Curtis Bogart, 1892; F. S. Wallbridge, 1893; J. E. Walmsley, 1894, 1895 and 1896; J. W. Johnson, 1897, 1898, 1899 and 1900; R. J. Graham, 1901, 1902 and 1903; W. W. Chown, 1904; Charles N. Sulman, 1905, 1906 and 1907; Allan McFee, 1908; Lorne W. Marsh, 1909-1910; H. W. Ackerman, 1911; A. G. Vermilyea, 1912; J. F. Wills, 1913-1914; W. H. Panter, 1915; H. F. Ketcheson, 1916-1917; Dr. O. E. Platt, 1918; W. B. Riggs, 1919-1920; Charles Hanna, 1921-1922; Geo. A. Bennett, 1923; W. C. Mikel, K.C., 1924 (just elected).

January 20th., 1914.

The annual meeting of the Belleville Agricultural Society was held on Wednesday with the president, G. M. Campbell, presiding. The election of officers resulted as follows: Hon. President Mayor J. F. Wills; Hon. Vice Presidents, Col. Ponton and G. M. Campbell; President, John Elliott; First Vice President, Arthur Jones; Second Vice President, H. K. Denyes; Secretary, R. H. Ketcheson; Treasurer, G. G. Horton; Directors, W. W. Anderson, Stanley Wellbanks, Asa Brickman, George McCullough, Harry Ketcheson, Arthur Vermilyea, A. Martin, W. C. Farley, Charles Weese, Robert Garbutt, A. McFee, L. R. Terwilligar, W. C. Reid, L. W. Marsh and William Carnew; Auditors, J. L. Clapp and H. A. Fairman.

The Rev. W. G. Clarke, pastor of the Tabernacle, addressed the members of the Epworth League in Napanee last evening.

40 YEARS AGO

January 20th., 1904.

The cold snap seems to have passed for a time, for which we are thankful.

A prominent citizen remarked today that about two more snow storms and one more cold snap would be the finish of him.

Look out for the icicles and snow slides from the roofs.

The recount is over and the gas by-law stands as carried by a fair majority. The council should get busy at the next meeting and give the measure its third and final reading, then take over the works and put them in proper repair without delay. The recount reduced the majority from 16 to 15.

The large open shed situated on the south side of Queen Victoria School grounds, collapsed from the great weight of snow last night. It is fortunate that it happened during the night, otherwise some of the school children might have been injured.

50 YEARS AGO

January 20th., 1894.

A number of citizens attended the funeral of Dr. Boulter in Stirling today.

A large number of skaters enjoyed themselves on the bay last night. Moderate temperatures, bright moonlight and smooth ice combined to make the occasion an ideal one for the sport.

Two rinks competing for the Pitceathly medal curled last night with the following result: The players were: C. Sulman, James Gordon, D. M. Waters, D. B. Robertson, skip, 12; T. W. R. McRae, H. Smart, J. D. Swell, J. D. Clarke, skip, 8.

Mr. H. F. McMullen, machinist of this city, has accepted a position with William Garrett & Sons, Tweed.

Mrs. (Dr.) Eakins is visiting friends in Napanee.

Mr. George Lloyd of Trenton was in town today.

Vatican City

(From The New Yorker)

Vatican City covers a hundred and nine acres of ground and is the only independent state in the world whose borders an active tourist could walk around in three-quarters of an hour, if his feet didn't hurt. At the beginning of the war, there were a thousand or so citizens living under the flag of the Papal State, a yellow-and-white banner showing the crossed keys of St. Peter and the Pope's triple tiara. The Vatican issues its own stamps and coinage, and it has its own railroad station, fire department, electric-power plant, and radio station. There are more telephones per capita than in any other state in the world. You have to show your passport to get into the city, and once inside you are under the legal jurisdiction of the Pope. Everybody has heard about the Swiss Guards, an outfit which was organized more than four hundred years ago by Pope Julius II and which still wears Brooks Costume Company uniforms and carries halberds, but there are also three other organizations charged with keeping order in the city—the Papal Gendarmes, who police the Vatican Palace; the Palace Guard, a militia composed of Romans, who serve on special dress-up occasions, and the Noble Guard, a more or less honorary corps distinguished from any other outfit we know of by the fact that all its members are officers. This is a fact that should definitely interest the members of the American Fifth Army in due course. The Swiss Guards are the Pope's personal escort, and, as in the old days, they're still recruited from the forest cantons of Switzerland.

In the pagan days of Rome, the Vatican was a pleasant suburb, with gardens and villas. It took its name from the vaticinia, or prophecies, pronounced at a temple of Apollo which stood nearby. The neighborhood changed as the years passed, and finally Caligula built an amphitheatre there. In it he had set up an obelisk from Egypt, and it was near this obelisk that St. Peter, one of the twelve apostles, was crucified. Today the obelisk stands in St. Peter's Piazza, before the church where the saint's body lies. St. Peter's Church is, of course, the largest in the world; its floor space is 163,200 square feet, as against 64,100 for Notre Dame and 109,00 for St. John the Divine. Only the Pope may say Mass at the high altar. The church dates back to 326 A.D., when Pope Sylvester I asked the Emperor Constantine to build a church over the spot where St. Peter was buried. Charlemagne was crowned there, by Pope Leo III, and Napoleon I intended to arrange a like ceremony for himself, but he had a tiff with the reigning Pope and it never came off. The last of the Stuarts are buried in St. Peter's—James III, Charles III, and Henry IX. So is Queen Christina, the brisk and masculine lady who abandoned the throne of Sweden, became a Catholic, and spent the rest of her life scandalizing the Vatican set. To her dying day, she never got over being sore because the cardinals wouldn't tip their

A Morning Song

'Tis morning bright!
I've had a night
Of restful and refreshing sleep;
And forth I fare
In the tonic air
Of January, keyed to keep
Throughout the day
This reveille
Of wakened courage—this rebirth
Of promise in
The dawn, to win
Its way across the dreaming earth.

The world is mine,
To see it shine
And feel it throbbing, as my feet
Trip lightly o'er
The frosted floor
Of earth, the smile of heaven to greet,
I drink of this
Terrestrial Bliss
(Transfigured by the sun and air)
That shines and sings
And on the wings
Of morning comforts like a prayer.

So clings the earth
Of tears and mirth
To quickening sun and tempering breeze,
With heart intent
On the great event
Of sick humanity's release
From overlords
And blood-dyed swords,
In a lasting jubilee of peace.

Lewis and Green Confer After Lengthy Break

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Miami, Fla., Jan. 20—(AP)—After an eight-year estrangement, John L. Lewis and A. F. L. President William Green have met secretly on the question of readmitting Lewis' United Mine Workers to the A. F. L., it can be revealed today.

Green and Lewis parted company when Lewis founded the C. I. O. in 1935. The break was confirmed a year or so later when Lewis had Green expelled from the Miners' Union. After that, their speaking terms were epithets at long range.

The ultimate results, and the details of their meeting remain to be disclosed. It cannot yet be called a reconciliation.

Green refuses to discuss it. This much is known: The meeting was held in Washington recently, strictly on an off-the-record basis. The conference was not sought by Green. It was proposed either by Lewis or by an A. F. L. intermediary who was interested in expediting the return of Lewis to the federation. There is evidence of pressure being brought to bear in Lewis' favor, not only by his friend on the A. F. L. executive council, but by leaders of A. F. L. unions who are putting pressure on the council.

Marshall Islands

Mili atoll, attacked by American Liberators, is the nearest stepping stone from the Yank-occupied Gilberts into Japan's Marshall group, say the National Geographic Society. It lies about 190 miles northwest of Makin and 340 miles from Tarawa, in the Gilberts. The Marshall Islands are largely made up of two chains of atolls, extending northwestward from the Gilbert group in more or less parallel lines. As a whole, the group has been considered valuable to the Japanese because of its large and deep-water lagoons, providing shelter for its submarines and other shipping, where protected from wind and water, some of the atolls offer positions for repair work and refuelling. Natural disadvantages include the fact that the islands generally are extremely narrow, often only a few yards across. Although they are dotted over some 200,000 square miles of sea expanse, they cover less than 100 square miles of territory. It has been said of the Marshalls that they have perfect harbors without land.

Bodily Mechanics

The body handily and foresightedly carries many spare parts, Arthur H. Steinhaus writes in Coronet. You could get along very well minus one lung, two-thirds of each kidney, nine-tenths of the adrenal gland, four-fifths of the thyroid, two of the four parathyroids and three-fourths of the liver.

A thermostat sunk in the floor of the brain keeps your body temperature on an even keel to within a degree, even though outside temperature may range from below zero to over a hundred in the shade.

Will a mind equipped with a memory that is capable of accumulating the play-by-play tensions of a lifetime struggle crack under its burden? Or will it find ways to protect itself in the midst of turmoil and frustration before the ten per cent trek to mental hospitals becomes a mass movement and nervous indigestion a universal ill?

The brain is "wired" to every body part. Beridden with strong emotions, it discharges tension into muscle, paralysis into stomach and intestines, mounting blood pressure into heart and arteries, constriction into the blood supplies of skin and viscera, and general upset into delicate physio-chemical equilibria.

The result of this can be a superior fighting machine, like the she-bear, poised to protect her cubs. Or in modern man, this emergency mechanism unnecessarily prolonged by memory, too often miscarries into apoplexy, ulcer, indigestion, emaciation or a nervous dermatitis. In final desperation the mind may go on a "sit-down" strike, leaving another derelict wreck to be towed in for repairs or dead storage.

The most wonderful of creations—the human machine—is ours by inheritance, a treasure handed down through the age. Whether we use it wisely or wreck it is the test of our contemporary period.

WENT DOWN IN STORM

London, Jan. 20—(CP)—The Turkish passenger steamer Truk, 1,414 tons, went down in a snowstorm in the sea of Marmora on a return journey from Gallipoli, a Reuters News Agency dispatch from Istanbul reported today. The cause of the sinking was not learned.

GRANARY IN AFRICA

In ancient days, North Africa was called the granary of Rome.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

People came from far and near to enjoy a good laugh when the first houses made of scantling were put up. "Why, they'll blow down in the next big wind!" was the general verdict, delivered somewhat maliciously. Though decidedly more frail than the log cabins and homes built of heavy timber, the new houses proved substantial enough. Their popularity increased with the years, since they were more capacious and could be erected at smaller cost than the older types.

* * *

Many a gracious pine-tree gave its life to provide shelter for farm animals. When pines were not available, choice fell on elms, oaks, hemlocks and other suitable woods. The prosperous farmer employed a carpenter to superintend the building of his barn. This energetic person would first "score" the logs. Part of the bark was removed from one side and a chalk line drawn along the log. Every few inches the wood was hashed into the depth indicated by the chalk line. This loosened wood was then hewed off by a broad axe. All four sides of the log were treated in the same way. After the scoring, the logs were taken to the site of the proposed building and dumped there, alongside huge timbers for the sleepers of the barn. There they awaited the day of the "raising bee".

* * *

The implement provided for the "raising" made the men look quite ferocious. It was a pike-pole, more than ten feet tall, and tipped with a sharp piece of iron. It aided in the lifting and steadying of the logs. . . . One incautious move might endanger a life; in fact, men occasionally did meet death at the bees! . . . To speed the job of raising, sides were sometimes taken and a race was "on". Those who got their allotted work finished first were winners. A record raising was completed in two hours.

GOOD SAMARITANS

One of the most interesting religious and racial people in the world are the Samaritans of Palestine.

They are the sole representatives of the ancient Israelites who have continuously lived in the Holy Land.

The ancestors of all other people in Palestine have resided at one time or another in their history in some other country, but this remnant of Samaritans have continued to live in their ancient homeland for thousands of years.

The Samaritans in Palestine still cling to their particular version of the ancient Hebrew religion.

They speak a dialect of Palestinian Aramaic and write with an archaic alphabet derived from Old Hebrew.

Of the Bible they accept only the Pentateuch (or the law of Moses), which they read in an ancient Aramaic version known as the Targum.

They have their own high priest and cling to their ancient beliefs and practices and even to their sacrifices on Mount Gerizim, where the people of Samaria two thousand years ago offered their sacrifices while the Judaeans insisted that the temple in Jerusalem was the only proper place where sacrifices could be offered in conformity to Hebrew law and custom.

Since the Samaritans are few in number and live among Arabs they use the Arabic language for the ordinary purposes of everyday life.

Today they are only a handful, perhaps not more than 200, and they live chiefly in and around Nablus.

Their distinctive feature of dress is a red turban wound around a fez, which makes them look more like Arabs than Jews.

Perhaps one of the ancestors of this little group was that "certain Samaritan" who lent a helping hand to "a certain man" who "went down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell among thieves," and who by his good deed answered the question, Who is my neighbor?

And perhaps another ancestor was that "woman of Samaria" who told Jesus, as he sat on Jacob's well, that "the Jews have no dealings with the Samaritans."

St. John's Church Holds Annual Vestry Meeting

Inaugural Meeting of the Village Council Makes Appointments

Stirling, Jan. 20. (Special.)—St. John's Anglican church annual congregational meeting was held Monday evening, January 17, in the Parish Hall, with a splendid attendance. The rector gave his report, followed by the church statistics for the year, and asked the working support of the congregation in the coming years of his ministry. Mr. F. Houchin then gave the treasurer's report covering three accounts: General, Missions and Building Fund, which all showed favorable balances, especially so in regard to missionary givings. Dr. E. A. Carleton gave the auditor's report and commenting on the system used, offered two ideas for its betterment. Then followed the reports from each organization: Ladies' Guild by Mrs. G. Prince; Woman's Auxiliary by Mrs. H. Rodgers; Men's Club by A. E. Strickland; A.Y.P.A. by Rev. C. C. Brazill and Sunday School by Fred Houchin. All reports showed a very fine year and were adopted. At the conclusion of the reports the rector called upon the wardens to address the meeting. Mr. Fred Kent spoke asking the continued and increased givings. Mr. J. B. Belshaw referred to past efforts during the thirty years he has been warden, and asked to be relieved of his duties. In replying, the rector voiced the appreciation of the congregation to both wardens for their untiring work. Mr. Belshaw's resignation was accepted. Dr. E. A. Carleton asked the meeting to consider the system of promoting the people's warden to rector's warden, each year, with a new people's warden to be elected. Moved by Mr. B. Bedford and seconded by Mr. H. Cooke that this be done.

The following are the appointments made for the year 1944:

Rector's Warden, Fred Kent; People's Warden, A. E. Strickland; Treasurer, Fred Houchin; Auditors, Mrs. B. Alger and Dr. E. A. Carleton; Vestry Clerk, Fred Houchin; Sidesmen: Messrs. Chas. Faires, Sr., Walter Wright, H. Rodgers, J. McDonald and J. B. Belshaw; Vestry Council: Mrs. B. Alger, Mrs. H. Rodgers, Mrs. J. Whitehead, Mrs. M. Tanner and Messrs. A. E Strickland, F. Kent, W. Wright, Earl Morrow, W. Savage, F. Houchin, J. B. Belshaw and Dr. E. A. Carleton. Lay delegates to Synod: Dr. E. A. Carleton and Fred Houchin.

After the meeting the ladies served a dainty lunch.

The public school opened on Monday last, after remaining closed one week owing to one case, in the school, of scarlet fever. The Board of Health did this as a precautionary method and also fumigated the school. Fortunately there are no further cases to date.

Village Council Re-organizes.

Women's Societies Of Churches Hold Annual Meetings

Many Persons Are Taking Advantage of the Mild Weather to Get Ahead in Spring Work

GRASS FIRES

Trenton, Jan. 20. (Special.)—Most of the Women's Associations in the various churches have this week completed their annual meetings and plans are being laid for extensive work during the coming months.

Mrs. O. May was re-elected president of King St. United Women's Association, with Honorary Presidents, Mrs. R. M. Foster, Mrs. J. D. Martin and Mrs. W. J. Potts. Mrs. M. Burrows is first vice president, Mrs. J. Orchard, second vice and Mrs. L. Farrell, third. Miss R. Black is recording secretary, Mrs. Cecil Roberts, corresponding secretary and Mrs. A. Fleming, financial secretary. Press Reporter is Miss F. Vandervoort and Treasurer, Mrs. A. L. Bond. The association is divided into four groups with Mrs. J. F. Cox, Mrs. G. Fitzgibbon, Mrs. A. Abbott and Mrs. W. M. Brown in charge.

Grace United Church Association has as its President, Mrs. H. Jeffrey, with First and Second Vice Presidents, Mrs. Bell and Mrs. W. Bowen. The secretary is Mrs. S. Humphrey, and Treasurer, Mrs. S. S. Bowden. The ladies are divided into three groups with Mrs. Johnson as one leader and two more to be appointed.

The entire executive of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Ladies' Aid Society was re-elected for a second term with Mrs. W. Bain, president; Mrs. C. V. Wilkins, first vice president and Mrs. W. W. Miller, third vice president; Secretary, Mrs. E. A. McQuade; Treasurer, Mrs. G. Martin and Tea Convener, Mrs. P. Meyers. Mrs. W. B. McClung, and Mrs. R. Y. Weymss were re-elected group leaders with tne second group headed by Mrs. C. Brown and Mrs. H. Moore.

St. George's Anglican Parish Association has as its new President, Mrs. W. J. Province, with Mrs. J. L. Hutchinson, as honorary president. First Vice President, is Mrs. F. Little, Second, Mrs. R. M. Armstrong, and Third, Mrs. W. Miller. Mrs. R. Burke, is immediate past president Recording Secretary is Mrs. M. Waldorf, Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Deeley, Treasurer, Mrs. T. Spear.

The group system being organized in the association has as its First Captain, Mrs. F. Little, who is also first vice president.

Fires and Spring Work.

Possibly the first fires of their type to occur in this district for many years, during the month of January, Trenton Fire Department today has had two calls to large grass fires which, though no breeze appeared to be blowing at the time, were racing towards adjoining buildings.

Certainly not in a great many years have citizens been able to burn grass at this time of the year but, with not a sign of snow in sight, many are taking advantage of the opportunity of getting ahead in their spring work.

The first call today was to the Bay Shore property at the rear of Hill's Service station on Dundas Street, just at the east end of town, while the second was the property of Lloyd York on North Byron Streets. In both cases firemen quickly got the blaze under control.

Rotary Club.

Group Captain A. D. Bell-Irving, M.C., officer commanding Trenton Air Station, was guest speaker at the regular weekly meeting of the Trenton Rotary Club on Monday, and was introduced by Rotarian W. C. Saylor. He paid high tribute to the co-operation between the town and the air force, which he had witnessed since his taking command of the Station and said he felt sure that the R.C.A.F. would still be of great importance to Trenton and the surrounding district after the final notes of victory had been sounded.

The appreciation of the club was extended the speaker by Rotarian Dave Harrison.

The War Today— Troubles Continue to Gather About Dictator Franco's Head

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Spanish Gen. Franco's policy of playing both ends against the middle, in his relations with Hitler and the Allies has landed him in another jam with Britain, thus adding to the many problems which are complicating his increasingly difficult fight to maintain his dictatorship.

This time British Foreign Secretary Eden has indicted Spain on two counts. He told the House of Commons that Sir Samuel Hoare, Ambassador to Spain, had been instructed to make further strong representations over the fact that Spanish volunteers still are fighting with the Nazis against Russia. Britain also has renewed her support of the Italian government's request for release of all Italian ships in Spanish ports.

Mr. Eden made no effort to conceal his government's annoyance with the Spanish support of the Hitlerites. However, this only adds one more to the long string of Allied protests against Franco's attitude.

Franco's troubles don't travel singly. One of his serious difficulties seems to be that he can't quite make up his mind whether his bread is spread with Nazi or with Allied butter.

Internal Troubles Complicate.

The General's dilemma is complicated by Spain's explosive internal situation. The Leftists and the Rightists are pulling against each other so heavily that they are rocking his dictatorial chair.

Franco started in the conflict as a "neutral" but committed to give "all aid to the Axis short of war". There were two reasons for this stand. He felt he owed a debt to Hitler and Mussolini for the support they gave him during the Spanish Civil War of 1936-39 and, perhaps more to the point Germany looked like a winner.

However, this changed and by the end of 1942 the non-interventionist, pro-monarchist army officers became the dominant force in the regime in place of the fiercely pro-Nazi portion of the Falange Party. That really turned the Franco government in the direction of neutrality.

With passing time the Falange Party has lost ground in Spain, and there has been a corresponding swing to the right in the direction of a monarchy and the old form of government. Naturally this has weakened Franco's position on the home front and he is under heavy pressure from both the Allies and Hitler as the belligerent powers line up for the last big battle.

Whitehall Notebook

By DOUG HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, Jan. 20 (CP)—There is belief in Britain that the defeat of German arms in the field will bring to a head the domestic problem which has its crux in the fact that the present House of Commons was elected nine years ago.

Without waiting for the fall of Japan, say those who hold this belief, Britain must go to the polls. In preparation for that day, a new electoral register is being compiled and a speaker's conference will examine the whole field of voting rights and rules.

But once that assumption is accepted, there is confusion and argument, and in recent weeks the argument beyond that point has grown with quiet vigor.

The differences lie in the simple problem of the lines on which the election is to be fought. Of the several which offer themselves to speculation these are among the prominent:

An election based on continuation of the present national government, an election which candidates will campaign as individuals representing parties pledged to a new coalition or opposing such a plan; an election on the familiar straight party lines.

In massive emphasis in the background rise the obviously over-riding considerations of both the war and the peace. It is a hard point of those who preach coalition that a Britain torn by the stress of renewed party politics could not hope to cope with the difficulties that will come through her responsibilities to a bewildered, liberated and starving Europe.

"They take strength, too, from the towering influence of Prime Minister Churchill who has said of his four-year plan to bring homes, work and food to all that it must "be presented to the country by a national government representative as this one is of the three (major) parties in the state, or by a national government comprising the best men who are willing to serve."

Regardless of the issues on which the election turns the Churchill name will possess heavy sway. It is to this man of war that the Conservatives look for the decisive momentum to return them, with whatever colleagues, in the first general election since 1936.

Paper Questions Mulock's Age

Toronto, Jan. 20 — (CP) — The Globe and Mail today reproduced two references to Sir William Mulock from Who's Who and said they raised a question as to whether Ontario's former chief justice celebrated his 101st or his 100th birthday yesterday.

The paper said that Sir William's birth was never registered and all reference books issued up to 1914 listed the date of birth as Jan. 19, 1843, and the excerpt from Who's Who of 1914 gives that date. The other reproduction, from Who's Who of 1919, makes the birth date Jan. 19, 1844.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma is a member of the Gils, only being 5 other ladies in it besides ma, and Gils being short for Give Lifts to Servicemen, and after supper ma said to pop, I had my chance to lord it over Bertha Cornhouse today, William. I just couldn't wait to see the uncontrollable envy in her naturally jelliss face when she first set eyes on my new uniform, because she's always and forever bragging about her wonderful organization the Kofs, for Knit Our Fighters Sweaters, although as far as she knows the men are too warm already, so in that case she's just adding coal to Newcastle. Anyway I had my golden opportunity to gloat over her today, and believe me I squeezed it to its bitter dregs, ma said.

Was she properly bowled over? pop said, and ma aid, Well naturally, but of course she made a pitiful effort to disgize it. She looked at me with her fishy eyes in a desperate effort to keep cool and self possessed, and then she asked me a peculiar question, ma said.

What did she ask you, how old is Ann? pop said, and ma said, She asked me how many stripes and stars I have. Then she went on to infer that in war time a uniform is the commonest sight there is, and decorations for merit are the only things that count. She claimed that the Kofs feel superior to uniforms and all they are interested in are stripes and stars, and it seems Bertha Cornhouse has won 12 stripes and 2 stars representing I dont know how many pounds or tons of knitting. Of course she was just talking in self defence to hide her mortification, but just the same she managed to fil me with the general sensation of a million dollars suddenly reduced to 2 cents, and at the very next meeting of the Gils I'm going to propose getting the autograff of every serviceman we pick up and awarding a silver stripe for every hundred autograffs and a gold star for every five hundred, and Bertha Cornhouse can just put that in her pipe and smoke it, ma said.

I'll smoke it in a cigar, pop said, and he lit one and got in back of the sporting page.

Hamilton, Jan. 20 —(CP)— Five persons were injured last night when a freight elevator cage dropped three floors during an employees' party at a department store (T. Eaton Co., Ltd.) here. No one was injured seriously, although four were admitted to hospital. There was no immediate explanation as to the cause of the accident.

"SWORD OF STALINGRAD"

Halifax Explosion Is Re-enacted By Shambles in Disaster at Bari

Allan Nicnleson, who was The Canadian Press reyresentative on an Air Ministry tour of the Mediterranean war theatre tells in the following story of the night at Bari when the German air force struck shipping i nthat east coast Italian harbor with devastating effect on the night of December 2.

Incidentally Nickleson ,who was instrumental in swaying British censorship authorities in releasing the story which had been kept until now to a cut-and-dried official statement, walked through the bomb and flare lighted night to view the dockyard.

By ALLAN NICSKLESON

London, January 20 — (C. P. Cable.)—One of the greatest marine disasters since the Halifax explosion in 1917—the sinking of 17 Allied ships in the Adriatic port of Bari—came about through a couple of "lucky hits" by German aircraft who until a subsequent Allied announcement had no idea of the damage they had caused. The enemy originally claimed only three Allied ships as sunk.

This is an eye-witness account of that 60-minute raid on the night of December 2 when two ammunition ships struck by Nazi bombs exploded in gigantic sheets of flame and resulted in the sinking of 17 ships in the harbor on the east coast of Italy. About 30 enemy planes took part.

There were more than 1,000 casualties as a result of the raid, many of them fatal. Windows and doors were blown out for miles around and many small buildings in the immediate vicinity were wrecked.

Most of the ships, with cargoes destined for the British 8th Army, were destroyed by two separate blasts that followed the hitting of the ammunition vessels.

Until today British censorship prevented eleboration of the attack beyond details issued December 16 by War Secretary Henry Stimson at Washington.

Nine Empire war correspondents from London on an air tour of the Mediterranean war theatre arrived in Bari only a couple of hours before the early night surprise raid. All escaped uninjured.

We were returning to the town by bus from a conference with Air Marshal Sir Arthur Conningham when the raid started. There was no alarm. White flares from enemy planes floated over the target area. A small bomb exploded 250 yards from us as we neared the harbor area. It only shook the bus. Then a pyrotechnic display of light and heavy anti-aircraft fire shot into the clear skies.

We stood in the doorway of our waterfront hotel watching the display. Small explosions rumbled across the water as the fires took hold. A great orange-colored glow lit up the harbor—a little more than a mile distant. Vari-colored ack-ack fire criss-crossed the sky. The noise was terrific.

Most of the correspondents had just entered the hotel when a gigantic explosion blew out the doors, windows and frames. Broken glass and pieces of plaster zinged through the air.

I was walking across the foyer when I was blown into a corner. My first reaction was that the hotel had been struck by a bomb. A British sergeant lay under a mass of broken glass in the centre of the lobby.

The glass was part of the lighted dome in the centre of the lobby ceiling. White satin that had formed part of the ceiling decorations was draped about the sergeant's bloody head and shoulders. He was attended by army doctors and nurses after we dragged him from the wreckage.

From the hotel we could see an ever-increasing glow in the dock areas. Then another great glare lit up the scene. It was followed by another blast that blew out any remaining windows and frames. More persons were cut by flying glass and small bits of debris. The foyer, dining room bar and rooms facing the sea were a shambles of overturned tables, crazily - hanging drapes and broken woodwork. Glass littered the floors.

It was that way throughout Bari.

Little knots of Italian families streamed from the town as the firing ceased. They carried their few blongings on their backs. Some children were barefoot although the night was cold.

We circled the area by plane next morning. A thick, black smoke pall rose hundreds of feet. At least seven ships were still burning. Others were on their sides or mostly under water. Some ships burned for a week.

te investi wbe,n..1

The disaster prompted immediate investigation of the defensive power of the port and what advance precautions had been taken to ensure safety of shipping. The German planes, believed based in northern Italy, apparently came down the Adriatic, then swung in to attack.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

The engagement is announced of Elizabeth Graham Lewis, daughter of Mrs. Lewis and the late Thomas Graham Lewis to Flt. Lt. Harry Charles Slemin, Jr., son of Mrs. Slemin and the late Harry Charles Slemin, of Toronto, the wedding to take place in Belleville shortly.

AB. Jack Huffman, R.C.N.V.R., has returned to the East Coast after spending a leave at his home, 94 Grier St.

Mrs. H. Oliphant and daughter, Betty, spent Wednesday in Kingston with her mother, Mrs. E. Beatrix, formerly of Belleville, who is seriously ill.

Mrs. Everett Elliott, of Halloway, was admitted to Belleville General Hospital and underwent a serious operation on Tuesday.

Mrs. Michael Shea, of Stirling, has left for an extended visit with her son, Dr. J. T. Shea, of Foxboro, Mass. She was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Pauline Shea, who will visit her sister, Mrs. Edward Powers, of Buffalo.

Mrs. H. R. Williams and son, D'Arcy, of Ottawa, are spending the week the guests of her mother, Mrs. William Tracey, 36 N. Front Street.

Mrs. Frank Miller, Cedar St., has returned home after spending the past three weeks at the East Coast, visiting with her son, Allan, who is stationed with the R.C.A.F. there.

The Front Road war workers held a euchre party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Geddes on Tuesday night, with fourteen tables in play. The prize winners were: Ladies, Miss E. Spearing and consolation, Mrs. Fred Mitchell; Men's, Mr. W. Grey and Mr. Earl Vivian. The lone hand prize went to Mr. A. Clarie and the door prize was won by Mr. T. Williams. A bean contest was won by Mrs. W. Grey. Proceeds for the evening amounted to $19.75.

Prior to their leaving to reside in Stouffville, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Walter D. Atkinson and family, Forin St., were feted at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Downey, Coleman St., on Wednesday night by the staff of the Imperial Oil Company of Belleville, of which Mr. Atkinson was an employee. The presentation of a lamp to Mr. and Mrs. Atkinson by Mr. "Mac" McLean, resident manager of the company, on behalf of the staff, was a mark of appreciation for Mr. Atkinson's fine services to the company during his employ there and a token of the warm esteem in which he and his wife are held.

WEDDINGS

THOMPSON—SHARPE

A quiet wedding took place in the chapel of Wolsley Barracks, London, Friday morning, Jan. 14, when Pte. Pauline Sharpe, C. W. A. C., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sharpe, now of Belleville, formerly of Deseronto, was united in marriage to Cpl. John Murray Thompson of the Canadian Army, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Thompson, St. John, N.B.

The bride and groom were unattended and both wore their khaki uniforms.

After a short honeymoon spent with the bride's parents in Belleville and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Cole, the bride returned to her duties in Kingston, where she is stationed and the groom to London.

HITSMAN—PURDY

Chalmers United Church, Kingston, was the scene of a lovely midwinter wedding at 7.30 Saturday evening, Jan. 15, when the Rev. Dr. George A. Brown, assisted by Rev. J. I. MacKay, of Montreal, united in marriage Bernice Beverly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Purdy and James Stuart Hitsman, M.D., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Hitsman, all of Kingston.

Tall white lighted tapers, white Calla lilies and white 'mums and ferns adorned the altar, while the guest pews were marked with white tulle bows and clusters of white flowers. Miss Lenore Black played the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was a radiant figure in her wedding gown, a floor-length model of ivory slipper satin, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, leg o'mutton sleeves, a tight basque and a gathered skirt with a slight train. She wore a full length net veil caught with a wreath of orchid sprays and carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, Calla lilies and pale pink roses.

The bride was attended by Miss Katharine Connell as maid of honor and by Miss Nancy Parkinson as bridesmaid. Miss Connell's lovely frock was of pale blue taffeta and Miss Parkinson's was of pale yellow taffeta. They were fashioned alike with tight fitting bodices of sweetheart necklines and very full floor-length skirts. They wore small shirred taffeta hats to match their gowns and carried American Beauty roses.

Douglas D. McKercher, M.D., of Ottawa was best man and the ushers were T. A. McLellan, M.D., and M. McDougall, M.D., both of Hamilton.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 8 Kensington Ave. The bridal party, assisted by the bride's parents and her grandmother, Mrs. L. P. Purdy, of Trenton and the groom's aunt, Mrs. E. L. Johnson of New York City, received the guests in front of the fire-place in the living room which was attractively decorated with lighted candles and flowers. Mrs. Purdy, the bride's mother, wore an effective floor-length gown of Belgium blue chiffon velvet, a matching hat, trimmed with three shades of ostrich tips, two shades of blue and a soft pink and a matching corsage of roses. The bride's grandmother wore a handsome gown of black velvet and a corsage of pink carnations and Mrs. E. L. Johnson, the groom's aunt, was in a smart floor-length gown of ice blue chiffon with brown accessories and an ostrich tip and veil to match her gown. Her corsage was of dark red roses.

Later the bride and groom left for points east, the bride travelling in a smart wool cashmere suit in two shades of blue, with a muskrat coat and a fur trimmed hat, brown shoes and a brown orchid.

DR. WHITTON, C.B.E., IS SPECIAL SPEAKER

The Women's Canadian Club of Belleville will have the honor to present at its meeting in Bridge St. United Church rooms on Monday next, a very noted Canadian woman, born and bred in this Dominion, in the person of Dr. Charlotte Whitton. Dr. Whitton, who will speak on the subject, "What Do We Mean by Social Security," has not only taken a great interest in questions and affairs concerning child and family welfare, but she is also interested in journalism. Now residing in Ottawa, she has contributed to the literature of Canada with her book, "The Dawn of Ampler Life." In 1934, the C. B. E. was conferred upon Dr. Whitton. For a number of years, she was the executive director of the Council of Child and Family Welfare and at Geneva, Switzerland, she was a member of the advisory body of the Child Welfare Commission of the League of Nations.

Household Hints To Women

Easy Way to Clean Diamond Rings

For engaged gals — or any beringed lady who wants to keep that diamond ring clean and sparkling, here is an easy home method that brings grand results. Place ring carefully in a strainer over a pot of "rich, grease-dissolving" soap suds to which one tablespoon of ammonia powder has been added and bring to boil. Rinse in clear, warm water and dip in alcohol.

To Prevent Silver from Tarnishing

Whether you are a war bride saving those lovely silver pieces for when Johnny Comes Marching Home, or Mrs. Cautious Housewife who doesn't use her best silver every day—you'll want to know how to keep it fine and gleaming when not in use. Here are a few tips: When silver is to be put away rub it with olive oil and roll in a piece of old table linen. When required for use, it only needs washing in warm water with "extra-soapy" suds to remove every trace of the olive oil. Another practical way to keep your silver new-looking is to wrap it in dark blue or waxed paper. Putting silver away in dry flour will also keep it from tarnishing when you're storing it.

Care of Rayon Garments

Now that rayon has stepped firmly and successfully on the fabric platform and women are finding their blouses, stockings, gloves, dresses, etc., made exclusively of rayon or rayon-blended materials, it is important that they know how to care for them. First comes washing. Avoid strong soaps and cake-soap rubbing. Just dip your rayon garment in "gentle fine-fabric" suds that are safe for anything safe in water alone. Next, ironing. Rayon and rayon-woven fabrics should be ironed on the WRONG side while still slightly damp. In removing spots from rayon, avoid strong acids or alkalies as these will rot the material. Fruit and non-greasy stains can be sponged out with cold water or lukewarm water and a little soap if they are stubborn.

Heavy grease spots can best be removed by carbon tetrachloride, gasoline or benzine. A simple water ring can be removed from your rayon garment by rubbing the material gently between the hands or rubbing around the edge of the stain with a rounded metal object.

Make Your Own Pastry Cloth

Probably you've often wished you knew some way to keep from toughening your pastry by rolling too much flour into it. An easy way to avoid this is to use a pastry cloth and rolling-pin cover. Their purpose is to hold the excess flour. They also allow you to roll pastry or cookies out really thin without danger of sticking.

Of course you can buy a pastry cloth of moisture-proof material, complete with rolling pin cover. Or, it's very simple to make your own. You'll need a piece of heavy, closely-woven white canvas or duck, about 18 inches by 30 inches in size. (These materials usually come about 30" wide). Hem the raw edges and sew short tapes on one end. Wash the cloth in soapy-rich suds, rinse well and when nearly dry, iron lightly to remove wrinkles. Use the pastry cloth instead of a baking board, or on top of one. Or keep it in place on table or cupboard by fastening tapes.

To make the rolling pin cover, cut a baby's white cotton stocking, previously washed in a good suds, to the required length, and fit over the rolling pin. Rub flour well into both the pastry cloth and cover, brushing off excess flour that is not absorbed. After each use, brush off the excess flour and bits of pastry with a clean vegetable brush and keep both cloths fresh by a frequent bath in rich, grease-dissolving suds. For convenience, roll the pastry cloth around the rolling pin, ready for next baking-day.

Women's Activities

GROUP 2 OF TABERNACLE CHURCH W. A.

On January 19th, Group 2 of the Tabernacle Church W. A. met at the home of Mrs. Huffman with the following officers for 1944: Convener, Mrs. E. Harkins; Co-convener, Mrs. R. Blakely; Sec., Mrs. Brodie; Treas., Mrs. Fox; Flower Fund, Mrs. Mifflin; Birthday Box, Mrs. Coon; Pianist, Mrs. Hogle; Convener War Work, Mrs. Hogle; Treas., Miss E. Horton.

The meeting opened with singing. The secretary's and treasurers' reports were given. The roll call was answered by sixteen members. A reading was given by Mrs. R. Blakely. A contest, conducted by Mrs. Harkins, was much enjoyed and won by Mrs. Blakely. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Huffman. A social hour was spent and a hearty vote of thanks tendered Mrs. Huffman for the use of her home.

ALBERT COLLEGE WOMEN'S GUILD

The first meeting for the year 1944 of the Albert College Women's Guild was held at the home of Mrs. Hibbard, George St., on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. E. N. Baker, President of the organization, presided and was in charge of the devotional period. She gave a fine account of the day's activity in the House of Commons in England, stressing in particular its keen interest in religion.

The Rev. D. Bert Howard, of Albert College, who was the guest speaker for the afternoon, spoke on the subject of "Books and Their Great Value to Civilization." "Our civilization," he said, "is founded on books and they are the revelation of the personalities of the men who write them." He made mention of the writings of Charles Dickens and how, through some of his books, he had a great influence in ridding England of child labor. In the same way the book, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," urged the abolition of slavery in the United States. Dr. Howard made mention of several other noted books and how they influenced the people of the world in the better ways of life. In conclusion, he told of how the Chinese tried to preserve their libraries at the time of the Japanese invasion in order to provide knowledge for generations to come.

WALLBRIDGE

W. A. and W. M. S. Monthly Meeting

Wallbridge — The postponed Jan. meeting of Millbridge W. A. was held at the home of Mrs. Chas. Colby with a good attendance, with Mrs. Jas. Sine, president, in charge. It was decided to hold the annual congregational meeting on Jan. 18th, and Rev. Mr. Scott kindly suggested the meeting to be held at the Parsonage. It was decided to have it take the form of a social evening with a short program and light lunch. Mrs. L. Ketcheson invited the ladies to hold the February meeting at her home. Mrs. F. Shorey gave a most appropriate reading on "Friendship."

The W. M. S. meeting immediately followed with the president, Mrs. Badgley, in the chair. The theme for this month, "The Bible for All Canada's Children" was given and in her opening remarks Mrs. Badgley stressed more Bible reading both individually and in family worship. This gives every member of the family a better background as they face life. A guide for a year's reading of the Bible is found in the December Missionary Monthly. Bible readings were given by Mrs. Hilton Shorey and Mrs. E. Lane. The treasurer's report was read by Mrs. F. Shorey. It was moved that Mrs. R. Elliott be supply secretary and that Mrs. White at the next meeting name a missionary for special prayer and tell where she is stationed and any other information she can about her. The following group leaders were appointed: For 1st. quarter, Mrs. A. Latta; for 2nd. quarter, Mrs. John Chisholm; for 3rd. quarter, Mrs. F. Shorey; for 4th. quarter, Mrs. L. Ketcheson. A Temperance reading was given by Mrs. Jas. Hinchcliffe, telling of some of the Temperance work done by the W.C.T.U. in military training camps. A reading on Christian Stewardship was given by Mrs. S. Nicolson. A reading on community friendship was given by Mrs. Chas. Colby, giving some practical examples of community friendship in action. Mrs. J. White gave a splendid synopsis of 4th chapter of the Study Book. After giving several concrete examples of home and working together she closed her talk with this thought: "If white men could get out of their heads the fatal and deep-grained notion that they are superior and that God created the world and all other men in it for their benefit, they will go a long way in their contribution toward the establishing of the Kingdom of God in their own hearts and in the world."

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs. Colby for the use of her home.

Personals.

Rev. Mr. Scott conducted the regular Sunday morning service here and gave as his subject "What does the church expect of me as a church member?" He gave some very practical suggestions and closed with the thought expressed in the couplet, "What kind of a church would our church be if every member were just like me?"

Wallbridge friends were very sorry to hear that Cpl. Alfred Platt had been killed in action in Italy. Alfred spent several years in this community and was a boy worthy of highest respect. He was faithful in attendance at church and Sunday School and was always willing to help in any community work. His relatives have everyone's sincere sympathy.

Miss Audrey Nicolson and friend spent the weekend with relatives in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. John Chisholm and the Misses Barbara and Helen Hendricks were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Omar Chisholm, Ross' Corners.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Keep butter cold and in a covered container.

One precaution against accidents on a stairway is to have all steps of the same height.

The development of a plan for spending the family income to best advantage means not only better household management, but a margin with which to obtain worthwhile things, and money for labor-saving devices which help the homemaker to gain time for the children, for self-improvement, or for community activities. There is no such thing as a standard household budget. Each family must make its own. It is necessary to get the whole family interested.

The probable income for the year must be estimated. The next step is to list all the known needs of the family and their anticipated cost. This total must be compared with the estimated income, and if necessary, pruned until it is evident that all expenditures can be taken care of by the money that will be received.

3rd of Sidney

Congregational Meeting Of Aiken's Church

3rd Sidney.—The annual congregational meeting of Aikens' United Church was held on Thursday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Marshall.

Rev. L. W. Scott was in charge of the service and conducted a short devotional period. Mrs. Fred Westover presided at the piano and the Secretary, Mr. Carmen Grills, recorded the business.

Gratifying reports were presented from every department of the church, each showing an increase in givings during the year.

A detailed account of money received was given by the Treasurer, Mr. Selburn Westover, who reported all expenses paid and a balance in the bank.

It was with sincere regret that the resignation of the Treasurer was accepted. This work has been cheerfully and efficiently done by Mr. Westover for the past five years.

The congregation's contribution to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund was $180.

In the absence of Mrs. Murney Jeffrey, W.A. treasurer, the financial report was read by Mrs. Spafford and showed a balance in the bank of $206.69. A splendid report of the social and spiritual efforts of the W.A. was given by the Secretary, Mrs. Cyril McMullen.

The W.A. has an active Red Cross unit, under the joint leadership of Mrs. Selburn Westover and Mrs. Fred Moon. A great many quilts have been made, and several articles of clothing and knitted goods have been handed in to the Belleville Red Cross. Teas were held at the homes of Mrs. Saylor and Mrs. Moon, which increased the financial donations. Mrs. Earl Bush, the Red Cross treasurer reported the total proceeds for the year as $76.70.

The W.M.S. Treasurer, Mrs. Cyril McMullen stated $154.72 as the total givings of the Society. Twelve meetings had been held, three special meetings and a church service conducted.

There are eight Life, and twenty annual members and an average attendance of fifteen at the meetings. Twenty-six members subscribe to the Missionary Monthly.

The President, Mrs. Fred Westover, read a letter received from the mother of the family where the White Gifts had been sent before Christmas. The appreciation and gratitude expressed in this letter, brought joy to those who had contributed towards this work of love which had been sponsored by the Woman's Missionary Society.

As minister of the church, Rev. Mr. Scott reported a total of 92 members. Nine new members had been received into the membership of the church, including Mr. and Mrs. Orliff Pearson whose membership had been transferred from the Scott's appointment. There had been two removals, 1 baptism, and 2 deaths during the year. Commenting on the excellent musical talent with which the congregation is blessed, Rev. Mr. Scott expressed grateful appreciation to the gifted pianists who share the leadership of the choir—Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton, Mrs. Lee Grills, and Mrs. Murney Jeffrey. Others who assist on various occasions are — Mrs. Perry Hamilton, Mrs. Fred Westover, Mrs. Fred Moon and Mrs. Spafford.

Votes of appreciation were extended to Mr. Arthur Saylor for the donation of wood; to Rev. Mr. Scott and Mrs. Scott for their untiring efforts and assistance in the work of the church and its organizations; to Mr. Stanley Spafford for his faithfulness as superintendent of the Sunday School; to Mrs. Spafford as an efficient teacher of the Bible Class; to Mr. Selburn Westover for his five years' valuable service as treasurer of the church and to Mr. and Mrs. Marshall for their hospitality in opening their home for the meeting.

Mr. Spafford extended his thanks to the Assistant Superintendent, Mr. Fred Westover and to the officers and teachers for their co-operation.

Mr. Douglas McPherson, treasurer of the Sunday School reported the total receipts as $113.51. The Sunday School officials are as follows:—

Superintendent, — Mr. S. Spafford; Assistant — Mr. Fred Westover; Treasurer—Mr. Ross Marshall; Secretary—Miss Jewel Bailey; Assistant—Don. Hubble.

Teachers: Bible Class — Mrs. Spafford; Assistant — Mrs. S. Marshall; Young Men's—Mr. Carmen Grills; Assistant—Mr. Wilmot Bailey; Girls' Class—Mrs. C. McMullen; Assistant — Mrs. Fred Moon; Boys' Intermediate — Mr. Harleigh Hamilton; Assistant—Mr. Douglas McPherson; Beginners — Mrs. H. Hamilton; Assistant—Mrs. G. Brickman; Pianist—Mrs. H. Hamilton; Assistants — Mrs. F. Westover, Barbara Hamilton; Temperance Sup't.—Mrs. S. Westover; Missionary Sup't. —Mrs. F. Westover; Cradle Roll Sup't.—Mrs. M. Jeffrey; Home Dept' Sup't.—Mr. Fred Westover; Librarians —Keith Kells, Percy Latchford.

Officials of the church, Pastor Rev. L. W. Scott; Senior Elders and members of Session— Wm. Hamilton, George Parry, George Westover, T. A. Hinchliffe; Elders, Stanley Spafford, Frank Jeffrey, Fred Westover, Carmen Grills; Stewards— Recording Steward, Selburn Westover, Wm. Bush, Frank Hamilton, Murney Jeffrey, Harleigh Hamilton.

Trustees —Chairman, Cyril McMullen, Lee Grills, Everett Hubble, Thos. Irwin and Perry Hamilton.

Treasurer of the Church—Mr. Harleigh Hamilton.

News Items.

Friends of Mr. Wilbur Jones, a former resident here, who now lives in Belleville, were sorry to hear of the accident which occurred on Thursday last, when Mr. Jones had his thumb on the left hand, crushed. He was taken to the Belleville General Hospital for treatment, and was able to return home the next day.

There has been considerable sickness in the neighborhood for the past three weeks. Several children, who had the measles were quite ill, and the influenza has been in many homes. Mr. Everett Hubble was confined to his home for several days last week. Mr. Selburn Westover is showing slight improvement, having been under the doctor's care, for the last few days.

A gloom was cast over the entire community on Monday when it learned of the death of Mrs. George Stone at the Belleville General Hospital.

Deepest sympathy is extended to the bereaved husband and to the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bush were recent guests at the home of the former's brother, Mr. Arthur Bush, and Mrs. Bush, Glen Miller.

Annual Congregational, Sunday School Meeting

Empey Hill—On Thursday evening, the annual congregational and Sunday School meeting was held at the church. About forty were present and sat down to a splendid supper provided by members of the Ladies' Aid, the proceeds of which amounted to $10.25. Following supper, Rev. W. R. Merrick called the meeting to order and Miss G. Mowers, recording secretary read the minutes of last year. The Sunday School business was first completed with the following officers elected:-

RELIEF OF LOCAL PAINS

Many common pains are the result of inflammation, says an authority, and care must be taken to diagnose them properly. A doctor should be called if the pain is severe, but if one is not available, or if it is a recurrence of an old complaint, a light mustard plaster usually induces sufficient increased circulation and warmth to get relief.

Stiff joints, tired muscles, colic, toothache, neuralgia, rheumatic and arthritic pains and many other common complaints can be relieved or prevented by applying the simple mustard poultice, or plaster, made of pure mustard, flour and water on a bit of muslin or flannel.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Vamp Has Helped Herself to a Husband's Love—Also His Gasoline

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband and I have been married ten years. He will be 51 years old soon, and is chasing after a woman 34 years old. She has children by her second marriage, and we have children. I've warned her several times to stay out of our car, but she is defiant and has the use of our car for herself and children whenever she calls for it, while my children and I have to walk or use streetcars.

My husband takes her to work and calls for her to bring her home, although he gets out earlier than she does. He chases night after night to see if she is going out with other men, when he might know if she isn't true to her present husband, she surely would not be true to him, no matter how much he watches her.

They both know I'm aware of their meetings, and they're really the town talk. I've often felt I'd like to take the law in my own hands and settle with her, but I must consider my children. She has broken up many other homes. The children know about the affair and no longer respect their father.

D.

If a woman is indifferent to public opinion and seems to take pride in her reputation as a home-wrecker, there is very little a wife can do to help. When the dangerous age, (and 51 surely occupies the box seat) strikes a gentleman and he realizes he's supplying his business associates and the neighbors with daily Funnies, he sometimes pulls up.

It's all a sort of mid-channel madness. Psychiatrists have written volumes about it. In homely language, it's the last call for dinner in the dining-car. Lothario realizes in a few years he will be really funny. A good wife stands pat and prays that her spouse may have a lucid interval. She doesn't apply for a divorce which is exactly what he'd like to have at the moment.

And by the way, where do they get all the gasoline for these comings and goings?

Wants Rhyme About Lucky Wedding Day

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm going to be married next month. There's a nursery ryhme about which days are lucky and which are unlucky. Would you let me have it, so I could arrange my plans accordingly.

M. J.

The ryhme is as follows: "Monday for health, Tuesday for wealth, Wednesday the best day of all; Thursday, for losses; Friday for crosses; and Saturday, no luck at all."

The best of luck to you whichever day you choose.

Wife Too Gay to Settle Down; He Says She's Boy Crazy

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My wife, who is eleven years younger than I am, goes to dances with my niece and after the dance they usually go to a night club with my niece's boy friend. Do you think it is right for a married woman to go to such places with a 16-year old girl? We have a 5-year old daughter. My wife calls me an old man, although I want to make her a home and have a happy married life. She's too wild to settle down, and I think she's boy crazy.

My mother-in-law has all of our furniture and will not give it back to us, so we can't go housekeeping alone. What can I do about that?

E. S.

Lots of women who are excellent wives and mothers like to dance. If she's fond of you, keeps house well, and is a good mother to your five-year old daughter, I wouldn't condemn her because she likes to go dancing with your 16-year old niece and her boy friend.

If you bought and paid for the furniture, your mother-in-law is not entitled to keep it legally, unless you made some such arrangement as letting her use it in lieu of room or board.

Barometer of the Crimps Fills His Heart With Fears

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm devotedly in love with a girl in our office; her name is Elise; she's of French extraction. She has never given me an encouraging glance. When I leave correspondence on her desk she is strictly business. I've asked her twice to dine and go to the movie with me. Both times she's turned me down.

I notice that on certain days she wears concealed crimpers in her hair and a net over them. The arrangement is very pretty and becoming.

I asked one of the girls who has dined with me several times what is the meaning of all these crimps, which usually happen on Friday or Saturday. The young lady said her fellow comes to see her over the weekend. I'd like to cut him out. What would you suggest?

H. W. O.

Propinquity, or the state of being on the spot continually, has been called woman's chief charm. Why shouldn't it be man's as well. Be as nice to the aloof Elise as you know how. Send her some flowers or a box of candy. Put up a moving story of your loneliness, and beg her to go to a movie or to a dance, some evening. Don't forget the old adage "All's fair in love and war."

Teen Age Girl Considers Breaking her Engagement

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17 and the boy I go with is 23. I've known him for two months. He's in the Navy now, and is stationed near my home. He has told me he loves me and I know I love him, and my parents think a lot of him also.

He told me the last time he called that he can never be a father, and while I love him very much, I don't believe I could stand married life if there were no children around. Do you think I should tell him I don't love him and try to break off with him, or do you suppose it would be possible to adopt children after we are married.

J. N.

Feeling the way you do about a family, it would only be the square thing to tell the young men you couldn't become engaged to him. It will be necessary for you to go into any elaboration of why you're breaking off. He will of course understand. Seventeen seems rather young to decide on an adoptive family.

Treat Blackheads Promptly Lest Worse Defects Follow

Betty Hutton has a beautiful complexion.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Blackheads are the forerunners of pimples. They clog the pores until the walls of the pores break; invading bacteria walks in, pus forms. To bear with blackheads is to take a chance of having a blotched skin, possibly a scarred one.

When the black dots appear, use a bland soap that lathers quickly. It is not a bad idea to try papa's shaving soap.

Every night apply hot, moist compresses to soften the pore deposits. Use a large, thick wash cloth, dip it in steaming hot water, press close to the flesh. Repeat six or seven times.

Applying Soap

Then use soap. Fluff it up with your fingers, forming a thick suds. Massage the flesh lightly while the suds is on. Do little nips to stimulate the blood streams. Treat the flesh beside the wings of the nose, a favorite lodging place for blackheads. After five minutes of this, lave the face with warm water, then with cold, and dry gently with a soft towel.

Many acne patients have found that a soda solution helps to dissolve pore plugs. Dissolve a teaspoonful of baking soda in half a cup of water, apply with pledgets of cotton, let it dry on.

Removing Blackheads

In the morning remove blackheads with a comedone extractor. You can get this instrument from your druggist. It has an open circle that is placed over the blackheads, and light pressure is used.

To endeavor to extract blackheads with the finger tips is to take a chance of bruising the flesh, disfiguring the complexion, inviting pimples to form.

The diet should be fairly free of sweets. An excess of fats is likely to over-stimulate the sebaceous glands, cause them to send forth an excess of oily fluids that harden and mass up in the pores.

But use soap freely. You are fighting grease and dirt, a strong, obstinate combination.

GOOD MANNERS

Ideas for an Engagement Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me how to go about giving an engagement party? I intend to have it on a Saturday evening, with about twenty guests.

N. L.

You didn't tell me if it is to be an engagement - announcement party, or a party to celebrate the engagement of a friend of yours. If it is to be a party to announce your engagement, the party should be given by your mother and father and they and you and your fiance stand together to receive the guests. And to announce the engagement, the simplest way (and the nicest way, I think) is for your mother to say as she greets each guest, "Here is Nancy," and then, ". . . and her fiance, Tom Worthy." Or the announcement may be made by giving a flower to each arriving guest (a corsage for a girl, a boutonniere for a man). To each flower is attached the two cards, or the two names written on one card. Or a very popular surprise favor is a white match-folder with the fiancee's name printed in gilt or silver above, the fiance's name below, and in the centre "It's a match!" Of the engagement may be announced later at the supper, when the father of the bride-elect arises and makes the announcement in the form of a toast to the couple. The rest of the details of the party are like those of any other kind of informal party.

The only special detail of a party celebrating an engagement is the toast (or toasts) proposed to the happiness of the couple. At either party, given in the evening, the menu may be as simple (and customary these days, when it's "smart" to have simple menus) as small assorted sandwiches, coffee, punch (or other cool "drinkable" for the toasts), and small cakes. To elaborate this, serve a salad, perhaps the ever-popular chicken salad with heated finger rolls; and ice cream or fruit salad with the cake.

Invitation to a School Dance

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A girl I know (and like very much) has invited me to go with her to her school dance, which is to be held shortly after New Year's. She told me the boys are to be the guests of the girls. Are there any expenses I should pay?

Bob.

Well, sir, I know she'd be delighted if you will send or bring her a corsage . . . you know how girls are about this gala accessory! And you should pay for transportation, and for any refreshments that aren't included in the dance-refreshments.

Don't Use Mourning Paper

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband died recently, and I am wearing deep mourning clothes. Should I use mourning letter-paper?

R. W. P.

Although it is permissible for you to use white paper with a very narrow border, if you especially wish to, I suggest you use plain white letter-paper. Nowadays most people in mourning prefer to use white letter-paper rather than the rather lugubrious-looking black-bordered paper.

Don't Say Too Much

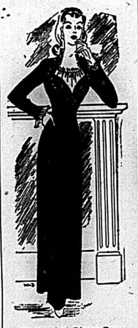
Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle an argument, will you please answer this question: When a girl introduces a boy to a girl friend of hers, is it proper for her to say, "How do you do, Mr. So-and-so. Kay has told me so much about you?"

Wondering.

No, it isn't a good idea for the girl to say this. It may well be too revealing, giving the boy a perhaps-unwarranted idea that Kay has been "raving" about him. And even if she has, she undoubtedly doesn't want him to know about it.

Quick-Change Neckline



Black Velvet Dinner Dress

By VERA WINSTON

The long skirted evening frock that can be worn decollete or with filled-in neckline is a big favorite this year with women who want a varied wardrobe without having too many clothes or spending too much money. Here is such a dress, a charmer fashioned of inky black velvet. White organdie with pleated outline makes the guimpe and ruffles at the wrists. Color is introduced through the medium of embroidered flower motifs in bright hues that outline the sweetheart neckline.

Herpes Zoster, or Shingles

Infections are caused not only by germs, but also by organisms so small that they cannot be seen under the most powerful microscope. These organisms are known as viruses.

According to Doctor Perry C. Baird, Jr., of Boston, one of the diseases which is caused by a virus is herpes zoster, or shingles. Peculiarly enough, the virus which causes this condition is also the probable cause of chicken-pox.

Shingles is accompanied by a skin eruption made up of blisters. These blisters usually are located along the course of a nerve—often around the chest. They may also occur in the eyes, in the ear canal or in the bladder. (Some physicians believe that shingles may occur without any skin eruption at all, there merely being severe pain along the course of the nerve.) The rash usually comes on suddenly, but it often requires three of four days for all of the blisters to develop. Sometimes new patches of blisters develop as long as two weeks after the disease starts.

The pain along the nerves may come on several days or even weeks before the rash develops, and may be much like that which occurs in pleurisy, gallbladder disease, kidney stones or appendicitis. Shingles often develops in persons who are overworked or ill from some other cause.

The disease usually runs a course of from ten to thirty days. It is fortunate that one attack usually secures immunity from further attacks. Drugs such as arsenic, lead, bismuth and mercury; blood diseases such as leukemia, in which the number of red cells is reduced; infections such as influenza, encephalitis, erysipelas and tuberculois, as well as syphilis, all may play a part in bringing on an attack of shingles.

Herpes zoster may occur in children as well as in grownups. It is probable that the most severe cases are those which attack the eyes. In the treatment of this disorder, much can be done to relieve the symptoms by local applications to the skin. The purpose of these applications is to protect the affected parts from irritation and rubbing. Calamine lotion with phenol, applied a number of times a day to the rash, is soothing and will keep the blisters from becoming infected. Collodion, with some antiseptic preparation, may be sprayed or painted on the rash; this also helps prevent infection. Thick cotton pads are useful in helping to reduce the pain. Melted paraffin is also beneficial.

When the blisters begin to dry up and disappear, it is a good idea to use some ointment. Such drugs as the salicylates and barbiturates, and even nacrotic drugs, such as morphine, may be needed to overcome the pain. X-ray treatments have been found helpful in some cases. Pituitary extract is used to relieve the pain, which may persist for a number of months after the rash clears up. Vitamin B-1, given by injection under the skin has been found helpful in this latter condition as has the venom from the cobra.

Herpes zoster is not a dangerous disease, but it is a painful one. Fortunately there are treatments which afford quick relief.

BATTLE IN THE RAIN—CAPE GLOUCESTER

A slashing tropic downpour almost hides this 75 mm. howitzer crew from the camera as they fire against the Japs during the battle for Cape Gloucester on New Britain Island, South Pacific. The gun and crew are imbedded in the mud. There seem to be two schools of thought on how best to cope with the rain: the keep-it-out or slicker and sou'wester school, and the what-the-h or bare-back school. The gun captain, a rugged individualist, has his fatigue uniform plastered to his body by the rain as he raises his arm to give the signal to fire.

Chairmen and Personnel Of County Council Standing Committees Are Named

Four New Chairmen Named, Fred Wilson Heading Roads and Bridges

OTHER BUSINESS

Appointment of the chairmen and personnel for the various county standing committees was the principal point of interest at the Wednesday morning session of the county council now convening at Shire Hall for its January session. All but two of the county committees, the Administration of Justice, and the Old Age Pensions and Mothers' Allowance Board, saw new chairmen installed, while as the result of five new faces appearing in county council this year, the personnel in many committees was also changed.

J. Fred Wilson of Sidney Township assumes the chairmanship of the Roads and Bridges Committee, succeeding James Nickle, while the personnel of the committee includes J. L. Churcher, W. J. Tanner, William C. West, Jos. Forestell and Warden Fleming.

The Finance and Public Property Committee will be composed of George MacDonald, reeve of Thurlow Township, as chairman succeeding John A. Bell. Committee members include George West, Lee Gordon, Jos. Davis, James Sprackett, Sam Nicolson and Warden Fleming.

The House of Refuge Board of Management chairman is A. A. Harvie, succeeding William J. Tanner, with members being J. W. Morrison and Warden Fleming.

Frankford Reeve as Head.

The Publicity Committee chairmanship was taken over by George Montgomery, reeve of Frankford village, in place of William C. West. Members are William Kelusky of Faraday and Clerk E. S. Denyes.

John A. Bell of Marmora and Lake, assumes the chairmanship of the Agricultural Advisory Council succeeding W. J. Davis, while its members include Charles Rush, Harry Harrison, James Nickle, Harry Coulter, W. J. Davis and Warden Fleming.

David Mawson retained the Administration of Justice Committee chairmanship with J. W. Haggerty, treasurer, also remaining as member. County representatives to the Children's Aid Society Board are K. R. Vivian as chairman with E. E. Jones as member, while representatives on the Old Age Pensions and Mothers' Allowances Board are the same as for last year, William R. Linn and Mrs. Wesley Gray.

Appointment of the above committee members was made in the report of the nominating committee comprised of Sam Nicolson as chairman was J. W. Morrison and J. A. Moore.

Asked For Increased Grant.

A representative of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Mr. Milton, briefly addressed council members asking an increased grant to the Hastings branch. Reporting on the work for the year ending March 31st., 1943, Mr. Milton stated the Hastings County Branch had on its lists 72 persons with 10 per cent sight or less; 52 cases which were receiving preventative treatment and 37 persons whose cases had been investigated. Seventy persons were receiving service from the social service department.

Due to the fact that the vast majority of blind person are over 50 years of age, their employment in industry with few exceptions, had not been practical. However, throughout Canada over 100 totally blind persons were working in war factories, while many others had been able to accept employment as directed by the Institute. Fifty-eight percent of the financial needs of the Institute came from governmental and municipal grants, according to Mr. Milton, while the balance had to be made up from private contributions.

Post-War Fund Discussed.

Discussion relative to setting aside money to make up a post-war reserve fund was heard in council following the reading of a communication from Kingston. The communication suggested levying on the tax rate to provide a surplus for this purpose.

Ex-Warden Rush heartily approved of the idea stating that both provincial and federal governments were now planning post-war projects as rehabilitation. The county could now afford setting up such a reserve to be used in post-war construction. He suggested paving of the Madoc Road as an example. The matter was laid on the table for further consideration.

Council concurred in a resolution from Essex County asking that members of the armed forces be afforded free transportation at least once every six months, while serving away from home. "Every consideration should be shown them, they don't get too much", intimated Reeve Linn as he moved for concurrence.

Concurrence was also given a resolution from Oxford County asking that municipalities be placed on the special names list when purchasing Victory Bonds in order, that salesmen would not receive commission, thus permitting all money to be used for the war effort.

Hog Subsidies Discussed.

A discussion of particular interest to farmers was that regarding the payment of hog subsidies by the government without farmers having to make separate application for settlement. Under present regulations the grading slip is returned to the farmers from the packing plants with application having to be made for the subsidy payment within a time limit of 90 days. It was felt by some that as the result of grading slips being held up, in some instances farmers were missing out on their rightful subsidy through omitting to make application in time.

Reeve W. J. Wilson, member of the Agricultural Advisory Council, suggested that one way to overcome this might be to have the grader make out grading slips in duplicate, sending one to the farmer and the other through to government offices when payment of subsidy could be made without a special application by farmers.

The matter was referred to the Agricultural Advisory Council with the suggestion that it be taken up with the Federation of Agriculture at their next provincial meeting.

AP TO APPEAL JUDGMENT

New York, Jan. 19—(AP)— The federal court judgment in the government's civil anti-trust suit against The Associated Press, non-profit news co-operative, will be appealed to the United States supreme court, the Association's Board of Directors announced last night.

The Board said in a statement "no newspaper, no press service can operate successfully under a court injunction."

The judgment, which would restrain the AP perpetually from observing by-laws under which members might consider the competitive ability of an applicant for membership, already is under temporary stay. The appeal, to be taken "without delay," will stay it pending the highest court's ruling.

Annual Stone Church Congregational Meeting

4th Sidney — The annual congregational meeting of the Stone Church, 4th of Sidney, was held on January 6th., following a Pot Luck Supper in the church hall. 1943 was a very successful year, all departments of the church showing a marked increase both spiritually and financially.

The meeting was opened with community singing and a short program. Miss Gwendolyn Woods and Audrey Scott favored the people with a duet. A piano solo, by Audrey Scott, was much appreciated.

The pastor of the church, Rev. L. W. Scott, asked for the various church reports. The church treasurer, Mr. Frank Jeffrey, gave a very encouraging report, the best in years. He reported all expenses paid with a good balance on hand. The treasurer of the W. A., Mrs. A. Cranston, reported a membership of 15 raising $188. They also quilted 12 quilts. Mrs. Hugh Gray, the treasurer for the W. M. S., reported that the society had reached their allocation. The Red Cross, under the capable leadership of Mrs. Clarence Vermilyea, gave a very splendid report, raising $105 and quilting 18 quilts for war work. The S. S. also had a very encouraging year, meeting all their expenses and a substantial balance on hand to begin the new year. The total raised by all the organizations was approximately $1,000.

The pastor expressed his gratitude to the Church Board and various organizations of the church for their splendid co-operation and success achieved. A vote of appreciation was extended by Mrs. A. B. Woods to Rev. L. W. Scott for his untiring efforts. He was also presented with a gift of money from the W. A. of the church expressing their appreciation in a practical way.

The re-organization of the S. S. was completed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Evans on Jan. 12th. The following are the officers for 1944:

Superintendent — Mr. Arthur Walt.

Assistant — Mr. Garfield Evans.
Secretary — Mrs. G. Evans.
Assistant — Donald Jeffrey.

Stone Church Mission Band.

The January meeting of the Stone Church Mission Band was held at the school, with the last year's president, Laverne Thompson, in the chair.

After the worship service the offering was received. Business was discussed and the new officers for 1944 were elected as follows:

President — Eva Rushnell.
Vice President — Phyllis McMurter.
Secretary — Lois Benedict.
Treasurer — Gwenllyn Woods.
Press Secretary — Audrey Scott.

After the business period Mrs. Jas. Detlor, who is the Mission Band Leader, led in prayer. A number of readings were given by the pupils of the school. Mrs. Hayton, the teacher, told a story from the Study Book and Mrs. Detlor gave a very interesting talk. Rev. L. W. Scott and Mrs. Scott attended also.

Personals.

Mrs. A. B. Woods spent a few days last week visiting friends and relatives in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Tucker spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Snider, Mountain View.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Dafoe and family were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Gray.

A number of the men from this line attended the sale of Mr. E. Hough, Upper Fourth, on Wednesday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Bushel, Belleville, were Sunday visitors at the Evans' home.

Mr. Foster Keene visited Mr. A. B. Woods one day last week.

The Y.P.U. held a skating party on Friday evening. After an enjoyable skate they were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Vermilyea where a delicious pot lunch supper was served by the ladies.

Britain Designing 50-Passenger Post-War Transport

London, Jan. 20 (CP)—Britain is designing a 50-passenger Transatlantic transport plane to carry the nation's colors in the post-war race for civil air supremacy, Lord Beaverbrook, Lord Privy Seal, told the House of Commons Wednesday.

The new plane, to be named "Brabazon," will fly 250 miles an hour, weigh more than 100 tons, and will be able to span the Atlantic in 15 hours, said Lord Beaverbrook, in charge of Coordinating Civil Air Policy for peacetime. It will be able to carry two tons of mail in addition to 50 passengers, he added.

To fill the gap until the "Brabazon" is ready for flight, Britain is developing a 12 passenger, 32-ton Transatlantic plane which it is hoped will be available before the war ends.

This plane, called the "Tudor" will be suitable for military transport.

It was disclosed Monday that Britain is also developing a huge Avro York monoplane that can carry 56 passengers for journeys up to 1,250 miles.

"Regular" again after 2 weeks!

"I sure am happy to be able to give up all those pills and medicines for my constipation. They were mighty unpleasant. And expensive, too! I found, once I started eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN that I was soon "regular" again. I am most certainly pleased with the real relief it gives, believe me!"

Yes, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN can really work wonders in cases of constipation due to lack of dietary "bulk"! It gets at, and helps correct the cause, by supplying the "bulk-forming" material needed for easy, natural elimination! Try eating a serving daily, with milk, or sprinkled over other cereals! Or, eat several ALL-BRAN muffins daily. Drink plenty of water! See if you, too, don't find welcome relief! Get KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN at your grocer's today — in 2 convenient sizes.

REPRESENTATIONS MADE TO SPAIN

Foreign Secretary Eden Says Some Spanish Volunteers Helping Germany

London, Jan. 19.—(CP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told Commons today the British Ambassador to Spain, Sir Samuel Hoare, had been instructed to make "further strong representations to the Spanish Government" over the fact that a number of Spanish volunteers still were fighting for Germany on the Russian front.

Another issue, which is likely to bring about Anglo-Spanish complications, was brought before the House when Eden said the British Government had renewed strong representations supporting the Italian Government's request for release of all Italian ships in Spanish ports.

Eden said that while the greater part of Spain's "Blue Division" had been withdrawn from the Russian front, some volunteers were still giving "un-neutral assistance" to the Germans under the name of "Spanish Legion".

Eden made his statement in reply to a question by John Loverseed, Commonwealth Party member, as to what was being done about this strain on British-Spanish relations, which he said, have been increased by the explosion of time bombs in cargoes of oranges shipped to Britain.

NEW SCHEDULE DRAWN FOR THREE JUNIOR TEAMS

Tweed May Enter a Team for the Playdown Series

AIR FORCE OUT

With the withdrawal of the Trenton Air Force from group No. 2 in the Junior O.H.A., a complete new schedule between the remaining three clubs, Trenton, Stirling and Belleville, was drafted at the Hume Arena Wednesday night when a home-and-home series was decided upon prior to the play-off series for the group title.

The Tweed Juniors, although not included in the regular schedule, were admitted to the group final playdowns to give the loop a balanced four-team program for the championship series.

In the event Tweed enters the play-offs, the team finishing in top position in the regular schedule will enjoy the privilege of choosing their opponents from the remaining three teams for the league semi-finals. However, if Tweed fails to enter the play-off round the second and third placed clubs will play home-and-home games, goals to count on the round and the winner to meet the first placed club in a best-in-five series for the right to continue into the Junior O.H.A. playdowns.

The new schedule drafted reads:
Jan. 25—Trenton at Belleville.
" 28—Stirling at Trenton.
" 31—Belleville at Stirling.
Feb. 4—Belleville at Trenton.
" 7—Trenton at Stirling.
" 9—Stirling at Belleville.

The play-offs will commence on Friday, Feb. 11th.

Memorial Plaques Given Soldiers In Armed Forces

Jimmy Walker Says It is Time to Get Politics Out of Fight Game

New York, Jan. 20—(AP)—Boxing began to count noses today after one of its biggest stock-taking jobs, and the score card showed praise for the nose-smashing industry as the "place where democracy works best" and a warning that it's time to get "politics out of the fight game."

These bonquets and belts-in-the eye were tossed around last night by a collection of such experts as former Mayor Jimmy Walker, National Boxing Association President Abe Greene and Ring Magazine publisher Nat Fleischer. The tossing was done at the annual award dinner of the Boxing Writers Association of New York, at which the Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque was presented to the 4,100 boxers in the Armed Forces in appreciation of what they've done for the sport.

Greene and Fleischer both pleaded to have control of the sport free from politics. Fleischer, after receiving an award from the boxing writers for long service to the sport reviewed recent appointments to the New York States Athletic Commission—revamped under a new state administration—and maintained that governing bodies should include men who know boxing and not men named to commissions "merely because of their political significance."

Both he and Greene suggested that one way to iron out this matter would be to have regular boxing writers—"men with practical experience"—named to every boxing commission in the country.

"I'll tell you the story of how democracy works in the fight game," Walker said. "There's little Barney Ross—Sergeant Ross of Guadalcanal—sitting over there. He won his lightweight championship from Tony Canzoneri and the welterlight title from Jimmy McLarnin. He lost the welter crown to Henry Armstrong, who dropped it to Fritzie Zivic. Nobody cared where they were born or where they went to church—as long as they were championship stuff."

BARONS NOW LEAD AMERICAN LOOP

(By The Canadian Press)

Cleveland Barons gained undisputed possession of first place in the American Hockey League last night when they defeated Pittsburgh Hornets 4-3 on home ice.

The victory—their 20th — gave Barons a two-point lead over Hershey Bears, who have 43 points stacked up as a result of 19 wins, 5 draws and 6 losses. Cleveland has five draws and seven losses.

Lloyd Stories, Cleveland spare, took over as goalie last night when Paul Gauthier was forced to retire in the middle of the first period because of pleurisy.

The Hornets took a 2-0 lead on shots by Tom Forgie and Tony Hemmerling in the first, but Cleveland drilled in three counters in the second period, with Tommy Burlington, Pete Horeck and Lou Trudel doing the honors.

In the third period Phil Hergesheimer added a fourth counter for Cleveland and late in the period Edward Quackenbush added Hornets' third tally.

Horses, Ten Years and Older, Barred From Tracks in '45

(By The Canadian Press)

Col. Matt Win, 83-year-old director of the Kentucky Derby, declared yesterday at New York he wanted more unity among the horse-racing associations, asserting that his desire for co-operation was one of the reasons he had become head of Empire Track, New York, in addition to running Laurel in Maryland, Churchill Downs and Chicago's Lincoln Fields. The turf had become a great sport and big business, he said, and the tracks from coast to coast "have to get together not only to insure good racing but also to guarantee the best interests of the fans," this being the responsibility of the racing associations themselves.

The Incorporated Canadian Racing Associations, governing body of racing in Ontario, announced Wednesday that all horses 10 years of age or older will be barred from racing on Ontario tracks in 1945 if they fail to win at least three races in 1944. Any thoroughbred which reaches the age of six in January, 1945, without having won a race will automatically be barred from racing on I.C.R.A. tracks, it was announced.

Pitcher Jim Bagby, who won 17 games for the Cleveland Indians last year, yesterday wrote from Marietta, Ga., where he is employed as a tool designer, asking that he be traded to some other club because he could not "get along" with Manager Lou Boudreau.

Glenna Collett Vare of Philadelphia, who as Glenna Collett was six-time winner of the U. S. Women's Golf Championship, yesterday intimated she had been forced to relinquish active competition because of her duties as a ration board clerk for the duration and as a victory gardener. She has also dropped trap-shooting.

Announcement was made at New Haven last night Phil Terranova, NBA featherweight champion, and Snooks Lacey of New Haven will meet Monday night in a 10-round non-title bout in the New Haven arena.

The New York Yankees will try out Ed Levy as an outfielder in their training at Atlantic City next spring, it was stated at New York last night. Levy failed to make the grade at first base a year ago. Word was received that pitcher Spud Chandler, classed 1-A, would shortly be called for army examination at his Moultrie, Ga., home.

Norman Brown, pitcher acquired by the Philadelphia Athletics last season, yesterday reported to the army induction centre at Fort Jackson, S.C.

Florian Bibeau of Montreal, the recognized Canadian flyweight champion, proved to be the loser on points in a 10-round bout at Quebec last night against Fernando Gagnon of Quebec. Gagnon, weighing 120 pounds, held a four-pound advantage over the titleholder. It was a non-title affair.

Winners of the 1943 Ontario tankard, P. G. and B. C. Hall of Kitchener skipped separate rinks to victory at Kitchener last night in the provincial series, defeating double rinks from Ayr and Waterloo by 13 and 11 shots respectively. The brothers earned the right to represent the Kitchener district in the coming bonspiel.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLIE EDWARDS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 20—(CP) — Indications are the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association will attempt to carry on its Allan Cup play-offs this year despite withdrawal of all service clubs with the cream of the Dominion's amateur talent.

In Alberta, for instance, the only senior teams were from the services but Bob (Calgary Herald) Mamini reports the C.A.H.A. is attempting to line up civilian challengers in Edmonton and Calgary for an Alberta final and subsequent cup play-offs. One of the objects of negotiation is the Calgary Buffaloes team which won the western intermediate title last season. Buffaloes are chiefly a collection of ageing amateurs and reinstated professionals.

The signals are out in Ontario too. Only remaining O.H.A. senior civilian teams are St. Catharines and Hamilton. Clayton Browne of The St. Catharines Standard reports Saints have already been approached regarding their attitude to Allan Cup play-offs. Browne reports a new blow to C.A.H.A. plans. Saint players are engaged in war work and President Harry McArthur has stated the club will definitely not consider a trip west because "such an absence of two weeks gallivanting would be unthinkable to Ottawa and the war-conscious public."

Further, says Browne, if the Quebec League is a finalist they will insist on one or more of the cup games on Montreal ice. He believes, therefore, that the Allan Cup final will be staged in the east as planned originally, even though the junior final will also be staged in the east.

Browne discloses the C.A.H.A. still has an eye for the big money. He reports the National Association has informed St. Catharines it will demand a $2,500 guarantee to stage one Allan Cup play-off game in that city. Browne estimates it would be necessary to charge $2 to $3 a seat to swing the guarantee.

Incidentally

In a discussion of hockey Hall of Fame candidates at Kingston, Manager Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings subscribed to a selection of the seven outstanding centres of all time—Howie Morenz, Frank Nighbor, Cyclone Taylor, Frank McGee, Joe Malone, Jack Walker and Milt Schmidt. There was no attempt to rank the seven in the order named. . . . Red Dutton, N.H.L. managing director, has offered the Hall of Fame several hockey relics, including small hockey stick autographs by Howie Morenz and the puck with which Nels Stewart scored his 300th big-time goal. Cyclone Taylor has offered to contribute a stick used in 1907 with names of the Ottawa team of that year burned into it.

PLAYER STRENGTH WILL BE FACTOR IN LOOP RACES

Cubs, Reds and Senators Best Fixed for Men at Start of Season

SOME NOT TOO HOT

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, Jan. 20—(AP) — If there's safety in numbers—and some of baseball's best minds figure that mere numerical strength may have an important bearing on the 1944 pennant races—you may be hearing a lot about the two Chicago clubs, the Cincinnati Reds and Washington Senators before the 1944 season ends.

The way the "brains" reason the clubs controlling the greatest numbers of players will have the best chances of securing replacements when their regulars go marching off to the war. And judging from what's happened since last October plenty of them will go.

Right now, the Cubs, with 36 players on the active list, and the White Sox, with 35, are the best fixed. Washington, with 32 players now available, expects to fill its roster to the limit of 40 men before Spring Training starts and the Reds plan four additions to the 20 now listed.

As Washington's Clark Griffith pointed out, this year's squads differ from the usual Spring Training groups in that they're composed largely of slowed-down veterans and untried rookies.

Most of the clubs would be glad to try out promising youngsters, but Brooklyn's Branch Rickey remarked: "Not many are the kind to take to a Major League camp. Even some of the men we have now aren't too hot."

What's Doing in Sport

Cleveland (AP)—If Maxie Berger of Montreal, winner of his last 15 fights, can train down to 142 pounds he will be matched to meet Beau Jack, New York's lightweight champion, here Feb. 15, it was announced last night by matchmaker Larry Atkins.

Kitchener (CP)—J. W. Smith was elected president last night of the Waterloo Baseball Association, succeeding C. L. Klopp who became treasurer. Annual reports showed 40 members had joined the armed forces, of whom three had been killed in action.

Guelph (CP)—The Guelph Curling Club has inaugurated a plan for its 24-rink bonspiel scheduled for Jan. 26 under which each four must include a player who is curling for the first time this season. Entries have been received from many centres between Sarnia and Oshawa.

SPEAKER FEARS MAJOR LEAGUES WILL FOLD IN '44

Famed Gray Eagle Claims Loop Can't Get Over Manpower Shortage

STILL ENTHUSIASTIC

By LARRY SMITH
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

Cleveland, Jan. 20 —(AP)— Tris Speaker, one of the original electees to baseball's Hall of Fame at Copperstown, N.Y., is doubtful about the Major Leagues' ability to operate this year.

Now a member of a local draft board, the famed Gray Eagle says he "would like to see baseball go on and if it can overcome the manpower handicaps more power to it. But I'll have to be shown."

Speaker doesn't want anyone to deduce from his statement that he's lost his enthusiasm for the game. But he's pessimistic about the coming season.

"They played last year with a lot of 3-A's and a few 4-F's," he explains. "This year there won't be any 3-A's. The boys will either be 1-A or they'll be given 2-A or 2-B deferments because of jobs contributing to the war effort. If they leave those jobs to play ball they'll be 1-A so quick it'll make 'em dizzy."

The man who piloted the Cleveland Indians to their only world's championship in 1920 isn't one of those old-timers who believe present-day ball players are inferior to those of his generation.

"Sometimes I think big money comes too easily nowadays and so lessens incentive but don't let anybody tell you all the great ball players are dead."

THREE OSHAWANS IN SCORING RACE

Smith, Ezinicki and Love Are All Tied With 39 Points

Toronto, Jan. 20—(CP)—Domination of the Oshawa Generals, East-Section leaders, was reflected in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" series scoring summaries released here today. Three Oshawa stars, Ken Smith, Bill Ezinicki and Bob Love are deadlocked at the top of the scoring race with 39-point totals. Smith and Ezinicki have identical records, each with 24 goals and 15 assists, while 15 goals and 24 assists comprise Love's total. Fourth place is also shared, teammates Bob Schnurr and Joe Sadler of St. Michael's each trailing the Oshawa trio by one point with 38. Another point back with 37 is Johny Ubriaco of Galt, occupying his lowest position to date in the league scoring parade.

TORONTO NAVY DEFEATED 12-1

Hamilton Majors Win and Only Point Behind St. Catharines

Hamilton Majors scored 11 goals against Toronto Navy before the seaseamen found the net for their lone tally and the civilian team romped to a 12-1 victory in the single senior set-to of the Ontario Hockey Association at Hamilton last night. The victory placed Majors only a point behind St. Catharines Saints for league leadership. Majors led by a modest two goals for the initial period, stretched it to seven in the second and wound up 11 to the good at the final curtain.

Johnny Conick fattened his scoring figure by notching four counters; Stan Robertson turned in three for his night's work; Shillington registered two and Doug Runions, Davey nd Dinning were good for one counter apiece.

If it hadn't been for Cliff Maundrell, with his one Naval score only five minutes from the finish, Goalie Art Childs of Hamilton would have earned credit for the first Senior O. H. A. shutout of the current season.

Some one once said—"there's nothing new under the sun"—but, apparently that was before modern wrestling came into being. Down in Houston, Texas, tomorrow night the grunt and groan moguls will reach the zenith of all grappling shows ever attempted on the face of this green earth.

The old adage that music hath charms to soothe the savage beast will be tested at Houston Friday night in the most unique manner.

There is to be a war bond rally and the Houston Symphony Orchestra will play while professional wrestlers put on a show.

They're calling it "the world's first wrestling-symphony concert" and admission will be by war bonds only and the goal of $5,000,000.00 has been set.

Composer Henry Coffman will present a symphonic arrangement for the first—and probably the last—time. In it he will tell a story of sweat and mat-pounding that characterizes wrestlers in action.

The wrestlers will be "Wild Bill" Longson, world's heavyweight championship claimant, and Louis Thesz, former self-styled titlist.

Now why didn't Promoter Tunney think up something like that when he was holding forth at the Hume arena last year? At least one must admit the grappling promoters are original in their ideas.

(Wrestlers laugh.)

Recently Major Phalen, the bossman of wrestling in New York State, issued some drastic orders to the grunt and groan boys pertaining to continued roughness. Commenting on the set-up Bill Westwick, in the Ottawa Journal, published the following satire on the subject — "Sporting pastimes, as we've come to know them, are due for some violent revisions if governing bodies of other sports ever take it into their respective heads to impose restrictions along the same lines as those made public by Gen. Phelan and his buddies. We put the question to one of our wrestling operatives last night; asked point-blank if he figured wrestling would survive the New York ruling. "Survive!" he thundered. "Would you expect baseball to survive if Landis suddenly told the hitters they'd be taxed 50 iron men every time they tried anything but a bunt? Would you expect hockey to get very far if the rule-makers socked every player the same for shooting at the net? What do you think would become of boxing if the boys started losing their purses for aiming at one another's chins?" It seemed more serious than at first glance. "Serious is an understatement," he shouted. "I'm just trying to give you an idea of what can happen to the game when one wrestler can't throw another out of the ring." The ruling left some loopholes. Wouldn't throwing the referee out be a fair substitute? "Naw, it wouldn't. You can throw a wrestler out of the ring and he's practically certain to land in a ringside's lap. At the worst he might bounce back in. But referees have no sense of direction. Most of them land on their noggin on a cement floor and get themselves hurt. Promoters don't want them thrown out because of the expense. And the manpower shortage is another angle."

(Collegiate hockey.)

Convener Jack Doran has lined up three senior and two junior teams for the Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. group. In the senior series 'twill be St. Michael's Academy, Belleville Collegiate Institute and Albert College, while in the junior section only the Collegiate and St. Mikes are affiliated. However, Belleville interscholastic fans will get a gander at Jack Boyd, highly-heralded junior puckster from Grimsby, who will be out with Albert College seniors. The city interscholastic puck schedule opens Friday afternoon with those two ancient Church Street enemies of the ice lanes, Belleville Collegiate and St. Mikes tangling.

The Interscholastic schedules read:
Jan. 21—St. Mikes at B.C.I. (Sr.).
Jan. 28—B.C.I. at St. Mikes (Jr.).
Feb. 1—Albert College at B.C.I. (Sr.).
Feb. 8—St. Mikes at Albert College (Sr.).

The remainder of the schedule will be released by Convener Doran early next month.

(This and that.)

They're trying a new wrinkle at the "Y" tonight in mixed basketball games.... At eight the junior boys clash with the junior girls, while directly following the senior girls' team at the "Y" meet the older boys quintette....and if you think these lassies aren't rough try tangling with them on a basketball floor some time....Bill Helis, the Greek sportsman who recently paid $66,000 for an unnamed colt and finally called him Pericles is convinced that the son of Blenheim II and half-brother of Whirlaway is going to be worth every cent of what he paid for him despite the fact a horse by the name of New Broom sold for $75,000, and never won a race; War Feathers went for $50,000, and never won a race and Hustle On went for $70,000 and never won enough to pay for his oats...In contrast there was Man O'War, which sold for $5,000 and won over a million dollars as a winner and a sire; Alsab went for $700 and assed the $200,000 mark in winnings and Market Wise, which was thrown in extra on a sale and earned more than $100,000...However, if Helis doesn't get his money out of Pericles, we don't imagine he will wind up in the poor house... He's the fellow who not so long ago donated $4,000,000 to the Greek War Fund.

New York, Jan. 20—(AP)—Following up President Abe Green's recent blast at Sammy Angott and Beau Jack for not having at least one of their world lightweight titles on the line in their fight here next week, Col. Heinie Miller, executive secretary of the National Boxing Association, today pointed the finger at the promoters for staging such affairs . . . The colonel wisely figures that the customers can't be blamed for going to see a good scrap even if there is something ridiculous about the situation . . . It seems from here that the N. B. A. has a remedy in a simple declarative sentence: "The N. B. A. will consider this as a championship bout." . . . It might be a technical violation of the rules, but they're natural lightweights and once they knew the tide would be at stake, regardless of weights, the promoters, managers, etc. would get busy and make it a real championship fight.

Dick Hall, a frosh marine trainee at Princeton, has been invited to run in the Wanamaker mile at the Millrose A. A. indoor meet. At Exeter Dick did a 4:21.6 mile to break Bill Bonthron's interscholastic record and coach Mattey Geis is rushing him along because Dick will be in the Naval Academy by next Spring.

LESSON NO. 281

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

I love Elva Tyme, the cute little dub. No doubt she belongs to your own contract club. She knows nothing right. She misquotes galore. Her brain is so light, she can't even score.

Learning to score is a matter of remembering numbers. Players score the number of points they win for the taking of tricks, the making of games and slams, and for other items.

Declarer is the player who tries to take the tricks needed to make (fulfil) the make (contract). Tricks in excess of six taken by declarer are known as odd tricks.

When the trump suit is clubs or diamonds, each odd trick pays 20 points. At hearts or spades, each odd trick pays 30. At no-trump, the first odd trick pays 40: each one after that pays 30.

Unless the contract is fulfilled, no points are paid declarer for any odd tricks. But if the make is made, he gets paid for all the odd tricks he takes. Even beyond those contracted for.

Besides points paid for odd tricks, declarer receives extra (bonus) points for bidding and making a game. That is, in the type of bridge known as game-a-hand.

In rubber bridge, bonuses are not paid for each game bid and made. A bonus is paid only to the pair that wins the rubber. To win the rubber, a pair must win two games.

The amount of bonus points paid for winning the rubber depends on whether it is a two-game rubber or a three-game rubber. A two-game rubber pays 700: a three-game rubber pays 500.

A two-game rubber is where the winning pair wins two games and the losing pair none during that rubber. A three-game rubber is where the losing pair wins one game and the winners two.

The winners may take the first game: the losers, the second: the winners, the third. Or the losers may take the first game and the winners the next two. Either is a three-game rubber.

Count the points made by this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠A Q 3
♥A K 7 5
♦K 5 4 2
♣8 7
NORTH
♠9 6
♥Q J 4 2
♦A Q 7
♣6 4 3 2

Each pair has won a game in the current rubber. South bids and makes four hearts in this deal.

South-north score 120 for four odd tricks and 500 for winning, a three-game rubber.

Oh, how the winners do adore adding the bonus to their score.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Coney Island"
(In Technicolor.)

"Coney Island" the 20th Century Fox Technicolor musical now showing at the Capitol Theatre, stars Betty Grable, George Montgomery and Cesar Romero. The film has caught the hurly-burly spirit of the riotous playground of New York with its breath-taking beauties and high excitement, in the riotous era of ragtime and romance.

Charles Winniger and Phil Silvers top the featured cast of "Coney Island", which was directed by Walter Lang. Producer William Perlberg saw to it that the film has everything —in color.

"Vengeance of the West"

Against a flaming background of barking guns and flashing fists. . . Bill Elliott and Tex Ritter team up in a bandit clean-up south of the border! The screen's most famous stars prove lucky stars for thrill and song fan . . . but unlucky stars for unlucky bandits!

Scheduled to open tonight at the Capitol Theatre, "Vengeance of the West" brings local action fans gun-roaring adventure at its best when Elliott as Joaquin Murietta, famed Mexican Robin Hood, and Ritter, a hard-riding California Ranger, team up to blast the outlaws of the plains!

A color cartoon and the serial "Secret Service in Darkest Africa", complete the grand double attraction.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Lost Horizon"

James Hilton's novel "Lost Horizon" almost gave Hollywood an inferiority complex.

As the film studios have always prided themselves on being able to produce any sort of picture at the drip of an idea, Columbia's progress with the production of "Lost Horizon," the first film in a Tibetan setting, was watched apprehensively by the entire movie industry from the first moment on. Hollywood breathed easy again, however, as soon as the report got around that Columbia had reproduced Tibet with enough authenticity to satisfy the most exacting Lama.

Tibet is one of the few places remaining on the face of the globe that has not been ravaged by ice cream sodas, gasoline stations and sales taxes. In fact, the country itself is much the same today as it was ten centuries ago. No more than a dozen white men have ever been permitted to visit Lhasa, the capital of Tibet, thus keeping its culture free from Western ideas.

Further, Tibetans have rarely left their country long enough to change their viewpoints. There is not, for instance, a single native Tibetan living in America.

Cognizant of these facts, Director Frank Capra signed Harrison Forman, American explorer and author, who had just returned from Tibet, as technical director of "Lost Horizon," now playing at the McCarthy Theatre with Ronald Colman in the starring role. Forman was one of the only two white men to interview the Panchan Lama, religious head of Tibet in the last 30 years. The other was Sven Hedin, the Swedish explorer.

The second feature attraction on the current program stars Cary Grant and Katharine Hepburn in "Holiday," with Binnie Barnes and Edward Everett Horton.

AT THE BELLE

"Naughty Marietta"

Music, romance, stirring drama and spectacle blend in the outstanding screen production "Naughty Marietta," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's haunting screen transcription of Victor Herbert's masterpiece, now playing at the Belle theatre.

Lovely Herbert Songs

The charming music of the great composer as sung by Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, playing the leading roles in the picture, is heard against a thundering background of drama. The settlement of Louisiana, pioneer struggles, the "Marriage Auction" of St. Louis of the old Creole days, the capture of the Casquette Girls by pirates, their rescue and other gripping dramatic details are woven into a story that aside from the wonderful music, provides an epic recital of the founding of one of America's most romantic cities.

Amid the drama runs romance, and with it such great song hits as "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," "I'm Falling in Love With Someone," "Chansonette," "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp" and other Herbert's immortal airs.

Miss MacDonald is beautiful to look at and sings divinely. Nelson Eddy, famous American baritone, does his best acting as well as lending new charm to the glorious melodies.

W. S. Van Dyke's direction injected many clever and artistic human interest touches into the vivid story of the French princess who, to escape an unwelcome lover, flees to the colony of Louisiana for an amazing romance with a British army captain.

An Elaborate Cast

An elaborate cast was assembled for the picture. Elsa Lanchester, the famous Anne of Cleves of "Henry the Eighth" is intriguing as a gorgeously gowned wife of a French governor of Louisiana, played with superb comedy touches by Frank Morgan. Akim Tamiroff plays Rudolpho, the puppeteer, Joseph Cawthorne is lovable as old Herr Schumann and Douglas Dumbrille, noted Hollywood player who was born in Hamilton, Ont., has one of his best roles.

"One Ham's Family" is the title of a funny Barney Bear color cartoon presented on the same program with "Here at Home," a timely and thoroughly entertaining screen miniature. The engagement ends on miniature.

SECURITY REGULATIONS 'DUE FOR OVER-HAULING'.

Ottawa, Jan. 20. (CP) — Hon. Cecil Frost, Ontario Provincial Treasurer and Minister of Mines, said yesterday in an interview that regulations of the Ontario Securities Commission are "due for an over-hauling". He declined to say what form the "over-hauling" would take.

672,500 'Fags' Sent by Veterans In Two Years

Since inception two years ago the "fag fund" set up by the Belleville branch of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, unit 201, has sent a total of 672,500 cigarettes to boys serving overseas from Belleville and district, it was disclosed by Secretary James Lazenby today. A total of $2,275.00 has been expended by the "Vets' Fag Fund" to assure boys of the Belleville district cigarettes regardless as to where they may be stationed in this globular war.

The first year of operation, 1942, saw the Vets send $967. worth of cigarettes, prior to which they had sent smaller quantities amounting to some $108.00. However, in 1943 the figure rose to $1,086.00 and already in 1944 cigarettes valued at $114.00 have been sent overseas, reported Secretary Lazenby at a special meeting with President Thos. York last night.

Only this week a reply was received from away off in India, where cigarettes sent from Belleville had been received by R. Stewart of this city. "You'll never know just how much we enjoyed those good Canadian fags," wrote Pte. Stewart in a letter that was mailed last July. Other similar replies have been received from North Africa, Italy and other stations overseas where Belleville and district boys are regularly receiving cigarettes through the Belleville branch of the Army and Navy Veterans' "Fag Fund", that is operated solely by contributions received in a voluntary manner.

The latest list of over 120 district lads to be sent individual shipments of 300 cigarettes through this fund included the followings:-

Earthquake Toll May Reach 3,000

San Juan, Argentina, Jan. 20 — (AP)—Fearful of epidemics, government authorities pressed efforts today to evacuate the ruined city of San Juan but many persons refused to give up a search for bodies of loved ones killed Saturday in the earthquake which took a toll of possibly 3,000 lives.

Making cleanup work difficult and dangerous, a series of shocks have continued to rock the ruins, the latest one yesterday.

Food and supplies are pouring in from other Latin American Nations, and President Pedro Ramirez several times has broadcast Argentina's thanks.

Authorities announced last night nearly 300 of about 400 prisoners, some of them dangerous criminals, who fled from the San Juan jail have been recaptured.

SYD HOWE NEAR RECORD WITH DETROIT WINGS

Needs Two More Counters to Equal Herb Lewis' Record of 148

Three goals stand between Syd Howe and the prestige of becoming the highest goal producer in Detroit Red Wing history.

Now in his ninth full season with Detroit, the 32-year-old Ottawa boy has blinked the red light 146 times —two below the club record of 148 goals in 11 seasons held by Herbie Lewis.

Howe can crack the record tonight when Detroit plays host to Chicago Black Hawks in the only National Hockey League game scheduled Thursday. If he fails then, he gets another opportunity against New York Rangers at Detroit Sunday.

Howe's lifetime record with four N.H.L. teams is 196 goals. This season he has 11 goals and 13 assists.

Detroit, whose last five starts have produced four victories and a tie, can climb within one point of the third-place Boston Bruins by a victory over Chicago, now in the clutches of a slump which has dropped them four points behind Detroit.

Two Soldiers Return Home

Picton, Jan. 20—Two Prince Edward County soldiers arrived at their home here Wednesday, Pte. Malcolm Hagan and Pte. William Latour. Their arrivals came as a complete surprise to their families.

Pte. Latour, whose home is at Carrying Place, was wounded during the Sicilian campaign. He enlisted at Picton in 1939 with Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Latour.

Pte. Hagan was home from his second war. He was with the Royal Irish Rifles of Ireland in the last conflict and saw active service in Turkey and Mesopotamia. He enlisted on Jan. 2 1940, arriving home just four years later. He was with Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and transferred to the Black Watch of Quebec. Age, was the reason given for his return to Canada, though he admitted an 'Army' age of 45 years. He stated that older men were being cleaned out, as the training was too strenuous for them.

The food situation in Britain appears to be improved, he said, and cigarettes are now quite plentiful, but for a time were very scarce. Morale among civilians and soldiers alike is high.

"I would not like to be in the enemy's boots", he remarked as he told of squadrons of planes darkening the sky as they set out on bombing missions.

After thirty days' leave, Pte. Hagan will report to Kingston.

Canadian Press News Flown to Italy, Issued to Troops

With the Canadians in Italy, Jan. 24—(CP Cable)—The first copies of the Canadian Press News, dated Jan. 8 and flown to Italy, reached the Canadian front yesterday.

A field postal unit is handling the distribution of the paper and the troops will get copies with their mail today.

The weekly paper gives the soldiers two Canadian papers, the other being the Maple Leaf. They also get the Red Patch, a chatty weekly published by and for men on the Adriatic front. In addition, a number of units publish their own mimeographed sheets.

The Canadian Press News is a weekly eight-page illustrated tabloid comprising three pages of general Canadian news, three [illegible] hometown items — one page in French—a page of news [illegible] activities overseas and a page of Canadian sport news. The news is provided by The Canadian Press and the newspaper is distributed free to the services.

For "Mrs. Parkington" Greer Garson will undergo 34 changes of costume, wear 20 different styles of hairdress and change her facial makeup any number of times. The span of her life in the film will be 65 years. . . Paul Muni will add Victor Hugo to his gallery of screen characterizations. . . Many stars have business interests beyond the studios. Brian Donlevy's is a gold mine—actually. . . Gregory Ratoff of the juicy Russian accent was given the assignment to direct "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." Why? Because, the studio says, he is an expert at Irish folk-lore and has a large collection of clay pipes. . . Patrons have often commented about the magic way music comes out of nowhere when an actor or actress is ready to sing in a film. In "The Gang's All Here" Alice Faye is ready for a vocal takeoff and the music of a 100-piece orchestra suddenly starts. "Where's the music coming from?" asks James Ellison. "Can't you use your imagination?" is the answer from Alice. . . Disney's next will be "The Three Caballeros," which combines cartoons and live characters.

Francine Bordeaux, the French-Canadian beauty who has appeared in "I Married An Angel" and "Women in Bondage," will probably tour Canadian army camps in February with her press representative, Christe Christy. Before enlisting in the American army, from which he was honorably discharged recently, Christy was the motion picture commentator of a Quebec station. . . Those Hollywood players who can't do a vaudeville routine but refuse to turn down the request of the troops that they visit them deserve praise. They approach their tasks with misgivings but soon find that the boys and girls overseas just want to be exposed to that familiar personality they know on the screens at home. So the stars, at ease, are game for anything. Gary Cooper, for instance. He couldn't think of anything to do before the boys in the south Pacific so he learned "Pistol Packin' Mama," "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning" and other songs. When it came time to sing he got cold feet but the soldiers insisted and cheered when he had finished.

Favorite story of Jack Carson, Manitoba-born screen star, is about the colored preacher who talked to his congregation about how free salvation was, then took up a collection. Brother Smith protested: "I thought you said that salvation is free—free as water." Replied the preacher: "It's free and water is free, but when we pipes it to you, you have to pay for the piping". . . Movie stars have catch names for their ranches. Eric Blore's is "Inn Disposed," Edward Everett Horton calls his "Belly Acres" and Helen Broderick's is described on the sign as "El Rancho Costa Mucha". . . They'll make a film of Phil Baker's "Take It or Leave It" radio show. . . Two things became obvious to fans who saw "Riding High"—Victor Moore has lost weight and Dorothy Lamour has gained it. . . William Bendix is learning to dance for "Greenwich Village". . . Those Rogers' girls, Ginger and Lela, are smart. Lela, Ginger's mother, will act as producer of Ginger's next picture.

Golden Lady

By Clarence Budington Kelland

CHAPTER 7

It was two o'clock when Darnley closed the door of her hotel room, for she had not found it possible to move to Jerry's apartment that day. She stood long before the mirror, weary but excited and elated. It had been a wonderful evening. She snapped off the light.

Her mind became instantly alert. It clicked along at lightning speed, but what it insisted upon thinking about was not of Garden, not of the important personages she had seen or met, but of two scraps of conversation. And of what she would do with them.

Darnley awakened in the morning with a vaguely troubled feeling which resolved itself, as she came fully awake, into concentration. Of what service to her could be the information she had come upon last night with reference to the Golden Blend cigarette account? And, if it were of potential use to her, what must she do to realize upon it?

Certainly she could not advise with Jerry Shafto, at least until she knew her better. It would not be wise to ask Wolfgang about it. Nor would she tell De Groot, who would regard it only as a piece of sensational news which he could disseminate and thus enhance his reputation for finding out everything before anyone else discovered it.

There remained then, of her acquaintances in the city only Clyde Farrish and Peter Orrick.

To Farrish it might bring the work of making all the display photographs for the Golden Blend advertising campaign. And through him it might mean to her the securing of the coveted selection as the Golden Blend Girl.

She dressed, breakfasted and walked across town to Farrish's studios, first packing her wardrobe to be sent to her new address. She entered the big loft with its snarl of photograpihc paraphernalia and found the room inactive. Farrish himself was standing morosely, looking like a man who doesn't know what to do next. Darnley walked across to him and he scowled at her.

"Nothing today," he said shortly. "When I need you I'll call Wolfgang."

"When I need you," she said with equal brevity, "I don't wait to telephone, I come."

"One of the fresh ones, eh?"

"No," she said. "I'm not doing what Jerry Shafto calls making a play for you. Not at all. Either you relax and become semi-human, or I whisper my news in Henry Garden's ear."

"Why don't you?"

"Because I don't trust him," she said.

He shrugged. "All right! All right. Spill it and have it over."

"Have you a private office?" she asked.

"In there," he told her, pointing.

She walked ahead of him to a frosted glass door and opened it, stepping into a small, plain office. He closed the door after her.

"Do you know Sanson?" she asked.

"Slightly."

"Who is he?"

"Heir apparent to the Intercontinental Tobacco Corporation."

"He would know what is going on about Golden Blend cigarettes?"

"Yes. But if you think I can do anything to have you picked as the Golden Blend Girl your head needs tapping."

"Would you like to make all the photographs for that advertising account?"

"Try asking a sensible question."

"Hatch & Miller," Darnley said, "are going to lose the Golden Blend account." She paused. "Even they don't know it yet. The change will be made in about a month."

Farrish was listening now. He walked around his desk and sat in his chair, motioning her to a seat. "By any chance is this authentic?" he asked.

"Sanson told it to a man with a face like a tombstone," she said. "His name was Graham."

"Counsel for the Intercontinental," observed Farrish. "Well, what about it?"

"They haven't picked another advertising agency," said Darnley. "I want to be the Golden Blend Girl; you want to take all those photographs. If we could put some agency in the way of landing this we would both profit, wouldn't we?"

He nodded.

"And," she said, "it would do things to your standing with a band. Grandpa Carfax, who is on the finance committee of our bank back home, says the bank lends money on two things by choice: 'Character and future promise.' If you get a contract like that you'd be mighty potential."

"I'd be able to borrow the safe deposit vault," he grinned.

"They're going to spend four million dollars," said Darnley. "That's a six-hundred-thousand-dollar commission."

Farrish's buzzer sounded and he lifted the telephone.

Darnley heard Clyde say cheerfully over the phone: "This is Farrish, Mead & Company . . . Yes. Rush job? . . . They always are. Get the stuff here and we'll start in ten minutes. Two girls? I've got the pick of the bunch here now. . . . Right."

He glanced at her as he put back the receiver. "That was sales talk about the pick of the bunch," he said.

"It was an understatement," she smiled.

"Mead & Company want some winter furs photographed. Ready to work?"

"Call Wolfgang," she said. "If you want another girl, why not ask for Jerry Shafto? She's a contrasting type."

"Maybe you can manage this business better than I," he said, but he lifted the receiver again and talked to Wolfgang, telling him to get Jerry Shafto there with speed.

"To return to cigaretes," Farrish said.

"Have you some friends who could handle it?" she asked.

"The Britton Agency. Sam Britton. Not so big, but quality. Shall I call him?"

"Certainly," she said and Farrish made another call.

"Sam?" Clyde asked presently "Farrish. Maybe there's a Santa Claus. Can you get here quick? No, not there. Here. The tail's got to wag the dog this time . . . Can't tell you—not over the wire."

"You'll have to keep an eye on Henry Garden," said Darnley when Farrish hung up.

"Did he get wind of this?"

"No. But he's planning to do something to grab this account," she said.

"It'll be a dogfight when the news leaks."

Ten minutes later a young man of about thirty-five thrust open the office door. He was small, slender, with a keen face and eyes that seemed curiously dreamy. "Miss Carfax, Mr. Britton," said Farrish. "She's kicked up a nugget—or should I say a mine?"

"Such as?" Britton asked of Darnley.

"Mr. Britton," Darnley asked, "if I—if Mr. Farrish and I could put you in the way of getting a tremendous account, would Mr. Farrish get all the photography?"

"Certainly."

"There's just one thing I want," went on Darnley.

"This is talking in the dark," said Britton, "but Farrish will tell you, Miss Carfax, that I don't shoot around corners."

"Sam," asked Farrish, "with your setup, could you handle the Golden Blend account?"

"We're not the biggest agency in the world," Britton said, "but I can handle it. It would need some expansion."

"Hatch & Miller are going to lose it. Sanson's taking it away from them. No new agency has been selected. And, outside of the Intercontinental, nobody knows it but the three of us in this room."

"You know this to be true?" asked Britton.

"From Sanson's own lips," declared Darnley.

Britton smiled and his poet's eyes roved from Darnley's toes to her modish little hat. "And you, of course," he said, "want to be the Golden Blend Girl."

"Have I got," she asked, "what it takes?"

"Stand up . . . thank you. Walk and turn around. Lift your arms."

She followed his directions, and his eyes never left her, never lost a movement. He nodded. "I'd be willing to try you," he said. "Change the hair a little—um . . Wouldn't have to do much to you to make you individual."

"Will you go after it?" asked Farrish.

"Like a Greek after a son-of-Mussolini!"

"Sanson's set on the Golden Blend Girl," said Darnley. "It was his idea. Hatch & Miller didn't like it."

"I'll like it", said Britton. And then, "I'm obliged. This is a tip. It'll take some figuring. When I pop a presentation in their faces. I want it to blow them off their feet". He smiled. "We're all in on this", he said. "As soon as I get an idea by the tail we'll confer".

He went out, and as he passed her, Darnley noticed his eyes. They were faraway, clouded . . .

"I like him", remarked Darnley.

"If", said Farrish, "that lad isn't an advertising genius, than I can't recognize one!"

The door opened and a girl said, "Load of furs here from Mead & Company".

"Grab your pickax!" commanded Farrish cheerily. "We're back in the coal mine".

He explained that the photographs were to be for the fall catalog, as he led Darnley to a spot where assistants were opening boxes and laying coats, capes, neckpieces upon waiting tables. She touched the fur with her fingers, caressed it with her palm. Never before had she been within touching distance of such garments, of such richness, of such expensive beauty. Mink, seal, fox otter—how many wild things had given up their lives that the Fifth Avenue parade might be more gorgeous!

"Here", said Farrish, "is one to knock your eyes out. Sable. About forty thousand hard, round dollars, wouldn't you say?" he asked of an assistant.

"All of that, Mr. Farrish".

"We'll start", he said to Darnley. "No use waiting for—what's-her-name?"

"Jerry Shafto", replied Darnley.

The posing and photographing commenced. After a time Jerry arrived. The girls were taken singly, in pairs. They were taken against this background and that. At noon the usual sandwiches and drugstore coffee arrived.

"Thanks for ringing me in", Jerry said to Darnley as they rested and ate. "I thought you were moving in yesterday".

"Not enough time. I had my stuff sent up this morning".

"How was the party?"

"I liked it".

"I didn't do so bad myself", Jerry said, and then Darnley was called back to work. The girls left at five o'clock, tired. They took the cross-town bus to the Elevated.

"A bath and a boiled egg for me tonight", Jerry said. "Nobody lures me out, even with a pearl necklace".

"That suit me", Darnley yawned.

While Jerry was in the tub Darnley undressed and got into robe and slippers. She picked up the evening paper — and the telephone rang. It was Farrish's voice. It sounded strained, excited:

"Miss Carfax—are both you girls there?"

"Yes. Just taking baths".

"I'm afraid you'd better get down here quick", said Farrish.

"You don't mean us!"

"I mean you. The place is full of cops. The Russian sable wrap has disappeared!"

Darnley Carfax and Jerry Shafto rapped on the door of Clyde Farrish's studio. Jerry was excited; Darnley was apprehensive, for this was her first counter with crime or with police.

A patrolman opened the door and confronted them. "What you want?" he asked forbiddingly.

"Isn't he big!" Jerry exclaimed admiringly.

"Fresh, eh?" demanded the officer. "Well, scram".

"You don't realize", said Jerry, "that everything's at a standstill till we get here. So lift your feet out of the way if they aren't too heavy. We got special invitations to this party".

"Are you them models?"

"What do you think?" Jerry asked. Darnley was frightened at this bearding of a uniformed representative of the law. "We were sent for", she said.

"Here's them models Lieutenant", bellowed the policeman, and they walked past him into the studio where were several strange men, probably detectives, several members of Farrish's staff and Farrish himself.

"These the girls?" asked an elderly huge man with a trim mustache and a menacing jaw.

"Yes," said Farrish.

Lieutenant Hixon glowered at them. "What d'ye know about this sable coat?" he demanded.

"Nothing", said both girls in unison.

"Saw it, didn't you? You, I mean", pointing suddenly at Darnley.

"Yes, sir".

"Which one of you wore it—to get that picture taken?"

"I did", said Darnley.

"Pretty swell, wasn't it?"

"It was beautiful", Darnley said.

"Yeah. And once you'd had it on you couldn't bear not to have it on again, eh? Thought you looked mighty cute in it, didn't you? Now, how'd you get it out of here and where is it?"

Darnley was terribly frightened. She heard Farrish speaking: "I tell you, Lieutenant, neither of these girls took the coat. They couldn't have".

"I'm askin' the questions", Hixon said. And then, cajolingly: "It'll be a lot easier for you if you come clean. Just a sudden temptation, and the first you knew, yuh took it! Wasn't that how it happened?"

Darnley's terror was giving place to a burning resentment, a sense of unfairness. No one had ever spoken to her in such a tone or with such a manner. But this policeman was speaking to her as if she were common, as if she were nobody. And he dared to accuse her of theft! For a space she was so affronted, so angry, that she could not speak. She was afraid no longer. "I never spoke to a policeman before", she said.

"So what?"

"I thought", she said, "that policemen were hired to protect people, not to bully them. I thought a detective's business was to find out the truth and arrest the one who committed the crime. I had no idea an officer—they called you 'Lieutenant'—would be nothing but a loud voice trying to frighten one".

"Hot dog!" exclaimed the lieutenant.

"What she said goes double", interjected Jerry.

"Now, I sure beg your pardon, Mrs. Astor. You won't hold it against me, will you? Eh? I didn't recognize you right off", Hixon growled with heavy sarcasm. "My mistake. Yeah. I thought you were just anudder dizy dame that earned a living having her pitcher taken without clothes on".

Darnley did not lose her head. Certainly she never acted more deliberately. She took one step toward the husky Hixon and swung her right hand from her side in an upward arc, so that its palm resoundingly slapped his left cheek.

"Do something about that" she said softly. "There's a commissioner, isn't there? Perhaps he would like to know all about it. I'll be very glad to explain why I did it".

Hixon rumbled in his throat and scowled at her. He half lifted his great ham of a hand as if to retaliate. Then his eyes narrowed.

Detective Lieut. Hixon turned his head, looking for reporters perhaps. Then to Darnley, "What's your name?"

"Carfax" she said.

"Well, Miss Carfax, maybe we didn't understand each other", he offered. Then concisely, efficiently, without raising his voice or acting the bully, he questioned the two girls, and each of them answered, describing her movements from the time she arrived in the studio until she left it. Neither could throw the faintest light upon the method of abstracting the sable coat, nor supply a fact that could cast suspicion upon anyone.

Finally, Lieut. Hixon ordered: "Take them in your office, Mr. Farrish. I may want to question them again". As they went, his eyes followed Darnley. "Now, wasn't she sumpin'?" he demanded with grudging admiration.

"Hey" exclaimed Jerry Shafto when the office door closed behind them, "did you want to get us slung in the cooler?"

"I didn't care", Darnley said. "I'd rather be in a cell than let that man talk to me that way".

"Well, and weller!" ejaculated Jerry, "if you aren't quite a feller!"

Farrish seated himself behind his desk and rested his head in his cupped hands.

"Are we downhearted?" asked Jerry. "Why the gloom? It wasn't your coat".

"No", said Farrish, "it wasn't my coat. And the price of it is forty thousand dollars—but I'm responsible for it".

"What?" asked Darnley.

"Forty thousand smackers", repeated Farrish slowly. "This would be what they call the finish. It would be a couple of finishes".

"Do you mean you'll have to pay for it?" Darnley asked.

"Do you think Maed & Company will laugh it off?" he asked.

"If I were you", suggested Jerry, "I'd see my lawyer".

"Yes", said Darnley.

He shook his head. "This torpedoes the ship", he said. "I'm through!"

"It wasn't your fault", Darnley insisted. "Even if you do have to pay for it maybe they won't make you pay all at once. Maybe they'll give you a long time".

"The way this business is going it would take forty thousand years", he said drearily.

WHAT IS YOUR SALARY LIMIT?

Perhaps you have never stopped to ask yourself that question before. Five years from now, ten years from now, will you be earning $10 a week more than you are now, $25 a week more than you are now, or (perish the thought) $10 a week LESS THAN YOU ARE NOW?

TO A GREAT EXTENT
IT DEPENDS ON YOURSELF

Economic conditions in the country, war, peace, boom, depression, will have some slight influence, but the main cause of any change, upward or downward, will be YOURSELF.

If you are in a business where you seem to have reached your limit—if you would like to be making more money as the years go by, write for an interview giving background and marital status. (We are unable now to consider applications from those employed in war work.)

We have a SALARIED SALES JOB open now for which you might qualify. Apply now to file No. 114, Selective Service.

Prominent Chicago Woman Victim Of Mysterious Shooting

Chicago, Jan. 20. (AP) — Mrs. Frank Starr William, 55, wealthy and socially prominent wife of an attache of the State Department in Washington, was reported near death today following a mysterious shooting in her hotel (Drake) apartment lat night Mrs. Williams was shot in the head by an unidentified woman she described as "middle-aged and well-dressed".

There was no apparent motive for the shooting, police and state's attorney's investigators said. Officers obtained accounts from the wounded woman before she lapsed itno a coma and from her daughter, Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, 28, also a target of the assailant.

Police said members of Mrs. Williams' family, including her first husband, Edgar R. Born, wholesale clothing company executive, and a second daughter, insisted they knew of no persons who would want to harm her. Williams, commercial attache of the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo from 1933 to 1942, arrived here from Washington early today.

Shortly after Mrs. Williams and her daughter returned to their apartment early last night, a woman about 45 years old, emerged from behind a bathroom door and pointed a gun at Mrs. Goodbody, she told police.

"I ducked, covering my face with my hands", she said. "Then she fired. The bullet hit near me'.

The gunwoman then ran into the living room and fired two shots at Mrs. Williams.

Fight Off Counter-Attacks

New Delhi, Jan. 20—(AP)—Allied forces holding new advance positions on the Arakan front of Western Burma have fought off Japanese counter-attacks again, a south-east Asia communique said today.

In Northern Burma, Chinese troops continued their eastward advance along the route of the new Ledo highway by capturing the enemy-held village of Gumga, in te Hukawng Valley, and pushing on across the Tanai River.

Signs Jap Resistance May Be Collapsing In North N. Guinea

By WILLIAM FRYE
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Washington, Jan. 20. (AP)—An indication that Japanese resistance may be collapsing in northern New Guinea was reported today by War Secretary Henry Stimson, who said that Allied troop were making steady progress throughout the Southwest Pacific.

In northern New Guinea, Australian veterans have captured Sio and advanced beyond Vincke point, and Australian and American troops are squeezing Japanese forces in the vicinity of Saidor.

"There are indications that some of the Japanese are trying to escape by barge at night", Stimson said. "Several troop-laden enemy barges have been sunk by our aircraft and light naval vessels".

In New Britain, Allied troops are constantly enlarging their beach-heads, the secretary reported. He said that in the Cape Gloucester area 3,100 Japanese dead have been counted, against United States losses of 228 killed and 694 wounded.

His discussion of southwest Pacific operations was included in a review of the past week's developments on all fronts, given out at a press conference. Other developments noted:

The most recent reports on the U.S. 8th Air Force attack Jan. 11 on Brunswick, Oschersleben and Halberstadt in Germany indicated a greater victory than first announced, with the Focke-Wulf plant at Oschersleben and the Messerschmitt plant at Brunswick almost demolished, and the Junkers factory at Halberstadt damaged to an extent variously estimated at 40 to 70 per cent.

Founder of R.A.F. Dies in London

London, Jan. 20 (CP)—Admiral Mark Kerr 79, British air pioneer who had an important role in the founding of the R.A.F. in the first Great War, died today after long illness.

The son of an Admiral, Lord Frederic Kerr(he entered the Royal Navy in 1877 at the age of 13. He commanded Britain's Adriatic squadron in 1916 and 1917.

But it was as an air authority that Admiral Kerr came to be remembered, for he was one of the first to recognize the potentialities of airplanes.

At the age of 49, with the rank of Rear Admiral, he learned to fly his own plane and received his pilot's certificate in a Sopwith seaplane in July, 1914. That year he flew a round trip from Phalerum to Poros Island, Greece, longest sea flight made to that time.

On Oct. 10, 1917, he wrote the memorandum that persuaded the British cabinet to establish the R.A.F. and he himself became Deputy Chief of Staff with the rank of Major General.

He retired in 1918 but in 1919 undertook to fly the Atlantic from St. John's, Nfld., to the British Isles in a Handley-Page bomber. After two months of waiting from day to day to take off, the flight had to be abandoned.

DREW UNABLE TO VISIT OTTAWA

Toronto, Jan. 20—(CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario did not go to Ottawa last night for conferences with federal officials, his office said today. It was reported yesterday the Premier would fly to Ottawa last night to join other provincial officials who are discussing Dominion-Provincial matters in the capital.

The Premier had "two or three appointments" for today and it was reported this morning he was not likely to make the trip.

PIANO ALWAYS PRODUCED

Cairo, Jan. 20 — (AP) — What astounds Nelson Eddy on his current tour of Africa and the Middle East is the way people pull out pianos where no pianos ever existed before. For instance, he visited the south coast of Arabia and no pianos were available either at Salala or Masirah. So word was flashed to Khartoum and a few hours later a chaplain's organ was flown in aboard a United States army transport plane.

Fate of Accused In Jury's Hands

Hamilton, Jan. 20. (CP) — The case of Joseph Kennedy, 52, charged with the Thanksgiving Day murder of 24-year-old Mrs. Betty Edwards, went to the Supreme Court Jury early this afternoon following an hour and a half charge by Mr. Justice A. W. Greene and addresses by both Crown and defence attorneys.

Crown Attorney Harvey McCulloch contended the slaying arose out of Kennedy's "bitter malice and hatred" and that "such barbarity indicated malice, and malice indicates murder".

Defence Counsel E. D. Hickey, who rested his case yesterday, asked the jury to consider carefully what must be proved by the Crown before a verdict of murder or manslaughter may be returned.

Kennedy testified yesterday he had struck Mrs. Edwards with a milk bottle in "self-protection" when she slapped his face, punched him and threatened to put a pair of scissors down his throat.

The battered body of Mrs. Edwards, wife of LAC. Burton Edwards who was stationed at Guelph, Ont., at the time, was found in the burning basement of her home.

Retirement Law Will Not Apply

Washington, Jan. 20—(AP)—Secretary of War Stimson, asked at a news conference today if Gen. Douglas MacArthur would be relieved of active duty when he reaches the statutory retirement age of 64 next Wednesday, replied "I don't think you need to worry about that."

Stimson said MacArthur already was on the retired list and that the retirement law, therefore, would not aply in his case. MacArthur retired in December, 1937, at his own request but subsequently was recalled to active service.

64 Degrees Above Zero At Medicine Hat

Winnipeg, Jan. 20 —(CP)— A mild wave swept across the Prairies today, bringing warm winds and springlike temperatures, with the mercury hitting top levels in southern Alberta. Medicine Hat, Alta., led the parade with a maximum for a 24-hour period of 64 above zero.

COUNTESS CIANO FLEES

Stockholm, Jan. 20 —(AP)— Countess Edda Ciano, daughter of Benito Mussolini, was reported today to have taken refuge in a neutral country, presumably Switzerland, following the execution of her husband, Count Galeazzo Ciano.

The Geneva newspaper La Suisse said the Countess had "arrived in the territory of a neutral country where her three children have been in school for several months."

HEAVY FOG BLAMED BY POLICE AS CONTRIBUTING FACTOR

Toronto, Jan. 20 —(CP)— Heavy fog was blamed by police today as a contributing factor in an accident in which Harvey Martin, 78, of Peterborough and his wife suffered severe shock and slight bruises when hit by an automobile on a downtown street.

Police report Mr. and Mrs. Martin were in Toronto to attend a funeral.

DESTROYER LOST

London, Jan. 20 —(CP)— The Admiralty announced today loss of the destroyer Tyndale, a new ship completed in 1940.

A member of the Hunt Class, the Tynedale displaced 904 tons and was armed with four four-inch anti-aircraft guns and eight smaller guns. No further details are available.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 20 (CP)—Volume expanded to 1,022,000 shares for the first three hours of trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Penny issues provided the bulk of the business but some of the higher-price issues livened up around midday. All four indices were narrowly higher at noon.

Eldorado was an active trader in the early afternoon and the price firmed 15 cents to 1.37. In the base metals Hudson Bay, Nickel, Noranda, Pend Oreille and Mining Corporation were stronger and the golds showed gains for Macassa, Paymaster, Hard Rock, Quemont, Bidgood-Kirkland and others.

The stronger industrial groups were the senior oils, foods and miscellaneous issues. Hiram Walker firmed a point, Montreal Power gained 1 1-4 and Steel of Canada 1-2.

British Dominion, Foothills and Ajax were the strong spots in the western oil list.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 20 (AP)—Low and medium-priced specialties attracted relatively good buying in today's stock market while most leaders continued to struggle with mild irregularity. Prices stiffened here and there around midday and were no worse than a trifle uneven ear the fourth hour.

Among Canadian issues Canadian Pacific and Lake Shore each dropped 1-8 but Dome Mines was up 3-8, Hiram Walker up 5-8 and Distillers - Seagram up 1-8.

American Cable & Radio made a new 1943-44 top by a fraction. Supported also were International Telephone, Western Union "A", Loew's, Consolidated Vultee Aircraft, United Aircraft and Johns-Manville.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Jan. 20. (CP)— Cattle trade was very dull on a plain quality supply with prices about steady, up to mid-session on the Livestock Market here today. Common to medium butcher steers and heifers were $10 to $11.50, weighty steers $11.75 to $12.25, canner and cutter cows $5 to $6.50 and stockers $7.25 to $9.75.

A few good lambs were steady at $13.50.

There were no sales of sheep.

Hogs were steady at $17.15 dressedweight with sows $13 dressed.

No calves were offered.

Crediton Merchant Pays High Tribute To Syntona

Suffered Constantly With Acid, Upset Stomach; Gas, Nausea and Heartburn. Had Pains In Shoulders and Arms. Nerves Were Tense; Couldn't Sleep.

The sponsors wish to acknowledge the many encouraging reports recently received and are happy to know that this great herbal compound is bringing better health and happiness to so many local men and women whom the readers of this page know personally. Today, we take pleasure in quoting the experience of Mr. Freeman W. Morlock, well known shoe merchant of Crediton, Ontario. Read his sincere statement:

"In the past year or so, I suffered greatly with acid indigestion, gas and heartburn. I was subject to sharp cramps and there was almost constantly a full, uncomfortable feeling in my stomach and chest. After eating, there seemed to be a lump in my throat and sour liquids would rise from my stomach and make me feel nauseated. More recently, pains set into my shoulders and arms and my nerves began to trouble me, so I couldn't sleep well.

"I was advised to take a good tonic and having heard about how Syntona helped friends of mine, I began taking it a few weeks ago. In that short time, Syntona has done for me everything that was claimed for it. I can eat heartily now and my food digests without any of the former trouble. I got relief from the rheumatism in my shoulders and arms, my nerves are more relaxed and I sleep better. R. A. F. DUMPS HEAVY BOMB LOAD ON BERLIN

700 Planes Deliver 11th Great Blow On Battered City

35 BOMBERS LOST

By GLADWIN HILL
(AP Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 21 (AP).—The R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. gave Berlin the 11th great blow of a two-month obliteration campaign last night, and today American heavy bombers continued the offensive with attacks on the mysterious Pas-De-Calais area of the northern French coast.

The Berlin bombing, by probably 700 planes, set a new record for concentration—100 tons a minute or 13 tons more than fell upon Brunswick Jan. 11. In all about 2,000 tons of explosives rended the Reich capital for 20 minutes.

Struck At Dawn.

The new attack on German military installations in France started at dawn with streams of R.A.F. fighter-bombers and fighters streaking across the channel. Soon afterward great formations of U.S. heavy bombers, escorted by fighters, droned across the 20-mile stretch of water, returning in mid-afternoon. They took more than a half hour to cross the coast.

The massive 11th blow in the two-month battle of Berlin was struck by a procession of four-engined bombers which took off almost in daylight and took three-quarters of an hour to cross the channel on the 600-mile flight to central Germany.

They began their thunderous hammering at their target at 7 p.m., and returned before midnight with 35 bombers missing from this and other operations. Nine Canadian bombers did not return.

Huge Fires Raging.

The great Berlin raid, the first since the night of Jan. 2 on that objective, sent huge fires raging through the capital where three-fourths of the important facilities are believed to have been destroyed. It proved to be another illustration of the remarkable bullseye bombardments through clouds.

The clouds blocked the defenders' searchlights, and blanketed a good portion of their fighters.

But Swedish reports said reinforced German anti-aircraft batteries put up an unprecedented barrage and the R.A.F. suffered the second highest loss of the Berlin campaign.

The Press Association said it was understood the raiding force was the biggest yet sent against the German capital, although the bomb tonnage was not as great as the 2,300 tons which were dropped on Nov. 22.

On this basis about 700 bombers probably were employed.

The R.A.F.'s record bomb load of the war was 2,500 tons dumped on Hanover on Sept. 22 by 700 to 750 bombers.

A total of about 16,000 tons of explosives now has been hurled upon the city since the start of sustained effort to eliminate the German capital.

The Air Ministry's first reports of the raid echoed with a grim refrain. A communique said "large fires were left burning, smoke rising to a great height."

Indefatigable twin-engined Mosquitoes at the same time laid down a feint bombardment of targets in Northwestern Germany and fleets of minelayers again visited German waters.

From the joint operations the British lost 35 bombers.

105th Attack on Berlin

It was the 105th attack of the war on Berlin.

The raid came at the end of a day which the Axis said also saw the bombing of Rome for the second time in two days. The Rome radio announced outskirts of the city were hit by "Anglo-American squadrons coming from the north" but offered no explanation for this statement.

That the Berlin raiding force was strong was indicated by the German broadcast of a "preliminary" claim that 21 four-engined bombers were shot down over the capital.

The night bombers took off early. Hundreds of planes crossed the channel coast in a 45-minute procession before 5 p.m.

It was the first heavy attack on Hitler's battered capital since the night of Jan. 2 and the 11th since the start of the battle of Berlin on Nov. 18.

Daylight Assault Started.

R.A.F. fighter-bombers swept out across the Channel toward Northern France at dawn today followed by Spitfire formations.

The R.A.F.-RCAF. fleet it Berlin after plowing through one of the heaviest anti-aircraft barrages ever thrown up over the capital.

Swedish reports said there was a good cloud cover over the capital itself and the formations were able to come in low for the attack. There was no reference to fighter opposition, indicating clouds forced the Nazis to fall back on anti-aircraft defences entirely.

The Berlin correspondent of the Swedish Newspaper Aftonbladet said Berliners are gradually learning when to expect the raids by various signs such as the weather. Last night's raid found the residents prepaed, he said.

Sway Under Force.

Berliners have become so accustomed to the pattern of the attacks that they know when to get set for the block-busters, other persons who have been through the raids said.

Berlin's newest bomb shelters sway under the force of the larger explosives, eyewitness related.

One such reinforced concrete structure extends three stories underground and two stories above. It has room for 5,000 persons.

Reports to Stockholm said the Nazis were hastening their preparations for other Allied blows deeper in the German-controlled areas, tightening blackout restrictions in parts of corqured Poland thus far untouched by the raiding planes.

Despite Heavier Aircraft Defences Berlin Hard Hit Says Stockholm

SCANTY DETAILS

By EDWIN SHANKE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Stockholm, Jan. 21—(AP)— Despite the strenghtening of Berlin's anti-aircraft defences, Allied bombers blasted the German capital heavily against last night, the Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm Aftonbladet said today.

The Germans apparently have been increasing their anti-aircraft batteries steadily around the city in an effort to protect it from total destruction, the correspondent wrote, and he described the intense din which they set up as "startling."

The air raid sirens sounded their warning at 7. p.m., he said, "and within a few minutes the whole show was in full swing."

When he emerged from a shelter, the correspondent declared, many fires were visible—especially on the outskirts of Berlin where war industries are concentrated.

Responsible quarters in Berlin characterized the raid as a "terror attack" Aftonbladet said, and added it could therefore be assumed damage and casualties were "quite large."

One report said the area in the neighborhood of the Friedrichstrass railway station in the heart of Berlin was heavily bombed.

Many Canadians Who Took Part In Attack View Return As 'Miracle'

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadians in Italy, Jan. 21 — (CP Cable) — Some of the Canadian infantrymen who took part in Monday's attack against well-defended German positions before the Arielli river look upon the return of so many men unscathed as a "miracle."

The men related their experiences Wednesday and it was stressed that casualties were not excessive considering the fierceness of the opposition when central Canadian and Maritime troops led the attack across a gully before the enemy line in an area about a mile inland from the Adriatic coast and then returned to their original positions.

Praising the showing of one company under fire, Capt. W. J. (Sammy) Ridge of Millbrook, Ont., said his men "had all the guts in the world and fought just as you would expect Canadians to fight."

Ptes. W. Gilbert of Point Edward, Ont., and Edward Desjardins of Ottawa both stopped in the middle of the battle to clean their weapons but under different circumstances.

"I was digging a hole when a mortar bomb landed in a nearby field and filled my rifle barrel with mud," said Gilbert. "There wasn't much else to do but clean the gun."

"Shells were falling all around us in a creek and we were asked to give covering fire," Desjardins related. "I let go a burst at a sniper and then the gun jammed so I stopped and cleaned it."

Sgt. Sinclair Halliday of Teeswater, Ont., told of one rookie private, whose name he could not recall, coming up and saying, "Gee, Sarge, this don't look like the real thing." It was real all right and, Halliday said, "A lot of good work was done, especially by boys who went out under that mortaring."

Cpl. John Casault of Ottawa returned with a shrapnel scratch on the back of his neck but didn't know about it until after the battle.

L. Cpl. Chick Cawley of Toronto discovered half a mortar had been shot off his back only when someone asked him why he still carried it.

Lieut. Donald Handford of Chatham, Ont., a platoon commander, said two barrages were thundering at the same time — the Canadian and the German — "but we didn't care whose shells were falling, we just kept going."

Pte. Roger Sharpe of London, Ont., in a company commanded by Capt. Frank Kennedy of Stratford, Ont., also had a close call. Returning to his own lines he found a

JAPANESE CRUISER SUNK BY BRITISH SUB NEAR MALAYA

Same Submarine Also Sunk Three Large Jap Supply Ships Says Admiralty

ONE OF KUMA CLASS

London, Jan. 21—(CP) —A 31-year-old British submarine commander famed for his exploits in the Mediterranean was credited by the Admiralty today with sinking a Japanese cruiser in the Indian Ocean at the northern approaches to narrow Malacca Strait which threads between Malaya and the Dutch East Indies island of Sumatra.

The submarine, skippered by Lt.-Cmdr. L. W. A. Bennington, approached to within "suicide range" of one mile to score the first sinking of a Japanese cruiser by a British submarine in the Indian Ocean.

The cruiser, identified as one of the 5,100-ton Kuma class, went down at about the same time three large Japanese supply ships were sent to the bottom by the same submarine.

Bennington formerly commanded the Porpoise which made naval history by carrying supplies to Malta during the darkest days of that British island stronghold in the Mediterranean. In one single attack the Porpoise survived more than 100 depth charges, one of the heaviest assaults ever made on a British submarine.

Jane's fighting ships lists five Japanese cruisers of the Kuma class—The Kuma, The Tama, The OI, The Kitakami and The Kiso, all built in 1919 and 1920.

Second class cruisers, these vessels have a standard displacement of 5,100 tons and carry 439 offiicers and men. Each is equipped with 11 guns and at least eight torpedo tubes. Each also is equipped to carry one aircraft. They have an overall length of 535 feet and a beam of 46¾ feet.

The Admiralty said the submarine commander reported the enemy cruiser was sighted in company with a destroyer.

"Proceeding at maximum speed His Majesty's submarine closed to within a mile of the enemy when a salvo of torpedoes was fired," the communique added.

"Two hits were observed on the cruiser, which sank. An ineffective counter-attack by the escorting Japanese destroyer then developed."

10 FRENCH REPORTED GUILLOTINED

Barcelona, Jan. 21 (AP) — The French press said today ten persons, whom it described as "communists" had been guillotined at Angouleme Jan. 17 in reprisal for the killing of a Vichy policeman. Three other Frenchmen were said to have been condemned to death by German military courts and executed Jan. 13 for sniping at German troops.

U.S. Subs Sink 12 More Jap Merchant Vessels

Washington, Jan. 21 —(AP)— United States submarines have sunk 12 more Japanese merchant vessels, bringing to 558 the number of Japanese ships sunk, probably sunk or damaged by American submersibles since the United States entered the war.

The new report on damage inflicted by submarines ranging the distant waters of the Pacific was announced today by the navy.

Of the 558 total, 406 ships have been definitely sent to the bottom. In addition, American submarines probably have sunk 36 Japanese vessels and have damaged 114 others.

The navy gave no indication where the Japanese ships were destroyed, but American submarines have operated within Japanese coastal waters.

The 12 ships listed in today's announcement were of the types used in moving materials and men. They included seven medium freighters, two small freighters, a large tanker, a medium cargo transport and one small transport.

Bombers Sink Two.

Chungking — (AP) — American heavy bombers yesterday sank a 1,700-ton enemy passenger-freighter and a 1,500-ton tanker during a sweep over the China Sea, Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stillwell announced today.

The fliers of the 14th American Air Force saw crews of the burning vessels abandon ship as the craft settled beneath the waves.

All the aircraft returned.

TOJO WORRIES OVER JAP NEED FOR MORE PLANES

Says Air Power Will Decide Trend of General War Situation

PREFERS LONG WAR

New York, Jan. 21 — (AP) —Premier Hideki Tojo told the Japanese Diet today "a golden opportunity" was at hand to strike a crushing blow against the Allies and called for expansion of Japan's "National Labor Service" to speed to the front "superior aircraft," according to a Domei broadcast over the Tokyo radio.

The broadcast, recorded by United States government monitors, quoted Tojo as saying air power "will decide the general trend in the present war situation and determine its outcome." He warned, however, that Japan's ability to deliver planes depended on an immediate increase in basic war materials such as iron, light metals and coal; an improvement in land and sea transportation, and an expansion of the labor service.

"Munitions production, upon which the United States greatly relies, already has reached its peak and as problems of material and manpower arise, unrest increases in intensity," Tojo was quoted as saying. He added:

"In Britain the national strength has declined and the degree of exhaustion is becoming greater and greater."

Discussing the Allied offensive in the Pacific, Tojo asserted it was the "desperate" result of a "craving for a short war," while "outwardly talking a long war."

"The enemy," he said, "is in a fit of impatience. When the enemy is in such a state, a golden opportunity not to be missed is offered us to inflict upon them a crushing blow and drive them to their catstrophic end.

"By grasping this opportunity with utmost calmness and composure we are to deal him greater, smashing blows. In fact, this operation of meeting and defeating the enemy is already taking place."

Japan, on the other hand, prefers a long war, Tojo said, adding: "If Japan is given time, her strategic position would become even stronger, war resources in the southern region would be even more converted into fighting power, the unity of the peoples of Greater East Asia would become more strengthened than it is now and the position of Japan would be beyond their (the Allies) power."

Domei also quoted Tojo as acknowledging Japanese shipping had suffered losses which "cannot by any means be minimized."

Credit Certificates For Forced Savings Being Distributed

Hamilton, Jan. 21—(CP)— Hon. Colin Gibson, Minister of National Revenue, in an interview here today announced that credit certificates, showing the total investment under the compulsory savings portion of the income tax collection, now are being distributed to Canadian taxpayers at the rate of 12,000 a day.

"The certificates advise Canadians of the amount standing to their credit and until re-payment is made it will bear interest the first certificates will be collectable two years after the end of the war and each year's issue will follow in turn until the entire sum has been refunded."

TITO RECAPTURES HEADQUARTERS OF PATRIOT ARMY

Germans Claim to Have Captured Jajce on January 12th

NOW ON OFFENSIVE

London, Jan. 21 — (AP) — Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today that his Yugoslav Partisan troops had recaptured the town of Jajce, headquarters of the patriot army in the mountains of Western Bosnia, which the Germans said fell Jan. 12.

Smashing on to the west, the partisans cleared the area between Mrkonjicgrad and Glamoc, 30 miles southwest of Jajce, of German troops, including units of the 1st Alpine Division and a motorized division, and drove them back toward the Dalmatian coast.

Jajce occupies a strategic position at the confluence of the Vrbas and Pliva rivers, 32 miles south of Banja Luka, and is a chemical centre. Tito's headquarters are on the summit of a conical hill overlooking the Vrbas valley, 100 feet below.

Tito's war bulletin, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav Radio, said the partisans had gone over to the offensive on several other sectors of the widely-scattered front.

Causes Huge Damage

A recapitulation of damage done to German communication and supply lines during the past 12 months, compiled by Tito's headquarters, shows that railway-wrecking units have destroyed 600 truckloads of wheat, 60 locomotives, 480 freight cars, 15 bridges and three tanks. They have killed more than 1,000 enemy troops.

In addition they interrupted traffic on the Zagreb-Belgrade trunk railway, one of the Germans' main supply and communication lines, for a total of 1,600 hours.

"PROGRESS BY EVOLUTION"

London, Ont., Jan. 21 —(CP)— Calling the policies of the progressive-conservative party "progress by evolution rather than revolution," Dr. R. Hobbs Taylor, M. L. A. for Huron told a meeting of wards two and four last night that "Coldwell would be the kerensky of the Canadian revolution, if the C. C. F. were to come into power."

"I think Coldwell believes what he is saying," Dr. Taylor said, "but there are men in this party who do not believe the same as Coldwell; they are dangerous men and they want far different things to what Coldwell talks about."

BRITISH STORM 2 VILLAGES AFTER TAKING MINTURNO

Formidable German Defences Centred Around Castelforte Near West Coast

'GUSTAV LINE' MENACED

By WES GALLAGHER
(AP War Correspondent)

Algiers, Jan. 21 (AP). — French troops, crossing the Rapido River in difficult mountain fighting, have captured the foot of Mount Il Lago, north of Cassino, and are threatening to outflank the Germans' "Gustav Line" of defence in Italy, Allied headquarters announced today.

British forces of the 5th Army, supported by fire of cruisers and destroyers, smashed forward along the Appian Way, capturing Minturno, 76 miles from Rome, and taking 300 prisoners. They are assaulting the twin Nazi defensive villages of Castelforte and Ventosa on the slopes of 1,000-foot Mount Santi Cosma E Damiano, six miles inland from the Tyrrhenian.

In weather which German prisoners described as "worse than Leningrad", American patrols of the 5th Army slashed across the river south of Cassino in probing expeditions and retired.

Although the French push from captured Sant' Elia, northeast of Cassino, "if continued would allow them to attack Cassino from the rear, German prisoners said there was another German line of fortifications called the "Adolf Hitler Line" six miles behind the Gustav Belt which the Allies now are attacking.

For the first time in many weeks cruisers and destroyers of the Royal Navy engaged in heavy action against Nazi shore defences along the western end of the line, throwing several hundred rounds of shells ahead of the 5th Army attack last Tuesday and Wednesday. The heaviest shelling was concentrated on the Appian Way where the road runs close to the sea near the village of Terracina.

Munturno was taken by British troops after "hard fighting", the communique said. The Germans already had announced evacuation of the town.

The British attack on Castelforte and Ventosa was in a sector approximately two miles beyond the Garigliano and about six miles inland. It was around Castelforte that the Germans apparently had built their most formidable defences in the coastal sector. They launched several strong counter-attacks in this sector but all were repulsed.

The German communique said German positions were breached southwest of Castelforte.

Total Disarmament of Germany After War Proposal of Daily Mail

New York, Jan. 21 (CP).—A three-point program for dealing with Germany after her defeat, written by a political observer under the pseudonym "Victory", was published recently by the London Daily Mail. One of the proposals was that Germany be totally disarmed, stripped of her war factories and otherwise prevented from organizing for another war.

The Daily Mail also published the reactions of three prominent Britons to this suggestion.

George Bernard Shaw said it was "cowardly rubbish".

Lord Vansittard said he was in agreement "though it may be necessary to go further in some respects . . ."

Emanuel Shinwell, Labor member of parliament, said "I plead with all upon whose shoulders rests the responsibility of creating post-war foreign relations not to force the peace."

The three-point program:

1. Germany shall be prevented from waging another war.

2. Germany will assume a place in the economic life of Europe in just proportion to her size and population. She will be encouraged in such fields as industry, science, scholarship and art to contribute to the prosperity of the world.

3. Germans convicted of individual crimes and Germans in responsible positions who influenced and encouraged the initiation of the war will be punished.

Under the first article of the plan the author wrote:

"Clause 1.

"Germany shall be totally disarmed. The German army, navy and air force will be dissolved.

"All factories producing explosives, gas, aircraft, or materials and weapons of war of any nature will be dismantled or destroyed.

"Clause 2

"Allied troops will occupy Germany for one year after her surrender..."

Will Allow Seven Days

In event Germany is found to be manufacturing war weapons, the program said, a European control commission will give German authorities seven days to destroy the contraband or "their destruction will be effected by bombing."

The second article proposes: that at the end of the one-year military occupation, a German government be set up which will govern the country for three years, at which time the "German people may elect whatever government they wish;" that Germany will retain all territory held by it in 1937 "with the exception of East Prussia," to go to Poland "within four years of the Armistice;"

That Germany be permitted to resume diplomatic relations with other countries; arm her civil police; maintain a merchant navy and civil air passenger and freight service and maintain representation at international labor conferences.

Bernard Shaw Critical

Shaw describes the first article of the plan calling for tital disablement of Germany as "cowardly rubbish, impudent, pretentious, and so

Escape Route Cut When Two Red Armies Join Forces

Trap Also Being Set for 250,000 Other Nazis Near Leningrad

40,000 OF FOE SLAIN

London, Jan. 21 (CP).—An undetermined number of German troops were sealed off for annihilation today in the Strelna corridor southwest of Leningrad after other Red army forces in the northern drive captured the ancient trading centre of Novgorod on the sixth day of the drive.

While Gen. K. A. Meretskov's armies of the Volkhov front took Novgorod, 100 miles southeast of Leningrad on the road to southern Estonia, other armies under Gen. Leonid A. Govorov, attacking southwest of Leningrad and southeast of Oranienbaum on the Gulf of Finland, were said by Moscow to have joined forces 20 miles southwest of Leningrad to trap the Germans.

The Nazis were caught in the 50-square-mile Strelna corridor, running north from the Krasnoye Selo sector to the Gulf of Finland.

The two Red armies also were shaping a trap for 250,000 other German troops in a salient southeast of Leningrad.

Approach Rail Junction.

Gorov's forces were only nine miles from Karsnogvardiesk, a rail junction through which most of the threatened enemy troops must withdraw toward Estonia.

They fashioned the Strelna trap by striking southwest of newly-captured Krasnoye Selo, 15 miles southwest of Leningrad, and moving on to take Ni-Zhnaya, four miles south of Krasnoye Selo and nine miles from Krasnogvardeisk. Mikhailovka, three miles southwest of Krasnoye Selo, also was taken in a fanwise movement and resulted in the union of the two Russian forces.

A midnight supplement to yesterday's communique said many of the trapped Germans had dropped their arms and surrendered.

Meantime Soviet airmen dealt heavy blows to German escape roads and the Russian Baltic fleet warships shelled the German coastal lines.

Face Disaster

Dispatches from Moscow indicated the Germans remaining in the Leningrad sector were facing one of the worst Nazi disasters since Stalingrad and the Moscow radio declared jubilantly:—

"The Germans have been driven far away from Leningrad. German forces are bleeding profusely. They are panic-stricken under the threatening tentacle of a mighty Soviet army of retribution."

Capture of Novgorod opened the road to Lake Peipus and southern Estonia.

Gen. Meretskov's troops were pushing westward from Novgorod in pursuit of the fleeing garrison and latest reports placed them more than 10 miles along the roads to Estonia. Of this victory, the Moscow radio said:—

"Falling back hastily they (the Germans) cannot hope to stem the onslaught of our troops, nor stand up to the deluge of artillery fire rained upon their heads."

In addition to the 40,000 Germans which the Russians said they had slain, 4,000 more were reportedly captured. Govorov's men accounted for 25,000 of the slain enemy troops, the other 15,000 dying in the storming of Novgorod by Meretskov's troops on the Volkhov front.

Much Booty Captured

The Russians reported the capture of 265 guns on the Leningrad sector since Jan. 14, when their offensive was launched, including 85 heavy siege guns which had been shelling the city. Other material taken included 30 tanks, 159 mortars, 274 machine-guns and 18 ammunition dumps.

During the same period Meretskov's troops on the Volkhov front captured 182 guns, 120 mortars, 635 machine-guns, 263 trucks, 21 tractors and 25 dumps. They destroyed 178 guns, 15 tanks, 110 mortars, 365 machine-guns and 350 trucks, the communique said.

5 in U. S. Transport Fly Over Lhasa Tibet's Sacred City

New Delhi, Jan. 21—(CP)—Five crew members of an American transport plane have flown over the sacred capital of Lhasa, Tibet and lived to tell about it. They were told by Tibetans their plane was the only one ever to fly over the country.

But it was a rough party. They got lost and bailed out Nov. 30 when their gasoline was exhausted. Then they spent more than a month getting back to India on mules and afoot over the wintery Himalayan ranges.

Those who underwent the experience are Lieut. R. E. Crozier, 23, of West, Tex., the pilot; Flight Officer Harold McCallum, 24, Quincy, Mass., co-pilot; Cpl. Kenneth B. MOTORIST CLAIMS DIAMOND RING STOLEN

Complaining that a diamond ring had been stolen from out of the glove compartment of his parked motor car, Arthur VaZeau, R. R. No. 7 Belleville, sought the assistance of police in the possible recovery of the ring yesterday. He stated the diamond ring, valued at $85.00, had been placed in the glove compartment by himself, but was apparently stolen during the time Mr. Valleau was absent from the vehicle while it yas parked on Front St.

"It seems to be an odd place to place a valuable diamond ring and then not even secure the car," remarked police authorities upon hearing of the complaint.

PTE. E. FRY RETURNED TO MILITARY UNIT

Activities in and around local police circles have been exceedingly quiet this week. An inebriate was apprehended yesterday and police also took Pte. Ernest Fry, of the Canadian Army, into custody. Fry allegedly being absent from his army unit without leave. He was returned to Military District Headquarters at Kingston.

COUNTY COUNCIL MEMBERS ENTERTAINED

Enjoying an hour's sociability away from the problems of county masters, members of the Hastings county council were guests at the Barb-B-Q for luncheon Thursday noon. The management catered expressly to the county fathers during the period of luncheon with other customers being at the absolute mlunmlbmMhu minimum.

Pertaking of choice spare ribs and other delectable fare, councillors were unanimous in expressing their appreciation to the hosts for the luncheon with a special vote of thanks being tendered by Reeve J. Fred Wilson of Sidney township. Clerk of the county, . S. Denyes acted as master of ceremonies during the luncheon at which all council members but Warden Thos. Fleming attended. Warden Fleming and County Treasurer James Haggerty attended a private dinner party at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, the guests of Mr. J. Owen Herity.

CAUSES DISTURBANCES AT AUCTION SALE, FINED $24.50

As the sequel to a disturbance during an auction sale in Sidney Township last week, Anthony Cain, Foxboro P.O., was convicted of causing a disturbance, when he appeared before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in an adjourned session of police court on Thursday afternoon. Can paid $24.50, including costs, and was bound over to keep the peace.

A second charge of assaulting a police officer was withdrawn at the suggestion of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C. The second count read that Cain had assaulted Provincial Constable Jaes Driscoll at the time of his apprehension. His Worship agreed to dismiss the charge, but warned those in the court and particularly Cain, that such actions would not be tolerated.

Inspector T. D. Ruston, of the Children's Aid Society, made an application to have a child made a ward of the society and also arraigned a teen-aged girl fom Sidney Township, who is reported to be a habitual truant. The latter case was enlarged for one week.

POLICE ARE PROBING THEFT OF TRAPS

Provincial Police today are investigating the reported theft of 25 muskrat traps taken from the premises of Ross Fuller in Tyendinaga Township.

Provincial Constable R. O'Brien and Jas. Driscoll apprehended a resident of Tyendinaga Township at noon today and are holdinng the ma pending further investigations. The offocers returned to the area seeking further inforation regarding the traps before specific charges were laid.

POLICE COURT

Convicted of second offence drunkenness within the year, Gilbert Forshee and George Miller, both of this city, were sentenced to serve one month in the common jail by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd after being in default of the payment of $50 fines levied on the receipt of pleas of guilty in police court here today.

A charge of assault was withdrawn against eVrnon Orr, Belleville, when upon the application of the mother of the complainant in the matter. Orr pleaded guilty to a charge of assaulting Miss Alma Anderson, of this city. Later Miss Anderson's mother took the stand at the request of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., and informed the court she would prefer to have the case withdrawn. His Worship dismissed the matter without costs.

Pte. Robert Allen, Kingston, paid $10 and costs after being convicted of the illegal possession of liquor.

"I haven't been here for two years," pleaded John Brown, no address given, when he appeared charged with having no National Registration certificate.

"The fact you haven't been here for two years doesn't alter the fact you have no registration card," remarked Magistrate Lloyd, as he sent Brown "up on the hill" for a month, or until such time he receives a registration card from Ottawa.

Bernard Hyderman, Belleville, appeared charged with assaulting Gean Lindeman, Coleman Street, but owing to the fact Hyderman's solicitor was unable to appear today the matter was enlarged until Tuesday.

At the request of Inspector T. D. Ruston of the Children's Aid Society, a small boy was made ward of the society at the conclusion of the court.

Clare B. Morgan Heads Chamber Of Commerce

Mr. Clare B. Morgan, one of Belleville's best known citizens, was on Thursday afternoon elected president of the Chamber of Comerce.

Serving with him as vice-presidents will be Mr. Wilfred Laporte, general manager of the Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company at Corbyville, and Mr. O. W. Duff, divisional superintendent of the Canadian National Railways.

Messrs. J. A. McIntosh and J. O. Herity were respectively appointed treasurer and secretary-manager.

Mr. Morgan brings to his new and responsible office wide experience in the business and social life of the province.

Native of Bloomfield.

He is a native of the village of Bloomfield in Prince Edward County. His father, the late Finlay A. Morgan, was a prominent figure in dairying circles and for many years carried on a cheese-broking business in the town of Picton.

The new president of the Chamber of Commerce received his primary education at Bloomfield public school and, after graduation at Picton collegiate institute, proceeded to Toronto University.

In 1909 he went to make his home at Toronto and entered the service of the Woolworth Company as assistant auditor. He later took a position with the Automobile Finance Corporation and later became identified with the Charis Corporation of Canada, the well known manufacturers of foundation garments, with head office at Allentown, Pa. In this corporation he became an important shareholder and was elected to the directorate, a position he still holds.

Interested In Education.

During his residence in Toronto he took an active interest in educational affairs and in comunity work. For a number of years he served as a member of the York Township Board of Education and was made chairman of the management committee. He was also received into the membership of the Downtown Toronto Kiwanis Club, in which he became first vice-president, just prior to his removal to Belleville. He was also for a period of six years, president of the Baby Point Social Club.

In 1940, Mr. Morgan decided to come and make his home in Belleville. Since his arrival here he has built up an important business in the field of insurance adjustment. During his residence in Toronto he had much practical experience in adjusting claims.

Elected Director Two Years Ago.

He has, at the same time, displayed a widespread interest in many movements for community betterment. He was elected a director of the Chamber of Commerce two years ago, became its vice-president in 1943 and is now president. He became a member of the Belleville Rotary Club and not long after was elected director and appointer treasuprer. He has been a most effective canvasser in the various war loan campaigns. He has served on the executive of the Children's Aid and given notable service in various capacities. In fact he is one of those thoroughly public-spirited citizens who finds his greatest pleasure in endeavoring to build up a better and more prosperous community where he has come to establish his home.

Warden At Luncheon.

At yesterday's luncheon the board of directors entertained as guests His Honor Warden Thomas Fleming of the County of Hastings, James W. Haggertty, county treasurer, and H. W. Ackerman, former mayor of Belleville.

Warden Fleming expressed the hope that the happy relations now existing between city and county would become even more cordial with the pasing years. He also referred humorously to the days when he was a pupil in the primary class in the public school at Ivanhoe and Mr. Herity was that school's principal.

Estimated Road Expenditures Of $95,000 for County Work Sent to Dep't of Highways

$5,000 Recommended as an Expenditure on Suburban Roads

DISCUSS SURPLUS LEVY

Total estimated expenditure for county and suburban roads for 1944 is $95,000 according to the report submitted to county council Thursday afternoon by the Roads and Bridges Committee. The report was submitted by the committee chairman, Reeve Fred J. Wilson and recommended an expenditure of $5,000 on suburban road system this year. If passed by the Department of Highways the total above expenditure would require a tax rate of slightly under 2.5 mills, it was stated.

Share of the City of Belleville for the estimated suburban road expenditure would be $1,250 which with the 25 per cent share of the county and the Department subsidy of 50 per cent would raise the necessary amount.

The reported suggestion that there may be some new construction permitted on the county road system this season as asphalt and tar are now available as restrictions against their use have been removed. The large percentage of the work planned however, would be maintenance of the present system, which includes machinery repairs, snow fence, general accounts such as fire and other insurance; superintendence, clerical assistance, expense of the county car and workmen's compensation. Labor had been scarce in 1943 rendering all planned maintenance impossible and it was recommended that resurfacing now behind schedule should be caught up this year.

Discuss Surplus Fund.

Although passing the road estimates unanimously, councillors discussed at some length the question of setting up a surplus to take care of expenditure in any post-war rehabilitation program that may be adopted. It is recommended by the department that council set up a surplus for this purpose, either using any present surplus or levying for that purpose.

Reeve Churcher of Dungannon thought the time was ripe for mapping out a post-war program and trusted that something concrete and beneficial would be evolved for Hastings County. Reeve E. W. Jones of Tweed wanted to know what percentage of the $90,000 estimated for road expenditure this year would be spent in the form of wages and suggested it may be profitable not to spend too much in machinery. "A steam shovel can move a lot of dirt but it doesn't employ many men," he said.

Reeve of Deloro village, R. A. Elliott, did not agree with Reeve Jones stating the world had passed such a stage of mediocrity. "There will be lots of work and if carried out efficiently, there will be more," he said. "In good times we should prepare for times when the going is not so good. I advocate holding up the tax rate now when county residents are all working and able to pay taxes. We should put by about a mill a year and buy government bonds. That is what the individual is doing and it should also be good business for municipalities. We should not place too much dependence on money being available for post-war projects from outside sources. If it is received from outside sources, in the end we'll have to pay it back."

W. J. Davis of Maple Leaf indicated the council might save money by using any surplus there might be at present to pay interest on bank notes and levy against the tax rate for a surplus to set up for post-war work.

Opposes Levy Increase.

Against the argument of increasing the levy to set up a surplus was W. C. West of Stirling who indicated the majority of residents in Hastings were not in the "rich" class. "We are being asked to levy for a surplus," he said. "All well and good, but we must remember that Hastings residents are not rich. Laborers are already paying all they can. I question the advisability of laying up a surplus in this manner for future generations to spend. I am entirely in sympathy with any post-war program but it is a big problem—too big for us to handle," he said.

"It's all right to talk about post-war programs," interjected Reeve William Linn of Marmora village, "but the point is that you have got to have the money. A tax rate of 60 mills on the dollar on a cash value assessment is high enough, if it is increased it is too stiff." Apparently Mr. Linn was referring to his own village rate.

A representative of the department answered Mr. West by indicating the by-law would be passed for increasing the levy to build up a surplus stipulated definitely what the money would be used for and the Department of Municipal Affairs would see to it that there was no diversion. No action was taken on the matter, it being laid over until Friday's session.

Program Adopted

Discussion was also heard on a post-war program submitted to council by the Roads and Bridges committee chairman and prepared by the county engineer. The program was adopted by council but its terms are not binding and no capital expenditures may be made without council consent.

The House of Refuge report submitted by the committee chairman Mr. William J. Tanner indicated there had been 22 commitments during the year. There had been 18 deaths among the inmates and 12 had been discharged from the institution. The number of inmates on the roll as of December 31st had been 88, it was stated.

The financial statement of the House of Refuge indicated the cash value of the farm stock and showed the value of farm produce grown as $3,170. Cost of groceries and other provisions consumed at the institution during the year was $11,494. Cash receipts from paying inmates had totalled $10,586. Total cost of the farm and house for the year had been $17,002, representing a net cost to the county of $5,689. Total cost per inmate per week had been $4.51 with the net cost per inmate per week being $1,27.

Asks For Regular Grant

H. Lynn Fair was heard briefly during the session asking for the regular county grant for the Quinte Seed Growers' Association, while he also announced the respective dates of the planned farm mechanics courses which will be staged at different centres during February.

He also cited ceiling prices of commercial grain with the view of guidance to county farmers either selling or purchasing grain. The ceiling price of commercial oats at Fort William to which transportation costs and cost of bag might be added in Ontario, was stated to be $1.04 per bushel for oats. $1.44 per bushel for barley. Ceiling prices of fine seeds in lots of 31 pounds or over were quoted as alfalfa 37 cents, or $22.20 per bushel; alsike, 29 cents, or $17.40; red clover 34 cents, or $20.40, and timothy 16 cents or $7.67. Cost of bags could also be added in the case of fine seeds.

The question of export certificates and profit participation certificates when seeds are exported to the United States was also explained by Mr. Fair. The possibility of farmers realized much profit out of export was small, according to the speaker, as the seed is first polled and all home needs must be supplied before there is any export. There has never been any ceiling on seed grain, it was stated.

One other item of business conducted during the afternoon session was the renewal of road liability insurance with the same firm as last year at a premium of $675. This was given by the committee of the whole on ways and means with W. C. West in the chair bullet hole through his boot.

Lieut. Peter Fisher of Toronto said getting back from the objective was the worst part of the attack because the Germans had the exit "taped" with machine-guns which opened fire every time anyone moved.

Sgt. Norman Bell of Toronto was one of 10 men who spent part of a day behind the German forward positions and in the middle of the artillery barrage. He shared a split trench with Pte. Bill Hall of Aylmer, Ont.

"We were pinned down by machine-gun fire and the officer sent us to find out what we could do about it," Bell said. "When we got back we found the company had moved so we joined Lieut. Bob Chamberlain of St. Thomas, Ont., and some of his men."

During this period "behind the German lines", L. Cpl. George Lhons of Owen Sound, Ont., knocked out three German machine-gun posts and Chamberlain got one.

Ptes. Robert Donaldson of Montreal and Jim Coleman of Scottstown, Que., were in the same party and said they took six hours to get back. The Germans were sure they were dead and the Canadians killed a major who looked into their trench.

In some places the Germans were only 50 feet away and the tanks were firing over their heads from a road another 50 yards back.

"It didn't seem possible that a person could come out alive," said Bell.

C.S.M. G. H. Kidd of Moose Jaw, Sask., told of a signaller, Pte. Freddie Baker of Hespeler, Ont., who crossed 20 yards of open ground to rescue a wireless set after his own had been smashed by machine-gun fire. He also praised Sgt. Albert Thorner of Stratford, Ont., who went out under fire to direct troops coming up from the rear.

Kidd, who served with the British 1st Army in North Africa early last year, said he had not seen a tougher fighting unit than this.

"One of the best individual performances was that of Pte. Jimmy Hyde of Farrelton, Que., a sniper who accounted for seven Germans," he said.

"I tried to pick off the machine-gunners," said Hyde whose favorite peacetime sport is hunting and shooting.

Asked Germans To Surrender.

Cpl. Milton Spiegelberg of Kitchener, Ont., said that when he got on top of a ridge he found the Germans holding a house and called down six-pounder artillery fire on the house. Then the Germans came out.

"I was the only one who could speak German and told them to surrender with their hands up," said Spiegelberg. "They had 12 machine-guns behind only 25 yards from us."

Spiegelberg said the fire was so heavy he thought the Germans were preparing to counter-attack but he and C.S.M. R. O. Marquis of St. Mary's, Ont., and other men "decided to make a break for it and die rather than surrender."

County Council Requests Dept. of Highways to Take Over Foxboro-Madoc Road

Members Discuss Also Acquisition by County of Several Bridges

3 BRIDGES MENTIONED

A resolution requesting that the Department of Highways to take over the Foxboro-Madoc road as a provincial highway was heard in county council during the Thursday morning session, the motion being passed unanimously without comment from the council body.

Discussion regarding the county taking over several bridges lying within township boundaries took up considerable time during the session. The bridges in question originally were county bridges but are termed as being on the doubtful list and townships interested are seeking assurance of county maintenance. The bridges in question were the Mink Creek bridge on the Wollaston-Chandos boundary; Mather's bridge in Thurlow and Tyendinaga, and Deer River bridge on the Wollaston-Lake boundary, near Chandos.

Survey Will be Made

Speaking briefly to council, chairman of Roads and Bridges, J. Fred Wilson stated his committee was not seeking to stop these bridges from being assumed by the county but suggested the matter be shelved temporarily pending a department review of county bridges now taking place.

Reeve W. J. Davis indicated, that a large bridge in a small municipality was a heavy load on the taxpayer if it were to be kept in condition. He suggested that the Department of Highways take over all bridges over a certain span.

Reeve Lee Gordon of Coe Hill indicated that the county had always maintained the bridges in question in his township but added a division of the boundary between Wollaston and Chandos was being made and he thought the matter should be settled. He agreed, however, that the matter be left over until the bridge review was made by the department.

Deputy Reeve Harry Harrison of Thurlow township considered the matter should be settled as there was the question of liability should a serious accident occur at one of the bridges in question.

Referred to Committees

Representative of the insurance firm carrying the county road liability insurance, Mr. Jos. White, addressed the members seeking the renewal of the county policy which provided payments to any one person up to $10,000 and up to $20,000 as the result of any one accident. Premium of the policy was $675. The matter was referred to ways and means.

Appointments to the rehabilitation committee were made during the morning. The committee will be comprised of the chairman from each of the county standing committees, the Warden and Reeve R. A. Elliott of Deloro. Appointed to the Patriotic committee was the chairman of Finance, Warden Fleming, R. A. Elliott, and the county clerk and treasurer. County representatives to the Board of Governors for Belleville General Hospital will be Warden Fleming and Clerk E. S. Denyes.

Council moved for the clerk to write a letter of sympathy and condolence to Reeve E. W. Jones of Tweed village in his bereavement in the death of his mother.

Bethany Couple Feted On Leaving Community

4th Thurlow — On Jan. 13th, about 75 friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Yateman gathered at their home at Bethany to bid them farewell before leaving for their new home at Stirling. At 10.30 the gathering was called to order by Mr. Clayton Eggleton acting as chairman. A short program was given after which Mr. Harry Walker read an address signed on behalf of the community by John Ritz, Orval Beer, Percy Osland and Harry Walker. Mr. and Mrs. Yateman were presented with a mirror, end table and electric table lamp, after which they both spoke words of thanks and invited one and all to visit them in their new home. Several speeches were made by members of the community all expressing their regret in losing Mr. and Mrs. Yateman from their midst.

Washington Spotlight

By C. R. BLACKBURN

(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Washington, Jan. 21 (CP) — A contest of ambassadorial inspiration enlivened the first public address of Canada's Ambassador Hon. Leighton McCarthy, but he won the deciding fall from Viscount Halifax, Britain's envoy, with a verbal "full Nelson."

The two ambassadors spoke briefly at Monday night's dinner at which production giants honored Donald Nelson on his completion of two years as war production board head and presiding genius over the combined production efforts of the United States, United Kingdom and Canada.

Lord Halifax said the guest of honor displayed the best qualities of his illustrious namesake, Admiral Nelson, Britain's naval idol—and McCarthy squirmed. That the punch in the three-minute speech he had prepared.

But McCarthy had an inspiration, being a keen golfer and a follower of the game. He pictured Donald Nelson as destroying the forces of tyranny even as Horatio Nelson had foiled them and ended Napoleon's hopes at Trafalgar.

Then he told of another Nelson, like Donald, playing the game through to victory—Byron Nelson who, at that moment, was driving his way to success in the $10,000 San Francisco open golf tournament.

When the laughter ended Lord Halifax bowed to his fellow Ambassador admitted defeat, and said he was sorry he had inadvertently stolen his lines.

Compliment to Canadians:

Representative Charles A. Gifford (Rep., Mass.) made a nice bow to Canadians during House discussion of the President's request for a national service law.

"If I could only feel," he said, "that that moderation and that wisdom existed in the United States of America that has been displayed in England and Canada, I could vote for this measure." He said he did not know how he would vote and hoped to study the Canadian compulsory service statute before deciding.

Unsung Heroes:

A few days ago Admiral William Halsey, Allied commander in he South Pacific, drifted in and out of Washington so quietly that columnist David Lawrence was prompted to write of the indifference of Americans to a hero whose performance out-ranks that of Admiral Dewey, according to Lawrence. His argument now could be intensified. It was subsequently learned that Lt.-Gen. George C. Kenney, Yarmouth (N.S.)-born commander of the Allied air forces under Gen. MacArthur, was here talking to the President and, to cap the climax, Gen. Dwight (Ike) Eisenhower, commander of the Allied forces for the western European invasion, had been in on the conferences here and had gone on to London without the news sleuths of the capital being able to say anything about it.

Girl Guides Organize 'Marketing Service' To Raise Needed Funds

Commencing on Saturday local residents who go to market, will see several girls in the uniform of the Girl Guides carrying market baskets and parcels. They are not "Orphan Annie's Junior Commandos", although they are fulfilling the same purpose as do these fictional characters in the Sunday comic sheets. The local Girl Guides have been organized into a group to raise funds in this manner to send boxes overseas to Belleville boys serving with the armed forces. With the money they earn off Saturday they will buy things which they will pack themselves and despatch overseas.

There will be approximately twelve girls on duty each Saturday and if you are approached by one of them and asked if she might carry your market basket while you do your shopping, or carry your basket to your home while you complete your shopping in the stores, kindly give her your complete support. The charges for these services are nominal, five cents for carrying your basket around the market, and ten cents to carry it home. Every five-cent piece, or dime they collect will be used for this war work on the girls' part.

Due to the fact that the girls will be in school on Tuesdays and Thursdays, the "Marketing Service", will only be done on Saturday. It is a novel way to raise money, a very laudable one, and should appeal to many people. Not only will these young ladies save wear and tear on arms and nerves, but their interest in war work will increase with the total support of their elders.

Little Benny's Note Book

The clean stuff from the laundry was piled up ready for ma to put it away, and pop said, For Peet sake look at the wrinkles in that laundry. Do you mean to say that's the way they've been handing us back our wash? he said.

That's the identical way, and I'm glad you've noticed it, because that convinces me it's no mere optical delusion on my part, ma said. It wont be the first laundry man I've raked over the hot coals, or the first time I've changed laundries, either. He comes again this afternoon to collect the soiled things and believe me I'll be waiting for him in no uncertain terms, she said.

And when the laundry man rang the bell ma went down, saying, So, it's you.

It's me all right, Mrs. Potts, how you been? the laundry man said, and ma said, If you ask me how the laundry has been, it's been looking as if it's been ironed with cobble stones without exaggeration. My husband noticed it this morning and made quite a violent scene about it, and you must admit that when a man notices the appearance of the laundry it must be in a very obvious state. I cant stand any more of that kind of service and I might as well come right out and tell you so, she said.

Well, there's nothing like frankness, the laundry man said. With this war going on I'm turning down new customers every day, and I'll be equally frank and tell you that you'll have one sweet time finding a new laundry, either better or worse, he said, and ma said, Well of course I know what conditions are in a general way, particularly with laundries. I just thought I'd mention the matter in passing, so I do wish you'd try to do better, though I'm afraid it's a little too much to ask, she said.

I'm afraid it's much too much, the laundry man said.

And he started to put the laundry bag in his car and ma told him to wait till she got him a bottle of home made rootbeer.

869,321 Men Enrolled

Figures were made public at Ottawa on Thursday showing that the total of intake of men into the armed forces of Canada up to the end of last September was 869,321. This must be inspiring news to the people of Canada that the men of military age have been playing so great a part in the war for the preservation of liberty and democracy.

In this military district, that of Kingston No. 3, the figures of enrolment are 72,316 or 38.7 per cent of the male population of the ages 18 to 45, the average for all Canada being 35.1 per cent after the deduction of 1,731 men taken on the strength outside Canada.

Toronto district No. 2 led all districts in totals and in percentage of the men of military age, the former being 197,335 and the percentagge 42.7.

Of the total the army led with 589,106, the air force 204,458 and the navy 75,757. The figures for the Royal Canadian Air Force show the tremendous development which has taken place in this branch of the services. These colossal figures provide an idea of the part that the air force plays in air, land and sea operations in modern war. The growth of the Royal Canadian Navy likewise is indicative of the great part that the control of the sea plays in warfare of today. The development in the Air Force and in the Navy has been phenomenal and shows how the character of war has changed as well as how Canada has realized the supreme need of keeping the sea lanes and the airways free. Canada's development since the war of 1918 can be indicated in the added stress on naval strength.

It is a much more powerful and important Canada that has been standing with the democracies in this struggle and with the greater importance of the country the duty and the responsibility have been greater. Canada stands at this eventful time of the world's history at the great crossroads of the world in commerce and aviation.

In this war Canada's army is said to be the most highly mechanized and motorized of the armies of the smaller nations. Today there is a tremendous stress on mechanical invention and on the weight of the most up-to-the-minute armor that can be developed. Canada's army has today a striking force much more powerful than it had in 1914-18 and that supremacy of striking force is one of the chief demands of the struggle.

In the three services Canada has an offensive and defensive force which is fully modern. This military strength has been built up largely during the course of the war and Canadians can with justice feel proud of their army, their navy and their air force and of the assistance which this country has been able to give the Motherland and the members of the British Commonwealth as well as the other United Nations.

San Juan Earthquake

The extent of the devastation of San Juan, Argentina, in the earthquake can be gleaned from the news that 3,500 bodies have already been cremated in the stricken city. Pictures of wrecked buildings help to complete the impression of the disaster.

Many sections of the world are subject to tremors, especially in the seaboard parts. The absorption of interest in the Sicilian and lower Italian areas of the Mediterranean during the past summer drew attention to the record of that part of the world for seismic disturbance.

Quakes are caused by the shift of subterranean rocks and may be so slight as not to be noticeable except by delicate instruments or so great as to cause great loss of life and destruction of property. Sometimes they are accompanied by a sea wave which may carry away great masses of the shore line. In many parts of the world the shoreline is long since set and there are no quake disturbances but in the case of the Andes chain of mountains in South America, the rocks are not old as contrasted with the rock formations in other parts and hence that part of the earth is subject to quakes.

Political differences in South America with respect to Argentina passed into the background at the time of the quake at San Juan and aid of every kind was sent to the stricken people.

An earthquake is something that cannot be warded off or prevented, for it is a vast uncontrollable force, destructive to life and property. There has been some talk of the development of a science of seismology which would make it possible to foretell the probability of the imminence of a quake in time to warn people to evacuate their homes and flee from the area. However that looks far away and probably is impossible of realization.

History shows that people return to the quake-devastated areas and rebuild, just as they have climbed up along the slopes of Mount Vesuvius in spite of all the disturbances which have come from that volcano.

Canada is Mine for United Nations

(Chemical Engineering News)

Canada is the greatest base metal exporting country in the world, and this year, with increasing war requirements the output will reach its highest peak.

A new Canadian process for magnesium production has been developed. The output of aluminum is now greater than the 1939 production in the rest of the world, supplying some 40 per cent of the war requirements of the United Nations.

Canada produces 95% of the combined nickel output of the United Nations, 20% of the zinc and mercury outputs, 15% of the lead, 12.5% of the copper, and 75% of the asbestos.

Kirk Rises in Desert

In the Egyptian desert is a little Scotch kirk built by Scotsmen as a memorial to their countrymen who fell in the Middle East, it is reported in Cairo. Constructed in four months by men from the Black Watch, the Camerons, and other famous Scottish regiments whose crests are carved in the stone walls, it was designed by Capt. J. Wingate, of the Highland Light Infantry. It has stained glass windows by Lieut. T. Eadie, of the Gordon Highlanders. Pulpit, lectern, and communion table commemorate three Scottish chaplains who laid down their lives. Raised by the strong but loving hands of Scots far from their own kirk, it stands as a tribute to Scots who will see their kirk no more.

Peanut for Cork

Tons of "waste" hulls which accumulate at factories where peanuts are shelled for market may soon be scooped up and made into a substitute for cork, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society. Ground into a fine meal and milled with a liquid, peanut hull "cork" may supplement supplies of natural cork now used in bottle caps, refrigerator linings, wallboards, inner soles and other cork needs. Normally all of the cork used in the United States comes from Portugal, Spain, France, Italy and North Africa. When war threatened shipping in the Atlantic, this material was placed on the "critical" list and civilian use restricted.

Escalator Crossings

(London News Chronicle)

Moving staircases at city street crossings and railways directed by radio-location were two post-war possibilities for the reduction of traffic accidents mentioned by Mr. P. J. Noel-Baker, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of War Transport, in an address at Leeds.

"I threw out the idea of a moving staircase as a suggestion," he said afterwards. "I want somebody to trp it, but it must be where there is heavy traffic, otherwise it would be too costly."

Jap Propagandists Talk Of Average Age of 100, Population of Half Billion

New York, Jan. 21—(AP)— The Japanese have formed an old folks club with which persons less than 60 may affiliate themselves only as "probationary members," the Tokyo radio said today. The new organization is designed for "the encouragement of longevity" and dedicated to activities which might "prolong the average life of the Japanese to 100 years and thereby increase the Japanese population to 500,000,000," the propaganda broadcast recorded by U. S. government monitors said.

Leathernecks Chant "Tarawa Boob De-ay" As They Take Tarawa

New York, Jan. 21—(AP)— When United States Marines stormed ashore and captured the Japanese-held Pacific island of Tarawa they did it with a song, Capt. Earle Wilson, chief of the Marine Corps combat correspondents, reports. Naval guns provided the beat, he said, as the leathernecks chanted: "Tarawa boom de-ay."

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

Life to many desperately poor settlers was just one cow-cabbage after another! This plant grew to a height of two and a half feet and was often the sole vegetable available besides potatoes. Families existed for weeks at a time on this monotonous diet in periods of economic depression or meagre harvests. Cattle, of course, thrived on the cabbage. A half-hour's browsing and they'd had a good meal, filling and nourishing.

* * *

Farm animals were prized for others things besides milk and meat. When deer were not plentiful and deerskin was lacking for moccasins, the settlers' thoughts turned to the service that could be rendered by their cattle's soft hides. At the next killing, skin was taken from each knee, at the bend. This pliable skin could be made into comfortable, long-wearing footwear with the greatest of ease.

Four cents a bushel was considered a fair price for wood-ashes in pioneer times. Four cents a bushel for the dust of forest giants—trees cut down wholesale, regardless of their quality or beauty, and burnt to furnish a jingle in the pocket! When one thinks of the fine timber destroyed of the scanty return for long hours of labour, one is aghast at the waste. Such trees today would be worth more than the cleared farms on which they grew!

12 Enemy Planes Downed at Wewak

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Jan. 21 —(AP)— American heavy bomber and fighter plane raids on the Japanese Air Force nest at Wewak, New Guinea, destroyed at least 12 enemy planes and churned the area with 133 tons of bombs, the Allied High Command reported today.

Pilots returning from a 100-plane raid Tuesday said the Japanese fliers were "smart and aggressive," but the Americans bagged 12 planes and two probables, against the loss of three raiders, the communique said.

Fifty heavy bombers struck again Wednesday, laying 133 tons of explosives mostly on Boram field, one of four airdromes at Wewak. Revetments, supply dumps and anti-aircraft guns were destroyed.

U. S. Navy patrol planes prowling in the admiralty islands area northeast of New Britain Tuesday night blew up a 5,000-ton enemy ammunition ship and sank a 2,000-ton freighter. The vessels were in a small convoy spoted off Lorengau, northeast of the islands.

Curling and Hockey Rinks Close Doors For Lack of Ice

New Liskeard, Ont., Jan. 21—(CP) — The unseasonably mild winter weather, a generally popular novelty, caused grumbling among the sports-minded segment of the population here this week, when local curling and hockey rinks were forced to close their doors for lack of ice.

CATHOLICS AND MASONS

The question is often asked whether a person may be a Catholic and a Mason at the same time.

Since 1738 Catholics have been strictly forbidden, under penalty of excommunication, to enter societies of Freemasons or in any way to promote such organizations.

In that year Pope Clement XII made the first papal pronouncement against Freemasonary, condemning the order largely on the grounds that its members were bound by oath not to disclose its purposes or practices to either civil or ecclesiastical authorities and that its teachings consisted essentially of naturalism and consequently were opposed to all forms of supernaturalism.

Freemasonry has been condemned by many Popes since the time of Pope Clement XII.

The Catholic objections to the order are clearly and concisely stated in "The New Catholic Dictionary," published in 1929. Masonic societies, says that work, "are really sectarian bodies having their own formulas of belief about God, the soul, conscience, etc., and their own secret as well as public ritual, so that a Catholic may not consistently belong to them any more than he may be a member of any other church than his own."

And again: "Since 1738 Catholics are, under penalty of excommunication incurred ipso facto and reserved to the Pope, strictly forbidden to enter Masonic societies, or promote them in any way."

Catholics as such are not prevented from becoming Freemasons by any tenet of the order, and nominal Catholics may and do sometimes become Masons; but from what has been said above it will be seen that a person who is both a Catholic and a Mason is not likely to be in good standing in the Catholic Church.

Some of the confusion on this subject arises from the fact that "Catholic" is frequently applied to persons who are not actually communicants of that church, just as "Protestant" is often used as a general appellation for non-Catholics even when they are communicants of no church at all.

Landscape Painting Gift of P. S. Teachers To Mr., Mrs. Pickering

The Belleville Public School Teachers' Association, having learned with regret that Mr. J. R. Pickering had severed his connections as inspector of the Belleville Public Schools, wished to show their appreciation of his guidance and friendship. Miss Irene Grills, Miss Kathleen MacPherson and Mr. M. Hackett, as representatives of the city teaching staff, met with Mrs. Pickering recently and presented her with a beautiful landscape painting by Mr. Manly MacDonald, a well-known local Canadian artist. Mrs. Pickering, on behalf of Mr. Pickering and herself, thanked the representatives most graciously.

The best wishes of the Belleville Public School teaching staff go with Mr. and Mrs. Pickering, in their new field of effort.

WEDDINGS

CULLEN—McINTOSH

The marriage of Miss Beatrice Laurine McIntosh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earle McIntosh, of South Bay to Sgt. William Cullen, R.A.F., was solemnized at the United Church parsonage, Picton, Tuesday, Jan. 18th, Rev. J. F. Reycraft officiating. The bride wore a white suit with brown hat and accessories. Mrs. F. R. Leversedge and Cpl. Hinds, R.A.F., were attendants. Mrs. Leversedge wore a turquoise suit with brown hat and accessories. For travelling, the bride donned a tweed coat. After a short honeymoon, Sgt. and Mrs. Cullen will reside in Picton.

SMITH—PATRICK

The marriage of Miss Betty Lucille Patrick, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Patrick, Glen Miller, Ont., to Lieut. George R. Smith, U.S. Army Air Corps, only son of Major and Mrs. George H. Smith, Spring Valley, Ohio, was solemnized quietly in St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton at 8 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 1, Rev. J. L. Hutchinson officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charmingly attired in a floor-length gown of blush satin, with head-dress to match and finger-tip veil. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white carnations.

Miss Norma Vanner, as bridesmaid, chose a floor-length gown of pink net over taffeta, with matching veil and gloves. Her flowers were pink roses and white carnations. Donald Mawson, R.C.A.F., was groomsman.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Glen Miller.

Lieut. and Mrs. G. R. Smith will reside in Richmond, Va., where the groom is presently stationed.

COLEMAN—TURNEY

The marriage of Donalda Lorne Turney, daughter of Mrs. C. Turney and the late William H. Turney to PO. Robert Coleman, R.A.F., son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coleman, Liverpool England, took place in Church of the Resurrection, Toronto, with Rev. G. S. Scovell officiating. Mr. William T. Parker played the wedding music. During the signing of the register, Master John Robbins sang.

Given in marriage by Mr. Ernest Pickles, the bride looked charming in a gown of ivory faille with full length veil, arranged from a halo of orange blossoms and carried a cascade bouquet of red roses. Attending the bride were Mrs. Norman MacDonald, as matron of honor, wearing a floor-length gown of coral pink taffeta, shoulder-length veil held by a cluster of flowers and carried a cascade bouquet of roses, sweet peas, pansies and forget-me-nots. The bridesmaids, Miss Vera Dawson and Miss Ina Forbes, were frocked alike in Queen's blue faille, shoulder-length veils held by clusters of blue and pink flowers and carried arm bouquets of pink roses.

PO. P. J. Smith, R.A.F., attended the groom as best man and the ushers were PO. R. Elliott R.A.F. and PO P. Warlow, R.A.F.

The reception was held at the Malloney's Art Galleries, where the mother of the bride received, wearing a blue lace dress with matching accessories and corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Ernest Pickles assisted in receiving, wearing a gown of wine velvet with matching hat and corsage of roses.

For travelling the bride wore a blue dress over which she wore a brown ebelin Scotch tweed coat with wolf trimming and brown accessories and corsage of roses.

Those attending from out-of-town included Capt. Thomas Lighthall and Miss Blanche Lighthall, of Picton.

PO. Coleman had been stationed at Picton Bombing & Gunnery School previous to his transfer to Mount Hope and Mrs. Coleman is a piece of Mr. Harry Green, Glenora.

First-Aid Skin Treatment Starts With Less Fatty Diet

Careful diet keeps Janet Blair's lovely skin smooth as silk.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WITH LESS fatty elements in the daily diet there will be less yowling and sobbing about coarse skins. Fat stimulates the sebaceous glands. They exude more oil than the skin needs for well being, and the pores become expanded.

The coarse skin calls for the free use of soap suds. If you are thus afflicted, have a thorough face washing at bedtime. Work up a rich, foamy lather, friction it in with your finger tips. Some beauticians request patrons of this class of good looks wailers to use shaving soap because of its quick lathering properties. Rinse with warm water, then with cold. Dry with gentle pats of a soft towel. A good tissue toning treatment is, fold the towel around flattened fingers, start patting low on the neck, move upward to the forehead. Good for keeping the neck in form.

Good Astringent

After the drying, apply an astringent. Your druggist can shake one up for you by combining one ounce of witch hazel, one-fourth ounce of boric acid, one-half pint of camphor water. Let it dry on. If you don't want to bother to have this formula filled, you will find many excellent astringents on cosmetic counters.

Whenever you renew make-up, take off the old application. It is poor beauty technique to apply rouge and powder on a skin surface that is not clean.

Keep Skin Clean

Friction with rouge or powder pad forces surface dust into the pores, causing them to become enlarged. One cannot be too fastidious about the matter as, next to health, scrupulous cleanliness is the most powerful factor that creates complexion charm.

The coarse skin is usually an oily one, so apply a liquid tonic before powdering. Cream should be used sparingly.

Tomato and orange juice and lettuce are suggested as musts in the diet by experts who give advice to cash customers in beauty shops.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Servicemen are Trained During Convalescence

Parents who have sons in hospitals must have felt their spirits zoom if they happened to read an article by Albert Q. Maisel, describing some of the Navy's remarkable medical service to bed-ridden veterans.

An army doctor making the rounds in an Air Force hospital, found a young man in a plaster cast, gazing at the ceiling with incredible boredom. For six weeks the young man had been counting nail holes and studying the cracks that came within the range of his upward vision. From this chance meeting there flashed an idea likely to revolutionize the hospitalization of service men. Why not offer something worth while for the bed-ridden to see, as they stare constantly upward. As the result, this happened:

At present, model airplanes hang from hospital ceilings. Patients are taught to differentiate between Allied and enemy planes. As the models are moved about, the boys study them with the same interest kids study planes found under the Christmas tree. The models are made by convalescents as part of their cure. In the work muscles are exercised and strengthened. They give patients an opportunity for self-expression and the return of morale is speeded.

In half-darkened wards, the servicemen practice blinker codes made largely from whatever comes to hand—flashlight batteries and cardboard ice-cream cartons. Ingenuity pushed to the nth degree. It's been found that telegraph operators often lose their speed in hospitals. Now with a telegraph key and a buzzer on bedside tables, the men come out faster senders then ever.

And do the boys take pride in their ability to pick up languages? Rather. "Dear Teacher" is the phonograph and all day long these boys are given a working vocabulary in Spanish, Japanese, Arabic and Italian. From bed to bed they have lots of fun practicing as amateur linguists.

As a certain mother wrote me the other day: "If my sons only survive, they will get in the service many more advantages than I was ever able to give them." Her boys who had been obliged to leave in the grade schools, owing to the death of their father, have now been making excellent progress in engineering.

Hospital Auxiliary Plans Bridge Party

Unanimous decision to bolster the finances of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary through the medium of a mixed bridge party scheduled to be held during the early part of February, featured the regular meeting of the Belleville Women's Hospital Auxiliary held in the Supply Room on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Stobie, president of the organization, was in the chair, and heard reports of the various associate committees.

Interest was centred on the forthcoming bridge party and plans for the function discussed. It was decided to make it an evening affair with proceeds to be devoted to the Auxiliary's Hospital activities.

Miss Ruth Thompson, director of nursing at the hospital, thanked the ladies for Christmas gifts provided by them for indigent patients at the hospital. Miss Thompson gave an outline of the activities in the hospital on Christmas day and assured the Ladies' Auxiliary that the patients had spent a pleasant holiday despite their confinement. Mention was made of a band concert to be held in the near future, sponsored by the Belleville Municipal Band.

TABERNACLE CHURCH EVENING AUXILIARY

The monthly meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of the Tabernacle United Church met at the home of Mrs. Wm. Dougherty, 65 Geddes St. Miss Rachel Fox presided. Miss Fox read an article entitled "We Finish To Begin." The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Dorcas Cowles. Members taking part in the evening program, "The Church in Captivity" were Mrs. J. Ervine, Miss Hazel Denike, Mrs. Wm. Dougherty and Mrs. R. Johnston. The list of new officers for the year was read and Miss Delia Johnson was elected president. A quiz contest, conducted by Mrs. Dougherty was enjoyed by all. A lunch was then served and the meeting closed.

HOLLOWAY ST. W. A.

The regular meeting of Holloway St. Church Women's Association was held in the church parlors on Thursday afternoon. The President, Mrs. G. Dobbs, presiding, opened the meeting. Mrs. Johns' report as corresponding secretary was very fine and showed the sick and shut-ins had all been looked after. Mrs. Oliphant gave a very fine report on receipts and expenditures which showed a busy and active year in that respect. The business of the meeting had to do with the planning of a membership bee to be held at the home of Mrs. R. Andrews and entertaining the service men in the very near future. Mrs. Dilts conducted a short installation service, after which the president said a few words on what she hoped could be accomplished this year in the society.

GILEAD Y. P. U.

An enjoyable social evening was spent at Mr. and Mrs. Bertrand's home on January 16th. Ruth Livingstone opened the meeting with quiet music. Minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. Cecil May. Business discussion opened with the decision to have a skating party. John Huffman invited the Y.P.U. to his home for the next meeting. Carman Huffman and George Clare were asked to prepare a basket of fruit for Earl Ross, who was on the sick list. Beulah May and Olive Ross contributed contests, Douglas Badgley, a reading and Wilma Swan, a piano instrumental. Games were enjoyed by all. A lunch was served by Mrs. Bertrand. Collection was $1.05 and attendance 20.

HALLOWAY W.M.S.

On January 19, Mrs. Ernest Wilson was hostess to the members of the Halloway W.M.S. at a dinner, followed by the regular monthly meeting. The attendance was eight and $4.65 was received, including four membership fees. The new 1944 President, Mrs. E. Wilson, presided over the worship service as outlined in the Missionary Monthly. The theme for the month is "The Bible for All Canada's Children." Scripture readings were given by Mrs. Harry Townsend and Miss Bessie McMullen. Rev. E. M. Cook offered prayer for the youth and children of Canada who are growing up without a knowledge of the Bible. He said that parents may, by teaching and example, give them a knowledge of the Bible and a love for God's Word and may guide them in establishing the habit of daily reading and prayer. In the business, reports on the past year's work were given. Mrs. W. Cadman, community friendship secretary, reported 25 calls made and all were pleased to hear the treasurer, Mrs. Harry Townsend, report that the branch was successful in meeting its allocation. The meeting closed with a hymn and prayer.

IVANHOE W.M.S.

On Tuesday afternoon Jan. 18th, the Ivanhoe W.M.S. held their meeting at the home of Mrs. Sam Twiddy. The meeting opened with the new president Mrs. S. Prest in the chair. She thanked all for giving her the new presidentship and with the co-operation of each and every one, hoped that the work of the year ahead would be a prosperous one. Business was then discussed. Minutes of last meeting were read and approved. The roll call was answered by each member paying fee for the new year showing 13 members present.

Reports were heard from the treasurer, Mission Band, and Baby Band. Mrs. Clifford Mitz moved a vote of thanks and it was seconded by Mrs. Palmer to the past president Mrs. Sam Twiddy for her work in the society and for her wonderful faithfulness throughout the two years she had been president.

The remaining part of the meeting was conducted by Group Leader No. 1 Miss Cora Prest. The theme being "The Bible for all Canada's Children." Call to worship was read by the leader and Scripture reading was read by Miss Doris Twiddy. Mrs. F. Palmer gave a talk urging everyone to take their children to Sunday School so they may learn more about the "Bible" and the stories which it contains. A paper on the study of Paul and a diagram of St. Mark were shown which had been made and studied at C.G.I.T. camp. Mrs. A. Wood led in prayer. Mrs. Palmer continued by suggesting a visitors' day in the Sunday School so as to improve the attendance. She also recommended the teachings of the stories of the Bible by the ministers throughout the public schools.

A chapter from the Study Book was taken by Mrs. MacMillan. After the meeting lunch was served by the hostess and a hearty vote of thanks was extended. Collection amounted to 60c, tea $1.00.

On Sunday, Jan. 9th at Ivanhoe United Church at the beginning of the evening service, Rev. O. E. Wagar conducted the installation of officers of the W.M.S.

Fashion Flashes

TWO BRIMS are better than one seems to be the thought of many designers for double-brim hats appear in all the showings. A smart early Spring model is a double-brim sailor of white waffle pique, the upper brim rippled in heart shape. Both brims are navy grosgrain bound and the grosgrain is used for a spike of bows in front.

EXQUISITE is the word for a blouse of white silk organdie with an appliqued corsage of hand-painted violets just below the shoulder.

TWO FEATURES for which to look in new Spring frocks are packability and washability. These twin are met in a pretty jungle print rayon jersey frock with jewel buttons extending to below the waist on the front-opening section. Shirring gives modified fullness either side of the skirt.

A HOLD OVER from last-year is the printed blouse in both afternoon and after-dark versions, the latter often picked up with sequins. A pretty afternoon blouse is a shirtwaist model with full bishop sleeves. It is of pale gray silk crepe with a fan and mask design in black and red.

JUST ABOUT the time that the wardrobe and the spirits are both thoroughly winter-jaded, along comes the navy blue frock with white lingerie trim. A charming frock, in sheer navy woolen is laced up the bodice with navy velvet lacings to the deep V neckline which has a standing white lingerie ruffle. Ruffle cuffs are also detachable.

NO MATTER what fabric is highlighted for coats or suits, corduroy holds its own. A new topper is of pale yellow wide-wale corduroy made with collarless neckline, one button closing and narrow panels up the front with the rib in reverse. The panels have slit pockets and narrow towards the top where they are finished with pocket tabs.

Satin and Taffeta apron.

By VERA WINSTON

WITH MANY a hostess on K.P. duty these days, it isn't astonishing that the shops have come through with dainty but practical aprons. An apron of the type depicted here is dainty enough to dress up a simple frock and give it a gala air. It is of black satin and has colorful printed taffeta at the neckline and at the one dramatic pocket. It ties snuggly in back.

SINGERS AT BRIDGE STREET UNITED CHURCH

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Stroud of Toronto, lyric tenor and mezzo-soprano respectively, will be at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday evening, January 23rd., and take part in the regular evening service and at the second service will contribute a program of sacred music. Many of these numbers will be old hymns with which the older members of the congregation specially are familiar. The Singing Strouds have been heard in many churches on the North American Continent.

GIVE IT AIR

When using soft coal in the furnace, the side damper in the fire door should always be kept open. The gas given off by this type of coal must be mixed with air to burn properly. When adding fresh coal to the glowing coals, it should be raked to one side and the fresh coal added to the other side. A large area of glowing red coals must be left to ignite the gas from the fresh coal.

DION ESTABLISHED REGULAR GOALIE OF DETROIT WINGS

Since Taking Over Position Wings Have Won Five and Tied One in Six Starts

DETROIT BEATS HAWKS

By the Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings have established a National Hockey League record by using four goalkeepers so far this season, but they're not likely to make any more adjustments in that department unless Conny Dion's current form changes radically.

Since the 25-year-old Cornwall, Ont., product made his first start in the nets against Montreal Canadiens Jan. 13, he has figured in three Detroit victories and one tie. He rose to the heights last night, fending off eight shots in the last two minutes as Red Wings conquered Chicago Black Hawks 4-3 to stretch their unbeaten string to five victories and one tie in their last six starts.

Manager Paul Thompson flung six forwards over the boards in the last 34 seconds in an effort to tie the count, but they couldn't beat Dion, who seems likely to become a permanent successor to Harry Lumley, Jimmy Franks and Normie Smith as Detroit backstop.

Dion, standing five feet five inches and weighing 140 pounds, is the 14th goalie to appear in the N. H. L. this season but Detroit is the first team in the league's history to use four goals in one campaign. Dion was discharged from the Canadian Army because of a leg injury.

Playing before 9,222 home fans, Reds Wings seized command in the second period on goals by Murray Armstrong and Adam Brown after Modere (Mud) Bruneteau had neutralized Cully Dahlstrom's first-period score for Hawks. Clint Smith and Fido Purpur counted for Chicago in the third but Carl Liscombe clinched things for Detroit with a sizzling 20-foot shot at 8:12 of the same period.

The victory moved Wings half a game away from the third-place Boston Bruins and skidded Hawks deeper into fifth place. Chicago has failed to win on Detroit ice in 17 games over a four-year period.

International Flavor Given Kentucky Derby

New York, Jan. 21. (AP)— What with one thing and another—like a Hawaiian haystacker in the entry lists, for instance—it begins to look like My Old Kentucky Home may be popping up with a brand new coat of paint for this year's Derby.

Topped off by the Oahu oat-burner, who's already at Churchill Downs aiming at trading in his grass skirt for that necklace of roses, there are enough new acts in the script for this 70th edition of the big heat so that even an old hand like Colonel Matt Winn may need a formal introduction to it.

The presence of the "hula hoss"—Ruth Collins' Kope Kona—plus the possibility that a Mexican delegation may also take a shot at the jackpot give the big heat its first international touch since Omar Khayyam came over from England to pick up the marbles one world war ago.

With no one outstanding derby candidate from last season to scare others away, even Colonel Winn is looking for a big field, possibly eclipsing the 22-horse rodeo in which Reigh Count "rassled" his way home in 1928.

Rickey Expects Issue Fought Out When Agreement Made

By the Canadian Press

The controversy over postwar baseball was given further impetus in New York yesterday when Branch Rickey, originator of the chain system of clubs, told a press conference the committee of major and minor league interests to study the future of baseball was packed with opponents of the farm-club plan. He expected the issue would be fought out when the agreement between the leagues is re-written this year. The farm scheme had partly resulted from the needs of clubs in the lower classes and partly because of effort by major units.

Rickey said he doubted whether class "AA" and "A-1" baseball would continue in 1944 but he saw no reason why the majors should not operate. In the best position were the class "C" and "D" leagues because their clubs were able to pick up players who are free agents.

Announcement was made last night by President Peter Campbell of the Toronto Baseball Club that the booster club, active with the International League team since 1935, would not function next summer. The head of the booster organization was Roy Worters, former National Hockey League player. No reason was given for dropping the fans' unit.

Grant Warwick of the New York Rangers who fractured his skull in an N. H. L. game at Detroit Dec. 23 left for his Regina home yesterday after it was determined at New York he would not play again this season. Charles Scherza, who was injured against Boston Dec. 12, also returned to Regina for a month's rest.

Betty Hicks of California, who won the U. S. Women's Amateur Golf title in 1941 and later turned pro, proposed the formation of a Women's Professional Golfers Association yesterday at Chicago. Miss Hicks said one purpose of the organization would be to promote golf among women through exhibitions and demonstrations.

The four-team Pacific Coast Senior Hockey League may not be able to weather the manpower shortage, it was reported last night from Vancouver, with New Westminster and Victoria on the brink of folding, leaving Vancouver and Navy left to fight it out. The sailors will not be able to enter the playoffs.

Peter F. Kelley, 73, one of the oldest members of the Baseball Writers Association of America and a sports writer for half a century, died at his Milton, Mass., home yesterday. He started his career with the Boston Journal in 1890 and was with the Boston Globe at the time of his death.

Matchmaker Johnny Attell announced at New Haven, Conn., last night, the cancellation of the scheduled 10-round bout there Jan. 24 between featherweight champion Phil Terranova of New York and Snooks Lacey, a local fighter, because an injury to Terranova's hand.

Toronto, Jan. 21.—(CP)—It's a pretty safe bet that the National Hockey League's "gag law" will go by the boards today. The N.H.L. meeting here is unlikely to take any action on Art Ross' apparent breach of the rule forbidding newspaper criticism of officials by other officials or players. Somehow we can't picture the Boston manager paying the $1,000 fine for his charge that Manager Frank Selke of Toronto instigated the injury to Boston's Bill Cowley. And if Ross gets "home free" on this occasion it will set a precedent for future offenders. N.H.L. governors would risk terrific criticism by press and public if they attempted to fine a less influential official or player after letting Ross go scot free.

Tar Barrel:

The Navy announcement its teams and players will not be permitted to enter interprovincial playoffs though they can go as far as provincial finals will have its effect on the Allan Cup and Memorial Cup, particularly the latter. Navy junior teams were strong contenders in Edmonton and Regina.

The Montreal Junior circuit is currently led by Royals with Canadiens second. Canadiens have eight Navy players and Royals five. If either wins the Quebec title, as seems likely, it will be seriously weakened for the interprovincial competition.

Incidentally:

New York Rangers are angling for return of defenceman Vic Myles who played with them last year and is now starring with Moose Jaw victories. . . Jim Coleman of the Toronto Globe and Mail points out that Bryan Hextall of Rangers has scored 153 goals in only 6 1-2 N.H.L. seasons while Nels Stewart required 15 seasons to count his record of 323 N.H.L. goals. Maybe Hextall wil make the grade. . .A harness-racing revival is planned in southern Saskatchewan with Assiniboia, Bengough, Rouleau, Lafleche and Gravelbourg on a newly-organized circuit. . . Allan Boes, Manitoba's leading amateur golfer and at present the top bowler in the Winnipeg 10-pin league, claims 300-game in bowling requires more skill and more luck than golf's hole-in-one. He has never scored either himself but bowled 10 consecutive strikes the other night and wound up with 289. . .Art Wiebe should be back in Chicago Black Hawks' defence shortly. He has arranged for care of his Vermilion, Alta., bakery while he pursues the puck.

JOHNNY CONICK LEADING SCORER

Toronto, Jan. 21—(CP)— Johnny Conick of Hamilton is still leading scorer of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior "A" series, now reduced to a three-team league, official records showed today. Conick has 20 goals and 18 assists for 38 points, giving him a five-point edgeover Red Reynolds and Blink Billinger of St. Catharines, tied for second with 33. Doug Runions of Hamilton holds fourth spot with 32 points, and Gus Giesebrecht of Kingston and Dillon Brady of Hamilton round out the six leaders with 28 and 7 points, respectively. Toronto R. C. A. F. and Kingston Army have withdrawn from the league because of recent wartime restrictions on service hockey, and Toronto Navy will be barred from interprovincial competition for the same reason.

ST. MIKES PRESS OSHAWA SQUAD

(By The Canadian Press)

Although Hamilton Whizzers scored the only counter of the initial period in the Junior 'A' Ontario Hockey Association engagement last night at Hamilton, St. Michael's College took command in the second stanza to register a 10-4 decision for the students' 12th victory of the season—and climb within four points of the group-leading Oshawa Generals.

Ted Lindsay of the Collegians had a field day in scoring four counters; Bobby Schnurr accounting for three, Frank Dunlap two and Johnny McCormack one. Nick Tomiuk was the big shot for the Whizzers, garnering two of Hamilton's four, Comfort and Whitworth earning one apiece.

St. Mikes ran in six goals in the second period, against three by the home club, and coasted through the final 20 minutes during which the Saints collected four more and allowed a single tally to the Hamiltonians.

CAPITALS WHIP PROVIDENCE REDS

(By The Canadian Press)

Indianapolis Capitals whipped Providence Reds 3-1 in the only American Hockey League fixture last night.

The victory gave Caps a total of 33 points and put them in third place—one point ahead of Buffalo Bisons. Cleveland Barons hold first place in the circuit while Hershey Bears are in second place with 43 points—two behind Barons.

Carl Smith scored the first goal for Caps in the opening period. In the second frame Red Morrison and Bernie Ruelle added two more counters.

Reds' lone goal came at 6.28 in the third period when Harold Cooper sent the puck flying past 17-year-old Harry Lumley in the Caps' net. The defeat was the 21st for Providence in 32 starts this season.

N.H.L. GOVERNORS MEET IN TORONTO

Toronto, Jan. 21. (CP)—The National Hockey League's Board of Governors meets here today to discuss play-off arrangements, "routine business" and a couple of items which may turn out to be anything but routine.

If there are any fireworks, they may be touched off when delegates from the six clubs discuss differences between Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens over goalkeeper Bert Gardiner. The background of this dispute has not been made public, but details may be forthcoming today on terms which sent Gardiner from Montreal to Boston this season.

A League spokesman said another matter for discussion will be a statement attributed to Manager Art Ross of Boston that Toronto Maple Leafs were guilty of a deliberate attack when Boston Centre Bill Cowley was injured in Toronto, January 8. The Daily Star quoted Ross as saying after the game that Frank Selke, Maple Leaf manager, was responsible for the attack allegedly made upon Cowley, who later described the fall which caused a shoulder separation as 'my own fault'.

ELLSWORTH VINES NOW A GOLFER

San Gabriel, Calif., Jan. 21—(AP) It has taken three years of arduous practice, but Henry Ellsworth Vines, once the monarch of the tennis world, has come into his own as a golf professional.

Elly Vines, one of the all-time greats of the net game, has just won his first golf tournament against big-time competition. He captured the San Gabriel Country Club's pro-amateur best ball event yesterday with a course record-equalling 64, seven strokes under par.

Byron Nelson, golfman's man of the year in 1943, finished second with a 67. Nelson was doing everything right, getting long straight drives, being on the green in two, and holing his putts. But Vines was superlative. He had to putt only 26 times on 18 holes and never was over par anywhere.

Vines' performance was on the course where he learned to play the game when he quit tennis for good in 1940 after being the world amateur champion and then king of the net pros for five years. However, he has been the hottest golfer in Southern California all winter. Practically every course he has toured has surrendered to his shot making.

Have you heard of the maiden lady who confounded the impertinent lawyer that dared to cross-examine her in an ungentlemanly manner? The first question he shot at the witness was:

Lawyer—How old are you?

Maiden Lady (promptly)—I don't know.

Lawyer—Don't know? You surely know how old you are.

Maiden Lady (evasively)—I have no birth certificate and have examined no records.

Lawyer—Did your parents never tell you when you were born?

Maiden Lady — Certainly, but that would be heresay evidence and His Honor would not allow such evidence.

No wise man will attempt to measure wits with a woman.

Hockey Round-up

Unless the weatherman decides to provide a little more winter-like weather, activities at the Hume Arena will not only be at a standstill, but in reverse gear. With continued mild weather, Manager Walt Gerow is losing ice in January, instead of manufacturing it. Last night's Mountain View-Mohawks Service League game had to be postponed and there is little chance of the interscholastic pucksters getting under way this afternoon.

However, the district junior O. H. A. moguls are not too dismayed with either the weather nor the fact the Trenton R.C.A.F. team withdrew from the junior O.H.A. picture. "After all we've three well-balanced teams, Trenton, the "Combines" and Belleville. This is proven in the fact they were all even at two wins and a loss each when the Flyers left the hockey ship," pointed out Secretary Wally Berry of the Belleville club at Wednesday night's group meeting.

The new junior hockey set-up should provide district fans with some keen hockey, that is judging from the games already played. For instance, out in Stirling, there is a renewed interest in the game which was proven in the fact they had nearly 800 paid admissions at Monday night's Toronto-Combine game. "It was the largest crowd to jam into the Stirling rink since the days of the old Trent Valley League a decade ago, admitted one Stirling team official. The same holds good in both Belleville and Trenton. Last Friday night saw the largest crowd to witness a junior O.H.A. game in Belleville in so many years even the rink officials couldn't recall last seeing a crowd of over 800 at a junior game in the Hume Arena.

Just at present the Trenton management are scratching their noggins trying to figure out ways and means whereby they can procure the services of a few of those junior "A" stars now stationed at the Trenton Air Station. "It's looking for trouble fellows; after all their service team comes first."

All will be quiet along the hockey front until next Tuesday night when Stan Jackson's Trenton kids invade the Hume Arena for the second time this season.

Eight Experts Right

Eight members of the Baseball Writers' Association of America selected all players of the 1943 major league baseball all-star team to the same positions the consensus placed them, while five others had all of them named, except for the exact spot for the outfielders, making 13 in all. This is the second highest number to agree with the consensus, 17 agreeing in 1939. Eleven were correct in 1930 and 1938. Only one qualified as a perfect picker for the 1942 team and none the year before.

Four of the outfielders—Musial, Nicholson, Wakefield and Keller—were shifted around in all three outfield positions, making it necessary to take the total vote cast for them to determine the selections and to place them in the field where they had the greatest proportionate lead, which caused the Yankee slugger to be eliminated.

Eight experts coming up with the exact positions were: Chip Royal, feature sports editor of the Associated Press, New York; R. J. Rochon, Newspaper Enterprise Association, New York; Hy Turkin, New York Daily News; Hal Totten, Chicago Daily News; John Brooks, Boston Record; Donald H. Drees, St. Louis Star-Times; John N. Wheeler, Bell Syndicate and John P. Carmichael, Chicago Daily News. Carmichael, however, qualified his choices by placing both Appling and Marion at short, declaring it was impossible to leave either the White Sox or the Cardinal off.

The five others, naming the 11 correctly, but having some of the outfielders in different posts, were: Burt Whitman, Boston Herald; Howell Stevens, Boston Post; Don Basenfelder, Philadelphia Record; Will Wedge, New York Sun and Dan Parker, New York Mirror.

This and That

When you speak of heavy eaters in sport, Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis ranks with the best of them. After Joe disposed of Paulino Uzcudun, he ate a turkey all by himself. . . .When Bert Gardiner, Boston goalie, became ill early this season prior to a game with Toronto Leafs in Toronto, the Rev. George Abbott volunteered to tend the cage for the Hub sextet and was accepted. After the contest, Art Ross, manager of the Bruins, tried to compensate Rev. Abbott, who refused, saying, "That was my good deed for the day." Ross then asked him if there wasn't something his church needed. "That's something else," replied the clerical volunteer, whereupon Ross promptly donated $150 to the pastor's church. . . . The Chicago Hawks have never finished first in the National Hockey League in 17 years of play, but they won the Stanley Cup in 1937-38. . . . Since selling his farm in Brookfield, Conn., Gene Sarazen, the veteran golfing master, spends more time in Detroit than in any other city. The reason, he owns a part interest in a machine tool plant in the Motor City.

LESSON NO. 2[illegible]

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

I once knew a player in Butte whose bidding was not so astutte He stuck to the craze of auction bridge days, bidding no-trump when he had a suitte.

Here is the south hand in a new deal:

♠A K 6
♥Q 8 7 3
♦K 6 3
♣A K 6

Assume you are the dealer with that hand. You are the first to say. You must either pass or start with an opening bid. How do you know? And if so, in what?

To start with an opening bid of one in a suit, you need five suit tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, and a biddable suit. Let's see if you have them.

To count suit tricks, total all your aces, kings, queens, short cards at one apiece. You have six aces, kings, queens, no short cards So, you have a total of six tricks: one more than you need.

High cards are aces, kings, queens, You have six of them; two high cards more than you need. Sure tricks are A K, two; ace, one; K Q, one. You have four sure tricks; two more than you need.

A suit with only four cards needs at least two faces to be biddable. You have no biddable suit. So, in spite of having more than you need in other items, you have not a true opening of one in a suit.

If you have no bid in a suit, the only other bid you could have, if any, would be in no suit. That means no-trump. So, with no opening bid in a suit, look for an opening bid in no-trump.

To start an opening bid of one no-trump, you need at least five high cards with two sure tricks; and no biddable suit. You know you have all the needs for that. Open with one no-trump.

Don't give me an argument about liking strong no-trumpers; or weak no-trumpers; or 4-3-3-3-no-trumpers. Those who have elected themselves our greatest experts do not agree with each other.

There is only one true meaning to an opening bid of one no-trump It says: "Partner, I have all the needs for an opening bid of one. But I have no biddable suit for trump."

No-trump means "not any trump." You can't get around that, brother.

AT THE BELLE

"Naughty Marietta"

Choice of "Naughty Marietta" Victor Herbert's classic operetta, as the vehicle for filming the screen's greatest musical adventure story brought to picture audiences one of the greatest musical works ever composed.

Produced on a spectacular scale by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, with Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, "Naughty Marietta" now closing at the Belle Theatre, was filmed as a thundering drama of the romantic Creole days of St. Louis, a vehicle that gives to the famous Victor Herbert music the importance it merits.

One of Five Greatest.

"Naughty Marietta" is acknowledged one of the five greatest comic operas ever composed in America. It was first produced in the New York Theatre, November 7, 1910, by Oscar Hammerstein, with Emma Trentini, from grand opera, and Orville Harrold. Herbert's music had a libretto by Rida Johnson Young. It took the country by storm. "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life", and "I'm Falling in Love With Someone", two of its greatest songs, have come down through the years to delight music lovers.

All-Star Musical

Warner Bros'. "Thank Your Lucky Stars", a musical show that sparkles with names, will have its premiere at the Belle Theatre this weekend. Heading the all-star cast are Humphrey Bogart, Eddie Cantor, Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland, Errol Flynn, John Garfield, Joan Leslie, Ida Lupino, Dennis Morgan, Ann Sheridan, Dinah Shore and Alexis Smith. Others who lend their names and talent to this huge production are George Tobias, Jack Carson, Alan Hale, Edward Everett Horton, S. Z. Sakall, Hattie McDaniel and Spike Jones and his City Slickers.

Besides its stars and featured players, "Thank Your Lucky Stars" has a huge roster of dancing and singing beauties.

"Dude Ranch Buckaroo" is the film produced in technicolor, Canadian Paramount News will be exhibited on the same program. Chapter Eleven of "Batman" serial will be exhibited, Saturday matinee.

Continuous shows will be presented on Saturday.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Coney Island"
(In Technicolor)

Hurry . . . hurry . . . hurry . . . to the Capitol Theatre, where one of the top musicals of all time opened last night! We're talking about 20th Century-Fox's "Coney Island," the Technicolor extravaganza which stars Betty Grable, George Montgomery and Cesar Romero.

There is no rationing of entertainment in this superlative picture. It is most lavish in its production numbers; the songs, both new and old, are easily the best in a long, long time; the story is fresh and imaginative, capturing all the hurly-burly drama and dancing delirium of a riotous age of ragtime and romance.

Among the new tunes with which "Coney Island" is liberally sprinkled are "Take It From There." Beautiful Coney Island," "Miss Lulu From Louisville" and "There's Danger in a Dance," all by Leo Robin and Ralph Rainger. The old favorites include "Put Your Arms Around Me Honey," "Who Threw the Overalls in Mistress Murphy's Chowder," "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling", "Darktown Strutters Ball", "In My Harem" and "Cuddle Up a Little Closer".

"VENGEANCE OF THE WEST"

If you like fast-moving, quick-shooting hard-riding film fare, you won't want to miss Columbia's "Vengeance of the West", which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre. The added hit co-stars those western favorites, Bill Elliott and Tex Ritter. The new thriller packs more adventure into its sixty minutes than Superman experiences in an entire day.

A color cartoon and the serial "Secret Service In Darkest Africa" complete this grand double feature program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Heat's On"

You can take off your ear muffs and put away those long, itchy red flannels when you go to see Mae West, Victor Moore and William Gaxton playing this weekend at the McCarthy Theatre in Columbia's "The Heat's On." Whether you use Fahrenheit or Centigrade, the entertainment thermometer's about to burst out the top. There's no chill of winter in this show. Even the gales of laughter from the audience are sizzling hot. It's crammed with what a musical extravaganza takes.

On the level of the rising thermometer, there are the stars, Mae West returning to the screen in a new characteriastion which will add new fans to the legion of her old; Victor Moore, who brings his lovable and mirthless antics to a part which generates guffaws; and William Gaxton who has never had a better opportunity to delight an audience. Among the featured players you'll see and hear are: Xavier Cugat, "The King of Rhumba;" Hazel Scott, sepian songstress of the Broadway hot spots; Leonard Sues, the high trump of trumpeters; lovely warbling Mary Roche, Lester Allen, Alan Dinehart and many others besides a chorus of beauties who sizzle the celluloid.

Adding another notch to the thermometer's upward climb is the music. There are six song hits: "I'm Just a Stranger in Town," sung as only La West can do it; "There Goes That Guitar," sung by Mary Roche to the matchless music of Cugat and his orchestra; and Hazel Scott, at her jiving piano, playing "The White Keys and the Black Keys."

The story alone, would crack any ordinary thermometer. It tells of the battle of wits between Mae West, as a Broadway musical star, and William Gaxton "wonder boy" producer, in the process of finding a new show and then getting it on the boards. In between the two is Victor Moore, in the role of a Broadway moral reformer, their foil and backer of the new show. The twist and turns of plot as these three struggle to outwit each other offer many hilarous moments of mirth. The scene between Mae and Victor in which she tries to vamp him is alone worth the price of admission.

"Undercover Man"

Back on the screen in a blaze of adventure, Hopalong Cassidy rides again in "Undercover Man" the roaring thrill film also opening this weekend, with two-fisted Bill Boyd in his accustomed role as the cowboy sleuth.

In this fast-moving film "Hoppy" and his sidekicks, Andy "California" Clyde and Jay "Breezy" Kirby, do their gun twirling and hard riding along the Mexican border where a gang of outlaws has been raiding gold mines, rustling cattle, burning ranchos and, in general, causing as much trouble as a minor war. Of course, the Mexican rancheros blame the American ranchers and, in turn, the ranchers blame the rancheros.

Art Duncan Heads Bata Puck Loop

Frankford Jan. 21 (Special)—The opening games of the Batawa Shop Hockey League were played in the Frankford rink on Wednesday evening. This league with Mr. Arthur Duncan at its head as president consists of four teams the Vickers, the Giro Wolves, the Office Panthers and the Shoe Kings. These teams are directed respectively by Messrs. Johnny Aquino, Bill Easton, Jimmy Day and Frank Nutusil. They are competing for the Bata trophy, an impressive bronze trophy donated by the Bata Shoe Co. All of the league's games will be played in the Frankford rink.

In these opening games the Vickers scored a win of 11-6 over the Giros and in the 2nd game the Shoe Kings scored 3 goals against the 2 goals of the Office Panthers.

A good crowd was in attendance for the games on Wednesday night. This league in addition to the Trent Valley Industrial League provides the hockey for the Frankford and Batawa district fans and interest is particularly keen. There are those who expect that some good hockey material will be discovered before the finals are reached.

DISCOVERS STICK OF DYNAMITE WHILE PUTTING COAL INTO FURNACE

Insurance Men Hear Address By Head of O.S.D.

The local branch of the Life Underwriters' Association of Canada held their regular monthly meeting at the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday noon and were, upon this occasion, the guests of the Prudential Life Insurance Co., and were treated to an interesting talk by Mr. W. J. Morrison, superintendent of the Ontario School for the Deaf. Mr. Morrison gave a short history of the teaching technique used in instructing deaf and dumb mutes to speak. He said that the system originated in Europe. Several persons in America interested through family disabilities of this nature, investigated this oral method of teaching and instituted it into the United States in 1815 but it was not until approximately 1870 that the method was universally accepted.

Mr. Morrison described the manner in which children afflicted are taught. He pointed out the progress made during the past thirty or forty years and gave a great amount of credit to Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone, who became interested in this work, and through his association met the girl he married, Mabel Hubbard, who was deaf. He said that there had been approximately 3,300 deaf mutes pass through the Ontario School for the Deaf since its founding in 1870. An interesting fact disclosed by Mr. Morrison was that there have been no deaf teachers in the Belleville School since 1907, and that there were absolutely no deaf teachers employed in England where the scientific teaching by the oral method is in wide use.

Appreciation of the members was expressed by Mr. Ralph Morden, president of the Association in Belleville. A number of business matters were brought up for discussion following the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting by Secretary A. Burke, and the question of the Association holding a Ladies' Night was brought up by Mr. Gib. Stackhouse, who asked that a date be decided upon. It was announced that Mr. Ben Ogilvie would represent the Association in Belleville at the Dominion Convention of the Canadian Life Underwriters' Association of Canada which is to be held in Toronto, at the Royal York Hotel next week.

SABOTEURS WRECK TRAIN

New York, Jan. 21. (AP)— In the second fatal train wreck in two days by anti-Nazi French saboteurs six persons were killed and 20 injured yesterday in the derailment of a passenger train near Paris, the Vichy radio said last night.

PRECAUTIONS IN HOME

There are so many "unsafe" things around a home. If a mother will think of such things, serious injury is spared the baby at its investigating age. You can teach the older children to co-operate with you in keeping sharp objects, such as pencils, scissors and knives from the baby's grasp. Medicines and matches may be kept on a high shelf and while cooking, the handles of pans should not be left in such a position that baby can grab at them and spill the hot liquid. Eternal watchfulness is the price of safety!

To help keep pies from having a soggy undercrust, place them on a wire rack as soon as they are taken from the oven. Leave them there until they are cool.

MYSTERY PARCEL JUST SALVAGE

Los Angeles, Jan. 21—(AP)—The suspicious-looking package came in the mail to the Mayor's office and Mrs. Albine Norton, secretary, called for help. President Van M. Griffith of the Police Commission carefully cut a hole in the side of the package. Out popped a batch of old rubber bands, someone's contribution to the salvage drive.

DOG COMES HOME BY BOAT

Ottawa, Jan. 21—(CP)—Peter, a tousle-haired cocker Spaniel, completed a trip from overseas yesterday to rejoin his master, air vice-Marshal Harold Edwards, former air officer commanding R. C. A. F. units overseas, who returned from Britain a few weeks ago by plane. The dog wasn't allowed to make the trip. So Peter stayed behind and came home by ship with a group of R. C. A. F. repatriates.

Golden Lady

By Clarence Budington Kelland

CHAPTER 8

"Not if you got the—" Darnley stopped abruptly. She was about to say, "Not if you got the Golden Blend business", but even Jerry must not hear about that. "Not," she amended, "if you got some advertiser to give you lots of work". She stopped and frowned. "It seems to me", she said, "like a funny thing to steal, and a funny time to steal it".

"Eh? What do you mean?"

"Do you remember the first time I posed for you in the railroad station? I've been thinking a lot about that".

"Yes".

"Somebody didn't wish you any good luck that day. Somebody wanted you to lose that piece of work. If someone would go to the trouble of hiring a model to pretend she sprained her ankle, then someone might go to the trouble of making it look as if a sable coat wsa stolen from your studio".

Farrish looked up at her, and wrinkles appeared at the corners of his eyes as Darnley went on:

"A sable coat is a funny thing to steal. The thief couldn't wear it".

"They could sell it", said Farrish.

"I'll bet a forty-thousand-dollar sable coat would be as hard to sell as a forty-thousand-dollar diamond", asid Darnley. "Everybody in the business would recognize it. Fur people know every sable coat in the country and just who owns it".

"I can't figure how the thief got it out of here", Farrish said. He sat back in his chair and looked at Darnley as if he were seeing her for the first time. "Hey," he exclaimed, "it looks to me like you are getting yourself mixed up in my business! What's the idea of socking cops?"

He seemed for the moment to have forgotten his own predicament in a suddenly awakened interest in Darnley's activities. "Are you making a play for me?"

"I'm making a play for myself", Darnley said, "and if you use your common sense you would realize that no girl who wants to eat three times a day would go for a man who runs his business the way you do".

"You must have read that book", Farrish yawned. "The one about how to make enemies".

"If", said Darnley, "you want to know why I'm meddling in your affairs I'll be tickled to death to tell you".

"Pray do", urged Farrish.

"Because", said Darnley, "I'm going places—up. And you're the most available rung of the ladder".

"So you're going to make use of me, are you?"

"I'm going," she declared, "to make use of everything helpful . . I'm going to start out by getting to be the Golden Blend Girl. The only way I can see to get it is to use you. And the only way you can be useful to me is for you to make a success of this business."

"So you're going to run it for me?" asked Farrish.

"I wish I could—for six months," said Darnley.

"Modest little thing—isn't she?" he asked of Jerry. "And what would you do with this business?"

"In the first place," Darnley said, "I'd get my head out of my hands and quit being sorry for myself. Grandpa Carfax says the only way you can tell if a pugilist is a good fighter is to see what he does when he gets knocked flat. Grandpa says there aren't more than three or four times in a man's life when he really needs ability and back-bone—and those times are in the pinches. He says the ordinary man may never get more than one chance to show his stuff, and that out of fifty years he may only really live for an hour. All the rest of the time he is getting ready for that hour."

"Grandpa Carfax," observed Farrish, "must be quite opinionated."

She paid no attention to his remarks. "And you," she told him, "seem to have come up against that hour."

"And what should I do? Unsteal that sable coat?"

"She means," said Jerry, "you ought to rise superior to sable coats."

"Sure. Just pretend," sneered Farrish, "it never happened."

"Why not?" asked Darnley. "You won't be any worse off."

"Yeah? And when they come down on me for forty thousand smackers?"

"Stall," said Jerry Shafto, "and hope for the breaks."

"If," suggested Darnley, "you can put off a piece of bad luck till tomorrow, it may never happen."

Upon this remark Lieutenant Hixon opened the door without rapping. He addressed himself gruffly and directly to Darnley.

"You're the only one around this joint," growled the detective to Darnley, "that clicks above the ears."

Then his granite face twitched. "Now, you, Miss Carfax." He rubbed his smitten cheek ruminatively. "Have you any ideas?"

"Yes," she answered.

"Open up."

"I don't believe," she said, "that the person who stole that coat wanted fur."

The detective's eyes narrowed and he sat down in a chair heavily. "What did he want—excitement?"

"He wanted," said Darnley, "to ruin Mr. Farrish. If I were a detective I'd find out what person wants Mr. Farrish put out of business, and why."

"Go ahead."

"I'd find out," continued Darnley, "what there is about this studio and its equipment that some man wants to get hold of, and why he wants it. I'd find out if anybody has been playing dirty tricks on Mr. Farrish, and then I'd comb the people who work here to see if there's any connection between that enemy and any employee who could have gotten his hands on that sable coat. You know no outsider sneaked in and took it."

"So?"

"I'd say that was impossible. And I'd say that coat wasn't taken outside this studio, or at any rate this building. Not right away. It was hidden some place."

"But," protested Hixon, "how would anybody know that coat was going to be here this afternoon so he could plan to steal it?"

"He wouldn't have to know," Darnley said, "if he had a man here whose job was to act when the chance came."

Hixon grunted. "You heard, Farrish. Now, what about that angle?"

"I know of no reason why anyone wants to put me on the skids."

"I've checked you girls," said Hixon. "You didn't carry anything out of here, and there's no sable coat in your flat."

"I thought the Constitution said you have to have warrants to search anyone's house," Jerry remarked.

"When we're in a hurry," said Hixon, "we try to get along as best we can."

"If that's all," remarked Darnley, "I want some sleep."

"That's all," said Hixon, "for now."

Darnley's telephone awakened her and Wolfgang's voice spoke to her over the wire: "Miss Carfax it iss? You should be in Lacey Gorse's studio ten o'clock. With dinner dress color black if you got it. Otherwise dark."

"Lacey Gorse! Did he say he wanted me?"

"Otherwise I don't send," said Wolfgang.

"I'll be there," Darnley told him, and, replacing the receiver, she turned to Jerry Shafto, who was blinking sleepily at her from the other bed. "Lacey Gorse wants me this morning," she said.

"How's your resistance before noon, honey?"

"High," said Darnley, and glanced at the clock. It was nine. Soon thereafter, she called out, "I'm on my way."

In twenty minutes she opened the door of Gorse's studio and stepped into a reception-room so utterly different from the workman-like confusion of Farrish's place that she paused on the threshold to stare. It had an expensive look. The furniture was ultra-modern; the lights were calculated to the last shadow.

On the walls were enlargements of photographs of nude girls which had been skillfully distorted on the negative so that they seemed not to be photographs of human beings but of strange, decadent creatures.

"I'm from Wolfgang's," she told the receptionist.

"Right through there. He's ready," the girl directed.

She opened the door into the studio itself.

Gorse turned his head as she entered. "Good morning, Miss Carfax," he said.

"Good morning."

He smiled. "You and I," he told her, "seem to have gotten off on the wrong foot."

"Does it matter?" she asked. "I don't have to like you to photograph well."

"I dislike to be disliked," he said. "However, I'll change my formula. As an artist, may I say that you are extraordinarily beautiful? But you have something else—something elusive—something that makes for personality. I wonder if it will photograph."

"I hope so," she said, "if it will give me more work."

"It will," he said, "give you more than work. Do you know," he asked, "why one beautiful girl with a splendid voice can be a flat failure on the stage, when another with less beauty and almost no voice at all can be a tremendous success?"

"I never thought about it."

"It's color—an undefinable thing. It's personality. It's the unteachable thing of being able to put it over. You have that."

"Splendid," said Darnley. "Now, suppose we go to work. Where do I dress?"

"You have," he said, and his eyes were calculating, "what it takes to make a man go off the deep end."

"And I have what goes with it," she said.

"What goes with it?"

"The judgment to select the man I want to take the dive," she said.

The corner of his sardonic mouth twitched. "You dress in there," he said, pointing.

Darnley went into the immaculate little dressing room and made ready. When she emerged she found Gorse quite another person than the man who had striven to ingratiate himself with her upon her arrival. He was impersonal, distrait. His eyes seemed almost blank as they studied her, and his voice was brisk, and business-like. He talked to himself rather than to her.

"I paint with lights," he said, and she had sufficient wisdom to recognize that, whatever else might be said about Lacey Gorse, he was a sincere artist.

He tilted her chin the merest fraction of an inch with his finger. "Hold that. There. The man you adore is coming up that walk yonder. You're on fire to feel his kiss. Put something into it! Live! Feel! Yearn!"

His voice, something in it, stirred her, worked upon her, compelled her emotions to do his bidding. "Now!" he said sharply.

He sank into a chair with a sigh and covered his face for a moment.

"If I caught that expression!" exclaimed Gorse. "If I caught it! Then we've got something. Rest!"

Darnley relaxed and walked to a chair.

"No more till after lunch," said Gorse. "What time is it?"

"Nearly one," answered a cameraman.

"See if Henry Garden is here yet." He turned to Darnley. "Garden is going to lunch with us. See if cocktails are ready," he directed. He got to his feet as Garden came into the studio and shook hands. "Cocktails in the dining room," he said as Garden walked past him to Darnley and smiled down at her.

"You had a large day yesterday, Miss Carfax," he said.

"It bulged," agreed Darnley.

"But it's an ill wind," he said, "that doesn't blow somebody some swell publicity." He shook a newspaper at her. "Mr. Manhattan is always entertaining."

"About me?" asked Darnley.

"You're on the highroad to fame or something," said Garden.

"Let me see." She took the paper from him and found it open to De Groot's column. In the first paragraph was her name. She read it with conflicting emotions:

"The newest Beautiful to gladden our jaded eyes has been at it again. Darnley Carfax, like Dolly Varden, dainty as a summer garden, buffets cop—and a hard-boiled one. In the midst of turmoil resulting from the disappearance of a $40,000 Russian sable coat from the studio of Clyde Farrish, Miss Carfax added to the seasonal joy by slapping down New York's toughest copper, Lieut. Hixon. It comes to our ears that Hixon, during his questioning of Miss Carfax, alluded to her beloved profession in terms offensive and crude. Whereupon the little Carfax, outraged, demonstrated that beauty has a punch. In the daintiest and most workmanlike manner she swatted Hixon till his ears rang—and made him like it. We learn on unimpeachable authority that Hixon succumbed and purred and ate from the little lady's hand. Things happen in Darnley's vicinity and, when they do, she adds drama and charm."

There was more of it, ironic, gay but all complimentary to Darnley.

"Well?" asked Garden amusedly.

"However did Mr. De Groot find it out?" she asked.

"Not from you, of course," Garden said with lifted brows. "You have no idea of the value of advertising."

"It was not from me," Darnley declared sharply.

"It'll get you," said Garden, "a Madison Square contract—and invitations to dinner. What could be more novel than a beautiful copper slapper."

"And what's this about Farrish?" asked Gorse, but even as he asked the question Darnley had a feeling that it was a spurious display of ignorance.

"It seems," explained Garden, "that someone stole a valuable fur from his premises."

"I wonder," said Gorse," "if I'm sorry. Well, I'll try to forget all that while we're having lunch." He led the way to an exquisite little dining room where luncheon was served.

"Just what happened at Farrish's?" asked Gorse, when coffee was served.

"Confusion," answered Darnley.

"No trace of the coat?"

"I deduced from the police," said Darnley, "that they were at what is known as a loss."

"It won't do Farrish a lot of good," said Gorse, "to have advertisers get the idea that he can't look after what they send him to photograph."

"Even banks are robbed," countered Darnley and Garden chose to change the subject with "Have you been kept busy, Miss Carfax?"

"Quite."

"But you wouldn't mind being busier?"

"Who would?"

"I've heard," said Garden, "that some of the more socially presentable models pick up rather a pleasant sum of money on the side."

"You interest me," said Darnley.

"I'm not talking about apartments on Park Avenue, or allowances or trust funds. What I refer to is quite au fait, as we Eskimos call it. Involving nothing except a slight amount of boredom."

"Even in the town where I was born," said Darnley, "people would guess you are leading up to something. Would it be what my Grandpa Carfax calls skulduggery?"

"No, indeed. I mean that some of the more beautiful and entertaining models are very frequently paid respectable sums for simply being present at little dinners and exerting their charm."

"Dinner included?" asked Darnley.

"Frequently some man in town wishes to entertain a few out-of-town friends. He likes to do it lavishly and make a show of knowing some lovely young women. He throws a dinner party—good taste and all that—and is glad to pay the right sort of young women for giving up their evening. I know a man who paid four girls a hundred dollars apiece the other night."

"Just to come and eat and chatter?" asked Darnley.

"That," said Garden, "and no more." He raised his rather fine eyebrows. "You might care to add to your income that way? You were at Chico Sanson's with me the other night."

"Yes."

"Not bad to look at; not hard to talk to?"

"No."

"It wouldn't be torture to dine with him?"

"Do you mean he is willing to pay me a hundred dollars for eating dinner with him?" Darnley asked.

"No," said Garden, leaning across the table. "But I am. One hundred dollars for every engagement of any kind that you make and keep with Sanson."

"But suppose he doesn't want to invite me places?"

"He will invite you once. It should be simple for you to see to it he invites you again."

"And where," asked Darnley, "do you come in? What makes it worth such excellent wages to you?"

"I'm always thinking of others," said Garden. "I only want him to have a good time. Does the idea appeal to you?"

Darnley stared at the tablecloth. She was remembering those fragments of conversation she had heard at Sanson's. The one about the advertising account of the Intercontinental Tobacco Corporation, and the other one that hinted at possibilities that Sanson could be placed on a spot. It involved the Golden Blend and appertained to the Golden Blend Girl. This offer of Garden's was a piece with those bits of talk.

Consequently it touched Farrish and the Britton Agency and her own career. There would be skulduggery. And she, Darnley Carfax, would be on the inside, where she could watch and learn what was afoot and, possibly, use that information for her own advantage, and for Farrish's. She smiled a bit thinly at Garden. The proposition," she said, "sounds attractive."

"You'll get to like him," Gorse assured her.

"Not too much, I hope," said Darnley. "And now, how's for getting back to work?"

"Work's done for the day."

Darnley rose and walked to the door. On the threshold she paused and smiled graciously; then left.

Garden nodded his head with satisfaction. "We couldn't have picked a better gal," he said to Gorse. "She's fascinating and —wise."

• •

Though her days were occupied and her nights spent in such pleasures as her native village never afforded, Darnley found time once each week to write Grandpa Carfax at length. She took him into her confidence completely. She told him about the sable coat, about Farrish and the Golden Blend girl. She gave him the particulars of her agreement to receive a hundred dollars for each date she made and kept with Chico Sanson and her reasons for doing so. Possibly she hoped that the old gentleman would reach down into his store of wisdom and advise her. But he did not do so.

"You grabbed the oars," he once wrote; "now let's see you row the boat."

Members of County Council, Ex-Wardens and Officials Entertained at County Home

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sandercock, Superintendents of Home, Are Hosts

TOASTS PROPOSED

Members of Hastings County Council, together with ex-wardens and other county officials and friends spent an enjoyable social evening at the Hastings County Home Thursday evening, the guests of the superintendent and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sandercock. A bountiful chicken dinner was served, with toasts to the county and to the hosts being heard during the short following program.

In the presence of approximately fifty guests, Ex-Warden Col. Roscoe Vanderwater proposed the toast to the County of Hastings, paying tribute to the young men from the county who had answered their country's call. Hastings and Prince Edward, he said, were keeping up the only rural unit in the 1st Canadian Division.

Col. Vanderwater admitted the actuality of the Italian campaign having slowed up and reiterated the statement of a high army officer that it was due to the good fight the Germans were putting up. It all went to show that the fighting was still not over, he said. Tribute was paid to the agricultural effort of the residents of the county but the speaker asked if they were prepared for the conclusion of hostilities and for the time of rehabilitating soldiers into civilian life.

"Canada," he said, "was one of the few bright spots in the world today and for its future asserted there were only two alternatives—either to adopt a program of restricted immigration or to face invasion in some future years. The Dominion of Canada was meant for a far greater population than a mere 12,000,000 persons."

Warden Responds

Warden Thomas Fleming in response to the toast expressed his pleasure for the honor of responding to a toast to the banner county of the province. It leads in cheese production and has a greater enlistment ratio than any other rural area in the Dominion. Hastings in all had made a wonderful contribution to the war effort.

Tribute Paid to Hosts

Roscoe Robson, member of the Legislative Assembly for Hastings East, spoke briefly to the guests paying tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Sandercock indicating that in making the institution truly a "home" for the aged people they had really a "tough job." He congratulated Warden Fleming on his appointment to his position and indicated that although the county is now free of debt councillors could not "lay down on the job." He foresaw a great future for the county and expressed a word of advice to the newcomers in council telling them that they are now for the county and not expressly for their respective townships.

The toast to the hosts of the evening was proposed by Ex-Warden Charles Rush who expressed the council's thanks for the hospitality and indicated that in their position as superintendents of the house of refuge they were rendering a real service to the county Mr. and Mrs. Sandercock both responded graciously.

Dr. Van Blakslee house of refuge physician stated the county should be proud of the county home and of the way in which its inmates are cared for. Every sympathy to the inmates was shown by the management, he stated.

Reviews Work of Anglers' Club

Speaking as a member of the Belleville Anglers' Club Dr. Blakslee reviewed the work of the club in restocking lakes and streams in the Belleville district with fish and prophesied that as a result the county would see great benefits in future tourist trade. Further work to build up the county as a tourist haven would prove great dividends and be a wise move for the county council, he stated.

Entertainment during the program was afforded by Mr. Fred Wooton, talented local elocutionist who rendered "The Call of the Yukon" the American prohibition number "Bottles" and a humorous Negro number. Hearty applause was heard following each of Mr. Wooton's numbers, evincing the appreciation of his listeners.

W. C. Tanner, chairman of the house of refuge committee during 1943, acted as chairman for the evening, his genial personality presenting an infectious atmosphere to the enjoyable occasion

Cancel Seed Fair Owing to Short Grain Crop

Quinte Seed Growers' Association will this season purchase a carload of registered Ajax Oats from Western Canada in lieu of their cancelling the regular seed fair this year, it was indicated at county council Thursday afternoon, when members were addressed by H. Lynn Fair, agricultural representative. Mr. Fair appeared before council asking for the regular grant of $50 which ordinarily is given to help sponsor the seed fair.

Mr. Fair indicated the seed fair had been cancelled owing to the short grain crop in the district last summer and also because the grain threshed was generally of a poor quality. Instead of holding a fair at which exhibits would thus naturally be of a lower quality it had been decided to bring in a carload of the best seed available.

"We felt that rather than hold a fair it would be much more profitable to bring into the district a carload of registered seed," he said. "We intend to use grants ordinarily received to defray the expense of bringing the car from the West." The seed would then be sold to district farmers, he intimated.

Outlining proposed activities of the Seed Growers' Association for the coming season Mr. Fair indicated it was planned to have the regular junior seed judging competition this year in Belleville. The date was set for March 11th. The matter of the grant asked was referred to the committee of the whole on ways and means.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY RELIEVED.

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J S McKeown or any I.D.A. or other drug store, and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results your druggist will gladly return your money.

453,000 Cases Tomatoes Packed In Prince Edward

32 Per Cent of the Total Pack of Canada Produced in This County

5,000 ACRES PLANTED

Picton, Jan. 21—Growers of canning crops in Prince Edward County last year received $754,000.00 for produce last year, figures released here yesterday revealed. This produce resulted in 1,401,000 cases of goods being packed.

Prince Edward produced 453,000 cases of tomatoes which is 32 percent of the total tomato pack in Canada. There were also 556,000 cases of tomato juice, representing 29 percent of the Canadian pack.

Other products packed were, tomato paste and puree, 25,000 cases; peas, 200,000 cases; corn, 132,000 cases; pumpkin, 100,000 cases, which is 39 percent of the Canadian pack; fruits and apples, 25,000 cases.

For tomatoes, the farmers received $514,000.00 with peas bringing the next largest amount $110,000

There were 5,000 acres of tomatoes planted, a decrease of 1,000 acres compared to the previous year. This was largely due to wet weather in the spring and lack of help on farms. Other acreages were, peas 2500, corn 3000 and pumpkin 300. There was a bumper crop of pumpkins and for the first time since 1934 apples were canned. The berry crop has shown a decrease, owing to previous low prices which resulted in farmers abandoning this line.

With higher wages paid in factories, labor received $600,000., or $100,000 more than in the previous year. Only with the help of school pupils and housewives was it possible to handle the packs Even then a shortage of help resulted in many tomatoes being made into juice instead of being canned. There were forty plants in operation in Prince Edward.

An official of the Canners' Association, stated Canadian production of canned goods last year would amount to 6,500,000 cases compared to 10,200,000 cases in the previous Lambs Killed by Wolves.

Two lambs were killed and a third injured on the farm of W. Walmsley, near Milford, this week. Wolves are blamed for the loss. Lack of snow has held up the wolf hunt which Athol and South Marysburgh townships have planned.

Legion Auxiliary Officers.

At the annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Post 78, Canadian Legion, Mrs. James Hedges was re-elected president. Other officers are, Vice Presidents, Mrs. H. Rawlins, Mrs. J. Collier; Secretary, Mrs. R. Jones; Treasurer, Mrs. Dorothy Sayers; Executives—Mrs. T. Richardson, Mrs. L. Forbes; Standard Bearer, Mrs. L. Young; Pianist, Mrs. Morley Ackerman; Sick Committee, Mrs. G. Wilkinson, Mrs. J. Lawson, Mrs. L. Forbes.

Memorial Service.

A service in memory of Sgt. Charles Read, killed in action in Italy, is being held in Northport United Church, Sunday afternoon. Rev. H. G. Steers will officiate. Members of the 2nd Battalion of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will attend along with veterans of the last war and representatives of the Royal Air Force in which Sgt. Read served during the last war.

$96,000 For Roads.

At Prince Edawrd County Council yesterday, road expenditure estimates for 1944 were presented. These total $96,000. Estimates include cost of 25 miles of surface treatment of permanent roads.

Council granted $300 to the Public Health Services Association, with which to continue medical examination of Collegiate students. Mrs. F. J. Webster and Ralph Warren told of the work done last year.

Grants included $100 to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind and $250 to the Prince Edward Federation of Agriculture.

Delegates named to the Ontario Good Roads convention were Warden E. Onderdonk, Reeves E. Brummell, R. Ketcheson, H. Cleave and Engineer J. B. Dunkley.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 21. (CP) —Prices were unchanged at Bacon-Hog Markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight: Barrie, London, Stratford $17 delivered, Hamilton $17.05 delivered, Hull $16.95 delivered, Brantford $16.50 plus transportation, Chatham $16.40 plus transportation.

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 21 —(AP)—Further strength in Rails and Specialties was the principal bulwark of today's stock market. Gains of fractions to a point—there were isolated wider movers—were well distributed near the fourth hour. Losers, however, were plentiful.

Canadian issues were mostly firm. Distillers-Seagrams was up ½, Dome Mines and McIntyre each up ¼ and Lake Shore up ⅛. Hiram Walker was down ⅛, however.

In front most of the time were Swift & Co., General Electric, U. S. Rubber, Woolworth, International Harvester, United Aircraft, Youngstown Sheet and Chrysler.

WHAT IS YOUR SALARY LIMIT?

Perhaps you have never stopped to ask yourself that question before. Five years from now, ten years from now, will you be earning $10 a week more than you are now, $25 a week more than you are now, or (perish the thought) $10 a week LESS THAN YOU ARE NOW?

TO A GREAT EXTENT IT DEPENDS ON YOURSELF

Economic conditions in the country, war, peace, boom, depression, will have some slight influence, but the main cause of any change, upward or downward, will be YOURSELF.

If you are in a business where you seem to have reached your limit—if you would like to be making more money as the years go by, write for an interview giving background and marital status. (We are unable now to consider applications from those employed in war work.)

We have a SALARIED SALES JOB open now for which you might qualify. Apply now to file No. 114, Selective Service.

Members of County Council, Ex-Wardens and Officials Entertained at County Home

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sandercock, Superintendents of Home, Are Hosts

TOASTS PROPOSED

Members of Hastings County Council, together with ex-wardens and other county officials and friends spent an enjoyable social evening at the Hastings County Home Thursday evening, the guests of the superintendent and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Sandercock. A bountiful chicken dinner was served, with toasts to the county and to the hosts being heard during the short following program.

In the presence of approximately fifty guests, Ex-Warden Col. Roscoe Vanderwater proposed the toast to the County of Hastings, paying tribute to the young men from the county who had answered their country's call. Hastings and Prince Edward, he said, were keeping up the only rural unit in the 1st Canadian Division.

Col. Vanderwater admitted the actuality of the Italian campaign having slowed up and reiterated the statement of a high army officer that it was due to the good fight the Germans were putting up. It all went to show that the fighting was still not over, he said. Tribute was paid to the agricultural effort of the residents of the county but the speaker asked if they were prepared for the conclusion of hostilities and for the time of rehabilitating soldiers into civilian life.

"Canada," he said, "was one of the few bright spots in the world today and for its future asserted there were only two alternatives—either to adopt a program of restricted immigration or to face invasion in some future years. The Dominion of Canada was meant for a far greater population than a mere 12,000,000 persons."

Warden Responds

Warden Thomas Fleming in response to the toast expressed his pleasure for the honor of responding to a toast to the banner county of the province. It leads in cheese production and has a greater enlistment ratio than any other rural area in the Dominion. Hastings in all had made a wonderful contribution to the war effort.

Tribute Paid to Hosts

Roscoe Robson, member of the Legislative Assembly for Hastings East, spoke briefly to the guests paying tribute to Mr. and Mrs. Sandercock indicating that in making the institution truly a "home" for the aged people they had really a "tough job." He congratulated Warden Fleming on his appointment to his position and indicated that although the county is now free of debt councillors could not "lay down on the job." He foresaw a great future for the county and expressed a word of advice to the newcomers in council telling them that they are now for the county and not expressly for their respective townships.

The toast to the hosts of the evening was proposed by Ex-Warden Charles Rush who expressed the council's thanks for the hospitality and indicated that in their position as superintendents of the house of refuge they were rendering a real service to the county Mr. and Mrs. Sandercock both responded graciously.

Dr. Van Blakslee house of refuge physician stated the county should be proud of the county home and of the way in which its inmates are cared for. Every sympathy to the inmates was shown by the management, he stated.

Reviews Work of Anglers' Club

Speaking as a member of the Belleville Anglers' Club Dr. Blakslee reviewed the work of the club in restocking lakes and streams in the Belleville district with fish and prophesied that as a result the county would see great benefits in future tourist trade. Further work to build up the county as a tourist haven would prove great dividends and be a wise move for the county council, he stated.

Entertainment during the program was afforded by Mr. Fred Wooton, talented local elocutionist who rendered "The Call of the Yukon" the American prohibition number "Bottles" and a humorous Negro number. Hearty applause was heard following each of Mr. Wooton's numbers, evincing the appreciation of his listeners.

W. C. Tanner, chairman of the house of refuge committee during 1943, acted as chairman for the evening, his genial personality presenting an infectious atmosphere to the enjoyable occasion

Cancel Seed Fair Owing to Short Grain Crop

Quinte Seed Growers' Association will this season purchase a carload of registered Ajax Oats from Western Canada in lieu of their cancelling the regular seed fair this year, it was indicated at county council Thursday afternoon, when members were addressed by H. Lynn Fair, agricultural representative. Mr. Fair appeared before council asking for the regular grant of $50 which ordinarily is given to help sponsor the seed fair.

Mr. Fair indicated the seed fair had been cancelled owing to the short grain crop in the district last summer and also because the grain threshed was generally of a poor quality. Instead of holding a fair at which exhibits would thus naturally be of a lower quality it had been decided to bring in a carload of the best seed available.

"We felt that rather than hold a fair it would be much more profitable to bring into the district a carload of registered seed," he said. "We intend to use grants ordinarily received to defray the expense of bringing the car from the West." The seed would then be sold to district farmers, he intimated.

Outlining proposed activities of the Seed Growers' Association for the coming season Mr. Fair indicated it was planned to have the regular junior seed judging competition this year in Belleville. The date was set for March 11th. The matter of the grant asked was referred to the committee of the whole on ways and means.

PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY RELIEVED.

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J S McKeown or any I.D.A. or other drug store, and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results your druggist will gladly return your money.

453,000 Cases Tomatoes Packed In Prince Edward

32 Per Cent of the Total Pack of Canada Produced in This County

5,000 ACRES PLANTED

Picton, Jan. 21—Growers of canning crops in Prince Edward County last year received $754,000.00 for produce last year, figures released here yesterday revealed. This produce resulted in 1,491,000 cases of goods being packed.

Prince Edward produced 453,000 cases of tomatoes which is 32 percent of the total tomato pack in Canada. There were also 556,000 cases of tomato juice, representing 29 percent of the Canadian pack.

Other products packed were, tomato paste and puree, 25,000 cases; peas, 200,000 cases; corn, 132,000 cases; pumpkin, 100,000 cases, which is 39 percent of the Canadian pack; fruits and apples, 25,000 cases.

For tomatoes, the farmers received $514,000.00 with peas bringing the next largest amount $110,000

There were 5,000 acres of tomatoes planted, a decrease of 1,000 acres compared to the previous year. This was largely due to wet weather in the spring and lack of help on farms. Other acreages were, peas 2500, corn 3000 and pumpkin 300. There was a bumper crop of pumpkins and for the first time since 1934 apples were canned. The berry crop has shown a decrease, owing to previous low prices which resulted in farmers abandoning this line.

With higher wages paid in factories, labor received $600,000., or $100,000 more than in the previous year. Only with the help of school pupils and housewives was it possible to handle the packs Even then a shortage of help resulted in many tomatoes being made into juice instead of being canned. There were forty plants in operation in Prince Edward.

An official of the Canners' Association, stated Canadian production of canned goods last year would amount to 6,500,000 cases compared to 10,200,000 cases in the previous Lambs Killed by Wolves.

Two lambs were killed and a third injured on the farm of W. Walmsley, near Milford, this week. Wolves are blamed for the loss. Lack of snow has held up the wolf hunt which Athol and South Marysburgh townships have planned.

Legion Auxiliary Officers.

At the annual meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Post 78, Canadian Legion, Mrs. James Hedges was re-elected president. Other officers are, Vice Presidents, Mrs. H. Rawlins, Mrs. J. Collier; Secretary, Mrs. R. Jones; Treasurer, Mrs. Dorothy Sayers; Executives—Mrs. T. Richardson, Mrs. L. Forbes; Standard Bearer, Mrs. L. Young; Pianist, Mrs. Morley Ackerman; Sick Committee, Mrs. G. Wilkinson, Mrs. J. Lawson, Mrs. L. Forbes.

Memorial Service.

A service in memory of Sgt. Charles Read, killed in action in Italy, is being held in Northport United Church, Sunday afternoon. Rev. H. G. Steers will officiate. Members of the 2nd Battalion of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment will attend along with veterans of the last war and representatives of the Royal Air Force in which Sgt. Read served during the last war.

$96,000 For Roads.

At Prince Edawrd County Council yesterday, road expenditure estimates for 1944 were presented. These total $96,000. Estimates include cost of 25 miles of surface treatment of permanent roads.

Council granted $300 to the Public Health Services Association, with which to continue medical examination of Collegiate students. Mrs. P. J. Webster and Ralph Warren told of the work done last year.

Grants included $100 to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind and $250 to the Prince Edward Federation of Agriculture.

Delegates named to the Ontario Good Roads convention were Warden E. Onderdonk, Reeves E. Brummell, R. Ketcheson, H. Cleave and Engineer J. B. Dunkley.

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 21 —(AP)— Further strength in Rails and Specialties was the principal bulwark of today's stock market. Gains of fractions to a point—there were isolated wider movers—were well distributed near the fourth hour. Losers, however, were plentiful.

Canadian issues were mostly firm. Distillers-Seagrams was up ½, Dome Mines and McIntyre each up ¼ and Lake Shore up ⅛. Hiram Walker was down ¼, however.

In front most of the time were Swift & Co., General Electric, U. S. Rubber, Woolworth, International Harvester, United Aircraft, Youngstown Sheet and Chrysler.

Church Supports Progress Of Public Health Control, Medical Aid Says Dr. Myers

Advocates Prevention as "Keynote" of Any Health Program at Annual V.O.N. Meeting

REPORTS SUBMITTED

Exemplifying the church's definite support of the progress and development of public health control and medical aid to all, rich or poor, Dr. A. J. W. Myers, pastor of Tabernacle United Church, addressed the annual meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses during their inaugural meeting of 1944. Great tribute was given to the one person in medical history who stands out above all others in the nursing field, Florence Nightingale, for her participation in the realms of hygienic medicine. "The first thing that struck me", said Dr. Myers, "was the recency of the Victorian Order of Nurses, and when I think of Florence Nightingale, knowing that she was a charter member of the Order, entering into this dangerous profession at a time when medical science was practically on the edge of darkness, I see her as the type from which all Victorian Order Nurses have taken their standard.

Progress Demonstrated.

"The history of the progress of medicine is demonstrated in the miraculous discovery of that famous scientist, Louis Pasteur, and later, Lord Lister, which were probably the very beginning of modern medical hygiene". The case of the Russian mother who brought her son to Pasteur suffering from a dog bite and the miraculous recovery of the boy after Pasteur had injected, vaccine in such a dramatic way and the virus was killed and the boy lived, was cited by Dr. Myers, who marvelled that this had occurred only 58 years ago, and that all scientific medicine dates from that time. And some of us get discouraged when new ideas do not take on at once", he said.

"The Victorian Order seem to be significant for two reasons", Dr. Myers continued, setting out as the first example, "that it promoted the idea of bedside nursing in the homes, as the second, brought it within the reach of everybody. In former times, if you were rich enough and could afford a nurse in the home, you could have skilled care, but the poor were free to suffer and die without medical care". Dr. Myers heaped credit upon the members of the Order for their tireless devotion to their duty regardless of social or financial condition of the patient. "Of all the advantages these glorified women have brought to every community in the land, the relief from being left to rot in their disease as was the lot of the poor, the steps toward educating the illiterate public to personal hygiene, pure water and proper food, free Clinics, the one that stands out above all others is the Well Baby Clinics. It is the dividing line in thinking", Dr. Myers declared. "We had clinics for sick babies, but somebody devised the idea of a Well Baby Clinic, establishing the proof that the day of thinking had arrived".

Prevention Keynote.

Stating that "prevention" is the keynote, Dr. Myers remarked that many cities had tried it and have had great success, but that the idea has now become national in scope with the slogan, "National Health". Dr. Myers asked for permission to a call the attention of his listeners to the things which mus. be done and must be provided for; first, education and example, keeping ourselves and our neighbors in good health, and second, the knowledge that consumption of alcoholic liquors is one of the greatest menacs to health, and finally prevention of accidents in factories and proper and adequate sanitation in densely occupied areas". Dr. Myers mentioned the inadequate recreational facilities in Belleville, the too few parks and play grounds. "We cannot talk intelligently on health until we realize, that it implies medical and dental inspection in the Public Schools, pre-natal and post-natal care.

Refers to Quotation.

"It is not very often a speaker has dynamite placed right in his hand but that is just what I've had placed in mine," Dr. Myers declared, referring to the quotation printed in the front of the evening's program, by Winston Churchill, which was broadcast from London, March 21, 1943: 'Healthy citizens are the greatest asset any country can have. . . .The care of the young and the establishment of sound hygienic conditions of motherhood have a bearing upon the whole future of the race which is absolutely vital'. Aftes quoting Mr. Churchill's statement to the world, Dr. Myers went on to cite several comparative incidences of the mortality rate in Canada of children during their first year per 1,000 population. "In New Zealand the death rate is 33; in Brandon 30; Winnipeg 42, and Belleville 57 1-2, almost twice the death rate of Brandon". With these staggering figures to quote, Dr. Myers then likened his birthplace, Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, as possibly one of Canada's most beautiful places, containing a river, that was clear and with a good flood, washed almost entirely with a saline bath of fresh sea water and air, but having a death rate in first year infants of 95 out of every 1,000 population.

Quotes Other Figures.

He quoted other figures much higher than those of his home city: Quebec City with a rate of 142, and Three Rivers with 297 infant deaths per 1,000 population. "Health Insurance" could be the solution to this deplorable condition", Dr. Myers stated. "It would bring medical attention to those poor people who could not, who cannot afford the expense of a doctor and hospitalization and, if there was some sort of insurance, people would go to doctors before too much harm had been done".

"Calculate, if you can, the visits of the Victorian Order of Nurses in agony and pain and sickness", Dr. Myers said as he brought his address to a close. "May I, in conclusion, say how thrilled I am to be invited here to speak to you, and may I wish great health and prosperity to the Victorian Order of Nurses in this city, and in all the land, and may good health flourish in the City of Belleville".

Speaker Thanked.

Mr. H. B. Fetterly expressed the appreciation of the members of the Victorian Order to the principal speaker, also expressing his and everyone's gratitude that Dr. Myers has selected Belleville from the other cities in Canada to make his home". He urged that the citizens of Belleville get behind not only the V.O.N., but all the other institutions who are trying to build up the health of the city. Mr. Fetterly announced the nominating committee, which was composed of Mrs. Foley, Mrs. Grant and himself, for the nomination of officers for 1944. He then submitted the report of the nominations to the meeting, which will be found elsewhere on this page.

Reports Submitted.

The first report submitted to the meeting, following the reading of the minutes of the last meeting of 1943, was that of the Secretary, Miss Bernice Arbuckle. Her report covered the activities of the organization throughout 1943. "The year 1943 has drawn to a close. For the V.O.N. it has been the heaviest year they have yet had in Belleville. So many new families have moved into the city with small children and it has meant a great deal to them to know through the Victorian Order Nursing Service they could receive advice and nursing care when needed. This year in the city a Central Registry was formed to take all calls for private duty nurses and the V.O.N. now uses this service at night, Sundays and holidays. The day calls are received at the City Hall. Formerly the calls at night, Sundays and holidays were taken by the General Hospital and I wish to thank the Hospital for this service.

Attend Annual Convention.

"On April 15, President G. E. Thompson, Vice President, T. K. Franklin, Mrs. Gilroy, Miss Soutar and the Secretary, attended the annual meeting of the V.O.N. in the Royal York Hotel, Toronto. After the business session in the afternoon the delegates were entertained at afternoon tea by the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Matthews. Miss Soutar attended the Nurses' Convention in Toronto, on April 28, and 30. The campaign for funds this year was carried on in the same way as 1942, a joint campaign with the Y.M.C.A., Salvation Army and V.O.N., and this year the addition of the Children's Aid Society. The arrangement worked out well and the committee reached beyond its objective thanks to the efforts of the committee and the generous response of the citizens of Belleville. A Tag Day was held in April with Mrs. Foley as convener. Despite unfavorable weather, the proceeds were most gratifying.

"Each year since the war, the armed services have taken some of our members and this year, Miss Bessie Soutar was called to the British Civil Nursing Service. Miss Soutar had for many years been nurse-in-charge of the Belleville Branch. Her untiring efforts meant a great deal to the building up of the V.O.N. in this city. It was with regret that Miss Soutar left our midst but she felt it her duty to answer the call to service in her homeland, however, Miss Soutar left Belleville very happy, when she learned that Miss Ethel Gordon was taking her place, for she knew the work would be carried on in a most efficient manner. Miss Gordon has had extensive experience in Victorian Order work, and in her quiet genial way is doing splendid work. I also wish to express appreciation of the work of Miss Connor and Mrs. Weese. They are very capable, conscientious nurses and spare nothing to give Belleville a nursing service of a high standard.

Clinics Steadily Growing.

"The Baby Clinics held in the Kiwanis Welfare Centre are steadily growing in attendance and inoculations for diphtheria, whooping cough, etc., are given to preschool children. It means so much to have such adequate permanent quarters for these Clinics and we again thank the Kiwanis Club for this space in the building, and for their continued interest in the V.O.N. Donations to help carry on the work were received from the City Council, Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E., Women's Auxiliary of Bridge Street Church, the Catholic Women's League and Comrade Club of the Tabernacle Church. We are deeply indebted to all interested citizens, service clubs, organizations and churches for their assistance and trust that the work of the V.O.N, may continue to warrant their interest and support".

Miss Arbuckle's report was moved for acceptance and seconded by Mrs. Foley and immediately following this procedure, Miss Ethel Gordon, nurse-in-charge of the Belleville Branch, was called on to make her report for the year of the various and many activities of the nurses under her and herself. "It is a pleasure to present to you the Nurses' Report of the Belleville Victorian Order of Nurses for the year 1943", Miss Gordon said. "It is always helpful to prepare an annual report, it invariably makes us pause to think of the basic objectives of our work, what we really are accomplishing and how we can heighten our efforts to meet the the challenges and needs ahead of us.

Miss Soutar Praised.

"For almost twenty years a group of community-minded citizens and the nurses they have employed have furnished for the people of Belleville a visiting nursing service. Standing high amongst those, who have built this service to what it is today is Miss Bessie Soutar, who, after serving as nurse-in-charge of this district for nine years, left in June 1943, to join the British Civil Nursing Reserve. Miss Soutar by her own life keeps alive the principles of unselfish service on which nursing organizations are built; and we are living in a world, which cannot return to sanity (no matter what careful plans are made) without a great reburnishing of these simple principles.

In August I joined your nursing staff, and I would like here to pay tribute to the service, which is given by Miss Connor and Mrs. Weese. Neither of them seeks praise or recognition, but it seems fitting to mention the quiet faithful way in which they consistently perform their duties. At a certain time during the fall, when our program was exceptionally heavy, a volume of nursing work was accomplished, which would have been impossible without the co-operation, unselfishness and complete lack of strain found in working with these nurses The nursing work continued to show an increase in 1943, and your committee arranged in December to have Mrs. Weese work full time instead of on a part time basis as she has done for several years. So, at present your staff comprises three full time nurses, for the winter months at least.

Public Health Organization

The Victorian Order, first organized in 1897, is now a public Health Organization with branches in more than one hundred towns and cities of Canada. The nurses are of course all graduate registered nurses, and most of them have taken one year post graduate study in Public Health Nursing at one of our Canadian Universities. Each branch has its Committee, consisting of interested citizens who give voluntarily of their time and effort to direct the affairs of the Branch, raise necessary funds, provide supplies and assistance for the nurses, in short they make the service possible. Such is the function of the Belleville Committee and the nurses fully appreciate the business-like and understanding way in which they carry on this piece of work.

During 1943 your nurses made 6,472 visits to 1,010 patients, an increase of 964 visits over the preceding year. You will see by your printed reports that these cold figures represent a moving drama in which almost every type of nursing plays its part, care of mothers and newborn babies, care of the acutely ill, surgical dressings, and visits to the chronically ill and aged. Often our visits shorten the patient's stay in hospital and release hospital beds for more urgent uses. As an organization primarily interested in health we try to take advantage of every home visit in instruct our patients in the art of keeping themselves and their families well, and fit for the jobs they have to do. Along wtih the bedside nursing you will notice that a considerable part of the nurses' time is spent in the purely instructive work of maternal and infant and child welfare. More than 1,000 of the obstetrical and newborn visits listed were for advice and health supervision, as we visit each of our mothers and babies regularly until the baby is six weeks old.

Only Touch Fringe

Our staff is of course only able to touch the fringe of the prenatal and child hygiene supervision which could be desired for a city this size, but we hope that the 213 visits to expectant mothers and the 753 visits listed under Child Hygiene has been a worth while contribution to the welfare of Belleville families.

Immunization clinics and Well Baby Conferences sponsored by the Belleville Kiwanis Club, and held in the Kiwanis Building on Dundas Street, formed a major feature of our child welfare work. At the Well Baby Conference which is held each Friday babies and preschool children are weighed and mothers are interviewed by the nurses on subjects of child care and individual problems. Wherever necessary the mother is referred to her physician for advice. Many young Air Force mothers whose husbands are stationed here bring their babies to the Conference and we are always glad to see them and do what we can to help them and make them feel at home. At the immunization clinics, with Dr. Cronk, the Medical Officer of Health in attendance, 96 preschool children and babies received three doses of whooping cough vaccine and 78 received three doses of diphtheria toxoid, thus helping to keep this community free of these dangerous diseases.

Early in 1943 Miss Soutar demonstrated a home confinement visit to the Red Cross Home Nursing Classes, and gave lectures to the graduating class of the Belleville General Hospital concerning public health nursing and bedside nursing in the home. Several clubs were addressed on the work of the Victorian Order, and your nursing staff was represented at the V. O. N. Annual Meeting in Toronto, and at the Registered Nurses Association Convention; reports of all these activities have been submitted during the year.

Excellent Service Given

Our calls for nights, Sundays and holidays which had kindly been taken by the hospital for some time were transferred to the newly formed Nurses' Registry on March 1st. Excellent service is given through the Registry and the V. O. N. was glad to be one of the first to patronize this community service.

Our day calls have been taken as before at the City Clerk's Office, No. 195. It is hard to adequately express our thanks to Mr. Holmes and to Miss Lafferty and Miss Williamson for this service but we do want to tell them that it means a great deal to us to know that our calls are taken in an efficient and courteous manner, day after day.

We would like also to thank Mr. Wallace and his art students at Queen Alexandra School for the attractive folders depicting our work for 1943.

In closing I wish to express my personal appreciation to the members of the Committee for the way in which you have made me feel at home amongst you. In the Victorian Order we deal with life and death and the joys and sorrows of people and at times are given a clear glimpse of the eternal values above the stress and strain of these troubled times. Sweeping changes are before us and as we face another year together; Canada from her great material and spiritual resources has much to offer in building the brave new world of which we dream. The Honorable Vincent Massey has said, "Victorian Order is one of those essentially Canadian Institutions which makes us proud to be Canadians." So let us all with faith in the future and in each other, carry on with our task.

When Miss Gordon had finished making her report to the committee on the nurses' work during the year, Miss Bernice Arbuckle was installed as the president of the Victorian Order of Nurses' Committee for 1944. She accepted the office from Mr. Taylor K. Franklin and took up her position at the head of the table which was relinquished to her by Mr. Franklin as 1st vice-president acting for Mr. Glencoe E. Thompson, president, who was unable to attend the meeting.

Miss Arbuckle addressed the meeting in her newly-acquired capacity of its president, saying: "For the last nine years I have been secretary of the local branch of the V.O.N., and I have thoroughly enjoyed the work. We have been most fortunate in having such capable nurses on our staff here, and I know that the best care is going to be taken of those who fall ill, for their whole heart and soul is in their work, and for that reason the committee tries to grant any request they make. I have enjoyed the personnel of our committee. It is a fine representation of the citizens of Belleville, and all are ready to do their part in a spirit of co-operation. I wish to express my appreciation of being asked to fill the office of president and hope to be able to do all that is required of me to the best of my ability, with the help of the committee and the kindness of the people, the guidance of the past-president and the vice-presidents."

Mayor Rollins Lauds Order.

Addressing the meeting after Miss Arbuckle's inaugural speech, His Worship Mayor Rollins, turning to Miss Arbuckle, addressed her by the title she will carry throughout the year, "Madam President." Mayor Rollins expressed the appreciation of his council for the splendid work which has been done by the nursing staff of the Order and to the members of the committee for their co-operation which made it possible for these nurses to do their work in the efficient manner they have done it. He referred briefly to the council's plans for slum clearance and the construction of sewage disposal facilities which are under way. He said that many of the plans the council have been making will cost the city considerable money, but that money must not be put against health. He said that it must be promoted and taught. The Mayor then declared the city council as a whole was behind the Victorian Order of Nurses in the great work they are doing in the city.

Compliments Nurses.

Other guest speakers called upon to address the meeting were Mr. J. B. Boyce, who delivered a most entertaining discourse on his impressions of the reports submitted by the different officers of the organization and making jocular remarks concerning Dr. J. Semple's eloquence. He complimented the three nurses present on their work of last year and said he knew they would increase their activities during the coming year, if it were at all possible. The reference to the Well-Baby Clinic, he said, impressed him considerably, that it was an example of constructive thinking, and that thinking was the greatest force in the world, that this clinic was at first merely a thought in somebody's mind which was developed and made possible by people such as the nurses and committees of the Victorian Order. He remarked that the Victorian Order itself was at one time just a thought in someone's mind which grew and was developed until it became what it is today. He stated that it was a good move to elect Miss Arbuckle to the presidency, that it was not only a recognition of past services, but recognition of ability. He said it was as much a tribute to the nominating committee as it is a compliment to Miss Arbuckle to be appointed to this high office.

Mr. George H. Stokes, M.P., addressed the meeting briefly, complimenting the Order on the work they are doing and Miss Arbuckle upon her elevation to the office of president. He remarked upon the number of distinguished members and guests present who come fro Tweed, these being Miss Arbuckle, Mayor Rollins, Mr. J. J. Trudeau and himself. A short speech was made by Mr. J. Shortt, manager of the Y.M.C.A., who complimented the Order and committee upon the splendid work they have accomplished.

Surplus Announced.

It was announced by the treasurer, Mr. E. S. James, that a surplus of $1,014.02 was shown at December 31st., and a complete report was made as to the expenditures and receipts of the committee. During the dinner and meeting, Miss Jean Freeman entertained with a number of pleasant vocal solos which were received by all present with evident enjoyment. Captain Ruston of the Children's Aid Society made the acknowledging reply to Miss Gordon's report. Dr. James Semple introduced the principal speaker in an informal manner which brought the listeners into complete accord and at ease once more. Before the end of the meeting, a program was circulated among the members and guests to be autographed by each. The program will be sent to England to Miss Soutar as a souvenir of the 1944 meeting. A cablegram from Miss Soutar was read to the meeting by Miss Arbuckle. The meeting was moved to adjourn by Dr. Semple.

Miss B. Arbuckle Appointed Pres. Of the V.O.N.

Initiating a new precedent by installing a woman as the head of the local branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses, Miss Bernice Arbuckle was appointed president of the Order for 1944. It was decided by the nominating committee comprised of Mrs. Foley, Mrs. Grant and Mr. Fetterly, that no better selection could be made than that of Miss Arbuckle who, for the past several years has acted as secretary for the organization. Miss Arbuckle succeeds Mr. Glencoe E. Thompson in the office. Honorary Presidents appointed were: His Honor Judge C A. Cameron, G. H. Stokes, M.P., R. D. Arnott, M.P.P. and His Worship, Mayor Harry Rollins.

Other officers appointed were:

1st Vice-President: Mr. Taylor Franklin.

2nd. Vice-President: Mrs. C. A. Cameron.

Secretary: Miss Jean Freeman.

Treasurer: Mr. E. S. James.

Representatives of Ministerial Association: Dr. J. Semple and Dr. A. J. W. Myers, Ph.D.

Representative of City Council: Mr. J. J. Trudeau.

Representative of County Council: to be named

Rerresentative of Nurses Alumnae Mrs. D. Airhart.

Representative of Medical Association: Dr. G. S. Cronk, M.H.O., other representative to be named.

Publicity: Miss Margaret Ethier.

General Committee to consist of: Mrs. H. Francis, Mrs. J. Wims, Mrs. H. W. Ackerman, Mrs. B. L. Lattimer, Mrs G. G. Brearley, Mrs. E. Rutherford, Mrs. A. Gilroy, Mrs. J. Lynch, Mrs. A. C. Burton, Mrs. J. Tilley, Mrs. A. Hitchon, Mrs. G. P. Lent, Mrs. H. B. Fetterly, Mrs. J. E. Madill, Mrs. E. C. Moynes, Mrs. N. E. Wardner, Mrs. Arnold Campbell, Mrs. P. B. Foley, Mrs. J. Kay Grant, Messrs H. B. Fetterly, T. D. Ruston, Herb. Fox, N. E. Edwards and L. A. Kells.

Air Cadet League Of Canada Meets

A large representation was present at the meeting of the Air Cadet League of Canada held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, recently, and considerable interest was evident. The keynote of the conference was definitely post-war planning. The air cadet movement was set up as a youth movement and as such will be carried on after the war. While it is presently serving war requirements, plans of an undisclosed nature are under way once the war ends. Whether the post-war training will take the form of glider schools could not be definitely ascertained, but it is expected that technical studies will be continued.

Plans are under way for Air Cadet League financial campaign all across Canada to raise funds for the Provincial Committee. It is anticipated, that the time will be early April. The matter of maintaining the interest of the Civilian Committees was stressed. The exact status of the relationship between the Civilian Committees and the R. C. A. F. had never been defined. The R. C. A. F. have reported to the Provincial Committee but these reports have not been passed along to the local Civilian Committees with the result that they do not know whether the Squadron is measuring up to requirements or not. The explanation made by the R. C. A. F. was that these reports are confidential.

Clubs Sound

Most clubs were flourishing financially, and it appeared that the general method and the most successful was to solicit funds from manufacturers and larger businesses. It appears that the Provincial Government gave $10,000.00 for the designated use of the Toronto Central Committee which controls all Toronto Squadrons. The show for the Air Cadets was a financial failure. At present there are 90 squadrons in Ontario, totalling about 8,000 cadets. For the whole of Canada there are 360 squadrons and 27,000 cadets. 1,742 boys have joined the Air Force since they started keeping records and it is estimated that another 1,500 had previously joined.

Two teams have been entered by the Air Cadets League in the Dominion Challenge Trophy which will take place in three shoots, January, February and March. The local squadron has a total strength of 74, five cadets have enlisted in the R. C. A. F., and two have joined the Navy . More recruits are wanted by the Belleville Squadron to commence training during the spring months and summer, and to accompany the local squadron on their summer camp, which will be on one of the Air Stations near Belleville.

ALLIES LAND NEAR ROME

Leningrad Now Linked By Rail With Moscow

Berlin States Amphibious Attack Made on Coast Thirty Miles Southeast of the Capital

Beachhead Several Miles Won in Early Fighting

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(Associated Press War Correspondent)

Algiers, Jan. 22 —(AP)— Powerful British and American forces of the 5th Army striking by sea toward Rome landed on the west coast of central Italy before dawn Saturday in a heavy attack to smash the Germans' flank and turn their winter fortifications in the Gustav and Adolf Hitler lines.

The first landings were successful, winning a beachhead several miles long, and "the situation is developing favorably," Allied Headquarters announced at noon. The announcement did not locate the invasion point.

Berlin asserted the landing was made between the mouth of the Tiber, 16 miles southwest of Rome, and Nettuno, about 30 miles southeast of the Tiber and the same distance from Rome. The harbor of Nettuno has been occupied, the broadcast added.

The bold thrust was commanded by Lt.-Gen. Mark Clark under direction of the commander of central Mediterranean forces in Italy, Gen. Sir Harold Alexander.

Blistering Air Attacks.

Ending the slow process of frontal attack alone, it was supported by blistering air and naval bombardments, and followed air attacks that have severed the Rome area from communications to the north. This left the Germans there with only their immediate resources on the spot, air officials declared.

It was coupled with a general assault form the 5th Army from farther south along a 15-mile line. American troops forced their way across the Rapido River near Cassino against "withering fire", French troops seized two mountains in the same area, and British forces captured more villages on the north bank of the Garigliano.

The Nazis launched several fierce counter-attacks on this front, an indication the great amphibious flank attack apparently had taken them by surprise.

British Comandos and American Rangers spearheaded the new leapfrog landing, the biggest sea-borne attack in Italy since the invasion ramming ashore near Salerno in September.

Experience Helps.

All the experience of Italian and Sicilian invasion jumps strengthened the new sea-borne plunge. The first wave spread over the beachhead, and the invading fleet sped supplies ashore.

Berlin's account placed the Allies within 30 miles of Rome.

("In view of the impossibility of breaking German resistance at the southern Italian front," the broadcast declared, "the Allies decided in the course of last night to resort to a system of landings."

"Under cover of darkness," the broadcast continued, "they succeeded in forming bridgeheads between Nettuno and the mouth of the Tiber River south of Rome and in occupying Nettuno harbor. There are as yet no details about the progress of the heavy fighting which developed since the early hours of today."

First reports which came here from advanced headquarters in Italy did not indicate the degree of German resistance encountered by the landing units.

Smash Comes From Cassino Area

The smash into the Liro Valley came from the Cassino area, where American and French troops have been pressing against the German Gustav line. American troops crossed the Rapido river "under withering Fire" a communique said.

British troops, who crossed the lower Garigliano river early Monday, seized Tremensuoli, about a mile north of captured Minturno, and farther inland occupied Vandra, about a half mile north of Garigliano. The British took 45 prisoners.

French troops converging on Cassino from the northeast seized an important height.

The communique described the new offensive as "a general attack" on the 5th Army front.

The new landings came as the Germans were rushing completion of a powerful new "Adolph Hitler" defence line 65 miles below Rome, prisoners' reports related. This indicated the enemy held scant hope of holding his present Gustav line much longer against the Allied onslaught.

Before the new invasion was launched, the Gustav fortifications were being shredded fast, with the British advancing from Minturno, two miles northwest of the Garigliano river, and French forces that crossed the Rapido river four miles above Cassino threatening to flank German troops defending that heavily fortified town.

A special communique announced the new thrusts but did not give the location of the landing. The bulletin said merely American and British troops of the 5th Army went ashore "along a beach front extending several miles from north to south".

The offensive followed terrific air attacks in which German communications from the north were shattered.

For the past weeks Allied air forces have been waging an intensive "softening-up campaign", directed mainly against communications leading into Rome and the airfields of the Rome area.

It was definitely established two days ago that Reme had been cut off from rail communications from the North.

On the eve of the attack bombers ranged over the area between Florence and Rome, smashing all routes into the eternal city.

Air attacks leading up to the landing included bomber raids yesterday on Salon and Istres Les Tubes airfields near Marseille—bases for German torpedo-equipped aircraft.

All the experience gained in the Sicilian and Salerno Landings were employed in today's new invasion of Central Italy. The current operation, however, differs in that it is coupled with an overland drive in the Liro Valley.

HEPBURN WARNS AGAINST HIGH PRESSURE GROUPS

Says Farmers Must Organize Themselves to Protect Their Interests

CITES LABOR UNION

Harrow, Ont., Jan. 22 —(CP)— Mitchell Hepburn, Independent Liberal member of the Ontario Legislature for Elgin County, in an address here Friday night warned farmers that "Canada is heading not toward a Labor party autocracy but to an autocracy of high pressure groups who seek to dominate the governments and who plunder the pay envelopes of the working man."

Addressing a dinner meeting sponsored by the Essex County Holstein Breeders' Association, the former Premier told the 700 guests that "if farmers want to guard against autocracy these high pressure C.I.O. men will set up if they get into power then they must use the remedy which lies in their own hands and this is organization as farmers, not as a political party."

"Look what your pressure groups did across the border," he continued. "They had a steel strike and the price of steel went up; they had a coal strike and the price of coal went up; they had transportation trouble; and all these things directly affects the people who are unorganized.

"This all comes to the farmer and forces him down to the lowest rung on the economic scale and that it what is happening today.

"Farmers don't call strikes—they continue to produce under extreme difficulties."

Harrow is about 20 miles south of Windsor.

RE-SHUFFLES COMMAND

London, Jan. 22. (CP)— Adolf Hitler has completed his anti-invasion command with the appointment of Marshal Erwin Rommel as inspector general for the defence of Europe, a London newspaper reported today as Allied transport chiefs in Britain announced completion of a "shadow" supply service for the armies that will attack Western Europe.

Hitler has completely re-shuffled his high command in preparation for the Allied attack from Britain, neutral report quoted by The Daily Express said.

Stuttering Irish Battlecock Promotes More Goodwill Than Batt. of Generals

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Algiers, Jan. 22—(AP)— For 14 months a half-pint, stuttering Irish battlecock has been military commentator for Allied force headquarters.

Officially, it is the job of Col. John Victor McCormack, 36 years in the British Army, "most of it in hot water," to tell at morning press conferences the news behind the daily communique.

Unofficially, "little Mac" is the best salesman the Empire has in this or any other theatre. This bright, little man—he is 50 years old and stands one fourth of an inch over five feet when he stretches—has done more to promote Allied goodwill than a battalion of generals.

He is one of "the fighting McCormacks of the Royal Horse Artillery." "Little Mac," his six brothers and his father have put in altogether more than 300 years of military service and have won some 35 decorations and citations.

"Little Mac" enlisted as a drummer at 15 and worked through 14 ranks to his present colonelcy.

Recently Mac opened the press conference with a series of cavalry calls on a capture German trumpet.

"I just wanted to show them the old lip hasn't lost its ancient cunning," he said. "I used to have to be able to blow those calls riding full speed on horseback. You bloody well had to, otherwise a whole battery of horse artillery would gallop over you."

The only thing he is afraid of is a word that starts with the letters "B" or "P." They make him stutter. He says: "Every B-B-B-B-B-B loody P-P-P-P-P-Place we capture in the Mediterranean theatre seems to start with a B-B-B-B or P-P-P-P."

It was a great day for him during the Sicilian campaign when the Irish crashed through a German position south of Catania that had held up the 8th Army for weeks.

"And what else," inquired the mighty McCormack, pulling himself up to his full five and one fourth, "would you expect of a brigade of Irishmen?"

The correspondents gave him a hand on that.

MAGDEBURG HIT WITH 2,000 TONS IN AERIAL DRIVE

Major Phase of Great Operation Which Included Stab at Berlin

55 BOMBERS LOST

By TOM YARBROUGH

London, Jan. 22 —(AP)— The R.A.F. - R.C.A.F. campaign to flatten German industrial targets crushed the city of Magdeburg in Saxony Friday night under more than 2,000 tons of bombs as the major phase of a great aerial operation which included a smaller attack on Berlin.

At least nine Canadian squadrons of Lancasters and Halifaxes were included in the striking force which made the attack.

The new blows against Germany, following up a heavy 2,200-ton assault on the capital the previous night, cost 55 bombers, including 14 from Canadian squadrons, one of the heaviest losses suffered in a year.

They came while the Germans themselves were stabbing at London and southeast England with two sharp raids by a force of approximately 90 bombers.

Probably 1,000 planes took part in the widespread operations during the night, striking also into northern France and laying mines. This made it the second 1,000-plane Allied offensive within 14 hours. Approximately that number of British and United States aircraft attacked the Pas de Calais area of France in daylight yesterday.

The night's losses were the heaviest since 58 bombers went down during a great assault on Berlin last Aug. 23. Fourteen of the missing bombers were Canadian.

Magdeburg, a city of 300,000 on the left bank of the Elbe river, about 83 miles southwest of Berlin, is a junction point for the main railways to Leipzig, Kassel and Hamburg—all previously hit heavily.

Magdeburg itself was bombed exactly a week before by Mosquitos while a big fleet of British bombers concentrated on the aircraft manufacturing centre of Brunswick, 26 miles away, which some neutral sources now say "ceases to exist."

The Air Ministry described last night's blast at Magdeburg as "a very heavy attack" and said great fires were left burning.

The force which returned to Berlin, where fires still blazed from the 2,300-ton bombing of the night before, included both four-engined Lancasters and the swift little Mosquitos.

At the same time other bombers struck unidentified targets in France, following up yesterday's 1,000-plane daylight assault on the so-called "rocket gun coast" in the neighborhood of Pas de Calais.

The Germans, goaded into making a counter-blow, sent one group of bombers across the Channel before midnight and another in the early hours of this morning.

They operated mainly over southeast England, but about 30 of the invaders struck into the London area.

A communique said, "bombs were dropped at a number of places. Damage was caused and there were a number of casualties, some of which were fatal.

Eight enemy aircraft were destroyed.

The Nazi retaliation, although puny by present-day Allied bombing standards, was the heaviest in months and spectacular enough to remind many Londoners of the "old days". Guns thundered, the skies were alight, and incendiaries as well as high explosives were dropped in the London area and other parts of southeast England.

Damage and casualties were heavier than usual, and throughout the early morning hours rescuers dug for victims by the light of lamps along the Thames estuary.

With Canadians participating in heavy strength, the night bomber force crossed the channel in a 45-minute after-dark procession even as tail-enders of yesterday's armada, were returning from the windup of the dawn-to-dusk blasting of the French invasion coast.

Trenton Officer On Bomber That Saved Convoy

By SYDNEY GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 22 (CP).—An important eastbound Atlantic convoy was saved from what might have been a punishing attack by several long-range enemy bombers recently through "a gallant and courageous" fight of an R.A.F. Coastal Command Liberator bomber which had six Canadians in its crew, it was disclosed today.

The fight of the single Liberator against the Heinkel 77's using glider bombs took place 700 miles from land. The convoy now has reached a British port and the bomber returned to its base without damage or crew injury after setting two Heinkels on fire and scoring hits on a third.

The Liberator was captained by Flt. Lt. Hugh Sutherland, an Englishman who was awarded an immediate Distinguished Flying Cross, and his crew was made up of PO. A. P. Gibb, navigator of Vancouver, Flt. Sgt. M. N. Werbiski of Yorkton, Man., front gunner; PO. J. M. Ketcheson of Trenton, Ont., second pilot; Flt. Sgt. W. P. Foster of Guelph, Ont., rear gunner; and Flt. Sgts. E. E. Davidson and D. H. Griese, lifelong friends from Beachburg, Ont., who operated the plane's beam guns.

Two Awarded Medals.

Gibbs, a Flight Sergeant at the time of the operation and since promoted, and Werbiski were awarded the Distinguished Flying Medal.

The Heinkels made a sudden swoop at the convoy through the clouds and Sutherland, braving the intense anti-aircraft barrage the convoy was sending up against the Nazi planes, decided to take on the whole formation one by one, though heavily out-gunned.

The Liberator fought three separate combats in 35 minutes.

Sutherland attacked one Heinkel just as it began its bomb run over the ships. It did not get a chance to unload its bombs because the bomber's gunners set fire to the enemy's starboard engines and it broke off the battle.

One Caught Fire.

The next Heinkel did the same after its engines caught fire and the third was chased away after a short clash.

Other Heinkels—the R.C.A.F. did not say how many were in the formation—scooted from the scene before the bomber could get at them.

The six Canadians in the crew came overseas early in 1943 and have been flying together since. Under the lapel of their battledress uniform all wear a black and white cloth reproduction of the head of "Dinty", a stuffed toy panda mascot. Dinty came with them from Montreal and they won't fly without him.

Attends Funeral Under Escort

Winnipeg, Jan. 22—(CP)—Grief-stricken, Mrs. Marguerite Abbott, 22, mother of two-year-old John Wayne Abbott, killed in a downtown house, attended the funeral of the child yesterday under police escort.

She sobbed throughout the brief service, and cried: "Oh, my baby, God knows I didn't do it".

Mrs. Abbott, and another woman, Mrs. Molly McNiece, a lodger, are held for investigation on a coroner's warrant, pending the inquest set for Jan. 27.

A police matron and a detective accompanied Mrs. Abbott to the funeral service.

Mrs. Abbott found the body of her son in her second-floor suite yesterday, its throat cut and its head battered. She had been absent a half an hour, she told police, downstairs for tea.

113,000 MEN DISCHARGED

Toronto, Jan. 22 — (CP) — A total of 113,000 men have been discharged from the Canadian Army in this war and the number is being increased at the rate of 2,000 a month, Jack Wager of the Canadian Legion last night told the Soldiers' Non-Pensioned Widows Association.

NAZIS CLAIM NEY LANDING

London, Jan. 22 — (AP) — The German high command said today Russian forces landed on the southern shores of Lake Ilmen, but Nazi counter-attacks smashed the bridgehead.

This Russian assault, perhaps over the ice of the lake, apparently was aimed at flanking Staraya Russia, Nazi stronghold an railway terminal south of the lake, the Germans said.

NAZIS UNAWARE OF PREPARATIONS FOR LANDINGS

For Days Waters Off Italian Coast Along 5th Front Black With Ships

NO ATTEMPT TO ATTACK

By RICHARD G. MASSACK
Associated Press War Correspondent

With the 5th Army in Italy, Jan. 22 (AP)—British and United States amphibious forces lunged ashore on the west coast of Italy before daybreak today and planted a beachhead wedge between the German armies to the south and their bases in the north.

The amphibious assault has been in preparation for weeks. For days the waters off the Italian coast along the 5th Army front have been black with huge concentrations of ships.

It seemed the Germans were unaware of these preparations. As far as is known here no attempt was made by Nazi planes, submarines or mosquito boats to attack the shipping at anchor waiting for the night when it would carry the assault to the enemy.

Ten German divisions have been identified on the 5th and 8th Army fronts in recent weeks with at least three more in the rear. The greater number of these forces presumably has been defending the roads to Rome on the 6th Army side of the peninsula where the fighting has been the heaviest.

The communique with its report of simultaneous attacks by the 5th Army on these German forces indicated Gen. Sir Harold Alexander recognized the necessity of wiping them out or driving them out of the area that lies west of the Appennines south of Rome.

Partisan Forces On Offensive In Many Sectors

London, Jan. 22. (CP)—Violent fighting throughout mountainous Croatia during which Marshal Josip Broz's (Tito's) Guerillas repulsed all German attacks and then swung over to the offensive was reported in the Yugoslav Liberation Army communique today.

Tito's forces were also mopping up in Western Bosnia areas which have been freed from the invader, the bulletin declared. Street fighting was still going on in German-ooccupied Tuzla, which was attacked by Tito's Partisans yesterday.

German detachments which attempted to blast a path from Banjaluka and Bosanka Gradiska in Central Croatia were driven back, Tito reported, while along the Croatian coastal area, near Ogliun, a German force was wiped out and 150 enemy troops killed. Farther north, near Karlovac, German thrusts were beaten back, and the Partisans have gone over to the offensive, it was added.

Rodzinski and Sinatra Disagree Over Merits of Boogie Woogie

By ROBERT THOMAS
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Hollywood, Jan. 22 (AP).—Open warfare between the long-hair group and the bobby-sock crowd developed today as Conductor Artur Rodzinski of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra termed Boogie Woogie "one of the greatest causes of delinquency among American youth today"—to which Crooner Sinatra answered "bunk".

At Camp Kilmer, N.J., where his 105-piece orchestra played an engagement last week, Rodzinski said the jive type of music leads to a "war degeneracy".

"Nuts," replied the king of swoon.

"I come in contact with thousands of youngsters on the street and through letters they write me, and they are sane, normal human beings," replied Sinatra, here to make a movie.

"I don't know exactly what the causes of juvenile delinquency are but I don't think anybody can prove that popular music is one of them."

Said Rodzinski: 'Devotees of Sinatra are pitiful cases; can't understand why 13 and 14-year-old girls go wild over him.

Sinatra: "Girls of the same age were wild about Valentino, Rudy Vallee and others, and they'll always be."

Rodzinski: "There is no need for swing music as long as there are such beautiful compositions as the Strauss waltzes to provide dance tempo."

Capture of Mga Restores Supply Line to Leningrad

Tip of Salient Long Held by Germans Removed By Offensive

OTHER ADVANCES

London, Jan. 22—(CP)— Soviet capture of Mga, key rail junction 30 miles southeast of Leningrad, has reunited Russia's second city by rail with Moscow for the first time since the city was laid under siege by the Germans two years ago, Moscow dispatches reported today.

At the same time Leningrad ganed a permament rail link to tap lend-lease supplies coming from the northern port of Murmansk through Volkhov. During the seige Allied supplies had been reaching the northern city over a railway built on Lake Ladoga's ice and a highway wrested from the enemy a year ago.

Capture of Mga, hailed by Premier Stalin yesterday in a special order of the day, liquidated the tip of a salient long held by the Germans southeast of the former Czarist capital.

Reduction of the strategic junction climaxed a new break-through on a 30-mile front from the Nerva River southeast to the town of Vinyagolovo. Under direct pressure from the advancing Soviet forces was the main Leningrad-Moscow trunk railway a few miles westward.

The two northern Russian armies were on the offensive along the whole of the Leningrad and Volkhov fronts, the Moscow communique reported. They are led by Gen. Leonid A. Govorov and Gen. Kyrii A. Meretskov, both of whom were cited by Stalin for the capture of Mga.

Other units of Govorov's Leningrad army were driving south and southwest of the city toward Krasnogvardeisk, junction of an east-west escape rail line leading to Narva, Estonia. Capture of this strategic centre would trap untold thousands of Germans fleeing from [illegible] east.

The same troops were driving Germans before them toward troops of Gen. Meretskov's army racing west from captured Novogorod, less than 100 miles south of Leningrad. Two thousand Germans were killed in this mopping-up operation.

Mga was captured in a linking manoeuvre by forces of Govorov's and Meretskov's armies. Here, the communique said, the demoralized Germans were throwing away their arms and surrendering in batches.

The Germans also were in trouble in lower White Russia. Here Gen. Rokossovsky's Baltic troops lunged out in the Kalinkovichi-Mozyr area and captured Ozarichi, district centre 25 miles northwest of Kalinkovichi, and eight other towns. The Germans left more than 1,000 dead on this front.

SEARCH OTHER CLUES

Chicago, Jan. 22 —(AP)—Frustrated in a dozen lines of investigation after 2 days of inquiry, police today sought clues to the murder of Mrs. Frank Starr Williams in the two safety boxes the diplomat's wife rented shortly before she was killed.

NO SYNTHETIC TIRES FOR PUBLIC FOR 18 MONTHS

Production Near Peak but Supply Needed for Essential Uses

40,000 TONS ANNUALLY

Chatham, Jan. 22 (CP)—Although the $48,000,000 synthetic rubber plant at Sarnia, Ont., is producing 40,000 long tons a year, there will be no lifting of restrictions to make tires available to the non-essential motoring public for at least a year and a half, R. C. Berkinshaw, President of government-owned Polymer Corporation, Ltd., told Kent Motor Club last night at its annual meeting.

The production program will hit full stride next week with completion of a final unit, said Mr. Berkinshaw, but the supply is sufficient only to meet military and essential civilian vehicle demands. Although Club last night a its annual meetcivilian list would be extended to include some motorists if the supply situation should improve, there were still many difficulties to be overcome before synthetic rubber processing could be perfected.

Equals Nazi Production

He said Canadian synthetic rubber production in "a short time" has reached a point practically equal to that achieved in Germany, where work on the process had been proceeding many years. Tests of Canadian production have proved satisfactory and the conversion use program is 60 per-cent-complete he said, adding that in some cases 90-per-cent conversion had been reached.

The over all synthetic program for North America was 850,000 long tons. The plant at Sarnia included four main producing units, including two for raw materials, buna-s and butyle synthetics.

"Sarnia was chosen as it is adjacent to essential oil refineries, situated on a river, and has access to highway and railroad," he said. "Approximately 35,000 barrels of oil and 15,000 gallons of water per day is used. The first sod was turned in August, 1942, and 11 months later, styrene, a basic material was produced.

Make Two Types

The plant was making Bunas at the end of September and within the next week will be making Butadiene, which now is imported from the United States.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

OVERHEATED STOVE CAUSES ALARM

An overheated stove which is thought to have set fire to clothes hanging behind caused small damage to the wall of the kitchen at 50 Ridley Avenue, Thursday afternoon and resulted in an alarm being rung in to the fire hall. Firemen answered the call with both trucks but found on arrival that the fire was practically extinguished and that but small damage had resulted.

CZECH. CHILDREN WILL GIVE PROGRAM OF FOLK SONGS, DANCES

A concert of Czechoslovakian folk songs and dances will be held in St. Michael's Academy on Sunday night by a group of 45 children from Batawa. When the information was received by the Catholic Women's League, they were also requested to lend their assistance in locating homes where these children and their guardians, four or five women and three men, might spend the day. Through the organization these homes were soon arranged for and accommodation will be provide. Some of the dances will be done in native costume and, while most of the songs will be rendered in the native language, several will be sung in English. The concert party is the first one of its kind by this group of Europeans who have come to Canada to settle.

SPLENDID MUSICIAN TO VISIT ARMY

One members of the musical party visiting at the local Salvation Army is Captain E. Parr, the finest soprano cornet player in the Dominion of Canada.

The soprano cornet is an instrument very little used in this district and is the flourish of the brass band. In the captain's capable hands he produces a tone similar to that of a flute.

On the visit of the general of the Salvation Army to Toronto a few years ago the captain thrilled thousands of people in the Maple Leaf Gardens playing the children's hymn "I Think When I Read That Sweet Story of Old."

CHILD STRUCK BY CAR NOT SERIOUSLY HURT

A small girl about six or seven years of age was struck and knocked to the pavement near the intersection of Front St. and Victoria Ave. Friday afternoon. The child picked herself up off the pavement apparently not seriously injured. The matter was reported to police by Alderman Newton Wilbur, who witnessed the accident. Sergt. Ellis and P. C. Wright investigated and found Roy Simpson, Dundas St., was the operator of the motor car in question. Simpson did not procure the name of the child struck, but told police she was not seriously injured, as the little girl proceeded on her way home from school.

PIN BALL MACHINE IN CITY CONFISCATED

In keeping with the recent announcements made by Attorney-General Leslie Blackwell, who stated that his department intended to "drive every slot and pin ball machine out of the province," the Provincial Police Anti-Gambling Squad made raids in Kingston and Belleville on Friday and confiscated pin ball machines.

Five members of the O.P.P. Anti-Gambling Squad were active in Belleville Friday night under Sergeant Wilkinson when a pin ball machine at Pappas' billiard emporium at 221 Front Street was removed from the premises and seized by the police after two of the police are reported to have played the machine. The matter will be heard in a subsequent court.

In his recent statement Attorney-General Blackwell stated his department hope "to reach the man behind the man who operates the machines."

MAN IS ARRESTED FOR THEFT OF TRAPS

George Baptiste, Tyendinaga Township, was arrested Friday in connection with the theft of 25 muskrat traps, the property of Ross Fuller. Provincial Constable Robt. O'Brien recovered the muskrat traps and was assisted in the arrest of Baptiste by Provincial Constable James Driscoll. The case will be heard in county police court next Thursday.

SNEAK THIEVES ENTER CLOAKROOM

Complaints that sneak thieves ransacked and stole articles from a cloakroom during a dance at Springbrook were being investigated by Provincial Police on Saturday. The report stated that at least two men's overcoats were stolen and that women's purses had been rifled during the progress of a dance on Friday night when compacts and money were stolen. Provincial Constables Driscoll and O'Brien investigated the matter and later Saturday were seeking two Belleville girls for questioning in the matter, they reported to superior officials.

AIR CADET SQUADRON HOLDS FIRST DANCE

Members of the local air cadet squadron, their officers and instructors, enjoyed a delightful social evening in the practice room of the Belleville Municipal Band on Friday evening when they staged the first annual dance. Arrangements were under the direction of Lieut. Fred Jobson, instructor for the air cadet band, while Mrs. Sam Johnson, wife of the cadet corps disciplinarian, catered to the function.

The band room was specially decorated for the occasion and made a lovely setting for the dance at which approximately 100 guests were entertained. Hostesses for the event were Mrs. Dawson Boyd Mrs. J. M. Wilson, Mrs. M. C. Ryan and Mrs. H. F. Mott, wives of air cadet officers and instructors. Cadet members brought their own partners and dancing was enjoyed from eight until midnight following which refreshments were served. The fact that dancing was done to a "juke box" dampened not one whit the ardor of those in attendance and all expressed themselves as having a splendid time.

ACCOUNT SHOULD HAVE READ "NOT GUILTY"

Sometimes one small word can make a vast difference in a news story, especially when it comes to the matter of police court proceedings. In the account of Friday's police court proceedings the story read that one Vernon Orr had pleaded guilty to a charge of assault. The word NOT was inadvertently left out, as Mr. Orr pleaded not guilty and the case was subsequently dismissed against him.

MINISTERIAL ASSOC. ENTERTAINS CHAPLAINS

The Belleville Ministerial Association entertained the Chaplains of the area at a dinner held in the Y.M.C.A. on Friday evening. The meeting was presided over by the Rev. H. O. Eastman, pastor of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church. The discussion of the evening was led by Flight Lieutenant Hamilton, Protestant Chaplain, Mountain View Air Station.

The city ministers and R.C.A.F. Chaplains discussed the problems to be met in post-war planning for men returning from overseas, and those discharged from the forces at the end of the war. Dr. James Semple, in reporting the meeting said that the subject might be called: "After Hostilities Cease, What Will be Done for the Men?" A lively and active debate was participated in by both the chaplains and ministers. The meeting was arranged by Dr. James Semple. Tentative plans were laid out for future consideration and the complete co-ordination of the Church with post-war planning commissions, civic bodies and other organizations directly associated with rehabilitation work.

ONE OTHER WOMAN PRESIDENT OF V.O.N.

In connection with the announcement following the Annual Meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses that Miss Bernice Arbuckle held the distinction of being the first woman president of the Belleville Branch, it was learned today that the office of president was held by Mrs. Thomas J. Holland during 1935 and 1936. Mrs. Holland has been closely associated with the Victorian Order for a number of years and, while president of the Local Branch, devoted considerable time to the duties which will now fall upon the shoulders of Miss Arbuckle whom, it is anticipated, will perform them with the same efficiency as did her predecessor.

Prices of Eggs Slightly Lower

The price of eggs again took a slight drop on the local produce market Saturday and were quoted at 38 cents a dozen, two cents under last week's quotations. Mediums sold at 35 cents the dozen and pullets generally brought 30 cents. Wartime Prices and Trade Board inspectors were on hand to see that farmers did not ask prices higher than the ceiling.

The offering of fowl was small with only a very few farmers having chickens for sale. Prices ranged up to 45 cents the pound for fully dressed birds.

Attendance on the outside market was also at a low ebb despite the advent of rather spring-like weather. Apples predominated with first grade Spies, McIntosh and Delicious bringing $3 bushel and lesser grades up to $2.50. Talman Sweets also brought $2.50 the bushel while a few russets were to be had at a corresponding figure.

On the vegetable market potatoes sold up to $2.10 per bag although the majority were quoted at straight $2. Carrots brought 40 cents the peck and parsnips 25 cent the half-peck with sauerkraut selling at 15 cents the quart. Cabbages sold at from 10 to 20 cents each.

Only one lot of young pigs were offered at the usual price of from $3 to $4 ,while one load of mixed dry cordwood was offered at $10 the cord.

Obituary

MARTIN HART
(Deseronto)

Deseronto, Jan. 22.—Following a lengthy illness, the death of Martin Hart, a well-known and highly regarded citizen of Deseronto, occurred on Monday evening, January 17. He was born in Read, Ont., on Jan 14, 1865, son of the late John Hart and Mary Nevin. Mr. Hart came to Deseronto at the age of twenty and resided here ever since. For many years he was employed by the Rathbun Co. In 1903, he assumed his duties as caretaker of the Deseronto Post Office. This position he held until his retirement in 1934, which fact is evidence that at all times he gave very efficient service. The deceased was twice married, his first wife, being Margaret Meagher, who predeceased him in 1929. He is survived by his widow formerly Mary Callaghan, daughter of the late Denis Callaghan of Campbellford, and three brothers, Edward, of Hart, Michigan; John, of St. Catharines and Peter, of Point Anne.

The funeral took place from his late residence on Thomas Street to St. Vincent de Paul Church for Requiem Mass, which was sung by Rev. G. T. Martin with Rev. Dean Leacy in the Sanctuary. The prayers at the cemetery were recited by Rev. Dean Leacy. Interment was made in St. Vincent de Paul Cemetery, Deseronto.

The pall bearers were, E. M. Roach, Alex. Therrien, Peter Whalen, James Gartland, Richard Kennedy and Thos. Bowler.

Testimony of the regard in which the deceased was held in this community was evidenced by the many spiritual offerings received.

NO SYNTHETIC

"There has been much conjection as to the post war possibilities of synthetic rubber," said Mr. Berkinshaw. "I think the product has a definite place in the post war world, although it will have to stand on its own feet in competition with natural rubber products. Indications are that it can be produced at reasonable cost, and in some instances answers requirements better than ray rubber products.

The answer to one of the main difficulties, that of heat, has been found in the use of rayon fabrics for the walls of the larger tires which heat up quickly, but the main difficulty is to get enough rayon fabric to replace the cotton fabric.

Police Surprised By Stranger's Unusual Request

"I'm the man you want", was the startling statement made to police just outside of Trenton on Friday afternoon, when Donald Ellis of Peterborough, hailed a police car after telephoning to the Trenton police station to state he had forged a cheque in Belleville.

Chief Bain was sitting in his office at the Trenton police station Friday afternoon, discussing matters with Provincial Constables W. E. Smith and Robt. O'Brien when the telephone rang. Answering the 'phone Chief Bain was surprised to hear—"I forged a cheque for $18 in Belleville yesterday. Drive out to the Wooler road and pick me up". Being accommodating the three officers proceeded to the place where a man hailed the police car shouting "I'm the man you want". He gave his name as Donald Ellis and stated he had been recently discharged from the army but was having domestic trouble in his home. "I want to go to jail", was another surprising statement Ellis is said by police to have made.

Constables Smith and O'Brien escorted Ellis to Belleville and arrived at the police station here at the same time as the man who had been victimized with the forged cheque the day previous hove into sight to lodge his complaint.

All in all it was rather coincidental, but the local newstand operator who cashed the cheque is still minus his eighteen greenbacks and Ellis says he's quite happy being lodged in jail in remand.

Major Murray Defends Policy

Toronto, Jan. 22—(CP)— Maj. Gladstone Murray, Toronto Policy Counsel who has been the frequent target of C. C. F. criticism, said last night he is "in no way associated with any political party" and asserted there is nothing hidden about his activities—"what I advocate is published as widely as I can arrange."

In the course of an address to the foremen's club of West Toronto on "partnership or class-war" he said his clients are industrial concerns. He was making a start in a competitive business and in the elementary protection of his own interests he could not now disclose their names. He said: "they represent a cross-section of the industry and business of Canada, and are wholeheartedly behind the doctrines and policies which I advocate."

(In an address at Red Deer last month C. C. F. leader Coldwell claimed Maj. Murray was spear-heading a campaign to "smear" the party. Previously E. B. Jolliffe, Ontario C. C. F. leader, in a Hamilton speech referred to Maj. Murray as having been "hired by the progressive conservative party to "advise on the mind of the masses and how to frighten them against the C. C. F.")

Maj. Murray said last night: "Those who wish to avoid meeting argument by strewing red herrings across the trail accuse me of engineering deep and nefarious plots, and of using secret and improper methods . . . I stick to arguments and leave smearing and personal attacks to my opponents."

In his address last night he asserted his belief in "orderly evolution by applying the social conscience, and by preserving us from any kind of dictatorship."

Communism had done a good job for Russia, after the tyranny of the Czarist regime, but would be inacceptable in Canada. Any possibility of the success of a National Planning Commission as projected by the C. C. F. would be defeated, he said, by political horse-trading within the party, and "delay and jobbery."

BERLIN STATES

The object of the present operations in Italy, Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson announced Monday, was one primary objective — to take Rome.

So thorough has been the air force's sealing-off the Rome area from the north, that German troops under attack have been left with "what they stand up in"—their immediate resources on the spot—, air force officials said.

Twenty Nazi planes were shot down in yesterday's intensive air preparation for the offensive. Five Allied planes were lost. Shipping off the Yugoslav coast was attacked and a merchant vessel was sunk in the Gulf of Genoa.

The new thrust against the flank of the Germans was the first big scale landing operation since the invasion of the Salerno beaches in September.

"Naval and air forces are supporting the ground troops," the communique from the headquarters of Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Allied commander in Italy, said.

HOME FIRES LOW

During the winter 1942-43 British domestic and industrial consumers of coal affected an economy of 11,000,000 tons in response to the government's request. This was 3,000,000 tons more than the advance estimate of saving.

Post-War Reserve Fund Set Up By County Council By-Law At Closing Session of Body

Money to be Realized Through Levy of an Additional Mill on Tax Rate

SALARIES ADJUSTED

Members of Hastings County Council at their final meeting of the January session passed a by-law calling for the setting up of a post-war reserve fund to be used for a road construction and maintenance program that may be inaugurated as part of a rehabilitation program. The sum to be set aside during the current year will be $25,000 the money in all probability to be realized through a levy of an additional mill on the tax rate.

The by-law authorizing the setting up of the reserve fund will be forwarded to the department for approval.

As was the case during a previous session, considerable discussion was heard on the matter before the by-law was ultimately passed. Reeve William Linn of Marmora, started the ball rolling when he declared himself as opposed to setting up the reserve fund. "I say win the war first", he said. "Then, if we need the money, we can easily get it".

Took Longer View.

"I am inclined to take a longer view of the situation", returned Reeve J. L. Churcher of Dungannon. "This is a matter of great importance and significance. This war is of gigantic proportions but the problems, which will follow it will be of far greater importance than that which we are witnessing today.

"Our splendid boys and girls have gone forth and have done almost the impossible. What for, I ask you? They are fighting for that thing, which we have maintained and which we desire most of all to keep—democracy. Are we going to sit in council and permit such good legislation as this pass by and let these young people come back to an empty Canada? That's why I am asking that this matter be treated seriously. I say set aside a mill each year, or a mill and a half. If we don't spend it, it still remains an asset".

Must Practice Economy.

"I suppose I have to answer that." said Mr. Linn in reply, "but I still maintain that if we need the money when the war is over we can get it. As county councillors we are sworn to look to the interests of county business as we would look after our own".

Ex-Warden W. J. Davis supported Mr. Churcher's contention and urged that the establishment of a surplus fund to be invested in bonds would be good business. "That is what the individual is being urged to do—establishing a nest egg through purchase of Victory Bonds—and it should be good business for the municipality to lay aside now while the money is available".

"I am in hearty accord with Mr. Churcher and Mr. Davis", stated Reeve Charles Rush. "This discussion brings back to me the days of the depression following the last war when people asked why money could not be raised to make work. Hastings is now in a good position to establish such a fund and if we can do it I am ready and willing to bear my fair share".

Clinching his argument from a patriotic viewpoint, Mr. Davis indicated that councillors must realize the men and women who are now fighting are the ones who were deprived of making a living during the depression. When the matter of the by-law was put to council for the vote it was decided the money should be detailed for a roadwork program as the fairest means of distribution.

Salaries Adjusted.

As the result of apparent inequality of salaries received by the county treasurer and clerk as listed in the auditors' financial report, the respective salaries paid these two staff members were adjusted by council members. According to the financial statement it appeared that the county treasurer received $300 more per annum than did the clerk, but this was not the case, it was pointed out. In the clerk's agreement he was to receive a stipulated salary plus free and unrestricted use of the house intended for the clerk's use, but he did not use the house and was therefore entitled to the rent collected. On the other hand, the treasurer, while receiving an extra $300 in salary, paid back to the county a like amount as rent for the county house in which he resided.

Taking into consideration cost of living bonuses paid to the two officials, and which will be discontinued in February, councillors voted to adjust their salaries to $2,100 per annum which is in accordance with their former salares prior to a reduction during depression years. Under the new arrangement salaries of both clerk and treasurer will appear the same in the financial report.

Financial Statement Given.

The financial statement as presented by the county auditors showed an actual expenditure during 1943 of $271,587 as compared with actual receipts of $282,211. Excess of receipts over expenditures was thus $10,224. The current surplus to date was listed as approximately $55,000 including accounts receivable.

The heaviest expenditure during the year was the county roads and bridges upon which a total of $79,398 was spent. Road estimated expenditure for year had been $80,000. Schools cost the county another $58,132 with the administration of justice calling for $25,010. Municipal government cost $11,015; the House of Refuge $17,002, indigent accounts $14,747 and the Children's Aid Society $22,186 with $11,922 being disbursed through the patriotic fund.

Revenue from county rates totalled $204,770; roads and bridges, $41,066; administration of justice $17,438; House of Refuge $11,309 and collected from indigent accounts $5,943.

Members Meet Council.

The two members of the Legislative Assembly for Hastings County, Mr. Richard Arnott and Mr. Roscoe Robson attended council during the afternoon session, emphasizing that despite the fact it had been earlier inferred that Kingston had been chosen as the site of a proposed sanatorium, nothing had in reality been definitely decided. During the morning session Dr. Brink of the Department of Health addressed council intimating that the county would be asked for a subscription toward the construction of a new sanatorium and inferred Kingston as the site chosen.

"We can assure you that there has been as yet no definite decision as to the site of the proposed sanatorium", stated Mr. Arnott. "The whole thing is merely in the discussion stage with nothing determined. I understand that Dr. Brink merely asked, that a committee be formed to meet with other committees and discuss the matter with the Department. If there is any possible chance of the sanatorium being built in Hastings it will not be through lack of effort on our part if it is built in Kingston".

Corroborated Statements.

Mr. Robson corroborated Mr. Arnott's statements and assured that every effort would be made to have the sanatorium constructed in Hastings County. Council then passed a resolution that if the sanatorium was proceeded with a petition would be forwarded to the department asking that it be built in Hastings.

Grants passed during the final session included $75 to each of the public libraries in Deseronto, Stirling, Madoc, Tweed, Marmora, Frankford, Bancroft, Deloro and Huntingdon Township. County fee to the Good Roads Convention was voted paid with delegate appointed being the present road committee with Mr. Haggerty, Mr. J. A. Moore and Mr. James Nickle. Deputy Reeve of Hungerford Township Mr. Harry Coulter and the County Clerk were appointed delegates to the Ontario Association of Rural Municipalities annual, while Chairman J. A. Bell, and Ex-Warden Rush were appointed delegates to the Agricultural Advisory Council annual. The regular northern school grants were also voted paid.

High school trustee appointments included Dr. Eagleson of Madoc; J. Waddington of Deseronto; W. A. Reid of Trenton; J. B. Belshaw of Stirling; Dr. W. A. Paul of Tweed, and D. Robertson of Marmora.

Concluding the session Reeve J. A. Bell moved a vote of thanks to Warden Fleming for the efficient manner in which he conducted the session business. Date for the June session was set for June 6th.

2 MEN SOUGHT FOR ATTEMPTED ABDUCTION

Woman Pulled Into Car Outwits Her "Attackers," Turns Off Ignition and Throws Key Out Car Window

Hamilton, Jan. 21 —(CP)—Police today were seeking two men who last night attacked and attempted to abduct Mrs. Sonja Inkster as she waited for a street car.

She told police an automobile drew up to the curb where she waited and one man pulled her into the car, which sped away. She managed to lower a window and shout for help and as she did so, one of her captors loosed his grip to close the window.

Mrs. Inkster turned off the ignition and threw the keys out the window, she said, and as the automobile rolled to a stop she broke free. Police were called but the men had started the car and escaped.

MAGDEBURG HIT

Yesterday's daylight operations against the Pas-De-Calais region cost the attacking force 11 planes, six of them United States heavy bombers. Nineteen German fighters were shot from the sky. The Allied attackers dropped perhaps 2,000 tons of bombs.

A post-midnight comunique announced jointly by the British and American Air Commandos once again shed no official light on what the raiding forces have been hitting so frequently and with such weight in this coastal area of France. The targets were described simply as military objectives in the portion of France closest to England.

The daylight forces consisted of hundreds of American heavy and medium bombers and nearly all types of British planes.

Gunners of Flying Fortresses and Liberators were credited with destroying seven of the 19 enemy planes shot down. Escorting American fighters got an equal number, while R.A.F., Dominion and Allied fighters knocked down five.

In addition to the six U.S. heavy bombers, the Allied attacking force lost two light bombers and three fighters.

County Council Hears of Plan For Tuberculosis Sanatorium To Be Built at Kingston

Warden Fleming and Ex-Warden Dr. S. S. Lumb Appointed to Meet With District County Councils in Committee

25 PATIENTS IN COUNTY

The Ontario Department of Health is suggesting the counties and urgan municipalities in Central and Eastern nOtaro subscribe to the construction of a sanatorium for tuberculosis patients which is proposed to be built in Kingston, it was learned at county council during the Friday morning session.

Councillors were addressed by Dr. G. C. Brink, Director of Tuberculosis Prevention for the Ontario Department of Health, on the matter and asked for the appointment of a committee to go into the question more thoroughly, to act as liaison officer between the municipality and the Department, and possibly later to interview Kingston officials. A committee of Dr. S. S. Lumb of Bancroft and Warden Thomas Fleming was appointed before the speaker left the floor.

Hardships of county tuberculosis patients and their families were created through the lack of adequate sanatorium facilities and beds in the district, according to Dr. Brink. Despite the fact that the province has assumed the cost of tuberculosis hospitalization, patients still have to travel long distances with the result that in some cases they stay at home until they become incurable thereby spreading the disease. Hastings was not so bad in this respect as some other counties, he said.

County Asked to Subscribe

Throughout the province there is one sanatorium bed for every 1,045 persons, while in the Bay of Quinte district there is only one bed for every 1,800 persons. At the present time there are a total of 25 tuberculosis patients from Hastings in sanatoriums, four of them at Kingston and the balance in western Ontario.

The object is to have neighboring counties and urban municipalities subscribe to the construction of the sanatorium whereupon the province would assume the maintenance costs. The department considers Kingston is the logical place for construction because of the medical college in that city. It would be a 100-bed hospital. There was no suggestion as to the amount of subscription needed from Hastings. Dr. Brink merely asking that the committee be set up.

Council Advised of Change.

Following closely upon a discussion heard in council, during an earlier session at which it was decided to approach the Federation of Agriculture regarding changes in the payment of hog subsidies to farmers, Reeve W. J. Davis, former chairman of the Agricultural Advisory Council, told members that he had received information a change in bonus payment had already been made and would go into effect shortly.

Under the new system packing house grader slips received by the farmer will have attached coupons, which may be cashed in payment for premium subsidies. These would be something in the nature of coupons on Victory Bonds, and would be for both Federal and Provincial bonuses. The province would then later reimburse the Federal government for their share of the bonus. There will also be changes in the grading, he intimated, with a small penalty being afforded for off-grade hogs grading close to specified requirements.

Concur in Resolution.

Council concurred in a Simcoe County resolution asking that the province assume a greater portion of the costs of Children's Aid Society work, while a like procedure was seen in regard to a resolution from Grey County asking that the price of butter, cheese, beef and hogs be increased in proportion to increased farm labor costs.

No action was taken on a Lincoln county resolution asking that the province assume the full cost of indigent patient hospitalization. It was felt that in this procedure there would be fewer investigations made into the ability of patients to pay their own way. Neither was action taken on an Elgin County resolution asking the Federal government to abandon subsidy payments and institute parity prices.

Usual Grants Voted.

Under Ways and Means with W. C. West in the chair, council voted the usual grants to the northern townships, Bangor $450; Monteagle and Herschel, $300; Faraday $300; Dungannon $300; Mayo $300; Wollaston $300; Limerick $300; Tudor Cashel $300; Lake and Wollaston Boundary Road $200, and Elzevir and Grimsthorpe $200. The grants will be payable June 1st.

A grant of $25 was voted to the Ontario Conservation and Reforestation Association with the usual grant of $150 being voted to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. This organization asked for $400. The fee of $10 to the educational council was voted paid with Clerk Erle Denyes and Harry Harrison, deputy reeve of Thurlow, being appointed as delegate to the annual convention. The Salvation Army was granted the usual $150 and the fee for the annual convention of the Association for Managers of county homes ordered paid. Mr. and Mrs. Sandercock, with chairman of the House of Refuge committee, Mr. A. A. Harvie, were appointed delegates. The remaining grant voted at the morning session was one of $50 to the Quinte Seed Growers' Association.

BANCROFT

Colt Kicks Turriff Youth in Face

Bancroft (Special)—Russell, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward McLean of Turriff was badly injured Wednesday morning when kicked by a colt. Russell was watering the horses and had tied the team up in the stable and after tieing up the colt was just leaving when the animal let drive with its hind feet one hoof striking the boy fairly on the chin and mouth, causing a large gash on the chin which later required two stitches and two clamps to close. Several of his teeth were also broken and loosened and he was brought to Bancroft and attended by Dr. O. W. Anderson, he was treated with lock-jaw serum and later returned to his home.

Pte. Watson Returns

Mrs. Ray Watson of the village certainly received a welcome surprise Wednesday when her husband Pte. Ray Watson returned home from overseas. Ray enlisted with the H. & P. E. Regiment going overseas in December 1939 where he has been up until his arrival home. After being overseas some time he was transferred over to the C.G.R.U. Mrs. Watson had not heard from her husband for quite some time and could hardly believe her eyes when her husband stepped into their home Wednesday morning. The two children puzzled him as he did not recognize them during his four years absence and they also did not recognize their daddy. Ray is home on a twenty-eight day leave and expects after that date to report to Kingston.

Police Court

Police Court was held in Bancroft Wednesday afternoon with Magistrate J. L. Lloyd of Northbrook presiding over the court and disposed of the following cases:

William Sallans and Hermon Maxwell were each charged with a breach of the H.T.A. as a result of an accident which occurred in Bancroft on Hastings Street Sunday.

Royce son of Mr. Fred Seymour charged with failing to comply with conditions of a suspended sentence, and also with the theft of goods amounting to over $50 from his father, was found guilty and sentenced to one month in the county jail at Belleville.

Trout Biting

Several of the local residents are reporting very good catches of lake trout through the ice on nearby lakes.

O.E.S. Holds Party

The officers and members of Bancroft Chapter O.E.S. No 157 entertained members of the Masonic Order at their annual birthday party held in the Chapter room Wdenesday evening. A very nice attendance was on hand for the occasion and everyone reported having a splendid time. Euchre and Bridge being the evening's entertainment, following cards a very dainty luncheon was served.

Obituary

LATE MRS. GEORGE STONE

Rawdon.—The funeral of the late Mrs. George Stone, formerly Elda Matilda White was held at Wellman's United Church on Wednesday, January 19. The edifice was filled with sorrowing friends and relatives who had come to pay their last tribute of respect to a young woman of a noble Christian character who was loved for her quiet and sincere personality.

Mount Pleasant choir with their pianist, Mrs. Kenneth Weaver assisted by members of Wellman's choir sang "Good Night and Good Morning".

Miss Mina Dracup and her sister, Mrs. Frederick Beckett of Wellman's, sang as a duet, "The Lord is My Shepherd".

The congregational hymns were "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and "Peace Perfect Peace".

Rev. T. F. Townsend, pastor of Rawdon circuit, officiated at the service and Mr. W. E. Belch gave a comforting message based on "The value of being prepared to enter the Heavenly Home".

The pall-bearers were three from Sidney Township: Messrs. Fred Westover, Will Bush and Earl Bush and three from Mount Pleasant Messrs. Percy MacMullen, Wilfrid Sine and Allan Reid.

The floral tributes were beautiful and many in number.

Mrs. Stone came with her parents from Harold in 1918 to Mount Pleasant community and resided there until her marriage in February 1933. She was a faithful member of Mount Pleasant United Church during her sojourn here and she will be missed by a host of friends in Rawdon and Sidney.

Among those in attendance at the funeral was a brother, LAC. Percy White, R.C.A.F., of Brantford.

She leaves to mourn, her sorrowing husband and five small children, her parents, a twin brother, John White, Rawdon, and four other brothers and one sister, a brother, Wilmot died in early childhood.

The interment was made in the family plot in Wellman's Cemetery.

West Huntingdon

Annual At-Home Of W. I. Is Held In Ivanhoe Hall

Huntingdon Township People Pleased Reeve Fleming Now Warden of Hastings

CIRCUIT MEETING

West Huntingdon. — The annual Women's Institute 'at home' was held in Ivanhoe Hall on Tuesday evening. There was a good attendance. Mrs. Clifford Mitts called the gathering to order and appointed Mr. Chester Sills as chairman for the evening's entertainment. In his opening remarks he complimented the ladies on the high standard of their endeavors and made a needful suggestion to further their war effort. A very fine program was presented which included the following:

Community singing of patriotic songs, a girls' chorus from the West Huntingdon Public School. A very pleasing dialogue was presented entitled "Getting Rid of an Agent", by Marjorie Wright, Geo. Post, Muriel Ashley and Joyce Wallace. A trio namely, Ileen and Reita McAvoy and Muriel Ashley, delighted the audience by singing "Star Spangled Banner", and "Twenty Long Years I've Been Married". A duet by Kenneth Foram and Allan Wallace; a chorus by Ivanhoe High School girls with Catharine Duggan at the piano; a humorous reading by Miss Alta Hanna, and two pleasing duets by Jean and Vincent Farrell. Mrs. Milton Shaw contributed a solo. The highlight of the evening's entertainment was a debate. The subject was "resolved that a woman can do a man's work better than a man do a woman's work". It was exceptionally well taken with Miss Margaret Wright and Mrs. Clifford Mitts supporting the the affirmative part and Mr. Kenneth Stewart and Mr. Elmer Post the negative. The judges were Rev. O. Wagar, Mr. J. E. Chard and Mr. Arthur Wood. Mr. Wagar gave the judges' decision in favor of the affirmative. The ladies served a lunch.

Official Meeting.

The official board meeting of the United Church of the West Huntingdon circuit held their annual business meeting in the vestry of the Moira United Church on Friday afternoon with delegates present from Eggleton, West Huntingdon and Moira. Mr. Kenneth Stewart presided and was assisted in the worship service by Rev. David Grey and Mr. Bert Reid. The treasurers' reports from the four appointments were received and revealed substantial balances after all obligations had been met and in addition the circuit had nearly $1,200 invested in Victory Bonds and War Saving Certificates. Mr. Blake Ketcheson was re-appointed recording steward and Mr. Philip Carr, lay delegate to Presbytery and Conference.

A resolution which was endorsed by all present was forwarded to Presbytery officials asking that Mr. Kenneth Stewart be the minister for the sixth term, also that the circuit remain same as in former years.

Previous to the meeting the members and their wives enjoyed a banquet provided by the Moira W.A. in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Herity.

St. Andrew's Annual Meeting.

Members of St. Andrew's Church held their annual meeting in the Sunday School room of the church on Monday evening with a good attendance and Rev. W. H. Walker presiding. Following the worship service reports were received from the following clerk of the session, who reported five baptisms. One new church member and three deaths during the year. The auditor's report showed the financial part of the church work was in good circumstances. Other reports received were from Secretary of the Sunday School, W.M.S. treasurer, Ladies' Aid, also of Mission Band. Following the usual discussion period of ways and means to further the work. The election of officers for 1944 took place both for the church and Sunday school. Mr. and Mrs. Walker were given a vote of appreciation for their work during the year.

Endeavors' Class Meeting.

The January meeting of the Endeavors' Class was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sandy McCurdy and was presided over by Mrs. John Moorcroft. Those contributing to the evening's entertainment were Mrs. Mac Sarles and Mrs. Clifford Green contributing a duet. A reading was given by Mrs. Clifford Elliott. Mrs. Nelson Welsh of Moira, was to have been the special speaker but could not be present and Mrs. Clayton Wright read her address, which was on guidance for the year 1944.

Mr. Kenneth Stewart conducted the election of officers for 1944 and those who will give guidance to the class activities for year are President, Mr. Mac Sarles; 1st Vice President, Mrs. Frank Hammond; Sec'y-Treasurer, Mr. Sandy McCurdy. An invitation to hold the next meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Dohnan was accepted.

Royal Scarlett Meeting.

The Royal Scarlett Chapter of District No. 3, Centre Hastings, held an annual meeting in Lodge Room of 300, at West Huntingdon, on Friday evening, following the regular work. The following officers were duly elected and installed by Past Commander, Arthur Jones.

W.C. in Command, Sam Twiddy.
E.C. in Command, Harold McGee
Chaplain, Philip Carr.
Scribe, William French.
Treasurer, Goldie McInroy.
Sir Herald at Arms, Geo. Morgan.
1st Lecturer, Milton Reid.
2nd Lecturer, Elmer Post.
Tyler, John McInroy.
Herald, John Wallace.

Elected Warden of Hastings Co.

Residents of Huntingdon township were much pleased when they learned of the appointment of Mr. Tom Fleming as Warden of Hastings County for 1944. Tom, who has been the popular reeve of Huntingdon for the past five years, will give good sound leadership to the council affairs. He is being congratulated by his many friends.

Personals.

The W.A. of Fuller United Church met at the home of Mrs. Ben Brough on Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. J. E. Chard spent Sunday evening at Arthur Wilson's.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carr visited friends this week at Norwood and Peterboro.

Mr. Kenneth Stewart was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Burke for tea on Wednesday.

FOXBORO

Women's Aux. Meets

Foxboro — A dinner served by one of the Circle Groups was largely attended and very much enjoyed in the Sunday School rooms on Thursday, following which was the meeting of the general W. A. Mrs. John Gowsell had charge of a very impressive worship service based on the theme "Be Still and Know That I Am God." Miss Amelia Clarke gave the meditation and Mrs. Gowsell gave an appropriate story. A prayer by Mrs. Walter Wickett closed this part and the president, Mrs. W. Scott, then took charge of the business. Corresponding secretary reported sending a large number of cards to sick and bereaved ones for which grateful replies were given. The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. W. Wickett and discussion followed concerning purchasing some new furniture for the parsonage and it was decided to cater to a banquet in the near future. Mrs. Joe Waddell had charge of a short program which consisted of a true story read by Miss Ethel Gowsell and a reading by Mrs. E. Tummon.

Allan Mills

Mr. and Mrs. A. Burkitt spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. McAdam of Mt. Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Cotton and family of Harold spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Stiles.

The friends were shocked to hear of the sudden death of the late Frank Anderson on Tuesday, Jan. 18th.

INTENSIFY SEARCH

Chicago, Jan. 21. (AP) —Police intensified their hunt today for the killer of Mrs. Frank Starr Williams, 56-year-old socially prominent wife of an American diplomat.

Mrs. Williams died last night, 23 hours after a mysterious, middle-aged woman, who had gained entrance to her hotel apartment, fired a bullet into her head.

Members of the Williams' family, police said, expressed astonishment over the shooting and are unable to suggest any motives.

However, First Assistant State's Attorney Wilbur F. Crowley, who advanced a theory of "revenge", asserted "it is fairly well established that Mrs. Williams had some enemies".

Tojo Grows Anxious

Japanese Premier Tojo with characteristic Japanese insincerity, untruthfulness and extravagance on Friday spoke of "a golden opportunity" to strike a crushing blow at the Allies. That in itself is an admission that the Japanese have not been able to strike a crushing blow themselves. His reference to the need to speed to the front "superior aircraft" is proof that Japanese aircraft are not of that superior class.

Knowing what has been the success of the Allied Powers in the air against Japan, Tojo says "air power will decide the general trend in the present war situation and determine its outcome."

The urgency he mentions of an immediate increase in iron, light metals and coal and an improvement in land and sea communication is proof that the course of the war has been very unsatisfactory to Japan. In the air and on the sea Japan has suffered very heavy losses, Jap planes being shot down at the rate of five or seven Japanese or even higher to one Allied plane and Japanese shipping has been reported as very heavily handicapped by the severe losses which have been inflicted upon the Nipponese. Tojo admitted very heavy shipping losses.

Tojo's reference to American production of war materials as having already reached its peak can be taken as wishful thinking by the Japanese militarist, and a desperate hope.

His statement that Japan would welcome a long war indicates that desperate hope of Japan to have time to consolidate and develop her gains made early in the war and to make use of resources of the overrun lands which she took. Her lack of adequate shipping and the decline of her air strength and the quality of her pilots and airplanes have been having a serious effect upon her war effort.

A very enlightening viewpoint on this speech of Tojo's is the view held by United States War Secretary Stimson who sees indications that Japanese resistance in the South Pacific may be collapsing in northern New Guinea, that Allied troops were making steady progress throughout the southwest Pacific, and that there were evidences that some of the Japanese were trying to escape by barges at night and that several of these troop-laden barges had been sunk near Saidor. Allied troops too are constantly enlarging their beachheads in New Britain, he said.

Even on Friday 12 more Japanese merchant ships were reported sunk by United States submarines to make the total of 558 Japanese ships sent to the bottom or damaged, 408 of them definitely sunk, while in addition American submarines have probably sunk 36 Japanese vessels and damaged 114 others.

Tojo is worried by the losses of ships and planes and the successful offensives of the Allied forces in the Pacific.

The Appian Way

Twenty-two hundred and fifty-six years ago Appius Claudius, the Roman censor, completed the great Appian Way extending from Rome to Capua. The Romans of old have been highly praised for the thoroughness and the knowledge of science they applied in the construction of their military highways many centuries ago. The Appian Way was built in an era when the ancient city of Rome was in her early growth. She had begun expansion within Italy. When the Appian Way, now in the news as having been reached by the Allied forces under General Clark, was built Rome had yet to pass through nearly three centuries of expansion before she was to reach the era of Augustus, first of the emperors. In that three hundred years she expanded greatly and came to rule the Mediterranean and to penetrate far north into Europe, reaching Britain, fighting with the German tribes and extending her bounds far into Asia Minor and in North Africa, particularly Egypt. And then the gradual decline of Roman power followed over the centuries.

Now after many centuries the Appian Way again occupies attention. The soldiers of Britain, which was far north to the old Romans, march with the soldiers of a world which was unknown to the Romans of old and until the completion of nearly fifteen centuries of the Christian era, the Americans, and are mentioned as having been successful in reaching the Appian Way. The ancient highway today leads to Rome with the promise of liberation of the Eternal City from the grasp of world's most hated conqueror.

The old Appian Way was built of stones four or five feet long, carefully joined together with gravel, furnished with stones for mounting and descending on horse back with milestones and with houses in which to lodge.

100 Tons of Bombs a Minute

Berlin has attained the status of having been the city which has been bombed at the rate of one hundred tons of bombs per minute for twenty minutes.

The rise in the speed of delivering bombs against the enemy is one of the phenomenal developments of the war. Not long ago newspapers were able to give some facts after the development of air strategy by the R.A.F. and the fact was stressed that speed with which bombs were dropped and with which the attacking planes could deliver their loads had much to do with the success of raids and the diminution of losses of the attacking planes.

To Avoid Colds, Be Gay

Some of the things doctors are saying today are quoted in the British Medical Journal of London: "A happy person has a remarkable immunity from the common cold." "Disturbing revelations have been made that the rate of infantile mortality among the poorer classes in this country (Britain) was the highest in the civilized world between the two great wars." "The death rate in Glasgow is higher than it is in Tokyo." "Separation from home and family bears heavily on the youth, particularly the only or younger son, for whom the solicitude of the mother is still the criterion of what he may expect from the world."

The British at War

(Chicago Daily News)

From Britain's population of 46,750,000, there are 33,100,000 between the ages of 14 and 65. Of these 22,750,000 are in full employment, meaning that they are either in the armed forces, essential industry, or civilian defence, which has been combed out and limited to the minimum number of absolutely indispensable personnel. The remaining 10,350,000 include those running one-man businesses and women with household duties.

There are today in Britain twice the number of women between the ages of 18 and 59 in the armed forces and industry, as there were at the end of the last war. Of women between the ages of 18 and 40, 91 percent of the single women and 80 percent of the married, childless women are in the forces or in essential industry.

The nine percent of the single women who are not are medically unfit, have family responsibilities, or are students.

The Versatility of Glass

(New York Herald Tribune)

The necessity of finding substitutes for scarce materials has led to so many new developments in the use of glass that this offspring of sand hardly knows itself now.

Glass foam is pinch-hitting for cork as an insulator, and may prove to be superior to cork in life preservers.

Glass sutures are used instead of silk for some surgical work.

Glass that can be sawed and milled like lumber is being developed for use in postwar homes.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1944, Edgar A. Guest)

THE HUMAN BEING

So many choices granted man to other breeds denied!
So many posts for him to fill, to take or thrust aside!
The lion lives a lion's life by strength and stealth alone,
But man by what he dares to be, will down to death be known.

The tiger has no choice at all. The tiger it must be,
But man today must choose his place from land or sky or sea,
And from the various skills and trades which men have learned to do
The growing boy must make the choice of one he will pursue.

Oh, shall he turn to art or trade, the school, the church, the stage,
The bank, the forge, the mill, the bench, to brush or printed page?
And shall he take the uphill way or keep the pathways wide?
And how employ his gift of strength, must every man decide.

There comes that choice 'twixt good and ill, as well as art and trade,
And is success of soul to count as much as profits made?
But since to be a man means more than life in forms of clay,
What sort of man he will become the man himself must say.

What Do the Germans Think Now?

(By John W. Owens in The Baltimore Sun)

Six years ago in Berlin Dr. William E. Dodd, the American ambassador, told in private conversation of the change that had come about among the cultivated Germans.

Dr. Dodd said that they had submitted to Hitler though many had deplored his personality and his measures. But as Hitler moved from one triumph to another in foreign policy, racial and national feeling overcame scruples and principle.

Dr. Dodd illustrated by citing the case of his old preceptor. From student days in Germany, Dr. Dodd had held this older man in veneration and affection. Upon his return as ambassador he had found the old gentleman clear cut in his judgments and they were the judgments of a humane and generous man. But one day, after about three years, Dr. Dodd found that the old scholar had given in—not because of fear of Hitler's Nazis but because his German heart could not resist the power and the glory of Hitler's triumphs.

In the great affairs of international life, cultivated Germans had been swept off their feet by the apparent success of a tremendous gamble. At that time in 1937 the feeling of a successful gamble was so strong that the Germans of the cultivated class were convinced that complete mastery of the continent was to be had by Hitler without bloodshed. Britain backed away from any test of will. France was even more infirm in purpose. The United States, far away, seemed to understand the change that was taking place in Europe, but to have but one thought, and that to stay at home.

With the west so disposed, who could expect groping Russia to make trouble? The way was open and men in Germany talked of Britain and France dropping into the relationship to Germany that Holland and Belgium had long borne to Britain and France.

What do cultivated Germans think today? What do they think when they recall that if they had stopped with their gambling gains of 1937, plus the greater gains of 1938, they would have won the greatest series of diplomatic wagers in history? And what do they think when they have borne in upon them the fact, familiar in human experience, that the reason for their failure to stop was the gamble itself.

Chance had fed on the success of chance until chance was not to be denied its further feeding.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

Once upon a time, many, many years ago, the sea otter was hunted relentlessly along the coastline of the Aleutian Islands and neighboring shores of North America. And no wonder, since a good yield was worth a king's ransom! . . . The quest for this valuable sea denizen eventually led to the colonizing of the northwest coast. . . It was hunting of the most perilous kind, taking men out onto the boisterous waves of the Pacific in small, fragile boats. Whole brigades of vessels set forth, the crews equipped with murderous spears, clubs, gaffs and rifles. Thousands upon thousands of sea otters were killed by these venturesome sailors, as many as 30,000 a year in the latter part of the 18th century. A century ago the numbers had greatly dwindled, and today only a few hundred otters are obtained each year in the much-hunted region.

The sea otter is six feet long, with round nose and beaver-paddle tail. Its fur is dark on top, soft grey underneath and thick as fox peltry. Since it cannot breathe under water it must come up frequently to the surface of the sea for air. These "breathing spells" are its undoing. The hunters close in and deal the death-blow.

It is interesting to note that in 1778 the famous Captain Cook landed on Vancouver Island, at the harbor now called Nootka, and bartered for a few old nails the munificence of 1,500 sea otter and beaver skins. The "trade" shows in what high regard metal was held by the Indians.

The remarkable feature of the great seal-hunting days is not that the sailors came back laden but that they came back at all! Their boats were unbelievably tiny, no larger than skiffs. Some were fashioned of long pieces of wood bound together with leather the cracks stuffed with moss. Some were canoes of walrus skin oiled and stretched on frames made of whalebone. These frail vessels had to endure the fierce gales of the Pacific on trips often two thousand miles long.

Red Tape by the Yard

(Oshawa Times-Gazette)

The Victoria Colonist reports a story of a British Columbia landlord who rents three suites to tenants a willing landlord and good tenants. Recently the tenants had difficulty in securing enough hot water for domestic purposes all around. The willing landlord spent some of the capital to put in a better system. He agreed with one tenant to do the firing and so supply more hot water to each of the three suites. Then as coal has gone up and the tenants were going to use more fuel they agreed to pay a nominal increase in their rents for that. The increase was $1.

To make things regular and to observe the law the landlord went to the officers of the rental administration, Wartime Prices and Trade Board, to secure the necessary permission for what had been agreed upon by himself and his tenants all around. He came away with three forms in triplicate or nine forms numbered R.C. 210: the same in triplicate R.C. 210A; ditto R.C. 213; and again the same for R.C. 212. We have mentioned that he was a willing landlord. He accepted the 36 forms in good faith.

This is what their completion would have required:—An application for an increase in maximum rental with all particulars; a description of the property including a detailed inventory of all furniture in detail for every room; a personal canvass of six other landlords in the area to state what they were charging for their rented premises; the completion of several score questions in triplicate. Not having a week to spare in which such material could be gathered the willing landlord reverted to position one in the intricate game—the status quo ante.

Now what does the country gain by this red tape? Could not an appraiser of the board have spent five minutes in a personal check of the new water system, the premises and the tenants?

Capital Closeups

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 22. (CP)—Even Cabinet Ministers have to learn the hard way.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, a knowledgeable man on most matters pertaining to farming, told the National Poultry Conference how he found out there were differences in eggs.

His young son, when they lived in Saskatchewan, disliked eggs. After a setback at the polls, Mr. Gardiner took his family to Vancouver Island. When they came down to breakfast at the hotel there was nothing suitable for the boy but eggs. He ate them and liked them.

Then they went home, and for the first meal in Regina, Mrs. Gardiner cooked an egg for her son. He tasted it with his usual zest.

Then he laid down his spoon and said:—

"I don't like eggs".

His puzzled father went to poultry specialists.

And that's how the Minister of Agriculture found out that eggs are affected by the food hens eat. In other words, a prairie hen that feeds on grasshoppers and anything else it can find may not have as tasty an egg as a British Columbia counterpart receiving the feed scientists know is best.

Election:

Some wit has suggested that Prime Minister Mackenzie King should arrange for the Federal election on November 4. He argues this would be a fine expression of North American solidarity as the United States election is being held on the same day. Cynics suggest it would just be confusion worse confounded, but it would be just as well to have it all over with in one swallow.

Strategy:

Talking of the election more seriously, Ottawa observers who have watched the political scene for years suggest the government will wait until the 1944 session, which starts next week, is well under way before it makes a decision on when the vote will be held.

Spokesmen for all parties are frank in their opinion that the debates will have pre-election fire and enthusiasm. Such enthusiasm among the opposition members is apt to make progress with government legislation slow.

If the government feels, after a month or two, that it is being unduly hindered in going about its business in the name of the country, an election is probable in short order.

Fleeting Hope:

Resources Minister Crerar, wise in the ways of the House of Commons, allowed himself a shade of envy at a meeting of the Ottawa Branch of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy. It was an annual meeting, and the secretary-treasurer's report was approved quickly and without discussion."

"I just wish that in some mysterious fashion you could pass on to parliament the recipe for completing business so rapidly", said Mr. Crerar, wistfully.

COMMON POLICY URGED

Calgary, Jan. 22. (CP)—Any return to the pre-war policy of treating agriculture as a "side-show" would be folly, Lord De La Warr, chairman of the Agricultural Research Council of the United Kingdom said here.

Speaking at the United Farmers of Albert annual convention, he said farmers of Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia, Argentine, and throughout the world were not competitors, but common sufferers from an economic mistake. "We must get together and work out a common policy".

TWO KILLED ON CROSING

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 22—(AP)—A brother and two sisters were killed last night when the Empire State Express, New York central crack passenger train, hit their automobile at an Albany County crossing. Police identified the dead as Benjamin Pigliavento, 23, and his sisters, Holanda, 18, and Virginia, 16, Guilderland, N. Y.

Churchill May Meet Stalin On Polish Issue

London, Jan. 21 —(CP)—London newspapers said today it seemed likely Prime Minister Churchill soon might communicate personally with Premier Stalin seeking a solution to the Russian-Polish border problem.

The Prime Minister and Foreign Secretary Eden conferred yesterday with officials of the Polish government in London—Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk and Foreign Minister Tadeusz Romer.

Churchill, it is known, has kept well posted on the situation and the British government has evinced willingness to act as mediator, along with the United States, if both parties so suggest.

The Polish government in London has asked that a four-power meeting be arranged, with Britain and America as mediators, but Moscow in a sharp reply declared that impossible because of broken diplomatic relations between Russia and the Polish government.

Collective Bargaining May Soon Be Law

Brantford, Jan. 22 —(CP)— Paul Martin, Liberal member of parliament for Essex East and parliamentary assistant to the Minister of Labor, last night told members of the Brantford Liberal Association at their annual meeting here that "before this month is out, any man who denies Labor the right of collective bargaining will find that he is guilty of an infraction of the law." Mr. Martin did not say anything more about what apparently was a reference to new Labor legislation soon to be enacted by the Dominion Government.

In Manhattan

By H. M. PETERS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

New York, Jan. 22. (CP)—This was a week of lull in the New York theatre as far as new shows goes, but no lull for the established favorites which find ever-growing lines forming at the Box Office.

It was a lull that offered an opportunity to run over just what the Broadway theatre is offering to the throngs that overrun Times Square these nights.

Tops continue to be four shows. First there is the fabulous "Oklahome!" The word from the Box Office now is that you may be able to get a pair of tickets for next June—provided you write promptly.

Next comes Paul Robeson and the magnificent production of "Othello", staged by Margaret Webster and still, after breaking all records for a Shakespeare run in New York, a top attraction.

Then there is Billy Rose's "Carmen Jones", truly a magnificent experiment that has come off triumphantly. As everyone knows by now, Oscar Hammerstein II took the ancient music of Carmen, incorporated it untouched into a modern setting and brought out an unforgettable experience in theatre-going.

And winding up the big four is "The Voice of the Turtle" in which Margaret Sullavan came back from the movies to portray with Elliott Nugent a weekend leave spent by a soldier with an actress.

But there are others well worth while.

"Life With Father", Clarence Day's comedy of his family, continues to play to robust crowds after four full years. It still is one of the best things in town.

"Uanie" has been going about a year and a half. "Tomorrow the World", the study of a young Nazi who came to America, continues and probably will for some time.

Among musicals there are "A Connecticut Yankee", "The Merry Widow", "Early to Bed", "One Touch of Venus"—which has the ever-glamorous Mary Martin—and "The Ziegfeld Follies".

Calvin Coolidge and John Quincy Adams joined the church while they were President of the United States.

The Roman Emperor Claudius added three letters to the Latin alphabet.

It is believed that in the time of Homer the constellation known as the Pleiades contained seven instead of only six stars visible to the naked eye.

The encyclopedia says that when the letter "w" is written "wh" as in "white" it is "virtually a voiceless bilabial fricative."

Many may be surprised to learn that the saying, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," is nowhere attributed to Jesus in the four Gospels according to Matthew, Mark, Luke and John. But it is attributed to Jesus by St. Paul in Acts 20:35, which reads: "I have shewed you all things, how that so labouring ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive."

John Brown told the Virginia court that tried him at Charles Town in 1859: "I am fully persuaded that I am worth inconceivably more to hang than for any other purpose." History proved him to be a true prophet.

During the American Civil War the Democratic party in the North was divided into two factions known as the "War Democrats" and the "Peace Democrats."

The 42nd division of the U. S. army during the First World War was called the Rainbow Division because it was composed of units from the National Guards of nearly every state outside of New England.

Grover Cleveland acquired the nickname "Veto Mayor" because of his free and fearless use of the veto while mayor of Buffalo.

"Texas" is derived from an Indian word meaning friends or allies.

It is a common error to suppose that "obverse" as applied to coins means the reverse or back side. "Obverse" is opposed to "reverse" and means turned toward or facing one. The obverse of a coin or medal is the side containing the principal device, the front, or the side meant to be displayed. For instance, the obverse of the current American one-cent piece is the side with the picture of Lincoln.

Sons of Scotland Hosts to Scots Of R.A.F. Station

After the regular meeting on Thursday night, the Sons of Scotland were hosts to some twenty Scotch boys from the Picton R.A.F. Station at a Robert Burns' concert and dance.

The program opened with an interesting address on Robert Burns by the Rev. J. G. Hornsby of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Vocal solos by Mrs. A. Bell and Mrs. Plumpton received several encores. Mrs. S. Lennox delighted her audience with her dancing numbers, as did the Misses Catherine Barrett, Mary Grant, Helen Grant and Catherine Grant. Miss Helen Grant, a talented young artist, received warm applause with her xylphone solos and her singing. The Marsh sisters favored with a step dance. The symphonette orchestra from the Collegiate comprised of Jack Muirhead, Jim and "Mac" Dowsett "gave out" with a number of melodies. To the delight of the Scotch boys, skirling numbers by the Kiltie Band were piped. Mr. Robert Browning, who acted as chairman, rendered several solos. Accompanying the vocalists was Mrs. Frank Gillett, and accompanying the dancers was Mrs. Billy Grant. Lunch was served at the close of the program, followed by dancing with Mrs. Grace Calvert at the piano.

Pin-Up Beauties' Secret of Allure

Pin-up girls make the headlines today. Probably our secret ambition is to be somebody's special pin-up girl. Have you ever noticed that not all pin-up girls are raving beauties? They may be tall or have blue eyes or brown, but their pictures all show clear, bright eyes, a smile that reveals healthy sparkling teeth, a lovely complexion. No "droop" ever gets to be a pin-up girl. You can tell by looking at them they are full of pep and fun.

These girls are smart. They know that the proper foods, enough sleep, fresh air and good grooming mean an awful lot. Health and beauty are twin sisters. Lovely features and a good figure are not enough. A plain Jane with the sparke that comes from abounding health and the aids of good grooming can outshine her lovely but lack-lustre sister any time.

W.C.T.U. MONTHLY MEETING

After the ditty bag donations had been assorted for packing, the pledge recited and the treasurer and secretary's reports given, much business was discussed and many plans made for future work. Mrs. Lloyd and Mrs. Cole conducted a "Citizenship" program. Mrs. Sweetnam gave the brief Scripture message and prayer. Mrs. Burrows rendered a solo, "There Will be Joy Everywhere." Miss Robbins, in her clear explanation of the necessity of social security in the country said that the large families who formerly worked the land have now only pay cheques and are consumers instead of producers, living in crowded cities. She went on to say that a sufficient family allowance would help to keep the children up to the standard and enable them to render service to the state and that supervised sport and recreation would help to solve the delinquency problem. She told of one union in Hamilton caring for the children of working mothers during the day in a building which they had secured in the busy section of the city.

PLAINFIELD W.M.S.

The regular meeting of Plainfield W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Harry McCreary on Jan 19, with an attendance of 31 members, six children and one visitor. Collection amounted to $5.86. The meeting was opened with soft music by Mrs. Ralph Wilder.

Worship service was conducted by Mrs. V. Elliott.

The theme of the meeting was "The Bible for all of Canada's Children".

A solo was rendered by Mrs. Arthur Hall, assisted at the piano by Mrs. Harry Harrison.

Mrs. Fred Hall, president, gave the Bible Study.

Treasurer's report was given for year ending 1943. Cash total for year $160.54; $147.50 was sent to Presbyterial from Auxiliary; $20 from Mission Band; $2.50 from Baby Band. It was decided to have a special collection for Flower Fund. Collection $1.32.

The Study Book was taken by Mrs. Sherman Parks, group leader.

Those assisting were Mrs. Horace Palmer, Miss Mary Emerson, Miss Verna Prindle, Mrs. Harry Harrison, Mrs. Clayton Hall, Mrs. Mac Cronkwright, Mrs. John Lawrenson.

Rev. Mr. McKenzie conducted the installation of officers.

The hostess and her assistants served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed. The thanks of all present are due Mrs. McCreary for her kind hospitality.

TYENDINAGA EAST W.I.

Tyendinaga East W.I. met at the home of Mrs. Fred Husband on Jan. 14th with a fair attendance.

A letter of appreciation was read by the secretary from the Salvation Army for the $25. donated to them by the local Red Cross.

Plans were made for a pot luck supper to be held at the home of Mrs. Garry Provins, supper to be served at seven.

Current Events were given by Mrs. M. Schermerborn.

Mrs. R. Tucker took charge of the following program which was arranged by Mrs. D. Harvey.

Reading, Mrs. P. Kimmerly; Household Hints, Mrs. Wright; Care of Ferns, Mrs. D. Waddingham.

A slogan contest brought the evening to a close.

Mrs. R. Tucker offered thanks for the enjoyable evening and the hostess graciously replied. Lunch was served.

ONE IN SEVEN

Would you deliberately throw away one potato out of every seven you buy? Certainly not, you indignantly answer. Yet you do exactly that when you peel potatoes. And because the vitamins and minerals lie close to the skin, you throw away an even greater proportion of these imortant food elements.

RUBBER HOUSEHOLD GOODS

All rubber goods are perishable and hard to replace nowadays. They will last longer if kept clean, dry, unwrinkled, cool and in a dark place.

BEAUTY By Helen Jameson

Aye, Aye! .The Eyes Have It

The come hither look has captured many a man and led him to the altar. Eyes make an appeal to the mind and the heart when they're working in the right direction. Yes, even if the lashes are not mascara tinted and the dear lady has not just emerged from the beauty shop. Operators concentrate on eye treatments now to keep old Pop Time at a distance; he has a nasty way of making little marks around them. . . .

Animation is the winning card. You can't put the shine on unless you are good natured, have your wits about you. Eye beauty begins in the brain. Little Miss Grouchy has dull, clouded eyes, as has the selfish, pouting girl, Verily, how you look depends upon what wou are, what you think, how you behave.

Eyes are on the job every waking moment; do not forgot that. Take care of them, give them needed rest now and then, and they'll be good to you. Women treat them shamefully, reading in dim light, avoiding glasses when they should be wearing them, rubbing the lids violently. It just doesn't make sense.

Twice a day the eyes should be bathed with warm water, then with cold. Always they should be protected from dazzling light. Strong sunlight has a deplorable effect upon the retina, a marvelously delicate mechanism that should be treated with consideration and respect.

The twice daily use of hot and cold water has a vitalizing effect on the eyelashes because it stimulates the blood streams in the papillae from which they emerge and from which they get their groceries. After bathing the eyes, dry them gently. Pressure against the eyeball should be avoided. Use a clean wash cloth every day. Soiled wash cloths are an abomination; they pick up bacteria, cause infections.

The eyes have a washing and oiling system of their own, and if they are in normal condition, no medications are necessary. At the first sign of inflammation or formation of pus, hie yourself to a physician. Take no chances.

On the question of eye exercises, there seems to be a difference of opinion. A man who is an authority says that they should be done under the supervision of a specialist. He claims that as eyes are on the move most of the time what they need most is relaxation, change of distance of vision. Those individuals who sew or read for hours should stop now and then, look out of a window.

Bronchiectasis and The Sulfa Drugs

Bronchiectasis is a condition in which there is a stretching of the small tubes in the lungs. These tubes are called bronchi. This is one of the most troublesome lung disorders. The cause is not known. It is thought, that, perhaps, infections play a part in producing it. It develops in conditions in which there is some obstruction to the breathing.

The symptoms of bronchiectasis consist particularly of coughing and the bringing up of much thick material from the lungs. Because of the long continued infection, these patients lose weight and strength. The coughing may be most severe, particularly at night. Since the symptoms of bronchiectasis are made worse by the infection, efforts to treat it with the various sulfa drugs have been made.

However, according to Doctor John W. Stacey of Tucson, Arizona, when the sulfa drugs are given by mouth over long periods of time, they fail to control the infection or lessen the symptoms of the disease. For this reason he developed a new method of administering the drugs, which he has found most successful in the treatment of bronchiectasis.

In the treatment used by Doctor Stacey, a solution of the sulfa drugs is placed in a sprayer or nebulizer. This is connected with an oxygen tank by means of a rubber tube. As the oxygen blows through the nebulizer, a fine spray of the solution is made. The patient holds the nozzle of the nebulizer between his teeth and breathes with his mouth open. It is not necessary to block the nostrils. This use of the nebulizer has also been tried with asthma patients for many years and seems to work successfully in administering certain drugs to them.

In the beginning, the treatments were given slowly and cautiously. However, it was not found that the treatment made the patient cough or produced any irritation of the lining membrane of the bronchi. The treatments were given from one to three times a day over a period of weeks. Tests of the blood were made to determine how much of the sulfa drug was being absorbed and it was not found that an excessive amount was getting into the blood. It was found that with this treatment the coughing rapidly became less and the amount of secretions brought up from the lungs was less in amount. Furthermore, instead of a pus-like secretion being present, the secretions became thin and watery. The patients also stated that they felt much better with this type of treatment.

Since bronchiectasis is such a severe disorder and causes so much difficulty, it would appear that the administration of the sulfa drugs in the way described is well worth employing.

Lime Green Woolen Suit
By VERA WINSTON

SMART AND NOVEL touches distinguish the new crop of soft suits now ready for Spring wear. This suit is fashioned of lime green woolen and for a distinguishing touch sports double lapels. Single breasted closing on the fitted bodice which has pointed flaps on the pockets. Round gathered neck on the crepe blouse which is of the same shade of green.

Wife Preservers

A gilded picture or mirror frame may be cleaned with a half-and-half mixture of alcohol and household ammonia, applied with a camel's hair brush. After a few minutes for softening the dirt, remove with clear water, also applied with a brush. Shake off remaining water—not wipe—and stand the frame on end to dry. To protect the picture or mirror, it would be best to take it out of the frame.

War Writers Make Hit With Italian 12-Year-Old Girl

By ALLAN NICKLESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 22. (CP)—An advance guard of Royal Air Force public relations officers entered the smashed town of Foggia shortly after the Allied occupation and saw an Italian mother and her two young daughters, gaunt and wide-eyed, watching mutely as British Tommies ate rations by the roadside.

The officers fed the trio and later, installed in the only habitable apartment building in the district, appointed the homeless wanderers to the household staff. They have been there ever since.

Dark-haired Azunta was the best known of the three to Empire war correspondents who stopped at Foggia during a tour of the Mediterranean War Theatre. Just 12, and with but a scant knowledge of English, she waited on us in the apartment dining room that also served as a mess. Her mother and 14-year-old sister worked mainly in the kitchen.

Conquerors Now Friends.

At first timid of the liberators and deathly afraid of more bombings, Azunta has blossomed into a healthy, smiling girl. She remains shy but there's no mistaking from the light in her big, brown eyes and her eagerness to please that she regards the 'conquerors" as great, new friends.

In the beginning, Azunta could not understand why the Allies, in one of the greatest demonstrations of the capabilities of light and medium bombers, had to smash the city. She knows now that Foggia was headquarters of the German air force and that the Nazis had to be driven out and their airfields, surrounding the city, crippled.

Azunta once helped correspondents translate into English from an Italian postcard the words of a popular German army song.

It was a tricky business. Azunta knew little English and we but snatches of Italian. The postcard contained the words of "Lili Marlene", favorite song of the once-proud Afrika Korps and now hummed throughout the Mediterranean by the Allies.

Cheeks red from embarrassment as all attention focused on her as she attempted to explain Italian words by gestures, Azunta remained nearly three hours after her regular work while the correspondents translated and improvised over a few glasses of "vino".

We figured that all this jollity and talk would make Azunta lose some of her shyness. When we left, she gave us each an orange she had purchased with her own money at the market. But her cheeks flamed.

GOOD MANNERS

Hundred Uses

Stationers report that they have never sold so many informals as they have this season. And I'm not surprised, for these folded-over cards certainly deserve their enormous and ever-increasing popularity. They are a real "modern convenience", vastly more useful to the average woman than formal visiting-cards. They are always at our service in sending all kinds of informal invitations. And, they are an ever-present inspiration to write the great variety of little messages that add such a charming grace to life . . .to our lives and to the lives of our friends. Recently I've had so many questions about these cards that I'd like to chat about them today.

These friendly folded-over cards come in three sizes; small (which now, I'm glad to say, is seldom chosen), medium, and large. The largest size is the best, most distinguished looking, and offers a more adaptable space. They come in white or ivory. The cards are either plate-marked or plain; to my taste the plain are far more distinguished, and they cost less than the plate-marked ones.

The formal name is engraved in the center of the first page . . . Mrs., Mr. and Mrs., or Miss. As on visiting-cards, no abbreviations should be used in the name. For added convenience, the street address may be engraved on the cards, in the lower right corner, in type smaller than that used in the name. The style of engraving is a matter of choice, but a simple type is best taste. The most popular, and deservedly so, is Shaded Antique Roman, a simple, tall, graceful type. Plain block letters are excellent, and so always, is a good script, not too small. Old English and Shaded Old English are outmoded.

The message is written on the third page, or for a longer message, the card is turned and the second and third pages are used as one.

In these days, when practically all parties are informal ones, Informals are a boon for sending invitations. Graciously and appropriately they invite guests to tea or to A Tea, cocktail party, shower, bridge or gin rummy or other game-party, a house-warming, buffet party, Sunday morning breakfast, musicale, small dance, dessert-and coffee party, to an informal dinner or luncheon or supper . . . and even to a picnic. And we may properly use these folded-over cards for our replies to the invitations to informal parties.

Informals are so attractive to use that they entice us to write the hundred and one messages that we know we should write, messages that keep the friendship lights bright. A few high-hearted words of felicitation to the parents of a new-born baby. A message of congratulation to a friend about a new position or a promotion or a graduation, or any other important milestone in his or her life. A thoughtful message of well-wishing sent, or left at the home of, a friend who is ill. A greeting for a birthday, for a wedding anniversary. Those gracious words of thanks written to a hostess the day or so after her party. Many people use them to write their greeting at Christmas or New Year's or Easter. With a message written in them, they may be enclosed with flowers, a book, candy, or other gifts. They may be used as "reminder" cards, a follow-up of a telephoned invitation, repeating the date, hour, place, and perhaps adding the kind of dress expected.

They may be used, too, to notify friends of a new or temporary address, or a new telephone number. And to notify friends of the present address of a man or woman in the service . . .and perhaps of a promotion!

Informals do not take the place of visiting-cards . . . visiting-cards are formal items. Nor do they take the place of letters. They are message cards", little couriers from friend of friend.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Trying to Save Her Marriage by Going Back to Work

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Before my marriage two years ago I was confidential secretary in a highly successful law firm. I gave this up when I married and have been trying to keep busy ministering to a three-room, bath and kitchenette flat. Doing all the work doesn't take a third of my time, and I go to the movies, visit museums, see friends, come home get dinner—this life is driving me nuts.

The doctor thinks it's unlikely I shall ever have any children. I'd be glad to adopt a baby but my husband is lukewarm about this. Whenever I speak about going back to work, he appears broken hearted, says I don't love him. But I think going back to work or adopting a baby is the only way our marriage can be saved.

E. L. S.

I'm all for the baby as a solution to a drifting marriage such as yours appears to be. The trouble about adoption is the hopeless amount of red tape in which the proceedings seem to be involved. Failing to adopt a baby, how would your husband consider a part-time job for you? There is a demand, as you know, for every capable person at the present time.

Meanwhile, why don't you do some work for the Red Cross?

Husband Overseas — Unable to be Present at Baby's Christening

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm expecting a baby any day, and my husband is in the Army overseas so will not be present at the christening. Is it proper for my husband's father to take his place at the christening?

M. C.

Not only proper but appropriate.

It Seems Glamour Girl Wears Two Engagement Rings

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm still paying installments on my girl's engagement ring. We are some distance apart. The other night I was talking to a serviceman, and we discovered we were not only in love with the same girl but both were engaged to her. He gave her a less expensive ring than I did so he's all paid up.

What do you think of the girl, and what do you think I should do?

J. L. K.

Not necessary to express my opinion of the girl. Get down on your knees and thank Heaven you didn't marry her. I hope you haven't paid many installments on the ring, and I think you'd better write to the jewelry store and tell them you've decided not to continue payments and let them get the ring back. This experience may hurt for a while, but you're really in great good luck.

Wife in Hospital Having Baby—Foolish Husband Succumbs to Vamp

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What do you think of a man who, while his wife is expecting her baby and during her stay in the hospital and even after she came home, has been going out with other women or perhaps it has been just one woman all the time?

I never thought my husband would do such a thing, because I am still in love with him. At first he denied it, but I knew he had someone else in the car, because of the cigarette stubs in the tray. Then when I threatened to leave him he confessed that he had been seeing a certain woman for some time, but begged me not to leave as he still loves me and didn't know what had got into him. The brand of the lipstick is all over his clothes.

A. O. R.

You ask me what I think of such a man—well, sister, I think he's eligible to become The Grand Kleagle of the Original Order of Heels,—high heels at that. Any man who hasn't got enough character to behave himself while his wife is in the hospital having a baby seems a pretty poor specimen to me.

You tell me you're still in love with him, so I suppose there's nothing to do but to wait until he becomes human again. Failing that, you can then decide on your course of action. There's a very low order of vampire who waits for just such gullible prey as your husband—the man whose wife's in the hospital having a baby. A homely name which I will spare you is applied to such women. Perhaps this husband of yours will see what an utterly ignoble part he's been playing, and brace up and develop responsibility.

She Can't Forget her Fiance Killed in Action

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am crazy about a girl 18 years of age. Before I met her she was engaged to a serviceman who was reported by the Army "killed in action." I am the only boy she she has gone with since she heard of her fiance's death, but recently she gave me back my ring with the explanation that she could not go with me, as she still loves the boy who was killed. I know she hasn't met anyone else whom she likes better than me.

I'm so much in love with her that I can't just forget her without trying to get her back, and I haven't the slightest idea how to start. Could you please help me?

S. T.

Only time—that greatest of all healers—can help you win the affection of this girl who has suffered such a loss. Be patient. An impersonal type of friendship will be more welcome to her in her present state of mind than any attempted ardent love-making.

Husband Gets Mad Because His Wife Isn't Jealous

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My husband is what most people would call "ideal." He's so sweet in most every way. We've been married eight years, and he seems to think I don't love him. He even went so far as to kiss a girl and then told me about it, and he became angry because I didn't act jealous. He says if I loved him I would get jealous. I'm not the jealous type and I know my husband loves me, so I trust him.

I'm surely in a rut; sometimes I get so cross with the children—they get on my nerves. My husband doesn't want me to have any friends during the day and wants me to tell him everything I do or say. He's so afraid someone will influence them or lead me astray. If this a compliment or a terrible slam?

And another thing—he's always holding up a certain women as an example for me, wants me to be like her. If he keeps on with this mistrust and criticism it's going to kill all the love I have for him. I try so hard to be a good wife. It almost makes me wish I were single again. But I do love him. He's a good provider, and is good in so many ways. What shall I do? I can't leave because of the children.

(Mrs.) M. B.

In your place I think I'd be tempted to remind the husband, the next time he holds up this other woman as a model, that an original is always worth more than a carbon copy.

The reason the children get on your nerves and you wish you were single again is that you lead an ingrowing life. Everyone needs contacts with other people's minds, and an exchange of ideas. A conventual life is not good for out-in-the-world people. Try and make your husband understand this.

Managing Director of N.H.L. Recommends Statistician To Bring Records Up to Date

Governors Will Make Decisions at Annual Meeting in May

PLAYOFFS ARRANGED

(By The Canadian Press)

The National Hockey League, set for a five-game week-end program today studied a recommendation by managing director Mervyn (Red) Dutton that a ful-time statistician be appointed to bring league records up-to-date.

Dutton made the recommendation yesterday at a six-hour meeting in Toronto of the league's board of governors, who announced after the meeting that the recomendation will be discussed further at the N.H.L.'s annual meeting next May.

Playoffs Start March 21.

1. Stanley Cup semi-finals between teams finishing first and third and those finishing second and fourth will start March 21 on the ice of the team finishing higher in the standings. Subsequent games will be played every two days except on week-ends, where Saturday or Sunday dates will be optional for the home team. The Stanley Cup final will start April 6 and like the semi-finals, will be decided on a best-of-seven basis.

2. A dispute between Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins over interpretation of an agreement on the purchase price of goalkeeper Bert Gardiner, sold by Canadiens to Boston last fall, has been settled between the two clubs. Details were not announced.

3. An offer to the Canadian armed services by the N.H.L. to play two all-star games between picked teams from the N.H.L. and the services, proceeds to be donated to war charity and all expenses to be borne by the league, has been declined because of "exigencies of the training programs."

4. Concessions sought by the C.A.H.A. regarding payment for players graduating to the N.H.L. from amateur ranks have been granted by the league, which Dutton said is "in full agreement" with the amateur body.

Woefuly Weak In Statistics.

In connection with the question of appointing a statistician, Dutton said the league's decision to approve establishment of a hockey hall of fame at Kingston, Ont., similar to the baseball shrine at Cooperstown, N.Y., has raised numerous questions which inilcate that the league is "woefuly short" on official records covering the early period of professional hockey in Canada.

The governors decided to accept concessions sought by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association regarding payment for players graduating to the N.H.L. from amateur ranks. "The N.H.L. and the C.A.H.A. are in full agreement," Dutton said.

A minimum split has been established for players participating in Stanley Cup play-offs whereby each player will receive an amount for each game equivalent to the sum he received during the regular season. For instance, a player drawing $5,000 for a 50-game schedule or $100 a game, will collect a $100 minimum for each play-off game.

Most of the governors returned to their various centres after the meeting, but Dutton stayed over to watch tonight's game between New York Rangers and Leafs. Other games on the week-end program call for Boston to play at Montreal Saturday while three games are planned Sunday night: Toronto at Chicago Black Hawks, Montreal at Boston and Rangers at Detroit.

Curling Competition Reaches Semi-Finals

Montreal, Jan. 22—(CP—A pair of former champions carrying Montreal heather colors, advanced to the semi-finals in the Royal Victoria Jubilee Trophy curling competition here yesterday along with rinks from Ottawa Rideau and Howick, Que.

J. P. Watson, winner of the coveted single rinks championship two seasons back, had to come through with a 15-13 verdict over P. D. Burkholder of Ottawa to move on, while Jack McKee turned aside D. R. Wilson of the Shawinigan Falls, Que., club 20-6.

C. G. Keyes, the second Ottawa skipper to reach the next bracket, showed too much class for Montreal Thistle's W. P. Bennett and emerged with a 17-10 score. The other win went to Bruce Ness, veteran Howick star, who downed L. G. McGerrigle, Montreal Caledon a 15-9.

In the Lady Gilmour Consolation Trophy play, W. Weir of Ottawa gained the second round when G. C. Starke of Huntingdon defaulted. Other winners were L. Peterson, Almonte, Ont., J. A. D. Chagnon, Three Rivers, Que., and E. McMullen, Smith Falls, Ont.

What's Doing in Sport

Winnipeg—(CP)—John Bracken, National leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, will skip a Winnipeg rink in the Quebec bonspiel next week.

St. Paul—(AP)—Second-baseman Frank Drew, who set an American Association record of 43 consecutive errorless games last season, will be given a trial with Brooklyn Dodgers, it was stated last night by business Manager Robert Tarleton. If Drew makes good, the Saints will get two or more players in trade.

Miami—(AP)—Mar-Kel, champion mare of 1943, goes to the post for the first time this year in Hialeah's $5,000 evening handicap at seven furlongs, carrying top weight of 126 pounds, with jockey Billy Thompson in the saddle.

PARENTS OF SOLDIER SEE PRIVATE NEWSREEL SHOWING

Montreal, Jan. 21 (CP)A month after receiving notification their son had been killed in action in Italy, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Sexton attended a private showing of a newsreel here and saw him advancing with a party of infantrymen through an Italian village.

Their daughter, Ann, first spotted her brother, Cpl. Robert Sexton, at a regular showing of the picture. The theatre management later arranged a private showing of that section of the newsreel for the benefit of the dead man's parents.

Cpl. Sexton enlisted Sept. 15, 1939, six months before his 17th birthday.

HOUSEHOLD EFFECTS SOLD

Nassau, Bahamas, Jan. 22—(CP)—All of Nancy Oakes de Marigny's household articles were sold yesterday in spirited bidding at a public auction, and reliable reports from official quarters stated that the once "penniless" heiress had won back restricted control of her $12,000 annual income.

NEW TRIAL ORDERED

Toronto, Jan. 22—(CP)—An assize court jury which deliberated six hours failed yesterday to reach a verdict in the trial of Peter John Perchat, 58, a charged with manslaughter of John McNaughton, 69, who died following a fight with Perchat last October. A new trial will be ordered at the next assizes.

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)— While Branch Rickey insists that no player "who will be with the Brooklyn club" will be offered a salary slash this year, the Mahatma of Montague Street apparently isn't too certain that they'll sign without an argument . . . Rickey points out that when players are plentiful, a club can afford to take an independent attitude toward those who balk but this year, what with the draft hanging over them, war plant salaries to think about and little competition for places on a club, the opposite may be true . . . Branch should have had an ear to the ground at the recent Nebraska-Oklahoma basketball game when Coach Ad Lewandowski, who had to send two players back to Nebraska before the contest, merely remarked: "All I can do is cooperate with the inevitable."

Hard to Scare, Too.

When Coach Dick Irvin of the Montreal Canadiens met Pitcher Mort Cooper of the Cardinals recently he said: "From your pictures I always thought you were a great big grouchy sort of guy" . . . Cooper grinned: "You gotta look tough in print because the Yankees read the papers and they're hard to fool."

Walter Johnson Says Science Of Ball Went With Lively Ball

By the Canadian Press

Walter Johnson, a baseball immertal who now operates a dairy farm in Maryland not far from Washington where he pitched 21 years for the Senators, said yesterday there "isn't as much science in baseball as there was back in the old days and the lively ball has prevented the development of many really great pitchers." The strategy now seemed to be for the batters just to stand up and slug, he declared. A couple of runs meant nothing whereas a stolen base, a walk or the squeeze play often won a game in the days when he was a master-moundsman.

Adam Pianga, known in the ring as Young Kid McCoy, yesterday announced his retirement from the ring because of a kidney ailment which had brought about his discharge from the U. S. Army. Now 24 years old, the Detroiter had won 46 fights, lost seven and had four draws as a pro welterweight in five years.

Jockey Don Meade, who won a Kentucky Derby with Broker's Tip, said yesterday at Miami, Fla., he would apply for a rider's license in the Spring. The Jockey Club of New York and the New York State Racing Commission, refused to renew his license last year because of charges involving the running of a race.

Babe Didrikson Zaharias, recently reinstated as an amateur by the U. S. Golf Association, announced yesterday at Beverly Hills, Calif., she had taken up the game of tennis, apart from golf, and intended to try for the National Women's Tennis singles championship.

The Cleveland Indians open their Spring Training season March 13 at Lafayette, Ind., with a squad of 31 men, it was announced yesterday at Cleveland by Vice-President Roger Peckinpaugh. This is the smallest squad in the club's history.

President Ed Dudley of the U. S. Professional Golf Association announced yesterday J. Russell Gnau, Detroit business man, would sponsor the Ryder Cup matches in 1944 for the fifth year, the dates and site to be determined later.

Truettt (Rip) Sewell, blooper-pitcher who won 21 games for the Pirates last season, yesterday returned his unsigned contract to President William E. Benswanger of the Pittsburgh Club. Benswanger said the letter was "friendly," however.

KISTS ASSUME TWO-POINT LEAD IN GROUP TWO

Galt Squad Administers 4-3 Licking to St. Catharines' Falcons

LIONS VICTORIOUS

By the Canadian Press

Galt Kists assumed a two-point lead in Group 2 of the O. H. A. Junior "A" series by administering a 4-3 reverse to St. Catharines Falcons, with whom they had been tied for first place in the standing, the encounter taking place on St. Catharines ice. In the other game of the evening, Brantford Lions were victorious 4-3 in a rough game at Stratford, this pair now being deadlocked for cellar position in the standing of the same group.

The scoring ace for Galt was Curik who accounted for a trio of counters, the odd Kist goal being registered by Forbes. For the Falcons, Juckes was responsible for two tallies and Peterson obtained the third.

The battle at Stratford was rough, no less than eight major penalties being distributed for fighting. As for the competitive part of the game, scoring honors went to Hewson of Brantford with a total of three goals, Evenshen taking the single. Tindall scored a brace of tallies for Stratford and Schlisitzl found the net once. Each side scored a goal in the first period and the teams were so evenly matched that the end of the second stanza found them still tied at 2-2. With more than 12 minutes of the third period gone, the score stood 3-3 but Hewson finally put the Lions one up with less than three minutes to go.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, Jan. 22 (CP)—A young Canadian Army Negro pulled the greatest surprise of the boxing season in suburban Watford and earned himself a main bout in the same ring within a few weeks.

More than 2,000 of Watford's fight-minded fans saw Gene Fowler, six-foot Montrealer making his first local ring appearance, knock out a district favorite, Charlie Collett, in the third round of a scheduled eight-round heavyweight bout. Charlie, a huge fellow who labors in a paper mill, had beaten all comers during the last 12 months.

Gene had the measure of his opponent within the first couple of minutes. His speed and skill bewildered the giant who took a seven-count in the first round from a right to the chin.

In the second round the smiling Negro flashed punches to the body and face, then skipped away before Collett could bring over his knockout drop—a smashing right. Collett took two more counts before a right cross to the face floored him for several minutes.

Over at London's Queensberry Club, Cpl. Tony Roberts of Winnipeg, another Canadian Army lad, went eight rounds with Mickey Jones of Southend in a bantamweight tilt, but lost the decision. A few nights earlier at Islington, Tony took the nod from Bily Cunningham when the local boy was forced to retire in the fourth round with a cut over his eye.

Coffee-colored Stafford Barton, Middleweight champion of Jamaica who came to England in 1936, was reported missing after an operational flight in the Middle East. He was a sergeant in the Royal Air Force and the son of a Jamaican newspaper editor.

Commenting on the announcement, Sports Editor Frank Butler wrote in the London Sunday Express:

"The news emphasizes the disgraceful ruling of British boxing that a colored British citizen is not allowed to box for a title of the country for which he is prepared to fight and die."

Former Vancouver amateur boxer and English rugby player, 10. Tom Spink achieved an ambition in getting his Lancaster named after one of his two sons. A pilot with the Leaside squadron, Tom called his bomber "Bobby Boy."

Well-known in the Canadian sports whirl, Flt. Lt. Nick Carrie holds forth as adjutant of an air station. The "adj" formerly was director of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association, the Ontario Tennis Association, the Toronto Cricket Club and numerous other athletic organizations in Toronto.

Sugar was made from milkweed by the French Canadians.

The school teacher was endeavoring to drill into her small pupils the fundamentals of arithmetic.

Teacher (rather desperately)—Now, listen, in order to subtract, things have to be the same denomination. This is what I mean. Now you couldn't take three apples from four bananas, or six plums from eight peaches. It must be three apples from four apples, six plums from eight plums, and so on. Do you understand now?

The majority of the children seemed to grasp the idea. One chubby-faced youngster very near the bottom of the class, however, raised a timid hand.

Youngster (rather timidly)—Please, teacher, you can take three quarts of milk from two cows.

Insomnia Cure!

Apparently the American style of football hasn't become what you might call a rage overseas.

Exile, writing for the Cairo Egyptian Mail, took in the opening game of the Middle East Conference or Pyramid League, made up of American Army teams.

He pronounces it a certain cure for high blood pressure, cardiac trouble and insomnia, especially the latter.

John Lawrence Leonard, former Greensboro sports editor, now attached to a medical detachment, saw the game about which Exile wrote and mailed a copy to Harry Grayson. Leonard admitted there have been instances at home that called for shuteye, but after this particular engagement, he wonders just what it will take in a pigskin way to keep Britishers awake.

Rebels beat the Green Wave 20-0. The Rebels scored on a 30-yard pass, a 19-yard run following an interception and on an off-tackle slant from the 5 after a 15-yard sprint put the ball in position. The Green Waves twice were within the Rebels' 10 in the waning minutes. The Rebels' punters averaged 46 yards from the line of scrimmage.

Yet Exile found the game at Gezira just one long yawn. He demands something more than 11 huskies belting 11 equally as husky opponents. For that, give him a cabaret at closing time.

Exile's idea of football is action, speed, cut-and-thrust running, 90 minutes of action. What did he get?

"A game scheduled for an hour lasted 2 hours and 26 minutes," he recounts, "the extra hour and 26 minutes being taken up in the arrival and consumption of mysterious elixirs, long midfield conferences, healthy manhood lying all over the ground, interminable substitutions."

One old Cambridge Rugby Blue went to sleep during a particularly long lag, which was something Exile hadn't seen in sport outside Lord's cricket ground on a warm August afternoon. Exile was glad he took a book along. He was left as cold as yesterday's custard.

"Imagine this on a wet December day in Manchester," was a soccer man's comment. "Why I'd sooner have influenza straightway."

"No British football crowd could stomach the long intervals when nothing was happening," continues Exile. "Spectators would walk out on all the measuring distances, substitutions, huddles and intervals. Would? Many did. A rugby-minded New Zealander said: 'The best non-stop playing was by our band.'

"Perhaps I have no head for statistics, for this football seems made up of lists of men who have made so many rushes and passes and so much yardage. All I know is that to play it you must be as tough as they make 'em. Perhaps the same applies to the spectator."

This and That.

Insofar as we can ascertain there are but four Junior "B" groups east of Toronto . . . Kingston has a bye, then there is the local group consisting of Trenton, Belleville, Stirling-Marmora "Combines" and Tweed . . . Oshawa City League has a bye into the junior playdowns, while Whitby is playing Junior "B" along with H.M.S. York of Toronto . . . Incidentally Whitby gave the Navy a 5-2 beating the other night . . . This is all the more creditable when one realizes the fact the Navy team was studded with several members of Tracey Shaw's Toronto Marlboro Junior "A" squad of a few nights prior . . . News that the Whitby kids were given some puck pointers by Lionel Conacher, the Big Train of Canadian sports, leaked out after the surprised Navy kids left the Ontario County seat well beaten . . . If the weatherman smiles over the weekend the R.C.A.F. service hockey league will present another of those thrilling air force games Monday night . . . Then on Tuesday it's Trenton at Belleville in the Junior O.H.A.

Stratton's Suit Jinx.

How the old Chicago White Sox uniform worn by Pitcher Monty Stratton in 1938 proved to be a jinx to three players who wore it the season after Stratton had lost a leg in November, 1938, as the result of a hunting accident, was recently revealed by Pitcher Pat Ralsh, with Wilmington and Trenton in the Inter-State League last season and now a member of the Navy, stationed at Farragut, Idaho.

"Playing for Longview of the East Texas League in 1939, I had the misfortune of wearing Monty Stratton's jinx uniform," related Ralsh in recalling some of the outstanding incidents in his baseball career. "Being a farm club of the White Sox, we had received their 1938 uniforms, and all the players scrambled for Stratton's old No. 25, for just that winter Monty had had his mishap.

"The 'lucky' player to get Stratton's uniform was an infielder, and it turned out that he wasn't so lucky after all," continued Ralsh, "for he went into a bad batting slump. Getting disgusted and discouraged, he gave it to a pitcher named Jackson. The first game Jackson pitched in these flannels, he broke a bone in his ankle while fielding a bunt.

"I then took the uniform and lost every game I pitched wearing it, including a two-hitter and a four-hitter. The last day of the season, my leg was injured after losing a two-hit game, and I ended up with a ten-day stay in the hospital."

Ralsh's bad luck also trailed him through his first two games with Lubbock of the West Texas-New Mexico League in 1940, but he then won 20 of his next 22 to lead the league. He finished that season with 14 consecutive victories, including one in the playoffs.

6 People Narrowly Escape Death Trap

Toronto, Jan. 21—(CP)— Death trap already for five persons, the shale pit 50 feet deep at nearby Mimico yesterday nearly claimed the lives of six more when three adults broke through its warmth-rotted ice while trying to save three children.

Barking of a collie dog brought the attention of Mrs. John Blenkhorn to the pool, who with her daughter Dorothy and nephew AC2 Russell Hamilton arrived to find three small children—Joan Abel, 5, Ross and Grant Mounsteven, 5 and 3 years—struggling in the water. The adults moved swiftly to rescue the children but one of them broke through the crumbling ice and fell in.

Other persons rushed to the scene. Robert Burns and John Cook, both municipality employees, ventured far out in an attempt to reach the children and themselves plunged into the water. At the same time, some of the party managed to reach the children and pull them from the water. A human chain was then formed to pull the children and the imperilled adults from the pit, all of them reaching safety.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 283

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Deliver me from Grampa Snazz. That partner is a mess. He never tells me what he has. He always makes me guess. What tricks he has from him no word will ever let me know. I guess he thinks a little bird will always tell me so.

When a player sees tricks enough for a game, he should tell his partner so. He does it with a signal. The signal he uses is a jump in the number of the bid.

If he also has two sure tricks, he may give the jump signal on the first round. Without two sure tricks, the jump should await a later round.

Make like you had this hand:

♠ None
♥ A J 6 2
♦ A Q J 5
♣ 9 7 5 3 2

Your partner starts with an opening bid of one no-trump. You have enough tricks for a responding bid. You should either takeout, to your own suit or raise in no-trump.

A takeout comes before a no-trump bid. To make a takeout, you need a biddable suit. A suit is biddable if it has four cards with two faces among them.

You have two such biddable suits. One is in hearts. The other is in diamonds. With two biddable suits of the same length, bid the higher ranking suit first.

Your first response is a takeout to hearts.

The opening bid by your partner promised at least five tricks. You have six tricks; two aces, a queen, and three short cards in spades. Thus, you can see all tricks in the partnership hands.

With two sure tricks also in your hand, you have what it takes for an immediate jump response. So, instead of answering with a bid of two hearts, your response is three hearts.

When you respond with that jump bid of three hearts, it is a signal that you see tricks enough for a game. That is why a jump bid is a signal that orders partners not to stop less than game.

A bridge partner is as good as his bidding words.

THROUGH THE DIAL SIGHT

A Weekly Column Devoted to the Activities of the Members of the Armed Services at Home and Abroad

The value of Reserve Army training in Canada or even elsewhere, was not only stressed, but proven in a recent statement issued by Maj.-Gen. F. R. Phelan, director-general of Canada's Reserve Army of 100,000 part-time soldiers at Ottawa. Following a tour of the Pacific Coast region Maj.-Gen. Phalen said the need and importance of the reserves still is "very great".

Youths in Reserve Army ranks, trained by veteran officers who served in the First Great War, are "as keen as mustard". Gen. Phelan said and most of them intend to "go active" when they reach the required age.

He said active army recruiting from the Reserve is at a rate of one reservist to every eight of the general public enlisting. A fifth of all recruits for the three armed services come from the Reserve army.

Action Please.

After advocating "Peace at any Price!" the lady on the soapbox, demanded:

"Can any person in this audience give me a slogan that will help to win the war?"

"Ah, miss I can!" shouted a stalwart sailor in the crowd.

"And what is it, my friend!" the orator asked with a superior smile.

Like a shot came the reply:

"Stop yapping and start scrapping, Miss!"

Captain C. W. Blair, M.C., of the P.W.O.R., reported to the Armouries as adjutant and training officer of the Argyll Light Infantry Thursday. Captain Blair, a veteran of World War No. 1 and who has been active in military circles throughout Canada for many years, is here temporarily while Captain K. R. Holmes is on sick leave undergoing treatment at the Kingston Military Hospital. Captain Blair was introduced to the Argyll officers by Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan, E.D., Thursday night.

A Rejoinder.

The bore was boasting of his family's patriotism.

"I'm joining the R.A.F. next week", he stated. "My father fought in the last war and my grandfather fought in the Boer War. My great-grandfather, I've been told, fought in the Zulu War. . ."

"Really!" drawled a listener "On which side?"

Promotions posted in Part two orders at the Armouries this week included Tprs. J. F. Darlington and S. Blake to A./Cpls. whole appointments included Tprs. D. V. O'Brien and D. G. Thompson to A./L. Cpls.

L./Cpl. W. Adams, of "B" Squadron, was struck off strength having joined the Canadian Army. (Just another of the boys who gained advantages while training in the Reserve Army.)

Charge It.

An official with a very annoying manner was making an inspection of an aerodrome.

On this particular afternoon parachute practice was being undertaken by a number of pilots, and the official asked question after question of one man about his experiences and sensations while falling through the air.

"But supposing your parachute fails to open while you are coming down?" he asked finally. "What do you do then?"

The pilot had had more than enough by this time. "Take it back and change it", he replied.

Battery Banting.

Under the direction of Major Ewart, of the 44th Field Reg't. (R.C.A.) stationed at Gananoque, the officers and N.C.O.'s of the 34th Battery (R) are taking an advanced course in artillery technique and reports indicate the school is progressing most favorably.

Captain S. A. Sword, commanding officer of the 34th Battery, announced some interesting battery news the other night when he suggested that additional motorized equipment is being procured for the local battery reserve training. The new equipment will be in the form of motorized transports for the purpose of hauling the big guns used by the 34th and also for the transportation of battery personnel.

Gnr. Doug. McLean, who has been with the 34th Battery for some time past, was struck off strength this week after enlisting in the R.C.A.F. However, three new recruits were enlisted into the Battery this week and indications points to additional artillery recruits as soon as the winter blasts are over and the warm spring breezes blow.

Well-Drilled.

The sergeant raged as his squad of recruits turned left when they should have turned right and vice versa. Private Higgins was the greatest offender, and the sergeant, going up to him, bawled in his ear:—

"Haven't you ever drilled before in your life?"

"Yes, sergeant," replied Higgins. "I once drilled for three years".

"Oh, indeed. . . . and where?" snapped the sergeant.

"In a quarry", grinned Higgins.

Reveille isn't what it used to be, according to a service paper published at Fort Sheridan, Ill. No longer is it a series of grunts and groans accompanied by the harsh barks of a sergeant and the blaring of a bugle.

The reason: A public address system has been installed in each of the medical company barracks. The speaker is set up in the personnel office and the occupants of those barracks now hop out of bed to such familiar tunes as "Put Your Arms Around Me, Honey!"

The happy result has been that the boys are not only up ahead of time, but they come out singing and whistling!

Sixpence For Seat In Rommel's Chair

Thaxted, Jan. 22. (CP)—A chair that once belonged to Field Marshal Rommel now is the property of the daughter of Maj. John Kirby of this Essex town, who captured it when British forces took Rommel's headquarters at El Daba in Africa.

It is a high-backed, extremely comfortable armchair of padded leather on a stout wooden frame. Maj. Kirby carried it on his truck right through to Tripoli.

He sent it to his daughter from Sicily and the daughter charges sixpence a time to sit in "Rommel's Chair". The money goes to the Red Cross Prisoner of War Fund.

AUSTRALIA, N.Z. IN SINGLE BLOC IN POST-WAR ERA

Pact is Landmark in International Collaboration in Pacific Area

OTHERS WELCOMED

Canberra, Jan. 21 —(CP Cable)—Australia and New Zealand today signed a pact which turned the two Dominions into a single bloc for dealing with post-war civilian and defence problems.

The formal signing at Parliament House here followed several days of discussion among Prime Minister Curtin of Australia, Prime Minister Fraser of New Zealand and members of their governments.

The text will be issued as soon as it has been ratified by the respective countries, it was announced. There are no secret clauses.

Mr. Curtin said that the pact is a landmark in international collaboration in the Pacific area, in the development of Australian-New Zealand foreign policy, and in the constitutional development of the British Commonwealth.

He said the agreement made the two Dominions a single bloc in international affairs but added, "if any of our Pacific neighbors are in general agreement with the principles . . . they can be assured we are eager to collaborate with them."

Countries.

He described the agreement as "a representative attempt by the two Dominions to use their own resources for peace, welfare and good government of the whole Pacific region not in their own interests but in the interests of all Pacific countries."

Mr. Fraser denied any suggestion that the conference had met to aggrandise Australia and New Zealand.

On the contrary, he said, the conference was aimed entirely at the welfare of all native peoples of the Pacific.

Expect Civil War If Germans Push Out Danish Police

Stockholm, Jan. 22. (AP)—The moment Danish police are pushed out of the picture by the Germans the "gates will be opened to civil war' in Denmark, Staffan Tjerneld, staff correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter said yesterday. He has recently returned from Copenhagen.

The Free Danish Press Service earlier this week reported the Germans had taken over control of the police system and interned Danish policemen, but Tjerneld said they are still on duty guarding the people's interests so far as possible.

The Danes are watching uneasily recruiting by the Danish Nazi Scharlburg Cors, which now numbers between 5,000 and 6,000, Tjerneld added.

Danes fear it will be assigned to take over some of the duties of the Danish police force. This, Tjerneld said, would mean civil war.

BOSTON BRAVES SOLD BY QUINN TO SHAREHOLDERS

Financial Woes Started in Early 20's but Came to Head in 1936

A GOOD BUY

Boston Jan. 22 (AP)—The Boston Braves appeared to be on their strongest financial footing today as majority control passed into the hands of three wealthy Boston contractors who gave President Bob Quinn stout support three years ago when he organized a syndicate to adopt the National League's then most troublesome problem child.

Quinn has announced that a group comprising Joseph Maney, Guido L. Rugo and Louis R. Perini, has gained control by buying out other stockholders.

The Braves' financial woes started back in the early 20's but they did not come to a head until a decade had passed when C. F. Adams, then owner of the Boston Bruins Hockey Club and majority stockholder in the Suffolk Downs race track, took possession from a group headed by Eil Fuchs, back in 1936.

Because of his race track connections, Adams was forced to turn over control of the Braves, which he did to Bob Quinn who headed the Brooklyn Dodgers the previous season. Since then Quinn has been battling financial problems that existed when he took over and now he appears to have them all in proper order.

Under the new setup, Quinn will continue as President, Maney as Treasurer, and John Quinn, elder son of the former, as Assistant Treasurer.

BERLINERS' 'GOODNIGHT'.

Stockholm, Jan. 22. (AP)—Travellers from Germany say the progressive intensity of the R.A.F.'s air raids on Berlin is reflected even in the way Berliners tell each other goodnight.

Early in the war they wished one another "a bombless night".

Now the expression commonly used is "Bleib Uebrig", which freely translated means "hope your survive".

SEES END THIS YEAR

Toronto, Jan. 22 —(CP)— Air Vice Marshal W. A. Curtis, just back from his post in England as second-in-command of the R.C.A.F. overseas, home to take over at Ottawa as air member for staff—in effect, boss of the Coastal Command—sees the end of the war in 1944. He says there is "no question about that."

HIGHER CLASS MINOR LEAGUES READY TO PLAY

Frank Shaughnessy Says Nothing but Gov't. Order Will Stop Leagues

LOTS OF PLAYERS

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, Jan. 22—(AP)—Lashing out at crepe-hangers who foresee a gloomy 1944 for the higher class minor baseball circuits, President Frank Shaughnessy of the International League said today his clubs are in better shape than last year and nothing but a direct order from the government will stop them.

"Nobody has any right to make predictions at this time," Shaughnessy said, "but I figure that we will have sufficient players to handle the situation. The majors plan to go and so do we. We have signed several men. Some are 4-Fs and some are pre-Pearl Harbor fathers. They aren't going to take all of them, that's certain. If the Majors can run, so can we."

Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers has expressed fears that the International, American Association and Pacific Coast leagues would have to shut their gates due to the player shortage.

Shaughnessy observed that while the Majors plan to absorb experienced men on the way down, the Double A loops will be able to use some on the way up who are not quite ready for the big show. Other sources of player material indicated by the baseball executive are the Armed Services who are discharging men every day, some of them ball players.

"It all adds up to a repeat performance of last year when many feared for the game's future," Shaughnessy stated as he pointed out that every Double A club has a big investment of from $100,000 to $200,000 in player talent, men on their defence list who would be lost if the teams failed to operate.

The International, the only minor league to weather the storm in the First Great War, looks to '44 with prospects that two cities that could not play night ball last year will turn on the arcs.

TACKLES BIG JOB

London, (CP)—J. S. Buchanan, a fellow of the Royal Aeronautical Society and of the U.S. Institute of Aeronautical Scientists, and formerly a squadron leader in the R.A.F. has been appointed chief executive at the Ministry of Aircraft Production. He is also chairman of the Aircraft Supply Board.

"Feminine Touch"

Ultra-modern comedy with a background of literary bohemianism brings four stars to screen in "The Feminine Touch", opening next at the Capitol Theatre.

Rosalind Russell, Don Ameche, Kay Francis and Van Heflin create a "four-cornered" triangle in a plot of conflicting emotions. The supporting cast includes Donald Meek, Gordon Jones, Henry Daniell, Sidney Blackmer, Grant Mitchell and David Clyde.

Major W. S. Van Dyke II directed the picture and Joseph Mankiewicz produced it for M-G-M Heflin, a comparative newcomer to the screen, played opposite Katharine Hepburn on Broadway in "The Philadelphia Story".

"A Scream in the Dark"

From all accounts available, Republic's new mystery drama, "A Scream in the Dark" looks like another winner for that talented director George Sherman, who has turned out so many thrillers for nations wide moviegoers.

Starring Robert Lowery and Marie McDonald "A Scream in The Dark" will be seen next at the Capitol Theatre.

The ramifications of the story are apparently of the nature which will keep audiences guessing right down to the last flicker of film.

The Canadian Universal News completes the big double bill.

AT THE BELLE

"Thank Your Lucky Stars"

"Thank Your Lucky Stars," Warner Bros.' star-studded musical production, opens at the Belle Theatre today. Seen in the film are such top-notch players as Humphrey Bogart, Eddie Cantor, Betty Davis, Olivia de Havilland, Errol Flynn, John Garfield, Joan Leslie, Ida Lupino, Dennis Morgan, Ann Sheridan, Dinah Shore and Alexis Smith.

In addition, the film features an outstanding supporting cast headed by George Tobias, Jack Carson, Alan Hale, Edward Everett Horton, S. Z. Sakall, Hattie McDaniel and Spike Jones and his City Slickers and an impressive array of 148 Hollywood showgirls. Arthur ("Dancing in the Dark") Schwartz and Frank ("Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition") Loesser wrote the twelve songs.

CHAPTER 9

She met all sorts of men; single, married, partially married. She met some who were adroit and charming in their approach; others who were obvious and clumsy. She encountered men who were gay and spendthrift, and men who were dour and parsimonious. One and all were avid to be seen with her, for there seems to be nothing the New York male delights in so much as to be observed in public places with a young and beautiful woman. She was mildly surprised to discover what a high percentage of these gentlemen were innocent of any hopes or intentions except social ones.

She also discovered that the attitude of the artist toward the model was vastly different from the attitude of the layman. To an artist—as Peter Orrick, for instance—the model was a part of his equipment, and not to be pampered. The artist in general seemed to feel that any girl should be gratified to pose for him and to run his errands and to do chores about the studio. Most artists, instead of being gay dogs whose studios were hotbeds of glamorous sin, were plodding fellows and not especially interesting outside their art. They were glamorous only because story writers, from Henri Murger onward, had found them excellent material. On the whole Darnley found them rather dull.

Models in the upper brackets were of two sorts, Darnley discovered; those who were out for bigger game than artists, or those who were too cold, vain and generally snippy to engage in anything so necessarily undignified as mere romance.

She was dining and going to the theatre tonight with Chico Sanson. It was her second engagement with him and on the first occasion she had found him charming, entertaining, not without wit and if he were a trifle avid of the society of celebrities, he was so obvious and naive about it that it ceased to be objectionable. With respect to famous people he was very much as another man might have been about Chinese porcelains or Old Masters. They were his hobby.

It was impossible to guess his age as he sat across the table from her in the Colony, but she imagined that he was older than he looked. He might have been forty.

"Everybody," he said, "is there at a Kinsolving First Night."

"I've never been at a First Night," responded Darnley."

"I like them," he said. "Whether the show is good or bad. You know just who you are going to see."

"Isn't that boring?" she asked.

He looked at her a moment as if that was a very difficult question to answer and then avoided it by changing the subject: "May I say that you are lovely tonight. It's a lovely kind of loveliness."

"Thank you, sir," she said demurely.

"It is more," he said, "a Junior League kind of loveliness than that of an artist's model."

"Maybe," mused Darnley, "that's because models like to look like their idea of Junior Leaguers and Junior Leaguers try to look like models."

This observation also was too much for him. It savored of that bewildering thing, the epigram.

"I've been doing a great deal of thinking about beauty lately," he remarked slowly.

"I understand that many men do."

"This," he said, "was in a business way. I am connected with the Intercontinental Tobacco Corporation. We manufacture a cigarette called the Golden Blend."

"Indeed," said Darnley.

"I've been working on an idea for our advertising To have the cigarette practically trade-marked by a girl. The Golden Blend Girl. We would use her picture in all our copy. The first idea is to have a sort of contest to find the Golden Blend Girl. That's why I've been giving so much attention to beauty —to make up my mind just what type would be ideal for our purpose."

"And what type had you decided on?"

"I haven't. I'm keeping an open mind." He looked up and saw Peter Orrick and Adrian De Groot making their way between the tables. He waved a hand. De Groot headed his bulk toward them and Orrick followed.

"Twice in ten days," De Groot said. "Can it be love?" Then to Darnley: "You haven't done anything in more than a week to deserve public attention. Are you slipping?"

"I'm thinking up something tremendous," she smiled archly.

"You never," Orrick said, "dropped in at the studio?"

"Should I?" she asked.

"We're old friends, aren't we? Wasn't I to blame for your coming to New York."

"Yes," she answered, "and when you saw me here you shied like a skittish horse."

De Groot chuckled and Orrick flushed. "Well, I won't shy again," he promised. "I was going to call Wolfgang. The Metropolis wants you on another cover."

Darnley considered that. It would be good business to appear again on a cover of that popular magazine.

"When?" she asked.

"Could you start tomorrow?"

"I think so. I'll have to check with Wolfgang. I'll call you in the morning."

De Groot spread his hands. "Isn't she unique?" he demanded, turning to Sanson. "Chico," he asked, "would you say offhand that twice in ten days was constantly?"

"I don't get you."

"If I said that Chico Sanson was being seen constantly in the society of the coming queen of artist's models, Miss Darnley Carfax, would that be accurate?"

"It would," responded Chico, "be accurate as a statement of my—ambitions."

"Neat," said De Groot, nodding his huge head. "You are improving, Chico. Next I'm going to hear that you missed a First Night on purpose and then I'm going to respect you as a man and a brother. Don't be late. The battery of flashlights is already set up on the sidewalk." He grinned down at Darnley. "Cut up a caper soon," he urged. "A poor columnist must have copy."

"You may rely upon me," Darnley promised cheerily.

"It's surprising," observed Sanson, when the pair had moved away, "how much power De Groot has. He can almost make anybody or any play or novel. With just a few words in his column."

"Is that," asked Darnley, "why I'm dining with you tonight?"

"It planted the seed," said Sanson frankly, "but you did the rest yourself. And I can tell you why."

Darnley gave her attention to the breast of guinea hen. She looked up after a moment. "Isn't there such a thing as family life in New York? People do marry and live somewhere, don't they?"

"It has been done."

"But almost everybody one meets spends their noons and their evenings in restaurants or night clubs or theatres."

"Don't you like it?"

"As a novelty—yes. As a permanent thing it would pall on me."

"It does pall," said Chico, "but what else is there to do? It becomes a habit."

"But you—and similar men," Darnley continued, "you have plenty of money. You have position. Why don't you marry and—oh, have a different sort of life?"

"I did marry," replied Sanson. "Everybody does it once. For six years I've been doing First Nights and cafes. She won't divorce me and I can't divorce her." His voice changed and became lower in tone. "So I took up celebrity collecting."

"I'm sorry," Darnley said.

"No need to be. So, you see, I can't marry again." He smiled wryly. "There is such a thing as loneliness. Oh, I know what you're thinking—that I don't need to be lonely. I've thought of it. Naturally. But I've never yet run across just the right girl."

Darnley did not speak.

"I've found out from my own experience and from watching my friends that maybe there could be happiness outside of marriage. But," he hesitated a little, "but there would have to be a pretty perfect love, don't you think?"

"I'm just an innocent girl from the country," parried Darnley.

"Most of these affairs are bargain and sale," said Chico "I would not like that. I would have to worship her and she would have to adore me. Then I'd be willing to go off the deep end with trust funds or annuities or whatever would be needed to make her secure."

Darnley wondered if this were an oblique proposition; but she did not think so. She was rather sorry for Sanson. He was a bit pitiful.

Darnley chose to change the subject. "When do you start the search for the Golden Blend Girl?" she asked.

"Officially? It will be announced in two weeks. There — there are things going on—certain changes in plans and—er—in personnel." he said. "We are not quite ready."

She understood as he could not know that she understood. It was the taking away of the advertising account of the Intercontinental Tobacco Corporation from Hatch & Miller and the bestowal of it upon some other agency. She was convinced that it was a part of the intrigue concerning this matter that had caused Henry Garden to pay her a hundred dollars for each evening she spent with Sanson.

She wondered what Chico Sanson would think of her if he knew it: what he would do, what he would say. This reflection caused her acute discomfort, for she found herself liking the man and unwilling to forfeit his good opinion.

Of one thing Darnley was convinced: She would be guilty of no treachery toward Sanson. She would not allow herself to be used, but would use those who were trying to make a cat's paw of her.

"You see," said Sanson, "we spend a tremendous sum in advertising. We have to have the best brains, the best advisers, to get adequate returns from it."

"You mean the advertising agency that handles your account?" she asked.

"Exactly," he said.

Presently they left the table and stepped into Sanson's town car. The chauffeur drove them to the theatre where all was agog. The sidewalk was crowded with sightseers, autograph fiends, cameramen.

"Please, Mr. Sanson! Please . . May I have the lady's name? . . . Oh, Miss Carfax." The newspapermen grinned at her amiably. If only Grandpa Carfax — all her home town—could see her at this moment! It was gorgous! Heavenly! Perfect!

Darnley thought she never had seen so discouraged a young man as Clyde Farrish seemed to be. His hair, never neat, was tousled by fingers that had run and run through and through it. His eyes were weary. Yet, for all of it, he seemed somehow younger, more boyish than ever before.

"Lawyers," he remarked, and shrugged.

"The sable coat?" asked Darnley.

"I surrender," he said, "the whole studio, lock, stock and barrel, won't pay for a small part of it if they sell me out."

"But they've got to give you time —give the police time to hunt for it," she said.

"Oh, they're quite decent about it. But what's the use? I'm all for giving them the key to the place and walking out."

"How," asked Darnley, "could that coat have been gotten out of this place? Have the police no idea?"

"They don't say so," he said, "but their idea is that I got away with it somehow — probably with your help. They've looked into my affairs. They know I'm shaky. I suppose it's a natural suspicion."

"Why," asked Darnley, "is your business shaky?"

"Because we're in a depression," he said.

"Is every commercial photographer in a bad way?" she asked.

"Some of them seem to be getting along all right."

"Why they and not you?"

"How should I know?"

"Have these other studios better cameras and equipment than yours?"

"No."

"Then where is their advantage?"

"They can sell their stuff; I can't."

"Why?"

"Quit pestering me," Clyde said irritably. "I'm a flop. I haven't got what it takes to compete."

"You wouldn't happen to be a quitter, would you?"

"What's it to you if I am?" he demanded with a sudden flare of temper.

"Less than the dust," she said. And then, "Grandpa Carfax says when you're puzzled about a thing always go back and look at its elements. Lay them in a row and see if you can put them together better."

"You talk too much," demurred Farrish.

"The first element," Darnley said, "is: Are you morally liable for that coat?"

"Morally responsible for the loss of the coat?" said Farrish to Darnley. "Yes, and legally, too."

"Then it's a debt," she said, "and Grandpa Carfax says a man never belongs to himself so long as he owes a penny. A man that is square would either find it or pay for it if it took him forty years."

"Right now I don't feel noble," Farrish said. "Bankruptcy looks like man's best friend."

"And be ashamed of yourself all the rest of your life!" she pursued.

"Do you," he asked, "think I want to crawl back home licked? Do you think I like it?"

"If," she told him, "you let yourself be licked now, you'll stay licked to the end of time. You can't lie down. To keep your own self-respect you've got to fight!"

He raised his tired eyes and looked at her curiously. "What's all this to you? What do you care?"

Darnley bit her lip. What, indeed, did she care? What were Clyde Farrish and his affairs to her?

Her eyes snapped. "Just what," she asked, "do you think you've got that I want? I'm just interested: why I'm interested I'm darned if I know." She paused. "Maybe," she said, "it's because you didn't start making passes at me. Maybe I liked that. Maybe it's because I'm sorry for you. But, whatever it is, I'm done right now!"

She turned and marched toward the door but before she reached it, Clyde said, "Hold your horses."

Darnley paused and turned her face—an angry, startlingly beautiful face—and remained poised with her hand on the doorknob.

"Suppose you were in my place, what would you do?" he asked.

"I've told you," she said sharply. "I'd keep going. I'd hold off those fur people and I'd hunt to find what was wrong with me that I couldn't do as much business as other studios do. And then I would go out and get it."

He ran his fingers through his hair. "I'm a poor business man," he admitted.

"Why not take half an hour off and think up why you're not a business man. Maybe it's been because you haven't tried."

"Meaning what?"

"Meaning," she said, "that you've been doing all your thinking about making pictures and nothing else.'

Clyde thought that over. It took him between wind and water because it was so penetrating: because, as he saw in a flash, it went to the very root of the matter. He stared at her. After a pause he said quite different than he had at first intended. "I still," he said, "can't understand why you are interested in what becames of me."

"Neither can I," she said, compelled again to face that question. Maybe it is because of that first day in the railroad station. That was an odd thing. I was coming to New York to be a model—and I ran into you needing a model." She was talking now more to herself than to him, trying to explain it to herself. 'Maybe there's some sort of law that makes people meet at the right moment. Maybe there is something that sends one person moving from one spot and another person moving from another spot."

"Kismet?" he added, making a boyish grimace. "You don't by any chance, think you're in love with me?"

"Definitely not," she said sharply.

"All the same, that was funny talk about Kismet."

"Probably it doesn't mean anything. I was just thinking out loud."

He sat whistling through his teeth, saying nothing.

"Now," Darnley said, "if you want to make that picture, let's get at it. My afternoon is taken. I'm working in a fashion show."

They went into the studio and were finished with the pose in an hour. Farrish walked with her to the door.

"By the way," Clyde announced. "Somebody busted into this shop last night."

"Burglars?"

He shrugged. "Can't find they took anything,' he said. "Just rummaged around an old library of negatives I bought."

"Did you tell the police?"

"Not yet.'

"Don't you think," she asked, "that too many queer things are happening around this studio?"

"Yes," he replied promptly, "and first among them is you."

• •

The Fashion Show wasn't good for Darnley's soul. With half a dozen other beautiful girls of assorted complexions she slithered across the stage and down the runway wearing exquisite costumes and gowns and hats and furs. She experienced the sensation of lovely textures.

As she undulated before the roomful of women her heart was hot. Not one in that great apartment was so beautiful as she; she doubted if any were as intelligent. Yet she was paid to exhibit herself before them while they sat back smugly and fatuously imagined that they could look as she looked.

What, she asked herself savagely, was the difference between herself and these women? She could find but one answer: money. Because they had the money, and the social position money could buy, they might order her sharply to turn, to retreat, to advance, to stand, as if he were a dumb animal. It was wearing to body and to nerves, but she must smile that insipid smile and glide among them, suffering their critical stares and comments.

"Oh, model", rang out a clear-cut not-musical voice, "will you turn so I can see the back? Not that way—not that way".

Argentina Will Rebuild San Juan

Buenos Aires, Jan. 21 —(AP)— President Pedro Ramirez announced today that the Argentine government would rebuild the city of San Juan on the site where rescue workers still are searching through ruins for victims of last week's disastrous earthquake.

Ramirez said the new city would be built along modern lines to withstand tremors such as the one which has just taken a toll of more than 3,500 lives.

Effects of the disaster were not confined to San Juan. In the nearby village of Angaco 47 perished and 26 were injured while Albardon Department counted 11 dead and 300 injured—100 seriously.

Mercy Plane Crashes.

Santiago, Chile — (AP) — The Government Information Bureau said today a mercy plane of the Chilean National Airlines carrying doctors and nurses to the earthquake stricken inhabitants of San Juan, Argentina, had crashed en route, killing its 12 occupants.

First reports said the plane crashed in flames when it failed to clear trees shortly after taking off from the airdrome at Mendoza.

WHAT IS YOUR SALARY LIMIT?

Perhaps you have never stopped to ask yourself that question before. Five years from now, ten years from now, will you be earning $10 a week more than you are now, $25 a week more than you are now, or (perish the thought) $10 a week LESS THAN YOU ARE NOW?

TO A GREAT EXTENT IT DEPENDS ON YOURSELF

Economic conditions in the country, war, peace, boom, depression, will have some slight influence, but the main cause of any change, upward or downward, will be YOURSELF.

If you are in a business where you seem to have reached your limit—if you would like to be making more money as the years go by, write for an interview giving background and marital status. (We are unable now to consider applications from those employed in war work.)

We have a SALARIED SALES JOB open now for which you might qualify. Apply now to file No. 114, Selective Service.

Little Benny's Note Book

Last night I had to go to bed and I said to pop, Hay pop, will you do me a favor tomorrow morning?

I probably wont even see you, tomorrow's Saturday, pop said.

Meaning no school, and I said, Sure, that's just the thing. I want you to pretend you're absent minded and wake me up just like usual, and then I'll remind you it's Saturday and I dont have to go to school, and it'll be a great feeling going back to sleep again happy. Will you, pop? I said, and he said, With pleasure.

And this morning I was dreaming I was a Terkish rug having the dust shook out of me, and here it was pop shaking be to get up, saying, Come on, come on, shake a leg out of this, I've called you half a dozen times and now Im standing right here till I see you in a dressing position.

The result being I quick jumped out of bed and started to get dressed, saying, Jimminy, pop, I dont remember you calling me, I certainly must of been awful tight asleep.

And I went down to breakfast and ma said, Well, such bright and early ambition on a Saturday, I can hardly believe my 7 senses.

Making me remember everything, and I said, Aw G, pop, holey smokes that's a heck of a trick, you were just supposed to pretend, and pop said, Apparently I must of overacted a little. As a matter of fact I rather wanted to teach you not to look a gift horse in the mouth and try to steal its oats. I sincerely trust the little incident hasn't spoilt your whole day, he said.

Which it might of if I hadn't gone back to sleep up in my room right after breakfast with all my clothes on, making it a cinch to get right up when I heard the fellows yelling and arguing outside.

The War Today—
Huns Suffer Staggering Losses As Avenging Russians Sweep On

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

When you stop to consider the titanic struggle along the Russo-German front, what feature strikes you most forcibly after you've noted that the Red avalanche continues its westward sweep?

Slaughter!

That certainly is one of the most impressive, and most significant, aspects of this crucial phase of the war in eastern Europe. The Muscovites are advancing over the bodies of dead Germans.

Comparatively few prisoners are being taken by the Red forces, and the rapidly retreating Hitlerites are in no position to capture many Russians. Thus the casualties which the Nazis are inflicting on the Russians —and they presumably are considerable, although we lack figures—likewise are mainly in killed and wounded.

One Day's Losses.

In the first six days of the great new Russian offensive on the Leningrad-Novgorod front, Moscow reported that 40,000 Germans had been slain. Gen. Leonid Govorov's troops in the Leningrad area accounted for 25,000 of the dead, and the other 15,000 were killed before the ancient stronghold of Novgorod to the south. The Moscow radio summed up the situation with grim satisfaction like this:

"German forces are bleeding profusely. They are panic-stricken under the threatening tentacle of a Soviet army of retribution."

Retribution.

"Retribution"—that burns in the mind of the Red soldier. He is exacting punishment for crimes against his own people.

Last Nov. 6, Marshal Stalin announced the Nazis had suffered 4,000,000 casualties on the Russian front during the previous year. Of this huge total, 1,800,000 were killed. There were 147,200 buried at Stalingrad. Moscow reported 100,000 Germans were killed on the Ukraine front alone in the first three weeks of 1944.

So it has gone, and so it's likely to continue to the bloody end. The great military experts are agreed that annihilation of the enemy is the one sure way to victory—and they mean killing or capture. The mere forcing of the foe to abandon territory doesn't win wars. The Prussian war lords always have been leading exponents of annihilation. Now they are being served with a big dish of their own strong meat.

Some Facts About Thirst Of an Elephant

(By R. P., in Regina Leader Post)

What with all the wartime statistics confronting the newspaper readers these days, it's a bit refreshing—if of no importance whatever—to pick up the show business journal, The Billboard, and find that the elephants of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus checked their thirst during the 1943 season with 536,000 gallons of water.

That's quite a bit short of the 1,684,717,870 gallons of water used in Regina in 1943 and it's still a lot of moisture.

Still, to an elephant there's a lot of elephant and, brother, if you were ever young you know what it's like to start work early on a circus day and try to quench a pachyderm's thirst.

All of which brings up the question—Why didn't the circus statistician delve deeper into the facts and come up with figures on the number of facts who carried the 535,000 gallons? And why didn't he tell us how he reached his conclusion in the first place?

You know, it sounds like a unique occupation. Nothing to do but sit around the menage of a circus listening to the candy butchers and the calliopes and watching elephants drink. It's even better than selling smoked glasses to people who want to view eclipses. At least, you're busy every day.

And while this gent was keeping tab on the tuskers, some poor fellow was busy in a hot office wagon preparing things like this with which to astound the populace: Hay consumed, 1,766 tons; oats, 17,180 bushels.

Animals other than the elephants assisted in doing away with the hay and oats.

And, speaking of eating, 4,300 meals were served daily in the circus dining tent to the 1,467 employees. Twenty-four different nationalities were represented among those employees, too, which is a nice thing to note when nations are at each other's throats.

The circus was housed in 76 double-length railroad cars; 41 tents made up of 74,000 yards of canvas, and, when the Big Show was on, 15 acres of land were needed.

The big top, when dry, weighed 19 tons. When wet it weighed three and a third times as much. Seventy mile of rope and 22,070 feet of electric cable were used.

And here are a few wartime statistics creeping into the story. The number of armed forces personnel who saw the circus free during the season totalled 36,750 and the war bonds bought as admission totalled $100,000,000.

Wonder how many peanuts the spectators ate?

Nazi Air Corps' Headquarters Hit In Rome Raid

An advanced airbase in Italy, Jan. 22—(AP)—A German frontline air corps' headquarters, carefully hidden in what was previously considered "neutral" territory because of its proximity to the summer residence of Pope Pius XII, was reported destroyed yesterday by dive-bombers from the United States 12th air support command.

Returning pilots, who had been painstakingly brief for the special mission, said the Pope's summer home and surrounding areas of Castel Gandolfo, south of Rome, "never felt a thing."

The German corps headquarters was housed in a villa near Frascati, south of Rome and only about five miles from Castel Gandolfo. The entire area had been voluntarily restricted by the Allies and their planes forbidden to fly over it. Apparently the Nazis learned of the restrictions and slipped in a headquarters to take advantage of it.

Two flights of eight bombers each peeled out of a formation ten minutes apart shortly after noon and scored 26 direct hits on the building, causing a tremendous explosion which the pilots said enveloped the entire villa, sending up clouds of black smoke.

"Most of our bombs hit the target and I'm sure we knocked out the whole building," Lt. Marin Snider of Elkton, Mich., leader of one of the flights, said. "There was no activity around the villa and no flak. It looked like we surprised them."

Montreal Pays Final Tribute To Canon Scott

Montreal, Jan. 22 (CP)—Montreal pays its final tribute today to Archdeacon Frederick George Scott, idol of the men of the Canadian Corps during and since the First Great War who died in Quebec Wednesday.

It will be the second military funeral for the "grand old man" who as senior Protestant Padre of the old first division, endeared himself to the hearts of soldiers and performed deeds of valor that brought him the Distinguished Service Order and other high decorations.

Quebec, and visitors from many parts of the Dominion, paid tribute yesterday in impressive services from St. Matthews Anglican Church, where he had served 37 years before his retirement in 1933.

Today's service will be held in Christ Church Cathedral, with burial in the family plot in Mount Royal cemetery, overlooking the city. Rt. Rev. John Dixon, Anglican Bishop of Montreal, conducts the service at the cathedral, assisted by Hon. Brig. C. G. Hepburn, M.C., senior Protestant Chaplain of the present war.

Anglican Service

It will be the Church of England service, with the inclusion of the poem "Requiescat," written by Canon Scott in a field near Ypres in 1915, and—at the request of many veterans—the poem "Knighthood" which he wrote in France in 1916.

As in Quebec, the casket will be draped with the Union Jack that he used on countless religious services in the front lines of 1914-18. Soldiers of this war and the last join in the long procession up the winding roads to the cemetery.

The Royal Rifles of Canada, the regiment of which Canon Scott was still chaplain at the time of his death, provided the main military escort at Quebec yesterday, with the entire reserve battalion on parade for the occasion. Rev. W. W. Davis, present rector of St. Matthews conducted the services there.

A 12-man firing party crashed out farewell volleys at Union station before the body was placed aboard a train as bugler Fred Palmer sounded "Reveille" and "The Last Post."

DOG CAUSES FIRE

Mankato, Minn., Jan. 22 (AP)— "Jim", a big Dalmatian dog, wagged his tail and started a fire which took firemen more than an hour to put out. "Jim" was in the basement with his owner's son, when the wagging overturned a varnish-remover container, and the liquid splashed against a hot water heater. The boy and dog escaped, but the resulting flames did considerable damage to the basement.

Farm Mechanics Courses Proposed

Realising the scarcity of farm machinery and the advantages of farmers being able to repair their own instead of placing dependence upon machinery repairmen, the Department of Agriculture will this winter stage farm mechanics courses in eleven different centres in Hastings county according to H. Lynn Fair, agricultural representative.

Such courses were motivated through new machinery production restrictions and were held on a limited scale last winter with recognized success. Four such courses were held for two day periods in Hastings county with each one being well-attended by district farmers and farmers sons. The eleven courses to be staged this year will cover a total of 20 days and will begin at Cannifton on the 1st and 2nd of February and after a swing through the central and northern part of the county will conclude in Belleville where the Kiwanis club will sponsor the class.

There will be no courses in Prince Edward county, it was stated, and arrangements will be made to invite farmers from the north end of the county to attend the courses to be held in Belleville. Dates when the courses will be staged at the various centres throughout the county will be advertised in county newspapers, it was indicated.

The Thrilling Story of How Australia Was Saved

The article, by a member of the staff of the London Sunday Times, tells one of the never-to be forgotten stories of the war—how American and Australian paratroops flew over the Owen Stanley mountains in New Guinea to bring about the greatest initial victory in saving Australia from invasion. The story is additionally interesting from the fact that it supplies the model and pattern of all the operations now proceeding in the Pacific.

By WILLIAM COURTNEY

(In London Calling.)

General MacArthur's campaign in the last islands of the Solomons group and in New Guinea is moving along very nicely to its ultimate objective, the expulsion of the Japs from all of those islands between the Australian mainland and Truk—the mystery sea base where the Jap Navy is skulking.

Now the pattern for these operations, the really classic instance where they've brought grand victory, was laid down at the Huon Gulf, on the northeast of New Guinea. I was there.

First of all, through the latter half of August, General MacArthur mustered all his air power to smash the Jap air bases. They had a number of airfields spaced along that north New Guinea coast. They've still got four at Rabaul on the northerly tip of New Britain and several on the south coast of that island just across the straits separating New Guinea from New Britain. From all of these Jap airplanes could converge to attack our troops or upset the amphibious plan. So MacArthur set upon them with all his resources.

* * *

One day alone in August he caught nearly three hundred air craft on the ground at the airfields at Wewak, destroyed them all in a midnight-to-dawn attack of great intensity, and slew some 1,500 skilled personnel who were all lined up waiting to take off.

These attacks reached their highest intensity on the night of September 3, the anniversary of the war's outbreak. On that night, all of these airfields were attacked at once to deprive the Jap of his eyes the night when the grand manoeuvre for encircling the whole Jap force was to begin.

At 6.30 a.m., on that Saturday, September 4, while General Sir Thomas Blamey, the Australian commander, was describing details of the plan to some of us in the jungles of New Guinea, it had already started. Australians of the famous 9th Division had moved along the north New Guinea coast in barges, protected by air cover and by the United States Navy. Their task was to land at two beaches above Lae. One part of this force marched along the coast and cut the Jap suppy line. The other part turned in the opposite direction along the beaches towards Lae.

These landings were protected by a smoke screen laid by the American warships in the Huon Gulf. The Japs didn't have wind of the plot for half an hour, which is a very long time in amphibious operations.

* * *

Now MacArthur hoped that when he halted his troops in front of Salamaua, the Japs would be tempted to believe they still had a prospect of holding it, and that they would drain the defences of Lae to end men to Salamaua to reinforce it. And this was precisely what happened. It made Lae an easier target—and, of course, once Lae fell, then Salamaua must go because its sole supply line came through Lae.

The attack on Lae still gave the Japs one avenue of escape. That was to move inland from the coast. This was just what MacArthur and Blamey hoped to avoid, for if the Japs escaped into the interior of New Guinea we should have to face more of these heart-break razor-back marches next year. So the plan for their encirclement included a daring parachute operation. American paratroops were to descend behind the enemy's lines, just a few miles inland from Lae, along the Markham River, to seal the back-door to Lae and prevent an escape along the river. This paratroop operation was designed to take place on Sunday morning, September 5, just twenty-four hours or so after the Australians had successfully landed on the beaches above Lae.

* * *

But there was also a third operation. Another Australian force had been secretly landed at an advanced airfield in the mountains. They had eight hundred Guinea boys with them carrying pontoon-bridge equipment. This force began marching actually on September 1, marching northwards along the course of the snake-like Wampit River toward the lower bank of the Markham River, which they were due to reach by dawn on September 5. Each one was told there would be no turning back—even the wounded had to go forward until the Markham was reached. And there they were to hide in the jungle awaiting their cue to cross. That cue was to be the spectacle of the American paratroops descending.

I spent Saturday, September 4, among the paratroops in New Guinea and attended their briefing. Hot breakfast was served to us at 3.15; and by the glow of torchlights, looking very much like fireflies in the trees. I remember, the captains assembled their men in the ghostly jungle, and marched them to their waiting lorries.

* * *

Each of the Douglas planes holds twenty-one men, so each lorry held the same number. Each lorry and each aircraft were given identical numbers. We were all seated in these vehicles by 4.30 and by 4.45 in the morning, before dawn, a long procession of lorries moved out of its jungle hideout to the main road. I was to fly in the last of the troop carriers, so was given a seat in the last lorry. Our route was to take us for 300 miles above the wild head-hunters' lands and to 10,000 feet above the Bismarck ranges, and it was essential to have good weather. Not until 8.30 was the signal given to start.

Well, the transports were lined up in a long line on the taxi-way just like taxi-cabs at a railway station. And when the signal to start came at last all the propellers started whirring together. The long line, nose to tail, moved forward, turned into the runway at the end of the taxi-way, and the aircraft took off at thirty-second intervals, close together. Within a few minutes, a vast armada of troop-carrying aircraft was in the sky. At the end of the taxi-way—at the end of the jungle—I saw a lone figure. It was General MacArthur; he too had risen at 2.30 that morning to salute his men as they started. Then I saw him jump into a Fortress bomber, which led the host into battle. He was first over the battle line, last to leave, and he spent seven hours in the air that morning. The great adventure had begun.

* * *

We were now joined by bombers which were to hammer at the Lae defences up to sixty seconds prior to the drop; by Bostons which were to drop a smoke-screen sixty seconds before this event, and by a cloud of fighters stepped up to thirty thousand feet. The whole armada met above a razor-back to rendezvous and then we all turned on course.

We began the three-hundred-mile flight high over the mountains, maintaining radio silence, every man tense. All were won-Jap Zeros, and how far secrecy Jap Zero, and how far secrecy and supplies were with us. Soon aften ten we crossed the mighty Bismarcks, and then began the great wheeling movement over the beautiful Markham valley within full view of the fog at LaLe, which we could see so clearry only a few miles away at the coast.

* * *

We had to descend to within a few hundred feet of the dropping area. The glorious valley looked very green and English this Sunday morning—the folds of the hills, gentle and velvety, reminded me of the Sussex Downs. But this, of course, was the dangerous period and not an enemy aircraft was in sight. At 10.10, a green light appeared over the doorway of my Douglas plane. The twenty-one paratroops silently rose, blackened their faces, adjusted their 'chutes, and formed up in line, just a if they were in a bus which had reached its terminus. I shook hands with the lieutenant in command— the officers, of course, always jump first. At 10.20 the green light changed to red. Without looking over his shoulder, the lieutenant called out: "Follow me, men', and hurled himself through the open doorway. One by one the twenty men followed as the jump master called out the signal: Go—Go—Go, to each of them in turn. Within two minutes all the hundreds of paratroops had left their aircraft.

* * *

I could see the great mass of men floating down to earth. A smoke-sceen between us and the enemy was laid to time when six Bostons flashed past underneath me. Every one dropped and disappeared into twelve-foot-high jungle grass, which, of course, hid each man from his neighbor. Secrecy and surprise had been maintained to the end. The Japs were trapped and encircled. The Australians, waiting at the lower bank of the river, bridged the eight-hundred yard-wide Markham and rushed across. The two armies met and embraced upon the airfield.

By the way, there is one story I must tell you. Australian gunners were due to land on the airfield. They couldn't do this until it had been cleared, and this involved a twenty-four hour wait. But the Aussies decided that if the Americans were to jump, they, too, would share the same risk so that their comrades would not be bereft of artillery support for such a long time.

* * *

So they went into training only fourteen days beforehand. Some experienced one practice jump, most of them none. But two hours after the Americans parachuted, down came the Australians with their sectioned guns. Every Aussie jumped safely, and within four, instead of twenty-four hours, their guns were limbered up ready for action. Next day, seventy air transports flying more Australians, landed at this air strip, which the Aussies, who had marched so far, had cleared of its jungle grasses. Within twenty-four hours, you see, it had become one of the busiest airports in the world, after it had lain hidden for eighteen months in silence beneath its tall jungle coverage. So fell Salamaua, Lae, Finschafen, and the whole Huon peninsula.

Next time you read of parachute operations, maybe in New Ireland, New Britain or others of the islands of the South Seas, recall this story, for here is the model and pattern to which all these operations are now conforming.

New Year's

New Year's Day falls on January 1 because of arrangements made by Julius Caesar or under his direction, relates The Toronto Telegram. But the Julian calendar was in need of astronomical correction, and so the Gregorian or New Style calendar, established in 1582 and still in use by the Christian world, places its January 1 on the January 13 of Julius Caesar.

The ancient Egyptians, Phoenicians and Persians began their new year with the Autumnal equinox on September 21. The ancient Greeks, until the fifth century B.C., started theirs with the Winter solstice on December 21. The ancient Romans, before Julius Caesar, did likewise. The Jews, in their ancient culture, have two New Year's Days, civil and ecclesiatical. The former is the first day of the month Tishri, which may fall anywhere between September 6 and October 5. The latter comes at the spring equinox on March 21.

In early medieval time, most Christian people in Europe regarded March 25 as New Year's Day, but in Anglo-Saxon England the year was started with December 25. William the Conqueror ordained that it should begin on January 1, but after the Norman had become well blended with the native stock, March 25 was adopted by common consent. This custom continued, in spite of the Gregorian calendar, until 1753. Catholic countries immediately adopted the Gregorian calendar, issued by papal decree, but the Protestant nations were slow in falling into line. In Germany, Denmark and Sweden, the change did not happen until 1700.

Getting Out of Britain Is Quite a Job

(By H. M. M., in Windsor Star)

Getting into wartime Britain may seem to be quite a trick for civilians. Actually, it is easy, compared to getting out.

Canadians who have visited the Old Land in peacetime had nothing to worry about, when they decided to come home, except possibly a crowded ship on which it might be difficult to get reservations. Today, the event is shrouded with official secrecy and formality, and it involves, too, a great deal of waiting and uncertainty.

The ordinary Canadian civilian who decided to come home quickly finds that there is only one agency which can reliably look after the arrangements. This is Canada House, the office of the Canadian High Commissioner to Great Britain. There, one busy department deals with nothing else except the movement of passenger traffic by ship to Canada.

Canada House does a great job in this respect. It cannot look after all the details, but it can and does inform the would-be passenger of every formality that must be observed. The guidance of the officials there is invaluable.

Visiting the appropriate office in the big buff-colored building on Trafalgar Square, the homeward-bound Canadian is likely to be informed that he probably can obtain passage in a week or so. The time is, of course, very indefinite, and the mention of a week's visit is usually super-optimistic.

Lots To Do.

But there is quite a bit to do during the period of waiting. In the first place, one must fill out an elaborate form for immigration purposes. In wartime, this requires the most meticulous information about citizenship, antecedents, vocation, length of visit in the United Kingdom and the reason for it, exact destination, next-of-kin. The form, in fact, is slightly more complicated than the average income tax return.

Then there is the passport to be put in order. The visa must be examined, and an exit permit must be secured from the British authorities. Some ships proceed to American ports, and if the passenger is to return home by this route, a visit to the United States consulate is necessary, to have the necessary transit permit stamped into the passport.

More forms have to be filled out in reference to ration books. If the visitor to Britain is in possession of his own, he must make a declaration that those he has are the only ration documents he holds, and this declaration, together with all the books, must be turned in at the port of embarkation. If he has deposited his ration books with retailers, he must so state, giving the name and address of the shops where they are being held, so that they may be picked up by the authorities after his departure.

Pre-censorship will take up most of one day. Anyone departing from Britain these days must carry with him nothing in the way of written or printed matter, maps or photographs, which have not been passed by the censors. It would be out of the question to censor such material at the port, so this is handled by an office in Kingsway, London, or at other similar bureaux in other cities.

Nothing Escapes.

Everything must be presented for examination. Censorship is interested even in books of fiction, personal snapshots, tourist guide maps. Not a thing that is written or printed, in fact, escapes it.

This must all be taken to the office, where one must wait his turn in line to hand it in. There is always a crowd. Everyone, it seems, is leaving Britain at once and has to have his documents pre-censored immediately. After a long wait, one gets up to the wicket and hands in his papers (a form describing them all in detail has been previously filled in and is presented with them) and is told when he is to call back for his belongings. If the documents are handed in during the morning they are usually ready by late afternoon, except in cases where a person has a huge volume of material, or is in possession of official papers which require closer inspection.

Calling back at the appointed time, the passenger again takes his place in line. When he finally reaches the hand-out wicket, he is given—providing there is nothing among his papers which the censors frown on—a package heavy with official red wax seals, together with a permit to carry this package, which is identified by an official number, out of the country, providing the seals have not been tampered with.

By the time all the formalities have been complied with, the Canadian is full of expectation of an early start for home. But he probably has to put in a few days, or maybe a week or two, of waiting. He has been warned that his call may come at any time, and that he may have to move in a hurry, so he must stay close to home. Thus, travel, as a means of filling in time, is out of the question.

Summons By Phone.

The summons finally comes. The traveller is requested by telephone to be at Canada House at a certain hour, when he will receive full instructions.

There is usually quite a gathering of passengers at these appointments, but there is no general issuing of instructions. Each one first goes to an office on the top floor, where he pays down his passage money and receives a receipt, which is the only steamship ticket he gets in these extraordinary times.

Following this comes the "briefing." The passenger has an audience in a little office with the suave official who arranges all these things. He is told, in strict confidence, the port of embarkation, and the time at which he is to be there. The name of the ship on which he is to travel remains a secret, and also, of course, the actual time of sailing.

He is told, however, what train connections are to be made for the port. He is given labels to place on his luggage and instructed how to fill them in. He is handed a typewritten sheet containing a summary of all the instructions, but is strictly cautioned against letting anyone else see it. This is an official, secret document.

The luggage labels bear the passenger's name, the name of the port (no way has been found to avoid this one slight violation of secrecy), and a code letter and number. The latter identifies the ship on which the luggage is to be loaded. It means nothing to anyone except those officially connected with the sailing.

Special Coaches.

If a large enough party is proceeding to the port, special railway carriages are provided, but individual passengers may proceed to the port independently if they choose. Their one responsibility is to be at the dock at the appointed hour. So they set off from London, still not knowing exactly when they are to sail, on what ship they are to travel, or at what port they are to land on this side.

Arrived at the port, the traveller is taken in charge by a staff of customs, immigration and security officials. His passport, visa and exit permit are inspected by one officer. Another takes up his ration books. A third checks up on his package of pre-censored papers and collects the permit which covers this material. Customs officers go through the luggage, for there are rigid restrictions against taking certain types of merchandise out of Britain in wartime.

Finally, having passed all these inspections, the passenger, armed with a pass to go aboard ship, is passed along to a tender at the dockside. Off-shore, too far out for her name to be detected, lies the ship which is to carry him home. There is much speculation among the group aboard the tender. There are always a few who know, from the ship's outlines, which one she is. (They are always wrong.)

They Finally Know.

Finally, when everyone has been cleared, the little tender chugs out into the harbor, and bears for the big vessel. For the first time, as they come up under her great gray walls, the people find out the name of the liner. It is too late then, of course, for anyone, should he be so inclined, to let anyone in Britain know this secret.

Up a steeply sloping gangway from the tender's upper deck, the company enters the bowels of the ship. The passengers find themselves in an atmosphere of strict military discipline. They are quickly passed along to a bureau, where they present their boarding cards and are allotted to their cabins. There is a scramble and quite a bit of confusion here, but in a remarkably short space of time everything is orderly again, and the people collect their hand luggage (there are no stewards to carry it for them) and trudge off to find their quarters.

Their voyage home has almost begun. At least, they are aboard, but there is no telling when the sailing will take place. It may be a few hours or it may be a couple of days later. But the homeward-bound folk have successfully negotiated their exit from wartime Britain, and they can relax until the full weight of the ship's discipline is borne in on them. That is something else again.

Two-Dollar Words Easy For B. C. Tot

Vancouver, Jan. 22. (CP)—Five-year-old Fern Turnley hasn't started to school yet but she can read as well as any third-grader and now she's learning to write and do arithmetic. Words like "interurban, arbitrary, calisthenics" are old stuff for the little girl who pronounces them like a veteran.

Her father, Francis F. Turnley, who has been tutoring Fern for the past ten months, is the author of a number of booklets and pamphlets. He thinks his new simplified method of teaching children to read would make it possible for all youngsters to learn two years before they go to school.

In an intelligent quotient test Fern rated 120 whereas average children usually make around 100. But her father doesn't think Fern any child prodigy. It's just because she knows how to read.

MONTREAL HOTELS JAMMED

Montreal, Jan. 22. (CP)—Lack of accommodation has reached such a critical stage that hotels here during the past 24 hours had to ask for postponement of a convention in one instance and place cots in partitioned sample rooms in another.

The postponed convention was the Quebec Pomological and Fruit Growing Society annual meeting. It will be held Feb. 24 and 25 instead.

One of the city's largest uptown hotel ordered partitioning of its sample rooms and hurried calls were made for 100 cots to face the ever-increasing demands for sleeping accommodations.

Brothers Committed To Stand Trial

Toronto, Jan. 22 —(CP)—Donald (Mickey) MacDonald, and his brother Edwin yesterday were committed for trial with three others on charges of the kidnap-robbery of truck driver George Butcher of Chatham, Ont. Committial came as the climax of a day-long preliminary hearing in which 17-year-old Howard Wilkins identified the two MacDonalds as participating in the unloading of a transport truck with $30,000 worth of liquor. Also committed for trial were Bendatto Zannella, Sam Mancusi and William Baskett. Baskett was released on $15,000 bail.

ALLIES DRIVE 4 MILES INLAND FROM BEACHHEAD

Appian Way Now Under Shellfire North of Marshes

German Command Attacks on Cassino Front Hoping to Gain Some Time

NAZIS COUNTER-ATTACK

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press War Correspondent

Algiers, Jan. 24 — (AP)—British and United States troops, driving four miles inland, are less than 30 miles from Rome and have brought the Appian Way under shellfire from their long beachhead north of the Potine Marshes, Allied headquarters announced today.

A German broadcast said Allied forces were advancing from the Nettuno area toward Littoria, 12 miles east of Nettuno, and but four miles from the Appian Way. Littoria is the main centre of the Pontino agricultural development in the marshes, and an Allied advance in that direction would be away from Rome instead of toward it.

But fighting with fury of a cornered tiger, the German 10th Army has gone over to the offensive on the whole Cassino front, 60 miles to the southeast. In a series of violent day and night counter-attacks, the Germans threw the Americans back across the Rapido river.

"It is apparent that the German command hopes to disrupt the entire 5th Army front to gain time to turn around and deal with the threat in their rear," said a military commentator at Allied headquarters.

The Americans had seized a bridgehead across the Rapido, three miles south of Cassino, in conjunction with the Allied landings near Rome, but were immediately attacked in force by the Germans who had been augmented by three divisions withdrawn from the Rome area a few days ago.

Expanding Bridgehead

As a result of the shift of German forces, the sea-borne forces at Nettuno were still expanding their bridgehead without meeting effective opposition, headquarters announced. Troops and supplies were pouring ashore.

The Allies have captured Nettuno, it was stated officially for the first time, hold the coast for several miles both north and south of that small port, and have brought the Appian Way under their guns.

This road, the main coastal highway between Rome and the Germans' southern front, is 12 miles from the beaches, and the four-mile advance placed the Allies within eight miles of the artery.

The road also was within range of warships offshore.

The Allied communique reported only patrolling activity on the British 8th Army's front in eastern Italy.

No Opposition Offered

The German communique admitted that no major opposition had yet been offered to the Allies at Nettung, but declared one destroyer was sunk, and a cruiser and two smaller naval craft were hit in German air attacks.

The German Air Force still had not been able to give a battle over the bridgehead and only four enemy planes were sighted there by Allied patrols all day yesterday. But American Spitfires intercepted a force of 50 to 60 Junkers, Heinkels and Messerschmitts which attempted to bomb ships off the beaches and shot down six Nazi bombers near Elba.

Nettuno was captured so quickly Saturday that the harbor installations were taken intact. Although the unloading capacity of this summer resort is small, as is that of the small harbor of Anzio to the north, long stretches of beach can be used to pour in supplies and reinforcements as at Salerno last September.

Besides Nettuno, one other coastline town has been captured, front line dispatches reported. Its name was not given.

QUAKE REGISTERED NEAR OTTAWA

Ottawa, Jan. 24 —(CP)— The earthquake felt in Ottawa and district Saturday originated about 63 miles from here, W. W. Doxee, Assistant Dominion Seismologist, said today.

Classified as a "slight disturbance," the tremor was registered on the seismograph at the Dominion observatory at 5.51 p.m., Saturday. The record indicated that the duration of the tremor was six minutes.

Madang Target For Next Move In Allied Drive

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Jan. 22 (AP).—The growing Allied bid for Madang, whose pre-war wharf facilities were the best on the northeastern New Guinea coast, was emphasized in today's reports from Allied headquarters.

South of the Japanese base, the second sizeable air assault in as many days possibly presaged a resumption by Australian soldiers of the drive which has been in abeyance in the Ramu valley since they got beyond Dumpu, less than 50 miles away, last October. In two days, nearly 150 tons of bombs have hit the enemy positions.

In addition to the inland ground menace, the Japanese also are confronted with American forces 50 miles along the coast southeast of Madang in the vicinity of invaded Saidor.

Headquarters announced today a new raid at Hansa Bay by low-flying bombers and strafing fighters resulted in destruction of 20 barges, supply dumps and anti-aircraft batteries.

Counter Blows Can Be Expected

London, Jan. 24 —(CP)— Strong German counter-attacks against the Allies' Nettuno bridgehead in Italy with forces drawn partly from the south and partly from northern reserves must be expected within a week, it is believed in London.

Troop movements from the 5th Army front would be risky for the Germans, however, in face of the fresh Allied ground drive there, and would be handicapped by the Nazis' own flooding of the Pontine marshes below Rome. The single good road through the centre of that flooded area is above water level, but it can be cut by bombs.

Canada Not Ready For Socialization Says Buck

Toronto, Jan. 24 — (CP)—Canada is not yet ready for socialization as proposed by C.C.F. spokesman, Tim Buck said here last night in an address during which he appealed to C.C.F. members to force their leaders to change their attitude toward the Labor-Progressive Party.

The Labor-Progressive Party had tried repeatedly to obtain the cooperation and affiliation of the C.C.F., he said, but its overtures had been refused.

"The C.C.F. declarations that socialization of Canada is their aim simply tends to drive many Canadians right into the arms of the reactionary elements," Buck told his audience of more than 3,000.

Eden's Son, in Air Force in Canada, Wants to Enter Diplomatic Service

(By JACK SULLIVAN),
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, Jan. 24 (CP) — LAC. Simon Eden, 19 year old son of Britain's Foreign Secretary, sprawled his six-foot body on a divan at the civilian-operated No. 2 Air Observers' School canteen here last night and parried questions ranging from his views on slang to his famous dad. And he did it with the aplomb of a budding diplomat.

The young airman, who bears a striking resemblance to his father, tactfully avoided "delicate" questions with a quick, easy smile and a slight nodding of the head.

Wants to Fly Over Berlin

He outlined his ambitions as "to conclude his course as navigator here, get back to Britain and then fly over Germany in a bomber, "especially Berlin," to continue his studies at Oxford University after the war, see the Rockies and Ottawa and then enter the diplomatic service.

Politics he said, "has a certain fascination for me. I like travelling and the diplomatic service is where you get it." His father approves of the idea "on his own experiences," he added.

Simon registered and received his number in August, 1942, with the R.A.F. He was on deferred service until March, 1943, and trained until the end of September last year. He came to Canada last October and has been stationed at Moncton, Regina, Winnipeg and Edmonton. He has been in Edmonton about two weeks.

Watched Blitz from Front Seat.

"I joined the R.A.F. because of two things. When I was a young fellow, between the ages of nine and 13, I was at school two miles from an airdrome and I also watched the Battle of Britain from a front seat." His "front seat," he explained, was on the south coast which he described as "Hell's Corner."

He hasn't any ideas about marriage, and of Canadian girls he said "I've met a few and they seem a little more high-spirited than the English girls. They dress better and mature faster than the English girls."

His views on miscellaneous subjects:

Slang: "It's rather tough not to pick it up isn't it?" But I certainly wouldn't adopt it."

Canadians: "I like Canadians very much. I'm surpised at the number of people in Canada, who are English or whose fathers and mothers are English."

Finances: "I'm on my own. Dad doesn't send me a penny. My pay is about $50 a month and it just about works out."

Newspapers: "I like Canadian newspapers because it's nice to see 12 and 14 pages again after reading four-page British newspapers. The Canadian papers are more sensational, but I enjoy reading them."

HAMMER TARGETS BY DAYLIGHT TO CONTINUE ASSAULT

Day Raiders Take Off In Direction of Pas De Calais Area of France

SLIGHT LOSSES

London, Jan. 24 —(CP)— Large formations of Allied aircraft swept out across the English channel to hammer European targets by daylight today after R. A. F. Mosquitos had stabbed at Western Germany last night and slipped back through the Nazis' defences without loss.

British planes also laid mines in enemy waters, the Air Ministry said. The communique mentioned no other overnight operations, though a wide continental radio blackout, and reports from Sweden had indicated previously that targets in southeastern Europe might have been under attack.

The day raiders took off shortly after dawn and headed in the direction of the Pas de Calais area in northern France, which was bombed by both British and American planes yesterday.

Attacks yesterday were directed chiefly against Nazi installations in the Pas de Calais area of France. Two Nazi air fields in France and Holland also were blasted.

More than 200 United States bombers attacked the French invasion coast area with 300 tons of explosives.

Nazi fighters offered little resistance. R. A. F. and New Zealand pilots dropped to 2,500 feet over Pas de Calais without challenge.

Througout the day-long air activity, however, the Germans lost five planes. The Allies listed one bomber and one fighter as missing.

British, Canadian, United States, New Zealand, Southern Rhodesian and Norwegian fliers participated in the day's operations, either as attackers or escorts.

R. A. F. and United States medium bombers attacked military objectives in Northern France in the sweeps today, it was said authoritatively. The bombers were escorted by R. A. F., Dominion and Allied fighting planes.

$2,000,000 FIRE

Detroit, Jan. 24 —(AP)—Four wooden warehouses at the Fort Wayne Army Ordnance Depot here, containing more than $2,000,000 worth of automobile and truck parts and other equipment, were destroyed by fire this morning. The cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

Col. Harry Anderson, depot commandant, said the Federal Bureau of Investigation will probe the blaze.

'Not a Shot Was Fired, We Just Walked', Landing Is Described

By DON WHITEHEAD
(AP War Correspondent)

At the 5th Army Beachhead South of Rome, Jan. 23 —(Delayed) —(AP)—Twenty-four hours in the life of a war correspondent is not particularly important to anyone but the correspondent himself—but this chronicle will give newspaper readers a glimpse of how their news is gathered in the theatre of war.

As an explanation to all editors of correspondents on this show: there have been thousands of words written, but finding a means of getting them back to Naples is another matter. Courier service by air and sea is a catch-as-catch-can affair.

For several hours we have been going around with our mouths open in amazement over the ease with which the army and navy managed to land troops behind the enemy lines. I landed with the second assault wave at 2:10 a.m. but did not see a shot fired. We just walked. That's how easy it was.

The nerve strain of covering an amphibious operation is terrific—not so much because of any physical danger, for that is a normal reaction, but because of the confusion and uncertainty of getting dispatches back to the cable clerk.

One of Lucky Correspondents.

Correspondents attached to the 5th Army drew lots to see who would win a place with the amphibious force. There were seven places open. I was one of the lucky ones and I was assigned to an advance unit.

As I write this it appears that the planners of this operation conceived a brilliant one, for it has gone better than anyone could have dreamed.

I drew a unit commanded by Lt.-Col. Lyle W. Bernard of Highland Falls, N.Y., an old friend from the Sicily campaign and one of the ablest and toughest soldiers I've ever seen.

Next morning our ship steamed out to sea to convoy with the invasion fleet and steamed towards Rome. Everyone spent most of the day sleeping or lounging in bunks, resting for the test ahead because we thought this would be the toughest landing any of us ever made. We did not see how the enemy could be unaware of such an armada.

After a briefing, a poker game started. Some men read, others wrote letters.

Then it was time to disembark. Our ship stood at anchor about four miles off the coast. We were to land in the vicinity of Nettuno.

A bell sounded and we filed onto the dark deck and stood at the rail as seamen lowered the assault boats. There was not a sound from the mainland and the only lights were stars studding the black sky.

We clambered down the swaying net into the boat and were jammed in tightly. The men did not talk much. The boat cleared away from the ship to join other small craft moving towards shore.

At 1:45 a.m. the navy loosed a barrage on the beach and then we thought the Germans would answer with coastal defence guns, but nothing happened. Not a shot was fired from the shore.

Then the boat hit the beach and Bernard shouted "Everybody out fast."

Jump Over Side as Ramp Sticks

We surged towards the front of the boat but the ramp stuck. "Follow me over the side," Bernard shouted and jumped into the shallow surf.

The soldiers swarmed over the side and splashed ashore.

Later we learned that the troops to our right and left walked into mines but apparently our strip of beach was unmined for I did not hear any explosion or see a shot fired by our troops although there was occasional small-arms fire off at our flank.

MASS PRODUCTION IN U. S. PRAISED BY SIR J. DILL

Claims Sherman Tanks Played Vital Part in British Victory at El Alamein

ASKS CO-OPERATION

Detroit, Jan. 24 —(CP)— Field Marshall Sir John Dill, Senior British Representative on the combined Board of Chiefs of Staff at Washington, today praised the part United States mass production of munitions and armaments has played in the United Nations' war effort and stressed necessity for continued co-operation and confidence among the Allies.

"It is not just quantitative production of which I would speak in high praise," he said in an address prepared for delivery to the economic club of Detroit. "But it is also qualitative production in which you have excelled. The mostest and the bestest is something of which to be really proud."

He added praise for industrial workers in Great Britain and throughout the Empire.

"The men and women of country are mobilized for war," he said. Despite wartime difficulties of blackouts, food shortages, bombings and threats of invasion, "these workers of ours have plugged along and done a great job."

Sir John spoke of the "equally remarkable production of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, and of India."

He said American Sherman tanks had played a vital part in the British 8th Army's victory at El Alamein 18 months ago. He regarded the battle as "indeed a turning-point" in the war's history.

Fatal to Be 'Yes' Men

Co-operation among the United Nations would prove the key to victory, Sir John said, but by that he did not mean that these countries should never disagree. "It would be fatal if we were all 'yes men' to each other . . . Mutual confidence and friendship are but poor growths if they will under criticism and straight honest-to-God differences of opinion."

Sir John said he did not underestimate the difficulties of defeating Germany, a Nation which he likened to a prize-fighter who has taken punishment but has "some terrible punches" left. He did not discount the possibility of many months more of war in Europe.

TWO GENERALS AND AIR MARSHAL ESCAPE ITALIANS

Got Away From Camps After Italy's Surrender in September

NOW IN BRITAIN

London, Jan. 24—(CP)—Two Distinguished British Generals and an Air Marshal who were prisoners of the Italians have returned to Britain, it was announced today.

They are Lt.-Gen. Philip Neame, V. C., Lt.-Gen. Sir Richard O'Connor and Air Marshal O. T. Boyd. They were among thousands of British prisoners who got away from the camps after Italy's surrender in September.

Captured Near Derna

Gens. Neame and O'Connor were captured near Derna, Libya, in 1941 and Air Marshal Boyd was taken after a forced landing in the Mediterranean area in 1940 while he was flying to the Middle East.

All three were at a camp five miles from Florence when the capitulation came. They did not disclose details on their long journey south through Italy to the Allied lines, Gen. Neame saying:-

"All I can say at present is that we were all three together and that it took us quite a time to get away."

Officer Disappears Shortly Before Time Set for His Marriage

Newburyport, Mass., Jan. 24—(AP) —Search continued today for Capt. Philip W. Beatman, 27, of New York, who disappeared Saturday a few hours before his scheduled marriage to a Newburyport girl.

Maj. Thomas Parker, intelligence officer of the sub Boston coastal defence sector, said army authorities understood Capt. Beatman had several hundred dollars with him when he left New York for Boston early Saturday.

SHADES OF YESTERYEAR

Wallaceburg, Ont., Jan. 24. (CP) —Shades of yesteryear were revived when two men driving horses attached to old-fashioned cutters appeared on the ice of Sydenham River here. Races on the river ice for many years attracted as many as four or five thousand spectators.

WORLD REALIZES MAGNITUDE OF CANADA'S EFFORT

Halifax Says British Commonwealth Not Just Britain One of 4 Great Powers

VISITS TORONTO

Toronto, Jan. 24 —(CP)— Realization of Canada's part in the United Nations' war effort has been slow in dawning on the world "but I believe everyone realizes now what Canada has done and is doing," Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, said in an interview here today.

He arrived in Toronto earlier for the centennial dinner of the Toronto Board of Trade, at which he has to be guest speaker tonight. He was to be guest at a civic reception and luncheon at noon before attending a Queen's Park reception tendered by Lieutenant-Governor Matthews.

Referring to Canada's contribution to the post-war world Lord Halifax said: "When we speak of the four great powers, China, Russia, the United States and Britain, we ought to think and speak of the fourth power as the British Commonwealth, not just Britain."

U. S. Ambassador Returns to Moscow

London, Jan. 24—(CP)— Return of Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark Kerr to Moscow stirred hopes today for a solution of the Russian-Polish deadlock which appeared to centre more on the Polish government in London than on the Soviet insistence on the Curzon line as a boundary.

The British Ambassador has been away from Moscow two months. He will take to the Kremlin the freshest views on the Polish situation as well as the Pravda "peace-rumor" incident.

The biggest problem is the Polish government here. The Russians are generally thought to want the London regime to take in representatives from the union of Polish patriots before entering any negotiations.

The Poles maintain they have gone as far as they can in offering to negotiate for one-third of their country—the difference between the Curzon line and the pre-war frontier but it is generally believed that differences could be solved if relations were re-established between Moscow and the Poles here.

Amphibious Landings 'Secret Weapon' To Crumble Hitler's Fortress

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press War Correspondent

Algiers, Jan. 24 — (AP) — The Allied High Command has given a striking preview of the "secret weapon" for cracking Hitler's European west wall by establishing a bridgehead on the Italian west coast south of Rome.

That weapon is amphibious warfare, and the key to its use is timing.

Because this is the weapon upon which the Allies must depend and because preliminary reports indicate the amphibious landing behind the German 10th Army was the most successful amphibious operation ever carried out by the Allies, it may well serve as a pattern for victory.

The amphibious operation is known as the most hazardous and difficult in war, but thus far, with the possible exception of Dieppe—which was more in the nature of a raid than a truly amphibious attack —it has proven an outstanding success in every instance it has been tried in the Second Great War.

Disadvantages

An amphibious operation has these outstanding disadvantages:—

1. It is essential to have air and sea superiority.

2. Until heavy guns and tanks can be unloaded with the supplies, a time-taking process, the depth of the bridgehead is limited to the distance the artillery of supporting ships can fire and the extent to which fighter-bombers can give aid.

3. At the actual moment of landing, troops and ships are particularly vulnerable to enemy attack.

4. It is extremely difficult to supply, particularly if no large ports are captured and the operation must be fed from beaches — as at Salerno.

5. Landings must be made in favorable terrain with level beaches and roads within easy reach of the shore where heavy guns can be moved. The weather must be favorable and the landings must be carried out by specially-trained crews.

On Credit Side

On the credit side are these factors:—

1. If successful it pays big dividends by forcing the enemy to fight on a new front in a matter of hours — an advantage which might take the attacking force months to gain by overland methods.

2. It covers a large area of ground in one operation throwing the enemy's entire defensive play out of gear. In Italy, for instance, the Allied 5th Army has been gaining less than a mile a week recently, but if the present operation is successful it will force a general German withdrawal for many miles at minimum casualties to the Allied forces.

3. Even the threat of an amphibious operation forces the enemy to disperse troops over a wide area which otherwise need not be defended.

The new landings in Italy are a perfect example of the co-ordination needed among sea, land and air forces to carry out an amphibious operation successfully.

Within 10 Miles Of Chudnow On Moscow Rail Line

Success Reported in White Russia While Fighting Opens Again at Kerch

1,800 NAZIS KILLED

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Jan. 24. (AP)—Sweeping along both banks of the Volkhov river after wiping out a German bridgehaed on the east bank, the Red Army was within ten miles of Chudovo today in a drive which threatened to cut still another vital enemy rail line below Leningrad.

The Germans, whose communications are being systematically chopped up along the Leningrad front, still hold a narrow stretch of this line—the main Moscow-Leningrad line—between Chudovo and Tosno. Chudovo is about 75 miles southeast of Leningrad on the west side of Volkhov.

At the same time, Russian troops directly menaced the key rail junction of Tosno by advancing through Pustinka, ten miles southwest of Mga, and a Soviet communique said the Germans were retreating in disorder from the tip of the Tosno salient.

Drive Through Pripet Marshes.

The bulletin also told of continuing Russian successes in lower Russia, reporting the drive through the Pripet Marshes already had passed Simonovichi, 53 miles west of Mozyr.

(Swedish dispatches from Berlin said the Red Army had launched a surprise offensive on the Finnish front about 150 miles southeast of Petsamo. The Finnish communique, however, reported only routine patrol activity.

(A Berlin broadcast said heavy fighting was going on southeast of Kerch in the Crimea after Russian forces landed and drove inland. The broadcast said the new landing came simultaneously with attacks by other Russian forces which already had established a bridgehead northeast of Kerch.)

The Russian communique said Soviet forces advancing southwest of Leningrad in the Krasnoye Selo area drove the Germans out of several localities, including Akalovo, ten miles west of Krasnogvardeisk, and only five miles from a Nazi rail line running to Narva in Estonia.

The Russians said they killed 1,800 Germans in yesterday's flighting.

Near Junction Point.

In White Russia the southern wing of Gen. Konstantin Rokossovsky's army was nearing a junction with the southern flank of Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's forces in the depth of the Pinsk Marshes, west of captored Lelchitsy, where some units have crossed the Ubort river and the heading for the Stivga and Gerin rivers.

(To the north, a German broadcast said the Nazis had abandoned a swamp in the area west of Novgorod.)

RUMOR GAULEITER PLANNED TO FLEE

Swedish Girl Says Story is That Project Collapsed—Von Shirach Guarded

Stockholm, Jan. 24 — (AP) — A Swedish girl who returned from Vienna recently told the newspaper Allehanda that the Gauleiter of Vienna, Baldur Von Schirach, was rumored to have planned an escape to Switzerland, in the manner of Rudolf Hess' flight to England, but the project collapsed when the SS (Elite Guard) learned of it.

Von Schirach, former Hitler youth leader and a favorite of Hitler, was reportedly placed under guard but retained his title of Gauleiter because of German fear that any outward change might reveal his disaffection.

The Swedish girl, who spent nine months as a housemaid in Vienna and southern Austria, said the average Viennese had lost 30 pounds due to the desperate food situation. A black market thrives, she added, with cigarets selling as high as 20 cents apiece.

Crew Makes 32 Raids Without Injury

Toronto, Jan. 24—(CP)—FO. Wes Harper, member of a "perfect crew" which made 32 bombing raids over Germany, returned to his home here, unannounced, yesterday.

"I've been pushing a pencil. Now I want to learn how to steer the crates," he said, explaining that he was an observer and had returned to take a pilot's course.

He and his crew, made up of three other Canadians and an English pilot, made the 32 raids without suffering any wounds. The Canadians were: FO. Chuck Jenkinson, of Peterboro, Ont.; the bombardier, Flt. Sgt. Lloyd Stanley, Regina, wireless operator and FO. Vincent Atkins from Alberta, the rear-gunner.

MAYOR W. H. ROLLINS FRACTURES WRIST

His Worship, Mayor W. H. Rollins, sustained a painful injury over the weekend when he fell at his home fracturing his right hand.

Mayor Rollins was installing insulation boards along the walls of his home on Foster Ave., last Friday evening, when the box he was standing on slipped from beneath him causing him to fall. Instinctively reaching out his arm to break the fall the full force of his weight went upon his right hand with the result it was split between the thumb and index finger and the wrist also fractured.

PETTY OFFICER HIRST ON BOARD 'SNOWBERRY' DURING ACTION

Official news releases, indicating H.M.C.S. Corvette "Snowberry" had been engaged in a sea battle off the coast of Portugal resulting in the sinking of at least one Nazi submarine and the crippling of two others, was heard with interest in Belleville over the weekend. Aboard the Corvette "Snowberry" is a former Belleville man, Petty Officer Wm. Hirst, E.R.A.

Also of interest is the fact the H.M.C.S. Snowberry and its crew were adopted by the Argyll Chapter of the I.O.D.E., some months ago in the matter of providing special favors such as reading materials, tobacco and additional wearing apparel. Naturally it was with enthusiasm Mrs. B. C. Donnan, regent of the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. and other members of the chapter heard of the successful sea venture of their adopted ship.

GLASS IN SCHOOL DOOR FOUND BROKEN

While patrolling the city Saturday night police found a window shattered in the east door of Pine Street School. On Sunday Principal A. C. Wilkin found a hockey puck inside the building lying on the corridor floor. It is assumed some boys may have shot the puck through the door window while at play. No attempts to enter the school were discovered by police.

The object of this organization, was to hold a monthly all-day Holiness meeting, where people of the various Holiness churches would meet together for worship. It was explained that all persons possessing or seeking this blessing of holiness were eligible for membership. All churches preaching this doctrine were invited to co-operate in this movement.

RE-ELECTED DIRECTOR

K. W. Jones, retail auto dealer of Tweed was re-elected director of the Belleville branch of the Federation of Automobiles Dealer Associations for Canada, when that body met in its annual meeting and election of officers at the Hotel Quinte last week. Owing to the death of his mother, Mr. Jones was not present at the meeting and when the list of officers was reported his name was inadvertently omitted.

FOUR HENS STOLEN

A chicken thief raided the pens of John Murray, No. 5 Doyle's Terrace off Pinnacle Street, sometime after midnight Saturday and successfully made off with four plump Plymouth Rock hens. Police were notified Sunday morning and investigations revealed a padlock had been pried off a shed door leading into the pens where the fowl were kept. No disturbances were heard while the chicken thief was in action, according to Mr. Murray who resides in the same building.

Report Break-ins At Marysville And Picton

Tobacco and chocolate bar thieves were quite active in the Bay of Quinte district over the weekend when two places of business were entered and robbed. At Picton Hick's news stand was entered and a quantity of such articles along with $60 in cash was taken, while at McCauley's service station in Marysville the robbers made off with tobacco and a tank of gasoline.

At Hick's news stand in Picton a rear entrance was forced last Friday night when a large quantity of cartons of cigarettes, boxes of cigars and chocolate bars were reported missing by Chief Biddle. Also $60 was stolen from the cash register.

Some time Saturday night robbers forced a door leading into John McCauley's service station at Marysville and stole two cartons of cigarettes, three cartons of chocolate bars and a quart of oil and a tank full of gasoline. Here the robbers boldly drove their motor car into the service station procuring the keys of the gasoline tanks from the cash register inside the building, proceeded to fill their car tank. Provincial Constable J. J. Hatch was notified early Sunday, when the break-in was discovered.

109 Questionnaires Still Unanswered

Despite the fact that the deadline of January 15th is now more than one week past, there are still 109 questionnaires on the Selective Service manpower survey to be received in the Belleville district, it was reported today by Mr. H. H. Reed, local manager. In all, approximately 825 questionnaires were sent out to employers in Belleville and Belleville district requesting information on the manpower situation.

The vast majority of the delinquents are the small business places, such as the corner grocery stores and already two follow-up inquiries have been sent out to these employers. Penalties are provided for non-compliance with the act, it was stated by Mr. Reed.

Height Above Sea Level No Bearing On Treatment

Contrary to a former opinion which had gained considerable credence throughout Canada, height above sea level has no bearing in modern treatment of tuberculosis patients, it is revealed through the Ontario Department of Health. Speaking at county council last week in support of a sanatorium which is proposed for this area, Dr. G. C. Brink, director of tuberculosis prevention, indicated that as many cures are now being effected at sea level as at sanatoriums situated in dry localities in inland provinces. It is now thought as advisable to treat patients at sanatoriums where the climate is much the same as that to which the patient is accustomed.

While it was inferred that Kingston would be an ideal site for the new sanatorium because of there being a medical college in that city, there has still not been any definite decision made according to legislative members from Hastings. When questioned at county council, members replied that the presence of the provincial laboratory at the Belleville hospital might have a bearing in bringing the new hospital to this county. All plans, however, are as yet only in the discussion stage, it was pointed out.

Bridge St. W.A. Entertains At 'Y' Open House

The entertainment of men and women on active service at the regular Sunday at home at the Y.M.C.A. was in charge of the Women's Association of Bridge Street United Church.

A number of ladies under the direction of Mrs. J. M. Wood, President and Mrs. Ross Bateman, chairman of the social committee, were busy throughout the afternoon in preparing and serving the splendid refreshments provided for afternoon tea at five o'clock. Mr. H. W. Ackerman represented the ladies and the War Services Committee in receiving the guests in the main lobby. Mr. Ron Hupfield, War Services Secretary and Mr. : 4 Shortt supervised the activities and provided entertainment.

In the evening the group gathered in the gymnasium to engage in good old-time sing-songs led by Mrs. Ralph Plumpton with Bill Naven at the piano. The musical program for the evening was provided by members of the Bridge St. choir with Miss Leona Riggs in charge and Mr. Leo Riggs at the piano. Miss Maloney, of the O.S.D. staff presented two readings that were particularly well received. Dr. James Semple closed the evening with a brief inspirational address.

Officials of Cheese Producers' Assoc. Will Attend Que. Convention

Mr. Paul H. Appleby, Under Secretary for Agriculture in the United States, and Premier Godbout, of Quebec, will address the annual meeting banquet of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and the Dairy Farmers of Canada in the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec City, next Thursday evening.

The main convention of the Canadian Federation will begin Thursday, and continue for three days. Hon. James G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, will address the convention on the afternoon of the first day.

The Dairy Farmers are holding their annual meeting immediately prior to that of the Canadian Federation. It will start today and run until noon of January 26.

The Ontario Cheese Producers' Association will be represented at these meetings by W. H. Montgomery, Prince Edward County, W. O. Coon, Leeds County and S. L. Joss of this city.

Mr. Joss, who took a prominent part in the proceedings of the annual meeting of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture held in Toronto last week, and who was elected to the executive of that organization, will be one of the official delegates from the Ontario Federation of Agriculture to the convention of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture. He will also present a paper on the cheese industry at the annual meeting of the Dairy Farmers of Canada.

MONTAGU NORMAN ILL

London, Jan. 24. (CP)—Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England since 1920, is suffering from a slight infection of the lung following influenza and his condition is causing 'some anxiety' the bank announced today. He was born in 1871.

Capt. Foote, Native of Madoc, One Of Unsung Heroes of Dieppe Attack

Rightfully rated as one of the heroes of the Battle of Dieppe, the unselfish act of Captain John Weir Foote, Canadian Army Chaplain, who with utter disregard for his own personal safety and comfort, invited capture in order that he may be with his men as a prisoner of war in Germany, has roused deep feelings of pride among Hastings residents who knew him. Born at Madoc, son of the late Gordon Foote and Mrs. Foote, Captain Foote attended theological college in Montreal and for a time had charge of a Presbyterian circuit in the Port Hope district before enlisting in the armed services as a chaplain. Chaplain to the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry Regiment, Captain Foote went ashore at Dieppe when it was known that his men could not escape capture.

In tribute to his brave act the following story by Decourcy H. Rayner, has been carried by The Montreal Standard. Captain Foote is a nephew of Mrs. Andrew Williamson and Miss Lela Weir, 221 Ann Street, Belleville.

By DECOURCY H. RAYNER

Over the ship's side he dove into the water. Back towards the beach he swam, heedless of the bullets that splashed around him. He went slowly, because his battle dress dragged heavily on him — but steadily, without flinching, although he knew that death or capture would be his fate.

Aboard the ship weary troops watched the swimmer. "It's a padre," they said hoarsely, one to another, and as he stumbled up the beach they finally grasped his intention. What was it that he had muttered, just before he dived from the deck? "Those lads need me, there are plenty of chaplains in England." And then he was gone.

Captain John Weir Foote, chaplain to the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry Regiment, had gone ashore to rejoin his men. The commando raid on Dieppe was finished and he was safe on a ship that was ready to sail to England before he discovered that many of his boys had not come aboard. He was a shepherd without a flock. Those lads, to whom he had ministered for months, were ashore, perhaps even now prisoners in the hands of the enemy. Who was to be their padre? It did not take Jack Foote long to decide.

For sheer grit and courage his action is unsurpassed. There were many brave men at Dieppe, of course. Other brave chaplains were there, too. The French-Canadian padre who granted absolution to his men as the ships stole in towards the coast in the black hour just before dawn. The United Church minister who turned stretcher bearer and worked calmly under fire all through the raid. Dieppe produced its heroes, many of them as yet unsung. August 19, 1942, is a date that will be written large in Canadian history.

The bravery of the 38-year-old Jack Foote ranks high in the deeds of that day. With utter disregard for personal safety, and comfort, with no fear of the death and destruction that swept the shore, he went back to join his fellows.

Who is this Canadian, whose story has been told to the children of Great Britain over a special program of the BBC? Back in 1934 there was no more popular member of the graduating class of the Presbyterian College, Montreal, than happy Jack Foote. After taking a degree in Arts from the University of Western Ontario at London, Ontario, he had entered the theological institution to study for the church, and soon won the high regard of faculty and students alike. Never critical, always kindly, generous, big-hearted, with a strong sense of right and wrong, he could be counted upon to support any good undertaking with all his heart.

"If you went out to have lunch with Jack, you could never pay for it yourself," one of his classmates said to me recently, with a finality that suggested that here was the supreme tribute of one student to another. "He combined a great moral earnestness with a strong sense of duty. These qualities, along with his generosity and cheerfulness made him a most popular lad."

When war came Jack Foote was one of the first to join up as a chaplain. How he got his game leg past the medical board is more than his friends understand. Ever since a horse had thrown him, while riding on a western mission field, he had walked with a slight limp. Perhaps M.O.'s felt that his big heart more than made up for any physical inadequacy.

So he left his congregation at Port Hope, Ontario, and became Honorary Captain the Reverend John Weir Foote, chaplain in the Canadian Active Service Force. Before long he said "good-bye" to his wife, and sailed to England.

Then came Dieppe, and the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry Regiment, went into action. Padre Foote was there, all through the din and danger and bloodshed of that commando raid. The end of the battle brought no respite to this chaplain—he went back again to finish his job.

For a long time after Dieppe there was silence. In the official casualty list Capt. Foote was shown as missing. Then came word that he was a prisoner of war. He had survived the devastating hail of machine-gun bullets, he had made his way to the enemy, and had surrendered in order to do his job as padre.

Until last February Jack Foote was in a German prison camp with most of the officers taken at Dieppe, including those of his own regiment. But then he was moved. We do not know, we can only guess, that he was impatient to get to work again, as spiritual adviser to men in the ranks.

At any rate he was moved to a camp in which are confined non-commissioned officers from all parts of the Empire. There the Canadian chaplain conducts church services, there he dispenses the sacrament of Holy Communion, and goes about his pastoral work among fellow prisoners. He is supervisor of the educational courses that have been arranged to keep the men busy.

Always fond of music, the padre studies it during his spare time. He is learning German too, and doing a good deal of reading in other subjects. But his chief job, his great concern, is his ministry to the N.C.O.'s in the prison camp.

Back in Canada his church has praised him, and high-ranking chaplains have written his wife commending his gallant action. They measure his deed by the Christian code of devotion to duty—to give one's own life, or risk it, for one's friends.

Some have been puzzled because Captain Foote has never been mentioned in dispatches, or decorated for his bravery and devotion to his men. However no awards, except the Victoria Cross, are made to prisoners of war. Save for the V.C., recognition of bravery must wait until they are released.

When that day comes perhaps the full story of Captain Foote's heroism will be told. Not by himself, but by the men to whom he ministers, those to whom he went back when he swam ashore thru' the blood-stained waters of Dieppe.

Tweed Wins First Interscholastic Game by 3-1 Score

Tweed, Jan. 24 (Special)—Tweed "Blockbusters" overpowered a highly rated Stirling H. S. team to start the season off on the right foot. The "Blockbusters" took the lead in the first period and were never headed. Connor scored two goals for Tweed and Jones played sensationally in goal. These were the main factors in Tweed's victory. Despite sticky ice, the game was fast and exciting and gave the fans plenty of opportunity to cheer the locals on to a 3 to 1 victory.

A goal by Connor put Tweed into the lead midway through the first period. In the closing minutes of the period a beautiful passing play by Connor and Cotton to Dales resulted in Tweed's second tally.

Early in the second period the "Blockbusters" took a commanding 3-0 lead on a goal by Connor. Price received the first penalty of the game when he was sent off for boarding Bastedo. Within a few seconds Patterson went off for cross checking. Dales and McIntosh filled the penalty box a minute later for roughing. B. Bastedo was in the clear three times when the teams were short-handed, only to be outguessed by Jones in the Tweed net.

Stirling scored their only goal in the third period when B. Bastedo countered on a shot from behind the net. A short time later, Beatty made a nice rush, passed to Price, who was robbed of what looked like a sure goal. Stirling put on a determined drive in this period but was stopped cold at the Tweed defence by bone-crushing bodychecks from Beatty, Connor, Price and Gehan. Price and Boomhour received the only penalties of the period for high sticking.

Jones, Beatty, Price, Connor, Gehan, Cotton and Dales were outstanding for Tweed. The Bastedo brothers, Patterson, Eggleton and McIntosh played well for Stirling.

Line-ups:

Stirling—Goal, Eggleton; defence, McIntosh and Whitehead; centre, B. Bastedo; wings, Patterson and D. Bastedo; subs, W. Boomhour, Dugan and Woods.

Tweed—Goal, Jones; defence, Beatty, Connor; centre, Gehan; wings, Thompson and Price; subs, Elliot, Dales, Cotton and Curry.

Officials, Paul, Stirling; Burns, Tweed.

Rossmore

Rossmore—The Ladies' Aid met on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. Moxam, with twenty-one members present. Mrs. Roote opened the meeting. Mrs. Chas. Redick read the minutes of the last meeting. As it was Mrs. Moxam's birthday meeting, she was presented with a gift, for which she thanked the ladies. Mrs. Moxam also won the Aid prize and Mrs. Jack Alyea the door prize. Some of the members handed in their holiday coin bags, bringing this fund to $15 up-to-date. A social afternoon was spent, with the hostess serving lunch.

Miss Myrtle Peck, Miss Margaret Bunting, of Belleville and Mrs. Huffman, of Frankford spent Sunday afternoon and the tea hour with Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Cook.

The euchre club met at the home of Mrs. Ashley Vandewater on Wednesday evening, the 12th. Mrs. B. Gerow won the prize and Mrs. C. Redick the low score. Lunch was served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Birdee and family and Mr. and Mrs. J. Burshell and family, of Belleville, spent Sunday afternoon and evening with Mr. and Mrs. F. Belnap.

THINK BRITAIN'S MATERIAL WEALTH CAN BE RESTORED

Conservative Sub-Committee Optimistic About the Country's Post-War Prospects

By SYDNEY GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 24—(CP)—A Conservative Party sub-committee takes issue with those, like Prime Minister J. C. Smuts of South Africa and Reconstruction Minister Lord Woolton, who hold Britain will be a poor nation materially after the war.

These people overlook, the tremendous speed of modern science which will restore Britain's wealth if stimulated properly, the sub-committee says.

Setting forth its thesis, the sub-committee under the chairmanship of Henry Brooke, M. P., has written a report entitled "Work: The Future of British Industry" which will be submitted to Prime Minister Churchill as leader of the party.

There should be international collaboration for prosperity with the United Nations evolving an economic master plan, the report says, advising, however, that since Britain is the centre of an Empire she must claim the right of its different sections to exchange preferential treatment.

The master plan would cover stabilization of currency, granting of massive temporary credits to some war-ravaged countries, raising standards of living among backward people and establishment of an international statistical service on economic questions. The report says "there is at present dangerously faulty information" on such statistics.

The sub-committee says Britain must "face squarely" the fact of an adverse balance of trade of about $1,000,000,000 annually in the immediate post-war years. This must be met by increased exports and home production of a larger proportion of the nation's food needs.

The Conservative View

The report sets forth what generally is accepted as the Conservative viewpoint on such controversial issues as controls, nationalization, public corporations and private enterprise.

Of controls: As soon as the special conditions disappear the case for government controls dwindles. They have no intrinsic virtue in themselves. They are liable to lead to hold-ups and they slow down the speed of industry to adjust itself to consumers' needs.

Of nationalization: We reject it for the clear reason that it would be inefficient; fettered by the bureaucratic systems and warped by political interference.

Of public corporations: One or two have been successful, thanks to the good fortune that men of outstanding capacity were put in charge of them. But, with those exceptions, the characteristic of public corporations has been a tendency to sleepiness.

Of private enterprise: Like traffic, it ought to be regulated by straightforward rules which have the approval of all responsible people, and be given the maximum freedom within these rules.

The report sees a plentitude of jobs for several years after the war, but a danger when the peak reconstruction demand passes. It asks for consideration of such possibilities as financing bulk purchase of universally desirable household goods—from boots and shoes to furniture and refrigerators—to lower costs and prices.

ITALIAN POLITICAL LEADERS SAY ATTEMPT FAILS

Annual Meeting of Red Cross Soc. Gives Fine Record of Achievement In 1943; M. P. Duff Re-elected Pres.

Gross Receipts Were $39,796 an Increase of $902 Over Previous Year

The election of officers for 1944 to head the Red Cross Society in Belleville was held at their annual meeting in the Y.M.C.A. on Friday night, January 21 at which time members of the executive met to hear the reports of the various committees on their activities during the past year. Mr. Morley P. Duff was returned as President of the Society for a second term.

Reports submitted divulged that the year 1943 was one of the most productive and active years in the local branch's history. The meeting opened with Mr. M. P. Duff presiding and the minutes of the last meeting read by Miss Josephine Tickell, Secretary. Several of the committees submitted reports which set forth a remarkable record of achievement by the Society and demonstrated the interest and vitality expended by the officers and members of the local branch throughout the year.

War Emergency Nursing

The first report heard by the executive was presented by Mrs. A. H Ketcheson local officer in charge of War Emergency and Home Nursing, who expressed her thanks to Mrs. Keeler, Mrs. Doucette, Mrs. Fetterly and Mrs. Seldon for their splendid help and unselfish devotion to this work. These nurses are the unit leaders and have trained the auxiliary groups in home nursing and war emergencies. The members of the groups, after qualifying, are considered to be sufficiently trained to give nursing care under professional direction, in their own homes, the homes of neighbors, and also in the event of an emergency or epidemic.

During the year there were 33 enrolled for war emergencies and 40 for home nursing. Quite a number from previous classes came back for a brush-up in the practice periods, and 33 pins were issued to those completing practice cards. At the request of Miss Grout of the Belleville Collegiate, the unit leaders in January and February gave instruction to grade 12 and 13 pupils in First Aid and Bandaging.

25 Epidemic Units Packed

Other activities of the groups included packing and storing at the Blood Donor Clinic twenty-five complete epidemic units, assisting at the Blood Donors Clinic in the various phases of this work. Special appreciation was expressed to, the women who assisted in the clean-up work at the Clinic. The making and shipping of thousands of surgical dressings and bandages for overseas was completed by these groups, and special thanks were made to Mrs. Doucette and Mrs. Fetterly for their time and effort in instructing the St. John Ambulance Corps in bandaging. A list of the names of these groups willing to help at any time has been handed over to the Victorian Order of Nurses and to the Matron of the Belleville General Hospital, and it is understood that several are now on duty at the hospital.

Concluding the report, Mrs. Ketcheson said that she wished to extend her sincere thanks, and the thanks of the Society, to the local medical profession, and to those from the surrounding Air Stations for their splendid lectures, and to Mr. O. H. Scott and Mr. Smith for instruction in resuscitation, and to Mr. Harold Seldon for his instructions on air raid precautions.

Receipts Totalled $39,796

The financial report was submitted to the meeting by Mr. E. Zeran, Treasurer, but was read to the members present by Mr. Hefkey in his absence. Mr. Hefkey reported that the receipts of the Society were $39,796.28 which represents an increase of $902.10 over the total receipts for 1942. Mr. Zeran, in his report requested the Society to relieve him of his duties as treasurer due to increased office work and other voluntary duties. He said that he would be pleased to carry on for a short time until a new treasurer could be appointed. The treasurer's financial report follows in full:

Women's War Work Committee

The report of the activities of the Women's War Work Committee was given by Mrs. W. C. Mikel, chairman who complimented the women who had given their time to prepare and ship the large quantity of goods forwarded from the Belleville Branch to the headquarters of the Society in Toronto. The work of the Women's War Work Committee was carried on in the usual manner during the year 1943. Ten city groups worked throughout the year at the Red Cross rooms, and a large group worked Monday evenings at the Blood Donors Clinic. Besides these groups, there were 45 groups throughout the city and the country, most of them Women's Institute and church organizations. 74 women, working individually, came to the office for wool and materials to make up.

178 cartons were shipped to Toronto headquarters, containing 36,690 articles, which is divided as follows: Knitted goods 4,634; Civilian 2,883; Hospital 28,008; Blankets, etc., 443; Comfort Bags 43; Navy Needs 329.

Eleven leather jerkins were also given out locally to boys who have enlisted recently in the navy.

Mrs. Mikel in her report said: "The Wool Committee under Mrs. C. E. Argue and Mrs. J. W. Kinnear, were kept very busy. The sorting, sizing, stamping, tying in bundles of five and packing to send to headquarters is in the hands of capable workers who deserve much credit for their faithfulness.

"Requests from headquarters were mostly for children's clothing of which 650 articles were for Greek Relief. Girls' dresses, girls' coats, boys' windbreakers, boys' shirts, women's skirts and blouses were among the articles made. Work is being done on a quota of 650 pieces of clothing for boys, girls and women. The material received from Toronto headquarters for this work is of excellent quality and the finished clothing is a pleasure to examine.

"Many surgical supplies were made, including dressings, towels, tape sponges and face masks, by the group which met at the Blood Donors' Clinic under the supervision of Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson.

"Donations of new children's clothing, quilts, afghans and babies' garments have been received throughout the year and were valued at $2,155.90. Our sincere thanks are due to many individuals and groups for their generosity. The Red Cross sewing rooms were made more attractive and clean through the efforts of the executive, under the supervision of Mrs. C. A. Cameron.

"Our sincere gratitude is given to the Executive Committee for its co-operation, to Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson and Mrs. C. A. Cameron, sewing conveners, Mrs. Row, supervisor of packing and sewn articles, Mrs. Argue, Mrs. Kinnear and Mrs. Truesdale for their work in the knitting department, Miss Phippen, Mrs. Weatherell, the Bethel Hall group, Mrs. E. S. Welch for her valuable assistance in the office and many others who have helped to carry on the work throughout the year in our workrooms. Our thanks are also due to Smith and Son for carting, the merchants of the city for their co-operation, and to the Ontario Intelligencer for their generous response.

"We are very proud of the work done by the different groups throughout the city and country. We realize that the city groups work under less difficulty than do the women in the country who, through lack of help on the farms, have had to undertake more duties than ever before. However, their interest in the Red Cross work has not slackened and the organization is deeply grateful for what they have been able to accomplish.

"The faithfulness of the many women who attend the sewing groups is very much appreciated. However, we realize that our ardor must not slacken. Even if the war ends within a reasonable time, it must be remembered that the British people will be in dire distress for some time. Also there will be other countries needing our aid. It is shown what distress is in these countries when we hear that the Canadian Red Cross has already sent to Greece 10,000 quilts, besides thousands of articles of clothing," concluded Mrs. Mikel.

Office Liaison Work

Needs were given to one family, one veteran and one sailor passing through from coast to coast, during the year 1943. Ten scarves were supplied to Mountain View Air Station, 60 books and 10 monthly magazines, besides daily papers to the hospital of the No. 5 I.T.S. at Belleville. Sweaters, leather jerkins, mitts and socks were given to men from Belleville and district who have recently enlisted in the different Services.

A meeting was held in November at the headquarters in Toronto in reference to the parcels sent by next-of-kin to prisoners of war. Much needful information was obtained, which is to be given to any next-of-kin in this district making enquiries.

Mrs. W. C. Mikel, chairman.

32 Cases Jam Shipped

The Jam Committee of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society reported that 32 cases of jam and honey were shipped to headquarters in Toronto during the year. These shipments consisted of honey, and four cases which contained 48 four-pound containers of raspberry jam. The gratitude of the Belleville Branch is extended to the following groups for their co-operation in this respect: Plainfield, Melrose, Foxboro, Roslin, Phillipston, Zion, Quinte Women's Institute, Baptist Church, Belleville, and the Belleville Red Cross Society.

Elizabeth I. Carman, chairman.

Peacetime Service

Mrs. Myra Kerr, reporting on the Red Cross Peacetime service of giving cod liver oil and milk to those unable to buy it, said that the service had been continued throughout this war. The demand has been considerably lessened owing to the fact that there is no unemployment. The recommendations for this service during the past year have come from the school nurse who contacts these cases in connection with her work. Nine families were assisted and approximately 35 children benefited. In two cases milk was given to the amount of 156 quarts. The balance of the families were given cod liver oil. It is felt that this assistance is a very valuable service rendered by the Red Cross.

Foreign Communications

During the past year many enquiries have been received regarding people in enemy occupied countries. Forms have been given out for enquiry about residents of Rumania and Greece. Messages have been sent away to Hungary, Belgium and Italy. Investigation was made about a case referred from the London office of the Red Cross, also a message was delivered for the International Red Cross to a former resident of Denmark. It was a pleasure to learn last Fall, said Mrs. H. M. Lynch, who submitted the report on this phase of the Society's activities, that an answer to a cable sent several months before to Hungary had been received by a resident. So much time passes before messages can be delivered and answers returned. Enquiries about prisoners of war have been received and referred to the officer in charge, said Mrs. Lynch in conclusion.

Junior Red Cross

The report of the Junior Red Cross Society reveals that groups were formed and officers elected in each classroom of the four Public Schools. Meetings were held monthly, and in some rooms semi-monthly. Each classroom paid the subscription or membership fee of $1.00 for the Red Cross Magazine for one year. An accounting of the activities of each school is set out as follows:

Queen Alexandra School

Total amount raised, $126.50. Donated as follows: Cash to Junior Red Cross $89.50; Greek relief $7.00; Chinese relief, $30.00. 20 ditty bags were filled. 25 lbs. of wool for blankets collected. 500 lbs. grease. Large quantities of books and magazines.

Queen Mary School $63.55

Donations: British War Victims Fund; Chinese Relief. $3.00 donated by T. Eaton Co. for material for 1 quilt; 1 afghan; 8 bomb victims' bags; number of kitting boxes. Activities—sale of milkweed; waste paper; sale of knick-knacks on parents' night during Education week; sale of stuffed toys mode by the pupils; collections from children.

King George School, $60.06

Donations—Chinese Relief; Russian Relief; Crippled Children's Fund; layette fund; parcels for sailors' ditty bags; 16 overseas boxes containing cigarettes and chocolates. Activities — collections from children; bazaar by children outside school; sale of paper collected.

Queen Victoria School, $17.78

11 ditty bags; 6 knitted washcloths; 4 afghans; stamps sent to Guelph to be sold; waste paper sales; bazaar and play by pupils outside school; scrapbook for Sick Children's Hospital.

Total amount $267.89.

Mrs Watt,
School nurse.

B.C.I. & V.S. Junior Red Cross

The Junior Red Cross activities of the Society has been carried on in the Collegiate as well as the Public Schools and has shown a remarkable amount of interest and devotion to the work proposed by the Society to be furthered by these school boys and girls. Their report is as follows:

Our record for the school year 1942-43 was not published previously though the number of girls interested in Junior Red Cross work last year was somewhat smaller than we wished. Great credit must be given those loyal girls who did the following grand work:

189 articles and layettess made and donated to the local Red Cross, 70 parcels sent to our own ex-students overseas, and 18 articles made from materials furnished by the local Red Cross. The Blanket Fund, in charge of Miss Billings, donated $372 in 1942-43 to $128 so far this school year.

Due to late registration of part of the school, our war work did not begin until toward the end of October 1943. Our actual membership is 100 girls. Since October we have sent cigarettes to 136 boys overseas. The girls are busy knitting for our own ex-pupils. Wednesday afternoon is Red Cross Day, and we meet every other Wednesday in the Library and Thursday at 12.30 a noon-hour group meets in the millinery room.

We are able to function largely due to the generosity of the Literary Club under the guidance of Miss Merry. Their gift to us this year—the proceeds of the School Play, was $500. The students sold tickets for the Lifebuoy Follies and as a result, our Junior Red Cross received $25. The balance on hand at present is $401.63.

This report was submitted by Miss Dwyer for the Collegiate and a great amount of credit and praise must be given to each of the Collegiate's Junior Red Cross members for this exceptional showing and interest and credit for the report to all of the 100 girls who are members.

Clinic Report Not Completed.

The report on the activities of the Red Cross Blood Donors Clinic had not been completed in time for the annual meeting but it is expected this report will be ready at an early date and will be published then. The Clinic has, through unofficial reports, ended a most succesful year, and the accounting, when released, will be of considerable interest to all residents of the city.

Red Cross Society Officers for 1944

Having headed the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society for one term of office as president, Mr. Morley P. Duff was returned for a second term at the annual meeting of the Society. Mr. Duff has shown considerable interest in the work of each committee of the local branch and has co-operated with the executive and members to the fullest degree throughout the past year and will continue to do so through the coming year. He has expressed his appreciation for the co-operation he has received from the Society, both locally and the headquarters and stated that it was his greatest pleasure to officiate as president of an organization that is doing such a worthwhile work. The time given to organizing and conducting the business of such a society of volunteer workers is, in Mr. Duff's opinion, the most splendid way in which to occupy oneself. The other executive members for 1944 are:

Honorary Presidents — Judge C. A. Cameron, Mr. I. G. Hefkey.

Hon. Vice-Presidents — George H. Stokes, M.P.; R. D. Arnott, M.P.P.; Warden Thomas Fleming, Mayor Harry Rollins, Mr. W. H. Morton, Col. P. H. Wills, Mr. Harry Walker, Mr. Howard Clarke.

President — Mr. Morley P. Duff.

Vice-Presidents — Mrs. W. C. Mikel, Mrs. C. A. Cameron, Dr. James Semple, Monsignor Nicholson, Rev. A. B. Payne.

Secretary — Miss Josephine Tickell.

Counsel — C. A. Payne, K.C.

Treasurer — To be appointed.

Executive — J. E. Shortt, Mrs. C. E. Argue, Mrs. A. B. Collins, Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, Mrs. J. A. Kerr, Mrs. George Graham, Mrs. W. S. Northcott, Mr. J. B. Boyce, Col. P. H. Wills, Mr. Leo Riggs, Mr. J. W. Imlah, Mrs. E. A. Geen, Mr. H. W. Ackerman, Rev. J. G. Hornsby, Mr. W. S. Turner, Mrs. J. W. Kinnear, Miss J. McGie, Miss Helena M. Lynch, Mrs. D. Row, Mrs. G. H. Miller, Mrs. Madill, Mr. E. P. Bernstein.

Chairman — Campaign Committee: Mr. G. A. Freeman.

Chairman — Women's War Work Committee: Mrs. W. C. Mikel.

Campaign Treasurer — Mr. J. W. Imlah.

Auditors — Messrs. C. L. Jewell, T. H. Dredge, B. C. Sisler.

Say Pope Declines Nazi Suggestions To Go to German City

Stockholm, Jan. 24—(AP)— The newspaper Aftontidningen said in a dispatch from Zurich today that Pope Pius XII had declined renewed German proposals since the Allied landing south of Rome that he go to some city in Germany.

The German-controlled Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau said in a Rome dispatch that the Pope's guard has been strengthened since the landing, and that Vatican City's defences have been put in a state of "greatest preparedness."

Rare Disease Blamed In Kingston Death

Kingston, Jan. 24 — (CP)—Doctors here today blamed a rare disease — ascending paralysis of the Landry type — for the death yesterday of 11-year-old Neil Derrick.

The boy was stricken Friday night and removed to hospital following a consultation of several physicians. No satisfactory treatment for the disease is known, doctors said, explaining that the nerves of the patient lose their progressive function.

Rural Ontario Will Provide Large Market

Toronto, Jan. 24 (CP)—Rural Ontario will provide an annual market for approximately $4,000,000 worth of electrical appliances and equipment and accessory materials in the post-war era, Dr. T. H. Hogg said in an interview today.

Dr. Hogg, chairman and chief engineer of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said already Hydro was paving the way for its post-war electrification program. The commission has made representations to the metal controller at Ottawa for the release of additional materials during the present year, he said.

The commission hopes, in coming months, to extend service on existing rural lines and to add new extensions making Hydro service available to additional 5,000 farms in Ontario, thus increasing food production, Dr. Hogg added.

Discussing Hydro's new rural rate structure, he said 97 per cent of the provinces rural consumers had received a reduction in the cost of electricity. Existing consumers particularly on farms used only about 12 1-2 per cent of the electricity they might employ, he said.

Dr. Hogg emphasized the interdependence between industrial labor and the farmer. "In the post-war era," he said, "there must be recognition of the fact industrial workers and farmers are equally important to the stability of our economic system."

Police Baffled In Shooting Case

Chicago, Jan. 24 — (AP) — After four days of intensive investigation, a state's attorney official said today there was a "complete absence" of any established motive for the murder of Mrs. Frank Starr Williams, wealthy wife of a state department official in Washington.

Police have followed dozens of leads in their search for the middle-aged, well-dressed woman who fatally shot Mrs. Williams last Wednesday.

Coroner A. L. Brodie said members of the Williams' family in an effort to aid authorities, will submit to lie detector tests. He emphasized that none is under suspicion.

Police also disclosed that a bodyguard had been assigned to Mrs. Williams' two daughters, Elizabeth Born, 33, and Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, 28, who was with her mother at the time of the shooting, but told authorities she could not identify the gunwoman. He said the bodyguard was assigned so the two could have "peace and quiet from questioning."

Pair Arrested Held for Murder

Philadelphia, Jan. 24 — (AP) — Two men under arrest today were identified by police as the pair who killed a salesman in an unsuccessful attempt to rob the John J. Felin Packing Company of $50,000 on Saturday.

Police arrested the men in running gun battles last night, the first about 7 p.m. and the other six hours later. A woman and a small girl were injured when a stolen car police were chasing struck their automobile.

The arrested men were identified by officers as Raymond W. Pierce, Jr., 34 and Leo McMahon, 22. Police said McMahon escaped several weeks ago from the Philadelphia State Hospital.

Move Doctors, Dentists To U. S. Areas Lacking Professional Services

Washington, Jan. 24 —(AP)— Funds now are available for moving physicians and dentists to United States communities suffering from lack of professional health services, Surgeon-General Thomas Parran announced today. Dr. Parran said $200,000 will be used to relocate medical and dental practitioners.

Combat Fighter Gets His Back In Lone Sortie

Advanced Italian Airfield, Jan. 24 —(CP) — Flt. Lt. Hap Kennedy, Spitfire ace and D.F.C. winner from Cumberland, Ont., has a knack of attracting enemy fighters not only in the air, but also when he is on the ground.

His score of 10 destroyers, accumulated in Malta, Sicily and Italy, testified to his ability to seek out Jerry in the sky and beat him in combat. Recent adventures on the ground have made him wonder whether he hasn't just a little too much of the "come-hither" stuff about him.

Kennedy, who leads a flight in an R.A.F. squadron here, started out in a car to visit an army unit at the front, some miles to the north.

While still in the suburbs of the town where his squadron is based, he was surprised to see a fighter with square wing tips flash past him in the opposite direction on the other side of a row of trees.

"I just caught it out of the corner of my eye," Kennedy smiled, "and said 'Mustang' to myself. Then I realized there were black crosses on it, and just then three more of them followed him.

"One of them was strafing as he came down the road, and the two of us in the car bailed out and hit the deck. He didn't land one on the car, but a truck farther up the road was damaged and I heard an 'Eyetie' got hurt."

Kennedy got his own back, though, in a sortie over enemy lines. He and his companions hit four trucks and three German staff cars.

Navy Officer Not Enamored With Shore Job

Ottawa, Jan. 24 —(CP)— Lieut. J. W. Whittall of Vancouver, who won the D.S.C. while helping land invading armies in North Africa, Sicily and Italy, hopes that the "shore job" the Royal Canadian Navy has appointed him to in Canada won't last long enough to prevent him from participating in the invasion of Europe.

"A month or two ashore isn't bad, but I'd like to go and have a look at that second front," said the 29-year-old R.C.N.V.R. officer who was twice torpedoed and who helped sink three German submarines and damage two others.

He was serving with the Royal Navy in the British destroyer H.M.S. Walker when the submarines were sunk. The destroyer was protecting a convoy when it ran into a U-boat wolf pack.

"We rammed one, depth-charged another and a third surrendered before we could finish," Whittal said. "By the time it was over we had 150 prisoners aboard."

From the destroyer, he went to an auxiliary merchant cruiser. In her he was torpedoed for the first time but the ship made port safely.

In November, 1942, he was placed in command of a landing craft assault flotilla and he helped land United States troops on the beaches of Oran.

En route to England after the operation, his ship was torpedoed and sunk but he was picked up by a British warship after a short time in the water. He landed in England to find he had a mention in dispatches for his work.

Shatterproof Windows Protect Waist Gunners Firing Upon Huns

London, Jan. 24. (CP)— Flying Fortress waist gunners now will be able to blaze away at Germans from behind protective shatter-proof windows instead of through open ports with gales and temperatures of 50 or 60 below often freezing their hands.

Sealed windows have been developed through which the guns can be operated with no sacrifice of manoeuvrability.

NEW CARRIER LAUNCHED

Quincy, Mass., Jan. 24 —(AP)— The United States Navy's newest aircraft carrier, the U.S.S. Hancock, slid down the ways today.

The carrier, listed by the navy as of the Essex Class, displaces upwards of 25,000 tons.

Success of Allied Landings

Hitler's generals have been outwitted again in the powerful amphibious landings on Saturday when British, American and French troops poured ashore south of Rome about twenty-five miles from the capital of Italy to form a beachhead which has since been greatly expanded. These powerful Allied forces are now in behind the Germans who were battling against the Fifth Allied army near Cassino and separate the Germans in the south and those north of the landing place. Rome is threatened by the strategy of the Allied command, and the German defence lines are outflanked.

This operation was in accord with the leap frog tactics of the Allies which have been practised successfully on the east and west coasts of Italy.

The success of the Allies in amphibious operations has again been demonstrated and this has special significance. The landing in Sicily and the operations of this character in Italy prove the thoroughness of the tactics employed.

The achievement of Saturday immediately showed results in the smashing attack by the 5th Army near Cassino.

The event will have the further result of being powerful propaganda for the Allies. The reverse the Germans have suffered in this will have its reverberations in occupied Europe and undoubtedly among the Axis satellites.

The Hated Gestapo

The sending of Gestapo agents into occupied countries only steels the heart of the peoples of these lands and will in the long run make complete the destruction and annihilation of Nazism. Just lately Nazis in their fears have been sending into Denmark these hated agents, whose presence arouses the Danes to every resistance possible, rather than putting them under control.

The Gestapo is rightly the most being in the world. He is an offshoot of Hitler's own destructive mind and mad ideas. These spies which would send their dearest friend before a firing squad and would frame anyone to save their own precious hides from being sent to the front, have helped to lead to the deterioration of Germany.

The Gestapo is the logical development of such an inverted and distorted mind as that of the Nazis. It by the very nature of things destroys the thing it feeds on and itself will perish. Nero, the fiendish Emperor of Rome of nineteen centuries ago, had spies in every household of prominence in Rome and yet he had to die by suicide in fear of being captured after he had fled from Rome. These Gestapo men help to build the fire that will consume them.

When Germany is crushed Gestapo men will bear the brand of Cain in Europe and no doubt will even in Germany be marked men for what the secret police and spy system have done to Germans themselves.

They not only pull down upon themselves the hatred of all men but they will help to pull down the evil structure of Hitlerism, founded on the blood of millions of innocent men, women and children. They feed on occupied Europe and are the agents of evil.

When they are wiped out, there will come the era of peace and security for mankind, the proof that there is a spirit of good in civilization and in the universal heart of man. Those that put their hands to deeds of infamy must go down. In the long run the Gestapo and their infamous leaders and all things of evil which is Nazism will go. The good that is in humanity will see to that. Hitler has badly read the lessons of life and civilization. He has believed that tyranny and brutality and oppression can kill the spirit. Overrun Europe despite the Gestapo shows Hitler's error, for the overrun peoples are alive with the spirit of revolt against his aggression and will be powerful agents of the coming liberation.

In everything Hitlerism is on the wrong side, on the side of evil, though life shows that evil must perish with those who do it.

Peter Rabbit Creator Dies

Those who are gifted with the art of narrative and can write fanciful or fairy stories for children serve humanity in a way than can never be fully repaid, except in the knowledge that they have been privileged to influence the pliable young lives to things of truth, beauty and goodness. There has just died in England, the author of the Peter Rabbit series of books, Mrs. William Heelis, who was 77 years of age and lived on a sheep farm in the north of England, "Hill Top Farm." Artist with pen and brush alike she has left memorable works and influences that will live in the lives of children and others. It is the finest reward to have left such pictures of life seen as in fairyland, for the younger generation to love.

German Losses

(Chicago Daily News)

Figures on German war losses compiled by Col. Frantisec Moravec, chief of Czechoslovakian military intelligence in London, have attracted some attention lately. He places total German losses at 6,600,000.

He arrives at this figure by estimating German losses to Jan. 1, 1943, as 4,100,000, adding 800,000 for the first three months of last year, which includes 400,000 at Stalingrad; 1,600,000 more on the Russian front from April to October, and 100,000 in the Mediterranean fighting. Thus of 2,500,000 last year, one-fifth were trapped at Stalingrad and in the Africa victory.

Col. Moravec estimates that Germany has mobilized, in all, 15,700,000 men, of whom 11,900,000 were in service a year ago. Subtracting losses from either figure leaves a net of something under 9,500,000. However, this figure includes police, engineer and other specialists, navy and air forces, leaving land forces, which suffered most of the losses, at 4,900,000 a year ago. Therefore, the land forces may have been cut in two during 1943.

Beach Styles

(Australian News-Letter)

Australia's sunshine makes beach wear important, particularly for women.

Last year a ban was placed on the manufacture of bathing costumes to conserve labor and materials for war needs.

When early spring sunshine lured girls on to Sydney's beaches, some wore costumes made from handkerchiefs, scarves, and remnants of gaily colored materials, surrealistic in colors and patterns. One athletic looking lass made her debut in a suit made from a tartan bolero and skirt she had worn when a child, and shorts she made from a suit belonging to her brother.

"I had no coupons left for a swim suit," she said.

Later in the season the position will have improved, because factories are now permitter manufacture restricted to three styles in one-piece woollen suits and six colors.

Velvet, satin, silk- cotton or lastex and two-piece brassiere suits will not be made.

Cafeterias On Liners?

("Newsweek" Magazine, New York)

Luxury liners of the Normandie and Queen Mary type are things of the past, post-war maritime planners believe. After the war the type of passenger who can afford to ride such superships will undoubtedly travel by air. The planners expect the passenger vessel of the future to be a 25,000-to-35,000-ton ship instead of 85,000 tons like the Queen Elizabeth.

A possible out for big ships would be their use for mass transportation of tourists. Some steamship men toy with the idea of defrilling ocean travel to the point where a passenger could be carried to Europe for as little as $50. This would mean substitution of cafeterias for luxurious dining rooms, elimination of extra services and the use of small, plain quarters.

JUST FOLKS

THE VOICE OF ENVY

We seldom have meat on our table.
We've given up coal for the grate.
We finish, as far as we're able,
Whatever is put on the plate.
We are serving the cause for duration,
Whenever, wherever we can,
But they can get steaks without ration.
They must know a black market man.

Don't think for a minute we'd tattle!
We save up our points for a roast.
Than take from our boys who give battle,
We'd rather eat butterless toast.
But they don't let rationing fret them;
They've got some mysterious plan.
When they ask for lamb chops they get them!
They must know a black market man.

I hope you don't think we are jealous
Or trouble would cause, though we could,
But we try to do as they tell us,
As all good Americans should.
We live to the rules and we eat less,
But ever since "pointing" began
They've not had a day that was meatless.
They must know a black market man.

Patrol Activity Has Increased

By FOSTER BARCLAY
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With Canadians in Italy, Jan. 22—(Delayed) — (CP Cable) — Patrol activity has increased on the Canadian section of the Italian front, along the Adriatic, with both the Canadians and the enemy sending out strong forces to probe the opposing defences.

A group of western Canadians rescued an eastern Canada soldier who had been trapped five days in no-man's land, wounded and without food.

A feud developed between the opposing patrols and the Nazis were described as "cocky" after last Monday's battle. They are showing themselves to be daring soldiers, and succeeding in ambushing a Canadian patrol, inflicting some casualties and taking prisoners.

Last Monday the Canadians opened up against the German positions on the southern bank of the Arielli river near the Adriatic coast. Thousands of shells were hurled into the German lines. Canadian troops fought a grim one-day battle against German paratroopers in enemy-held ground, gaining a few hundred yards in the face of withering machine-gun fire.

APPIAN WAY

The whole Italian situation has developed into a race to see if the Allied amphibious force can straddle the Appian Way and the Via Casilina 10 miles farther inland with sufficient strength to meet the Germans when they turn around from the Cassino front.

The first men to swarm ashore were heavily laden with yellow grenades, bazookas and 81-millimetre shells, and they soon were followed by heavier gear.

Much Depends on Fifth

Much depends on the 5th Army troops along the land front to the south. If they hold against the furious German counter-assaults and have enough offensive strength left to press forward when the Germans attempt to disengage, they could prevent them from throwing their full power into the attack on the beachhead.

The Germans aimed their thrusts all along the Gustav Line running through Cassino. The Americans were thrown back across the Rapido when their ammunition was exhausted, but they exacted heavy casualties, held off a German follow-up at the point of the bayonet, and reoccupied strong positions on their own side of the river.

The French in the mountains to to the northeast stood firm.

British troops lost the ridge commanding Tufo to the southwest but regained it with a counter-attack of their own. The main German thrust here was directed at Santi Cosmo E Damiano Ridge near Castelforte and the fighting was described as the hardest the British soldiers have encountered since they crossed the Garigliano.

"All the German assaults in this sector were costly failures," a headquarters commentator declared.

Allied air forces kept up their steady pounding of German communications throughout yesterday and fighters in great strength maintained a constant patrol of the battlefront. Eleven enemy aircraft were destroyed. Three Allied planes were missing.

The communique said British and American troops and supplies are flowing steadily into the Nettuno bridgehead.

From Nettuno a broad highway leads to Rome. The Anziate Way goes west three miles to Anzio, thence due north for 24 miles, joining the Appian Way just nine miles southeast of Rome.

A special communique this morning said "Effective enemy opposition has not developed in this sector. The town of Nettuno is in our hands."

The bulletin reported the Germans had launched fierce counter-attacks against Allied troops at many points on the Cassino front and said that "in most places these were repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy."

Strike Inland

Capitalizing on the shift of three highly-mobile German divisions from the defence of Rome to the Cassino line, American and British troops struck inland yesterday toward enemy communication lines, still encountering only minor resistance more than 24 hours after the first assault waves hit the shore.

Meanwhile Axis broadcasts told of new landings along an 80-mile stretch from the Tiber to the Gulf of Gaeta just behind the main German line in Italy.

The advancing troops now have the Appian Way, 12 miles from the beaches, under shell fire. This highway, the main coastal road to Rome, lies within range of warships standing offshore. The four mile advance put British and American troops only eight miles from the road.

Today's communique said patrols were active on the 8th. Army front, where Canadian troops are engaged.

11 Enemy Planes Downed

The day's toll of 11 enemy planes included eight enemy bombers shot down off the northwest coast of Italy near the Island of Elba.

Heavy bombers attacked railway and road targets at Porto Civitanova, on the Adriatic coast below Ancona; at Siena, 115 miles northwest of Rome, and at Ceprano, 16 miles north of Cassino. Heavy bombers also hit an airfield at Rieti, 42 miles northeast of Rome.

Fighters and fighter-bombers concentrated on the lines of communication in the Fondi, Ceccano and Sezze areas inland from the new landing beaches and between Rome and the trans-Italy front.

Bombers Roam Above Capital Almost at Will

An Air Base in Italy, Jan. 24—(AP)—Hundreds of big bombers and fighters of the United States 15th Air Force, pursuing their impressive offensive in support of the landing operations south of Rome, struck at some 18 targets yesterday and roamed above the Italian capital at will, it was reported today.

The chief targets were the network of roads and railroads immediately behind the German lines and north of Rome.

Bomber pilots said they believed they had put two direct hits on the Pontecorvo bridge where five important roads extend behind the German front near Cassino.

Another bridge crossing the Liri river near San Giorgio, five miles southwest of Cassino, also was battered, and another, 18 miles northwest of Cassino, was also attacked.

There's some catnip—and it's not for the cat! When a catnip went into the little black herb pots hanging on log-cabin walls it was meant for an ill person. Another plant treasured on account of its medicinal properties was common tansy. Sick children ofter refused to drink tansy tea, for though it was tonic it was bitter.

* * *

Necessity is the mother of invention and discovery, and drove the pioneers to comb the thickets for edibles when cupboards grew bare. Nut-bearing trees were carefully noted and baskets were heaped high before the snow flew. The bark of certain trees was brewed for "tea." As for the leaves...even they came in handy. Many a homesteader has spoken of fragrant stews made... of all things . . . from leaves of the beech tree!

* * *

While we're on the subject of food, let's talk about pumpkins. There were plenty of the huge golden globes in the gardens of a century ago . . . far more pumpkins than apples, for it takes years to get a yield from a new orchard. So the pumpkin bee preceded the apple-peeling bee. At pumpkin bees, or "frolics" as they were sometimes called, the idea was for the invited guests to prepare and string the fruit for drying. Dried pumpkin kept beautifully and provided sauce and pie-filling all winter long.

ARGENTINA

Argentina has a higher percentage of white population than any other Latin American republic.

There are virtually no Negroes in Argentina and very few Indians.

The population of Argentina is largely of European extraction, chiefly Spanish and Italian.

Officially the country is styled "Republica Argentina."

Although the Spanish called this region "Argentine," which is from the Latin word for silver, Argentina has never been a large silver producer.

Argentina has a total area of 1,078,278 square miles—about a third that of the United States.

Its greatest length is 2,300 miles and its greatest width 930.

But its total population is only about 13,600,000.

The Roman Catholic religion is supported by the state, but all creeds are tolerated.

Under the constitution the President is required to be a Roman Catholic and an Argentine by birth.

Buenos Aires, with a population of 2,500,000, is the largest city in Latin America and the second largest Latin city in the world.

The Argentine flag consists of three horizontal stripes, two green ones with a white one in the centre. On the white stripe, in the centre of the flag, is a golden sun. This device symbolizes the winning of Argentine independence from Spain. It is called the "May sun," in commemoration of May 25, 1810, when the inhabitants of Buenos Aires forced the Spanish viceroy to resign and started the revolution.

The full name of the capital of Argentina is "Ciudad de la Santisima Trinidad Y Puerto de Santa Maria de Buenos Aires."

The city with its suburbs contains more than a fifth of the population of the republic.

An Argentine once said that the capital is so important in the life of the nation that "when Buenos Aires has a cold, the whole republic sneezes."

Many Americans in South America refer to Buenos Aires by the initials "B.A." because they are not sure how to pronounce the name.

"BWAY-nos EYE-rays" is an approximation to the native pronunciation.

Cards and dancing were enjoyed by the employees and guests during the evening. A lovely floor lamp was presented to the guest of honor by Mrs. A. F. Wesley. The door prize was won by Mrs. William Crerar and the spot dance prizes by the Misses Barbara Hanna and Regina Crossen. Music was supplied by Mr. Harry Denton with a record player for round dancing. Square dancing proved an event of the party, with Mr. Calvert and Mr. Mossman as callers and Mr. Chapelle as violinist. The serving of refreshments brought a very jolly evening to a close.

Mrs. Frank Adams, Chatham St., was the guest of Lindsay friends during the past week.

Mrs. J. T. Ross and daughter, Margaret Ellen, have returned from Ypsilanti, Michigan, after visiting her aunt, Mrs. Allan Stanton.

WEDDINGS

GULLIVER—MOORE

The Rev. G. G. Wright officiated at the wedding ceremony in Christ Church chapel on Friday night, January 21, when Gertrude Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Moore, of Campbellcroft, became the bride of George Henry Gulliver, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Gulliver, of Belleville.

Witnesses for the occasion were the bride's mother and Mr. Allan Gulliver, brother of the groom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the groom's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Gulliver will reside in Belleville.

BACK—WHITTON

A quiet wedding took place Saturday afternoon, January 22, in Simcoe, when Martha Alice Brook Whitton, daughter of Mr. Harry J. Brook and the late Mrs. Brook, Simcoe, was married to Flt. Lt. Denys Howard Back, R.C.A.F., Trenton, formerly of No. 1 Bombing & Gunnery School, Jarvis, son of Mrs. Phyllis Stuart Hay Back and the late Howard Back, Lossiemouth, Scotland. The ceremony was conducted at the bride's home by Flt. Lt. Scott, R.C.A.F., Hagersville. The attendants were the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Brook. Flt. Lt. and Mrs. Back will live in Trenton for the present.

CHRISTIE—ROSE

Flight-Lieut. Ross Cameron, R. C. A. F., Trenton, officiated at the wedding on Saturday, Jan. 22nd, in Carlton St. United Church, Toronto of Edythe Jacqueline Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Rose, Chapleau, Ont., to FO. Robert Gordon Christie, R.C.A.F., son of Mrs. Frederick Montayne and the late Robert Christie, Ithaca, N.Y. Alfred King played wedding music and Miss Gwen Hands sang. In a setting of spring flowers and ferns, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore blush satin with long torso and slight train and a long veil that had been worn by the groom's mother at her wedding. She carried white snapdragons and pink roses. Miss Barbara Kelleston was maid of honor in moss green crepe. Bridesmaids were Miss Lily Blochin and Miss Daphne Christie in gold crepe. Catharine Rose, the flower girl, wore green taffeta with small hat of matching material and nosegay of violets. Groomsman was Flight Officer A. McLean, R.C.A.F., and ushers were fellow-officers of the groom. At Haddon Hall, the bride's mother received in rose crepe with black hat and gardenia corsage. The groom's mother was in dove gray crepe with matching hat and orchids. The wedding trip was to St. Marguerite, Que., the bride travelling in a gray pin-stripe suit with black hat and seat coat. The couple will reside in Belleville.

Canada's Political Parties Discussed

"Government Control and Private Enterprise" was the subject of study at the meeting of the University Women's Club held at the home of Mrs. A. E. May, George Street on January 20. The President, Mrs. E. H. Taylor, presided and Miss J. Tickell lead the discussion, assisted by Miss K. Daly, Mrs. W. L. Langlois, and Miss B. Bunting.

In introducing the subject under discussion, Miss Tickell indicated that it was one of a highly controversial character, and necessarily would consist of a review of the policies of the various political parties. To add interest to the program, it was suggested that each one present regard herself as a Member of Parliament during a debate on post-war planning, presented by representatives of each of the political groups.

It was stated that the Progressive Conservative party champions private enterprise. They believe that those who risk their investments in business enterprise should realize the fruits of their efforts. This party tends toward higher tariffs and consequently less outside buying. They believe that the profit motive and competition engender progress which in turn creates wealth to be distributed amongst many. They also feel that if economic freedom is lost, that political freedom is lost as well.

The C.C.F. want economic security for all and would organize the wealth of the country to this end. They seek the socialization of those services and industries upon which the welfare of the community depends. They would dissolve the "Monopolies", which when socialized would be controlled by Boards, representing and responsible to the people. The party also advocates government control of life insurance and banks alleging that in this way costs of operation would be decreased. This party feels that only national planning of the natural resources can safeguard them from exploitation.

The Liberal party strives to achieve maximum employment and a decent living for all. They represent a balance between the extreme right and extreme left represented by the other two parties. They maintain that there has been no really "free" enterprise for some time as the government now imposes many restrictions on business. Under the Liberal regime a number of services have been socialized such as the Canadian National Railways and Canadian Airways. They advocate free trade to avoid economic nationalism, and would facilitate marketing agreements with other countries.

The second part of the evening's program was devoted to an analysis of the many-sided nature of the topic, engaging the members in a stimulating and lively discussion.

Friendship Group Holds Song Recital

A fine program of sacred songs presented by the "Singing Strands," Mr. and Mrs. Victor Stroud of Toronto, took the place of the Friendship Group of Bridge Street United Church on Sunday evening. After a few words of welcome and introduction Dr. Semple led in prayer. The National Anthem was sung before Mr. Stroud's first solo "From Sinking Sands He Lifted Me" followed by Booth Clibbon's "Down From His Glory". Next Mrs. Stroud' rich mezzo-soprano blended with the fine tenor of her husband in "Why Should He Love Me So" by Robert Harkness. Mr. Stroud's lyric tenor solo "The Living God" by Geoffrey O'Hara followed. The old and familiar "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" by J. S. Feavis was then sung as a duet. Albert Houghton's "Not Understood" sung as a tenor solo was followed by the duet "In The Garden". As a special request Mr. Stroud sang as his last number. "The Stranger of Galilee". The closing duet was Rev. Geo. Bennard's "Old Rugged Cross" in which the audience joined in the last chorus. All those in attendance were both moved and inspired by the beauty of the music and sacred songs presented by Mr. and Mrs. Stroud.

Holloway St. Church Reports Successful Year

Contributions to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund at Holloway Street United Church during the past year were the greatest in the history of the church it was shown by the financial statement at the annual congregational meeting held in the Sunday School parlors last Thursday evening. Contributions to the fund for the year totalled $1,224.72 with the W. M. S. and affiliate groups adding another $542.13 to the missionary enterprise.

The annual meeting took the form of a pot-luck supper with a program of devotions led by the minister, Rev. J. A. Dilts, hymn singing, a poem reading by Mrs. H. Howard and Mr. G. T. Woodley leading in prayer. A moment's silence in tribute to members of the congregation who passed on during the year was observed. Deaths were Miss Sarah Howes, M. D. Denton, T. A. Smith, W. A. Williams and Mrs. Annie Brickman.

$5,130 Raised

Reflecting the enthusiasm of missionary contributions during the year was the financial success of the other church departments. Total contributions for all church activities were $5,130.98 with a sum of $500 being set aside as a reserve fund by church board after all expenditures and been made. Cash balance of the church at the end of the year as shown by the treasurer's statement was $314.40 with other organizations of the church showing increased balances, totalling in all over $1,000.

A total of 63 persons had joined the church during the year, it was reported by the minister, 38 by profession of faith and 25 by transfer of letter. There were 33 baptisms eight funerals and 21 marriages.

The church war unit reported a worthy effort during the past year, raising $950 and supplying boys of the congregation now overseas, together with other soldiers, with comforts and treats. The unit had packed 178 boxes and had given 50 ditty bags, it was reported.

Assist War Charities

In addition to the above effort the unit had given supplies to the Salvation Army to assist in their work, while generous cash donations had been given to the Greek, Chinese and Russian Relief funds; the British Churches, Kinsmen's Milk Fund and the Christmas Cheer for British children.

Emphasizing the highlights of the various church reports and testing the general church knowledge of the congregational members of quizz contest was conducted by Allan Lennox. This proved an effective way of summarizing the various church activities and impressing them upon the memory. Activities of each department were demonstrated by booths, the encouraging financial reports creating evident enthusiasm.

Adding entertainment to the evening's proceedings was a short musical program of piano duos by Mrs. Ed. Hubbs and Mr. William Connor and Solos by Mrs. Houston, the numbers being enthusiastically received. Mr. C. I. Frederick read a challenging poem "Example". A vote of appreciation was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Dilts for their sincere services during the year. The committee in charge of the evening's program was composed of William Slavin, Don Fraser, Rev. Mr. Dilts and Ted Poste.

C. I. Frederick reported for the nominating committee with the following being elected to the church session: Talbot Ketcheson; Otho-Denyes, Garfield Lloyd; B. McMurray. The following were appointed as church stewards: Allan Lennox; H. C. Bird; Dawson Boyd; Percy Bolton, W. B. Vandervoort; Jack Grills and R. Chesner.

Women's Activities

ZION W.M.S.

Mrs. Herb Casey opened her home for the January meeting of the W.M.S. Owing to the icy road conditions, only nine members attended. The president called the meeting to order. The business consisted mainly of itemized accounts from the various secretaries of their activities for the year. In her talk to the officers for 1944, Mrs. H. K. Denyes left the thought with everyone, "Do you feel loving and kindly to each one with whom you come in contact?" The women were then asked to consider the refugee problem and be ready for discussion at the next meeting which is to be held at Mrs. Cecil Ketcheson's, in conjunction with the world's day of prayer. Mrs. R. Bunnett had charge of the program. The devotional, "The Bible For All of Life," was taken by Mrs. Ralph Sills. Mrs. Bunnett gave a paper on the customs and religion of the Chinese. Mrs. Percy Ray prepared the study book, the main thought being the three L's—Light of Knowledge, Literacy and Literature. Mrs. Casey invited the ladies to the dining room where Mrs. Ketcheson and Mrs. Beatty were asked to preside at the tea table which was tastefully arranged with dainty refreshments.

AIKINS' W. A.

The regular meeting of Aikins' W. A. held at the home of Mrs. C. McMullen on January 20, was well attended and a splendid pot-luck dinner was enjoyed by all. The meeting opened with the new president, Mrs. Lee Grills, presiding. After the Scripture lesson, which was read by Miss Ruth Spafford, Rev. L. W. Scott conducted the installation of officers. Mrs. Grills expressed her deep regret in losing one of the mothers of the community, Mrs. George Stone. Several splendid readings were given by members and a solo by Mrs. Perry Hamilton. During the business period, letters of thanks were read by Mrs. F. Westover from the boys overseas for boxes received at Christmas, namely: Burton Bunnett, Bob English, Bob Kells, Norman Wheeler and Burton Shaw, also a letter of thanks from Eugene Irwin for a card received at Christmas. Each member was given a little "thank you" bag, made by the president, to take the place of the birthday box for the coming year.

ROSLIN 8TH LINE AUXILIARY GROUP

The 8th Line Auxiliary Group to the I.O.D.E. held its second meeting of the month at the home of the President, Mrs. Stan Carter, on Thursday afternoon last with 7 members present. One quilt was tied and bound in the afternoon. The meeting was opened with singing with Mrs. John Hart at the piano. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Fred Coulter, the treasurer acted in her place. She gave her own report, which showed $14.50 made at the euchres held recently. A number of thank you letters were read from D. Chisholm, W. Colden, H. Gray, C. Mills and N. White, for boxes they had received at Christmas. $5 was donated to the I.O.D.E. to buy books for the Navy. Mrs. W. Alford offered her home for the next quilting and meeting. It was decided that each member bring an article of groceries to be put in a basket on which tickets would be sold. Mrs. Carter served lunch, assisted by Mrs. Alford and Mrs. R. Copeland.

Victory Recipes Tested, Approved By Dominion Experimental Kitchen

Something hot and tasty is the order of the day at lunch or supper. As a foundation for a wide variety of hot supper dishes such cereal products as spaghetti, macaroni and noodles are prime favorites, with potatoes and other vegetables running a close second.

As stretchers for the protein food which must be used carefully, the macaroni family is hard to beat. Their bland flavor gives to the finished dish the characteristics of the 'stretched' rather than the stretcher and prevents their frequent use from becoming monotonous.

The secret of well cooked macaroni, noodles and spaghetti, as disclosed by the home economists in the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, is to cook them in plenty of boiling water. They recommend 1 quart of boiling water and I teaspoon salt to 4 ounces of the cereal . . . 1 cup of macaroni in 1-inch pieces equals 4 ounces. Cooking time is from 15 to 20 minutes and should be followed by immediate draining and a cold water rinse to prevent the pieces sticking together in a pasty mass. A tip worth remembering is that a light greasing of the inside rim of the saucepan will prevent boiling over.

Noodle Ring With Vegetables

4 ounces broad noodles
2 eggs, separated
1 cup milk
1-2 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
2 tablespoons chopped parsley

Cook and drain noodles. Beat egg yolks until thick and light, add milk, noodles and seasonings; fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Turn into a well greased ring mould, set in a pan of hot water and oven-poach in a moderate oven, 350°F, until set, about 1 hour. Turn out on a serving dish and fill centre with well-seasoned creamed vegetables. Six servings. A ring mould may be improvised by setting a small bowl in a casserole or baking dish.

Saveury Spaghetti

3-4 lb. liver
1-4 cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons fat
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 cups tomato juice
8 oz. spaghetti

Scald liver in boiling water 5 minutes; drain and grind. Brown onion in fat, add liver and seasonings and cook slowly 10 minutes. Add tomato juice, simmer 20 minutes. If sauce becomes too thick during cooking, thin with a little water. Meanwhile cook and drain spaghetti. Pile spaghetti on a deep platter and pour over it the sauce. Six servings.

Note—A clove of garlic may be cooked with the onion and removed before adding remaining ingredients.

Macaroni and Sausage Casserole

2 1-2 cups macaroni, 1-inch pieces
2 eggs
1 cup milk.
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 cup grated cheese
6 large pan-fried sausages, cut in pieces

Cook and drain macaroni. Beat eggs until light, add milk and salt. Add this mixture to the macaroni and blend in cheese reserving a little for topping. Place half of the macaroni mixture in a well greased baking dish. Cover with sausages and top with the rest of the macaroni mixture. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Place in a pan of hot water and oven-poach in a moderate oven, 350°F, until set, about 1 hous. Six servings.

Note—Diced bologna or wieners may be used instead of the sausages.

T. O. G. CLUB

The regular monthly meeting of the T. O. G. Club was held at the home of Mrs. Dilts, 44 Hillside St. The meeting was called to order by the president, Ruth Oliphant. The minutes of the last meeting were read and appproved. Following the secretary's report, the business of the next meeting was discussed. Marion Doxsee then led in a short worship service. Evelyn Anderson, bride-to-be, was presented with a lovely silver casserole, for which she thanked the girls. Miss Oliphant introduced Mrs. Doris Howie, who spoke on Home Nursing. The meeting closed with refreshments served by Misses Jean and Olive Parks.

To keep a cellar from being damp, take some old preserving jars and put in 1 pound of calcium chloride, which is enough for a large cellar. This attracts the water from the air, collecting it in the jars. The water should not be poured away, but should be evaporated on a strong fire, and the salt crystallizes and may be used again. This treatment is very good for potato cellars, since while sprouting of potatoes in spring may not be entirely eliminated, it is considerably retarded.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

When the Pipe is in the Other Mouth

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When I became engaged to my husband, I made him promise that he wouldn't smoke, but I've caught him two or three times with his head hanging out the bathroom window smoking a dirty old pipe. This not only makes the house cold, but fills it with obnoxious tobacco fumes. He tried to deny it, but couldn't. Also, I'm surprised that he isn't truthful on this subject. What shall I do to stop this habit?

(Mrs.) J. B. W.

Well, dear lady, thank you for reversing the procedure on smoking spouses. I get dozens of letters from men who are distraught because their wives smoke cigarettes, leave the butts around on furniture not yet paid for, smoke in bed, and set fire to the pillows, even drop ashes on the baby's head, while feeding him.

But you are the first lady in many and many a year who has objected to her husband smoking. Please, if you expect your marriage to hold, don't press the point. Dearer to us than any human affection are our pet heartening habits. Read Barrie's "Lady Nicotine" and let your husband smoke in peace.

What Chance of Happiness When the Wife is Older?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've just finished reading an article on older men always seeking young brides. I'd like to know your reaction to men marrying older women. Is this unusual or not? I know it has been done. I'm in love with a young man of 23 and I'm 30. He's in the service and we've been corresponding. He said it doesn't make any difference to him how old I am.

I feel as if he's too young to decide whom he really loves and that later on he might regret not marrying someone nearer his age. Can you tell me any cases in history where the girl was several years older than her husband and if such marriages were happy I need your advice very much,

C. B. V

It would depend entirely on the type of mind the older woman has whether such a marriage would or would not be successful. There are such types as old-young people and vice-versa. If men and women, with a disparity of years, have congenial tastes, kindred interests, something to fall back on when the kissing grows less, the marriage of an older woman to a younger man is not too much of a risk.

History is full of such marriages which have been pre-eminently successful. Disraeli's wife was years older than he, George Eliot (Marian Evans) once England's favorite novelist, married Cross, a man young enough to be her son. And Bishop Pinckney's wife is said to have embroidered her future husband's christening robe.

Elizabeth Barrett Browning was older than her husband. Their marriage held the all-high championship for a perfect love match.

Soldier Worried Over Teen-Age Son Living with Stepmother

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When I married after my wife's death, I thought my son would have a happier home than I could provide him alone. But he and his stepmother do not get on and I hear from neighbors my 14-year-old is running wild. My wife writes me she can't do anything with him.

The post at which I'm stationed is 400 miles away, so I can't do much personally about the situation. Would you advise putting him in a boarding school, or had he better go to his grandmother of whom he is fond. The only fear is that this lady might spoil him, though she's a thoroughly good soul just 60 years of age.

G. F. P.

Unless you know the type of boarding school to which you propose to send your son, his grandmother's home seems preferable to me. Your wife, without meaning to be, has probably been unsympathetic and kindly home influence may be just what the boy needs at present. You can always consider boarding school later.

Carving a Leg of Lamb

MARTHA LOGAN'S MINT SAUCE

Mint Sauce with lamb is practically a must.
4 tbsps. chopped fresh mint
2 tbsps. sugar
1 cup vinegar

Place the ingredients together in sauce boat or bowl two or three hours before serving. Allow to steep. If dried mint is used, allow to stand in hot water to cover before adding vinegar and sugar.

Martha Logan

Proper carving helps you get extra servings from the roast

We watched a demonstration of this modern method of carving a leg of lamb recently and were amazed by the extra slices it obtained. Try it yourself next time.

FIRST . . . be sure your knife is really sharp. The leg of lamb is placed as in the photograph. The shank bone is on the right, the thick meaty part farthest away from the carver.

NEXT . . . carve two or three large slices from the near thin side. This enables you to turn the roast so it lies on the near thin side, with the shank pointing up from the platter.

NOW . . . slice down to the leg bone, starting at the shank end, till you have as many slices as you need to serve everyone; ¼-inch thick slices are best.

LAST . . . run the knife along the leg bone releasing the slices you have cut. Serve.

Canadiens Most Consistent, Rangers Most Unpredictable And Detroit Most Improved

Wings Most Clearly Earn Title by Blanking N.Y. Rangers 15-0

LEAFS LOSE TWO

By The Canadian Press

Three observations can be safely deduced from the National Hockey League's 13th weekend of competition: Montreal Canadiens are the most consistent team in the league, New York Rangers are the most unpredictable and Detroit Red Wings the most improved.

Here the order should be reversed, for of the three teams the Red Wings most clearly earned their title, shooting off sparks in all directions to blank Rangers 15-0 and inflict the most decisive defeat in National League history.

The strangest angle of the crushing Ranger disaster, achieved Sunday before 12,293 Detroit fans, is that on Saturday the tailenders were good enough to trample Toronto Maple Leafs 5-1 on Toronto ice. Leafs also lost 5-3 to Chicago Black Hawks Sunday, thereby dropping 15 points behind Montreal Canadiens, who swept both ends of a doubleheader with Boston Bruins, 6-2 in Montreal Saturday and 4-1 in Boston Sunday.

Highest Ever Scored

In the scoring spree at Detroit, every Red Wing player except defenceman Cully Simon and goalkeeper Conny Dion participated in the 35-point barrage, highest total ever recorded by one team.

Syd Howe counted three goals in the last period to boost his 10-year total with Red Wings to 149, one more than Herbie Lewis accumulated in 11 seasons with Detroit. Howe's total represents a Detroit record. Murray Armstrong, Carl Liscombe and Don Grosso each had two goals.

It was the sixth victory in seven undefeated starts for Red Wings, who have climbed from fifth place to within three points of the second-place Leafs.

Leafs Decisively Beaten

Leafs were decisively beaten in both their losing starts. At Toronto Saturday, they watched Fernand Gauthier open the scoring for Rangers in the first period, then dropped behind to stay when Kilby Macdonald, Bryan Hextall and Gauthier again made it 4-0 little more than two minutes after the second period opened. Gus Bodnar, Toronto's only scorer Saturday, gave Leafs a 1-0 lead at Chicago Sunday, but Hawks prevailed after that. Doug Bentley, Earl Seibert, Fido Purpur, Johnny Gottselig and Bill Mosienko scored in order for Chicago while Leafs were held to goals by Windy O'Neill and Lorne Carr.

The crippled Bruins were soft prey in their weekend losses to Canadiens. Montreal power was evenly distributed, Fern Majeau being the only Habitant to collect more than one goal. It was Montreal's first victory at Boston in 18 starts since Nov. 26, 1940.

ST. CATHARINES NO MATCH FOR HAMILTON TEAM

Weakened by Loss of Three Players Saints Drop 7-4 Decision

GENERALS WIN

By The Canadian Press

Without the services of Pete Backor, Jud McAtee and Joe Delmonte and with only ten players available, St. Catharines-Saints were no match for Hamilton Majors Saturday night at St. Catharines, losing a 7-4 decision on the game and relinquishing first place in Senior O.H.A. group standing to their rivals.

The weakened Saints held Majors for one period, no score being registered in the first 20 minutes, but succumbed thereafter to the Hamilton barrage, principally from the sticks of Doug Runions, Dillon Brady and Johnny Conick. The first two each fired the puck into the cage twice and Conick was content with one goal, other counters being scored by Davey and Miocinovich. The leading Saints' threat was Umbo Concessi, who scored two, while Goble and Reynolds had singles.

In the Junior "A" series, Oshawa Generals Saturday night consolidated their hold on top spot in Group 1 with their 15th victory by handing St. Michael's College a 4-3 reverse on Oshawa ice. The Generals now lead with thirty points, with the students' 24 points being good enough for second rung. Chenier (2), Curry and Dawes were the scorers for the winners while Dunlap, Bauer and Schnurr gained goals for the collegians.

In the Saturday matinee doublet at Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens. Toronto Marlboros held off Hamilton Whizzers 4-1 and Port Colborne recreationists trimmed Toronto young Rangers 5-3, the results bringing no change in their group positions.

O.H.A. Sub-Committee Rules Waldner Ineligible to Play

The sub-committee ruled Paul Waldner, formerly of the Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League, ineligible for any O. H. A. club this season. The junior "A" game at Brantford Jan. 15 in which he played against St. Catharines Falcons was ordered replayed at the close of the schedule if the result has any bearing on the standing of teams for the play-offs. John Clancy, Grimsby, must remain with Hamilton Whizzers although claimed by Port Colborne unless he is released by the Hamilton club. Dick Wray was refused permission to play with the Listowel junior "B" team because he had already played three junior "A" games with Brantford Lions.

Fred Cochrane, former world welterweight boxing champion, Saturday filed a suit for annulment of his marriage to Beatrice Milano Cochrane whom he married Oct. 14, 1942. Cochrane, now in the Navy, declared at San Francisco, his wife told him she had married him solely because of his sport fame.

Hialeah Park's evening handicap Saturday was captured by five-year-old Mar-Kell, leading winner of the Calumet farm, despite a 126-pound weight assignment, paying $4.70 for $2.

First hurlers of the Washington Senators to sign up this season were Mickey Haener and Vernon Curtis, both of whom sent in their contracts Saturday without change.

Willie Hoppe of New York earned a 193-point advantage to carry to the New York finals this week by winning two blocks at Detroit Saturday from his touring billiards rival, Welker Cochran of San Francisco. Hoppe stands 1,850 to 1,657 on the cross-country series.

Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics Saturday announced the outright sale of two pitchers, Sam Lowry and Felix Mackiewicz, and infielder Francis Skafe, to the Baltimore Orioles of the International League at a reported price of $10,000.

Toronto, Jan. 24 (CP)—National Hockey League governors presented a study in map-reading at their meeting here Friday. Managing Director Red Dutton carried a worried expression as befits a guy burdened with the cares of management.. He not only acts like a diplomat, he's beginning to look like one (and only a year ago that remark would have caused a diplomatic crisis.)

Lester Patrick and Bill Tobin of the lowly Rangers and Black Hawks had little to say and Art Ross of Boston was not much more voluble. Rangers' sorry position was reflected by Lester's silence because a Patrick of less than 10,000 words an hour is as unusual as a Ranger victory.

The Canadiens delegation of Senator Raymond and Tommy Gorman were models of affability befitting representatives of a potential title club. Frank Selke of the second-place Leafs was mighty friendly.

The tip-off on the N.H.L. future, however, was Jack Adams' feniality. It is being bruted around that Detroit Red Wings are likely to be the team to beat before the season ends and obviously Adams thinks so too.

Jack was in a jovial mood as the governors entertained the press. He ribbed his fellow governors playfully, pushed little shafts of wit into random conversation and was the life of the party generally.

Adams ribbed Dutton about his vanished Brooklyn Americans. "Remember the time the photographer wanted a picture of some of your boys when Americans were on a losing streak of only about seven games?" Adams asked Red.

"Red just about threw the guy out of the rink but, being in one of his more congenial moods, decided to let the fellow take an action shot. He picked Lorne Carr to carry the puck in on Charlie Conacher and goalie Earl Robertson.

"Americans didn't have any too many hockey players at the time anyway and when Carr tried to wheel past Conacher, Charlie gave him the body and Carr crashed into the boards, injuring a shoulder. At the tie Carr's stick caught Robertson across the forehead and Robbie needed nine stitches to close the cut.

"The photographer took one peek at the wild look in Dutton's eyes, hurdled the boards and is probably running yet."

AL SCHOENDIENST BATTING CHAMP OF INTERNATIONAL

Most-Talked-of Player With Rochester Last Year Hit for .337

ED LEVY SECOND

New York, Jan. 24. (AP) — Al Schoendienst, the hustling redhead whose shortstop play at Rochester made him the most-talked-about player in the minors, is the 1943 international league batting champion with an average of .337, official league statistics released today show.

In banging out 187 hits to top the circuit, the St. Louis Cardinal farm hand captured the hitting crown with 15 points to spare over big Ed Levy of the Newark Bears. Levy a former first baseman who gets a New York Yankee trial as an outfielder this spring, hit .322.

Others among the six .300 average sluggers were Louis Olmo of Montreal who hit .315 before he joined Brooklyn Dodgers; George Staller of Baltimore and Roberto Ortiz of Montreal, .304; Maurice Van Robays of the pennant-winning Toronto Maple Leafs, who hit .302 before he went to Pittsburgh.

Staller was the runs-batted-in leader with 9 to his credit while Ortiz had the most total bases, 262, and the most doubles, 40. Eddie Kobesky of Buffalo topped the home run hitters with 18 round trippers although he averaged only .259. Olmo's 12 triples were tops in that department and Frank Zak of Toronto scored the most runs, 101.

All hooks of Montreal and Staller reeled off streaks of 17 games in which each hit safely.

The only league record established was a new extra-inning mark of 21 set when Toronto and Baltimore battled to a 2-2 tie April 23. The game took four hours and 10 minutes.

RALPH DEPALMA BUSY PREPARING SHOCK FOR DUCE

Testing Ranger Motors for Big Aircraft Yet to be Seen

PLAYED A JOKE

(Associated Press Sport Writer.)

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Ralph Depalma, for 27 years one of the world's greatest automobile racers, says he was the first to give Mussolini a shock and that he now is busy preparing a bigger surprise for the former Italian dictator and his friends.

Depalma has been busy the past two years testing motors for the Ranger Aircraft Engine Company out on Long Island.

The first was contributed when Depalma returned to his native Italy about a quarter of a century ago and won an important race. Il Duce strode forward and Depalma expected the usual words of praise.

Instead, Mussolini launched forth in a tirade because an Italian-born driver had won an Italian race in a French gas buggy. Mussolini leaned on the machine to jut his jaw closer to Depalma's face and one of the driver's helpers sent a charge of electricity through a wire which had been stretched around the car to protect it from souvenir hunters.

Il Duce, who was grasping the wire, took the full charge before he could let loose.

Depalma has dragged down $1,000,000 in purses with one car.

His 27 years as a knight of the roaring road brought him three national dirt-track championships, two National AAA titles, first place trophies in the Vanderbilt road races of 1912 and 1913, the Indianapolis speedway title in 1915 and general recognition as the world's speed king in 1919.

BARONS RETAIN FIRST PLACE BY 5-3 VICTORY

Defeat Providence Reds to go Two Points Ahead of Hershey Bears

BISONS WIN

By The Canadian Press

Cleveland Barons retained their first-place position in the American Hockey League over the weekend by defeating Providence Reds 5-3 Saturday night.

Hershey Bears — two points behind the leaders — dropped one weekend game Saturday night when Indianapolis Capitals handed them a 3-2 defeat, but turned the tables last night to gain a 2-1 victory over Caps.

Buffalo Bisons defeated Pittsburgh Hornets 4-3 Saturday night and trounced Providence Reds 9-3 last night in the other league games.

Phil Hergesheimer scored two goals for Barons in their win over Reds. Other Cleveland scorers were Phil and Ed Speaker and Tommy Burlington. Roly Forget, Pete Horeck and Yank Boyd counted for the Reds.

Hershey received their first defeat of the season on home ice at the hands of Caps. Carl (Winky) Smith scored two goals for Indianapolis and assisted in the third. Bill Thompson scored the third goal while Johnny Harms and George Patterson netted for the Bears.

In the Bison-Hornet encounter Saturday night Art Thurier bagged two goals in the last four minutes to give Buffalo their 4-3 win.

Fred Hunt and Eldred Kokussen added the other Buffalo marker while Tony Hemmerling, Wendell Jamieson and Bob Gracie scored for Hornets.

Last night Bisons scored four goals in the first seven minutes of play. Fred Hunt, Lloyd Klein, Walter Atanas and Thurier were the goal-getters at the start. Harold Cooper come through with a tally for Reds, but Kobussen was on his trail with two more for Buffalo.

Klein and Max Kaminsky added the other two tallies for Bisons' total of nine. Jack Toupin and Cooper bagged the other two Providence goals.

Hockey Returns To Hume Arena Juniors Tuesday

Belleville and Trenton Kids Meet for the Group Leadership

With the return of winter-like weather hockey will be featured at the Hume Arena this week commencing with a service league special between Trenton R.C.A.F. and the Deseronto "Mohawks" tonight.

The cream of hockey, that played in the junior O.H.A. ranks, assumes the spotlight Tuesday night when the Trenton kids invade the Hume Arena for a scheduled junior O.H.A. tussle versus Coach Toots Holway's Belleville Colts. In their initial meeting here Belleville downed the Trenton kids 8 to 3 by virtue of a third period rally. However, returning to Trenton three nights later the home team gained sweet revenge by beating Belleville 6-3. The winners of Tuesday night's game here takes over sole and complete leadership of the group standing.

Keen hockey is being played in the junior O.H.A. ranks and with two such evenly balanced teams as Trenton and Belleville battling for first place the season's largest crowd should welcome these two battling sextettes Tuesday night.

Casual Comment by K.J.C.

Sweeps ! !

"It's disgraceful," said the dear old lady indignantly, "permitting all this gambling in the R. A. F. and causing the poor young fellows to run into debt".

"What do you mean, Auntie?" enquired her airman nephew in surprise.

"Why, these sweeps the R. A. F. are having every day," persisted Auntie, pointing to the newspaper.

"The Irish Sweep was bad enough, but daily sweeps are far worse. No wonder Mr. Churchill said that never did so many owe so much to so few".

Colder Weather, Please.

If the mercury hovers below the freezing point all day the Mohawk-Trenton R. C. A. F. series game will be played as scheduled tonight. The Deseronto "Mohawks" are newcomers to the Quinte R. C. A. F. hockey league, but reports have the Tyendinaga Township flyers boasting of a strong combination. However, they'll have to be strong to beat Padre Mika's Trenton airmen.

Weather permitting the Trenton juniors invade the Market St. ice palace Tuesday night for the last junior O. H. A. game here until Feb. 9th. Aside from this point first place will be at stake when the squads line-up Tuesday night, which in itself should be sufficient inducement to bring out the largest gallery of puck patrons of the season. Each team won their respective home games in the first meetings, but Belleville did not have the classy Al Gordon from I. T. S. when Trenton beat the locals 6 to 3 in Trent.

News of Hughes.

Remember Billie Hughes, once popular representative of a national known beverage here, who returned to Winnipeg after several years in our midst? Well, according to a Winnipeg newspaper clipping received by Gerald (Softball) Barriage, Billie Hughes is now athletic supervisor of the Y. M. H. A. in the Manitoba capital. While in Belleville Billie Hughes assisted in the furtherment of all phases of sport, particularly rugby football and hockey, and he also served in an executive capacity in local softball. Much credit for the increased interest in physical education of the work of the Y. M. H. A. in Winnipeg is creditted to Mr. Hughes, who trained the first Western Canada Football champions, Winnipeg in 1935. Prior to that he was also head trainer and boxing coach at Queens University and is ex-bantam and featherweight boxing champion of Canada. His many friends in Belleville and district will be glad to hear Billie Hughes is at last enjoying a position he is most suited for, as his knowledge of sport and its promotion is wide.

Trundlers Harken.

Much talk has been heard around local bowling circles of late regarding the adoption of a new style of scoring. Of interest to the five-pinners is the following comment by Bill Westwick in the Ottawa Journal—; "There has been no concerted drive noted in Ottawa to adopt the Western system of five-pin scoring, thought suggestions are heard from time to time, and at least one of largest house leagues operating here is considering experimenting with it next season. Western officials don't insist their system of five-pin scoring is the best. They even go so far as to say that in the interests of national unity they'll adopt any system found to be better. All of which leaves considerable room for debate because the Western style has many boosters in the East. The trend in bowling, just as it is in hockey and football, is to revise rules. And the Patricks, the Ross' and the Ryans and Threlfalls of the bowling game are hard at it. An article in Maclean's introduces a new system sponsored by a former president of the Canadian Association. Under Eastern rules the pins are numbered so that the left arm of the "V" contains numbers one, two and four; the other has one, three and five. Maclean's mentions George Weale, a former C. B. A. president, sponsoring a system while would make number five the "blow pin," and places it at the head of the V. or in the head-pin spot. Behind it numbers three and two would form the left arm of the "V" with the two replacing the four pin, as the latter is spotted in the East. Numbers four and one would form the right arm. In support of this proposed system, Weale points to a high score as the object of the game. "In order to do that," he says, "you must make a number of strikes, and this in turn depends on your ability to hit the head-pin. If you can do that consistently you're a better than average bowler and should be rewarded by a better than average score, even if you do sometimes pick the head-pin out by itself or just manage to clean out one arm of pins in a frame." Says the article: "As the game is official played now cleaning out the left arm gives you seven points and the 'blow-pin'; cleaning out the right arm gives you eight points, but no 'blow-pin'; so that you actually don't score at all, even though you've bowled just as well, or just as badly, depending on how you look at it. Under the new system, each arm is worth 10 points and each arm has the 'blow-pin'." Weale's system raises the scores by only about 10 points a game, but, as he points out, "It is scientifically sound and gives the increase to the bowler who hits the head-pin consistently."

The standing of the City Girls' Basketball loop, as they go into action for a dual bill at the "Y" tonight, reads:-

Four years ago tonight Henry Armstrong viciously pounded and stopped Pedro Montanez in nine rounds to successfully defence his world's welterweight championship in New York's Madison Square Gardens. Montanez put up a gallant showing, but was forced to retire after absorbing terrific punishment from Armstrong's two-fisted attack.

What, Again?

Dame Rumor insists fresh negotiations for the sale of the Yankees have developed. The old jade also insists on connecting Mike Jacobs, New York fight promoter, who some years ago failed in an effort to get the Brooklyn club, with the deal. Says Mike: "The Yanks at $2,500,000 would be a steal, but I have not made an offer." Says Ed Barrow: "Three offers for the ball club have come from persons unacceptable to baseball." Some think that because of his boxing connections, Mike could not pass the Landis gauntlet.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 284

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Partners in a bridge game should have no secrets from each other. They should tell each other what their hands contain. They do so with simple signals.

Tarry with this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠A K 6
♥Q 8 7 3
♦K 6 3
♣A K 6
NORTH
♠None
♥A J 6 2
♦A Q J 5
♣9 7 5 3 2

South starts with an opening bid of one no-trump. He says; "I have no biddable suit. My hand contains five no-trump tricks with two sure tricks among them."

North responds at one with a jump takeout to three hearts. Which said; "I have a biddable heart suit. My hand contains six suit tricks with two sure tricks among them."

South has a total of six tricks. When north shows six tricks, south can see at least 12 tricks. When 12 tricks are in sight, a bridge player's fancy turns to slam.

But even if a player sees 12 tricks, he is not sure of a slam. He must also know what will be the final trump suit. Which south now sees. Because he has support for the heart suit.

But even if a player sees 12 tricks and knows what's trump, he is not sure of a slam. He must also know that the partnership has enough aces and kings.

To find out how many aces and kings his partner has, a player merely bids four no-trump. Partner of the four no-trump bidder must answer with a signal that shows the number of aces and kings he has.

But a player should not bid four no-trump merely because he sees 12 tricks and knows what's trump. He must also have in his own hand two aces and king or better.

Thus, when a player bids four no-trump, he says he (1) sees 12 tricks and (2) knows what's trump, and (3) has two aces and a king or better. South is all set for it. He bids four no-trump.

The only secret a partner should keep from you is what he actually thinks of you.

"Thank Your Lucky Stars"

"Thank Your Lucky Stars" is lusty entertainment. It's got stars—and lots of them, a galaxy of nearly all the Warner Bros. contract players. It's got songs—twelve of them by the noted songwriter Arthur ("Dancing in the Dark") Schwartz and Frank ("Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition") Loesser. It has surprises—Bette Davis jitterbugs, Errol Flynn sings, Alexis Smith dances, just to give you an idea. The Belle Theatre's musical is two hours of the best music diversion that money can buy.

Humphrey Bogart's clowning as a bad guy who has lost his tough touch; Bette Davis, tinema's queen of the tragic muses, suddenly unbending and giving out with a torch song, then contorting with jitterbug gymnastics; Errol Flynn stepping out of his character as a romantic figure and coming up as a comic Cockney; and John Garfield, Ann Sheridan, Alexis Smith, Ida Lupino, Olivia de Havilland, Dinah Shore, Joan Leslie, Dennis Morgan and Eddie Cantor all popping up with novel and unexpected turns are just some of the picture's many highlights.

Others who enrich the production with talent and names include George Tobias, Jack Carson, Alan Hale, Edward Everett Horton, S. Z. Sakall, Hattie McDaniel and Spike Jones and his City Slickers, who made such a tremendous hit with his recording of "Der Fuhrer's Face."

Entertaining Plot

The plot of "Thank Your Lucky Stars" is explosive with laughter. This highly diversified and grade A entertainment and music are touched off at a Cantor broadcast, realistic to the inclusion of vocalist Dinah Shore and radio announcer Don Wilson.

All in all, Warner Bros. has in "Thank Your Lucky Stars," a big and beautiful contribution to the gayety and relaxation of Canada.

The Canadian Paramount News, revealing News highlights from World's battlefronts will be exhibited on the same program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Feminine Touch"

The green monster of jealousy was just so much apple sauce to the college professor of philosophy in "The Feminine Touch", the new comedy now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

It should be excellent tidings to know that Rosalind Russell, Don Amache, Kay Francis and Van Heflin, of the New York stage, offer one of the most amusing four-cornered love affairs yet to reach the screen. The picture was directed by Major W. S. Van Dyke II, who in the past as well as in the new offering, has proved himself a master of comedy and swift dialogue.

"A Scream In the Dark"

"A Scream in the Dark" is the next Republic dramatic offering to be seen at the Capitol Theatre tonight as the added first run hit. Robert Lowery and Marie McDonald share top honors, with Elizabeth Russell lending solid support. She is well known as a lovely looking 'menace'.

The Canadian Universal News completes the grand double attaction.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Heat's On"

Whether they use oil or coal in the furnace won't make any difference to you at the McCarthy theatre where Mae West, Victor Moore, an' William Gaxton are starred in Columbia's dynamo of a musical, "The Heat's On" is now playing. The heat is really on!

Anyway you take its temperature, it's sizzling with dances, comedy musical rhythms and luscious ladies of the chorus. It's really a heat wave of musical extravaganza.

Mae West comes back in a brand new characterization and it's sensational. As an up-to-the-minute Broadway star, she battles her wits and gags against those of William Gaxton, a "wonder boy" producer who has had his first flop. And Mae's wits and gags are plenty agile, not to mention her songs and dancing, which, by the way, she whips into for the first time on any screen.

Victor Moore, as a reformer of Broadway show morals, is the foil of the two and in the usual Moore manner is hilarious. The scene between Victor and Mae in her extravagantly furnished apartment is a "must" if you like rib-tickling lines, topped by loud guffaws while la West goes to town in her best sirenish manner.

Intermingled with the gay gags are hot songs, dances and the south-of-the-border rhythms of Xavier Cugat and his famous orchestra. Hazel Scott tickles the ivories as only she can do and Leonard Sues toots sizzling notes from his dazzling trumpet. Other members numbered among the feature players in this top-notch cast of Hollywood notables are Lester Allen, Alan Dinehart, Mary Roche and many others.

There are six songs in "The Heat's On" which promise to melt the sturdiest heart strings and liven up the most leaden feet. Wait till you hear Mary Roche sing to Cugat's rendition of "There Goes My Guitar" and Hazel Scott play "The White Keys and the Black Keys." And don't forget Mae herself when she sings "I'm Just a Stranger in Town" there's not a soul who will not want to get acquainted.

"Undercover Man"

There's plenty of two-fisted, he-man adventure in "Undercover Man" latest of the thundering "Hopalong" Cassidy action pictures starring William Boyd and second feature of the McCarthy theatre through United Artists release. The film opened Saturday and for those who thrive on movie thrills, its the swiftest, fightingest and most exciting western drama seen in these parts in quite a time.

High RAF Officer Must Be Blushing

London, Jan. 24 —(CP) Cable)—The December air raid on Allied shipping at Bari, Italy, knocked into a cocked hat an unwary saying of a high R.A.F. officer. He must still be blushing.

During an interview just outside Bari, this high-ranker told a group of Empire war correspondents that he would "consider it a personal insult if one German bomber escorted by 30 fighters came this far south."

Only a few minutes later a few Nazi bombers—without fighter escort—began an attack on the Adriatic harbor, 150 miles south of the battlefront, that ended in destruction of 17 merchantmen.

The R.A.F. officer, who must remain unnamed, made his statement during a dissertation on waning German airpower in the Mediterranean area. His interview was granted on condition that he not be quoted directly.

CROONERS TO APPEAR

Hollywood, Jan. 24 (AP)—Bing (The Crooner) Crosby and Frank (The Voice) Sinatra have been signed for a local duel—no tones barred. The Hollywood Victory Committee has announced the radio singers will appear together Feb. 1 on a program which will be broadcast. But it's a "command performance" and will be shortwaved only to armed forces at the various fighting fronts.

SET FIRES IN PIRAEUS

Cairo, Jan. 24 (AP)—R.A.F. heavy bombers set fires in Piraeus harbor in Greece Saturday night, a Middle East communique said today, and fighters and bombers striking at German supply routes in the Aegean have sunk three sailing ships since Jan. 16 and damaged other vessels.

Two planes were lost in all operations, with the crew of one saved.

QUEBEC ACES STILL RATE AS TEAM TO BEAT

Quebec and Montreal at Moment Tied for Top Position

COMMANDOS THIRD

Montreal, Jan. 24. (CP)—It took four starts to do it, but it begins to look now as though the Quebec Senior Hockey League has finally got a circuit that will hold together until Allan Cup playdown time. As the Province's only Senior "A" loop, the Q.S.H.L. will automatically produce Quebec's representative in the search for Dominion honors.

The League took the successive loss of Montreal Army, Cornwall Army and Montreal Air Force teams, picked up a squad from University of Montreal, devised its fourth schedule of the season and continued in business at Montreal, Ottawa and Quebec.

Through all the changes of personnel that have beset the teams, Quebec Aces still rate as the team to beat. Their main opposition of the moment is coming from Montreal Royals.

Aces and Royals are tied at the top at the moment with 12 points each, but Aces' points come from six straight victories while Royals gleaned their's from four wins—two of them four-pointers against U. of M. —and three losses.

Ottawa Commandos, with serious player losses, are a poor third with four points, two more than U. of M. In the Junior section, Royals are clinging to a narrow margin atop the Junior Amateur Hockey Association in Montreal, only loop in the province with Junior "A" rating. Their 21 points on ten wins and a draw in 13 gave them a three-point margin over the powerful Canadiens Juniors. Concordias seem destined to end in third spot, with a weak Verdun squad far behind.

Eyewitness Gives Account of Attack On Allied Convoy

Toronto, Jan. 24 —(CP)— Eyewitness of the attack on an important Atlantic convoy by German U-boats and bombers was Lt.-Cmdr. Peter MacRitchie of Toronto, now serving with the R.C.N. He gave his impressions of the successful defence against the onslaught in an interview by Peter Stursberg, Canadian Broadcasting Corporation war correspondent, broadcast over the CBC Saturday night.

Wakened from a nap by "action stations," Lt.-Cmdr. MacRitchie took his place on the bridge of H.M.C.S. Prince Robert, converted auxiliary anti-aircraft cruiser, microphone in hand to give a play-by-play account of the battle to the crew below deck. The public address system was also used for transmitting orders throughout the ship from Capt. A. M. Hope of Halifax, ship's commander.

He said the Prince Robert and two corvettes arrived just in time for two U-boat attacks with an air attack sandwiched between them for good measure. The U-boats were fought off before they could launch a single torpedo—one was sunk, two probables were scored and several others damaged. Radio-controlled glider bombs were the chief weapon of air attack, launched and controlled from low-flying Heinkels. They hit two convoy vessels but both made port safely.

HIMMLER REPORTED IN BALKAN AREA

New York, Jan. 24 — (AP)—The Moscow radio, in a broadcast reported by the United States Federal Communications Commission, quoted a report from Stockholm today as saying that Gestapo chieftain Heinrich Himmler had arrived in the German-occupied Baltic states on an inspection tour. Himmler was accompanied by officers of the Gestapo and Elite Guard, the broadcast said.

CANNON TURNED OVER TO COURT

Paw Paw, Mich., Jan. 24—(AP)—A small cannon of Civil War days passed out of the hands of the descendants of a Union soldier over the weekend. The present owner fired a shot heard 'round the village. Neighbors complained to police. The citizen said he was only trying out the piece. Justice Glenn Huey dismissed the case when the cannon was turned over to the court.

Doyle Was Himself Sherlock Holmes

(By Adrian Conan Doyle in The London Times)

Since the death of my father, the late Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, there has been much speculation on the origin of his celebrated creation Sherlock Holmes. These conjectures have been revived in lively form by the recent publication of a biography by Mr. Hesketh Pearson. In his book Mr. Pearson tells us, and the newspapers have given some prominence to his words, that my father was in fact a very unobservant man, and this, not unnaturally, has led to a renewal of the old discussion as to whether the remarkable characteristic of Holmes were based on Dr. Bell, of Edinburgh University, or on the strange Dr. Budd, or merely rooted in the influence of Edgar Allen Poe.

In view of the public interest my family and I consider that it is high time that the truth, in sharp contrast to the above mentioned conjectures, be placed on record. The fact is that my father himself was Sherlock Holmes.

Mr. Pearson gives us a few instances in which my father was slow to pick up a perfectly obvious fact. I accept those instances and can indeed recall many more amusing ones such as the occasion when my father arrived at a large banquet in London wearing full evening dress but with a black waistcoat, the situation being saved only by the fact that the guest of the evening—a world famous scientist—turned up in the same attire! When engaged upon the mental processes of some highly speculative problem, I knew him absentmindedly to put on a brown shoe with a black one.

But what do these things prove? In short that my father had a mind with all the characteristics of a microscope. The obvious passed unnoticed because the obvious was entirely unimportant compared with the fact that his brain was focused upon the problem to hand, dissecting, exploring and weighing the evidence that his extraordinary powers of perception could unearth from some detail that would yield nothing whatever to a brain less keen than his own. Many cases that had baffled the police were brought to him, and though none of them were of the homicidal order, I can recall no single instance in which my father failed to solve the problem.

Dr. Joseph Bell did indeed help to develop my father's immense power of observation and conclusions but it must be placed on record that those powers were indubitably innate, and for the mental prototype of Sherlock Holmes we need search no farther than his creator.

John Lewis Wants Jurisdiction Over Chemical Workers

By JOSEPH A. LOFTUS
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Miami, Fla., Jan. 24. (AP)—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, is ready to make a deal with the American Federation of Labor on terms that will assure him jurisdiction over chemical workers as well as mine workers after he is re-admitted to the Federation.

These are the minimum terms before the A.F.L. Executive Council today as it prepares to reconsider the nine-months-old application to reinstate the United Mine Workers.

Nominally, Lewis' position has not changed. He says he must be re-admitted first, with jurisdiction decisions to be made later. Council members say he has assured them he will abide by the Council's decisions, except as to chemical workers.

Lewis is bargaining for jurisdictional rights in a promising industry to bolster the expected permanent postwar decline in mining employments. Plastics alone perhaps would give him a large field for organization.

Although he did not ask the A.F.L. Committee specifically for jurisdiction over 40,000 chemical workers now in the federation, undoubtedly he means to get it if he can get unrestricted A.F.L. jurisdiction in the chemical industry.

Britain Seeking Increased Butter Supply for Nation

London, Jan. 24 —(CP Cable)— Britain is seeking to increase her butter supplies which have been sufficient only to maintain the weekly two-ounce ration.

The Ministry of Food said Britain is pressing butter-producing countries to let her have more but would not indicate if any specific request has yet been made to Canada.

Over a three-month period last year, Canada sent 7,000,000 pounds of butter and it is expected that when butter production is resumed in the Dominion after the winter more exports will be made.

If the present slim supply in Britain continues however, the possibility is seen that the butter ration may have to be reviewed with a view to reducing it. A food official said: "We'll do our best to keep it at two ounces but we can't make any promise. We certainly can't afford to lose ships bringing butter."

Home Canning Sugar On 10 'F' Coupons

Ottawa, Jan. 24—(CP)—The Price Board announces that sugar for 1944 home canning will be made available through 10 spare "F" coupons in ration book 3 now being used by consumers.

The board said consumers will thus be provided with a standard allotment of 10 pounds of sugar per person for home canning purposes, but households wishing to do more canning will be able to supplement this amount by using their preserves coupons for the purchase of sugar.

The special coupons will be exchangeable for preserves coupons on application to local ration boards at the rate of one "F" coupon for one preserves coupon.

The first of the canning sugar coupons will become valid July 1.

The "F" coupons from one to 10 will each be valid for the purchase of one pound of sugar. If all the 1944 preserves coupons are also used to obtain canning sugar the total obtained will be 23 pounds for one person.

Large Cargoes Sugar Molasses, Lime Juice Nutmeg Have Arrived

Halifax, Jan. 24 — (CP)—Large cargoes of molasses, sugar, lime juice and nutmeg are awaiting transfer from the waterfront here to various parts of Canada and the United States. Included are 272,170 gallons of molasses and 11,000,000 pounds of sugar.

Golden Lady

By Clarence Budington Kelland

CHAPTER 10

Darnley halted as commanded. The woman before whom she stood was but a few years older than herself metallically beautiful, with golden hair worn smoothly and tightly like a rich helmet; cold, calculating eyes, and a mouth at once sensuous and bitter. She narrowed those eyes and looked insolently into Darnley's face. "What is your name, please?" she asked.

"Carfax", Darnley replied with what courtesy she could muster.

"I thought so", said the young woman. "Well, Miss Carfax, watch your step!"

Darnley slithered back along the runway and to the dressing-room. "Who", she asked of one of other girls, "is the blonde woman in the sixth row by the runway".

"The dame that looks like she was made in a brass factory?" asked the model.

"Rather", agreed Darnley.

"That", said the girl, "is Mrs. Chico Sanson".

In the dressing-rooms the models gossiped about the women in the audience—about this woman's affairs, that woman's marriages; about the origin of Mrs. Palmer Studer, for instance, who had been a chorus girl until she charmed industriously the dull, fat, pig-eyed man who had made her his wife.

"Men aren't so bad if you know how to take them," said a brunette. "It's the women that build the fence to keep us out. The Wives' Union."

"Nobody," interjected a blonde, "is going to keep me out."

"Is zat so!" said the brunette. "Listen, baby, when you've been around you'll find out you either marry the garageman and raise a basketful of squalling brats, or you grab off a handsome broker that ain't understood at home. And some Christmas Eve he kicks you out because he's got indigestion."

"The glamour of a life of sin," moralized the little blonde, "is swell till you try it."

Darnley, in a reckless mood, left the Fashion Show and took a cab to the apartment she shared with Jerry Shafto. She threw off her clothes while the hot water was running in the tub and then lay in its grateful warmth with closed eyes. As she dozed she found herself thinking of Chico Sanson—his social position, his business prestige, his wealth. She thought about what he could give her and of how easy and pleasant his money could make her life. She would have gowns, lingerie, hats, furs, jewels such as she had worn today. She could have all these things whenever she chose to accept them. And Chico was a gentleman, courteous, kindly, companionable.

She tried to consider the matter dispassionately. But she could not seem to do so. Her mind flitted away from Chico as her thoughts darted off to remember how comically a shabby hat rested upon a tousled head, a certain boyish expression on a thin, high-cheekboned face, or the satiric, sidewise glance of a pair of quizzical brown eyes. This annoyed her. She wanted to be calculating on the subject of Chico Sanson, but found herself being oddly sentimental with respect to Clyde Farrish.

"Nonsense!" she told herself sharply.

Before she had dried herself the telephone rang and she threw on a robe to answer it.

"Miss Carfax?" asked a masculine voice.

"Yes."

"Lacey Gorse speaking. You must meet me at El Picador at eight-thirty tonight."

"I must what?"

"I hope I spoke clearly."

"I have an engagement tonight."

"Break it," ordered Gorse.

"Certainly not," said Darnley sharply.

Gorse paused, then said crisply, "What do you suppose we've been paying you for? Eight-thirty at El Picador—you must be on time!"

Darnley Carfax searched her mind. She remained standing beside the telephone over which Lacey Gorse had commanded her to meet him at El Picador at 8.30, and thought as hard as ever she had in her brief life.

"I am not asking you," Gorse had practically said: "I am telling you."

People, thought Darnley, do not give commands unless they believe they have power to enforce them. Therefore Gorse believed he could compel her to do his bidding. She sought in her recent experiences for something that would give him that idea and could find nothing. True, she had accepted his money, or Garden's, in return for a somewhat mysterious service. But there was nothing in that to give him power over her. He could embarrass her, it was true. In Chico Sanson's eyes she could be made to look bad, indeed. But Gorse could not betray that secret without betraying his own part in it. He was estopped.

The command, then might be nothing but a bluff. He had made no definite threat, but his words implied mastery.

"Until I know what to be afraid of," she said, "I shan't be afraid. I am Darnley Carfax. I can take care of myself!"

It was a declaration of faith. And it was true. She was unable to imagine a dire thing happening to her. Disaster could overtake her neighbors; they might become ill with terrible diseases; they might be run over by cars or be victims of frightful crimes. But not she. She was impregnable.

It might be she had made a serious error in accepting Gorse's offer to pay her for being Sanson's companion, but now was the time to retrieve it. She went to her bedroom and got into slippers and a robe. Then she selected a magazine and settled herself on a comfortable chair. At forty minutes past eight her telephone rang. She did not answer it.

"It's a showdown," she said, and was proud of herself.

At intervals of fifteen minutes the telephone made its demands, but she did not stir. Rather, she exulted. It gave her a strange feeling of self-confidence to refuse to answer that insistent bell. She

Long before Jerry Shafto came home, Darnley was in bed and asleep, charmed with herself, happy in her defiance.

Darnley posed for Peter Orrick the next morning, starting at 8.30, for Peter was an early worker. He was putting the finishing touches on the second Metropolis cover for which Darnley had been the model. Just before one o'clock, Adrian De Groot pushed open the door, bellowing that it was time for all to leave labor for refreshment.

"Eh, Darnley," he greeted her. "You brighten my life. As a partial recompense," he said, with make-believe pedantry, "I shall dispense a kernel of information. And this is it: The search for the Golden Blend Girl commences Monday."

"I thought—" she commenced and stopped suddenly.

"You thought," said the columnist, with one eyebrow lifted, "that it was not to be announced until a new advertising agent had been selected for Golden Blend."

"Anyhow," Darnley said, "I mean to be it."

"No need for a contest then," De Groot remarked.

She made no comment but, on a nod from Orrick, stepped down from the model stand.

The Golden Blend Girl! To be declared by a competent jury the most beautiful model in America. It would mean money, of course. It would make her the most sought-after model in the world. But it was not the money that called her. It was not exactly the fame, though that would be a thrilling thing to throw in the faces of her detractors back home. It was, if she analyzed herself truly, the fact, that it would be a stepping stone; such a high stepping stone.

"It could lead to anything," she said in a half-whisper.

"What do you want it to lead to?" De Groot asked. "The stage?"

"I think not."

"Pictures?'

"Somehow,' she said slowly, "I don't think the pictures can give me what I want."

De Groot raised both brows. "What then?"

"I'm not sure," she said and then rather surprisingly, "It might lead to something in which I would have more to do than be beautiful."

"Enlarge upon that," suggested De Groot.

"Now that I've started in this model business," Darnley said, "I want to be the top in my line."

"Yes?"

"That," she said, "is being something, not doing something. Later on I want to do something where I have to work, think and plan."

De Groot grunted. As they walked to the elevator he kept eyeing her slantwise, obviously deeply interested. They drove to Thirty-Nine and climbed to the second floor, where a headwaiter showed them to a table against the wall. Adrian preceded Darsley. She saw him pause and heard him say, "Hello, Elaine."

Darnley saw the same slender, exact, metallic young woman who had spoken to her so ungraciously at the fashion show. Their eyes met, and the other woman's were puzzled for an instant.

"Do I know—?" she started to ask.

"Mrs. Sanson, Miss Carfax," De Groot responded.

Elaine Sanson's eyes appraised Darnley in this new setting. She raised a slender, beautiful hand to her emeralds, and then said without a trace of inflection, "Ah, a sort of relative of mine, Adrian. My impressionable husband's latest heart-throb."

De Groot puffed out his cheeks comically. "Shall I slap her down, Darnley?"

"I'll attend to her, later on, thank you," Darnley said in cold rage. "I have heard of Mrs. Sanson—about town!"

The columnist cocked his large head to one side, as one who studies a matter critically. "Quite adequate," he said, nodding three times. "Quite, quite adequate! It would seem, Elaine, that you have failed to hide all your lights under a bushel."

He propelled Darnley adroitly past the spot and to their table where she sat between him and Peter Orrick.

De Groot played for a moment with his fork. "Sometimes I make mistakes," he said.

"But never admit them," interjected Orrick.

"I couldn't be mistaken about you, could I, Darnley?"

"Meaning?"

"Why," he asked, "is Chico Sanson looking at expensive furnished apartments?"

"I didn't know he was," she said.

"How far," he asked, "would you go to win the Golden Blend contest?"

"Not that far," she answered.

"And you haven't?"

"No." She paused and tried to define Chico Sanson. "I like him," she said. "He is a — a pathetic gentleman."

"Pathetic gentleman or—is he dangerous?"

"Not to me," Darnley declared.

De Groot's eyes strayed to Elaine and he nodded toward her. "Cave canem!" he said. "She's poison!"

Adrian abandoned serious matters and talked, talked in his inimitable, omniscent way of men and events, past and present, of music, and art and poetry and scandal. He was a great conversationalist. At the end of the luncheon he asked her if he could take her to a picture, or a concert or even to a bench in the park.

"I'm a working girl," she said. "I'm posing for Mr. Farrish this afternoon!"

"Farrish! Clyde Farrish! Not so useful to me as he was before he—er—became extinct. I must give him a thought."

"Extinct?" asked Darnley.

"There was a day," mused De Groot, "when he was in constant ruption."

"I can't believe it," said Darnley.

"I haven't had occasion to chronicle him for a year. Now, that's worth an item: What has become of the Clyde Farrish of yesteryear?"

"If," suggested Darnley, "you do mention him in your column, could you refer to him as that eccentric genius with the camera?"

"Ah!" reflected De Groot. "And why?"

"Because," said Darnley, "If I get my way he is about to become very eccentric and that's a sign of genius."

"What is here," asked De Groot, "that doesn't meet the eye?"

"Nothing," said Darnley as she waved good-bye.

Darnley had promised to help Clyde Farrish and Sam Britton with the work of preparing a presentation with which to solicit the Golden Blend account, upon which Britton's organization was working secretly day and night. She found Farrish in his office with a look of greater animation on his face than she had seen for days.

"I've been with the fur people," he said abruptly. "They're being decent. They're going to give the police a chance before they push me to the wall."

"That's something," she smiled.

"I'll be ready for you in a few minutes," he said. "I've a couple of three-cent jobs to do for the Jones Motor Sales Company on their Frontenac cars."

He stepped out into the studio and she seated herself to wait. After a time the telephone rang, and she answered.

"Farrish Studio?" asked a voice.

"Yes."

"Jenks Agency. We've a little rush job. Will you send someone over?"

"What," asked Darnley, seized with sudden inspiration, "is the nature of the work?"

(If, she thought, I am going to meddle with Clyde's affairs, now is a good time to experiment.)

"Couple of pieces of furniture," said the voice.

"Oh," answered Darnley, "I'm afraid Mr. Farrish would be unable to accommodate you."

"What?"

"Mr. Farrish," she said, "is engaged in making a series of important photographs for Frontenac Motors. You know, Mr. Farrish only takes minor orders as an accommodation occasionally. But he never accepts a rush order. We cannot send a photograph out of this studio that does not carry Mr. Farrish's personality with it."

Clyde had come in silently and was staring at her open-mouthed. "Give me that telephone," he whispered savagely.

She mo'ioned him away with an imperative palm. "Even," said Darnley, "if you were one of our most valued clients we could do nothing until this Frontenac series is out of the way. But you might try some of the other photographers. You are aware, of course, that Mr. Farrish gives his personal attention only to commissions that appeal to him." She hung up the receiver.

"Are you crazy?" demanded Farrish.

"I'm not crazy," she said earnestly, "and if you're not crazy you'll agree. You don't want picayune work. You want big things."

"I want to meet my pay roll," he retorted.

Darnley was excited. Suddenly the studio had become her studio and she wanted acutely to turn it into a success. "Can't you take advice?" she demanded.

"Yes, from someone who knows what he's talking about."

"I do know. I know people want what is hard to get. You can't sell your work by ordinary means. You've proved it. You've failed that way. Why not try something else?"

"And go bust?"

"You're bust anyhow," she said sharply. "Now try being an eccentric genius. I know women. If we think someone doesn't want us to have something, we are simply wild to get it. I believe men are the same. Please, please give it a try."

"Why are you so het up over it?"

"Because," she said, "you say it is impossible to put this business on its feet—and I'd love to do an impossible thing."

"What do you want me to do—let you run this studio?"

"Oh, will you? Will you? I can: I can do things with it. Won't you let me run it for just a month? It can't do any harm. Let me be boss for thirty days."

"So I'm eccentric and a genius?" he asked, looking at her as if he would like to take her across his knee.

"That's part of it."

"All right," he said. "I'll begin now. The eccentric part, anyhow. Not to say lunatic. You boss the business end of this show for a month and I'll take the pictures. Then we'll see who's crazy?"

"Oh!" she exclaimed excitedly. "Do you mean it? Really?"

"Every man," said Farrish, "is entitled to be a colossal fool once."

Her eyes were alight. Elation possessed her. "Oh," she cried, "I could kiss you!"

"Nix," demurred Farrish. "The arrangement is for business only."

Darnley Carfax was in demand. To become a model of the first rank one must have that indefinable thing known as color and the ability to understand what the artist wants. In a small way a model must be an actress, capable of assuming a part.

So Darnley caught on. Artists and photographers found she gave something not specified in the agreements. She was so alive, so dynamic that they took something from her which was inspiration. But she remained definitely fancy-free.

De Groot, that philosopher and observer, watched this development with some uneasiness. "Did you ever," he asked, "hear of fixations and inhibitions and cramps in the cosmic?"

"Only vaguely. Should I know about them?" she asked.

"They are easy to catch," said De Groot.

"What are you hinting?" Darnley asked.

"That sometimes we can pretend so hard that the thing becomes true. You are schooling yourself, Darnley, to indifference to men, even, it seems, to distaste for them."

Children Rescued In Nick of Time

St. Catharines, Jan. 24—(CP)—Four little St. Catharines girls who obtained money from their parents Saturday to go to the theatre were recovering today after being rescued from a near fatal dip in the icy waters of Lake Ontario after they had used the money for street car fare.

They went to Lakeside Park, Port Dalhousie, and were playing on a ledge of ice beside the pier when the ice collapsed, plunging them into the icy current of the old Welland canal.

The girls were Shirley Teal, 8, and Dawn Teal, 11, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Teal, Jessie Barton, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Barton and Irene Argent, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Argent.

Shirley, the only one who could not swim, landed on the cake of ice. The others clambered on and they clung to it for half an hour before they were rescued. The girls had been swept almost half a mile, and would have been beyond reach in Lake Ontario in another five minutes. They were pulled to shore by John Boese, 28, nearby farmer, and three other men whom he summoned.

They were: Jimmy Thomas, who had taken part in many sensational rescues off Port Dalhousie; Jimmy Cain, and George Cleet, workers at Muir Brothers drydock.

Irene Argent was so cold that when she was rescued in a kneeling position, she could not straighten up.

GEESE HEADING NORTH

Sudbury, Jan. 24. (CP)—Take it from Harold Dixon, this spring-like weather is going to last—right into spring. Dixon bases his prognosis of an early spring on the fact he recently saw two separate flocks of wild beese heading north. "They know more about the weather than you or I", says Harold.

MOST SWISS 19-YEAR-OLDS TO BE CALLED UP

Berne, Jan. 24 (AP)—A great part of Switzerland's 19-year-old men will be called up for military training this year in addition to regular contingents because of "necessities of the hour," the government announced today. Training in Switzerland normally starts at 20.

Beer Restrictions May Cause Mass Stoppage of Work

Windsor, Jan. 24 (CP)—Labor's protest against present restrictions on beer consumption may take the form of a mass stoppage of work across Ontario, Henry G. Rhodes, District Representative for the Canadian Congress of Labor, said today. His declaration followed the regular monthly meeting of the Congress here last night.

Mr. Rhodes said the "alleged beer shortage" evoked the "hottest" discussion of the evening, at the meeting of representatives of all C.I.O. and C.C.L. Unions in the city.

"The council," Mr. Rhodes said, "is strongly considering the advisability of mass action against the present regulations."

Asked regarding the meaning of the phrase "mass action," Mr. Rhodes interpreted it as meaning "a mass stoppage of work across the province of Ontario."

Mr. Rhodes said resolutions protesting the beer regulations had gone out to all labor councils in Ontario. Petitions have also gone out from Windsor to be presented to Prime Minister King protesting the present beer regulations, he said.

Executive Rejects Lewis's Terms For Readmission

Miami, Fla., Jan. 24 (AP)— The American Federation of Labor Executive Council today rejected John L. Lewis's terms for readmission of his United Mine Workers into the Federation, and offered to take the miners back only on the same status under which they were members until 1936.

Although the council's proposal would limit Lewis' jurisdiction to the coal mining industry, it did not necessarily close the door to further negotiations on the question of the U.M.W.'s district 50, which includes miscellaneous crafts.

An A.F.L. committee WAF instructed to meet again with the miners if Lewis is willing.

President William Green said he believed some progress had been made, but he declined further interpretation. Lewis' terms had been "take us as we are."

Clothing on Grill Compares With Dead Man's Clothes

St. Johns, Que., Jan. 24 —(CP)— Dr. J. M. Roussel, Montreal medicolegal expert, today said at a preliminary hearing into the case of Pte. Johnny Greco, former Montreal boxer, charged with manslaughter that several pieces of a soldier's uniform found on the radiator grill of a car driven by Greco "compared exactly" with the uniform of Pte. Romeo Dagenais of Montreal, whose battered body was found on a nearby highway last week.

Obituary

MRS. BARTON HINCHLIFFE
(Sidney Township.)

Frankford, Jan. 24. (Special.)— Mrs. Barton Hinchliffe died at her home in the 5th Concession of Sidney Townhip on Saturday morning, Jan. 22, after an illness of eighteen months' duration.

The late Mrs. Hinchliffe, who was in her 41st year, was born in Rawdon Township, and prior to her marriage she was Miss Leda Marguerite Hubble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Sanford Hubble. For thirty-three years she lived in Sidney Township and was highly esteemed in the community. In religion she was a member of the United Church at Wallbridge and took an active part in church work, being a teacher in the Sunday School and treasurer of the Women's Missionary Society. To many friends her death has brought much regret.

Surviving her are her husband, Mr. Barton Hinchliffe; one daughter, June, age thirteen years; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Hubble; one brother, Mr. Lawrence Hubble, Sidney Township.

The funeral took place this Monday afternoon to Wallbridge United Church where an impressive service was conducted by the Rev. L. W. Scott. Many friends were present.

Interment took place in Frankford Cemetery and the bearers were:— Messrs. Morley Phillips, Grant Nicolson, Sam Chisholm, Mac. Sine, Frank Phillips and Hudson Ketcheson.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 24 (CP)—The mining groups were moderately strong in the early hours of trading on the Toronto stock exchange today. The industrials and western oils held steady. Heavy trading in some of the penny golds lifted aggregate volume to 769,000 shares for the first three hours.

McIntyre touched a new high for recent years at 60, up 3-4 for the day, Bralorne added 1-4 and gains were posted by Aunor, Upper Canada, Queenston, Coniaurum, Wright-Hargreaves and Hard Rock. Minor losses appeared for Macassa, Malartic Gold Fields, Pioneer and Osisko.

Nickel at 31 was the strongest of the base metals. Small losses appeared for Waite-Amulet and Steep Rock.

The industrials showed minor gains for the utilities and foods against scattered losses in other groups. C.P.R., Laura Secord, Weston, Ford "A" and International Metals "A" added small fractions.

Foothills and Calgary-Edmonton were higher western oils and Mid-Continent at 33 was down a cent.

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Rails continued to do fairly well in today's stock market but even these ran into sufficient profit taking to stall their advance. Top marks were trimmed or erased in most cases near the fourth hour, with dealings dwindling.

Among supported stocks were Chesapeake & Ohio, Pullman, American Can, Du Pont, Westinghouse, Boeing and International Nickel. Occasional losers included N.Y. Central, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Kennecott, U.S. Rubber, American Telephone and J. I. Case.

Among Canadian issues, McIntyre was up 1-2, Hiram Walker was up 1-8 and Canadian Pacific and Distillers-Seagrams were unchanged. Dome Mines lost 1-8.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Jan. 24. (CP) —Cattle Trade was very dull up to mid-session on the Livestock market here today with prices steady to a shade lower. Calves, hogs sheep and lambs sold steady.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service included:— Cattle 2,100, calves 250, hogs 1,000, sheep and lambs 1,100. Unsold from Saturday were 200 head of cattle.

Included in fresh lamb and sheep receipts were 800 head of western.

The Dominion Government premium of $3 a head on grade A hogs and $2 a head on B1 hogs became effective on hogs slaughtered today.

Prices included:

Cattle: Weighty steers $12-$13, butcher steers and heifers $10 to $11.75; no cows sales, a few bulls $8 to $8.75, fed yearlings $12 to $13, stockers $8 to $10.50.

Calves: 15 to $16 for choice, other grades downward to $10.

Lambs $13 to $13.50 good ewes and wethers, culls downward to $7.

Sheep: $3 to $6 for locals, $6.25 for light westerns.

Hogs $17.15 dressedweight, sows $13 dressed.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Jan. 24 —(CP)— Receipts: Cattle 950, calves 835, sheep and lambs 700, hogs 2120.

Veal calves 15-16 for good to choice with other grades down to 12. Grassers unsettled.

Lambs 10-10.50 for ungraded lots, the bulk 10.50, Sheep 3-6.30.

Hogs 17.50 for the basic trade. The new government premiums became effective today, Grade "A" drew 3 and "B" 2.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 24—(CP)—Prices were unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight Brantford $16.50 plus transportation, Chatham $16.40 plus transportation, Hull $16.95 delivered, Hamilton $17.05 delivered, London, Barrie and Stratford $17 delivered.

Motor Permits Now on Sale

Toronto, Jan. 24 — (CP) — Ontario's 1944 motor vehicle permits went on sale today as the Ontario Department of Highways at Queen's Park here and through 200 agents throughout the province including Ontario Motor League offices. Only a mild demand arose at Queen's Park, Minister of Highways George H. Doucett said.

Applicants fill out their 1943 licence in applying for renewal and are given their new licence form showing the 1943 licence plate number and the windshield sticker on which the 1943 licence plate number is shown.

Those purchasing new cars, Mr. Doucett said, must apply at the main office for the new licences when they will receive new 1943 plate, a supply having been retained for this purpose, but renewed licences carry the 1943 plates on the rear of the vehicles.

Mr. Doucett has not yet ruled on a time limit for obtaining licences but it is expected to be the end of February.

Former Football Star Home on Leave

Ann Arbor, Mich., Jan. 24—(AP) —The parents of Lieut. Tom Harmon disclosed today that the former Michigan All-American football player had returned to the United States from China last weekend on a 20-day leave from his fighter squadron in the 14th U. S. Air Force.

Harmon crashed after a fierce dog-fight with Jap Zeros on Oct. 30 and was harbored by Chinese guerillas for 32 days before he reached his home base. Previously he was lost for several weeks after a crash in South American jungle.

HOME FRONT WARNED

London, Jan. 24 (CP Cable)—Sir Stafford Cripps, speaking today at Midlands factory, said the only thing which could prevent the United Nations finishing the war in Europe in 1944 would be failure of people on the factory front to provide the fighting men with the implements needed.

There should be a glorious partnership between the crews of aircraft and the workers who make the machines, he said.

MUST PROTECT ONTARIO MINING SAYS CYRIL YOUNG

'Mining More Than Any Other Industry Pulled Us Thru Last Depression'

BLESSED WITH METALS

Toronto, Jan. 24 — (CP) — Cyril T. Young, internationally known mining prospector and promoter, today told the Ontario Mining Commission at Queen's Park the mining industry must be protected, as soon as the war effort permits, by lower Dominion taxation and "other statesmanlike actions to dig up new wealth."

Open hearing into the mining situation in northern Ontario began here today.

"Mining more than any other industry pulled us through out last depression," Mr. Young said. "Other nations will again compete in processed goods, but we are blessed with certain metals which they must buy from us. All of us must co-operate to sensibly save Canada's mining industry from disaster."

Mr. Young said "Long years of repeated regulations by three political parties have wrongly put mining discovery and development in bondage to the Attorney-General's department."

"Only free prospecting with the right of the prospector to make his own deals will save the mining industry," he declared.

He suggested an independent 3-man mining board outside of the Attorney - General's department would be most helpful to the industry. Another recommendation he made was that the commission recommend the minting of gold coin in Canada rather than in the United States.

Mr. Young went on record as opposing house to house canvass by mining and stock promoters and telephone canvass from stock brokers' offices.

Tremblay, Tucker Will Move Reply

Ottawa, Jan. 24 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced today the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne at the opening of the new session of parliament Thursday will be moved by L. T. S. Tremblay (Lib. Dorchester) and seconded by Walter A. Tucker (Lib. Rosthern).

The Commons and the Senate meet jointly at 3 p.m. Wednesday to prorogue the 1943 session.

Will Rome Become Bloody Battleground? It Is Up to Germans

Washington, Jan. 24 — (AP) — Will Rome become a bloody battleground? The answer is up to the Germans.

As roadways into Rome were reported today within range of the Allies' big artillery, it became possible to state that the attitude of the United States and the Allies is this:—

What happens in Rome will depend altogether upon the Nazis. If they get out, the Allies will go around. If the Germans make a stand in Rome — and the Vatican probably understands fully — the Allies will have to go into them there.

CONDITION UNCHANGED

Montreal, Jan. 24 —(CP)— Condition of Sen. Arthur Sauve, who entered hospital here last Friday, was reported today as "unchanged." The nature of his ailment was not revealed by Mr. Sauve's physician who said his patient was "seriously ill."

CHINESE TROOPS TAKE MINGRU LA IN NORTH BURMA

Strong Jap Counter-Attacks in Buthedaung Area Are Thrown Back

2 STEAMERS DAMAGED

New Delhi, Jan. 24—(CP)—Chinese troops have captured Mingru La in their drive toward Taipha Ga in the Hukawng valley of North Burma, an Allied southeast Asia headquarters communique said today.

The bulletin said that a strong Japanese position in the Taro area of the same front was also taken, despite reinforcements brought up by the enemy.

The Chinese forces have been engaged in clearing Japanese patrols from the new Lido road to China in their advance eastward across North Burma.

The communique also said that strong Japanese counter-attacks in the Buthedaung area of the Arakan front on the Burmese West Coast had been thrown back. The Allies have been expanding their toehold here in bitter hand-to-hand fighting in a drive aimed toward the Japanese-held port of Akyab.

R. A. F. and United States planes continued to blast the Japanese in various parts of Burma, the communique said.

A strong force of escorted U. S. heavy and medium bombers pounded Prome Saturday, the heavies attacking a hutted camp while the mediums concentrated on the railway yards. R. A. F. fighters damaged two steamers and more than 40 other river craft in sweeps along the Irrawaddy and waterways of the Mayu peninsula.

The raids were carried out without loss.

Nazis Recklessly Throw in Men

London, Jan. 24 — (AP)—Yugoslav Partisan headquarters announced today the Germans were recklessly throwing men and materials into a costly and bloody bid for Senj, a Croat coastal town 35 miles south of Fiume.

Marshal Josip Broz' (Tito's) broadcast communique said heavy losses were being inflicted upon the invader along an 18-mile front between Senj and Otocac.

The Hungarian news agency, in a broadcast heard by Reuters, quoted a Zagreb announcement that Senj already had been occupied by German and Croat troops and that mopping-up operations had been completed on Hvar Island farther down the coast.

The Yugoslav bulletin reported heavy fighting continues in western Bosnia while street fighting is raging at Tuzla in eastern Bosnia. Oction of a rail line by the Yugoslav tion of a hail line by the Yugoslav troops also were announced.

Hitler Has Failed To Destroy Allied Unity Says Pravda

London, Jan. 24 (CP) — The Russian newspaper Pravda, which published a Cairo-dated "rumor" a week ago about alleged British-German peace talks, said today Hitler had failed in "all his political diplomatic manoeuvres" to destroy Allied unity.

A Moscow broadcast recorded by the Soviet Monitor quoted Pravda as saying:

"The Moscow and Teheran conferences . . . are a splendid illustration of the bankruptcy of the Hitlerite calculations; they evidence the strengthening of a new unity between the countries of the anti-Hitlerite coalition."

Pravda's publication of the Cairo story prompted a quick and emphatic British Foreign Office denial.

Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, British ambassador to Russia, who has been in London only a week, will return to Moscow as soon as possible, it was reported last night. He has conferred with Prime Minister Churchill and the Foreign Secretary.

BERLIN MAKES CLAIM

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Berlin radio claimed in a Rome dispatch yesterday that Allied bombers had hit Castel Gandolfo, 17 miles south of Rome, the summer residence of Pope Pius XII, and caused "extensive damage in the town."

BRITISH COMMANDOS TRAIN FOR AMPHIBIOUS LANDINGS

British commandos in England have been training for just such amphibious landings as have just taken place in Italy, near Rome. Here an advance landing party undertakes the dangerous task of mine-detecting—some of the men are seen slowly making their way along the rugged beach ever on the alert for deathly traps left by the "enemy."

ALLIED ENGINEERS PUSH TOWARD ROME

The War Today— Growing Weakness of Axis Seen In Successful Allied Landings

(By DeWITT MacKENZIE)
(A. P. War Analyst)

Forecasting the outcome of a dangerous and delicate amphibious invasion, while it still is in its early stages, is like counting chickens before they're hatched, but we are observing moderation in saying that the Allied landing on the Italian coast below Rome has been going well — indeed much more smoothly than even the most optimistic could have expected.

Our side has been both smart and lucky. Our success in getting ashore with virtually no opposition Saturday is, of course, a tribute to the Allied commands in concealing the exact sector of the projected landing from the Germans. But it's more than that. It signifies a general weakening of Nazi resistance in the face of the growing United Nations' onslaught from all directions.

There's no way of concealing the preparations for an amphibious operation of this size from the enemy. The big fleet alone would give that away. The Germans knew the attack was coming but they didn't know where.

The significant fact is that as a normal measure of precaution they weren't prepared for an assault at such a strategic spot as was chosen. Undoubtedly they didn't have sufficient forces to safeguard all potential invasion points.

Ring of Disaster Closes in on Hitler

The ring of disaster is closing in on Hitler. He is being pushed to the limit to defend himself against the furious onslaught of the Red armies on the long Russo-German battle-front. The Balkans also are straining his resources, and he has to keep western Europe manned for the final reckoning which is hurtling down on him. He no longer is capable of throwing into the Italian fighting all the power he needs—or into the fighting anywhere else, for that matter.

That's not the whole story, though. The German defenders perhaps could have been more efficient had it not been for the Allied domination of the air over Italy and the superb work of the British and United States bombing fleets. Allied air and naval forces have so disrupted communications both north and south of Rome, which is the hub of all Italy's main railways, that the Nazis must be hard pushed to move troops and supplies.

Form Powerful New Police Force In Bulgaria

Berne, Jan. 24 (AP) — A powerful new police force, resembling Germany's Storm Troops and Elite Guard, will be formed in Bulgaria to suppress revolt, anti-Government demonstrations and sabotage, the Sofia radio has announced. It will be under direction of Interior Minister Dotsche Christovv, who thus will wield powers comparable to those of Heinrich Himmler in Germany.

(A German broadcast recorded by U.S. government monitors said Bulgarian regional prefects from all parts of the country had been summoned to Sofia for a conference today. The broadcast also said officials, of the ministry of public works and "some other ministries" had received "civivl mobilization orders.")

A Budapest dispatch said today the evacuation of bombed Sofia could now be considered complete after a period of great confusion. The dispatch estimated there were still thousands of dead in the ruins of the capital.

(A Budapest dispatch to the Swedish press said riots had occurred in devastate Sofia, requiring the issuance of special regulations by the interior ministry.

(A Sofia broadcast heard by U.S. government monitors said the 6 p.m. curfew had been extended indefinitely under police order.)

1,022 Births Registered in City During Past Year

As was the case at the Belleville General Hospital an all-time high in the number of births registered at the city hall was seen during 1943, it is announced from the city clerk's office. During the year there were 1,022 births registered in the city, 53 more than were registered in 1942 and 60 percent over 1940 when there were 634 visits from the stork registered. The boys won out during 1943, there being 529 male births as compared with 493 female.

Although last year saw a zenith in the number of births recorded, there has been a slight falling off in the number of marriages recorded in the city in the past two years. The peak year for Dan Cupid to get in his deadly work was in 1941 when 278 couples tripped blithely to the altar. Last year the number of marriages dropped off to 263, just five less than in 1942 when the count was 268. In the first full year of the war, 1940, the number of weddings recorded was 233.

The number of deaths recorded during the past year was 384. Male deaths totalled 240 and female 144.

Canada Life Reports Large Gain in New Business During 1943

In reporting a very satisfactory year of progress in 1943, S. C. McEvenue, general manager of the Canada Life Assurance Company, stated that more than 16,000 new assurance and annuity contracts were completed, and if group life and group pension policies were included, this would increase the number of lives involved by over 4,000. New life insurance in 1943, including revivals and increases, totalled $79,627,805, a substantial gain over 1942.

Assurances in force were increased to $852,603,814 in 1943. In addition, retirement income bonds with maturity benefits totalled $75,774,294 and Immediate and Vested Annuity contracts with reserves of $33,354,830 provided annual payments to annuitants of $3,733,722. Mr. McEvenue stated that the business in force figure represented "the largest net gain in thirteen years."

The Canada Life now has 230,582 life policies, 20,352 annuity contracts and 110,976 individual group insurance certificates in force; a total of 361,910 contracts. On the basis of four to a family, Mr. McEvenue pointed out, "over a million people are vitally concerned in the stability and management of this company."

In 1943 the Canada Life averaged $80,000 per working day in war bond investments; $70,000 per working day in payments to policyholders, annuitants and beneficiaries; totalling $150,000 per working day towards war financing and maintenance of public morale.

Mr. McEvenue also pointed out that "the rate of interest earned by the Canada Life in 1943 was 4.27 per cent., as compared with 4.25 per cent in 1938, although for practically all of this five year period, the major portion of the Company's available funds was invested in war loans at low rates of interest."

In 1943 as in the previous two years, the Canada Life's investment in government war bonds was very considerably greater than its entire renewal premium income.

As a result of improved mortality experience, a stabilized interest rate and decreased operational costs, the security behind Canada Life contracts has been still further strengthened.

EIGHT KILLED IN BUS

St. Louis, Jan. 24 (AP)—Eight persons were burned to death and 10 others injured, seven critically in the wreckage of a city bus, struck by a Wabash passenger train near here yesterday.

The bus broke in two and flames from the gasoline tank showered the wreckage which was strewn along the right-of-way before the train could be stopped.

Five of the victims were trapped in the burning wreckage, others with their clothing aflame were thrown clear.

None of the train passengers was injured.

WALLBRIDGE

Elders Re-elected At Annual Meeting Of Congregation

Wallbridge — The annual congregational meeting of Wallbridge appointment was held at the parsonage on Jan. 18th with a good representation present.

There was a short program consisting of community singing, instrumental music, vocal music and readings, after which the general business of the church was discussed.

Mr. John Chisholm, church treasurer, reported all bills paid and a balance on hand.

The W.A. report given by Mrs. Fred Phillips, gave the amount raised by that society as $237.79 and a balance on hand of over $40. The W.M.S. report given by Mrs. L. Ketcheson showed the society had held 12 monthly meetings, all well attended, and had sent $121.50 to Branch Treasurer. The S. S. report given by Mrs. W. Sine showed $100.89 had been raised with a balance on hand of $29.37.

Rev. Mr. Scott moved a hearty vote of thanks to the different organizations for the splendid reports which they gave. It was also decided that a letter of appreciation and thanks be sent to Col. W. G. Ketcheson for his gift of venetian blinds to the church. A motion was made tendering the appreciation of the congregation to the superintendent and teachers of the Sunday School for their faithful and efficient services.

The elders Mr. Nobes, Mr. Fred Phillips, Mr. Lawrence Ketcheson and Mr. Cecil Sine were reelected also the stewards, with the addition of Mr. Chas. Colley. Mr. Lawrence Ketcheson was reelected superintendent of S. S. with Mrs. Jas. Hinchliffe as assistant.

Mr. S. M. Nicolson conducted a contest. The ladies served lunch and all enjoyed a social half hour. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Rev. and Mrs. Scott for the use of their home.

REGAIN SOME GROUND

London, Jan. 24 — (CP) — The German-controlled Vichy radio today said fiercely counter-attacking German forces had driven back Allied troops on the western end of the Italian front between Castelforte and Minturno and also had regained some ground east of Montecroce.

Minturno is about two miles north of the Garigliano river and a short distance from its mouth. Castelforte is further inland and about 12 miles below Cassino. Montecroce is still further to the east.

Searchers immediately began to comb the surounding district after Flt. Sgt. Gwynne of Cornwall, Ont., reached a residence at Musquodoboit, about five miles from Sheet Harbor, and told of the crash. He was uninjured.

AUSSIES DRAW NEARER BOGADJIM IN NEW GUINEA

Send Japs Fleeing in Panic From Faria River Headquarters

ACROSS GOOD ROAD

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Jan. 24 — (AP) — Australian troops are drawing nearer Bogadjim, south door to Japan's big base of Madang, New Guinea, climaxing a year-old drive up inland New Guinea from Buna.

The Australian ground units which once battled Nazi Field Marshal Rommel in Africa sent the Japanese fleeing in panic from the Faria River headquarters—less than 25 miles south of Bogadjim — an Allied communique said today.

From Bogadjim, the best-surfaced highway in the whole region offers a quick trip north to Madang, only 15 airplane miles distant.

Meantime a great flight of Liberators pulverized much of Borpop airdrome which helps guard the foe's big shipping base at Rabaul, New Britain.

Kara airdrome near Kahili on southern Bougainville, in the Solomons, another possible hindrance to complete neutralization of Rabaul, also was hit — by more than 60 torpedo and divebombers, escorted by more than 70 fighters.

Neither raid drew air opposition and all planes returned.

SHIP BERRIES EAST

Vancouver, Jan. 24 (CP)—Fraser Valley small fruit growers said Saturday 500 tons of Fraser Valley berries will be shipped to eastern Canada jam factories within a few days because there is no market here for them. They comprise strawberries, raspberries and loganberries pulped for jam.

Control of Sale Is Recommended

Toronto, Jan. 22 — (CP)—Control of the sale of lotions was recommended by a coroner's jury last night inquiring into the death of Albert McQuarrie, who was found to have succumbed to meningococcus meningitis in hospital while under arrest on a charge of intoxication.

Arrested Dec. 4, McQuarrie died four days later and hospital records showed he had been drinking a lilac lotion.

Dr. I. H. Erb, who performed the autopsy, said death was due to meningitis but the alcohol in the lotion may have made McQuarrie more susceptible to the disease.

ALLIES DEEPEN NETTUNO-ANZIO BEACHHEAD

Nazis Fight Frantically To Avoid Encirclement

Swiss Report Says Forces Threatening Ostia, Port of Rome

No "Formidable" German Opposition Yet Encountered in 12-Mile Drive

NAZIS MOVE NORTH

Algiers, Jan. 25 — (AP) — Allied troops have driven 12 miles inland from their Nettuno-Anzio beachhead and patrols are pushing deeper, with no "formidable" German opposition yet encountered, Allied headquarters announced today.

The famous Appian Way to Rome and the main coastal rail line are about 12 miles inland from the landing area, but it was not specifically stated the invasion forces had reached them. It is probable they are at least under Allied domination.

The Geneva newspaper La Suisse quoted the Fascist press as announcing that Allied forces now have occupied the entire 30-mile coastal stretch from Nettuno to the mouth of the Tiber, and are threatening Ostia, the port of Rome, three miles up the river.

German planes made their strongest attacks yesterday seeking to halt sea-borne reinforcements, and battled over the invasion bridgehead, but lost nine planes.

The Allied spearheads met "hastily-organized battle groups" of Germans apparently moved northward from the 5th Army front around Cassino.

Launch Counter-Attacks

The Nazis still were launching fierce counter-attacks on that main front, but these blows have decreased somewhat in number and intensity in the last 24 hours, indicating that enemy forces were being pulled back to meet the invasion flanking threat.

The beachhead has been lengthened, headquarters said, without disclosing the area it covers. Reinforcements and supplies continued to pour in with little enemy interference, and the communique said the town of Anzio, bordering Nettuno to the west, had been taken.

(The United Nations radio at Algiers said the troops striking inland were within almost a mile of the double-track Rome-Naples electric rail line. The broadcast was recorded by the United States Office of War Information.)

Fierce fighting raged on the American sector along the Rapido river near Cassino with heavy fire by all kinds of weapons.

Recross Stream

U. S. patrols recrossed the stream to probe enemy defences, but no counter-offensive was launched by the Americans to keep a force on the western bank. The Germans, who on Sunday hurled the Americans back across the river, made no attempts to cross to the eastern bank.

French troops in the northernmost area beat back several more enemy counter-attacks, and a hot battle swirled for the Mount Croce area.

British troops kept their bridgehead across the Garigliano River on the left flank of the 5th Army's line despite new Nazi counter-blows, and made some gains in the Damiano Bridge area. The Germans were reported counter-attacking recklessly in the Minturno and Castelforte areas.

A British veteran of the First Great War who went through the thick of the fighting in and around Minturno said:—

"The German dead there exceeded the dead I saw at any time during the fiercest fighting on the Somme."

The German battle groups rushing up against the invasion forces to the northwest are formations that can be drawn rapidly from any division. They represent all branches and are like miniature defence divisions with their own commanders. Presumably such groups have been drawn from several of the divisions facing the 5th Army.

May Bring Northern Forces In

There also were indications the Germans may bring some of their forces from northern Italy to the Rome area.

Headquarters disclosed that Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Commander of Allied forces in Italy, had personally directed the landing operations at Nettuno, and then landed himself to supervise the early operations ashore.

Morocco radio, quoting unverified German reports, said Littorio had been captured. This apparently referred to the town 12 miles due east of Nettuno.

The German communique claimed Allied attacks had been repulsed in southern Italy, and that three Allied destroyers and one merchantman had been sunk off Anzio, with three other vessels probably destroyed and 11 transports damaged.

Losses 50 Per Cent

It now is known that the 90th Panzer Grenadiers were thrown into the Garigliano sector to support the German 94th Infantry Division, which took the brunt of the original British assault across the river and then charged in counter-blows. The 94th is estimated to have lost at least 50 per cent of its combat strength in these battles.

Patrols were active on the 8th Army front and there was considerable mortar fire in the Adriatic coastal area held by Canadians. Numerous explosions were heard behind the Nazi lines, believed to be blastings to build new fortifications.

Weather curtailed some of the Allies' air operations in Italy yesterday, so heavy bombers struck into the Balkans, pounding the railway yards at Vrattsa near the Bulgarian capital of Sofia, and hitting Skoplje in Yugoslavia.

London, Jan. 25—(AP)—Berlin radio declared today that Velletri, on the Appian Way 22 miles southeast of Rome, had been destroyed, and indicated the Allies had captured the town.

"American troops are finding debris and ashes there after their own bombs transformed the little town into a heap of ruins," the broadcast said.

Velletri is about 18 miles north of Nettuno.

China May Be 'Knocked Out' If Aid Is Late

Hornel, N. Y., Jan. 25 —(AP)— China may be "knocked out" unless she gets aid before long, Dewitt Mackenzie, Associated Press Foreign News Analyst, said last night.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Hornell Board of Trade he said: "There is grave danger in delaying the grand offensive against Japan.

"When I was in Chungking a year ago, I was shocked to find how little China had with which to withstand so great an enemy. The Japs are in possession of the great industrial areas, and the Chinese are without resources to wage a real offensive.

"China has been hanging on by her teeth, and unless she gets aid before long, she may be knocked out."

Mackenzie admitted, however, that "there cannot be any all-out drive by the United States in the Far East until the Hitlerian issue has been decided, thereby releasing warships, planes, cargo vessels and vast quantities of needed material."

D.S.O. Posthumously Awarded Air Hero

London, Jan. 25 — (CP) — Wing Cmdr. Lance Wade of Tucson, Ariz., who shot down 25 enemy planes before he was killed recently in a flying accident in southern Italy, today was posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Order.

The citation said "Wade's Great skill, courage and devotion to duty contributed to the high efficiency attained by his squadron."

Previously Wade had been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and two Bars. He was a member of the R.A.F.

Luftwaffe Still Packs Wallop, But Whipped in Mediterranean

By HAL V. BOYLE
Associated Press War Correspondent

An Air Base in Italy, Jan. 25 —(AP) — Maj.-Gen. John K. Cannon, whose tactical Mediterranean air force flew 1,400 sorties in one day to disrupt German communications to the new Allied front south of Rome, today said "The Hun always reacts according to form and he must and will attack our new beachhead."

The general—formerly one of the United States' best-known fighter-pilots — added:—

"Our planes already have knocked out more than 100 enemy motor transport vehicles and are ready to attack the Hun any time he moves."

In his first general press conference since assuming his larger duties, he told reporters:—

"The Luftwaffe still packs a wallop but it is definitely whipped in this area. The German is now avoiding combat against our fighters in the Mediterranean area to conserve his resources. But when we get into Germany, he is going to put up a hell of a fight.

"The Germans haven't increased their air force in Italy materially since last August. We want to wipe the Luftwaffe out of the skies, but the Hun knows his only chance of survival is to keep us out of Germany. That is why he is avoiding fighter combat and trying to stop our bombers.

"Despite the fact the Germans have been concentrating for months in production of more fighters, they have been unable to build up their fighter strength materially."

A measure of Allied superiority was indicated by the fact that while the R.A.F. and American Air Force flew 1,400 sorties daily over the Rome beachhead, enemy sorties dropped from 80 on the first day to 17 the next.

Gen. Cannon said German fighter pilot quality has deteriorated and young Nazi fliers show a lack of experience. He cautioned, however, that German fighters still must be reckoned with.

STRONG FORCES AVAILABLE TO HIT GERMANS HARD

On Arielli R. Front Canadians Already Are Nearly 30 Miles North of Rome

DEVELOPMENTS WAIT

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

London, Jan. 25 — (CP Cable) — The Nettuno landing south of Rome by 5th Army troops may be followed by a new attack by the British 8th Army on the Adriatic coast to increase pressure on the German divisions holding the extreme southern sectors of the enemy's Italian line.

A giant two-way pincer movement from the Nettuno bridgehead and the Ortona-Artelli river sector on the Adriatic, where Canadians are still in the front with other divisions of the 8th Army, would put the Germans in the Cassino area and in the central mountains "on the spot."

Strong forces of both the 5th and 8th Armies facing the enemy in the interior of Italy are available to hit the Germans hard in any enemy withdrawal forced by these possible attacks on the flanks.

Few Days will Tell

Future developments will depend on the success of the Nettuno bridgehead troops within the next few days, particularly in meeting the German counter-attack which seems inevitable.

On the Arielli river front Canadians are already nearly 30 miles north of Rome and if the Germans are forced to withdraw troops from this sector to meet a new threat to Rome itself on the west coast, 8th Army forces on the Adriatic may find any advance on Pescara and the nearby town of Chieti much less stubbornly contested than previously.

These two towns have been the long-time goal of the 8th Army and once they capture these places they will be on the main lateral road to Rome and could move down it with the ultimate aim of linking up with the Nettuno force and other troops swarming up from the south.

The Germans will not pull out of their present southern lines which form a great bulge from Nettuno to the Arielli river through Cassino and Castel Del Eangro unless the landing south of Rome has completely confused them and caught large forces in a pocket. But there is a possibility that it has, and the next few weeks will tell the story.

CANADIAN-BORN JAP SENTENCED

Hamilton, Jan. 25—(CP)—Yoshito Oki, 19, Canadian-born Japanese from Vancouver, today was sentenced to six months in jail when he was convicted of breach of National Selective Service regulations.

Last week he pleaded guilty to two charges of forgery and uttering and was sentenced to 6 months definite and 12 months indefinite in reformatory on each count. The sentences are to run concurrently with the one imposed today.

Ontario Health Minister Requests Federal Action On Post-War Rehabilitation

Toronto, Jan. 25—(CP)—Dr. R. P. Vivian, Ontario Health Minister, today linked criticism of health insurance proposals he said the federal government is advancing with an appeal for federal action on post war rehabilitation and a warning that venereal disease has become the "greatest single public health problem" in Ontario.

In its health insurance proposals, the government appeared to be seeking an infringement of provincial rights.

"The operation of such a plan . . . would require an amendment to the British North American act so as to transfer to the federal authority certain rights now vested in the provinces," Dr. Vivian said in an address to the Progressive Conservative Business Men's Club of Toronto.

If such legislation is advanced—Dr. Vivian said he is informed it will be introduced at the session of parliament which opens Thursday—it would seem desirable to hold a Dominion-provincial conference of responsible government representatives.

"I have not heard of any such conference being called," he said, adding that he wonders if the federal government would seek to implement such a measure "over the heads of the provinces, or . . . attempt to mislead the people by introducing a measure that it could not implement?"

A Provincial Issue

The Ontario Government believed that a public health program should be financed and administered by the province. A hospitalization plan for Ontario, some details of which have been made public previously, was nearing completion by which it was hoped to provide "adequate general hospital facilities, suitably distributed throughout the province."

In discussing rehabilitation, he said welfare assistance for war workers, many drawn from outside provinces, would be seriously complicated after the war by residence regulations.

"I would urge that the Dominion government now clarify its program for the disbandment of these workers: Workers brought from other areas and to some extent from other provinces, frequently at federal expense, and who may need assistance other than that which might be provided by the questionable benefit of so-called unemployment insurance. The federal government must make its provisions clear and be prepared to undertake its full duty in this regard."

Details to Be Announced

Re-establishment of war veterans in civil life was of even greater concern. Convalescent and restraining centres properly staffed and suitably situated, were necessary at once. "We must demand immediate implementation of this duty of the federal government," said Dr. Vivian.

The Minister completed his reference to venereal diseases by saying that full details of steps taken to meet the situation will be released "in the next day or two." Meanwhile, he disclosed that every year of the war has been an increase in the number of syphilis cases reported to the Ontario government.

In 1943 there had been an increase in venereal infections of more than 1,000 over 1942, bringing the 1943 total to more than 13,000. About 7,000 of these were syphilis cases and more than half of these had been acquired since the war started.

"The most serious fact is that among these 7,000 people were almost 500 who showed evidence of serious damage to the brain and nervous system."

Appalling Situation

In Sweden in 1938, 14 persons for every 100,000 population had syphilis. In Norway between 1933 and 1939 the percentage inflicted was 24 of every 100,000 compared with Ontario's 1943 total of 175 with syphilis for every 100,000 population.

"We in Ontario . . . must be prepared to do our utmost in this appalling situation."

Dr. Vivian said a survey of the Welfare Department of Ontario, started last Aug. 25, showed that $45,587,221 was spent by the department in an average year. Full details of the survey would be published shortly.

BULGARIA NEARLY READY FOR REVOLT STATE REPORTS

Army Honeycombed With Discontent and Undependable

NEW POLICE FORCE

By WADE WERNER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Lisbon, Jan. 25 —(AP)—German dispatches announcing creation of a Bulgarian state police, embracing infantry, cavalry and motorized units equipped to combat "terrorists," were viewed here today as an admission that unrest in Bulgaria is too widespread to be held in check by German garrisons primarily occupied with the threat of an Allied invasion.

The fact that the new police, although organized along military lines, will be under the Minister of the Interior, seems to corroborate previous reports that the Bulgarian army is honeycombed with discontent and has become undependable.

It checks with information recently brought back from Sofia by a neutral traveller who said that neither civilians nor soldiers in Bulgaria are showing any willingness to participate in any German defence of the Balkans.

This course said not only the Bulgarians, but also many Germans in Bulgaria, are gloomily resigned to an early end to the war.

The traveller said it was particularly significant that the Sofia government has been unable to persuade Bulgarians to establish homes in Greek and Yugoslav territories given to Bulgaria by Germany. He added that extremely few are willing to invest money and effort in areas from which they firmly expect to be expelled after the war.

All this, of course, is contrary to German reports of Bulgarian morale. It is significant, however, that German newspapers, which have been notoriously reluctant to disclose what goes on inside Germany itself, have been frankly reporting the hardships and dislocation of daily life in Bulgaria as a result of Allied bombings.

21 NAZI PLANES SHOT DOWN IN AERIAL BATTLES

Strong Formations Hammer French Coast From Dunkirk and Boulogne

11 PLANES LOST

London, Jan. 25 — (CP)—Thundering out across the English Channel for the third successive day, strong formations of Allied bombers hammered the French coast from Dunkirk to Boulogne today as fine flying weather succeeded a windy and turbulent night.

Observers on the English coast reported large groups of both bombers and fighters launched the new assaults shortly after dawn, and soon the raiders were shuttling back and forth over the Channel.

Twenty-one German planes were shot down in yesterday's aerial battles which developed when escorted United States heavy bombers flew through bad weather to attack unspecified targets in western Germany, a communique said last night.

Nineteen of the Nazi ships were shot down by fighters and the others were bagged by the bombers.

The communique said two heavy bombers, one fighter-bomber and 10 fighters were missing from the day's operations, which included Allied sweeps against the French invasion coast, the 23rd foray against targets in this region in 25 days. Both British and American planes participated in these sweeps.

DIES OF SHOCK

London, Ont., Jan. 25 (CP)—Albert Allen, 61-year-old Canadian Pacific Railway conductor of Toronto, died today in hospital here from shock, three hours after he had his left leg amputated when he slipped from his train platform and fell under the wheels.

Conductor Allen was on the platform of the last coach of the Chicago-Montreal Limited, arriving in London early when he slipped on a piece of ice and fell to the ground. He was unable to pull himself from the tracks and the last set of wheels passed over his leg.

U. S. ANNOUNCES NON-RECOGNITION OF BOLIVIA GOV'T

Other Countries Join With United States Aiming at Argentine-Axis Split

AMBASSADOR RECALLED

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Jan. 25 —(AP)— Further joint action by the American republics to uproot and destroy any pro-Axis movements underway in South America was foreshadowed today by refusal of the United States and seven other Western Hemisphere nations to recognize the revolutionary rulers of Bolivia.

The immediate goal of this diplomatic manoeuvring is believed to be a break between Germany and Argentina, now the only American nation maintaining relations with Germany. Talk of Axis intrigue has been linked with the Bolivian revolution.

That Argentine reaction would not be long in forthcoming became apparent when Foreign Minister Alberto Gilbert announced at Buenos Aires he would have "important news" momentarily.

His statement was made after conferring with U. S. Ambassador Norman Armour, British Ambassador Sir David Victor Kelly and the German Charge d'Affaires, Erich Otto Meynen.

The United States non-recognition policy was announced by the State Department late yesterday. The statement linked the Bolivian regime with "subversive groups hostile to the Allied cause."

No reference was made to economic sanctions or other measures and the intention of the United States and co-operating governments apparently was to await reaction in Bolivia and Argentina before doing anything else.

Along with issuance of the announcement a State Department official disclosed that Ambassador Pierre de L. Boal was being ordered home.

The United States was the fourth nation to act, being preceded by Uruguay, Cuba and Venezuela, and followed by Guatemala, the Dominican Republic and Peru.

Of the 19 American governments which exchanged information on the Bolivian revolution of last Dec. 20, by which Major Gualberto Villaroel became president, none is expected to decide upon recognition.

Such action is expected to imply a strong warning to Argentina. Axis activities in that country were tacitly recognized by the Buenos Aires government itself last week when it announced that an "ample investigation" had been undertaken of the alleged existence of a spy ring in the country, and that several persons have already been detained.

DR. HOSSAIN'S VIEW

Washington, Jan. 25—(AP) —Dr. Syud Hossain, chairman of the National Committee for India's freedom, said yesterday relations between British and Indians had reached their lowest point since the mutiny of 1857 and asserted he would ask President Roosevelt to interven.

REFUSE TO OPERATE TAXIS

Kingston, Jan. 25. (CP) —When local taximen refused to operate cabs to the Canadian National Railway Station here Sunday night nearly fifty arriving passengers were marooned two miles from Kingston proper until a Kingston City Coach Lines bus was pressed into special service. Taximen are protesting a new tariff schedule enforced by the Prices Board.

Thirty Million Cords Annual Need For Lumber, Pulp, Paper and Fuel

Montreal, Jan. 25 —(CP)— Were manpower available, Canadian forests would have to supply no less than 30,000,000 cords of forest products annually to meet the demands for lumber, pulp and paper and fuel requirements, Vernon E. Johnston, Woodlands manager of the Canadian International Paper Company, today told the 36th annual meeting of the Canadian Society of Foresters.

"This is a challenge to management," he said, "especially to foresters, to see that the forest areas continue to produce this amount of wood, and more if possible."

Last night, R. P. Jellett, former President of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said that if "ever the CCF got into power the Coldwells, Joliffes and Scotts would not last long for the Winches, the Leavens and the Tim Bucks would soon replace them. Evidence of how this was done was provided in Russia and Germany."

Reds Use Armored Trains to Drive Germans South

250,000 Nazis May Be Cut Off Between Leningrad and the Volkhov

CAPTURE PUSHKIN

(By EDDY GILMORE)
(A.P. Staff Writer)

Moscow, Jan. 25 (AP) — With armored trains, Soviet armies of the Leningrad front pushed the Germans down the Leningrad-Vitebsk railway today as the Nazis fought frantically to avoid great encirclements from the sector south of captured Pushkin (Tsarkoye Selo) to positions in the area of Shimsk at the western corner of Lake Ilmen.

The Russians' big monsters of the rails are pouring heavy salvoes into the retreating Nazis, Red Star, the army newspaper, said.

It appeared the Germans were faced with one of their worst catastrophies of the Russian campaign, with large forces in divisional strength desperately fighting off outflanking movements, which threatened to cut off an estimated 250,000 troops between Leningrad and the Volkhov.

The Germans hold only two usable north-south railways, the Leningrad -Vitebsk and the Leningrad-Pskov lines. The Russians are within five miles of the first line and the second is ten miles farther west.

Red Star reported the big Pushnin airport is in Soviet hands.

Capture by Night

A front line dispatch said the Red army is capturing many villages by night, then outflanking and attacking frontally the bigger objectives in daylight with ski-troops armed with Tommyguns leading the way but encountering hard going over muddy roads. There are terrific battles along the roads.

The total of captured 305-millimetre guns has risen to 150, which means the bulk of the German big guns which shelled Leningrad for two years now are in Russian hands.

Stormovik bombers were continuing to go great damage to the retreating columns, Red Star reported, adding that the Leningrad offensive has been probably the Stormovik's most striking victory of the war.

Documents Seized

Dispatches indicated increasing disorganization and panic among German forces. Numerous staff documents have been seized and sleek, powerful cars of high officers are lying overturned in the mud.

The government newspaper Izvestia declared that the Germans leaving Pushkin burned Catherine's Palace, built by Rastrelli, after removing all its priceless furniture to Germany. The Alexander Palace also was razed.

Red Star said that back in Leningrad long columns of captives are marching down Frontanka Street. There already is a large collection of 305-millimetre guns in the Alexandrisky Monument Square.

ITALIAN PATRIOTS CUT LINE TEMPORARILY

New York, Jan. 25 — (AP) — Italian patriots have at least temporarily cut the Rome-Cassino railroad, a Nazi supply line, near the scene of the new Allied landings south of Rome, the Bari radio said last night. The broadcast, reported by the Federal Communications Commission, said anti-Nazi Patriots had intensified their activities since the new Allied beachheads were effected.

Russian Crooner Comes Home

By EDDY GILMORE
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Moscow, Jan. 25. (AP)—Alexander Vertinsky, 53, who was crooning in Russia before Bing Crosby's voice changed, returned to his people Monday night in one of the war's great stories of love or country.

Before the revolution, Vertinsky's soft voice and his sentimental melodies had the hep-cats of the Steppes in a dither. His concerts were sellouts. Women swooned when he crooned.

Then came the revolution, and Vertinsky travelled to London, to Paris, to the United States—even to Hollywood—and lastly to Shanghai. But his records found their way back to the Soviet Union and for years they have been played here. Mothers have told their daughters about him. His simple, sad songs are known by thousands.

So it was big word-of-mouth news recently when, after 24 years, he applied for a Soviet passport and asked to return to mother Russia with his young and pretty wife, a Russian who had lived in Shanghai.

His audience last night included the composer Dmitri Shostakovich, generals, poets, many men of letters, ballerinas and artists. He sang his favorite songs—"Two Guitars", "Without Women", "Little Ballerina"—and a few new songs of war.

The only reason he didn't stampede them into the aisles was because there were no aisles. The place was too packed.

THEODORE CLAVIR SENTENCED ON CHARGE

Toronto, Jan. 25—(CP)—Theodore (Ted) Clavir, of Toronto, today was sentenced to one year definite and one month indefinite on a conviction of conspiring to corrupt members of the armed forces by giving money for the purpose of evading military service.

This conviction was registered several weeks ago. Yesterday Clavir with his cousin, Murray, was convicted on another charge concerning a similar offence. For yesterday's conviction, the Clavirs will be sentenced tomorrow.

Montague Norman's Illness is Serious

London, Jan. 25—(AP)—A bulletin issued by the Bank of England said today that Montagu Norman, 72, governor of the bank since 1920, is suffering from pneumococcal septemia, a form of poisoning of the blood stream following pneumonia.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

BELLEVILLE POLICE RECOVER BATTERY

Belleville police recovered a battery, that had been stolen from an automobile on a used car lot over the weekend. The theft had been reported to police Monday morning by the management of the Belleville Metal and Waste Company, Church Street. Information stated that a battery had been removed from a motor car on the company lot. Sergt. C. Arnott and Constable D. Carruthers investigated the matter and subsequently questioned two juvenile lads with the result the battery was recovered. It had been sold to another junk dealer. The matter is still under the supervision of the police and may result in juvenile court proceedings.

20 INCHES OF ICE AT OAK LAKE

Twenty inches of snow-free ice so clear that the bottom of the lake may be seen in places is being cut at Oak Lake by farmers and other jobbers storing their next summer's supply. Almost entirely free of snow ice of any description, the ice this year at this point is the finest seen in years and is the right thickness for easy handling and for packing in ice houses.

DISTRICT SOLDIERS REPORTED WOUNDED

All members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, three Belleville District soldiers are reported as wounded in the Canadian Army casualty list released for publication on January 24. Corporal Russell Aldan Forbes, son of Mrs. Etta Forbes, R.R. No. 4, Trenton, is listed as dangerously wounded, while Pte. Marshal Sopha, son of Mrs. Cynthia Sopha of Marmora, was listed as wounded, also Sgt. James Sandison Thomson, of Madoc. Sgt. Thomson's wife resides at Madoc.

SAW HIS BROTHER TAKEN PRISONER

Seen captured by the Germans last October during heavy fighting in Italy, Pte. H. Long of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment has written to his parents, from a Nazi prison camp informing them of his well-being, it has been learned. It was the first definite notification that he was actually a prisoner-of-war since he was seen captured. His brother, Pte. Edmund Long, manning a machine gun on the battle front was one of the last to see him.

In his letter to his parents, Pte. Long indicated he had already received prisoner-of-war parcels through the Red Cross and until time of writing had been treated well. Pte. Edmund Long had immediately contacted his parents informing them that his brother had been captured, but until the letter was received no further word of his whereabouts had been learned.

PINE ST. SCHOOL CONTRIBUTED $90.24

In the Red Cross annual statement presented to the meeting on Friday night, the amount as contributed by Queen Victoria School was given as $17.78 and this should have read $90.24. During the year the position of School Nurse was changed due to Miss Earshman joining the nursing services and the new incumbent of the office was not in receipt of the report of Miss Earshman. The report shows her work from the time of taking over until the report was given. The report also stated that the school only contributed 11 ditty bags. This should have read 20.

CHILDREN PRESENT PIN MONEY TO KINSMEN CLUB FOR MILK FUND

After religiously saving their nickels and dimes over a period of months when other children used their pin money for candy and the occasional movie, Ab. and Larry Farrar, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Farrar, Front Street, at Kinsmen meeting Monday evening pridefully presented the club's "Milk for Britain Fund" with the sum of $5.25. The money was formally accepted by President Matt. Currie from six-year-old Larry who during the presentation read a brief address. Mayor Harry Rollins added his personal expression of thanks to the two young lads for their unselfish gesture in assisting to provide milk for unfortunate British children.

REDUCE THEFT CHARGE TO JOY-RIDING

Reduced to charges of joy-riding, from that of automobile theft, saw AC2, John Neufeld, Mountain View R.C.A.F. base, and James Fowler, 16, of Toronto, enter pleas of guilty to the lesser charge in police court here today before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd. The lads were given suspended sentence upon the payment of $17.95 costs each after Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., made it known the car taken had been recovered in good condition.

Since taking the vehicle R.C.A.F. authorities discovered Fowler was but 16 years of age and he appeared in police court here today in civilian clothes. Fl. Bowles, of the Mountain View station, appeared as observing officer and told the court both lads had clean records in the Air Force and Neufeld was returned to his unit after the costs were paid. Crown Attorney Donnan withdrew the more serious car theft charge and tendered the lesser count of joy riding to which both lads pleaded guilty. Fowler returned to Toronto with his mother, who paid the assessed costs.

"The boys were on furlough and merely wanted a ride to Toronto. However, I do not recommend the stealing of private motor cars for this purpose in the future," warned Mr. Donnan.

POLICE COURT

Donald E. Ellis, 18, of Foxboro, who gave himself up to the police at Trenton, last week, after confessing he had committed forgery in Belleville, appeared in police court here today. Ellis pleaded guilty to obtaining $18.32 from Harold Revell of this city, by means of a worthless cheque.

Ellis, who appeared in the court wearing an army uniform, had recently been discharged from the army owing to the fact he was under age, he told the court. A charge of unlawfully wearing the King's uniform was later withdrawn at the request of Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C. The accused lad agreed to make restitution to Mr. Revell and will report at the Armouries here in three days to re-enlist in the army, as he has recently reached his 18th birthday.

Parties Bound Over.

Bernard Hyderman, 211 Coleman Street, appeared charged with assaulting Mrs. Gean Lindeman, a neighbor woman. After hearing a portion of the evidence, Mr. Donnan suggested both parties be bound over to keep the peace, a suggestion which E. E. Follwell, solicitor for the defendant, agreed to. His Worship assessed Hyderman costs amounting to $5.50, however.

Ray Woods, Belleville, appeared charged with assaulting Clifford Summers, also of this city, and pleaded not guilty. Deputy Chief Harman asked for a week's enlargement and Woods was allowed bail on his own recognizance.

A local girl was committed to the Mercer Reformatory following a medical examination by the Medical Health Officer.

No Criminal Cases Listed For Supreme Court

Justice Barlow, Presiding for First Time Here, Presented With White Gloves

TWO ACTIONS SETTLED

For the second time in as many sessions of Supreme Court to be held in Belleville the traditional white gloves were presented to the presiding judge here Monday indicating the absence of criminal cases listed for trial. The conventional gloves were presented to His Lordship, Mr. Justice Barlow at the opening of the Spring Assizes.

"This county is to be congratulated upon its splendid record in the marked absence of criminal offences of late. This is especially so when we find other counties througout the province not so blessed in these times", remarked His Lordship after being welcomed to Belleville for the first time in his judicial capacity by Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., while Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn made the presentation of the gloves.

Grand Jury Cancelled.

Prior to the court and owing to the absence of criminal cases the Grand Jury had previously been cancelled by Sheriff O'Flynn. At the opening of the Assizes yesterday two damage actions were listed for trial, but both matters were amicably settled prior to the opening of the proceedings, which subsequently resulted in His Lordship dismissing the petit jury. "You of the petit jury render an important service towards the administration of justice in Canada, but as all cases listed for jury trial have been settled you may now return to your labors", instructed Mr. Justice Barlow.

Given $1,300 Damages.

The case of the estate of James Hart versus James Whalen, Belleville, was settled with the plaintiff receiving a total of $1,300, including costs. The action arose out of a fatal motor accident that occurred on August 2, 1942, near here.. R. B. MCulloch, local barrister, appeared on behalf of the Hart estate, while the defendant was represented by Charles A. Payne, K.C.

The other damage action to be settled also arose out of a motor accident, which occurred on Front Street, in this city on the night of Nov. 12, 1942, when Alfred Draycott, Belleville, sustained severe limb injuries, when struck by a motor car driven by Donald Sine Sine of Foxboro. Settlement of $2,000, plus fixed costs of $300, was announced by the court in favor of Mr. Draycott. Mr. Payne appeared for the plaintiff, while B. C. Donnan, K.C., and Mr. Sims of Kitchener, and representing an insurance company, appeared for the defendants.

Four Divorce Actions.

In the non-jury court four divorce actions were listed for trial and one motion. In the latter case S. G. Robertson, local barrister appearing for the plaintiff, sought and was granted a decree absolute in the Cole vs Cole divorce action, that had previously seen a decree nisi. The other cases are proceeding.

Obituary

MISS AGNES GOVAN
(Campbellford.)

Miss Agnes Govan age 79 years, who lived with her brother, Mr. Andrew Govan, Campbellford, died on Monday, Jan. 24, in the Belleville General Hospital, where she was a patient since Jan. 19.

EDWARD (TED) BUNNETT
(Formerly of Belleville.)

Edward (Ted) Bunnett, formerly of Belleville, died at his home 13 Barrie, Toronto, on Monday evening, Jan. 24. He was in failing health for some time.

The late Mr. Bunnett, who was in his 77th year, was born in Thurlow Township and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Bunnett. The greater part of his life was passed here and for a considerable time he was employed with the International Harvester Company. About twenty years ago he went to make his home in Toronto. Mr. Bunnett was well known and much esteemed by many friends and acquaintances in Belleville and they will learn with much regret of his death. In religion he was a member of the United Church.

Surviving him are his wife; two sons, Kenneth of Belleville, and Garnet of Toronto, who is now serving in Canada with the armed forces; one daughter, Mrs. Cecil Ormond, at home in Toronto; four brothers, George and James of Thurlow Township, and David and Ernest, both of Belleville; one sister, Miss Laura Bunnett, Thurlow Township. A son, Carlos, died eleven years ago.

The funeral will take place in Toronto.

Poles in Montreal Send Resolution

Montreal, Jan. 25 — (CP) — Polish residents here today sent copies of a resolution protesting against "all attempts to destroy the territorial integrity of the Polish state and consequently its sovereignty and independence" to President Roosevelt, Prime MiMnister Churchill and Prime Minister King.

The resolution, adopted at a mass meeting held last night, also condemned "the insults made to the only legal Polish government now in London and which represents Poles all over the world."

Decorated Flyers Tell Rotary Some of Their Thrills While On Operational Duty Overseas

FO. McDonald, D.F.C., and PO. McIlouhan, D.F.M., Heard by Members

INTRODUCED BY O. C.

Back in Canada on instructional duty after doing their tour of operational flights overseas, two members of the Royal Canadian Air Force, stationed at Mountain View, related to members of the Belleville Rotary Club on Monday the experiences which won for them the D.F.C. and the D.F.M. One flyer, Flying Officer McDonald, D.F.C., was with the Coastal Command, and the other, Pilot Officer McIlouhan, D.F.M., of Carleton Place, was a rear gunner with the Bomber Command and had 22 operational flights to his credit before being returned to Canada.

The two flyers with their commanding officer, Group Captain R. C. Ripley and station adjutant Flight Lieut. J. R. Mallory and Flight Lieut. Roy Wilson, also of Mountain View, were guests of the Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon meeting.

Terming the Coastal Command a monotonous but necessary job, F/O. McDonald told his listeners that his outfit had mostly been on the lookout for enemy shipping off the Norwegian coast or in the Bay of Biscay. Seldom did members of the Bomber Command get into action, due principally to the fact their work was far from enemy bases. He admitted, however, that if it were not for the Bomber Command Allied shipping losses would be considerably higher.

Made Short Work of Ship.

Of the operation which won for him the D.F.C., Flying Officer McDonald stated his unit had been ordered to attack an enemy merchantman off the coast of Norway and early in the morning six fighter escorts and six medium bombers had taken off to intercept.

"We came in at low level just as the craft was entering the harbor," he said, "and we sure made short work of that ship." His plane was unlucky to get into the crossfire of two enemy flak ships and received a direct hit by cannon shell. "Those are nasty things to tie up with," he admited.

Despite the cannon shell hit the plane was able to reach the English coast with neither the pilot or observer being injured. Both members of the crew were awarded the D.F.C. Flying Officer McDonald had also done considerable convoying of Allied ships on the northern route to Russia.

Praise Hospitality.

Too high praise for the hospitality shown by English and Scotch people to Canadian flyers could not be paid by the speaker. "Rest assured," he said, Canadian flyers in England are being treated well. They have good food and the hospitality is splendid. A Canadian flyer can spend his entire leave with an English family and never cost him a cent."

Washed out during his training as a pilot, Pilot Officer McIlouhan chose air gunnery as "the quickest way of getting overseas," and that he made a success of his self-chosen branch of aircrew is evident of his many experiences over the continent.

Stationed with an R.A.F. squadron P/O. McIlouhan was over Germany in a Whitley bomber three days later as a rear gunner. Later his unit was transferred to Halifaxes and with this type plane went first to Cologne as a Pathfinder, the planes which lead the way for the following bombers. Tail gunners are the pet aversion of German pilots, according to the Mountain View stationed flyer who during many of his trips over the continent sent at least six Nazi machines earthward in flaming crash dives, while others went down but were unconfirmed.

Got Nazi on Second Run.

"On that first trip to Cologne a Fock Wulfe got on our tail and I missed at six hundred yards," related the flyer. "He went straight underneath and on the second run I waited until he was only three hundred yards off. Then I really gave it to him. The pilot was killed and the plane disintegrated."

"Bomber pilots don't fool when they go in on an enemy target," he said. "Despite the fact they may be coned by a battery of searchlights and with flak flying on all sides they make direct hits with their bomb loads. And boy those 4,000 bombs really do tremendous damage." Heavy Allied bombers are really doing the job. Reports in Canadian newspapers cannot give a true picture of the damage accomplished.

Trip Long Remembered.

That first trip to Cologne with a Pathfinder plane will long be remembered by P/O. McIlouhan. "Our plane was coned by searchlights and the ack-ack fire was going right past us but our pilot weaved around and bore in on the target getting a direct hit on the marshalling yards," he said. "I sweat in my turret at 30 below zero but the pilot persisted in going back to 'have a look around.'" Three Fock Wolfe German fighter planes went down before McIlouhan's flaming guns on that particular trip to Cologne, two over the target and another at the coast on the trip home. He also shot down a German Messerschmitt 109 seeing it go into the sea but could get no confirmation. On the trip home he could see a glow in the sky 200 miles away. "It was just lucky we did not hit the Cologne cathedral," he said.

On a trip to Bremen he was "knocked cold" by the explosion of an anti-aircraft shell and his pilot thinking he had been killed, went down to 20-30 feet above the ground for the trip home. Coming to en route he poured 7,000 rounds of ammunition into German searchlights and ack-ack batteries which were flitting past the tail of his ship at something like 300 miles per hour. Nazi gunners blazed away at the ship with everything they had but failed to damage the plane —"that is, any more than it was already hit," he said. The next night his crew again went back to Bremen and an M-109 went down in flames before his blazing guns.

Nazis Resort to Tricks.

Germans are smart and resort to all sorts of tricks and camouflage to put Allied bombers off their mark, according to P/O. McIlouhan. They build dummy buildings and fire them to draw bombers off their mark, "but our fellows are just as smart," he said.

On the entire 22 operational trips the "kite" of which McIlouhan was a crew member failed to reach the home base only once, and that was because they ran out of gas. The crew bailed out.

The two flyers were introduced by Group Captain Ripley who asked his listeners to regard them as typical of the lads which air training schools across Canada are turning out. "I only ask when you hear these two boys to do a little thinking afterwards," he said. "It is you who have sent them over and who will be sending more like them overseas, and it is you who will have to do something to get them back into civilian life again after the war." Club appreciation to the two flyers was expressed by Rev. Dr. Bert Howard.

In the absence of President Jack Deacon, Rotarian "Mack" McLean acted as master of ceremonies for the luncheon hour. Guests were welcomed by "Mack" Robertson with Leo Riggs and "Sandy" Burrows acting in their customary roles.

To Meet Trains.

M. P. Duff, Convener of the war services committee reported having interviewed Mayor Rollins in regard to the sponsorship of the proposed committee for meeting trains on which overseas boys would be returning. The committee will be headed by the Mayor, Mr. Duff reported. The Mayor in turn will contact service clubs in rotation for delegates to meet incoming trains.

J. Owen Herity read a communication from Rotary Governor Harman Rice which indicated the Belleville club would be expected to assume the responsibility of planning the luncheon program for one day of the district Rotary, convention to be held in Toronto on April 27-28. The matter of arranging the program will be left in Mr. Herity's hands, it was decided.

2 Airmen Arrested In Possession Of Stolen Car

Although necessity is no excuse for crime, sometimes dire need overshadows better sense and here's a tale that demonstrates just how easy it is to get into trouble.

Yesterday afternoon Brockville police reported the theft of a 1940 model Buick sedan bearing Ontario licence plate number 67-L-2 and displaying a McGill University crest on the windshield. Police throughout eastern Ontario were notified with the result Constable W. E. Smith and A. A. Kellog of Provincial Police headquarters staff here, proceeded easterly along Highway No. 2 late Monday afternoon and as they approached the C.P.R. Gibson crossing they saw a black Buick sedan. Yes, it carried Ontario licence plate number 67-L-2 and before the occupants realized what was taking place the police cruiser had driven along side and ordered the stolen vehicle to be brought to a halt.

The occupants were two airmen from No. 1 Manning Pool of the R.C.A.F. stationed at Toronto and gave their names as AC2 A. Emery and AC2. R. Guillinette and were en route to rejoin their unit following a weekend furlough in Montreal. They told police they had got back as far as Brockville when their cash ran out, so in order to make as much haste as possible and not be listed as absent without leave the pair took the car at Brockville just for the purpose of returning to barracks.

After being held at the Belleville police station the airmen were later given into the custody of Brockville police and returned to that town Now they will be absent without leave and to make matters worse they'll be facing car theft charges.

Maj. D. McManus Dies in Toronto At Age of 73 Yrs.

Served as Youth in Imperial Army and First Great War With C. E. F. in France

ADJT. IN ARGYLLS

Major D. T. McManus, V.D., J.P., for a number of years a resident of Belleville where he was adjutant of the Argyll Light Infantry after the First Great War, and of late years a resident of Toronto, died in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, on Monday, January 24th., at the age of 73 years.

To many old friends in Belleville the death of Major McManus will bring much regret. During his residence here he was wellknown and highly popular in military, business and social circles.

He was born in Dublin, Ireland, and early in life was attracted to military activities and when a youth he joined the British army and served in Egypt, India and Malta. In 1910 he came to Canada to assume a position on the staff of the Royal Military College. When the First Great War broke out he joined the C.E.F. and served overseas with the 21st Battalion.

He was connected with the 39th Battalion, C.E.F., as second adjutant.

He was later adjutant of the 6th Canadian Reserve Battalion in England.

After the war he came to Belleville as adjutant of the Argyll Light Infantry on its reorganization which rank he held for a number of years.

He was a member of the Masonic Order and of Moira Chapter, No. 7 Royal Arch Masonry, of this city.

Leaving Belleville he went to Toronto where he became prominent in many activities, civic, military and religious. Becoming connected with the Civil Service of Canada he was elected president of the Ontario Civil Service Association which post he occupied for five years.

He was assistant commissioner for the Boy Scouts, Toronto District, a Royal Arch Mason, a member of the Imperial Officers' Club, the Canadian Military Institute, the Business Men's Branch, Canadian Legion, and St. Leonard's Anglican Church and had been a lay representative to the Synod. He was appointed a justice of the peace for the County of York and the City of Toronto in 1931. Major McManus was well known for his rifle shooting and as a cricketer.

Surviving are his widow, Mary Margaret McManus, of 540 Russell Hill Rd.; a daughter, Mrs. W. Herman Browne; a son, Major Daniel W. McManus, with headquarters staff, Canadian Army, Toronto, and five sisters, Mrs. J. L. Wilbur Mrs. J. C. Cameron and Mrs. Frank Wilson all of St. Catharines, Ont., Mrs. J. H. Green of Guelph and Mrs. Edward Ross of Maplewood, N.J.

The funeral of the late Major McManus will take place in Toronto on Wednesday morning with interment in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

All-Time Record Blood Donations Made Wk. Jan. 15

"An all-time record for blood donations in Canada was established during the week ending January 15th, with 18,490 donations, according to Dr. John T. Phair, chairman of the Society's National Blood Donor Committee. Dr. Phair also reported that records were established in Quebec with a weekly total of 2,286, in Manitoba with 751, in Alberta with 489 and Ontario with 12,399.

'While this news is gratifying, I would like to impress upon the people of Canada that our new objective of 20,000 donors per week is only a minimum and would be barely sufficient to provide blood serum for our wounded when Canadian troops go into action on the second front,' Dr. Phair said.

A big effort is being made to exceed the national objective of 20,000 per week by the first of April, the Chairman said."

Good Response To Paper Salvage Pleases Officials

Officials of the city salvage collection committee were enthusiastic today following the splendid response of the Belleville public in saving paper to be collected during the last two collections in the city. In the collection this week on the West Hill a total of 7,900 pounds of salvage was collected, while one week ago on the East Hill the collection netted 9,100 pounds. Slightly over 17,000 pounds were collected on the last two days.

As the result of the national campaign for the collection of waste paper, and frequent newspaper reminders for residents to conserve all paper possible, a vast percentage of the past two collections have been much needed paper. Paper is needed urgently for the manufacture of containers for shipments of war supplies and for many other purposes.

"We were certainly pleased with the response of the Belleville public during the last two collections", stated Alderman Clarence Clapp, chairman of the salvage committee, "there has been a marked increase in collection and we only trust that the good work can be kept up".

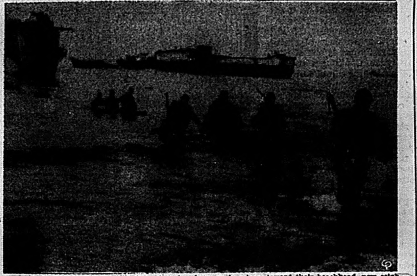
Allied Forces Storm Ashore In Italy Below Rome In Leap-Frog Invasion Move

Here British troops of the Allied Fifth Army make their way towards shore close to Rome, in their Bren-gun-carriers.



United States troops of the Fifth Army invasion force wade ashore toward their beachhead, now established up the west coast of Italy.

This British Tommy, his rifle over his shoulder, stands guard over the first German prisoners taken in the west coast landings, Italy.

Black-faced commandos of the British army share tea and biscuits with a German prisoner they brought back from a raid they staged on German lines in Italy. Probably one of the rehearsal raids with which commandos prepared for the big "end run" they made around the German right wing in Italy.

Air chiefs (left to right), Major-General Nathan F. Twinning, Lieut.-General Ira C. Eaker, Chief of Allied Air Operations in the Mediterranean, and Major-General John K. Cannon map air operations to cover the brilliant out-flanking landing thrust around the Nazis' right flank, on west coast of Italy. Their air-tight umbrella of planes carried the brilliant manoeuvre through to success.

Rear-Admiral Frank J. Lowry, U.S.N., who commanded the U. S. amphibious forces that landed at Nattuna, Italy, and other points, in the daring attack which placed Allied forces close to Rome.

Rear-Admiral Thomas Hope Troubridge, of the British Royal Navy, who commanded the British troops of the Allied invasion which, in a daring move landed far behind Nazi lines, little more than 30 miles below Rome.

Kinsmen Spend Nearly $13,000 On Club Activities During Past Year

Belleville Kinsmen in their role as service club members came close to being "big business" during 1943 it was shown at their regular fortnightly dinner meeting at the Quinte Hotel Monday evening when financial statements for the past year were handed out by Kin. Harry Knott, treasurer of the club. For all phases of club activity, including general account, Fag Fund and their Milk for Britain Fund, total disbursements were nearly $13,000, it was revealed.

The club's war service account assumed the greatest proportions, with receipts from this line of endeavor totalling $7,342 and disbursements, including $7,000, to the Milk for Britain Fund, totalling $7,568. The statement showed receipts for the Fag Fund account to be $4,516, including bank balance from the previous year, while expenditures had totalled $3,023. Balance on hand at the year end in the Fag Fund account was $1,492.

The club's general account was also seen to be in a healthy condition financially, showing disbursements of $1,460, as compared with receipts of $1,484. The balance sheet showed the club's assets at $1,062 with no liabilities.

Principal Turner Speaker

Guest speaker for the evening was W. S. Turner, principal of Belleville Collegiate, who gave an informative address on "Education," outlining the advantages of provincial control of educational matters as compared with federal control which he, in his younger teaching years, had favored.

The speaker spoke briefly of the revamped public school courses which were brought in several years ago due principally to popular demand of parents who had been reading works on psychology School curriculum and discipline was outdated, they had said.

Admitting that some of the changes in the public and secondary school courses were "good," Mr. Turner nevertheless maintained fundamentals of sound education had been omitted, with the result that there was a definite lack of continuity. The dropping of grammar from public school courses and algebra from early secondary school classes had been a mistake according to Mr. Turner. It had also been a mistake to dispense with entrance examinations, and to a large extent examinations in secondary school.

Favors Examinations

"I am strongly in favor of school examinations, at least until some satisfactory substitute is found," he said.

Equality of educational opportunities throughout the province was also urged by Mr. Turner who indicated the solution to the problem was to increase the units of education. To illustrate he referred to a theoretical case where a pupil attending Belleville collegiate might have a varied course open to him, while at a secondary school in the northern part of the county would have to take the course offered.

"The time is coming when we must change the school courses to suit the pupil, rather than to change the student to suit the course."

Setting up a theoretical school area with a school of from 10-12 teachers, thus eliminating three or four present schools, would be the answer, it was contended. Pupils from the outlying districts could be transported to and from the school by bus lines, or if distance were prohibitive, dormitories could be constructed.

Salaries Too Low

Under present conditions school teaching was not an attractive profession in the eyes of the younger people, it was stated. The authorities demand that a teacher must have sound scholarship, they are expected to be healthy and have mature judgment, regardless of their own immaturity, and they must have integrity of character. These things, together with the low salary medium, keeps talented young people from teaching. "Not one percent of the talented and desirable young people enter the teaching profession," he stated, "and until salary inequalities are adjusted and demands upon teacher's time are lessened, we will not get them. They will go into other professions where talent is recognized earlier. It is time the public was awakened to some of the obstacles facing the teaching profession."

Many Leave School Too Early

Present legislation which permits children leaving school at 16 years of age was responsible in some measure for increasing juvenile delinquency. They leave school at an early age, obtain jobs, and with money at their disposal get into bad company. Control of juveniles' working hours enabling them to be brought back t oschool for a few brought back to school for a few pressionable years was advocated.

"It would cost approximately 200 millions of dollars to institute the educational changes recommended," concluded Mr. Turner, "but in view of the money being raised in astronomical figures today there should be no trouble raising the money to invest in our finest asset—our children"

Dr. Earl MacDonald gave a brief report on the work of the Kinsmen Eye Clinic, indicating that approxiately 35 children had been treated during the year at a cost of around $300. Many of these children had been fitted with glasses. A guest at the meeting was Miss Watt, public school nurse. The guest speaker was introduced by Kin Ted Follwell and club appreciation expressed by Jack Bean.

Kaitak Airfield In Burma Bombed

Chungking, Jan. 25—(AP)— American medium bombers, some piloted by Chinese, raided the Kaitak airfield at Hong Kong Sunday without loss, Air headquarters in China announced today.

(A Japanese broadcast yesterday said Hong Kong had been raided by nine heavy bombers escorted by 15 fighters and three planes had been shot down.)

The committee disclosed that the bombers and their escort encountered heavy opposition, but all planes returned safely after shooting down one zero.

The communique also said mediums of the Chinese-American wing had attacked a convoy off the South China coast, probably sinking one 5,600-ton freighter.

Senator Van Nuys Dies at Vienna, VA.

Washington, Jan. 25—(AP)—Senator Frederick Van Nuys, 69-year-old chairman of the United States judiciary committee, died early today at his home near Vienna, Va., after a brief illness.

He had served in the Senate since March 4, 1933, taking an active part in legislative affairs and leading democratic opposition to some new deal measures.

Last fall the Indianan started a sweeping investigation of the liquor industry, introducing a resolution calling for a probe into the shortage of whiskey and alleged monopoly of supply.

In addition to the judiciary chairmanships, Van Nuys also was a member of the Senate committee on foreign relations, Indian affairs and executive expenditures.

He was the Senate sponsor for a controversial anti-lynching bill which still is pending before the judiciary committee.

His death reduced the Democratic-held seats in the Senate to 57, with the Republicans holding 37 and the Progressive Party 1.

BIG FIRE AT LAKEFIELD

Lakefield, Ont., Jan. 25—(CP)—Fire early today gutted the hardware store of Frank L. Erskine and the plumbing shop of Walter Madill here. Loss is estimated at $13,800.

During the fire Reeve Gordon Scriver and Deputy Chief of the Fire Department was overcome by smoke and gas.

Social Security Primarily Means Work Dr. Whitton Tells Local Group

The Women's Canadian Club, of Belleville, extended a welcome to Dr. Charlotte Whitton, C.B.E., M.A. public speaker of considerable renown, who is at present on an extensive lecture tour which is expected to take her to the West Coast, appearing before local chapters of the Women's Canadian Club. Dr. Whitton was introduced to her audience of members and friends by Mrs. W. H. Finkle, President of the local club. The Bridge St. United Church Sunday School room was packed to capacity to hear Dr. Whitton.

Mrs. Finkle presented the speaker in glowing terms of praise and recognition of a brilliant co-member of the Women's Canadian Club. She said she was glad to be able to invite and welcome the friends of the members to whom she said, "Our guest speaker really requires no introduction. For the past two years we have been most fortunate in having many excellent speakers address our club but, if I may say so, our guest tonight is outstanding in respect to talent. She has travelled extensively throughout Europe, and has addressed continental audiences in practically every major European city, as well as English clubs. "Dr. Whitton," said Mrs. Finkle, "is a Canadian, a native of Ontario and it is with extra feelings of warmth that we welcome her here. She is a product of our own schools and is known personally to a large number present tonight. A graduate of Queen's University, Dr. Whitton entered the university with no less than six scholarships and graduated with a Master of Arts degree in a very short time after entering. She has represented Canada on the Geneva peace commission, in England and in many other countries of the world. She has had the Order of Commander of the British Empire conferred upon her by His Majesty the King."

Acknowledges Introduction

Dr. Whitton, following her introduction, took her place upon the stage, where she remained alone before her audience throughout her talk. She acknowledged the presentation briefly and modestly and immediately launched into her topic, "What Do We Mean by Social Security?"

"The first requisite to wise progress from today's tragedies to tomorrow's hopes is to face the facts, to realize that never in the world's history has there really been global war of the terrible extent and cost in human suffering and destruction of the present war", said Dr. Whitton in her opening remarks. "The accumulated wealth, much of the culture and inheritance of civilization, have been destroyed; the present laid under tribute and the future mortgaged in our desperate drive to save our freedom. Under these circumstances is it real honesty, is it patriotism to hold out to our people the promise that, suddenly, today and in the immediate tomorrow, life is going to be easier, richer, simpler because the world now lies broken in this loss and destruction?" Dr. Whitton queried her audience.

"Is it not rather the part of courage, truth and faith to face the facts, to realize, that for the long future we shall have purchased greater freedom for the soul and spirit and mind and living of man than any of us yet can dream, but that we of today, we particularly of this generation, that in our adult life have known two wars, have yet a third treading to go in the wine-press of the wrath of God? That life has yet one terrible testing for us as we face a changing universe?"

Canadians Want Work.

"Let us face that possibility unafraid. Let us never take our eyes off the kind of world we trust we shall attain, but let us see steadily the world we live in, must live in, in these next few years and how we Canadians can move towards that greater day, yet meet present needs.

"What do Canadians want? What are those needs? What do the Canadian people want? First of all they want work—gainful occupation—the way the relief rolls melted and cases have moved off Mothers' Allowances are their own proof of the willingness of the great number of Canadians to provide for themselves of their own effort and resources".

Dr. Whitton went on to illustrate her statements with remarks on the vastness of Canada, which remain uninhabitable and, consequently, not potentially rich in productive wealth per person as the United States, that there is a limit to where we can drive to keep our national income at a reasonable rate without slipping backward into the low levels of the "Thirties."

Reciprocity Needed

She pointed out that, "another factor in assessing where we are at is that our resources and energy are so great that we are ordinarily the second highest traders in the world, but cannot consume what we produce, that unless we enlarge our consumption demand we cannot dispose of the goods we can produce beyond our own needs. If Canada wants to raise her own standards of living at home, they must be raised abroad. In other words, it is her opinion that the principle of redistribution of wealth among the people within a state, applies with equal force among the states of the world. Reciprocity is the key-note of trading, if markets for Canadian goods are to be found, Canada must accept the goods of other countries.

Canada must also accept the responsibility of the general redistribution of population, Dr. Whitton declared, that Canada, still possessing part of the greatest unoccupied territory habitable by white man, absorption of world population must be considered seriously by the Canadians if they wish to retain selective preferences in their own immigration. "All this means the fundamental security of Canadians lies far out beyond their own boundaries and that we can never again shirk our responsibilities on a world front unless we are prepared to accept the consequences and shrink to a fifth or sixth-rate parasitic power" Dr. Whitton said. Her continuing remarks anent the internal security of the nation, "against that background only can we turn to assuring any measure of personal security within our own boundaries," serves almost as a warning.

National Welfare Minimum

"What does the Canadian mean by a National Welfare Minimum at home?" asked Dr. Whitton. "It is doubtful if he means anything measured out in so much currency per week, varying with urban and rural rates and the size of his family. He means rates, does he not, the opportunity of gainful occupation, with such return in fees for his skill, salaries for his services, wages for his work or prices for his goods as to afford decent living standards?"

The titular subject of Dr. Whitton's address, explained by the speaker, developed under her masterful approach and delivery which she declared, is a social device which seeks to ascertain the possible occurrence of certain risks over a given group and then, by a system of co-operative saving and investment, to assure funds for tiding over the need if the circumstances insured against arise and within the terms of the contract, both as to conditions and payments. Social insurance contemplates the state as the administrator and partner with the citizen in any such scheme.

"True Social Insurance," said Dr. Whitton, "will be seen to have certain very definite limitations. There must be reasonably good risk and there must be something to insure. Moreover, if it is to be a sound contract for all concerned, insurance payments or benefits have to bear a definite relationship to the amount of money paid in and, therefore, will be limited both in amount paid out and the length of time for which these payments can be made. Most social insurance in the world has been tied to a payroll, that is, covers only people working for wages. Right here you come up against a terrific challenge in Canada. About one in three of all Canadians do not work for wages; they are owner-workers, owning their own farms, and their small shops, carrying on their own compact little businesses, working, 300,000 of them, on their family farms or in their family business, often just as partners for their living with no cash return.

"There is urgent and immediate need to mobilize the provinces, municipalities and voluntary social agencies into an effective A.R.P. —All Ready for Peace—service to be ready for the possible terrific recoil of the cessation of hostilities in the world. We need diagnostic services; we need extended clinical, hospital, dental and ophthalmic facilities; we need medical and nursing care in the home and convalescent and post-discharge care.

"Having thus buttressed the fabric of our social protection with Social Assistance on the one hand and Social Utilities on the other, non-predictable, uninsurable need is met by the first and actual developmental and protective services by the second," said Dr. Whitton as she drew her address to a conclusion. "Then the way is cleared for facing insurance for what it is—pooled, co-operative saving of income that actually has been earned to provide cash payments within the contract when the insured conditions arise. This would then make possible a form of insurance that in the long run of the years is likely to prove the type most suitable for Canada—Income Insurance."

Mother Hears That Son Tried to Escape From Axis Captors

Guelph, Jan. 25 (CP) — Mrs. Joseph Loree of Guelph, told today how she had received from an unnamed source a story of an attempt by her airman son to escape while being moved from a prison camp in Italy to one in Germany.

The son, FO. Joseph Loree of the R.C.A.F., was captured in Libya in 1942 and for a time was at an Italian hospital for treatment of wounds and at a prison camp at Casserta, Italy.

She said that after the Allied invasion of Sicily the prisoners were being transferred to Germany and that her son and a companion leaped from the train in northern Italy, It was travelling at 50 to 60 miles an hour. The companion was wounded but Loree travelled 150 miles in five days in an effort to reach Switzerland before an Italian woman informed the Germans that he was hiding in the woodshed of an Italian peasant.

After his recapture Loree was taken to a camp in Germany near the Polish border where he met two former schoolmates — PO. James Golds and FO. Jack Armstrong.

Personnel Changes In Pacific Likely

London, Jan. 25 (CP) — Changes in the personnel of the staff of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Allied commander in the southwest Pacific theatre, "to admit of wider control" were foreseen here today by Sir Neville Pearson, member of the British newspaper proprietors delegation recently returned from a tour of Australia.

"Australia is very glad to have her forces under the supreme command of Gen. MacArthur, and the whole setup is working very smoothly," Sir Neville told a press conference. "But the fact remains that the main G.H.Q. staff is almost entirely American and it is possible that there might be changes in that direction that would admit of wider control that would please the Australians."

Jet-Plane Smooth, Simple to Operate Gives Feeling Security

Buffalo, N.Y., Jan. 25 (AP) — The new jet-propelled fighter plane is characterized by pilots as being smooth, simple to operate and giving a feeling of security aloft, Lawrence D. Bell, president of Bell Aircraft Corporation, reported yesterday with United States war department approval.

Bell Aircraft is producing the twin-engine, propelerless plane, development of which was disclosed January 6 by the R.A.F. and United States army air forces. A joint announcement said the craft is capable of flying at extreme speeds and high altitudes.

He said the plane was "simpler to operate than a primary trainer."

Released on $5,000 Bail, Faces Narcotic Charges

Windsor, Jan. 25 (CP)—Dr. William Thomas Veale, 45, practicing physician of Harrow in court today was released on $5,000 property bail after his arrest in Windsor by Royal Canadian Mounted Police on two charges of violating the Opium and Narcotics Drug Act. He is to appear in city police court Jan. 31.

Both charges against the Harrow doctor have to do with his allegedly selling morphine tablets other than in prescriptions.

CANADIANS REALLY PICKING THEM

London, Ont., Jan. 25. (CP)—Canadian men in the forces marrying overseas are taking as wives "a high type of English girl, the kind we want in this country", Maj. Walter T. Steven, recently returned chaplain of the Royal Canadian Artillery, said at Talbot Street Church Sunday night.

Vital Statistics

It is an accepted fact that in wartime the birthrate rises and in Belleville since the beginning of the present struggle the number of births has climbed year by year. The peak to date was reached in the year just closed with 1,022 births. Some time ago it was indicated that 1,006 births had taken place at the city hospital in the year. This meant that only 16 of the births did not take place at the general hospital. This is in accord with the tendency today as contrasted with the custom in days past when many births took place in the home.

How many of these 1,022 births are children of permanent residents of Belleville is not known. Of course the parents of a good number of these children are residents in the city or district only for the duration of the war.

The excess of births over deaths is 678. But all the deaths were not those of Belleville residents either. However it is safe to assume that the natural population has increased considerably, though many hundreds of young men and a considerable number of young women are away from home here serving in the armed forces.

It is noted that the marriage total shows a slight decline. That is a tendency that is reported in some other places. The marriages reached the peak in 1941 with 278 marriages as contrasted with 223 for 1940, 268 for 1942 and 263 for 1943. The small drop last year seems in harmony with reports in other parts of the province, but probably is not significant.

Robert Burns

Scotsmen the world over are celebrating the one hundred and eighty-fifth anniversary of the birth of their greatest poet and one of the world's greatest, Robert Burns, who is so truly Scot in his ideals, his outlook on life and in his all-embracing humanity. Scotland still has in him the most famous of spokesmen in kindness, in love of common humanity, and all the rich qualities of mind and spirit.

Burns had a flaming faith in the brotherhood of man, in human destiny, and in the nobility of life however humble or poor. His love of his fellowmen was the cardinal fact of his short life. To this he owes his rich emotions and his passionate lyric utterance for justice and sympathy. Burns was so much the more poet because he was in essential things so much the man. The hypocrite was the one class for whom he reserved the vials of his wrath and his burning language scorched those who roused his ire by their lack of love, by their false pretence and by their inhumanity.

Burns sang the song of youth and lass, of man and woman, of the noble and distressed, of honesty, honor and truth in man, of the beauty and simplicity of nature and of the wild life of the fields and the woodlands. His heart's broad sympathies were able to unite in words of deepest music the mysteries of life. He uses the song of birds with color of flowers to enrich human life. So complete a man was he by love of humanity and love of the outer world of nature that he has given the most poignant expression to human emotions in the setting of nature, in the language of the songs of the birds, in the color and movements of nature and in the flowers of the field. His spirit could rise to the loftiest expression of patriotism in "Scots Wha Hae Wi'-Wallace Bled," in which can be heard the clang of battle axe on shield and in which he speaks with seraphic fire of freedom.

But wide as his range of poetry, the predominance of his songs shows where his heart is. In these lovely lyrics one can obtain a picture of what is worth while in humanity,—love, work, kindness, sympathy, mirth, humor, faith, enjoyment of friendship, of man and of acquaintance with the sounds, sights and life of nature. Here he sings in matchless poetry, and here is his appeal to Scots and others. In Burns' lyrics man can see a picture of this lovely world, inhabited by men and women, boys and girls in happy accord. And as truly as this world of humanity existed for Burns, it also exists for great myriads of people for whom Burns in expressing his own emotions also expressed the ideals of the human race. That is why the very human Burns so appeals to people of all ages and of all temperaments.

Salvage Paper

Need for paper salvage is most urgent. Paper is one of the products which have a very large part to play in the war economy. It is used for so many purposes in war where it is even more important than in peace. In peace times there is plenty of it but in wartime what with so many shipments of emergency rations, blood plasma, medical supplies, food, shells and an endless number of other uses requiring cartons, paper is one of the things which is scarce. Containers are required for all these things and so there should be a flow of waste and salvage paper to the mills to manufacture them.

When one considers the amount of paper that goes into every home every day, there can be realized not only the large amount of paper which becomes waste as far as the householders are concerned but also that it is a pity if any should be destroyed for it can serve the war effort as well as any other of the essential commodities.

The salvaging of paper should be a job that does not let up at all from day to day. The need remains even after one has given once, twice or many times all the paper he can at the moment possibly salvage. Those who have given will realize that it is essential that the salvaging of paper be maintained without any interruption.

The service that individuals can do in preserving paper and giving it to the salvage authorities is something that entails little or no effort.

The Mythmaker As a Myth

(Chicago Daily News)

Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, the gauleiter of Moscow who never even got there, has retired from active political life to become director of the Central Museum of the Nazi Party. The author of "The Myth of the Twentieth Century" became one himself in 1941, when Hitler nominated him to govern Russia.

The location of the Central Museum of the Nazi Party has not been disclosed, but that is not important. Most any old bughouse would do.

Scarcity of onions this winter may have the aftermath next spring of more onion patches in more victory gardens as well as more of other sorts of vegetables. If the onion scarcity does this it will serve a good cause, and put more home-grown vegetables on the table and keep more money in the pocket or bank account.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
(Copyright, 1944, Edgar A. Guest)

WHY?

Why should the best words that brighten our speech
To the children be difficult always to teach?
And why without effort should youngsters acquire
The epithets evil of neighbor or sire?
Yet never a parent but what has been stirred
By a child's repetition of speech overheard.

If the garbage can slips from the scavenger's grip
And some evil expression escapes from his lip;
When the child, within hearing, drops saucer or cup,
His folks will be shocked by the words he's picked up,
And they'll say to each other: "Good gracious, my dear;
Whenever, wherever such things did he hear?

This fact I have wished right about could be turned,
That what's good, not what's bad, could be easily learned.
But the way of all children when grown-ups are near
Is to pick up the worst of the language they hear.
And they pick up that emphasis, too, with the vice
Which they never quite manage with speech that is nice.

Yet here is a truth often misunderstood:
Not easily mortals were meant to be good.
The traits men admire are not lightly attained.
Skill, wisdom and honor by practice are gained.
'Tis only the bad that's acquired from the start.
To live to life's best is the difficult art.

Germans Occupy Croat Coastal Town of Senj

London, Jan. 26 — (CP) — German troops have occupied the Croat coastal town of Senj, 30 miles southeast of Fiume, after fierce fighting in which Yugoslav Partisans forced the invaders to pay heavily in men and equipment, Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today.

Fall of Senj followed a furious battle over an 18-mile-long front between the coast and Otocac.

Tito's communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav Radio and recorded by The Associated Press, reported heavy fighting continuing in the Doboj-Tuzla sector of Eastern Bosnia, with fighting raging in the streets of Tuzla. Earlier Yugoslav reports said the Partisans had captured the town of Gracanica and destroyed the Doboj-Tuzla railway line.

Action was also reported from Montenegro, where Partisans were battling a mixed force of Germans and Chetniks near the town of Danelovgrad.

Letter To The Editor

Mr. Churchill and Moses

The Editor,
Ontario Intellicencer.

Considerable interest has been shown recently in a book of essays entitled "Thoughts and Adventures" by the Right Hon. Winston Churchill, published in 1932, and for several years on the shelves of the Corby Public Library. In times of national stress, Great Britain has always turned to God for special guidance, and to Holy Writ for comfort; it is therefore with satisfaction that we read in this essay on Moses, included in the above volume, Mr. Churchill's fundamental attitude toward the Bible, as indicated in the following quotations;

'We reject with scorn all those learned and laboured myths that Moses was but a legendary figure upon whom the priesthood and the people hung their essential social, moral and religious ordinances. We believe that the most scientific view, the most up-to-date and rationalistic conception, will find its fullest satisfaction in taking the Bible story literally, and in identifying one of the greatest of human beings with the most decisive leap forward ever discernible in the human story. We remain unmoved by the tomes of Professor Gradgrind and Dr. Dryasdust. We may be sure that all these things happened just as they are set out according to Holy Writ. We may believe that they happened to people not so very different from ourselves, and that the impressions those people received were faithfully recorded and have been transmitted across the centuries with far more accuracy than many of the telegraphed accounts we read of goings on of today. In the words of a forgotten work of Mr. Gladstone, we rest with assurance upon "the impregnable rock of Holy Scripture."

'Let the men of science and learning expand their knowledge and probe with their researches every detail of the records which have been preserved to us from these dim ages. All they will do is to fortify the grand simplicity and essential accuracy of the recorded truths which have lighted so far the pilgrimage of man.'

Yours very truly,
W. A. Watson.

New Device Used to Improve Marksmanship

Winnipeg, Jan. 25 — (CP) — A new training device to improve the marksmanship of Canadian soldiers is in use today at army basic training centres.

Known as the Swift Training Rifle, it looks like a rifle, even acts like one, but has no barrel, no magazine, and fires no bullets. And, it has a range of less than an inch.

Public Relations Office, Military District 10, Headquarters, here said that training officers are enthusiastic about the new "weapon."

The rifle by means of an ingenious arrangement of springs and sharp pointed pins, has done away with most guess work in early rifle instruction.

Built of wood, the Swift has the heft and feel of a genuine rifle. Pressure on the trigger releases a small, two-pronged rig, which darts out of the "muzzle," perforating a tiny, scale-model paper target fixed less than an inch from the nose of the rifle.

This perforation tells the tale. The upper prong punches a hole where the bullet would normally hit, while the lower prong, striking at exactly the same time, shows whether the weapon is being canted to left or right, whether elevation and trigger pressure are right or wrong.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

Was it the beauty of the "human face divine" that prompted the development of photography? Who knows! At any rate, method's fixing the fleeting image of the camera obscura were proved efficacious in 1839. During that year, Talbot published his process for obtaining permanent prints and camera images and Daguerre perfected "daguerrotypes" of exquisite delicacy and minute detail. Canadians—our forefathers and foremothers—flocked to have their pictures taken by this latter, and favorite process. It soon became the fashion to send gift photographs at Christmas time, birthdays and anniversaries. The weak point of the daguerrotype, which soon made it a lost or forgotten art, was that it could not be duplicated or multiplied. Each exposure yielded a picture complete in itself, but only one, a positive.

What a great day it was for Canadians when for the first time they read a newspaper printed upon a machine driven by steam power! The really successful machine press came into being just as the circulation of papers was demanding much greater rapidity of production. It occurred during the second decade of the 19th century, when there were newspapers in Canada only at Montreal and Quebec City. "The Gazette" and "Courant" were published in Montreal; the "Gazette," "Mercury" and "Canadien" in Quebec. The Montreal "Gazette" was founded by the celebrated Benjamin Franklin.

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

If Gov. Thomas E. Dewey is elected President of the United States at the next general election he will be the youngest man ever to be inaugurated.

He was born March 24, 1902, and will be 42 years, nine months and 26 days of age on January 20, 1945, the date when the man chosen President in the next election will take the oath of office.

Theodore Roosevelt, the youngest man to become President so far, was 42 years, ten months and 17 days of age when he stepped from the vice presidency into the presidency after the death of William McKinley on September 14, 1901.

But it took a constitutional amendment to give Gov. Dewey the prospect of being the youngest man to become President.

If the Lame-Duck Amendment had not been adopted, the next inauguration date would be March 4, 1945, when Gov. Dewey will be 42 years, 11 months and ten days of age, or 23 days older than Theodore Roosevelt was when he was sworn in.

Gov. Dewey is remotely related to Admiral George Dewey of Spanish-American war fame. Their grandfathers were third cousins.

The old battlefield of Tippecanoe in Indiana, where General William Henry Harrison won a victory over the Indians, is now enclosed with a high iron fence. When James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier bard, visited the battlefield he asked the superintendent how the Indians ever managed to get over that high fence!

Elihu Benjamin Washburne, an old neighbor of Ulysses S. Grant at Galena, Illinois, got President Grant to appoint him secretary of state in 1869 as a build-up for appointment as minister to France. He served as secretary of state only six days and was then appointed minister to Paris.

He served in Congress from 1853 to 1869 and because of his efforts to limit expenditures earned the nickname of "the watch dog of the treasury."

Washburne, who added an "e" to the family name, had three brothers who also served in Congress. Their father, Israel Washburn, a shipbuilder and trader of Livermore, Maine, is known as "the father of Congressmen."

BONARLAW

Mr. and Mrs. E. Cook Honored by Neighbors On Eve of Departure

Bonarlaw, Ont., Jan. 24. —On Wednesday evening, about 125 friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Cook, Springbrook, gathered in the Orange Hall and presented them with a dresser, a rocking chair and a bed, complete with spring and mattress. An address was read by Mrs. Percy Mumby expressing the regret of the community that Mr. and Mrs. Cook are moving away and stating how much they will be missed as they have been so much a part of the community life and always ready to lend a helping hand. Both Mr. and Mrs. Cook replied expressing their thanks for the lovely gifts and the kind words. Mr. Sidney Mason acted as chairman and called on several of those present for a few remarks. Mr. Jas. Mumby, Mr. C. U. Heath and Mr. Grenville Meiklejohn made short addresses and all referred to the sterling qualities of Mr. and Mrs. Cook and how they will be missed by one and all. After everyone present sang "For they are Jolly Good Fellows" and gave them three hearty cheer, dancing was indulged in until the "wee small hours". Music was furnished by the Bronson Orchestra of Stirling and Thos. Hannah acted as floor manager.

A splendid lunch was served in the basement of the hall.

Model's Charm Lies in Power To Be Natural

(By ENID NEMY)
(C.P. Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Man. (CP) — You don't have to be beautiful to be a model!

That old saying "Beauty is only skin deep" has a lot more truth in it than most people believe, says P. J. Edgar, art director of one of the largest advertising photographic studios in Canada.

"We have hundreds of girls coming up here each year," Mr. Edgar said, "and most of them are unsuitable. They range all the way from doll types to dazzling blonds and it's quite a job trying to convince them that their greatest charm lies in being natural."

Several years ago Mr. Edgar originated a school for models here. Ten of the better models are selected to attend ten two-hour lectures. The girls are taught how to dress simply and in good taste, how to apply cosmetics with discretion, how to walk gracefully and the fundamentals of good grooming.

Miss Elinor Kickley, stylist and model herself, conducts the classes. "We prefer our models on the tall side," she said. "Their figure measurements should be in proportion to their height and they should be slender—the camera adds weight. However, most important of all," she continued, "a model should have an intelligent face with character and imagination. That face is important in the selling of merchandise."

Quality Counts

Miss Kickley has very definite ideas on clothes—not only for models but for the average woman.

"I can't put sufficient emphasis on the fact that quality, not quantity, is the basis of any wardrobe," she said. "Three good dresses, several smart suits, and you have an excellent basic wardrobe. Accessories, of course, can make or break your costume. They needn't be expensive but they should be chosen with care."

There are from 50 to 60 girls on call for modelling at all times. They model only as a side-line. The majority of them hold regular office positions or attend school or university.

There's Margaret McInnes, junior Canadian figure skating queen. Margaret, a brunette, is in third year Home Economics at the University of Manitoba. Barbara Baldwin, a stenographer, exemplifies the sophisticated type. Marilyn McIvor, a blond typical outdoor girl, is studying radio telegraphy.

Peggy Hilton, a high school student at United College, is a good junior model. One of the more versatile models, Alice Bull, studies architecture and interior decorating. The girls are enthusiastic about their work. "Call it glamor or anything you will," said one of them, "but it's still a fascinating job."

Superintendent Currie will be attached to the staff of Admiral Sir James Somerville, commander-in-chief of the British eastern fleet.

Carry Shoulders Beautifully

Rosemary La Planche demonstrates a shoulder straightening exercise.

By HELEN FOLLETT

BELIEVE IT or sneer, but we're telling you that the body speaks with the shoulders. Square them and you are likely to look ready for a fight. Drooping shoulders, with arms forward, signify lack of courage, if not despair. Shrug them and others may fancy that you are supercilious and haughty. Lazy girls, too inert to keep their spinal columns properly extended, acquire plump shoulders that make them appear top-heavy and chunky.

When the shoulders are carried beautifully, the entire body falls into harmonious lines. The chest is lifted, the back is neat. Why don't the sloppy darlings give a thought to this matter They fuss for hours with their hair, they spend plenty of time on their complexions, they wander from shop to shop in search of the flattering dry goods.

Beauty Worries

They worry over fat legs, and a broken finger-nail makes them weep. All this effort is in the cause of good appearance. Yet many of them tag around with shoulders humped, chest deflated. It is a pity.

If, because of lack of exercise, the muscles of the upper part of the body have become stiff, try this exercise for five minutes night and morning:

Stand erect, hands at the sides. With wrists free, fingers separated, bring the hands above the head, slapping the backs together. There will be a muscle twist at the shoulder, and that does the business.

Flying Exercise

Try the flying movement. Stand tall, hands down at the sides. Come up on the toes, at the same time lifting the hands as high as ever you can.

Extend arms straight out in front, the palms of the hands together. Lift the hands, stretching the arms to the limit. While still stretched see how far back you can send them. Hands down at the sides, then back to first position and repeat.

The Marry-Go-Round

Love—and the Dollar Princess

"The Poor Little Rich Girl" was the title of a popular story of yesteryear. I regret that I can't remember who wrote it; but the newspapers have been so full of heiresses and their various troubles recently that its caption seems strikingly apt.

To be born with a silver spoon in your mouth and a million dollars in your hands, may have been lucky, at one time, but in these days, it's more often a handicap. Or haven't you followed the sad careers of some of the Dollar Princesses who have made the headlines in the last decade?

"I never saw anything so pathetic as you rich dames wanting to be loved for yourselves alone," says Claire, in Ilka Chase's best seller, "In Bed We Cry." "You . . will have to reverse the old fairy story and go out in rags to see which of your subjects really cares about you."

There is no truth in the old adage that it is "as easy for a man to love a rich girl as to love a poor one. It's infinitely harder! Instead of brightening up a girl's charms, a background of gold dollars seems merely to dim them to the point of invisibility.

Her fortune so dazzles a man that no matter how beautiful she is, he can't SEE her! No matter how brilliant her mind or her wit, it can never outshine the glitter of her money. And no matter how lovable and sweet her character, it can never rival the sweetness of her Father's "sugar."

That's why the "beggar maid" caught the eye of King Cophetua—and why the poor working girl stands the best chances of winning teh matrimonial prizes and of getting a faithful, tender, devoted husband. When a man marries her, it MUST be for love! Because he is practically signing up to keep his nose to the grindstone for the rest of his life—and his only reward is the "bundle of charms" he holds in his arms.

There are lots of other reasons, of course, why the wealthy girl is handicapped in the race for real love and real happiness. Unless she bursts out of her social cocoon and takes up some sort of work or profession, she meets fewer men than the business girl and meets them only in their lighter social moments. She doesn't get a chance to learn anything about them. And to them, unless they are fortune-hunters, she is just part of the scenery.

Besides, the average girl looks far prettier and more attractive in a uniform, a nurse's cap-and-apron or even her working slacks, than she does when she is all dolled up and on dress-parade. There is no glittering background and no halo of gold dollars to dim the sparkle in her eyes or to blind him to the flash of her smile or the glint in her hair.

Moreover, when a man's mind is not on Brad Street, he has more time to enjoy a girl's repartee. But when he is trying to figure out her income-tax, it's a pretty hard thing to listen to a woman's wit. Her MONEY does the talking!

Of course, there HAVE been cases where disinterested young men have married poor little rich girls and loved them in SPITE of their millions. But they are as rare as green roses and five-legged calves.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

Infection Can Cause Lack of Energy.

A father brought his son to a physician and said, "My son is but seventeen years old, he looks well, eats well, sleeps well, but has no endurance whatever. He is fed all the foods containing vitamins and minerals, drinks a quart of milk a day and has meat or eggs once or twice a day. He will be called into the military forces in a few months and he'll never be able to "take it" physically. I want to know why?"

The physical examination showed the boy to be slightly underweight, blood pressure low, hemoglobin low, and lack of sufficient calcium or lime in the blood. The physician explained to the father that the lack of energy was caused by lack of vitamins and minerals. Again the father outlined all the foods eaten which certainly contained sufficient calcium and iron for the needs of a growing boy, and likewise vitamins A, B, C, and D, even the extra supply of minerals and vitamins needed for his age at which most growth occurs.

The physician then pointed out that as the evidence all showed that "enough" minerals and vitamins were taken every day, there must be "something" interfering with the body processes in such a way that minerals and vitamins were being used to fight off this something, which in most cases is infection, lack of sleep, emotional disturbances, hurried meals and other bad health habits.

The Xray showed teeth to be free of infection, tonsils and adenoids had been removed and gums were healthy. The only other "common" infection likely to be present were the sinuses and one sinus was found to be at fault. The father then stated that the boy had suffered with 'flu and also with frequent colds, and he had been warned about this sinus by a children's specialist several years before.

The point then is that when your boy or girl is faithfully following an all round diet, gets plenty of sleep, does not work or play too hard, yet lacks energy, do not try to stuff him or her with more vitamins and minerals but consult the family physician and dentist as in a great many cases some low or light infection may be the cause of lack of energy.

FASHION FLASHES

GETTING READY for Spring finds plenty of navy blue in the advance fashion picture. A charming suit is a slim bellhop model in navy blue gabardine, the blue buttons arranged in V formation on the jacket made with wide-peaked lapels. The slim skirt is slit at one side for comfort.

WARM BEAUTY is the best description of a group of wool-and-rabbit hair dresses done in lovely colors with glitter trim. Pale blue is the color used for one frock made with a deep U neckline and a group of white sequin and bead butterflies on the slim bodice.

COMING UP for spring is the topper and weskit suit. Cocoa brown woolen makes the front buttoned skirt and boxy topper of one ensemble which has a beige and cocoa brown checked woolen weskit. Matching fabric for the revers of the topper.

THERE'S NO DOUBT about it! Men love the long-skirted evening frock, for this tye of dress suggests gracious beauty, charm and the essence of feminity. Much admiration fo ra black crepe evening frock with nude silk chiffon yoke and cap sleeves. Jet bead and sequin embroideries over the bustline. Long, slim skirt has draped front.

ALL SORTS of fabric tie-ups abound these days. A smart coat is of black velvet lined with loosely woven tweed in black and white pepper and salt effect. Insets of the tweed make a yoked closing an dare flanked by tweed tuxedo revers.

WHIMSY is the keynote of the new prints. Tiny figures on a park bench in front of which sit little brown squirrels makes one charming print done in pink and green and brown on a beige ground.

PLAY CLOTHES finding the greatest acceptance are likely to be simple while remaining feminine. Little-boy shorts with fluffy ruffles aren't favored by most knowing visits and homefolks down South or at Western resorts. Typical of this insistence for the enduring type of shorts outfit is this washable playsuit of printed celanese crepe, printed with Deep South floral motifs. This one-piece shorts and shirt outfit is just right for tennis and other active games, while th ematching skirt turns it into a good utility frock.

Viennese Waltz the Rage Again

So gay, so irresistibly romantic, the whirling Viennese Waltz! And so new and important again!

If you'd rate attention at smart dances you simply must know how to do the lovely, graceful turns that are the charm of the Viennese. So try our diagram for the Waltz Square Turn, to perhaps the "Blue Danube"!

Counting from 1 to 6, on Count 1 step forward on left foot, toe and shoulders turned left. 2—Make quarter turn left, placing right foot to side of left. 3—Close left foot up to right.

Now into the next whirl—taking on Count 4 a long step back on right foot. 5—Make quarter turn left, placing left foot to side of right. 6—Close right foot up to left. To complete Square, repeat.

You dance faster, you see, than in the regular waltz. You and your partner rotate rapidly about one another.

Learn the other smart waltz variations, too! Our 32-page booklet has diagrams to show you these as well as the popular rumba, Conga tango, fox-trot, Westchester and shag. Tells how to dance gracefully, lead and follow.

New Glue Process Reaches Highest Expectations

(By JAMES McCOOK)

(C. P. Staff Writer)

Ottawa (CP) — A Canadian scientist working with Canadian materials has brought within reach houses fastened together with glue instead of nails and made possible provision of massive timbers of almost limitless length and equal strength throughout.

Dr. W. Gallay, chief of the colloids and plastics laboratory in the chemistry division of the National Research Council, said today tests of a new hot-setting plastic glue process developed by him had reached the highest expectations.

Plastic glues are not new, but Dr. Gallay's work has achieved: 1. The glueing of wood in from five to ten minutes, whereas it used to require 24 hours in presses and a week of conditioning. 2. Availability of the glue material in convenient rolls. It is placed between the pieces of wood to be joined and electric current applied. A conducting agency in the glue ensures even distribution of the glue and a completed join as strong as the wood.

3. No limit to the size of wood which may be used. This limitation now exists in respect to laminated woods like those used in aircraft. Heavy timbers, like those used in a wooden bridge, can be joined by the new process without impairment of the strength of the completed structure.

"The crux of the new process is that it is possible to get heat where it is wanted quickly so that the hot-setting glue is given peak-effectiveness," said Dr. Galley.

Dr. Gallay, a native of Hawkesbury, Ontario, a public and high school student in Calgary, a graduate of McGill University and a post-graduate student in Germany, was faced with a problem which had interested plastic engineers for years when he began his studies of a fast hot-setting glue several months ago.

Great Time-Saver

The key element in the process of acetylene black, a material similar to soot, which is manufactured at Shawinigan Falls, Que. This material is included in plastic glue and serves as a conductor for electric current. It represents the first successful method of obtaining the glue-fix of desired strength quickly, said Dr. Gallay.

Following laboratory work here last year, Dr. Gallay went to Winnipeg where he worked at an aircraft plant in making an airplane propeller with the new process. Plastic glueing took five minutes to join the wood sections of the new propeller blade. Originally the plant required 28 days for such work, and even more recently the use of synthetic glue required 8½ days.

"The propeller has not actually been used on an aircraft, but we have subjected it to all the scientific checks normally given propellers and we know it is all right," said Dr. Gallay. "We believe this new process will revolutionize the manufacture of laminated timber, and its utilization. It provides economy and upholds quality.

"The prospective uses are numberless. It can be used in prefabricated houses, in trestles, house flooring, for the arches of huge barns, and for almost any kind of wood construction work where steel braces, bolts and nails are needed now. The glue fix is not affected by the weather, by chemicals or by time. It does not rust."

Dr. Gallay said timber bodies of any length can be attached by the new process. Timbers of extraordinary length could be provided by joining two or three. Thus increased use of wood in construction and other work will be possible. The process now is being tried out by large-scale users of such material and the National Research Council will issue licences permitting its use, he said.

Canadian Belles Rated As 'Tops' By Empire Lads

By ENID NEMY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Jan. 25—(CP)—Canadian girls are "tops" agree boys from all over the world stationed here. New Zealand, Australian and British boys under the Commonwealth Air Training Plan and American soldiers posted here, are unanimous in their "ace high" rating of Canadian belles.

"They must have their faults," said one Australian with a puzzled frown, "but so far I haven't noticed any." A New Zealand buddy, shivering in his greatcoat added, "Your girls counteract your weather and that's saying a lot."

The boys have definite opinions on their likes and dislikes in women. Their pet peeves—giggling, gum chewing and jitterbugging. Most of them admitted they didn't mind watching the "contortions of a "jitterbug" but I'd just as soon do a native war dance myself" was the general verdict.

"The first thing I noticed about Canadian girls, is their peaches and cream complexion," said FO. K. J. Shanahan, of Australia. "Australian girls are fairly tanned." LAC. Anthony Booth from Kent, England, liked their speech. "Most of your girls have musical voices," he said. LAC. Art Cottrell, a former detective from London, England said one word would define his opinion of Canadian girls "lovely."

LAC. Frank Raiment of Middlesex, England, didn't think there was a great deal of difference between English and Canadian girls. "Although you aren't as conventional," he added. Sgt. Bill Campbell, of Atlanta, Georgia, compared the girls here with the famed beauties of Peachtree St., Atlanta.

Likes Fort William

LAC. John Barnes, of Lancashire, England, says what intrigues him most is that you can't tell what age a woman is over here.

"Mind you, I like it," he said. "Anything to improve is my motto. After the war I'd like to settle in Fort William or some place as nearly like it as possible."

The boys love Canada but shake their heads when the weather is mentioned. "It's painful to say the least," shivered a lad from India.

Opinions on cities were diverse. Saskatoon, Vancouver and Toronto were the three ranking favorites. LAC. Tung Yep, a Chinese boy from North Queensland in the Royal Australian Air Force, liked Edmonton. Percy Huzzard, of Yorkshire, England, preferred Winnipeg. FO. Shanahan chose Vancouver. "The city itself is lovely and the scenery around is simply magnificent."

"Saskatoon for me," said an Air Force lad who preferred to remain anonymous lest his "chamber of commerce read this, "while Frank Raiment said, "Anyway you look at it, you can't beat Toronto."

WEDDINGS

WILSON—MARTIN

The marriage of June Laura Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Martin, to Stoker 1st Class John Michael Wilson, R.C.N.V.R., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson was solemnized on Saturday, January 22nd, the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Nicholson, V.C., officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charmingly attired in white wool crepe with accessories to match. Her flowers were roses and carnations.

Mrs. George Westlake, sister of the bride, who acted as matron of honor, wore a gold crepe ensemble with brown accessories and corsage of carnations.

Miss Mary Downey, as bridesmaid, was wearing blue figured crepe with matching accessories and corsage of carnations.

Mr. George A. Wilson, brother of the groom, was best man.

Following the ceremony, a dinner was served at the groom's home to thirty-two guests. Among those present were Miss Mary Downey, of Toronto, Mayor and Mrs. W. H. Rollins and John Downey, of Toronto.

On the return of the groom from Kingston, where he is stationed, the couple will reside in Belleville.

Stocking the Beauty Cabinet

In mid-winter, choose a darker shade of powder.

By HELEN FOLLETT

THERE ARE times when the cosmetic cabinet is as bare as old Mother Hubbard's cupboard. Jars empty, bottles at low tide, only a little powder in the box. You can start out all over again and bring home cosmetic trophies that will make you a nice new face.

You will need a cleansing oil or cream to be used when your complexion has been subjected to atmospheric dust or flaying winds. Use it the moment you come into the house and have taken off your chapeau. Mustn't use soap and water when the flesh is chilled.

Need Heavy Cream

For use at night, after you have had your bedtime clean-up session, you will need a heavy emollient, one that won't let your fingers slip and slide when you massage it into your face. These two items are on the must-have list. Without lubrication the epidermal coat is pretty likely to try to fluff away. A chapped skin means that make-up is no good on earth, doesn't help a whit.

It's wise to use a skin tonic or astringent after the face is rinsed in the morning with tepid water. Pat it on with pledgets of cotton. You may or may not find comfort in a foundation cream; some women like 'em, some don't; those who don't usually fail to use enough friction when applying them.

Use Darker Powder

In mid-winter the skin is unusually of lighter shade than in the sunny summer time, so it is possible that a darker tone of powder will give more richness and character to your complexion. A warm shade of rouge and lipstick will prove more becoming than the cold reds that are the selection of the average shopper who seeks cosmetic solacement.

Let's hope that there will be enough change left from your money-flinging spree to indulge in a little vial of perfume. Floretted odors give joy and uplift to the spirits.

BEAUTY By Helen Jameson

Wrinkles? Catch 'Em Young!

When a woman who is "getting along" looks in a mirror and observes little crinkles in her face she yearns for a magic smoothing iron that will erase them. She sees other women of her age with unrumpled skins, wonder why fate has picked on her. Maybe fate hasn't. Maybe she has lacked foresight, has not attended to her good looks chores, or has not taken as good care of her health as she should have. Ofttimes facial furrows are self-inflicted; frown lines are habit wrinkles. No woman should pull her eyebrows together, tie a knot in the flesh that separates them.

Time is no friend as far as appearance is concerned. It may make us wiser, more tolerant, but what it does to faces and figures seems utterly unreasonable. Some day we'll outwit the old gent with the scythe and the long white whiskers. As vitamins are making children huskier and healthier, maybe vitamins will help us to hang onto youthful looks. Might be. Who knows?

The woman who has a tight rein on her emotions has a good chance of retaining a satin-smooth skin. Low spirits, worry, self-pity aren't good for our outsides or our insides either. Emotional strain retards digestion, knocks appetite for a fall, slows up circulation, interferes with normal functioning of the avenues of elimination. All of which depletes the facial tissues.

Local treatment consisting of anointing the flesh with a nourishing cream, tapping it in properly, treating individual lines will do much to freshen the complexion. Back up these rituals with health measures and they'll have a double chance of getting results. Arrange a well-ordered existence. Rest when tired. Sidestep emotional upsets; you can do that by telling yourself how needlessly and futilely you have indulged in worry or ill nature in the past. Eat properly, bathe daily, breathe deeply, drink plenty of water.

At bedtime, after using soap and warm water freely on the face, rinsing with warm water and drying gently, apply a heavy emollient. Cold cream will not do for this purpose; the massage agent must have resistance so the fingers won't slip and slide.

For turkey tracks, place the finger on the upper eyelid, sweep outward to the temple, do a circle there, come back under the eye to starting point.

Frowns, place the thumb at lower end of lines, first finger at upper terminal. Hold the finger stationary, iron upward with the thumb. Follow with little circles.

Use the rotary movement on the forehead if railroad tracks are scooting from one side to the other. Work from the centre of the forehead out toward the sides, using both hands.

Lines extending from nostrils to lip ends should be given a light nipping and pinching treatment. Finish with friction with an ice cube.

The Experts Say

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Jan. 25—(CP)—A hot, nourishing soup is doubly welcome on the lunch table now that winter is here and Laura Pepper, chief of the Consumer Section of the Agriculture Department, gives us this recipe for an easy-to-make, easy-to-eat cream soup that is sure to please the whole family. It makes a hit in the lunch box too:

CARROT CREAM SOUP: Melt 1 tablespoon fat in saucepan, stir in 2 tablespoons farina and cook 1 minute. Gradually add 3 cups water or vegetable stock, add ½ teaspoon salt and cook slowly until thickened, stirring frequently. Grate 2 cups raw carrot, add and cook until the carrot is tender. Rub the mixture through a sieve and add to 2 cups hot milk. Season with a dash each of pepper and nutmeg and 2 teaspoons finely chopped parsley. Heat just to boiling point before serving. This makes four servings.

WHEAT GERM: Added to the morning dish of hot cereal helps to meet the need for thiamin or vitamin B1, so necessary in starchy winter diets; without its aid starch becomes excess fat and is not burned up to provide bodily energy. A single spoonful of wheat germ on one's cereal meets the needs of the average person for a day, Nutrition Services says. Be sure to add it just before serving to get its full vitamin value, for thiamin, like vitamin C, is partly destroyed by heat.

COAL TIPS: The Coal Conservation Committee provides handy tips for the householder these days:

1. Place shiny sheets of reflective material behind all radiators. This tosses the heat back into the room instead of letting it soak into the walls. White cardboard is better than nothing.

2. Hard and soft coal should not be "married" until they meet in the furnace. Put a partition in the bin and keep the soft coal on one side and the anthracite on the other. Proper proportions when stoking are three shovels of anthracite to one of soft coal. Firing practice should be the same as when anthracite alone is used.

SPICE PUDDING: The Nutrition Bureau contributes this recipe for a delicious hot pudding, especially suitable for this time of year:

1 cup sugar, 1-3 cup mild fat, 1 egg, well beaten, 2-3 cup milk, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 cup raisins.

Mix the sugar and fat, add the egg and beat until light. Add milk. Sift dry ingredients and add to first mixture with little stirring. Add the raisins. Pour into a greased pan about two inches deep, and bake in a moderate oven for about 25 minutes. Cut in squares and serve with lemon sauce.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Don't overlook the fact that the flooring used can make a room seem larger or smaller. For instance, the greater number of strips in narrow flooring tend to make a room look larger, while wide flooring makes it appear smaller.

To separate dried salt codfish, hold it under running cold water. Wash it well in more cold water to remove the excess salt and then use it as desired.

Browned grit slices are delicious with frizzled dried beef. Cut stiffened, cooked grits into half inch slices, brown them in bacon fat. Remove to a warm place and cook the beef in the drippings.

To remove dents or bruises from furniture, lay a damp woolen cloth or blotting paper over the spot and press it with a hot iron.

To marinate is to let material lie in a brine, a pickle or French dressing to bring out the flavor.

Boil potatoes of uniform size with the jackets on. Remove the skins. Brown suet cut into small bits in a skillet and put whole potatoes in the sizzling fat. If browned evenly these are a delicacy served with sprigs of parsley.

Add pickle relish to your mayonnaise when you serve it with plain vegetable, lettuce or cabbage salad.

If you cannot change the water on cut flowers every day, drop a piece of charcoal into the vase. It helps keep the water sweet and fresh.

Strong cheese odor usually is penetrating, so do not store eggs, milk, butter and other mild flavored foods near the cheese.

If your cement wash-tub springs a leak at the seams, a recommended treatment is to scrub the area around the leak with a steel wire brush and then fill the open seam with a mixture of powdered litharge and a little glycerine.

To simplify using shields in garments, place half of a snap fastener at each of the four corners of the shield and the other half at each section of garment seams to fit shield. This saves time in removing and replacing shields.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Important at any time to round out the three "square" meals a day, a good lunch is more than ever essential during cool winter months when just keeping warm requires more food energy. If any one of the day's meals is neglected it is difficult to provide in the other two enough of the health protective foods to make up a balanced diet. Winter lunches must carry their share of health protective foods, and they also need more calories than are necessary in summer time to take care of the greater energy demands of cold weather.

If a new winter coat has to be bought, it is well to remember that there is no ceiling on the price of fur. There is also a tax. So a fur coat or a fur-trimmed coat will cost more this year than it did last and a good deal more than it did in the basic period of 1941. There is, however, a supply of untrimmed cloth winter coats on the market at basic prices for those who are not prepared to meet the extra cost of fur trimming and who prefer an untrimmed cloth coat.

To be fore-armed in patching operations, a scrap of the material should be washed or cleaned along with the garment every time.

A quick way to cleanse your neck from the soil of a fur coat when soap and water are not handy is to use one of those smart new cleansing pads containing glycerine and wipe all around your neck. You will find these lotion-soaked cleansing pads a splendid dirt and dye remover.

When sewing chair materials on the sewing machine, slip a piece of thin paper under material to keep it from puckering.

Shopping for the family meals has not always been a woman's job. In ancient Rome, it was regarded as man's work. When a boy reached the age of twelve, he accompanied his father to market to receive instructions in the "art" of

Sgt. F. E. Delyea Is Wounded; Pte. Crosby Killed

Bancroft, Jan. 25 — Sergeant Frederick Everett Delyea, a member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment was wounded January 11th of this year, while serving with his regiment in Italy. Sergeant Delyea enlisted in the Fall of 1939, leaving for Picton for his basic training. From there he went overseas in December 1939. While in England Sgt. Delyea specialized in Bren Gun training and arrived back in Canada in April, 1942, as an Instructor. He remained here until April of 1943, when he returned to England. Any word that the family had received from him was the knowledge that Fred was in Africa and it was not until the recent word of his being wounded that they knew he was in action in Italy. Sgt. Delyea is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Delyea of Bancroft and is also married. His wife, two daughters and three sons also reside in Bancroft.

Officially Reported Killed

Private Gordon Crosby, known to all in Bancroft as "Tobby" has been reported killed in action in Italy, Jan. 3rd, according to word received from his mother, who resides in the United States. Private Crosby had spent several years in Bancroft prior to his enlistment. He joined the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in the Fall of '39 completing his training (basic) in Picton and went Overseas in December 1939. While overseas Pte. Crosby married an English girl. Gordon will be missed by all in the community.

Pte. Eric Mead Twice Wounded

Picton, Jan. 25. —Pte. Eric Mead has been wounded in action a second time, according to official word received by his mother, Mrs. H. G. Mead, here. Nature or extent of the wounds was not given. Pte. Mead was wounded in Sicily last August, suffering shrapnel wounds in the neck and skull. He recovered sufficiently to rejoin his unit, the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, last November, in Italy. His father, R.Q.M.S. SUPREME IN THE AIR

Nearly 18,000 enemy aircraft were brought down by the Royal Air Force, and Fleet Air Arm and Dominion and Allied planes operating with it, from September 1939 to the end of June, 1943. This does not include aircraft destroyed on the ground, 3,000 in the Middle East alone.

Lord Halifax Sees Empire Unity Necessary for World Peace

Toronto, Jan. 25—(CP)—Unity of the British Commonwealth, in peace as well as war, was advanced Monday night by Lord Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, as a condition necessary to the future peace of the world.

The unifying influence of a common head, the King, of what Lord Tweedsmuir had called "that ancient, abiding thing behind governments," existed and had proven strong when war came. Lord Halifax, addressing the Toronto Board of Trade, called for its buttressing by closer partnership in the functional fields of foreign policy and defence.

He said: "The right of each member (of the commonwealth) to determine its own external affairs may mean a gain or it may mean a loss. It is plainly a loss, if, with our essential unity of ideal, the responsibility for action which represents that unity is not visibly shared by all. It is an immeasurable gain if on vital issues we can achieve a common foreign policy expressed not by a single voice but by the unison of many.

"So, too, in the field of defence, while there must be individual responsibility, there must also be unity of policy. I suggest that in the years of peace, it was a weakness, which we should try to cure, that the weight of decision on many problems of defence was not more widely shared."

No Mere British Interest

Lord Halifax said that if, in the future, Britain is to play her part without assuming burdens greater than she can support, she must have with her in peace the same strength that has sustained her in war. "Not Great Britain only, but the British Commonwealth and Empire must be the fourth power upon which, under providence, the peace of the world will henceforth depend . . . The unity of the commonwealth is no mere British interest. So far from being an obstacle, it is a condition necessary to that working partnership with the United States, Russia and China to which we look. If we are to play our part in the preservation of peace, we can only play it as a commonwealth united, vital and coherent."

In the company of the United States, China and Russia, Britain, apart from the rest of the commonwealth and Empire, could hardly claim equal partnership. Yet Western Europe as never before would look to her for leadership. She had been the one inviolate fortress of freedom in the West.

Two Roads Open

In the past the Dominions "had influenced, but had not been responsible for, the foreign policy of Great Britain." While the Statute of Westminster assured to each Dominion complete self-government, it left unsolved "the more obstinate problems arising in the fields of foreign policy and defence."

As to a solution, there were two roads the Dominions might take. One was National isolation. "In 1939 almost every country—certainly almost every small country—was isolationist; and today the map of the world is strewn with the wreckage of small states."

There was a stronger and more compelling reason than that for choosing another road. The British Empire had proved to be a powerful and beneficient world-force. "We believe that without it the cause we uphold today would have been lost long ago; and therefore that the remedy for the difficulties which I have tried to describe is not that we and you should draw apart, but that we should do everything in our power to fortify our partnership."

Premier Drew, after Lord Halifax had spoken, referred to the address as "a very great speech which may well mark the turning point in the thinking of our people."

Three Convicted Of Conspiracy, One Acquitted

Toronto, Jan. 25 (CP)—An Assize Court jury last night acquitted R. A. Irwin, former divisional registrar for National Mobilization, of a charge of conspiracy in attempting to obtain deferments from military service, but convincted three others tried with Irwin—Naiffe Stephen, R. A. Allen and Robert Douglas—on the same charge.

After nearly three hours' deliberation, the jury found Stephen, Allen and Douglas guilty on both counts in the indictment of impeding operation of Selective Service Mobilization Regulations, and of conspiring "to counsel by oral communication other persons to omit to comply with call-up notices."

The three convicted will be sentenced Wednesday. No action has been taken to appeal the convictions but Allen and Stephen have signified intention to carry their case before Ontario Appeal Court.

The verdict climaxed Royal Canadian Mounted Police investigations which started last April and led to the arrest of the four men last July.

Irwin had consistently maintained his innocence through the preliminary hearing and a subsequent appeal by his counsel, Joseph Sedgwick against committal of Irwin for trial.

Before the case went to the jury last night, Mr. Justice J. A. Hope delivered one of the longest charges in the history of Toronto courts, starting before noon and ending early last night after a 1 1-2-hour noon adjournment. He refused to recall the jury despite objections raised by D. L. McCarthy, counsel for Stephen, although it had been recalled earlier to consider a point raised by Irwin's counsel.

VICTORY IN AIR

In the last six months of the North African campaign ending in May, 1943, the R. A. F. had destroyed more than 1,600 enemy aircraft. The Allied losses over the same period were less than 700.

The War Today— Balkans Already Aflame Will Reflect Allied Successes in Italy

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The brightening Allied prospects in Italy are bound to be heavily reflected in the neighboring Balkans which already are flaming fiercely from their efforts to escape Hitler's bloody clutches and from internal political struggles which are in process of determining the nature of future governments.

Four Royal Crowns — those of Greece, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Rumania — are in danger. I quote Dr. Stoyan Gavrilovic, native of Yugoslavia and former holder of numerous positions under his government until he broke with the Yugoslav government in London 3 months ago because of his views on this issue:—

"The present government of the Balkan states are on their way out, and you can be certain no one will be sorry about it," he told me the other day. "In every case they have been dictatorships, and the people are determined on establishing popular rule. These dictatorships have existed under the monarchies, and that means it's highly probable, though not yet absolutely certain, that the Balkans are through with kings.

Yugoslavia

"I never could understand why King Peter of Yugoslavia—himself a young man — should have identified himself with the cause of the dictatorship. I am sure his position would have been different if he had not done so. It may be that it is too late now, but the only way he could possibly reinstate himself would be to make a clean and unequivocal sweep in favor of popular rule."

So far as concerns Yugoslavia, the Liberal Nationalist elements (their opponents call them Reds) have formed a provisional government known as the National Council of Liberation.

Greece

Neighboring Greece is torn between two political groups, each of which has an army in the field. There is the Elas group, which is against return of the King and is said by some to have Communist leanings. There is also the Edes faction which stands by the monarchy. The Elas Partisans have announced that the only way King George can obtain their support is to return to Greece, live with them in their crude mountain fastnesses and lead them against the Hitlerites.

Bulgaria

Bulgaria has been racked with political crisis since the mysterious death of King Boris, the dictator, last summer. Here, too, there is a swing towards popular rule, and many of the people lean towards Russia. Rumania, shaking like a custard with fear of Russian invasion, is in such a muddle politically that no one can foresee the future. Moscow's weight is bound to count for much, however.

London Life Annual Meeting

The desire on the part of the public for financial security is evidenced in the Sixty-ninth Annual Report of the London Life Insurance Company. The new insurance purchased from this company last year amounted to $125-845,000. Insurance in force increased $90,586,000 and now totals $954,473,-000, according to figures presented by J. Edgar Jeffery K.C., president.

Total assets now amount to $186,197,000. The company's financial position offers real security for its policyholders. Investment reserves were increased, additions made to contingency funds against probable increase in war casualties, and the basis of certain reserve liabilities was strengthened in view of the continued low level of interest rates. An addition of $506,800 to free surplus brings that fund to $8,148,600. The total of surplus funds provided to meet conceivable emergencies is $14,258,000.

Subscriptions to 1943 Victory Loans totalled $27,000,000 in comparison with an increase in assets of slightly more than $17,000,000, the difference being largely represented by sale of other securities and net repayment on mortgages, sales agreements and policy loans.

"The Company is in position to maintain a long established record of furnishing insurance at low cost and preserving at the same time its strong financial position," declared R. H. Reid, Managing Director. Dividends to policyholders will be continued for the coming year on the present high scale.

War claims have been substantial but total death benefit payments remained well within the limits anticipated and for which provision had been made.

Helping People Attain Financial Security

Increasing numbers of people in every walk of life have come to rely on the London Life for financial security.

Who are these people? Wage earners, the largest group in the country, own by far the greatest number of policies. Business and professional men are equally well represented. The number of London Life policyholders has grown until today it is as great as the combined populations of Vancouver, Regina, Windsor, Ottawa and Halifax.

What do they want? These people want to get ahead in the world, own a home, educate their children, make provision for their dependents, and live comfortably in old age.

What do they do about it? They choose life insurance to guarantee the fulfillment of their aims; it is the only form of savings which, under all circumstances, can assure attainment of the objectives they have set.

Who counsels them? Our representatives — specially trained to give sound and helpful advice to persons seeking financial security. Such services have proven invaluable, whether the plans of the individual are simple or extensive.

How wise is their choice? In the London Life they are insured with a company which lives up to the highest traditions of the business, safeguarding in every way the interests of its policyholders. The ultimate test of a company is its ability to furnish insurance at low cost and maintain at the same time a strong financial position. In this, the London Life has established a noteworthy record through the years.

Alemite and Reliance Gain Ground in City Cage Loop

Stewart - Warner Beats Sargents and Reliance Takes Care of Deacons

ALEMITE LEADING

Alemite and Reliance gained ground in the City Ladies' Basketball League at the "Y" Monday night as Alemite beat Bell-Sargent lassies 33 to 16 while Reliance triumphed 42 to 11 over Deacons in the nightcap affair of a dual cage bill. Alemite are leading the loop parade with two wins and narry a defeat while Reliance have an equal number of points in two victories, but bowed once in three games.

In the curtain-raiser Coach Freddie Martin's Alemite lassies forged to a 20 to 9 lead at the half-way mark and then continued to dominate the play over the "lock-makers" in the second half to win 33 to 16. Coach Kokesh's Sargents rallied in the latter stages to score seven points, but the margin was too great.

Dot Ronsky, Betty Gilbert and H. Mansfield paced the winners on the attack with the former racing in for an even dozen points, while Miss Allison notched ten of the losers' 16 points. The strong defence of Marion Salisbury and Peggy Rowbotham proved too potent for the losers to penetrate.

In the second game Coach 'Spike' Pryke's Reliance lassies raced through to a 24 to 6 lead over Deacons in the initial half and then continued to dominate the scoring to triumph 42 to 11 and win in the proverbial walk.

Arlie Gilbert paced Reliance with 17 points, with the league-leading scorer, Kay Coathup, following in line with an even dozen for Reliance. A. Miller with six and I. Jeffs and Calbury with two each accounted for all but one point for the Deacon quintette. It was the losers second loss in as many starts. The box score:

ANGELO CALLURA BEATEN BY STOLZ

New York, Jan. 25 (CP)—Allie Stolz, veteran Newark lightweight, moved another step toward a return bout with champion Beau Jack, who once knocked him out, when he scored a sixth-round knockout over Angelo Callura of Hamilton, Ont., here last night.

Callura, brother of Jackie Callura, former National Boxing Association champion, was not at his best when he entered the ring and after taking a beating for six rounds was unable to come out for the seventh round. It was recorded as a sixth-round knockout.

The Hamilton fighter was suffering from a heavy cold.

Stolz, a head taller than Callura, was outweighed 132 3-4 to 136.

ST. CATHARINES LEADS PARADE BY ONE POINT

Team Scores 11-7 Win Over Toronto Navy in Wide Open Contest

REYNOLDS SCORES 3

By the Canadian Press

St. Catharines Saints leaped back to leadership in the Senior "A" series of the Ontario Hockey Association last night with a 11-7 victory over Toronto Navy in a wide-open free-scoring tilt on Toronto ice. The 19th win put the visitors one point above Hamilton Majors in the standing—and the Sailors go right back to St. Catharines tomorrow night for a return engagement.

The visitors held a 3-2 advantage at the first intermission and ran it up to 7-3 in the second period. Half way through the final frame they were leading 11-3 when the Tars collected four straight.

Red Reynolds was leading scorer for the winners with three goals; Paul Mundrick and Mason collected two each while Pete Backor, Umbo Concessi, Blink Bellinger and Fritz bagged singles. Heading the bluejackets were Maundrell and Mann, good for a pair apiece, while Thompson, Livingstone and Barlow were successful on one occasion.

LORNE CARR TOP SCORER OF N.H.L.

Montreal, Jan. 25 —(CP)— Five scoring points during the last week—four goals and an assist—have moved Toronto's Lorne Carr into top spot in the official National Hockey League scoring lists with a 54-point total.

Carr has a margin of a single point over Boston's Herbie Cain, who in turn is a point ahead of his line-mate Bill Cowley. Cowley, who had a commanding lead in the race until he was injured more than two weeks ago, is still on the sidelines.

By way of comparison, a year ago today Carr was leading last season's race with 46 points, and Cowley was second with 45 while Cain was well down the list with 25. Elmer Lach of Canadiens is in fourth spot of this season's battle with 45 points, one more than Bill Mosienko of Chicago and two more than Doug Bentley of the Hawks and Gus Bodnar of Toronto.

Despite his long lay-off, Cowley is still tops in the assist department with 33, one ahead of Lach and two ahead of Buddy O'Connor of Canadiens. Cain leads the goal-getters with 28, three ahead of Carr.

McMahon of Canadiens just managed to remain the league's bad man, his total of 56 minutes in majors and minors leaving a single minute up on Harold Jackson of Detroit. Each picked up six minutes during the week.

Artindale has been wounded in Italy, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Artindale. He was champion of the Westmount Golf and Country Club.

Detroit — (AP) — With seasoned players streaming into the armed forces, general manager Jack Zeller of the Detroit Tigers said last night the club is sure of only six or seven experienced men for the 1944 squad. Because of the uncertain situation, he said he was not mailing player contracts until after the major league meeting in New York Feb. 5.

Chicago, Jan. 25 — (AP) — With 26 players now under contract and expected to report to spring camps, the American League manpower status is in good shape for the opening of the 1944 season, the A.L. service bureau reported today. Since the close of the 1943 season, 31 players have been called to the colors, increasing to 194 the number of American League men now in the service.

Many Ball Players Come Back After Doing Turn in Army

By The Canadian Press

With spring training just around the corner, organized baseball collectively announced at New York Monday night the movement of war veterans to club rosters had started and names are appearing in national association bulletins under the heading of "reinstated from national defence service list." No fewer than three players are exchanging army uniforms for the baseball togs of the Chicago White Sox in outfielder Myril Hoag, infielder Roy Schalk and rookie pitcher Tony Anderson. First-baseman Ed Levy will be back with the New York Yankees after a stretch with the U. S. Coast Guard.

Back on the roster of the St. Louis Browns is pitcher Jack Kramer who has been discharged from the Navy. Brooklyn Dodgers are counting on Wes Flowers, who formerly twirled for Montreal Royals, while Philadelphia Phillies have signed pitcher Albert Verdell who is expected to be out of the Army shortly.

President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday backpedalled on his stateent of last week to the effect he did not see how the class AA clubs were going to get through the 1944 season. In a speech at Philadelphia Rickey qualified the declaration by saying he was referring only to the anpower shortage and that it would form a particular problem for the double-A circuits.

Pitcher George (Pinky) Woods of the Boston Red Sox yesterday was classified 4-F by his draft board at Rutland, Vt. Reason: He is minus one big toe as the result of an accident in 1942.

Outfielder Hugh Todd of the Milwaukee Brewers was purchased yesterday by Minneapolis, also of the American Association, it was announced by President Mike Kelley of the purchasing club. No revelation was made of the cash involved.

After being in effect 18 months, the ban on floodlighting in the greater New York area was lifted by Mayor La Guardia yesterday, thus making night baseball possible this season for the three major league teams and likely Jersey City and Newark as well. Outdoor boxing shows at night may also be resumed.

Now leading the American Hockey League's individual scoring race is Tom Burlington of the Cleveland Barons with 48 points for 19 goals and 29 assists. His total is two points higher than his teammate, Lou Trudel. Bill Thomson of Indianapolis moved up to fourth place with 44 points, one below Wally Kilrea who left Hershey Bears to enlist in the armed forces.

E. W. Answering of Vancouver, secretary of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, last night announced the Canadian senior men's finals have been scheduled for eastern Canada opening April 24. It will be a best-of-five series. American teams at Edmonton will be eligible for the Dominion title, he said. Meanwhile, conflicting reports were heard about the possibility of Pat Bay, R.C.A.F. Gremlins defending their Canadian senior men's basketball championship.

E. W. Rowering of Vancouver, secretary of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, said Gremlins will be forced to abandon defence of their title because of an Air Force rule limiting teams to play within their own province. Later Flt.-Lt. Louis Chodat, Gremlins' coach, said he has received later communications from Air Force headquarters at Ottawa indicating authorization may be granted to participate in play-offs outside British Columbia.

Former holder of all 16 women's swimming records and multi-championship winner at the Los Angeles Olympic Games in 1932, Helene Madison, now Mrs. Luther C. McIver of Seattle, Wash., and mother of a six-year-old daughter, announced last night at the coast she would resume nursing in a hospital to help relieve the shortage of nurses.

According to International Baseball League statistics, issued at New York last night, the Toronto Leafs made 195 errors and won the circit pennant, against 1717 miscues by the second-place Newark Bears. Newark led with a .970 fielding average, compared with .967 for Leafs.

Chairman John J. Phelan of the New York Athletic Commission yesterday refused to meet the request of president Abe Greene of the National Boxing Association to change the Friday-night 10-rounder between Beau Jack and Sammy Angott into a championship bout. Jack is recognized as lightweight champion by the N. Y. Commish while Angott holds the N.B.A. title.

Kitchener — (CP) — Beau of the west, once-famed Seagram horse which led all Canadian-bred money-winners, died on a farm near here at 23 years of age, it was reported last night. During its racing career, the gelding earned $49,730 in 29 victories.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLIE EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Jan. 25 — (CP) — Ottawa sport fans of 20 years ago or longer were possibly the most rabid of them all. Hundreds of them have moved elsewhere in Canada but, wherever they are, they spread the legends of Ottawa sport. Give a real old-time bytowner a railway smoker full of ready listeners and he'll talk for hours of the Ottawa Stanley Cup champions of 40 years ago with Frank McGee, Harvey Pulford and their mates or of the later era of Hamby Shore and Percy LeSueur. Red-hot fans of the early 1920's are full of the feats of Eddie Gerard, Frank Nighbor and that crew.

The committee choosing names for hockey's hall of fame must, for their own protection, consider carefully before passing over any of the great old Ottawa figures. A slight to one of the Ottawa giants would certainly bring down on heads of the committee the combined wrath of all the Ottawa tribe.

Evergreen fans are already preparing their war clubs. References in this column to the hall of fame brought from George Giles, a former Ottawan now in Vancouver, a letter stating names such as Nighbor, Gerard, Jack Darragh, Sprague Cleghorn, George Boucher, Clint Benedict, Cy Dennenny "sounds like an edition of the hall of hockey fame itself."

Perhaps as a warning, George offers this tip: "Whoever decides on the hall of fame boys must establish a definite break-off date between the real hockey and the stuff we are getting dished out to us now, and have had for the last eight to 10 years."

Incidentally:

Art Ross of Boston was in reminiscent mood at the N.H.L. meeting here Friday. Asked whether he believed Frank McGee of Ottawa was one of the all-time greats, Ross said. "I know McGee was good but he was a little before my time. To my mind the greatest hockey player who ever lived was Tommy Phillips of Kenora." Many old-timers subscribed to the Ross view that Phillips was the greatest of them all and Art erred in saying McGee was of an earlier hockey age. McGee helped Ottawa win the Stanley Cup in 1908. The next year Ross and Phillips were with Kenora when the famous Thistles won the historic trophy.

Loose Threads:

Frank Selke of Toronto and Red Dutton, N.H.L. managing director, have been appointed to draft rules for awarding the league's several trophies. It seems the late President Frank Calder kept the rules in his head and they died with him.

TRENTON FLYERS SWAMP MOHAWKS IN SERVICE GAME

Held in Check First Period But From There In It Was "Parade"

SCORE IS 15-4

Padre Mika's Trenton "Flyers" tacked a 15 to 4 shellacking to the Deseronto "Mohawks" in a schedled Bay of Quinte R.C.A.F. service league hockey game at the Hume Arena Monday night.

Although the Mohawks held the fast-skating Trenton sextette to a 3-1 count in the initial period, the Flyers moved all out to lead 9 to 4 at the termination of the middle stanza and then added six more for good measure in the last 20 minutes of a game, that was productive of a calibre of hockey much below that of the opening game, when the Flyers and No. 6 Repair Depot battled to a one-all draw last week. The win elevated Coach Padre Mika's Trenton speedsters onto the top rung in the league standing.

Ellis, Dziura, Bagnell and Kelly were the chief marksmen as the Trenton "Flyers" ran the score into double figures and were never headed. The winners showed too much class all along the line giving goalie Ralph Benson the proverbial busman's holiday in the Flyers' nets. Boyd a Mohawk wing player, scored two of the losers' four goals. The Mohawks could not cope with the speed and general hockey ability of the more experienced Trenton team, that boasts of former professional and named senior hockey players. However, when the league resumes with the Mountain View Bombers appearing at the Hume Arena on Thursday night a different tale will doubtless be unfold, as the "Bombers" were fortified with none other than Johnny McCreedy, former Toronto Maple Leafs' forward, only Monday.

The lineups:

Trenton Main Station — Goal, Benson; defence, Fitzpatrick and Kelly; centre, Ellis; wings, Bagnell and Voss; subs, Dziura, Tessier, Dart, Currie, Wismer and Flynn.

Deseronto "Mohawks" — Goal, Flookes; defence, Lavellette and McClennan; centre, Zatelney; wings, Boyd and Alcambrack; subs, Hemmilrick, Cross, Lelonde, Huggins and Wickham.

Referees: Holway and St. Louis of Belleville.

CASUAL COMMENT

by K.J.C.

The family doctor, while on a vacation trip to Florida, entrusted his practice to his son, who had just completed his interneship. On the father's return nome, the young man told him with great satisfaction how he had cured Mrs. Blank, an elderly and wealthy patient, of her chronic indigestion.

Old Doctor—Congratulation, my boy! But that case of indigestion is what put you through college!

Yes, sir, we're going to lick the axis
If it takes all we have in taxes.

Ready & Rarin'.

Both Trenton and Belleville juniors have girded their loins for tonight's important junior O. H. A. struggle at the Hume Arena. Coach Toots Holway stated today he would ice his strongest team against Stan Jackson's invaders. "After all the Trenton kids beat us 6-3 in our last meeting, but with the teams tied for first place tonight's tussle takes on an important phase and if we can beat Trenton tonight all we need is two more victories to finish on top of the group," added Coach Holway. Yesterday Secretary Wally Berry received an official release for Goalie Dick Fitzpatrick from the Trenton club and now Dick has the green light to wear a red and white jersey. Incidentally Secretary Wally Berry wants all his juniors to bring their birth certificates to the Hume Arena tonight. Players born in Belleville may procure their certificates at the office of J. Wilfred Holmes, city clerk, in the City Hall. Oh yes, the kids are to have visitors at tonight's game, a whole parade of them.

Here They Come.

Coach Padre Mika's Trenton "Flyers" added insult to injury by beating the Deseronto "Mohawks" 15 to 4 last night, but then the boys in the service league like their scoring averages just as well as those pucksters under the big tent, although they don't pay off financially quite as prolific. The Trenton "Flyers" carried too much class for the Mohawks, but then with players the calibre of Dziura, Kelly, Voss, Bagnell, Ellis et al they should dominate the play against the smaller station.

Just a moment—there are other teams to reckon with in the Quinte service league and one of them will be the Mountain View "Bombers". Only yesterday Johnny McCreedy, former Toronto Maple Leaf defence star and Billie Bauer, brother of Boston Bruin-Bobby Bauer, reported at the Mountain View School of Bombing and Gunnery and will line-up with Dan Cowley's "Bombers". As a matter of fact the "Bomber" management took in last night's game and today are quite confident they can beat either No. 6 or Padre Mika's sextette. There are rumours that other named players will soon join Bauer and McCreedy on the "Bomber" squad.

Startling Statistics.

All that glitters is not gold, 'tis been said. To prove this Bill Westwick, in the Ottawa Journal, writes as follows— "National Hockey League gates show an increase of $147,967 over the corresponding period of last season. It's an impressive looking increase, but there are a few catches. War-time taxes are tough on professional sport. In Ontario a Provincial and Federal tax on pro hockey amounts to about 25 percent. In Quebec it's higher with the Provincial tax on all professional sports events set at 12½ percent, while the Federal impost, set two years ago, is 20 percent.

Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens are said to have paid the Dominion Government something like $200,000 in taxes for the Leafs alone last year. The Montreal figure for Canadiens' operations has been listed at $100,000. When it comes to operating boxing or wrestling to Quebec the tax figure moves up. The Athletic Commission takes five percent., moving the total impost up to 37½ percent.

Players' salaries, too, aren't as imposing as they look. On top of that, travelling expenses and hotel bills have taken a rise. The N.H.L., as a professional enterprise, isn't the paying business that the bare figures might lead to believe."

Remember When—

It was just four years ago today Eddie Shore concluded an association of 13 years with the Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League. The big defenceman, regarded by many as one of hockey's all-time greats, was traded by Boston to the New York Americans for Eddie Wiseman, a right wing player. Today Shore is manager and co-owner of the Buffalo Bisons in the American Hockey League.

Girls Basketball.

It looks very much as though the finals in the girls basketball loop will see Reliance and Alemite battling it out. Last night Reliance beat Deacons 42 to 11 while Alemite trounced Bell-Sargents 33-16 to lead the league with four points each. However, the lower bracket quintettes are improving and may upset the cage apple-cart one of these Monday nights. Incidentally the crowds are improving at these weekly girls' twin bills of the high-hoop game. And why not?

DETROIT WINGS PLAY THE BRUINS

By The Canadian Press

Detroit Red Wings set out tonight to demonstrate that their National Hockey League undefeated streak can be sustained beyond its present duration of seven games.

They seek to prove it at the expense of Boston Bruins, who have skidded into fourth place one point behind Detroit following a sequence of injuries.

Although Bruins have the advantage of home surroundings Detroit will be solidly favored to take the only N.H.L. game scheduled Tuesday. Boston manager Art Ross tacitly subscribes to this view in acknowledging that the manpower situation of the battered Bruins is "desperate."

Among Bruin regulars who will be absent tonight are leading scorer Bill Cowley; defenceman Johnny Crawford, who suffered a brain concussion several weeks ago, and Harvey Jackson, victim of knee and elbow injuries last week.

Detroit can move within a half-game of Toronto Maple Leafs by winning tonight.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 285

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When a bridge player opens his yap, he is foolish to act like a sap. He should try to disclose all or more of the dope you are asking him for.

Coast with this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠ A K 6
♥ Q 8 7 3
♦ K 6 3
♣ A K 6
NORTH
♠ None
♥ A J 6 2
♦ A Q J 5
♣ 9 7 5 3 2

The bidding has gone this far:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 NT	3 H
4 NT

That bid of four no-trump is a signal. It is a convention bid for telling partner there may be a good chance to make a slam. And it orders partner to state how many aces and kings he has.

Partner must respond with a bid. That response must be picked from a list of convention answers. The convention answer he selects must tell the number of aces and kings he has.

If he follows The Kibitzer's convention, his reply will be five clubs if he has no aces. Any other response of five says he has only one ace and tells how many kings he has, if any.

Besides showing an ace of some kind, five diamonds shows no kings; five hearts, one king; five spades, two kings; five no-trump, three kings.

Any response of six shows two aces. If the bid of six is with clubs it shows no kings; with diamonds, one king; with hearts, two kings; with spades, three kings.

Notice that all responses of five show no more than one ace; all replies of six show two aces. Notice, also, that another king is shown by each higher ranking denomination at each level.

North has two aces and no kings. So, his response to four no-trump is the convention reply of six clubs.

Maybe the king is AWOL.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Feminine Touch"

Sound and snug in plot, "The Feminine Touch" is one of the year's most successful attacks on the public risibilities. This is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy now at the Capitol with Rosalind Russel, Don Ameche, Kay Francis and Van Heflin, in a story as modern as the new tax rate.

The story, told with a highly inventive and original sense of wit, relates how a professor of philosophy writes a book deriding the theory of jealousy. The academian's wife is unconvinced, but meek, until they arrive in New York to meet the publisher, Van Heflin. They also meet his assistant, Kay Francis, who promptly falls for the convention-flouting professor.

The situation is ideal for the wife, because the publisher is a playboy who cannot resist a pretty face. She promptly sets out to make her husband jealous. Miss Francis, in love with the publisher, has the same objective when she showers attention on Ameche. From this four-cornered tangle the story moves swiftly into a climax of hilarious and sustained merriment.

"A Scream In the Dark"

One of the most interesting parts is that played by Elizabeth Russell, who is a sort of feminine 'menace'.

When not acting, Miss Russell is a most charming, attractive young lady, and it is a great tribute to her art, that she is able to be so tremendously effective in a sinister role.

Of course, she has had some practice. She recently played the Cat Woman in the film, "The Cat People" and her latest picture was "Hitler's Hangmen".

The Canadian Universal News is also shown.

AT THE BELLE

"Thank Your Lucky Stars"

Warner Bros. has wrapped up almost its entire studio, complete with the talent roster, directors and technical personnel, to produce its lavish musical "Thank Your Lucky Stars" which is attracting large audiences to the Belle Theatre. The list of big name stars in the production include Humphrey Bogart, Eddie Cantor, Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland, Errol Flynn, John Garfield, Joan Leslie, Ida Lupino, Dennis Morgan, Ann Sheridan, Dinah Shore and Alexis Smith. Others in the cast are George Tobias, Jack Carson, Alan Hale, Edward Everett Horton, S. Z. Sakall, Hattie McDaniel and Spike Jones and his City Slickers.

Bette Davis Jitterbugs.

Going off the beaten path, the picture has Bette Davis singing a spicy specialty number called "They're Either Too Young or Too Old," and doing a jitterbug routine in the bargain; Ida Lupino, Olivia de Havilland and George Tobias break out in a boogie-woogie dance; Ann Sheridan leads a line-up of chorus cuties in a boudoir number called "Love Isn't Born, It's Made;" John Garfield mugs his way through a Sing-Sing hot seat song-and-recitation act, and all the other stars do their stint for this all-star production.

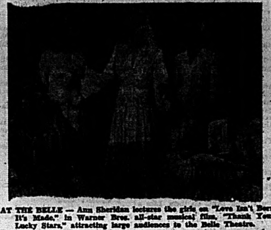
The Canadian Movietone News and "Desert Playground" a sports-parade film in full beautiful technicolor will be exhibited on the same program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Letter"

That fascinating, tantalizing and dangerous Bette Davis, is back on the screen, following up her recent dazzling success "All This, And Heaven Too" with "The Letter," Somerset Maugham's greatest drama of a woman's heart. "The Letter", will start next at the McCarthy theatre.

AT THE McCARTHY — [illegible] Davis and James Stephenson in a tensely dramatic role from the film "The Letter," next at the McCarthy. The second feature, "Santa Fe Trail," stars Raymond Massey.



AT THE BELLE — Ann Sheridan lectures the girls on "Love Isn't Born It's Made," in Warner Bros. all-star musical film, "Thank Your Lucky Stars," attracting large audiences to the Belle Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL — When the wife has a boy-friend and hubby has a girl friend, more than one telephone is needed in the house, Rosalind Russell and Don Ameche in "The Feminine Touch," now at the Capitol with the mystery thriller "A Scream in the Dark."

Australian Letter

By J. E. HOLDSWORTH
Canadian Press Correspondent

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 24—(CP Cable) — No warring country ever tried to do so much with so few people as Australia has attempted, the Sydney Daily Telegraph said recently in an editorial page article, illustrated with diagrams, on Australia's manpower problem.

Australia has one in eight of her population in the fighting services, compared with one in 20 in Canada (to the end of 1942), one in nine in Britain, one in 11 in Germany, one in 13 in the United States and one in 26 in Japan, the newspaper said.

Australia's male population over 14 years of age numbers only 2,816,000 of which 90 per cent is either fighting or working, the rest being schoolboys, students, the aged or crippled. From the beginning of the war until the end of October, 1943, the number of men employed in all rural industries fell from 500,000 to 360,000.

The number of cows being milked has fallen off by 250,000 and butter production has decreased from 203,000 tons in 1938-39 to 169,000 last year.

Little Use of Woman Power

"Australia has made comparatively little use of its woman power," the Daily Telegraph said. "Of women and girls over 14 years old, only about seven per cent is in the services or war work compared with nearly 40 per cent in Britain. Not one-third of the women in Australia are in full-time employment outside their homes. As the war in the Pacific mounts and the number of British and United States forces grows, Australia will need more labor to provide food, transport and other essential services."

The writer of the article followed it later with quotations from the November issue of 'Canada at War,' issued by the Canadian Wartime Information Board. Figures were quoted showing that out of 4,240,000 women and girls over 14 years of age, 1,200,000 were gainfully employed including 830,000 farm women. The telegraph writer concluded Australia's wartime problems were similar to Canada but Canada is making a more balanced use of her man and woman power.

Manpower Deadlock

In an editorial on the article, the Daily Telegraph said that Australia in the fifth year of the war had "reached a man-power deadlock."

"The reason is to be found in the gigantic army we set out to create two years ago when the Japanese threatened to invade our coasts," the newspaper added. "With the invasion enace gone and the Japanese retreating in the north, the government must revise its colossal diversion of manpower to the armed forces. It is far more important now to divert available manpower to supply food and equipment without which the offensive in the southwest Pacific must flag."

Mines Minister Webb of New Zealand has outlined to Australian ministers and mining officials how that Dominion is dealing with the coal mines. After a big mining strike a year ago, the New Zealand government took over more than 60 per cent of them and the industry is operated by a board of control consisting of employers and employees under Webb as chairman.

Owners of the mines taken over received profits based on the previous year's trading and would be compensated for any damage.

"Only one thing matters," namely maximum production, and we are getting that," Webb said, adding that all sides had co-operated in running the mines and production had beaten all records.

It is becoming axiomatic that each of Bette Davis' performances should top the one which preceded it. It happened with "Dark Victory", "The Old Maid," "All This And Heaven Too" and according to all advance reports, she rides to even greater glory in "The Letter."

"The Letter" tells a strange story. It tells of a beloved and sheltered woman who murders a man, murders him in cold blood, pumping his body full of bullets until her husband's gun is empty. Why did she do it? Well, she tells her husband and her lawyer that she did it to defend her honor. But it seems there was a letter... a letter in her handwriting addressed to the murdered man, and now in the possession of his widow, an Eurasian woman. If that letter were to show up in court, there could be no other verdict than "guilty". But down in the Chinese quarter of Singapore there is a mysterious transacton under cover of nght, and on the day of the trial, there is no sign of the letter.

These are the ingredients of the drama. Bette Davis is the central figure about which it revolves. Herbert Marshall is the husband, James Stephenson the lawyer who sacrifices his deep personal integrity to save the life of his friend's wife. Gale Sondergaard is the Eurasian woman. To tell more of the story would lessen its tremendous impact as it unfolds upon the screen in all its dramatic intensity.

The second feature on the same program is "Santa Fe Trail" starring Errol Flynn and Olivia De-Haviland with Raymond Massey, Ronald Regan and Allen Hale.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE

London, Jan. 25 — (CP Cable) — Definite arrangements for a meeting of Dominion prime ministers within the next few months have been made. Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee told the House of Commons today.

He said "for obvious reasons" it was not possible to announce the date of the meeting in advance.

Providence, R.I.—Patsy Brandino, 138 1-2, Hamilton, Ont., outpointed Pat Demers, 134 3-4, Brockton, Mass., 10. Jackie Collins, 160, Boston, outpointed Tony Brandino, 155 3-4, Hamilton.

PATSY BRANDINO BEATS DEMERS

Providence, R. I., Jan. 25—(CP)—Patsy Brandino, lightweight member of the fighting family team, of Hamilton, Ont., upheld the family honor at the Rhode Island Auditorium here Monday night by outpointing Pat Demers of Brockton, Mass., as handily as he had done in a previous meeting.

Patsy's triumph, in the feature 10-rounder of the night's card, saved the day for the Brandino family entry because Tony, middleweight member of the firm, had suffered his first pro defeat in a preliminary six-rounder at the hands of Jackie Collins of Boston. Collins, who scaled 160 pounds to Brandino's 151½, gained a split-decision verdict over the Hamilton boy.

Winner over Demers by means of a thumping body attack from in close when they first met here a couple of weeks ago, Patsy Brandino employed similar tactics to punch-out a virtually one-sided triumph in last night's return tussle. Brandino had winning margins in eight of the 10 rounds.

Brandino weighed 138½, Demers 134¾.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.)

(Associated Press' Sport Writer)

New York, Jan. 26. (AP) —The Phillies are coming up with a real double-no-hit pitcher this spring—but not just like Johnny Vander Meer. . . . He's Albert (Stumpy) Verdelle, who pitched two consecutive no-hitters for Bordentown (N.J.) Military Institute a few years ago and who compiled quite a record for Fort Dix before he was discharged because of a bad leg.

A Wac'y Game.

When the Fort Sheridan, Ill., WAC contingent met the American College of Physical Education in a basketball game recently, the girls had plenty of fun—but not the officials. . . . at half time Billy Andrews, quarterback of the post football team, came out with a chipped tooth where someone's elbow had struck him in a scramble and a little later Lieut. Grant Butler had to take time out to repair some scratches on his hand. . "They sure have long finger nails", he complained.

Shorts and Shells.

President Ford Frick of the National League is going to bat to fill the request brought back from Alaska by Frank Frisch, Danny Litwhiler, and Co., that one major league game a day should be broadcast, either directly or by recording, to the boys in the armed forces overseas.

SENTENCED FOR BIGAMY

Hamilton, Jan. 24 — (CP) — Ivy Mattice, 29, who last week pleaded guilty to a charge of bigamy, today was sentenced by Magistrate H. A. Burbidge to 12 months in reformatory.

Mrs. Mattice married Harry Ramsay Mattice in August, 1933, and had four children. In March, 1942, she went through a form of marriage in London, Ont., with Jack Burns Kaufman, a sailor, and police said she was supporting their 13-month-old child on his navy pay. Mattice also is in the armed forces.

Chicago, Jan. 25 — (AP)—Chick Evans, the original boy wonder of golf, probably is more content today than ever before.

Living in a modest flat on Chicago's north side, Chick, at the age of 53, is enjoying being a successful business man. This late chapter in his life actually amounts to the climax of his career.

As vice president of the Chicago Dairy, Chick has enough time to play weekend golf and compete in an occasional tournament. Although he announced his retirement from tourney golf a decade ago, he never has been able to rid himself of the competition bug.

The memories of the man who won 52 amateur titles, a record crowned by the feat of taking the National Amateur and National Open the same year — 1916 — also must include a dark side.

After winning his eighth western amateur title in 1923, Evans lost heavily off the stock market and was forced to file for bankruptcy. This eventually led to a nervous breakdown two years later. His game never was quite the same afterwards.

"Aim for a success in business and refuse to be exploited by business interests," Chick intently advises young amateur golfing enthusiasts.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was eating breakfast with her hat on, on her way downtown, saying to pop, William are you reaching for a 3rd cup of coffee? You know the doctor said nothing could be worse for your liver, she said.

Oh well, why should I delude myself? pop said. The cheering effects would probaby soon dissappear like a false light on an imaginary horizon. One artificial and temporary ray of hope and then I'd be dropped back in the dumps again, he said.

Dont sound so depressed and depressing ma said. If anything really seems to be troubling you, the best way is to discuss it frankly and it will probably dissappear like the desert snow. That reminds me, I cut a little verse out of the paper on that very subject. Here it is right here in my bag. I'll read it to you, she said.

[illegible] she did, being, Knawing thoughts all darkly hid, Are microbes kept from light of day, But if you firmly lift the lid, The sunlight withers them away.

Maybe you're right at that, pop said. There's probably no real foundation for it, he said, and ma said, For what, for land sakes, why dont you come right out with it?

Well, it's like this, pop said. The feeling is hard to explain, but I have a strange presentiment that you will demand your pound of flesh and insist on my going out to play bridge this evening just because I induced you to put the Hew's off from last night till tonight. Oh well, as you say, there's probably no foundation for it, he said, and ma said, There's plenty of foundation for it, in fact it's nothing but foundation for land sakes, such a man. So as long as you're looking for such an extreme impossible excuse you might as well take your 3rd cup of coffee and be done with it, she said.

Which he did, laughing out loud to himself.

19-YEAR-OLDS CALLED UP

Berne, Jan. 25 —(AP)— Switzerland is summoning her 19-year-olds for military service "due to actual necessities of the hour," Defence Minister Karl Kobelt said last night, because preparations for mobilization must be kept at such a point that the country can be placed in a state of defence in minimum time.

CHAPTER 11

"I don't like to be pawed."

"Naturally. But don't let the brashness of some men grow into a disgust for all men."

"Is that," asked Darnley, "what makes old maids?"

"A good many of them," De Groot grumbled.

"This," she asked, with twinkling eyes, "wouldn't be your oblique way of making a pass at me?"

"Heaven forbid!"

"Then," she told him, "I wouldn't worry I shan't be an old maid. I'm not really disgusted with men and certainly I'm not afraid of them. I'm simply putting my emotions in cold storage to keep them fresh and unspoiled."

"I hope so," he said, "but you make such a confoundedly thorough job of it that you may go too far."

Darnley went about a great deal, but that was part of her career. She felt she must be seen and talked about. In the beginning she had anticipated glamorous studio parties, very gay and Bohemian. There were no studio parties. Artists did not seem to be in the humor of Bohemianism. All the Bohemianism was carried on after business hours by brokers or advertising agency executives or financiers who felt they were living the large, free life if they had for guests a couple of painters and actors and a handful of beautiful girls.

She went to such affairs to further her ambition, but she was bored. Bohemianism, to be entertaining, must be genuine; or at least it must be the pretense of people with a flair for it. But at parties, at luncheons, she never lost sight of the main chance. She determinedly talked to people who could help her. And so her manner changed perceptibly. She no longer displayed that rather wide-eyed interest in people and things which had been so charming. She became intent. She walked Park Avenue with staccato little steps, as if she were always hurrying to an important destination. She was taking herself very seriously and no politician ever studied more deeply how to acquire a public office than Darnley studied how to become the Golden Blend Girl.

To Clyde Farrish's surprise and no little to his consternation, she took seriously his half-joking permission to guide the business side of his enterprise for thirty days.

She worried him about the sable coat. "But how," she demanded, "could it have been taken out of the studio?"

"By stealth," he said.

"We know everybody who was present."

"We think so."

"The police are confident none of these people left before the loss was discovered."

"Then somebody else must have sneaked in and out."

"I don't believe so," Darnley observed. "I don't like being under suspicion. I've laid awake nights thinking about it and trying to remember where everyone was and what he or she was doing. There are only two ways out of the studio—through the main entrance and to the freight elevators. Do you know what I think?"

Farrish grinned, "I'm beginning to believe nobody knows what you think."

"I believe," said Darnley, "the coat was here all the time—all the time the police were searching. And it was taken out later, when it was safe."

"Nonsense."

She nodded firmly. "And I'm sure," she said, "that the fur was not stolen for its value."

"Meaning what?"

"That it was taken to wreck this business."

"Pretty far-fetched."

"Think back," she said. "Remember the things that have happened. Somebody wants you to fail."

"But why?"

"I don't know. But why have people broken in here at night?"

"To steal, obviously."

"Obviously not—because they did not steal," she said. "They were looking for something."

"Your imagination," Clyde said, "is galloping in all directions."

"There is something here," Darnley insisted, "that someone has got to have."

With bewildering suddenness she changed the subject: "I haven't seen your salesman—the one who goes out and brings in business."

"Behold the man!" he said.

"You?"

"Why not?"

"We must have a solicitor," she went on, with that odd, intent, absorbed manner. "Not an order taker. My grandfather says real salesmen are born—and not very often. You say there isn't enough business. There is always enough business for someone. The one who makes money is the one who knows how to get more than his share. We must find a man who can bring in more than his share of orders."

"I've not done so badly."

"You were simply terrible," she said. "Your place is in the studio. You're art. You mustn't make yourself common by running around to offices. A salesman is necessary—the right kind."

"Can't afford it. When there's no work I might as well be out trying to get some. What will I do with my time?"

"Use it to build up a personality," she said.

"A what?"

"The sort of a personality that gets itself talked about. In your spare time, practice being eccentric."

"But I'm not eccentric."

"Few people are really," she said. "It's an act. But it takes planning and thinking."

"Everyone knows I'm not eccentric," he said plaintively."

"They knew it yesterday. But New York's memory is twenty-four hours long. Be eccentric today and tomorrow New York will think you always were that way."

"My dear," he demurred, "you are a button short. You tried the eccentricity dodge on the Jenks Agency and I lost a job that would have helped pay wages"

"I was right," she said stubbornly. "Wait and see."

The telephone rang. Having preempted Farrish's desk, she put the receiver to her ear, "Farrish Studio," she said.

"Jenks Agency," said a voice. Darnley clapped her hand over the transmitter. Her eyes were dancing with sudden excitement. "It's the Jenks Agency," she said to Farrish —then into the telephone, "Yes?"

"Listen," said the voice; "we're in a jam."

"I'm terribly sorry," she said. "I explained to you the other day. Mr. Farrish—"

"But this isn't a little odd job that's got us down. Will you tell Mr. Farrish that Schwartz & Cramer have just laid an egg with a color job for Pleiades Silk. It's been turned down flat. Let me speak to Mr. Farrish."

"He can't be disturbed," said Darnley promptly. "He—he is in the warm bath. Mr. Farrish always works out his intricate color blending problems in the warm bath."

Darnley gathered from stifled profanity that the voice on the other end of the wire was exasperated. "Drat such temperamental jitterbugs!" it exploded finally. Then, pleadingly: "This is a big job and a rush job. We're over a barrel. It's the cover for Pleiades' annual catalogue and it's vitally important. If Mr. Farrish will help us out, we won't forget it."

"I'll see if he'll let me speak to him," responded Darnley, and now her eyes were full of scintillating jewels. She pressed her palm firmly over the transmitter and waited a couple of minutes, while Farrish almost jumped up and down, reaching futilely for the instrument, which she perversely kept out of his reach.

Presently she spoke again. "I succeeded in reaching Mr. Farrish," she said ruefully, "and I almost got my hair torn out. It's good that he has a friendly feeling for your agency."

"Then he'll do it?"

"How soon can you have all materials and data here?"

"Twenty minutes."

"It is ten-seventeen," Darnley declared. "If you can have your stuff here by ten-forty Mr. Farrish will make time for you. He will give you the usual preview at two-thirty this afternoon."

"Preview?"

"Oh," explained Darnley, "you have never worked with Mr. Farrish! He insists on the preview. It saves time and uncertainty. At two-thirty. But, one moment—you are familiar with his schedule of prices?"

"Five hundred for a full-color job, isn't it?"

"You never got a Farrish for five hundred." It was true. Nobody had ever paid Farrish that sum for a photograph. "Seven hundred and fifty is his minimum."

There was an instant's hesitation and Darnley held her breath.

"Okay," thundered the voice. "The silks will be there in twenty minutes."

"Very well," she said and replaced the instrument. Then, tingling, exultant, aflame, she turned upon Farrish: "I've done it! I've proved it" She forgot Farrish in contemplation of herself. "I can do things," she almost sang.

"Light on something," snapped Farrish. "What is a preview?"

"You ought to know. You invented it."

"Yes, but remind me. I'm so forgetful."

"To take a color photograph," Darnley said, "you have to pose your model and your materials and throw your lights on them. Like a living picture. You have to make your composition and then take a photograph of it?"

"Naturally."

"A preview," said Darnley, "is letting the customer see the actual thing, lighted, posed. He sees what he is going to get in his photographs. You do it on a little stage, like in a little theatre with a curtain and doodads."

"A theatre?"

"About seventy cents' worth of draped black cloth enclosing just enough space. You can throw together a temporary stage and rig a curtain on wires. There'll have to be a frame, of course. Your men can do it in an hour. I'll go out and get the cloth."

Darnley went to the door, but paused on the threshold. "You've got to play up," she said firmly.

"How?"

"The Jenks Agency expect their money's worth of eccentricity," Darnley emphasized.

"I," stressed Farrish, "will not make an ass of myself."

She ignored that declaration. "And make it good," she said imperatively. "I thought this up. If you spoil it I'll—I'll fire you."

Farrish stared at the door when it closed behind her. "How," he asked aloud of the room, "did I grab hold of this buzz saw?"

• •

Darnley, as she walked up the street with concise, staccato steps, was pondering the subject of salesmanship. No matter how excellent your product, it had to be sold, and selling seemed to be a highly specialized art.

At the next corner was a little crowd, and Darnley's curiosity halted her. The knot of people surrounded a sidewalk hawker — a young man of girth and flashing teeth and an agile smile—who was selling cheap tin cameras for 49 cents. She listened for a moment, and remained, fascinated. Darnley even found her fingers on the fastening of her handbag. Here was salesmanship!

She edged her way through the crowd and he smiled at her amiably. "Do you," he asked, "really know anything about photography?"

He lowered his voice to a confidential whisper: "Not much, lady. But, lady, don't I sound as if I was Old Man Camera himself?"

"Do you make much money at this?" she asked.

"Not enough."

"Would you," she asked, "like a regular job?"

"Lady," he said, bending forward with the air of one imparting a secret of moment, "there ain't no such animal."

"If you would like one," she said, "come to the Farrish Studio in half an hour." She gave him the address.

Of course Clyde Farrish would have a fit. But, she told herself, it was an experiment worth trying. It could do no harm—and it might be one of those strokes of genius.

She made her purchases and returned to the studio. The hawker stood outside the door, his face rueful. "A man cast me forth," he announced.

She opened the door and motioned him in. Farrish was in the studio supervising the erection of the makeshift exhibition-room. Darnley drew him aside. "This," she said, indicating the stout young man, "is our new salesman."

"He is not," said Clyde.

"He is going to be tried. What is your name?" she asked.

"Terry Random."

"Your job," she said, "is to sell genius. The point is to convince advertising agencies and what not that Mr. Farrish is the greatest photographer of the age. If you can sell tin cameras you can sell anything. How much money you make is up to you, and it can be a lot. While we're making the experiment, you will have a guarantee of twenty-five dollars a week."

"Darnley," protested Farrish, "you've lost your mind!"

"It will cost twenty-five dollars to try it a week," she said. "Mr. Random, you will stay in the studio this afternoon and watch."

"I am a quick student," responded Random.

"Then," she said, "start in to do it. Mr. Farrish and I are going to be busy. Have the silks come?" she asked Clyde.

"Yes."

"Mr. Farrish," she said, "please try Mr. Random. Please."

He shrugged. "In for a penny, in for a pound," he grumbled.

"And play up this afternoon when the Jenks people come. They are all set to expect a performance. Won't you give it to them?"

"As a special favor," he said, "you may call me Clyde. Now go and annoy someone else. I'm busy."

They had coffee, sandwiches and a newspaper in Farrish's office at one o'clock. Clyde turned to Mr. Manhattan's column, and presently whistled. "Your friend Gorse," he said, "seems to have done pretty well for himself."

"Now what?"

"De Groot announces that he is about to marry Mrs. Dion Van Houten."

"Is that something?"

"She rates ten millions and the most beautiful back in New York."

"The second most beautiful," retorted Darnley. "Ten millions! Maybe he'll lose his interest in the photographic business."

"Gorse," said Farrish, "is moving up. He used to work for the people from whom I bought this studio and equipment."

Little wrinkles appeared at the corners of Darnley's eyes. "He used to work here?"

"Yes," said Farrish. "Gorse used to work here for sixty dollars a week."

"Why does he dislike you?" asked Darnley.

"I've never been able to guess that one. He's been that way ever since I refused to sell out to him."

"Do you mean Lacey Gorse tried to buy this studio?"

"He tried hard," said Farrish.

"When?"

"Off and on."

"Before he started going around with this Mrs. Van Houten?"

"I wouldn't know."

She changed the subject: "You're going to be nice about my salesman?"

"A pitchman selling high art will be a novelty."

"We need novelties." She was severe. "As a salesman you've been a complete flop. This studio must get a reputation; it must be publicized, be much talked about. Please try him on that job."

"Sold!" said Farrish, with the air of one who has been pestered into making a decision contrary to his judgment.

"Are you going to use me in this Pleiades Silk picture?" Darnley asked.

"Yes. You are here and handy."

"Clyde," she said, and it was the first time she had used his given name, "these agency people have got to have something to talk about when they leave. You've got to put on a show. If it's good, the news of it will travel like wildfire. Such things do."

"In my youth," he said wryly, "I used to be considered quite balmy. When I came into places they used to send in a call for the cops—just in case. That was before age and responsibilities quenched the flame."

Suddenly he grinned. His face became very boyish indeed, and carefree and debonair. She never had seen him so before.

"Off comes the strait jacket," he said. "Let the chips fall where they will. . . . Come on, let's get this composition set."

They went out into the hastily constructed preview room. Darnley mounted the little stage and was immediately surrounded by electrical equipment, spotlights, bunch lights, colored gelatins. Clyde stood frowning on the floor below her, staring first at her and then at a great heap of colored fabrics which the picture was to advertise.

LEARNS BOYS STOLE 18 STICKS OF DYNAMITE WHICH THEY HID

Brampton, Jan. 25 (CP)—When Sergeant Joseph Allen of the Brampton police force questioned four boys, aged 10 to 14, about throwing stones at the rear windows of a restaurant he also learned that they had stolen 18 sticks of dynamite and had it hidden along with two rolls of fuses.

The dynamite and fuses were stolen from a nearby gravel pit. The boys showed Allen where they were hidden, in a basket on the ledge of the Etobicoke river which flows under the town's main street.

Investigation in the case is continuing.

HOW TO RELIEVE
PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J. S. McKeown or any I.D.A or other drug store and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

Says Goering in Bulgaria, Sofia Called Dead City

London, Jan. 25 — (CP)—Reichsmarshal Goering is in Bulgaria, according to a Swiss report to Reuters news agency, and Moscow, which still maintains relations with that country, said chaos reigns in Sofia. A Soviet broadcast, quoting a Tass dispatch from Istanbul, said the debris-strewn Bulgarian capital was a dead city with only three restaurants open and these serving only soup.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Jan. 25 (CP)—Mining groups held their ground and small index losses were boarded by the industrial and western oils groups on the Toronto stock exchange today. Volume was smaller at 533,000 shares for the first three hours.

McKenzie and Madsen were strong issues in the gold group, trading in volume at gains of 7 to 10 cents. Other gainers were Beattie, Cochenour Wilans, Sullivan, Little Long Lac, East Malartic and Coniaurum. Prices were down for Bralorne, Lake Shore, Aunor, Bidgood and Quemont. Noranda and Smelters were stronger base metals.

Industrials showed a loss of .23 at noon. Utilities and papers were slightly weaker. Trading in the group was quiet.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Jan. 25 —(AP)—Selective advances, particularly among Specialties, helped offset continued apathetic shifts by many leaders in today's stock market. Near the fourth hour minor declines and gains were pretty well balanced with numerous issues unchanged.

Exceptions to the narrow movers were American & Foreign Power Preferreds which jumped 1 to 4 points. In front were International Telephone, Patino Mines, Goodyear, Woolworth, Santa Fe, Eastman Kodak and J. C. Penney. Losers included Bethlehem, N. Y. Central, Chrysler, Westinghouse, U. S. Rubber and Douglas Aircraft.

Most Canadian issues dropped fractionally. McIntyre, Dome Mines and Distillers-Seagrams were down ⅛ and Canadian Pacific lost ⅛. Hiram Walker was unchanged.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Jan. 25 (CP)—Cattle trade was very dull up to midsession on the livestock market here today with prices 25 cents lower for the week on steers and heifers and from 50 to 75 cents lower on cows. Lamb trade was slow with most of the offering unsold. Calves, sheep and hogs were steady.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 400, calves 60, hogs 600, sheep and lambs 60. Unsold from yesterday were 1,300 head of cattle.

Prices in the trade included:

Cattle: A few weighty steers $11-$13, butcher steers and heifers $10-$11.65, butcher cows $6.50-$8 with canners downward to $4.50, a few bulls $7.25-$8.50, fed yearlings $12-$13.

Calves: $15-$16 for choice, other grades downward to $9.

Lambs: A few good $13-$13.25, culls downward to $8.

Sheep:: A few $2-$6.

Hogs: $17.15 dressedweight with sows $13 dressed.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Jan. 25. (CP)—Receipts: cattle 346; sheep and lambs 70; hogs 700; calves 310.

Cattle, few canners and cutters $4.50 to $6. No sales on steers.

Lambs generally $10.50 in ungraded lots; few sheep $3 to $6.50; veal calves $15 to $16 for good to choice. Other grades $12.

Hogs $17.15 for basic grade. In addition to the $1 premium on "A" Grade already paid by packers, the Dominion Government is paying a premium of $3 for "A" Grade and $2 for "B" 1 Grade. There was no demand for sows.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 25 —(CP)—Prices were unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight: Chatham $16.40 plus transportation, Hamilton $17.05 delivered, Hull $16.95 delivered, Barrie, London, Stratford $17 delivered.

Diplomats Expect Sensational News From Buenos Aires

Montevideo, Uruguay, Jan. 25 —(AP)—Diplomats here said a sensational announcement is expected to be made today in Buenos Aires—with a strong possibility it would be a formal declaration by Argentina breaking relations with the Axis countries.

Such a decision ostensibly would be based upon discovery of a pro-Axis espionage ring which led to arrest of an Argentine Consul by British authorities at Trinidad, authoritative sources said. They expressed belief United States State Secretary Cordell Hull had refrained yesterday from mentioning Argentina in connection with the Bolivian coup d'etat, because Argentina had advised the U.S. Ambassador of her contemplated step.

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 25 —(AP)— Argentina is expected to break relations with the Axis before Saturday night, it was learned reliably today.

Shannonville

Shannonville — Cpl. James Houston, of the R.C.A.F., Toronto, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. David Houston.

Mr. Wm. Waudby, who has been a patient at Christie Street Hospital for the past three months, is spending a week with his brother, Art Waudby.

The Women's Guild of the Anglican Church held its annual business meeting at the rectory on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Neal Logan has returned home after spending three weeks with her sister at Lindsay.

The Red Cross met at the home of Mrs. Arthur Houston on Tuesday afternoon.

Lieut. Keith Lougheed, Mrs. Lougheed and Dian are visiting at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Lougheed.

Mr. Bruce Reid of the R.C.A.F., Toronto, is spending two weeks' at his home in the village.

Miss Ruth Reid and Leslie Reid spent the weekend with relatives at Marlbank.

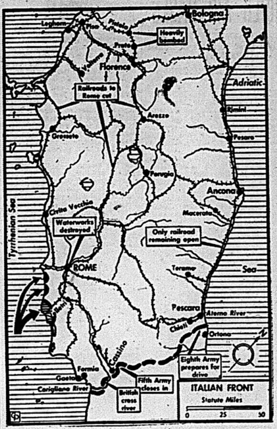
ACTION IN ITALY—BY LAND, AIR, SEA



Allied air activity smashing the Rome waterworks and cutting rail lines in the north forced the Germans to rush reinforcements to their Bologna-Ancona-Pescara line. Seizing the opportunity Allied amphibious forces stormed ashore below Rome in a leap frog movement, as indicated by the dark arrows on the map.

BONARLAW

25-Year Jewel Is Presented At I.O.O.F. Annual Dance

Bonarlaw, Ont., Jan. 25. — The Springbrook Lodge of Independent Order of Oddfellows held their annual dance in the Orange Hall, Springbrook, on Friday evening, with a large attendance. The Jones Orchestra of Marmora, furnished excellent music for both round and square dancing and W. McMullen acted as floor manager.

A bountiful lunch was provided.

An interesting feature of the evening was the presentation to Past Grand Howard Martin of a veteran's 25-year-jewel. The presentation was made by the District Deputy Grand Master, Earl Fox of Stirling, who predicted for Springbrook Lodge a year of progress and referred to the fact that Past Grand Martin is this year again Noble Grand and Degree Master of the Lodge. Mr. Martin replied in few well chosen words thanking the District Deputy and the officers and members of his lodge and assuring them that he would do all in his power to further the interests of the lodge during his term of office and throughout the coming years.

JAPAN IS PAYING STEEP PRICE TO HOLD AIR BASES

Country Has Lost 300 Planes in Last 30 Days in South-West Pacific

486 IN DECEMBER

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Jan. 25 — (AP) — Fighting desperately to halt Allied air blows at her southwest Pacific air and sea bases, Japan is paying a steep price—more than 350 planes in 30 days over Rabaul alone — yet has failed to stop the devastating daily parade of bombers.

The enemy's Rabaul, New Britain, losses from Dec. 23 to Jan. 24 totalled 349 definite, plus many others probably downed, a South Pacific headquarters spokesman said today. The Allies lost only 79. (In the calendar month of December, Japan lost 486 planes to 68 in the entire Pacific.)

In two big raids alone, on Japanese bases at Wewak, New Guinea, and Rabaul, New Britain, the past week-end, the enemy lost 51 planes and 14 probables, an Allied communique said today.

Australian ground forces 20 miles below Bogadjim, south of Madang, New Guinea, overran the Shaggy Ridge area in the Ramu Valley, the communique reported. They continued to advance, trapping some enemy units and capturing much enemy artillery and ammunition.

SPORTS

Seniors Swamp Juniors

The Boys' Senior Basketball team proved too much for the Juniors last Thursday, as they trounced the under-dogs to the tune of 34-15 in a pre-season exhibition game. The Juniors tried hard and played a good game, but just didn't have the goods to overcome their much taller and more experienced players. The game began rather slowly, neither side being able to get their plays clicking, but picked up in the second quarter, and the first half ended 19-11 with the Seniors leading.

In the second half, the Seniors took the spotlight, as they dropped in seven baskets, while the Juniors scored two. For the Seniors, Mason was the high-scorer with ten points, while Robb and Boyle each accounted for six. Rollins carried most of the play for the Juniors, scoring six points, while Bill Spafford collected four.

The lineups:

Seniors: Mason, 10; Boyce, 6; Robb, 6; Bankier, 4; Wood, 4; Smith, 2; Locke, 2; Garrow; Mifflin; Kellet.

Juniors: Rollins, 6; Spafford, 4; Massey, 2; Ritz, 2; Lyall, 1; Shore, Wonnacott; Watson; Vaughan; Watkins.

SOCIAL

Lo, the Disappearing Stag

Last Wednesday the Girls' Cadette Corps played host at a tea dance in the Girls' Gym. The dance began rather slowly, with only a few couples dancing, but due to the popular music and a number of girls who busied themselves trying to introduce the boys to the girls, the stag line soon disappeared into the laughing, swelling crowd on the dance floor.

The girls produced something unique when they served "Coke" as a refresher, which left many a student wondering from what place the Cadettes produced so much of the popular beverage.

Apparently the girls who handled the advertising didn't quite know which month they were in, for a few of the brighter students of the school (of which we have many) noticed that the poster on the bulletin board in front of the office carried the clear inscription: "November 19". Still, the student body was well represented, making the dance very successful, and netting the Cadettes about $15.

First Formers' Shindig

Last Friday night, many students of IX-B attended a party at the home of Margaret Winters. They assembled at 7:30, and left shortly after for the theatre, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. R. Neil.

After the show, they wandered back to Margaret's home on John Street to have refreshments (hot dogs, cookies and chocolate milk) and to play games. Although the form had difficulty in changing from a skating party to a theatre party the affair was very successful.

LITERATURE

Farewell, 'Toinette

Amongst the new books donated to the school by the Library Club is this novel by B. Harding. It is an entertaining piece of light fiction, dealing with the reign of Louis XV, around the time of the marriage of Marie Antoinette to the future Louis XVI.

The story is of a masquerade which Marie enjoyed on her way to be married in France. A German noble invites the royal party to his palace, but when Marie's brother refuses, saying that he would rather spend the night at the local hostelry, the castle is turned into a huge, magnificient hotel to accommodate the future Queen of France. The merry intrigue is uncovered, and Marie proceeds to Versailles.

The main plot is cobweb thin, for the novel gains its interest from the many quaint legends and lesser-known historical facts that are woven into the tale. For example, there is the history of the handkerchief. It was the custom of Marie's time to weep upon milady's sleeve, but she improved on the idea by tearing off a square of lace, and using it instead. Quickly copied, the fad is with us today.

The characterization is clear and varied, and the style is modern and interesting. We recommend this book, especially, to students of the time of the French revolution, as an intriguing method of dusting off the more remote corners of historical fact.

MUSTARD POULTICES

GREAT HELP IN NURSING LITTLE KIDDIES

ORIGINALLY of Lancashire, England, Mrs. W. A. Potter, now of Swift Current, Saskatchewan, says that in her estimation, there is no household remedy that takes the place of mustard. She has used mustard in many ways to help combat various ailments among her own six children and always with good results.

Chest and Bronchial Colds

"I have used mustard frequently," said Mrs. Potter, "to help relieve chest and bronchial colds in the case of adults, both men and women. These troubles can be very aggravating but I have always found that relief comes much more quickly if mustard poultices and foot baths are used. I can say quite definitely that the use of mustard helps to make all such troubles much less formidable." Mrs. Potter concluded by saying, "I would never think of being without a can of mustard in my home."

Always Buy Pure Mustard

No better proof of the fine medicinal properties of mustard exists than the fact that thousands of people like Mrs. Potter use it year after year with excellent results. Keep mustard in your home—always handy for foot baths, complete baths and mustard poultices or plasters to relieve chills, colds, or when you feel depressed by Grippe or some other winter infection. Use it to help relieve pains of Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Arthritis, Neuritis, over-tired muscles, etc. Call a doctor promptly if symptoms are serious.

Be sure that you get famous Keen's D.S.F. Mustard, made entirely from mustard seed of highest quality, and packed to preserve its uniform quality and full, medicinal strength. Sold by grocers and druggists everywhere.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the R. C. A. F. Somewhere in England, Jan. 25—(CP)—Harry Malkin, D. F. C., 28-year-old Verdun, Que., ace, has been promoted to the rank of wing commander and assigned to important new training duties in the Canadian Bomber Group. New "Chief Gander" of the Goose Squadron is Wing Cmdr. David Jacobs, D. F. C., of Calgary. His successor as tactics officer at Group Headquarters is Sqdn. Ldr. Byron Rawson, D. F. C., of Hamilton, Ont., formerly of the Bison crew.

Wing Cmdr. Bill Newson, D. F. C., of the Iroquois Squadron, has a League of Nations of his own. Included in his aircrew roster are chaps from Uruguay, Jamaica, Australia, the United States, British Isles and, as one wisecracker put it, from Toronto.

Dots and Dashes ....

Flt. Lt. Barney Keenan of the Bluenoses was a commercial pilot in the U. S. before rising to the eminence of 2 i/c of a Halifax squadron flight. His home's at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. . . . Sqdn. Ldr. Lloyd Linnell, also a Bluenoser, is passing out the cigars on behalf of a new bomber pilot born to Mrs. Linnell at Calgary . . . Sgt. John (Sharpy) Keene or Orono, Ont., varied his usual procedure of making a three-engine trip home from Leipzig . . . This time he came in on four engines but only three propellors . . . The fourth was knocked out over the target.

PO. Don Rae, a Leaside Squadron pilot, got homesick flying on the same raid. "The snow I saw on the ground made me think of home," observed the Regina lad . . . Sgt. Ihil Lebel, Lion Squadron tail-gunner, made his 13th trip, also to Leipzig, a good one. "One of the best prangs I've seen yet," the Montrealer commented.

Flt. Sgt. C. C. Thompson, who aims bombs from a Halifax of the Moose Squadron, says the natives of Frankfurt are unfriendly. On a recent trip he had the perspex of his "office" shattered, and other damage was done to the aircraft by a reception committee in the form of a night fighter. . . People in Silton, Sask., are much more hospitable, he says . . . Even the people of England can be inhospitable if they think you're a Nazi, says Sgt. L. J. Oshowy, a Ghost Squadron gunner from Windsor, Ont. Forced to bail out with other members of his crew, he was greeted by a farmer toting a shotgun. Oshowy had to do some fast talking.

Sqdn. Ldr. Ted Blenkinsop of Victoria used to chum around with another lad at No. 1 I. T. S. at Toronto when they were AC2's. Their paths divided and the pair were reunited when they were crewed up with the Alouette Squadron in North Africa. The other is Flt. Lt. Don Wilson of Toronto, who has just won the D. F. C.

Newest habitue of the officers' mess on the station commanded by Group Capt. R. C. Gordon of Vancouver is red-haired Bill Cooke of Hamilton who has just been commissioned after doing a lot of navigating for Flt. Lt. Johnny Taylor of the Bluenoses.

Twice Wounded, Sgt. Craddock Now in England

FO. Jack Ketcheson of Trenton in Bomber That Knocked Out Heinkels

Trenton, Jan. 25 (Special)—Wounded first during the battle of Sicily and then in the battle of Italy, Sergeant Kenneth Craddock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Craddock, Wragge Street, Trenton, is now reported to be in England and will come to Canada.

Sergt. Craddock enlisted with the Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment at the outbreak of war and went overseas with them in December 1939. He was wounded in Sicily early in August but had sufficiently recovered that he was able to go along with his regiment when it left for Italy. The first wound was in the right elbow but now he has been reported as having wounds on the left arm and head. He spent almost three months in hospital in North Africa but landed in England just two days before Christmas.

Although he was unable to spend the holiday with his wife, whom he had married while in England, he was able to speak with her by telephone.

Before enlisting Sergeant Craddock was a valued employee of the Downs-Coulter Co. of Trenton.

PO. Russel Wilkins of the R.C.A.F., Hagersville; and Miss Alice Wilkins of Queen's University, Kingston, spent the weekend with their mother Mrs. C. V. Wilkins, Marmora Street.

Miss Lillian MacPhail spent the weekend with friends in Toronto.

WO2. Bob Jackson of Paulson, Man., is spending leave at his home with Chief Constable and Mrs. Bain, 124 Shuter Street.

Mrs. Scott of Toronto, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. James Cos, Dundas Street West.

Miss Phyllis Hendricks of Toronto, spent the weekend at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. Hendricks, York Road.

One of Bomber's Crew

Among the crew of the Liberator bomber who recently knocked down two Hinkels and a probable third when they attacked an important convoy 700 miles off the coast of the British Isles was Flying Officer Jack Ketcheson of Trenton.

Jack is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Casey Ketcheson, R.R. No. 5 Sidney township, and has been overseas since early last year. He enlisted first in July 1939 taking a mechanics course. He later re-mustered to air crew and took his training at Belleville, St. Eugene, Quebec and Moncton where he got his wings and commission, and left almost immediately for overseas.

He has written to his parents of some interesting experiences during his coastal patrol duties but none more so than the details of this latest fight. FO. Ketcheson was second pilot on the Liberator and the captain and two other members were awarded the D.F.C. and the D.F.M. for their part in the show while all members of the crew were given ten days leave with all expenses paid at the finest hotel in Edinburgh, Scotland.

A brother PO. Bill Ketcheson who graduated at Uplands just a few months ago has been taking an instructor's course at Trenton Airport but left last week for Weyburn, Sask.

Allan Mills

Allan Mills—Mr. and Mrs. Fred McKeown spent Wednesday evening with Mrs. Morton, it being the occasion of Mrs. Morton's 81st birthday.

The funeral of the late Mr. Frank Anderson was held from the home of his brother, Mr. and Mrs. Mac Anderson on Wednesday afternoon at 1.30. The service was held in Rylestone United Church. Rev. J. R. Holden was in charge of service. Miss Isabelle Irwin rendered a solo, "The Beautiful Garden". Left to mourn his loss are three brothers, John in the West, Edward of Stanwood and Maxwell of Allan's Mills, one sister, Mrs. Alex Green of Campbellford.

A sister, Mrs. Varcoe predeceased him a month ago. Interment was held at Rylestone cemetery. The pall bearers were Messrs. A. Burkitt, A. Thomson, F. M. Rutherford, Thos. Reid, Wm. Allan, R. Lain.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred McKeown received a cable, stating their son, LAC. Don. McKeown has arrived overseas.

Mr. and Mrs. Morley Tanner of Campbellford visited Mr. and Mrs. G. Burkitt on Friday evening.

There is still a great deal of Ontario awaiting full development, with the resources and the space for many new citizens.

The graph shows Ontario's pre-war contribution to the total Canadian production. Ontario's industrial expansion is only just begun. It means countless jobs in post-war years.

In 1940, Ontario, one of the world's richest sources of minerals, mined a quarter-billion dollars' worth. There are still immense areas awaiting development.

Peace will bring the need for new homes by the tens of thousands, creating new jobs for construction workers.

In 1940, Ontario's gross agricultural wealth was $1,409,604,000. There are rich farm lands still untouched in Ontario. The nations of the world must be fed after the war. The answer is a simple but expanding arithmetic.

If Ontario's pre-war investment in its manufacturing establishments was more than $3½ billions, what of the Future? Victory Loan investments in Ontario totalling $2,890,085,700, will project themselves into peace.

Ontario has only begun to tap its resources in electrical power. After the war, more and more sources will be harnessed to meet the growing demand of an electrical life.

HERE IS YOUR PROVINCE, as portrayed by the British Ministry of Information in their magnificent map of Canada, reproduced in miniature below.

Study it carefully, people of Ontario, and let your pride in what has been accomplished be tempered by your realization of the vast, undeveloped potential of this great country.

That is what we mean when we talk of "Ontario Unlimited" and of "Canada Unlimited". Here, is the foundation for the brave new world which we will create when the war is won.

That new world will be built on the things that exist.

It will be the product of our lands, our streams, our mines, our forests, our industries, coupled with an eager, confident will to make jobs and security and plenty for all.

Ontario's contribution will be great. The material basis for a new way of life exists here in abundance.

It is our confidence in our will and our power to translate these things into a far, far better world that keeps us buying and holding our War Savings Certificates, and our Victory Bonds.

ARGENTINA BREAKS WITH GERMANY AND JAPAN

Cairo Radio Says Allies Nineteen Miles From Rome

Members of High Society Involved In Axis Spy Ring

Many Arrests Made Before Ramirez Signs Decree at 8.10 A. M. Wed.

LAST TO TAKE ACTION

By STANLEY ROSS
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Buenos Aires, Jan. 26.—(AP)—Argentina today broke off relations with Germany and Japan. She was the lact nation in the Americas to break with the Axis.

The German and Japanese ambassadors will be handed their passports today.

Ramirez signed a decree breaking relations with Germany and Japan which declared an immense Axis spy system had been discovered in the country involving members of high society in Argentina.

Many arrests were made last night.

"Sensational Revelations"

Ramirez signed the decree at 8.10 a.m., and Foreign Minister Alberto Gilbert immediately went to the Foreign Ministry where he awaited the Chilean Ambassador Rios Gallardo.

It was said "sensational revelations" concerning the spy ring would be made.

Rios Gallardo expressed great pleasure at the Argentine decision, asserting that Argentina now stood with the rest of the countries of the Americas in a united front against the Axis.

A series of government conferences on foreign policy had extended far into the night but early today Argentina's intentions had been clouded by uncertainty.

Washington, (AP)—United States government official made no immediate comment today as Argentina announced her long-delayed break in diplomatic relations with the Axis powers, and there appeared to be a disposition here to adopt a "wait and see" attitude pending action on related orders which normally attend such breaks.

Such orders usually extend to suspension of communications facilities, such as radio-telephone and radio-telegraph, and termination of commercial relationships.

On the basis of past statements by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, it could be assumed there was gratification here that the action at Buenos Aires will close the last German and Japanese embassies in the western hemisphere.

Churchill Will Submit Request To Committee

London, Jan. 26 — (CP Cable) — Prime Minister Churchill has decided to refer the Welsh Parliamentary Party's request for establishment of a Welsh office and a Secretary of State for Wales to a committee of cabinet members for examination, it was announced today.

Welsh Members of Parliament hailed the decision — announced in a letter to Col. Arthur Evans, until last week the party's chairman —as a great triumph and an important concession from Mr. Churchill's stand of last November. At that time he said the requested steps were "too controversial" for discussion during the war.

The Prime Minister told Col. Evans that besides referring the matter to a cabinet committee he would be prepared to see a deputation "when the time is propitious." He had declined last November to receive a delegation. Considerable feeling was aroused in Wales by his refusal, and he was asked to reconsider it.

Miss Megan Lloyd George, daughter of the former Prime Minister, has succeeded Col. Evans as chairman of the party and will preside at a meeting to discuss a reply to the Prime Minister's letter.

DENIES CLAIMS OF MIKHAILOVIC

Cairo Correspondent Says No Evidence is Seen of Germans Attacking Mikhailovic

London, Jan. 26 — (CP-Reuters) —The News Chronicle's Cairo correspondent cabled today:

"Claims of Gen. Draja Mikhailovic that he is occupying whole regions in different parts of Yugoslavia and that his troops are successfully waging war against the Germans are completely untrue.

"There is no evidence here that the Germans have attacked Mikhailovic forces anywhere. Territorial claims made in a communique dated Jan. 11 are equally unfounded. They hold a dozen isolated pockets in southern Serbia and that is all.

"German troops with Partisans in the north are in control of the rest. In Montenegro at least 60 per cent of the region is held by Partisans and the rest by Germans and pro-German Chetniks.

"In Dalmatia all mountain ranges mentioned are held by German divisions and Chetniks who, it is true, are in control of the Cinara range and are under the command of notorious collaborationist Djujich, never officially disclaimed by Mikhailovic and are guarding roads and railways for the Germans.

"Finally Moslem leader Huska, whom the communique reports as having come to Mikhailovic with 2,000 Moslems, is one of the most notorious of all Ustashi murderers.

"These facts are reported in some detail to clear the air of rumor. They mean that communiques and reports put out by the Yugoslav government from Cairo are not to be trusted."

NAZI-CONTROLLED PARIS RADI MAKES CLAIM OR RAID LOSSES

London, Jan. 26 —(CP)— The German-controlled Paris radio said today that Allied air raids had killed 15,000 Parisians, injured 20,000 and have made more than 1,000,000 homeless up to and including Jan. 23. The broadcast was recorded by the Associated Press.

Three Convicted Men Sentenced

Toronto, Jan. 26 (CP)—Sentences were handed down today for three Toronto men convicted Monday on charges of conspiracy in attempting to obtain deferments from military service.

Naiffe Stephen was sentenced to five years in penitentiary on each of two charges, the sentences to run concurrently. Robert Douglas and R. A. Allen received concurrent sentences of four years on the two charges in the indictment: of impeding operation of Selective Service Mobilization Regulations, and conspiring "to counsel by oral communication other persons to omit to comply with call-up notices."

There has been no action taken yet to appeal the convictions, although Allen and Stephen previously had signified their intention to carry their cases to the Ontario Appeal Court. The four men were arrested last July after a four-month investigation by Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Bolivia Protests Negative Attitude

La Paz, Bolivia, Jan. 26 (AP)—The Bolivian Foreign Ministry today sent a memorandum to Foreign Consulates protesting the 'negative attitude" which it said the governments of other American Republics had taken towar the government of President Gilberto Villarroel.

(Great Britain and 17 American Republics, including the United States, have announced their decision to withhold recognition of the Villarroel regime. The only western hemisphere nation which has so far recognized the regime is Argentina.)

The memorandum said that "not one word or act outside the Republic of Bolivia" could affect the government's "openly democratic guidance" of the nation.

Some Canadians May Be With Special Service Force in Nettuno Landing

By WILLIAM STEWART
(CP War Correspondent)

London, Jan. 26 —(CP Cable)— Composition of the Anglo-American invasion force which struck at Italy's West Coast at dawn Saturday remains a military secret.

Fresh Canadian formations which reached Italy last November are not thought to be part of the strongly-armed assault group which landed with clock-like precision in the Nettuno-Anzio area and now is pushing inland.

It is just possible that Canadians who are with a special service force in Italy played a part in the landings, although there has been no official mention of ts participation.

A Stockholm report, however, claimed Allied specialist trops with the assistance of Italian partisans cut three bridges in the Rome area, presumably behind the German lines.

RUSSIANS ISOLATE 250,000 GERMANS NEAR LENINGRAD

Enemy Cut Off When Reds Nip 2 Main Railroads Running West, South of City

USE SECONDARY LINES

London, Jan. 26 (CP)—The capture of Krasnoggardeisk was announced today by Marshal Stalin in an order of the day.

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Jan. 26 — (AP) — The great Russian northern offensive has reached the two main railroads running west and south of Leningrad, cutting off approximately 250,000 Nazi troops from direct communication with the rest of the German army.

A Soviet war communique last night said Gen. Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad army had fought its way into the strategic rail hub of Krasnogvardeisk, 30 miles southwest of Russia's second city to sever the important trunk line running west to the Estonian city of Reval. Krasnogvardeisk is also the northern terminus of a railway running southwest to Luga and Puskov.

Govorov's troops stormed into Krasnogvardeisk from Pushkin, 14 miles to the northeast, and front dispatches reported that the town, already outflanked from the east and west, was expected to fall momentarily.

Tosno Threatened

Vladimirskaya, nine miles east of Krasnogvardeisk on a branch line to Tosno, junction point on the Leningrad-Moscow main railway line, was captured in this drive, while other units of Govorov's forces moved across the Leningrad-Moscow line between Tosno and Chudovo. (A British radio broadcast, recorded by CBS, said today Tosno's capture was expected soon.)

The Germans were reported battling violently to hold their grip on these main rail arteries but their use of them already has been neutralized by Govorov's swift advance and the Nazis have been forced to fall back on two secondary lines running south to a junction with other railroads serving Luga and Pskov.

These lines, however, were simultaneously threatened by the westward advance of Gen. K. A. Meretskov's Volkhov army from Novgorod, which already is reported close to the junction points so vital to German escape plans.

The main Moscow-Leningrad railway was breached in a swift drive from Kirishi, 28 miles northeast of Chueovo.

1,800 Germans Killed

More than 1,800 Germans were reported killed in yesterday's fighting south of Leningrad. Booty included an entire German military train stocked with tanks and guns, the Soviet communique said.

Capture by Meretskov of Ostrov, nine miles east of the Leningrad-Vitebsk railway, placed that escape valve within range of Soviet big guns, thus throwing the main weight of Nazi withdrawal on the last line available—the Leningrad-Pskov-Warsaw Railway.

Hull States Russia Rejects U.S. Offer to Act As Mediator

Washington, Jan. 26 (AP)—State Secretary Cordell Hull announced today that Russia had rejected the offer of the United States to employ its "good offices" in restoring diplomatic relations between Poland and Russia.

Hull made the announcement at a news conference.

He brought out that the Russians took the position that they do not feel the situation between themselves and Poland is right for successful use of the U.S. offer at this time.

The reply states, Hull said, that the Soviet government does not feel that conditions have yet ripened to a point where such good offices could be used to advantage.

The Russians began their note of rejection, he said, with an expression of appreciation for the offer.

What further action if any, the United States may take, either alone or in co-operation with Britain which also has offered to seek a resumption of relations between Poland and Russia, remained unanswered by Hull.

WARTIME CHANGES IN MAP OF EUROPE NOT RECOGNIZED

Eden Reiterates Britain's Policy in House of Commons

QUOTES CHURCHILL

By ROGER GREENE
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 26—(AP)—Cautiously sidestepping a showdown on the ticklish question of Polish territorial sovereignty, Foreign Secretary Eden reaffirmed today Britain's policy of not recognizing wartime changes in the map of Europe.

However, he left a loophole by quoting the statement of Prime Minister Churchill that no changes would be recognized "unless they take place with the free consent and goodwill of the parties concerned."

Mr. Eden reiterated two previous statements of British policy, Mr. Churchill's words just quoted and Mr. Eden's own statement in 1941 that "His Majesty's government do not recognize any territorial changes which have been effected in Poland since August, 1939."

The combination was interpreted here as meaning that Britain, while not taking sides in the Russian-Polish wrangle, would accept any mutually agreed solution reached by the Soviet and Polish governments.

Referring to a statement on non-recognition of Polish territorial changes which he had addressed to the late Premier Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski in 1941 after Russia and the Polish government in exile had signed a pact, Mr. Eden told the House of Commons:

"This remains the position. His Majesty's government of course stands on the principles enunciated in the Atlantic charter."

Russia recently proposed that the Polish-Soviet frontier be adjusted on the basis of the Curzon line proposed by an Allied commission after the First Great War. This line would leave Russia in possession of most of the territory she took in 1939.

Suggested Mediation

The Polish government in London suggested Britain and the United States mediate the dispute, but the Soviet announced it considered the Polish stand a rejection of its offer of settlement of the boundary controversy.

He also quoted Prime Minister Churchill's statement of Sept. 3, 1940, in which he declared that "we have not at any time adopted since the war broke out the line that nothing could be changed in the territorial structure of various countries. On the other hand, we do not propose to recognize any territorial changes which take place during the war, unless they take place with the free consent and good will of the parties concerned."

Mr. Eden then told the House that "this statement represents the view of His Majesty's government."

Asked if he would make it plain that Churchill's statement was not intended to refer to enemy territory, he replied:-

"No, sir, I don't think there's any misunderstanding about that. So far as enemy countries are concerned, they are governed by terms already announced of unconditional surrender."

GIVEN APPOINTMENT

London, Jan. 26—(CP)—Air Marshal Sir Arthur Coningham has been appointed commander of No. 2 Tactical Air Force of the R. A. F., based in Britain, the Air Ministry announced Monday. He has taken over the new post. Previously he commanded No. 1 Tactical Air Force in the Mediterranean Air Command.

DAWN-TO-DUSK PATROLS HAMMER FRENCH COAST

Unspecified Objectives Hit by Mosquitos During the Night

U. S. BOMBERS OUT

London, Jan. 26 — (CP)—Allied bombers and fighters hammered targets in northern France for the fourth straight day today after swift R.A.F. Mosquitos had broken a one-night lull in the Allied aerial offensive by stabbing at unspecified objectives in western Germany.

R.A.F. raiders also struck at northern France during the night operations, which were carried out without loss, said the air ministry.

The day raiders encountered poorer conditions than yesterday, when the weather was almost ideal, and were flying under a layer of light cloud as they swept across the Channel.

United States Thunderbolts dropped bombs on enemy airfields at Gilzerijen, Holland, yesterday for the second time in three days as other Allied planes rocked the French coast for the third straight day and the 15th time this month.

The Americans bombed airfields at Leeuwarden, also in Holland, while Thunderbolt fighters swept the entire Zuider Zee area. The American operations were carried out without loss.

Strong formations of bombers and fighters hit the French coast in the morning and returned to drop more explosives in the afternoon. The raids were carried out by R. A. F., Dominion and Allied medium bombers and fighter-bombers escorted by fighters. Two of the latter failed to return.

Gen. Mark Clark Inspects Beach

By CLARK LEE
Distributed by the Canadian Press

At an invasion beachhead in Italy, Jan. 25—(delayed)—Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark, commander of the 5th Army, inspected this beachhead this morning, watched the troops and expressed complete satisfaction with the progress in this sector.

The General told me that everything was going well and according to plan. He said the Germans were fighting hard on the Cassino front to prevent a 5th Army breakthrough.

As on his previous visit on the forenoon of D-day, Gen. Clark found himself on the beach itself during an enemy air raid only 100 yards from the ships which were the targets of the German fighter-bombers.

On D-day six planes dropped 10 to 12 bombs a short distance away, and this morning eight 250-pound hit the beach and the water, missing the landing craft which were discharging troops.

Put Out Fire of Engine Of Taxiing Plane; Sir J. Dill Unshaken

Toronto, Jan. 26 — (CP) — Field Marshal Sir John Dill and Lady Dill stepped unshaken from a Royal Air Force bomber today after one of its twin engines caught fire as the aircraft taxied to a halt at nearby Malton airport.

Flames shot high in the air before being extinguished by ground crew. Sir John and Lady Dill remained in the aircraft until the fire was out.

Sir John arrived in Toronto to address a luncheon meeting of the Irish Protestant Benevolent Association today.

SOVIET SQUARELY BLAMES GERMANY FOR MASSACRE

11,000 Bodies In Polish Uniforms Found Dead in Katyn Forest

POLES BLAMED REDS

By JUDSON O'QUINN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 26—(AP).—A special Soviet investigating commission today placed the blame squarely on the Germans for the Katyn Forest massacre of 11,000 Polish war prisoners. This incident led to a break in diplomatic relations between the Soviet and the Polish government in London when the latter asked the International Red Cross to investigate after Germans blamed the Russians for the atrocity.

The report may have an important bearing on the Russian-Polish border dispute, an issue which reechoed in the House of Commons again today.

The Moscow radio announced the special Soviet investigating commission had found that the 11,000 bodies in Polish uniforms buried 10 miles from Smolensk without coffins, at the latest in the spring of 1942, were those of "Polish war prisoners shot by the German invaders."

"The experts made a thorough investigation of the bodies, documents and factual evidence found on the bodies and in the graves", said the broadcast. "All this evidence establishes precisely the time and the circumstances of the crimes perpetrated by the German invaders".

Moscow first announced that the Commission was studying the Katyn "massacre" on Jan. 17, and promised early findings after noting that the Soviet government could not deal with the Polish government in London because the Poles had asked the international Red Cross to investigate German charges that the killings were done by the Russians.

German propagandists said Polish soldiers and officers had been killed during the Russian occupation of Smolensk. The Poles asked for and then withdrew a request for a Red Cross investigation of the accusations. Meanwhile, however, Moscow severed relations with the Polish government in London.

The announcement today said that when the Germans invaded the Smolensk district three camps for Polish prisoners-of-war were situated 15 and 27 miles west of Smolensk, and the Poles working on roads, fell into the hands of the Germans.

Moscow announced Jan. 17 the commission included the writer, Alexei Tolstoi, who wrote the "I demand vengeance" account of atrocities in Stalino, and Metropolitan Nikolai of the Russian Orthodox Church, among others.

Want Shakeup in Gov't.

The Commission charged the massacre was perpetrated by the Germans to place the blame on the Soviet Union, to wipe out enemies of the Germans and to swell German statistics of enemy casualties.

The Soviet atrocity report was studied by the Polish government here.

The Russians previously had indicated they want a shake-up in the Polish government to eliminate some cabinet members who were inclined to accept the German version ac-

Deck Officer Frantically Searches For Ship's Cat When Ship Torpedoed

(Written for the Associated Press)
By LIEUT. WILLIAM J. DONOGHUE

Naples, Jan. 25—(AP)— Men do strange things when a terrific explosion blows their ship apart and they hear the order to abandon ship. Here are samples of what happened when an American merchant ship struck an underwater explosive recently in the Mediterranean:-

1. A deck officer frantically searched for the ship's cat—completely ignoring his personal belongings. The cat was about to produce kittens, and there had been considerable finance speculation among the crew as to when the litter would arrive and how many new ship's cats would be aboard. The cat would not be found and the officer just made the last lifeboat.

2. The third officer made his way across the slanting deck to his cabin, where he calmly laid aside a 17-jewel watch and a signet ring and picked up six handkerchiefs and a novelty bracelet, presents purchased for his wife. He took nothing else with him, and the watch and ring went down with the ship.

3. The chief engineer selected the best of three suits of freshly washed dungarees and donned it. He ignored all belongings.

4. A seaman went to his bunk and sat down to change his shoes. Later in the lifeboat he discovered he was wearing two right shoes.

The abandonment was carried out quietly and efficiently. There was no loss of cargo, as the ship was in ballast . . .

All pin-up girls went to Davy Jones' locker.

U.S. Troops Storm Across Rapido To Battle for Cassino

Nazis Apparently Pulling Units From Cassino to Meet Threat at Rear

SLASH SUPPLY LINES

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press War Correspondent

Algiers, Jan. 26 (AP)—United States troops have stormed across the Rapido river in renewed battle for Cassino—already entered by patrols, field dispatches said—and 5th Army invasion forces south of Rome have speared deeper against "increasing resistance" it was announced today.

The Nazis apparently were pulling units back from the Cassino front to meet the great threat to their rear.

It now seems certain the invasion thrust has at least cut the Appian Way, and seriously threatens the remaining Cassino-Rome highway, perhaps having it under artillery fire.

American combat units are advancing through minefields north of Cassino after a second crossing of the Rapido river a headquarters officer declared.

No Information

Headquarters said it had no information that Cassino had yet been taken.

French troops north of the bastion town were forced from Mount Croce by bitter Nazi counter-attacks, with close fighting continuing.

While the Germans threw increasing opposition against the invasion troops who landed in the Nettuno-Anzio areas, an Allied officer said this resistance still was "comparatively light."

Cairo radio said the Allies were 1[illegible] from Rome.

German planes struck at the sea a[illegible] official announcement declared Nazi bombers had attacked three hospital ships well outside the invasion zone, sinking one of them. All three were lighted and carried Red Cross markings.

Slash Supply Lines

Allied planes in powerful numbers concentrated on slashing at enemy supply routes and troops between the 5th Army front and the new beachhead, and the main line between Florence and Rome, which the Germans must use to get reinforcements to the Rome area.

The Allies flew 1,100 sorties over the beachhead yesterday, compared with 60 by the Nazis. A naval officer said the enemy attacks were causing "some trouble" however.

He disclosed that Allied warships, including French, had heavily bombarded the road between Terracina and Formia by daylight Monday, and made diversionary bombardments along the coast. Sunday night Allied motor torpedo boats attacked a German lighter convoy northwest of Rome, setting an escorting E-boat afire.

Occupy Mt. Geracole

British troops on the western coastal end of the 5th Army line attacked and occupied Mt. Ceracole, two miles west of Castelforte.

It was considered likely that the Allied advance south of Rome had been so rapid the Germans do not know exactly how large the bridgehead has become, and headquarters is withholding that news until the Germans determine it by actual patrol clashes.

Opposing Deputies Make Demand

Stockholm, Jan. 26. (AP)—Opposition deputies in the Bulgarian Parliament demanded yesterday that the government seek to improve its relations with Soviet Russia and withdraw its troops from territories on which Bulgaria has no real claim, dispatches from Budapest said today.

The demands were presented as parliament convened for its first meeting since the Allies launched their air attacks upon Sofia.

The deputies, the dispatches said, also demanded an effort to improve relations with Turkey and reconstruction of the government with concentration of power to further the national interests.

Opposition groups hold about one-quarter of the seats in parliament.

Dairy Farmers Ask Minimum Price

Quebec, Jan. 26—(CP)—The Dairy Farmers Association of Canada, winding up a two-day meeting last night referred to their board of directors a resolution asking the federal government "to institute a policy guaranteeing Canadian producers a minimum price for all agricultural products." The resolution, to be studied by the Board, urged also that "agriculture should be consulted before prices are announced."

Delegates asked for establishment of a dairy board commission of representatives of producers, processors and the government, "to govern and direct the dairy industry," and in another resolution asked that the price of cheese be fixed at 25 cents a pound, F. O. B. factory, plus bonuses and premiums.

Air-Borne Units Added to U.S. Army In Great Britain

London, Jan. 26 — (CP) — Addition of air-borne units to armored groups, infantrymen, combat engineers and other specialized fighting men has built the United States Army in Britain into a well-rounded offensive force for the coming assault on Europe, it was reported today.

Some air-borne units have been several months adapting jumping and landing techniques to conditions approximating those they will encounter when called on to perform an important invasion role, but newsmen had not been permitted to report their presence previously.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

MISS ETHEL SMITH TO MAKE RADIO DEBUT

Gaining wide popularity in Belleville and throughout the Belleville district by her frequent appearances as a vocalist at social functions and other entertainments, Miss Ethel Smith, Ann Street, will shortly make her radio debut over a Buffalo station, it has been learned. Miss Smith gained initial prominence as a singer several years ago when her silvery voice began to attract attention. Since that time she has been most free with her talent and has been in constant demand at charity and social entertainments.

Some time in February Miss Smith's voice will be heard over station WGR, Buffalo, during an amateur program, which is broadcast on Sunday afternoons. Her appearance was originally planned for early in the month but her father has been feeling slightly indisposed and is disinclined to make the trip immediately. However, Miss Smith's appearance before the "mike" will be within the next two or three weeks, it was stated.

1944 MOTOR LICENCES ON SALE IN CITY

Consistent with other centres across the province the 1944 automobile licence windshield stickers went on sale in Belleville on Monday with local licence issuers reporting a fairly good response on the part of district motorist. The new stickers are approximately three by four and one-half inches in dimensions and are basically blue with red and white trimmings. It is recommended by the Highways Department, that they be placed in the lower left-hand corner of the windshield, where their obstruction to view will be at a minimum and where traffic officials may quickly check whether motorists have purchased their 1944 licences.

Drivers' and chauffeurs' permits went on sale at all licence issuers at the same time as the vehicle permits, it was stated.

PO. JAMES SHERIDAN RECEIVES PROMOTION

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Sheridan, Bleecker Ave have received cable from their son, Bomber Pilot PO. James Sheridan informing them of his promotion to Flying Officer. Jim enlisted in 1941 and completed his training at Victoriaville, Que., Oshawa, Ont., and Yorkton, Sask. He went overseas in June of 1943. A brother, Sgt. Jack Sheridan is in the R.C.A.F. stationed at Lachine.

WOMAN ARRESTED AFTER DISTURBANCE IN LOCAL RESTAURANT

City police were called to a downtown restaurant late Tuesday afternoon where a woman was reported to be causing a disturbance. Investigations revealed the woman was inebriated to a noticeable degree, so much so she had to be taken to the police station in the police cruiser. At the station it was found she had $127 in her purse and a number of loose gasoline coupons.

Naturally the Wartime Prices and Trade Board were notified of the coupon situation. The woman was admitted to bail but police said today they are not as yet prepared to say exactly what charges will be preferred.

REDNERSVILLE FARMER "ROLLED" FOR $140

A Rednersville farmer found it rather costly to enter into a state of intoxication while visiting Belleville Tuesday.

It seems the farmer in question not only came to town to get a "jag on," that naturally landed him in the local bastille, but during the process of his drinking escapade somebody stole his poke consisting of $140.

Now the unfortunate Prince Edward County farmer not only is minus his money but has to pay a drunk fine in the bargain.

G. BARCLAY APPOINTED ADMINISTRATOR OF BELLEVILLE HOSPITAL

Acting administrator at the Belleville General Hospital since May, 1941, when he was elevated to that position following the departure of Squadron Leader Gordon Friesen, Mr. Gordon Barclay has been appointed administrator by the Board of Governors. Squadron Leader Friesen left the Belleville hospital for the R.C.A.F. and recently tendered his resignation as administrator to the hospital Board of Governors.

FOG BLANKETS CITY TOWARD NOON HOUR

One of the heaviest fogs seen here for some time blanketed the city before the noon hour today. However it cleared somewhat in the early afternoon. Some weather observers thing a fog appearing at this time is advance notice of colder weather in the near future.

MAN STRUCK IN FACE WITHOUT PROVOCATION

Just why one man would walk up to another and punch him in the eye without provocation is puzzling Belleville police today.

However, Francis Culhane, 290 Albert St., complained to police last night that such an assault was made on him in front of his home last night. P. C. Evans investigated the trouble and was told that one, Ray Callaghan, of Lonsdale, is said by Mr. Culhane to have struck him in the eye and subsequently drove away in his motor car. Constable Evans was told that when Mr. Culhane returned home early last evening he saw a motor car parked in front of his home. When he alighted from his car, Culhane told police Callaghan got out of his car and struck him, later driving away. Police stated Culhane would prefer assault charges.

German Radio Claims Nazis Discover Hidden Supply Dumps in Greece

London, Jan. 26 — (CP Reuters) —The German radio claimed last night that Nazi troops have discovered in the last few days hidden supply dumps in the mountains of Greece where British planes have been accustomed "to drop weapons and explosives for Communist bandits."

The German report added after Allied planes had circled over the spot during the night, German units early in the morning overpowered the guards, captured four machine guns, two mortars, many rifles and found on the ground 80 parachutes with explosives and time bombs attached."

IRISH BARONET DIES AT 86

Glasgough, Eire, Jan. 26 —(CP)— Col. Sir John Leslie, 86-year-old Irish baronet, died here yesterday. The title passes to his son, John Randolph Leslie (Shane Leslie, the writer.) Sir John was a former commanding officer of the 12th Battalion of the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers. His late wife, whom he married in 1884, was Prime Minister Churchill's aunt, Leonie Blanche Jerome of New York.

The George Cross, highest award which can be given for an act of valor not in direct action with the enemy, has been awarded to Leading Aircraftman Kenneth Gerald Spooner of Smiths Falls, Ont. A student navigator with no pilot training, Spooner took over the controls of a training aircraft when the pilot fainted, and kept the plane at a safe height until three remaining members of the crew had bailed out. Shortly afterward the plane crashed, killing both Spooner and the unconscious pilot. Spooner's George Cross is the second one to be awarded a member of the R.C.A.F.

Audience Thrilled By Cornetist's Playing

Proving to be Canada's best, Captain E. Parr's brilliant soprano cornet playing thrilled the audience gathered in the Salvation Army Citadel the other evening, bringing forth round after round of applause.

The Captain chose for his first selection, his own arrangement of the Sunday School hymn, "Jesus Wants Me for a Sunbeam," his second choice was the much loved "Londonderry Air."

The visiting instrumental group, from Toronto, was in charge of Captain A. Brown, (at one time a member of the local Citadel band), and their ensemble work brought forth many favorable comments.

Accompanying the party, as pianist, was a bandsman of the Temple Salvation Army band, who treated the audience to his own arrangement of the well known song, "A Little Ship."

Major Cameron, who returned to the United States from England on the same ship as Prime Minister Churchill, gave a short talk on "Blitzed England." He commented that instead of running for cover many people watched the air raids from the roofs of houses or hotels.

The local Citadel band added to the evening's enjoyment by playing the march "Basle," written by Bandsman Hans Muller of Basle, Switzerland. Their second choice was the march "Star Lake," composed by Major E. Ball, bandmaster of the International Staff band of London, England. The march was written to commemorate the Major's visit to the Army's music camp, at Star Lake, N.J., U.S.A., in 1937. The Major had the pleasure of conducting the United States Navy band in a broadcast from Washington during that visit.

Trenton and District

Police Court

Trenton, (Special) — Thirty-one cases came before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in Trenton Police Court on Tuesday with Lt.-Col. B. C. Donnan K.C., County Crown Attorney, prosecuting.

Hugh Graham, 22, appeared on a charge of reckless driving which occurred in November when he collided with a Rathbun bus at the east end of Trenton. He had the misfortune to lose his foot in this accident. Learning of the facts the Crown and the Magistrate had the deepest sympathy for Graham and he was given a most lenient sentence under the circumstances, three months suspended sentence and $2.50 costs. He was defended in court by Allan McNab. Mr. Bell of Toronto appeared for the Rathbun bus company.

Hugh Curry was up on a similar charge. The accident in which he was involved occurred on October 19th on North Front Street, and in this accident an airman received a fractured leg. He was not able to appear as a witness and the case was laid over for another week.

Three Trenton young men appeared charged with breaking and entering Freeman's pool room. As one was in the service and the other two expressed their willingness to join the colors the charges against them were enlarged for two weeks, after they had pleaded guilty.

Charles Sills, Harry Simpson, William Edgar, Joseph Carr, E. Rusnell, Fred Walsh were all charged with failing to obey traffic signals and were each assessed $4.50 including costs.

Victor Williams for operating a car without brakes was fined $12.50. Arthur Benham was fined $27.50 for leaving the scene of an accident after he had sideswiped a car on North Front Street.

William Edgar paid $7.50 for speeding.

J. Bowen was charged with non-support and the case was enlarged for one week.

A youth, charged with theft of a bicycle which he stole from in front of the post office and sold three hours later for $8.00, was remanded for one week.

Allied Hospital Ships Bombed By Nazi Planes

Correspondent Says Ships Lighted "Like Christmas Trees"

ONE SHIP SUNK

By RELMAN MORIN

Nettuno, Italy, Jan. 26. (AP)— In a cold-blooded attack far outside the invasion zone, German bombers sank a hospital ship Monday and made a direct hit and near misses on two others.

Swift rescue work was believed to have held losses of lives comparatively light.

(John Daly, CBS correspondent, in a broadcast identified the vessel sunk as the St. David and those also attacked as the Leinster and St. Andrew.)

The attack was delvered shortly after dark. Survivors said the three hospital ships were at least ten miles from the zone where Allied warships and landing craft were located. All three ships were painted white with large red crosses on their sides and all were lighted fully.

"The Germans lighted the skies for miles around with flares", a nurse said. "We heard anti-aircraft fire from other ships but we never dreamed the bombers would attack us. We had steamed well out to sea by that time and no warships or any other ships were near us".

Clustered Together.

The three hospital ships were clustered within a few thousand yards of each other.

"It wasn't an accident because they dive-bombed us not once but several times", a survivor said, "it was a clear night and the ships were easily identifiable with their own lights and the glow from the flares".

The doomed hospital ship sank within six minutes. Survivors said nurses helped rescue squads get the wounded into lifeboats and themselves waited until the last possible moment before leaving.

"There were only a few wounded aboard our ship", a nurse said. "We had just finished one surgery and were preparing for another when a bomb hit. We all were dazed and almost everything in the operating room was smashed or knocked over. We did the best we could, operating quickly and then began receiving survivors. I heard that most of the wounded were saved".

New York, Jan. 26 — (AP) — In a broadcast from Allied advance headquarters in Italy CBS correspondent John Daly said Tuesday night three Allied hospital ships, "lighted up like Christmas trees," had been bombed by German planes in Anzio Bay Monday and one had been sunk.

(Allied headquarters at Algiers said today German bombers had attacked three hospital ships well outside the invasion zone, sinking one of them. The announcement said all three were lighted and carried red cross markings.)

Daly, aboard a destroyer off the beach, said the warship had intercepted a message from the hospital ship Leinster identifying the vessel sunk as the St. David.

The third ship involved in the attack was identified in the intercepted message as the St. Andrew, Daly said.

He reported that the Germans had attacked with both torpedo and dive bombers and had also employed the new glider bombs.

Daly's broadcast account of the bombing said in part:

"I have before me the SOS's sent out by these hospital ships between 5:42 and 7:27 last night. I will quote them. I don't think I need do any more.

"The first was from the hospital ship Leinster, which said: 'Have been bombed and am on fire.' These followed in quick succession:—

" 'Hospital ship St. Andrew being continually bombed.'

" 'Hospital ship Leinster being bombed again.'

"And then from the Leinster and the St. Andrew came these messages:

"The time was 7:27. Said the Leinster: 'Hospital ship St. David sunk. Am going to her assistance.' The St. Andrew repeated the message and added: 'We are picking up survivors.'

"This is no hearsay. Our destroyer was being attacked at the same time on the other side of the bay. I saw the bombs hit all around the three ships, and heard with my own ears the SOS messages."

'Ted' Willing Squadron Leader

Flt. Lt. E. R. Willing, service representative on the Industrial Survey Board for Military District No. 1, has been promoted to the rank of squadron leader, it was announced today.

Squadron Leader Willing came to London to join the district board last August, and since that time, because of the nature of his duties, has become well known in Western Ontario industrial circles.

A graduate metallurgist of the University of Toronto, he entered the R.C.A.F., in July, 1941, and was commanding officer of No. 6 Aeronautical Inspection Detachment at Hamilton and later No. 15 A.I.D., Kingston, before coming to London. Before entering the service he was a metal industry executive.

'Ted' Willing, a former resident of Belleville was manager of Belleville Foundry before enlistment. He is a member of the Kiwanis Club and one of the first to enlist from that organization.

Signs of Early Spring?

FAT GROUNDHOG BASKS IN SUN

Gananoque, Jan. 26 —(CP)— Observers of wild life in this district are collecting considerable data indicative of an early spring. Two chicken hawks, several song sparrows and muskrats have been observed recently. One fat groundhog was seen basking in last Saturday's bright sunshine—a sure sign, prognosticators assert.

MOHAWK RESERVE

Memorial Service For Lloyd E. Brant Held in Christ Church

Mohawk Reserve, (Special) — Christ Church was filled to capacity Sunday morning for the memorial service for Pte. Lloyd Edwin Brant, killed in action last month in Italy. Lloyd is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Benson Brant to whom the heartfelt sympathy of the Reserve and elsewhere is given in this their sudden and sad bereavement. Lloyd's genial manner and happy disposition greatly endeared him to all who knew him; his thoughtfulness and helpfulness were remarkable in one so young. The service was attended by the Deseronto branch of the Canadian Legion, the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Legion, and the Kan-yen-geh Club who, with Mrs. Fred Carter, Napanee and Mrs. Peter Barnhart, Shannonville, sent beautiful floral tributes to his memory. Lloyd attended public school on the reserve, the Deseronto High School and was a cadet in the Church Army. He enlisted early in the war and was through the Sicilian campaign.

Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers, Alvin, of Mayfield, N.Y. and Pte. Gerald, in England. The rector, who was assisted in the service by Rev. C. P. Heaven, Shannonville, preached from the text, 'Death is Swallowed Up in Victory." The hymns chosen were those favorites he frequently sang in the Church Army: "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and "He Leadeth Me." "O Valiant Heart" and "God Save the King" were also sung and the Nunc Dimittis at the conclusion of the service. Mrs. Gordon Brant presided at the organ. May he rest in peace and may perpetual light shine upon him.

61 DEGREES AT WINDSOR

Windsor, Jan. 26 — (CP) — Officials of the Detroit Weather Bureau, across the river from Windsor, looked at their thermometer yesterday, shook their heads in disbelief, looked again. But they were right the first time. It said 61 degrees above zero, the warmest January day ever recorded here.

ARCHBISHOP OF YORK MAY VISIT TORONTO

Toronto, Jan. 25 (CP)—The Archbishop of York, Most Rev. Dr. C. F. Garbett, is expected to visit Toronto during his proposed stay in the United States shortly after Easter, it was revealed here last night by Archbishop Derwyn T. Owen, Primate of all Canada.

Sea Cadet Corps To Visit H.M.C.S. 'Cataraqui'

On Thursday evening, at 6.45 p.m. the entire strength of the local Sea Cadet Corps "Quinte" will proceed from the Belleville High School to Kingston, for a visit to H.M.C.S. "Cataraqui".

This trip is a result of an invitation to the local branch of the Navy League, extended during the past week through Lieut.-Commander G. E. Kernahan, captain of the H.M.C.S. "Cataraqui".

The boys of the local Corps are expected to appear in uniform. At Kingston, they will be shown through the "ship" and will hear a very interesting address by Lt.-Commander Carr.

Transportation in the form of buses has been provided for the boys, and they will be accompanied and chaperoned on the trip by the officers in charge of the Sea Cadet Corps "Quinte", as well as members of the Sea Cadet Corps Committee, under the chairmanship of Principal W. S. Turner, and members of the Navy League, under the chairmanship of Fred Lewis.

Refreshments will be served to the boys en route, and a real good time is expected.

Obituary

MRS. MARY ELLEN DUKE (Toronto)

Mrs. Mary Ellen (Sprague) Duke, widow of Rev. Richard Duke, died at her home, 109 Summerhill Ave., Toronto, on Monday, Jan. 24th. She and her late husband were well known in Belleville and district and old friends here will regret to learn of her death.

Surviving her are one daughter, Mrs. F. W. O'Flynn and one son, Mr. R. S. Duke, Seattle, Wash.

The funeral service will be held in the West Chapel at the Timothy Eaton Memorial Church, Toronto, on Wednesday evening and interment will take place at Glenwood Cemetery, Picton, on Thursday afternoon about 2.30 o'clock.

MRS. HELEN TOMPKINS (Deseronto)

Mohawk Reserve, Jan. 26—Mrs. Nelson Tompkins, Deseronto, formerly of the Reserve, passed away at her home after a lingering illness, early Sunday morning. She was 67 years of age. Mrs. Tompkins was formerly Lucy Ann Lewis, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Lewis and was highly esteemed by all who knew her. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. John Polley, of Hamilton and six sons, John, Deseronto; Wellington, Hamilton; Edgar, Robert, Roland and William, Toronto. The funeral took place in Christ Church Tuesday afternoon and was largely attended. The bearers were her six sons. Interment was made in Christ Church Cemetery.

Federal Gov't Criticized By Atty.-General

Toronto, Jan. 26—(CP)—Attorney-general Leslie Blackwell of Ontario says he believes the Dominion government will temporize so long on a proposal to establish a military hospital on Sunnybrook farm property that Christie Street hospital will have to be used for all casualties.

"I venture to predict that the pensions department will still roll the project over," he said Tuesday night in an address to Eglinton Progressive Conservative Association. "Through one excuse or another it will be delayed so long that so many casualties will be coming home before they have done anything, that they will still have to use Christie Street hospital."

Mr. Blackwell said action on the military hospital, which for months has provoked discussion between city and federal authorities, is being delayed on the "fantastic" excuse that the province has not passed legislation enabling the city to donate the Sunnybrook farm site, on Bayview Avenue just outside Toronto.

Establishment of the hospital was urged by a special civic committee following repeated protests against a federal government proposal to build a $500,000 addition to Christie Street hospital. The federal government subsequently approved the Sunnybrook site.

TRAGIC HOMECOMING

Oswego, N. Y., Jan. 26 — (AP)— A tragic homecoming awaits Private Frederick Spaulding, en route on a furlough from Camp Campbell, Ky.

His wife, Mrs. Florence W. Spaulding, 24, and his eight-month-old son were fatally burned today when fire destroyed their home.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Smith, Peterborough, and daughter Edith, of Toronto, wish to express their gratitude to the many friends and neighbours, who were so kind during the long illness of a loving daughter and sister (Mrs. C. Cherry) and to the family in their recent sad bereavement.

Scotts Church Holds Congregational Meeting

The congregational meeting of Scotts United Church was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Copeland Jan. 19th. Dinner was served by the ladies.

The Pastor Rev. Scott presided and led in the devotional exercises.

The financial statement was given by the Church Treas. M. B. Sine reporting a substantial balance on hand, the largest in the history of the church, after all indebtedness had been met.

The reports of the W. M. S., W. A., Mission Band Young People's Society and the Sunday School were well in advance of previous years with a good record achieved.

The Pastor reported for the M. and M. Fund and encouraged the givers to keep up the good work and asked for some increased givings in aid of the Missionary Work of the Church.

Seven new members were admitted to the church and their names added to the Church Register. Only one death in the church membership was reported.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the Pastor the Sabbath School superintendent, choir leader, organist and choir also the Church treasurer for their services in connection with church.

By motion all officers of the Church and Sabbath School were re-elected for the year 1944.

State of Siege In Rome Proclaimed Report States

Berne, Jan. 26 — (AP) — Dispatches from the Italian frontier today said German authorities had proclaimed a state of siege in Rome as the progress of Allied troops fanning out from their Nettuno bridgehead touched off a new wave of anti-Nazi activity in the city.

These reports said Allied sympathizers had attacked German barracks and supply depots and bombs had been thrown at military bureaux and at soldiers in the streets.

Several German officers were reported killed by these attacks in broad daylight.

Australian Red Cross Rejects U.S. Request

Melbourne, Australia, Jan. 26—(CP) —The Australian Red Cross yesterday rejected an American Red Cross request for information about the families and background of Australian girls wishing to marry American soldiers.

The Australian society pointed out there was no means of reciprocation as it was impossible to ascertain conditions of family life of the American soldiers wishing to marry Australian girls. Anyway, the society said, such matters are outside its charter.

American Red Cross representatives said they would continue to interview prospective brides and bridegrooms, and attempt to discourage marriages they considered inadvisable.

IN MEMORIAM

BALDREE — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mary Ellen Baldree, who departed this life January 26, 1943.

Two dear bright eyes, a tender smile,
A loving heart that knew no guile,
Deep trust in God that all was right,
Her joy to make some other bright.
If sick or suffering one she knew
Some gentle act of love she'd do.
No thought of self, but of "the other."
I know God said: "Well done, little mother."

—Lovingly remembered by Ern and Evelyn.

BALDREE — In ever loving memory of a dear daughter, Mrs. Mary E. Baldree, who passed away January 26th., 1943.

It was just a year ago today, dear daughter,
God called you home to rest,
And ever since that sad day,
Things have never been the same.
But oh, how much I miss you,
And oh, what would I give
To clasp your hand,
Your dear, kind face to see,
Your loving smile, your welcome voice
That meant so much to me.
No one knows the relentless heartache,
Only those who have such can tell
Of the grief that is within me
For the one I love so well.

—Ever to be remembered by Mother, Mrs. M. Wannamaker.

BALDREE — In loving memory of my dear sister, Mary Ellen Baldree, who passed away at her late residence, 169 James Street on January 26, 1943.

In memory a daily thought;
In heart a silent sorrow.

—Sadly missed by her sister, Edna, and nephew, Gerald Smith.

BROWN — In loving memory of our dear mother, Sarah Jane Brown, who passed away January 26, 1936, and of our father, Charles Henry Brown, who passed away March 8, 1936.

There is a link death cannot sever,
Love and remembrance last forever.

—Ever remembered by Alice, Harry, Mabel.

Kinsmen's Good Deeds

Belleville Kinsmen have since their organization been carrying on a magnificent work in Belleville and especially since the beginning of the war. So tireless have been their efforts that their name is a household word for patriotic and philanthropic work. They have raised large amounts of money for these purposes and the results are seen in a steady expansion of their work.

Back in peace days they launched the eye clinic which continues its service of humanity. On this they expended upwards of three hundred dollars during the past year.

One of the outstanding examples of Kinsmen efficiency and effective handling of a great public service is the Kinsmen Fag Fund. This is known to many hundreds of Belleville and district boys in the Canadian forces and to their relatives and friends and the people at large. Five hundred and fifty names are on the "fag" list and these men and boys are in receipt of regular shipments of cigarettes. Hundreds upon hundreds of letters of appreciation of these gifts are the treasured possession of the club, for these boys speak from the heart. During the year 1943, 908,400 cigarettes were sent out at a cost of $3,023.68 while from the beginning of the fund in September 1941 there have been sent out to the far corners of the earth wherever Belleville boys, whose names are on the fund list, may be on service in the navy, the army and the air force, the grand total of 1,683,600 cigarettes costing the club $5,607.20.

Mr. M. Currie who has been chairman of the fag fund since its inception and who has just relinquished this post on becoming the president of the club, has thanked the public for supporting the fund as it has done in the past year when general contributions stood at $2,286.05, which was more than double the amount given in the previous year. The fund is in a very healthy state with a balance on hand of $1,492.78. The total receipts of the fund were $3,387.13 which with $1,129.33 balance from the previous year made a total of receipts of $4,516.46. Mr. Currie deserves credit as the originator and chairman of the fund until recently. On it he has spent much time and labor but with intense satisfaction. He had a desire to see a service rendered by the public of Belleville to the men and boys who are fighting for the continuance of our liberties. The achievement of the fund is a fine tribute to Mr. Currie's vision and energy.

The war service account of the Kinsmen is the big one. This is the Milk-for-Britain Fund on which was dispersed $7,000 last year. This work is one which is of course deeply appreciated by the people of Britain for what it is achieving for the young of the British Isles.

Other fine services have been rendered by the club.

The Kinsmen Club is an energetic body of young men with a clear view of the opportunity and responsibility that lie before it. With great energy it has set itself to do good deeds and by these it has established itself in the hearts of the citizens. and of those who have benefited by its efforts.

Everyone bespeaks for this organization continued success and is confident that with this enterprising group the good work will carry on with the same or greater success in the year now just begun.

"The Coming Struggle"

Major Vidkun Quisling who has given the world the new word "quisling" for the puppet agents of Hitler, was in company with others of his class in conference with Hitler the other day, so the German radio says adding that "No. 1 questions regarding the European Continent and the future of the Germanic peoples were discussed in the spirit of the coming struggle."

It concerned "the coming struggle" certainly because that is what is bothering Hitler today and that struggle means all the titanic forces that the United Nations are throwing and are about to throw against Hitler, his agents and his forces. It is the power of Russia marching on irresistibly against Germany, it is the air over Germany which has become a nightmare to the German people for from it comes devastation for Hitler's war machine, it is the revolt in the Balkans, it is the Allied progress in Italy, it is the towering might of British-American invasion forces, it is the ceaseless work of the Allied navies—all these Hitler dreads. He dreads the lands he stole on whose inhabitants he and his agents have wreaked vengeance and unutterable cruelties. He dreads all this, he knows humanity's verdict and the spirit of justice in the world and dreads them.

Hitler who spread desolation in Europe has yet to go through the worst. He had his gleeful day when he seemed in his own sight to be within grasp of the illusive treasure of world supremacy. Now he and his Germany have to pay the price that is being exacted and will be exacted of criminals.

Hitler stands the major criminal who is on the point of being caught in "the coming struggle."

What does Quisling dread? It is not only the military might of the Allies but also the day when he will be at last faced by the loyal Norwegians who are fighting for liberation. That's what he dreads and so with other Quislings wherever they are. They see the Allies advancing and they know that the judgment of this world awaits them, however they may try to hide their dread.

"The coming struggle" Hitler and the Quislings well know will decide all. They may try to read their fate in the flickering and sputtering fires of the seething cauldron of Hitler's mind but all about them the clouds are gathering. They can have no peace of mind, no assurance. If Hitler could express any hopes of managing to dodge his fate, he could not convince the Quislings. Their crimes are so deep they know what is before them, and that nothing that Hitler and his armies can do can save them or Hitler himself. They may plot fiendishly in their frantic fears but more evil deeds will avail them nothing for they cannot escape the trap they set for the world.

Maple Syrup Men Uncertain

(Owen Sound Sun-Times)

Canada's rationing system is generally accepted as being one of the fairest in existence, far superior, for instance, to that in force in the United States. That rationing is necessary and that it has averted many hardships is accepted. However, where rationing tends to decrease production of foodstuffs, and not just see that what supplies available are fairly distributed, then it would appear that some revision is needed.

Questioning various farmers throughout the district whose sugar bushes annually make a valuable contribution to the Dominion's food supplies, indications are that this year's output will be considerably decreased under rationing. The Wartime Prices Board has increased the value of the D coupons so that a gallon of maple syrup may be obtained for eight coupons. But even at that the average farmer feels that sales will be too uncertain for him to risk the expense and work of tapping trees and boiling down sap.

Maple syrup is a seasonal and a cash crop, the farmers point out. It usually means hiring extra help, and, unless they can be certain of selling their output at once, they just aren't interested. One farmer stated that he would gladly produce his 100 or 150 gallons this year if he were allowed to sell in lots of two gallons per customer,, but with "none of this coupon business." He agrees that those who would buy up large quantities should be checked. But, he explained, he just could not spare the time to be bothered with the coupons.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1944, Edgar A. Guest)

SENSITIVE MAN

I fancy man believes his whim
Is something sacred unto him,
And when another blocks his path,
Full justified becomes his wrath,
Or not so quickly would he show
The will to change a friend to foe.

So sensitive seems man to slights;
So ready to defend his rights;
So quick to hide his own mistakes
And note the ones another makes,
'Twould seem he thinks himself to be
From all the common failings free.

Man asks forgiveness while he lives,
But seldom trespasses forgives.
Quick in resentment, he'll declare
Each small offense to be unfair,
As if, himself, he'd never erred
By thoughtless deed or careless word.

A little more of faith and trust,
Of gentler thought and judgment just;
Not quite so swift offense to take,
Quicker allowances to make
For all who err, and man would find
A surer way to peace of mind.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JAN. 26TH., 1924.

Mr. and Mrs. James Domenico and son of Los Angeles, California are visiting Mr. Domenico's uncle, Mr. S. Domenico, Church Street.

In a hockey match at Kingston last night the Belleville team defeated the Kingston team, the score being 8 to 3. It was a rough game and Stan Hagerman received a severely wrenched shoulder, but he bravely continued to play right through the last period. Stan is rapidly becoming known in hockey circles as one of the gamest, cleverest centre players in amateur hockey. Daw Whalen with his lone rushes and beautiful stick handling ran rings around the Queen's stars and scored twice after going the length of the ice. Stan Nurse is the best; there is no other term to be applied to the way he guards the Belleville net. Vern Weir was the hornet on the ice; in fact he was a whole nest of hornets as the Queen's forward line can testify. The rest of the boys put up a great game. The following composed the teams: Belleville, Nurse, Finkle, Green, Hagerman, Frechette, Weir, subs, Whalen and Wardhaugh. Queen's, Bond, Johnson, Campbell, McKelvey, Grimes, and Meudell, sub, Taylor.

Mrs. O. R. Allison, 5th concession of Tyendinaga township, celebrated her 90th birthday on Jan. 18th. She was born at East Lake, Prince Edward County, and was Mary Ann Emerson. Later the family moved to near Roslin and she lived there until she was married in 1844 when she went with her husband to the 5th concession of Tyendinaga township where she now resides at the old home, Cedar Hedge Farm, with her son, Mr. W. J. Allison. She is remarkably active for her years and possesses all her faculties.

The Printer hockey team was defeated by the Bell Telephone Company employees' team at the arena last evening. The score is not for publication. Following composed the teams: Printers, Buchannan, Cookson, Clancy, Mason, Bales, Riggs and Shortts. Bell Telephone, Doolittle, Knight, Badgley, Alford, Carron, McBride and Wallace. The referee was Harry Fenn and he satisfied all. One printer became so excited that he scored for the Telephone team.

Mayor W. W. Chown presided at the meeting of the city council last evening. The gas bylaw was given its final reading without opposition. Ald. D. V. Sinclair was appointed chairman of the gas committee and the following will act with him on the committee: Ald. McFee, Green, Paterson and Gordon. The city grant to the library was reduced from $1,000 to $800.

Mr. Stephen Roughton has left Belleville to reside in Kingston.

The complimentary concert given in the city hall last evening by Camp Rob Roy, Sons of Scotland, was a most enjoyable event. Mr. Thomas Stewart occupied the chair. Deputy Grand Chief William Smeaton gave a short address on the aims and objects of the society. Mr. W. N. Ponton read an interesting paper on "Burns' Humor", and Dr. George Wright gave an address on the "Heroes of Scotland." The following also took part in the program and did much to make the evening enjoyable: Messrs. John McIntosh, Alfred Gillen, George Fax, William McLean, Frank Lewis, A. Milne, Mrs. (Col.) Campbell, Miss Maggie Falconer, Miss Jessie Brignall, Mrs. York and Miss Wilson.

5 Ships Sunk In Jap Convoy Off Fuchow

Chungking, Jan. 26 — (AP) — Bombers of the Chinese-American wing of the United States 14th Air Force attacked a Japanese convoy off Fuchow on the east China coast Monday and sank five vessels totalling 9,900 tons, Allied headquarters announced today.

In addition, the announcement said a 2,700-ton freighter was damaged and a Japanese seaplane shot down.

The vessels sunk included a 1,700-ton passenger and cargo vessel, two 2,200-ton cargo and passenger vessels and one 1,100-ton cargo boat.

Other Mitchells of the 14th Air Force, sweeping the sea lanes between Hong Kong and Nampang Island, sank a 2,700-ton freighter, the announcement said.

All aircraft returned safely.

Hydro and Farms

To the Editor,
The Ontario Intelligencer,

In your paper of the 24th I was more than pleased to see that you had published the policy of the Ontario Government extending the Hydro to at least 5,000 farms and when doing this approximately four million dollars worth of electrical appliances and equipment would be required. This amount must be manufactured in the cities and I hope that Belleville will be able to get a share of it.

It will mean a great deal to our men and women employed in war work which will be closed when the war is over.

In the last paragraph Dr. Hogg emphasizes strongly the point of a close co-operation between the city and the farms. You can not build up the one without the other.

Very truly yours,
GEO. A. REID
Ex.-Commissioner.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

"To count the life of battle good
And dear the land that gave you birth,
And dearer yet the brotherhood
That binds the brave of all the earth".

Thirteen days by sea from St. John N.B., to New York! It reads like a headline from today's papers—a screaming tid-bit about survivors from a torpedoed vessel. Instead, the news relates to a commonplace saga of the 1830's when people still travelled by schooner. Many colonists in New Brunswick who wished to take up residence in Upper Canada chose to go first to New York, thence to Albany, Buffalo and Port Stanley—a water route all the way. The journey required a month or more.

* * *

The word "schooner" evokes a vision of streamlined loveliness with billowing white sails and a deckful of fair passengers in equally billowing gowns. When a schooner had only fore-and-aft sails she was termed a fore-and-aft schooner; if carrying a square foretopsail and foretopgallant sail a topsail schooner. This latter rig was common a century ago.

* * *

Long before schooners of any kind sailed Canadian waters there were various types of vessels in use. notably the bateau, the York boat and the canoe. Still more primitive was the "dug-out", a craft fashioned by settlers of a century and more ago. Lacking anything in which to make necessary trips by water, the earliest colonists chopped down trees and hollowed them out by burning or chopping. It's difficult to imagine clumsier, slower boats!

THAT BODY OF YOURS

JAMES W. BARTON, M.D.

Avoiding Attacks of Food Poisoning

A meal of average size is usually out of the stomach and into the small intestine in four hours although it may take as long as six hours. It often surprises us, therefore, when an attack of nausea occurs four hours after an average meal has been eaten.

What is causing this attack of nausea? In the Canadian Journal of Public Health, Dr. C. E. Dolman, Vancouver, states that this is the first symptom of food poisoning caused by the staphylococcus organism.

From one to four hours after food has been eaten there is nausea which may last from only a few minutes up to nearly an hour, when sudden vomiting occurs. Several attacks of vomiting may occur during the next few hours and there may be abdominal cramps and marked diarrhoea. The pulse is weak, the temperature raised, and patient may be collapsed and afraid, with numbness in hands and feet, pallor and cold sweats. "After 3 to 5 hours or earlier improvement sets in, color returns, the pulse becomes stronger, and a desire for food and drink may be present". Often, however, for a day or two, there is lack of appetite with nausea, diarrhoea and loss of weight.

Fortunately the death rate is very low. The action of the poison is on the central nervous system, not on the digestive organs themselves.

What is the cause of this type of food poisoning? In the first place, this staphylococcus organism seems to get everywhere, into all varieties of foodstuffs, and if these foodstuffs are not "protected" as they should be, the organisms greatly increase in numbers and activity.

Dr. Dolman states that the carelessness of those handling food for market and the carelessness and ignorance of the members of the household after food is purchased is responsible for attacks of staphylococcus poisoning. More care and knowledge would prevent contamination or spoiling of foods by air, milk, finger, droplet, or flies.

If milk is pasteurized early and kept cool, and milk and other "spoilable" foods are put in refrigerator when they arrive at the home, most of these food poisoning attacks would be prevented.

Even ham and cheese which we do not consider as spoilable or perishable foods should be kept in the refrigerator.

The War Today— Hitler's Propagandists Busy Trying to Sow Dissension

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Argentina's action in severing relations with Germany and Japan is a happy development for the United Nations, since it is a step in the direction of closing the dangerous breach in the anti-Axis front of the western hemisphere.

The next vital step is for all the nations of North and South America to join hands in a ruthless housecleaning of subversive interests which are in the employ of Hitler and his gang. Should the great nation of Argentina feel able to give full co-operaton in this work, it will assure the success which thus far has eluded the Allies in their efforts to exterminate the Hitlerian and Japanese agents in this hemisphere.

From the military standpoint things go well for the Allies in all theatres of war, but while the enemy's striking-power at arms is visibly deteriorating, he is managing by persistent and insidious means to create international political crises which are a grave menace to the security of the United Nations.

The evil Hitler's propagandists are busy trying to cause dissension among the Allies, especially among Russia, Britain and America, upon whose amicable co-operation depends the winning of this war and the peace to follow. His agents are boring into the vitals of every country in an effort to create internal disorganization and thus damage the war effort.

Axis Aims Protract War

All this is a part of Der Fuehrer's general strategy of fighting delaying actions, both military and political, in the hope that time will produce some upheaval which will give him the victory that is denied his armies. Protraction of the war is his last desperate chance of salvaging something from the wreckage he has created.

One of the fields to which the Axis has been devoting tremendous energy is South America. The Hitlerian purpose is two-fold: to create bases which will give the immediate help in his war against the forces of civilization, and to try to disrupt the unity of the Western Hemisphere and thus weaken the strength of the Allies to make war.

Bolivia

One of the latest hot-spots in the Western Hemisphere is Bolivia which seems to have stubbed its toe badly in permitting the creation of a government which other leading South American nations have hastened to disavow and which Britain and the United States have refused to recognize.

One of the most significant things in connection with this development is the solidarity of the United States and Britain on the question. The Allies aren't going to extend themselves to the limit to uproot these isms and destroy them in the Axis countries and then overlook them in other parts of the world.

Thus those countries which now give aid and comfort to the Axis are building on shifting sands.

Missing Girl Reporter Brutally Slain And Stuffed Into Furnace

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 26—(AP)—Rose Brancate, 28, New Haven Journal Courier reporter, who disappeared mysteriously last July 5 and was never seen nor heard from again, was brutally slain and her body stuffed into a furnace the night of her disappearance, New Haven police said last night.

They announced the signed confession of Walter J. Law. 39, of New Haven, that he "killed her and stuffed her body into a furnace."

They added that several details of the slaying were being withheld by them and there were others which the prisoner refused to disclose.

CHARTER OAK

A large oak that once stood in Hartford, Connecticut, was known as the Charter Oak.

It is famous in American history as the traditional hiding place of the Connecticut royal charter.

When Sir Edmund Andros became governor-general of New ford to claim the colonial charter ford to claim the solonial charter granted in 1661 under which the colonists enjoyed a large measure of self-government and which the crown maintained had been forfeited.

Andros called the council together and demanded the surrender of the prized document. The colonial officials protested and the governor of the colony made a lengthy speech, presumably to prolong the debate until after dark. Suddenly all candles were extinguished and when they were relighted the charter had mysteriously disappeared from its place on the table.

It had, according to tradition, been spirited away by Capt. Joseph Wadsworth and hidden in the hollow trunk of the old oak.

If Andros has no charter to seize, neither had the colonists a charter to appeal to since the governor-general dissolved the existing government and suppressed their liberties.

Two years later, however, after King James II had been disposed and Andros relieved of office, the charter was brought from its hiding place and recognized by William and Mary as the supreme law of Connecticut, the crown lawyers having held that the document had not been invalidated by the action of the former government.

Much of the story is historically true, but it is difficult to determine where fact ends and fiction begins, and it has never been proved that the charter was actually hidden in the oak. The honor, it seems, was not attributed to the particular tree until 1789, over a century after the visit of Andros to Hartford.

The Charter Oak, which was nearly seven feet in diameter, was blown down during a storm Aug. 21, 1856, after which its age was computed to be nearly 1,000 years.

A section of the trunk was preserved by the Connecticut Historical Society and the remainder cut into small pieces and distributed as souvenirs.

The historic tree was reverenced by the people of Hartford that a funeral oration was delivered in its honor and the spot where it stood was marked by a granite monument.

RABAUL DEFENCE COSTS JAPS 61 PLANES SUNDAY

Eight More Destroyed on Ground by Allies' Co-Ordinated Assault

A REAL DOGFIGHT

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Jan. 26 — (AP) — More than 150 American and New Zealand fighters and bombers, making "one of the best co-ordinated raids since the war began," shot down between 46 and 61 Japanese planes and destroyed eight more on the ground Sunday to raise enemy losses in defence of Rabaul this month to more than 300.

The praise was voiced by Marine Maj.-Gen. Ralph Mitchell, commander of Allied air forces in the Solomons, after the raid was announced today by headquarters.

More than 40 dive bombers swept down on Lakunai, Rabaul's principal fighter strip, and silenced 17 anti-aircraft positions with 1,000-pound bombs. Eighteen torpedo bombers followed in to plant 2,000-pound bombs in the mid-section of concrete runways and on the coral extensions.

As the bombers turned away, 50 Japanese planes attacked, only to be set upon by 70 fighters, piloted by American and New Zealand fliers. These shot down at least 32 and probably 46 (some returning pilots counted 48) enemy planes which were added to the eight planes destroyed on the ground. Two bombers and three fighters were lost but one bomber crew and a fighter pilot were saved.

Allied count of Japanese aircraft lost at Rabaul this month includes 242 certainly shot down; 66 probably shot down and more than 20 ground planes destroyed. Allied losses slightly exceed 50.

Labor Relations Bill Is Given Second Reading

Quebec, Jan. 26 — (CP) — The Quebec Legislature, sitting in the Committee of the Whole, will continue today the clause by clause study of a bill constituting a Labor Relations Board after having unanimously given it second reading yesterday by a recorded vote of 55-0.

The vote followed a two-hour debate and was taken on the government's demand after Union Nationale opposition leader Maurice Duplessis said he was ready to adopt the principle of the bill and that a vote was "useless." Rene Chaloult, Bloc Populaire member for Lotbiniere, also had approved the measure and said "I will vote for the principle of the law."

The bill, making it obligatory for employers to recognize any labor organization comprising 60 per cent of their employees and to enter into collective labor agreement, was sponsored by provincial secretary Hector Perrier, in the absence of Labor Minister, Edgar Rochette.

He said the bill, whose terms "are in accordance with the recommendations of the Superior Council of Labor," was being proposed "in order to lessen as much as possible conflicts between employers and employees."

"Conflicts of interest must not endanger public security and citizens who are not interested in such conflicts must not suffer from them," Mr. Perrier said, adding that the purpose of the bill was "to protect social peace, to help the development of labor organizations of good faith, and to lessen the danger of strikes."

RAIL ACCIDENT OCCURRED DURING WORST FOG IN YEARS

London, Jan. 26 —(CP)— A train crash at suburban Ilford Jan. 16 in which nine passengers were killed occurred while Britain was groping through the worst fog in four years, it was permitted to be disclosed today. Fog covered the country from Land's End to John O'Groats and visibility was only about a yard when a train from Norwich plowed into the rear of a Yarmouth train stopped at the station.

Courier 15 Years

This week Joseph Hubbard completed fifteen years as a mail courier on one of the Bloomfield rural routes. In that period, he has travelled 98,000 miles without an accident. He has used only two cars and has had to change tires on the road only five times. He has missed very few trips during the 15 years and states that he cannot recall an open winter like that now being experienced.

Nurses graduated from Prince Edward County hospital who have been successful in obtaining their Registered Examinations in the Province of Ontario are Misses Carolyn Vandewater, Doris Rowe, Patricia Juniper and Ruth Kenny.

Italian Souvenirs

An Italian flag is an interesting souvenir received from Italy by Mrs. Davis Duetta. It was sent by Pte. Fred Howarth who is with the local regiment there. The flag is a large one, the colors being red, white and green. On the white section is a square with a white cross on a red background and blue border.

Draw Winners

A five pound box of nuts was received by Mrs. Gordon Nelson from her husband, also in Italy. These were shelled almonds and filberts still in the shell. She also received

Writing from Italy where he is a transport driver, Pte. William Breakenridge tells of a narrow a bridge set, the cover and serviettes having hand-painted flowers, as well as two handkershiefs embroidered with the names of Italian towns.

In the weekly Dimes for Victory draw, held to stimulate the sale of War Saving Certificates, Robert Semple of Demorestville won the $20 award. Winners of $5 certificates were Mrs. Minnie Vance, Picton; Mrs. Lorne Young, Bloomfield; William Woods, Bloomfield, and Mrs. Myrtle Snider R. 5, Picton.

escape he experienced. Shelling was intense, he wrote, and he thought it wise to leave the truck. He advised a cook, who was in the cab to leave. He himself was but a short distance away when a shell landed, riddling the truck with shrapnel. The cook had delayed leaving and suffered such severe wounds that he died five hours later. He also wrote that he and other men had been with the Padre, burying Germans who had been lying about for two weeks. "The enemy is a hound for punishent," he commented.

Red Cross Tea

Mrs. James deC. Hepburn opened her home this afternoon for a tea in aid of the Red Cross. The many guests were admitted by little Misses Susan Hepburn and Dorothy Nourse. Mrs. J. F. Reycraft and Mrs. C. H. McGibbon received with Mrs. Hepburn.

Mrs T. S. Philp, Mrs. F. J. Webster and Miss N. McDonald assisted in the dining room. Tea was poured by Mrs. W. G. Grothier, Mrs. W. G. Hope Swayne, Mrs. R. J. Hooper, Mrs. Iva E. Martin. Sweet peas centred the dining table. Mrs. Frank Kemsley received the fees.

Baptism

Rev. J. F. Reycraft conducted the christening of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Carman H. Burr, at their home. The baby was given the name of Gary Carmen. Mr. and Mrs. Burr later entertained at tea when Mrs. H. A. Burr, Mrs. F. L. Ward, Mrs. J. D. Baxter and Mrs. J. W. Brennan assisted. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Brennan, Napanee were guests for the weekend of their daughter, Mrs. Burr, and attended the christening of their grandchild.

Purchase Herd Sire

A highly bred herd sire has been purchased by Cecil Bongard, Milford, and Neil Parks, East Lake, for their Guernsey herds. The bull calf, Maple Lane Gem Africander was purchased from Maple Lane Farm, Kingston, New York, and its seven nearest dams have a record average of 13,026 pounds milk and 705 pounds fat. These are the first two Guernsey herds in Prince Edward county and outstanding foundation stock was previously secured.

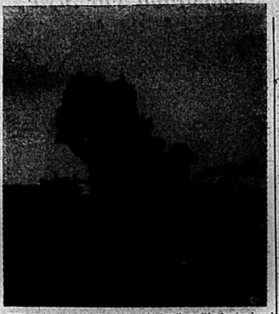
Kingston, Jan. 26 —(CP)— No pullet's egg this, with a lengthwise circumference of eight and three-quarter inches and an equator of six and three-quarter inches, laid on the nearby farm of C. W. W[illegible]er. Yet a pullet produced the giant.

CANADA'S FIRST ANTI-AIRCRAFT CRUISER FIGHTS OFF NAZI BOMBERS OVER TWO HOURS

A prize of $25, offered to the first man in H.M.C.S. Prince Robert to spot an enemy plane, was won by Able Seaman Robert Broadhead, of Edmonton, Alta., a lookout. Broadhead is shown above being congratulated by Capt. A. M. Hope, R.C.N., commanding officer of Prince Robert, who put up the prize, just as the ship sailed from Canada to link up with units of the Royal Navy.



While men on the bridge held their breath, a glider bomb released by a Heinkel 177 zoomed past the Prince Robert's bows and went straight for a freighter in the convoy. But a second before it was to have hit the mark, the bomb took an upward turn, passed over the freighter's masts and plummetted into the water 80 yards away. The freighter is seen above, almost enveloped in the cascade of water as the bomb fell.

Anti-aircraft gunners aboard the Prince Robert, let loose a barrage when some 32 enemy planes, most of them carrying glider bombs, attacked the large convoy they were escorting. The planes fled after a battle that lasted exactly two hours and all the ships reached port safely, although two were damaged.

Canada's first anti-aircraft cruiser, H.M.C.S. Prince Robert, pictured above, recently fought off German bombers for more than two hours to protect a convoy bound for the United Kingdom. The deadly barrage put up by her guns played a large part in bringing the convoy safely through.

CAPTIVE NAZIS IN ITALY

Mr. Stanley Montgomery who has been quite ill with flu is recuperating.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Terrill were Mr. Delbert McColl of Trenton and Mrs. A. C. Dafoe.

Mr. J. Bryne, of Trenton, paid a call on friends on Sunday.

Masters Dean Whitney and Alex Bell spent Saturday in Trenton with friends.

Empire Press Union Asks to be Consulted

London, Jan. 26 — (AP) — The Empire Press Union today asked Brenden Bracken, British Minister of Information, to take the Union into consultation "before adopting any new plan for handling publicity for future Allied conferences" such as those recently held at Cairo and Teheran.

In its annual report, made public today, the Union's council said arrangements for handling news releases at such meetings "need careful replanning."

The Council also protested against double censorship of some news by the British press censorship and government departments, and urged that all censorship authorities be vested in the Ministry of Information.

UNITED POLICY

The speech, in Toronto, Ont., of Lord Halifax, British ambassador to Washington, pictured above, has brought forth widespread comment. He asked for a united policy in the British Commonwealth of Nations, on such problems as foreign affairs, defence, economic affairs, colonial questions and communications.

cusing the Russians of responsibility for the Katyn Forest massacre.

If the Polish government here accepts the Soviet report and shakes up the cabinet it is believed here that Britain and the United States may be able to re-establish diplomatic relations between Russia and the Polish government for the beginning of negotiations over the Polish eastern boundary dispute.

Not in Ground Two Years

The Moscow broadcast recorded by the Soviet Monitor said the commission's report documented the evidence of witnesses working and living in the vicinity of Katyn Forest and the medical testimony of doctors who examined 925 exhumed corpses and concluded the bodies could not have been in the ground more than two years.

The Germans occupied the area in July, 1941. The Commission headed by Gen. Nikolai N. Burdenko of the People's Commissariat of Health said documents found on the bodies were dated up to the summer of 1941. The Germans said the Poles were shot in 1940.

DEMAND REPEAL OF OUTLAW ORDER

Vancouver, Jan. 26 —(CP)— Repeal of the federal order outlawing strikes was demanded in a resolution passed by the Vancouver Labor Council (C.C.L.) last night. The motion suggested delegates from all parts of Canada be sent to Ottawa to protest against the order-in-council.

Members Convene To Progue House

Ottawa, Jan. 26 — (CP) — Members of Parliament today receive thanks for their labors during 1943 and end their business for the 4th session of the 19th Parliament.

Assembling at 3 p. m. E.D.T., senators and commoners will continue briefly the session which started last January and continued until adjournment on July 24.

In the House, several bulky reports and other documents will be tabled, and four new members, elected at by-elections since July, will be introduced to Speaker J. A. Glen.

They are Fred Rose, Labor Progressive member for Montreal Cartier, Armand Choquette, Bloc Populaire, Stanstead; J. W. Burton, C.C.F., Humboldt and William Bryce, C.C.F., Selkirk.

When the House has concluded its business it will await a summons to the Senate by the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, Maj. A. R. Thompson, where the message of prorogation will be read by Chief Justice Thibideau Rinfret, acting as Deputy to the Governor-General.

Senators and commoners then are free of duty until they assemble tomorrow to hear the Speech from the Throne read by the Governor-General. This speech, outlining government plans for legislation in 1944, will mark opening of the new session.

In the Senate, one new member will take his seat, Senator J. F. Johnston of Bladworth, Sask.

Members who arrived in the capital today all said they expected a brisk session, which some expected to be the last before a general election.

Toronto Man Shot By Drunken Guard

Toronto, Jan. 26—(CP)—Erickson Ivan Moore, 37, former Toronto resident, was fatally shot Dec. 3 by a drunken guard on a train in the Republic of El Salvador in Central America, it was learned here yesterday. He died a week later.

Mr. Moore, superintendent of the El Salvador division of the International Railways of Central America, was shot after ordering the guard from a first-class carriage, it was said. He was born in Lakefield, Ont., going to Central America in 1930 after several years' residence in Toronto.

POINT TRAVERSE

DIES IN JAPANESE INTERNMENT CAMP

Father of Mrs. Mellish of Ottawa, Frequent Visitor Here, Had Been Taken Prisoner by Japs

Point Traverse, Jan. 26—Close friends here of Mrs. John Mellish, Ottawa, have been advised of the death of her father in a Japanese internment camp at Shanghai, China. Mrs. Mellish's father, mother and grandmother, who resided in Shanghai at the outbreak of the war, were taken prisoners by the Japanese and placed in confinement. Mrs. Mellish has received no word of the whereabouts of her mother or grandmother, who are also presumed to be dead.

Mr. and Mrs. Mellish are well known here, as they often spend brief holidays during the summer months at this colony. Mr. Mellish's work with the Geodetic Survey, Ottawa, has brought him to Prince Edward County on several occasions.

News Briefs

Ice harvesting at the fishing colony here has been completed. It is unknown whether the storing of ice at the Main Ducks has commenced, as help will be brought to the island via airplane.

R.A.F. airmen billeted here believing that spring is just around the corner, have commenced daily football practice.

High winds have broken up a large field of ice off here, carrying it into the eastern part of the lake. Only a small amount of floe ice remains about the Duck Islands.

Some of the fishermen have already begun work on their fishing crafts, in preparation for the spring opening.

Mr. Maitland Robbins, local farmer, reports the loss of a sheep in his barnyard, which is believed to have been caused by a wolf.

Mummy! Are you sure YOUR SOAP IS GOOD FOR MY BABY SKIN?

Yes, sonny, because my soap is Palmolive, the very same soap my mummy used for bathing me. You see, Palmolive just can't irritate your tender skin, or mine either, because it's made to give a smooth, soft lather that guards your skin and keeps it healthy as you grow. And that, sonny, is why Palmolive will always be your special soap . . . and mine, too.

Mother! Specialists advise for baby's skin—daily bathe your baby with gentle Palmolive Soap. Because it's made with Olive and Palm Oils—two of nature's finest skin guardians—Palmolive's kind lather cleanses gently, safely, soothes even the most sensitive skin. And, mother, everything that Palmolive does for baby, it will do for your complexion, too!

WEDDINGS

ALEXANDER—SAUNDERS

Trenton—The Rev. J. D. Martin of King St. United Church, Trenton, officiated at the marriage of Ruby Levack Saunders, of Toronto, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Saunders, Falconbridge, Ont., to Leading Seaman Louis Leroy (Lee) Alexander, R.C.N., son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Alexander, of Smithfield, Ont., on Thursday, January 20th, at three o'clock.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was a picture of loveliness in her gown of white brocaded satin, softly gathered at the waist and falling in graceful folds to the floor, long tight-fitting sleeves and sweetheart neckline. Her veil of bridal tulle illusion, which draped daintily to her fingertips was crested with an array of orange blossoms. She carried a cascade of deep red roses.

Miss Ruth Blondin, of Trenton, as bridesmaid, was wearing a frock of sky blue sheer fashioned similar to that of the bride. A tiny net Juliet cap misted with silk veiling of matching hue nestled in her hair and she carried a bouquet of yellow 'mums.

LAC. Robert Alexander, brother of the groom from Lachine, Que., was best man.

For the wedding reception at Firhurst Manor, the bride's mother was attired in an oak brown ensemble accented with matching accessories and corsage of red roses. The groom's mother was wearing blue crepe with accessories of the same shade and corsage of red roses.

On the wedding trip to Montreal and points east, the bride selected a Hunter's green wool dress with matching topcoat trimmed with mink and brown accessories.

The groom has just returned from two years overseas and his was the first boat to land in Sicily where he was wounded. After a short furlough home he is to report for duty next week.

SMITH—HUTCHINSON

In Oshawa at the home of Rev. T. H. P. Anderson, a quiet wedding took place when Buelah May, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Hutchinson, formerly of Bloomfield, and Keith Vernon, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Smith, of Toronto, were united in holy matrimony.

The bride was lovely in a dress of golden beige wool with a tiny off-the-face brown hat and matching accessories. She was attended by Miss Flo Parkin, of Oshawa, wearing sand beige wool and brown accessories.

Both the bride and groom are a part of Canada's Armed Forces. The bride is a member of the C.W.A.C. and is stationed at Brampton and the groom is in the Armoured Corps at Camp Borden. To Mr. and Mrs. Smith friends offer their heartiest congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy marriage.

ROBINSON—SYKES

A pretty wedding was solemnized in Christ Church, North Oshawa recently by Rev. Paterson, when he united in marriage Allan Wilfrid Robinson, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Robinson of Burridge, Ont., and Reva Florence Sykes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Sykes of North Oshawa.

The bride wore a floor-length white silk gown with full length veil and carried a bouquet of pink roses and white carnations. Miss Iva Ferris, niece of the groom, was bridesmaid. She wore a floor-length pale blue silk gown. William Sykes, brother of the bride, was best man.

Following a reception at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. Allen Ferris and Mr. Ferris, the bride and groom left on a wedding trip to Tweed. For travelling the bride wore a light brown tweed suit with dark brown accessories. They will reside in Oshawa.

This straight, full-length fur coat, made of precious Russian broadtail, has been dreamed up to accompany the short, formal dress, whether for day or evening wear. It makes a nice sartorial balance with any fluffy or very lowcut costume worn beneath.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

How Much Does it Mean When a Man Says "I Love You?"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I met a man about six years ago and not until recently have I taken any interest in him. When I met him it was at a banquet from which he escorted me home. I was 16 years old at the time and going with the man who is now my husband. We have two children, 4 and 2 years of age.

A year after we married, we started a business and that's how I met this former friend again. He had been in the army and was discharged. I now find that I'm deeply in love with him and he has told me he loves me.

My husband is very lazy and puts the burden of the entire business on me. He is cruel. I have asked him for a divorce, but he says he will kill me if I dared try to get a divorce. I don't love him and am so unhappy.

I've written to this friend and asked to see him, but he has never answered my letters. I know you will tell me that divorce will break up any chance for happiness for the children but I must think of my own happiness. The children would come with me to this man's home as he has plenty of money and everything a woman could ask for. He is 30 years old and I know I'll never regret it if I marry him. What can I do to make him see me?

U. T.

To a miserably unhappy woman, living with one who is cruel to her, the casual "I love you" of another man opens up vistas of better things. But how much does the man mean? It's only natural to say something kind, even unthinkingly kind, to an unhappy woman.

But when the man doesn't answer letters or follow up that first "I love you," a woman is building her hopes on sand. In the case of my correspondent, she should first take steps to put her affairs in order, cutting out romantic possibilities for the present.

Burns Night Brings Together Many Scots Folk

The schoolroom of the St. Andrew's Church was filled to capacity on Tuesday evening when it gave a warm welcome to two hundred Belleville folk from "the land of heather" who had come to the happy get-together to celebrate in fine style the significant occasion of Burns' night.

An excellent program was conducted, which consisted of a musical trio led by Mr. John Muirhead, a vocal number by Mrs. Bell, a reading by Miss Bell and several melodies rendered by Mr. James Bankier. A most inspiring address on the life of Robert Burns was given by Flt. Lt. Ross Cameron, padre of the Trenton R.C.A.F. Station. The entertainment was interspersed with bits of Scottish singing and lantern slides of Burns' songs shown by Mr. V. Weir.

The Rev. J. G. Hornaby proved himself a very capable chairman for the affair. Refreshments and the chorusing of "Auld Lang Syne" brought this charming event to a close.

Knights of Columbus Hold Monthly Meeting

The regular meeting of the Knights of Columbus held on Tuesday night was exceptionally well attended. Grand Knight George O'Brien welcomed all the newly initiated members. The half yearly report was read by Trustee William Lynch. Past Grand Knight J. V. C. Truaisch moved that the report be adopted as read and congratulated the finance committee for the very satisfactory report. Lecturer Thomas Mascaro called upon the newly initiated members to say a few words and all replied briefly. The lecturer stated that a box social would be held in February. Smokes and refreshments were then served. Community singing was in progress. Several selections were rendered by Messrs. Jack Boyle and H. Attfield, accompanied by Mr. J. E. Corradi at the piano. Mr. Frank High gave a number of recitations. The lecturer thanked all the members for being present and everyone expressed their thanks for the good time.

The Outdoor Girls' Outfit

Red Woolen Lumberjack Coat.

By VERA WINSTON

COSTUMES that are comfortable, yet smart and pretty, decorate the great outdoors and make hiking a pleasure. This outfit features a lumberjack coat, something on the order of that worn by Canadian pilots. It is of bright red wool and closes with two large black buttons, and is lined in black lamb's wool. Sleeves and yoke are cut in one. Slacks of red and black plaid wool. Worn with the outfit indoors is a long-sleeved black sweater.

STILL ON TOP of smart young heads is the small pillbox hat. For afternoon wear it comes embroidered in all sort of silver and gilt and brightly colored wool yarns, while some go in for trimmings of jewel toned stones.

CHANCES ARE that you'll find plenty of use for a light but cosy scarf this winter. A beauty is in creamy woolen, in a very thin weave, printed with big pink cabbage roses and green leaves. Nice over hair or shoulders.

Ration Coupon Calendar

Sulfathiazole Used in Treatment of Osteomyelitis

Infection or inflammation of the bone marrow is a serious disease. The doctor's name for it is osteomyelitis. It may occur suddenly and run a rapid course, or it may be chronic or long continued.

According to Dr. Clarence Dennis of the Mayo Clinic, osteomyelitis is, in the majority of cases, a lifetime disease. In other words, once the disease starts, it seems almost impossible to get rid of it permanently. However, with the more recent forms of treatment, such as sulfathiazole and penicillin, the latter made from a mold, it is possible that many of these patients may be permanently relieved of the disorder.

The treatment which Dr. Dennis employs for acute cases of osteomyelitis is to put the patients to bed, using plaster casts to keep the infected leg or arm at rest and to give sulfathiazole in large doses continuously, so as to keep the amount of sulfathiazole in the blood up to a high level. In cases of chronic osteomyelitis, the infected part of the bone is drained, and the wound filled with sulfathiazole. The wound then is closed and a plaster cast applied.

Dr. Dennis believes that many cases of the disease could be prevented if better care were taken of minor infections such as pimples or tonsilitis. It would appear probable that, in many instances, osteomyelitis develops because the germs are carried from infections in the tonsils, skin, or other parts of the body, to the bone marrow. It is especially important, when such infections are present, that the bones be protected against injury, since the germs will settle quickly in the injured tissues. Dr. Dennis also suggests that sulfathiazole be used in these simple infections, so as to keep osteomyelitis from occurring.

Of almost 30 osteomyelitis patients whom Dr. Dennis treated, in only two did the acute infection clear up completely. In 25 of the patients a chronic condition developed. The chronic disorder was cleared up in almost half of these latter cases.

A number of patients have been treated with penicillin with good results reported. However, this drug has not yet been used for a long enough period to determine what the final outcome of these cases will be. Sulfathiazole, alone, evidently will not cure the osteomyelitis. When used together with surgery, that is, the draining of the infected area, it does give good results in about half of the cases.

In view of the fact that osteomyelitis can be such a prolonged and damaging disease, it is important that everything possible be done to keep the disorder from developing. Prompt treatment of slight infections, no matter where they may be located in the body, should always be given.

THERE'S NO END to the wear and beauty of a well done woolen frock. Geared for all day wear is a frock of deep green, light weight woolen with softly draped bodice and deep U neckline trimmed with self bows. Self bows at the wrist of the long tight sleeves.

Amiability A Beauty Asset

Vivien of Phil Spitalny's Orchestra has a sunny disposition.

By HELEN FOLLETT

DO YOU lose your temper over trifles? Of course you don't. But the woman next door does. She fusses about everything. Can't stand the sound of children's voices. Doesn't like dogs and complains about them to their owners. Makes a big row if a shop hasn't just what she wants, evidently doesn't know there is a war on. And does she pay for all this? She has a face that makes you think of sour pickles. No matter how much money she flings into the cash register at the beauty shop, her investments won't bring her any returns.

Cultivation of Tolerance.

If the ill-natured woman would cultivate tolerance she would be happier, so would her family, friends and neighbors. She is suffering from mental sickness of a kind, is constantly in a state of disturbance. No woman can make other individuals unhappy without being unhappy herself; there's always a throwback in the form of punishment.

We are living in a period of intense emotions. We all carry a certain amount of anxieties. It is time for us to rise above small inconveniences, annoying trifles. The war is taking a toll of good looks; you see evidence of that all around you. Women suddenly appearing older. Faces tense. We must keep strong; and mental well being.
health is as important as physical

Amiability Beauty Asset.

What if the grocery boy is late with your order? He has his own troubles. What if you must wait to make purchases? The boss of the shop is frantic for clerks, can't find them can't get them.

The car is crowded; you have to stand. Other people also are going places, and they happened to get there first. Hang onto the strap, close your eyes, try to forget that you are tired. It is all in the day's job. Keep sweet; amiability is the best of all spiritual cosmetics.

The Marry-Go-Round

Love and Learn

True comradeship in marriage is that perfect state you reach when you have gotten over loving each other madly sufficiently to LIKE each other sanely.

Love is like the Solar System. Just as you think you've got it down to an exact science you make another startling discovery and have to begin all over again, working on a new theory.

When a girl falls out of love she lands with a painful thud; but a man, like a cat, always lands on his feet and walks off to another girl who will soothe his amour propre.

Fairy-tales may not be considered proper mental food for children: but it is not such a bad idea for little girls to get used to hearing them, if only as a basic training for courtship and marriage.

What a kick a man gets out of turning over a new leaf and then promptly blotting up the page!

It is time for young modern mothers to protest! Did you ever see one of these greeting cards "To Mother" in which "Mother" was pictured as young enough to have a son under fifty, much less of draft age?

From all we hear, the chow is so good in army camps that when he comes back no young husband will be satisfied with a cold cereal breakfast, a cafeteria lunch and a tin-can dinner. So war-brides may as well learn how to cook and avoid the mistakes of the jazz generation.

How is it that when "artistic temperament" goes to an actress' hair, it always changes it from whatever color it is to red?

Lots of cafe-socialites are planning to economize by not getting a divorce this year, and are just making the old partner do for another season.

LEARN TO WRITE LETTERS

Do you know how to write a good letter—a letter that a friend is glad to receive? It is not a difficult thing to do!

Letters may be serious or may be amusing, but they are always welcome. They sustain and deepen friendships; they break down barriers of distance. It is not to be wondered at then that ever since the stone age letter-receiving has been regarded as one of life's pleasures and letter-writing one of its arts.

To write letters is important but to know how to write them is most necessary. In writing to servicemen, the woes and petty troubles at home are not for his ears—they enlarge and worry him when he is thousands of miles away. Write cheerful, happy letters no matter how you feel.

Some people are stuck every time they write a letter. Everything they say seems flat.

How different when you have pointers on letter-writing, samples to guide you. No choppy, crude sentences, no pen-chewing then!

Our 32-page booklet has 24 sample letters, including letters of sympathy, congratulation, friendship, application. Gives letter etiquette, errors to avoid; how to make letters interesting.

Send 15 cents in coins for your copy of GOOD LETTER-WRITING MADE EASY to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

FASHION FLASHES

THERE'S NO BEATING velvet for charm and flattery. A delightful afternoon dress is of black velvet, cut on softly draped sheath lines with centre shirring. A deep V neckline discloses a blue satin vestee and there are blue satin roses at the side of the waist.

READY ALREADY for southern and early Spring wear is a series of beautiful and colorful tropical prints. Destined for success is a print of deep yellow banana clusters with bright green leaves on a creamy beige background.

IT'S AMAZING what a collection of blouses will do for a suit. Nice for late afternoon is a long, full sleeved blouse of white crepe shot with fine gold threads. V neck ties in a soft, self bow.

Indication of Possible Action On Post-War Issues and Security Seen in Speech of Prorogation

Promise of Impressive Victories Over Axis Fulfilled

REVIEW OF SESSION

By FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Jan. 26 — (CP) — The Federal Cabinet has given close attention to recommendations of parliamentary committees and other investigations on post-war reconstruction and social security, it was stated today in the Speech from the Throne at the prorogation of the fourth session of the 19th parliament.

The references in the speech, read by Hon. Thibaudeau Rinfret, new Chief Justice of Canada acting as Deputy to the Governor-General, were taken as indication of early legislation and action in these fields, details of which may be disclosed in the speech which will open the fifth session tomorrow.

The prorogation ceremony was held in the Senate Chamber after members of the House of Commons had been called to the Upper House to hear the speech.

Review of Events Since Last Session

As usual, the speech was a review of happenings since the start of the last session just about a year ago, world events during the year and the actions of parliament prior to adjournment last August.

The improved position of the United Nations in the war against the Axis, the participation of Canadian forces in various campaigns on land sea and in the air, the record of Canada in food and munitions production at home all came in for comment.

Special mention was made of the action of parliament in providing for the appointment of parliamentary assistants to ministers, and the speech said: "I am glad that the hopes entertained of this development in the organiaztion of parliament have been so fully realized".

Expression of Gratitude.

The speech ended with a note of gratification at the success of the two victory loans raised during the year—"clear evidence of the determination of the Canadian people to do their utmost in the winning of the war"—and an expression of thanks to God for the increasing hope vouchsafed to the United Nations during the year.

"In the session just concluded", the speech said, "careful study was given by select committees of both houses to the problem of full employment after the war and, in particular, to the establishment in useful and remunerative employment of the men and women of our armed forces and in war industries.

Study of Social Security.

"Careful study was similarly given by select committees on Social Security to the most practicable measures of Social Insurance and the steps which would be required to ensure their inclusion in a national plan which itself would include the establishment of a nation-wide system of health insurance.

"My ministers have given close attention to the recommendations of the select committees and to other investigations in the fields of post-war reconstruction and Social Security."

Coldwell Issues Minority Report On Aluminum Co.

Ottawa, Jan. 26 — (CP) — M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said in a statement today that a House of Commons Committee which held his charges against aluminum interests were unfounded had "succeeded only in making itself ridiculous" in an attempt to "whitewash" aluminum undertakings.

When the House resumed today to prorogue, Hughes Cleaver (Liberal Ontario) tabled a report of the War Expenditures Committee stating that "none of the allegations" made by Mr. Coldwell against the Aluminum Company of Canada in the House last year was substantiated by fact.

"On June 14 last I said that the people of the United Nations were being sold down the Saguenay by the aluminum agreements, and I repeat that today and express my regret that the government has not seen fit to change its policy in any way," said Mr. Coldwell.

(The Aluminum Company Shipshaw power development is on the Saguenay River at Arvida, Que.)

"...The Committee in its attempt to whitewash the aluminum deal has succeeded only in making itself ridiculous."

Mr. Coldwell served as a member of the sub-committee headed by R. T. Graham (Lib. Saskatchewan), which studied aluminum power and plant developments and taxation agreements with the government. He did not support the report of the sub-committee as approved by the main War Expenditures Committee and presented to the House.

Mr. Coldwell said he proposed to demonstrate in detail the correctness of his allegations later.

"The report stated that none of the allegations I made to the House on June 14 was substantiated, but, in my opinion, the evidence clearly substantiated these allegations, and shows them, in fact, to have been understatements," he said.

One of his points had been that the aluminum group in Canada was part of an international cartel. The committee report confirmed that Aluminum Limited, the Canadian holding company, held 28 per cent of the share capital of the Alliance Aluminum Corp., of Basle, Switzerland; that other shareholders were British, German, French, Italian and Swiss aluminum producers and that Alliance extracted agreements from its members to limit production and established world minimum prices at which it would buy stocks of aluminum offered it.

And just to complete the family record, their brother Carl is a member of the United States Army Air Forces.

Allegations Against Aluminum Company Not Substantiated By Facts Says Report Tabled

Ottawa, Jan. 26 — (CP) — The House of Commons War Expenditures Committee, in a report tabled today, said that "none of the allegations" made against the Aluminum Company of Canada last year by M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, is substantiated by the facts.

In a lengthy review of Mr. Coldwell's statements in the House and evidence heard during an inquiry last year, the report said:—

1. An agreement made between the government and the company on taxation was 'provident' for Canada.

2. The Aluminum Company dominated the Canadian aluminum production field but domination was not synonymous with monopoly. The aluminum industry had been able to produce and sell aluminum at constantly lower prices to the consumer.

3. Restrictive clauses in agreements with power firms had not been used to prevent other companies obtaining power to produce aluminum, and one such clause had been removed from a Canadian agreement recently.

4. Because of a limited post-war market for aluminum, the company faces the possibility of idle plants and power facilities representing a capital investment of more than $200,000,000. Depreciation granted for taxation purposes was justified. Idle plants might have to be torn down after the war.

5. Company developments, such as the Shipshaw power project on the Saguenay River in Quebec, had to be undertaken in haste and at additional expense because of the urgency of obtaining aluminum for war purposes.

6. The committee found labor conditions at Arvida, Que., and other company plants were good.

7. The committee felt the government was not the most effective or desirable agency to carry on the aluminum industry. No public moneys had been spent by Canada on the aluminum plants.

Report Tabled.

The report was tabled by Hughes Cleaver (L—Halton), committee chairman. It was written by Robt. Graham (Swift Current) who headed the sub-committee which visited Arvida and other aluminum company plants and heard witnesses from the company and the munitions department.

The report summarized Mr. Coldwell's statement in the House last June.

The C.C.F. leader had said prices charged the United Kingdom, the United States, Australia and Canada indicated undue profits; that the terms of taxation agreement between the Canadian government and the company represented a "gift" to the company; that labor conditions in Alcan plants were bad; that the aluminum companies of Canada were part of a world monopoly and that the whole transaction was improvident from the Canadian viewpoint.

Coldwell Did Not Endorse.

Mr. Coldwell, a member of the committee, which held its sittings in camera, did not endorse the report.

(In a statement issued today, Mr. Coldwell said he repeated his charge that the "peoples of the United Nations were being sold down the Saguenay (the Saguenay river at Arvida, Que., is the site of the Shipshaw power development) by the aluminum agreements.

("The committee in its attempt to whitewash the aluminum deal has succeeded only in making itself ridiculous."

(In denying the existence of a monopoly, the committee "puts itself in the position of the man who on being shown a giraffe solemnly declared that there wasn't any such animal," the C.C.F. leader said.)

Post-War Commission Asks Council to Reconsider Survey

Several Civic improvements were brought up for discussion before the Belleville Regional Post-War Planning Commission at their meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Monday, January 24th. Members present were Messrs. H. Woodley, E. Bernstein, O. H. Scott, O. W. Duff, H. W. Ackerman, E. Finkle, J. O. Herity, J. G. Galloway, J. E. Shortt, H. Rollins and W. Lorne McDougall.

The Secretary read a report on the interviews in Toronto with Hon. George Dunbar, Minister of Municipal Affairs, Hon. George Doucett, Minister of Highways and Dr. Conboy, Mayor of Toronto.

It was agreed by the Commission following a motion by H. W. Ackerman and seconded by J. G. Galloway, that the request of the Commission to the City Council to engage Messrs. Gore and Storrie for a city survey on the Sewage Disposal Plant, be referred to that body again for reconsideration after having been turned down. The notification of refusal was contained in a letter to the Commission in a letter from the City Clerk.

Asked to Acquire Property

A resolution that the Post-War Planning Commission recommend that the City Council take such preliminary steps, in the near future, as are necessary to secure possession of the land to be covered by the new right-of-way over which the proposed Esplanade will cross. It was further suggested, that the City Engineer's Department be requested to prepare rough plans for a driveway of minimum width of 80 feet, and that stakes be set to serve as a guide in the acquirement of the land involved. It was proposed, that such a development would provide employment for a large numbers of workers, both skilled and unskilled over a period of several seasons as an after-the-war project, and that such an improvement would give impetus to the building trades over many years through the extension of business blocks to meet the new street-line, as well as in the erection of entirely new structures.

It was moved by Mayor H. Rollins and seconded by J. G. Galloway that the Secretary write Mr. J. T. Crowder Secretary-Manager, National Industrial Federation, requesting him to express his opinion on the reliability and the necessity of the Sanford-Evans Statistical Service. Mr. J. E. Shortt advised that Mr. Crowder had recommended calling a meeting of Post-War Planning Committees of the various towns surrounding Belleville to interchange ideas. A committee consisting of J. E. Shortt J. O. Herity and W. L. McDougall was suggested by Mr. Rollins to arrange such a meeting.

It was moved by E. Finkle and seconded by H. Rollins that the Commission ask the City Council to request, that one member each be named to the Commission from the Canadian Legion and the Board of Health. The motion was carried.

Canadian Manufacturers Supply Only 38 P. C. of Farm Implements Used in Dominion Says Report

Ottawa, Jan. 26 (CP)—Implement manufacturers should study the possibility of manufacturing a much higher percentage of Canada's farm equipment needs in Canada, the War Expenditures Committee said in a report tabled in the House of Commons today by Hughes Cleaver (L-Halton), chairman.

"In view of our tremendous industrial development brought about by the war, and in view of the dominant position which Canadian agriculture now holds with respect to food production, it is unthinkable that Canadian manufacturers should continue to supply only 38 per cent of the farm implements used in this country" said the report.

"Your committee is of the opinion that such an industrial expansion would fit in with our reconstruction policy and program."

Evidence on material, labor and plant facilities available gor the manufacture of farm implements was heard by a war expenditures sub-committee headed by W. H. Golding (L-Huron-Perth) which held sessions last fall. The subgroup report was accepted by the main committee before presentation to the House.

Recommendations.

The committee also recommended:

1.—Assistance and encouragement to the implement industry in Canada to increase its production of implement and repairs to meet an urgent need, with special emphasis on the supply of labor-saving implements.

2.—Steps to stimulate the production of malleable iron castings, and, if necessary temporary subsidies paid to permit the industry to supply the present urgent need for its products.

3.—That National Selective Service continue to give careful attention to the manpower requirements of implement manufacturers.

4.—That full publicity be given the fact that additional farm implements will be available in 1944 so farmers will order them in time to permit rationing authorities distributing the supply according to actual need.

(Rationing regulations, under which new machinery is made available to a farmer only when he proves his need, were announced by the Prices Board in December.)

The committee said the implement program for 1944 was based on 89.5 per cent of the 1940 base year tonnage but, due to a further improvement in the supply of essential war materials, negotiations for a further increase in the tonnage were pending.

Some 168,500 applications have been received by ration boards for implements since 1941 and all but less than five per cent were granted.

No increases in retail prices have been allowed to cover increases in manufacturing costs in Canada or increases in prices of United States imported machines or parts, although increases in such lines had been approved in the United States.

FEDERAL SURVEYS RECOMMENDED

Reconstruction Report Refers to Housing Needs and Welfare of Agricultural Class

Ottawa, Jan. 26 — (CP) — Federal government surveys of conditions in the Maritime provinces, with the object of advising and helping in steps to improve the economic life of the people, were recommended in a report of the Reconstruction Committee tabled in the House of Commons today by J. G. Turgeon (L — Cariboo), chairman.

In addition the report's recommendations included:

1.—Government assurance to members of the forces and merchant marine that everything will be done to prevent recurrence of mass unemployment.

2.—That Canadian natural resources be completely surveyed so development work might be facilitated.

Survey of Housing Needs

3.—That a complete survey of housing requirements be made, to be ready for the carrying out of construction work when possible. Establishment of a housing body under ministerial responsibility would be preferable to see works contemplated are carried out.

4.—The committee felt it was within the power of governments and industry to maintain full employment for all Canadians during the transition from war to peacetime activities. Preference should be given members of the forces and merchant marine in works financed in whole or part by the Federal government.

5.—A first-class, all-season highway should be constructed across Canada.

Prices of Farm Products.

6.—The government should take steps "to make sure that farmers are no longer forced to sell their products at an unfair and unreasonable price". The establishment of flour prices would require both study and positive action by the Federal government.

7.—There should be co-operation with provincial governments in the installation of rural electrification.

8.—Agriculture should be provided with new credit facilities, either through extension of the credit union system or in "some other suitable manner". Every assistance should be given to the co-operative movement, both to consumers and to producers. This assistance should include help in the marketing of production.

9.—The Dominion in co-operation with the provinces and railway companies should take steps to eliminate level crossings "at the earliest possible moment".

TAKE STRONG MEASURES

London, Jan. 26 —(CP)— The Spanish embassy said today that the Madrid government had taken strong measures to prevent a repetition of bombs being placed in cargoes for Britain and "asked German subjects to leave the ports where such sabotage might have occurred.

The British government had protested explosions among orange cargoes received from Spain.

London —(CP)— The proportion of jufeniles working in the Civil Service is the highest in the history of departmental Whitehall. One-third of the 700,000 civil servants are between the ages of 14 and 21. In peacetime only a handful of boys and girls under 16 were employed in the service.

Charge Accused With Violations Of Medical Act

Arrested ten miles north of Cobourg on information laid by Chief Clare Hayes of Tweed, Mr. Harold Flannigan, 60, self-styled veterinary surgeon is in Belleville jail awaiting trial on three charges of violation of the Medical Act in addition to four charges of false pretenses and one of theft. His wife, Edna, has also been arrested by Chief Hayes and is in jail and will face a charge of obtaining board and lodging under false pretenses, as well as other charges.

The above couple appeared in Tweed in November of 1942 from parts unknown, the man setting himself up as a veterinary surgeon and developing a considerable practice. Later he branched out from the profession of diagnosing animal diseases and began doctoring humans in the Tweed district. Several months ago the man disappeared from Tweed and nothing had been heard of him until Chief Hayes received a "hot tip" which resulted in Cobourg Provincial Police being put on his trail.

The man was arrested on Tuesday and brought to Belleville today by Chief Hayes, while Mrs. Flannigan was arrested by Chief Hayes as she alighted from the train at Belleville station. Mrs. Flannigan is reported to have come from Lowbank in the Niagara district. Former address of Mr. Flannigan is not known.

A long trail of offenses have been committed by the arrested pair, according to Chief Hayes, and the couple are reported to be wanted in Dunnville and several other places. Three charges on action contrary to the Medical Act were laid by Inspector Barker of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, while the others against the man and the charge pending against the woman were laid by Chief Hayes.

According to information from police the procedure of Mr. Flannigan when being consulted by a "patient" would be to pretend to diagnose the case and then make out prescriptions which his wife would fill and dispense.

4TH OF SIDNEY

W.A. and W.M.S. Monthly Meeting

4th Sidney.—The regular monthly meeting of the Stone Church W.M.S. and W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. C. W. Vermilyea on January 10th, with the President, Mrs. L. Scott, in the chair.

Following the devotional period, Mrs. Scott gave an interesting talk dealing with the theme "Bible for all Canada's Children" and stressed the importance of early religious training in the home.

Correspondence was read and Mrs. Gray gave the Treasurer's annual report and Mrs. Detlor, the Secretary's annual report.

It was decided to adopt the Misses Elsie Hunt and Caroline Wellwood for prayer by the Society.

Mrs. Detlor, Mrs. R. Read and Mrs. Rushnell were in charge of the Study Book. All gave interesting papers on the topic "Joy of work skilfully done".

Thirteen ladies were present. Collection $1.50.

Mrs. A. B. Woods opened the W.A. meeting with a short worship service. After minutes of the last meeting were read the group leaders:—Mrs. E. Phillips, Mrs. G. Read, Mrs. H. Gray and Mrs. G. Evans received the names of their helpers. A general discussion was held on plans for 1944. The treasurer reported enough money on hand to finish paying for the piano recently purchased for the church. Mrs. Vermilyea assisted by Group 1 served a lunch.

Y.P.U. Met

About thirty members of the Y.P.U. enjoyed a theatre party on Friday evening, returning to the home of Mr. and Mrs. K. Twiddy, where lunch was served and a social time spent. Mr. and Mrs. C. Faul invited all to their home for the next meeting. Mr. G. Evans moved a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. K. Twiddy for opening their home.

Personals.

Master Peter Robson spent last week with his grandmother, Mrs. A. Cranston.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Woods, Stirling, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Woods.

Master Jack Vermilyea has returned home after visiting with his great grandmother, Mrs. McCoy at Madoc.

Miss Barbara Robson was an overnight guest of Miss Rose McMurter on Tuesday night.

Miss Mary Mangold of Belleville, was a weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Woods.

Mr. W. Woods, Chatterton, was a recent guest of Mr. R. McPherson.

Many from this line attended the funeral of Mrs. Barton Hinchliffe, Wallbridge, on Monday afternoon. Sympathy is extended the sorrowing relatives.

ATTEMPT FRUSTRATED

Asuncion, Paraguay, Jan. 26 — (AP)— The government announced it frustrated an attempted revolution at dawn today.

A communique from the Ministry of Interior said units of the disbanded Liberal party and allied organizations tried to take possession of police headquarters and barracks.

The Paraguayan government is headed by President Higinio Morinigo.

Gordon Carries Scoring Punch For Belleville Juniors Who Defeat Trenton Kids, 5-2

Newest Addition to Club Notches Four of Five Goals Scored

ICE QUITE HEAVY

It was Al Gordon who carried the scoring punch for Belleville Tuesday night, when Skipper Holway's Belleville kids took over the leading spot in the junior O.H.A. race by beating Trenton 5 to 2 in one of those perennial puck contests, that have for many years made these two communities hockey rivals. Gordon was most prolific, scoring four of the homesters' five goals and being used intermittently on the front line and as a rear-guardsman when the going was most torrid against the locals.

Being one of those Trenton-Belleville hockey games of long standing the match ended with a free-for-all battle when Billie Holway and Filion tangled in fisticuffs near the final bell. All and sundry dropped sticks and took sides with fans hopping the boards. However, no great damage resulted and Referee St. Louis quickly restored order with the chief offenders going to the "sin bin". Otherwise the game was hard and cleanly contested on rather soft ice that made good combination and fast play out of the question.

Trenton dominated the play early in the initial stanza to check the locals strongly within their own zone and were rewarded when Jack Taylor raided the Belleville zone lone-handed and stick-handled through for the only scoring registered in that frame.

Gordon Evens Count

In the second period it was pretty much all Belleville when Al Gordon picked up Johnny Semark's pass out from a corner and evened the count. With Hamilton off twice, Gordon set-'em up, but without results, so the prolific Gordon went about matters himself and with the neatest piece of stick-handling of the night came out to beat Harvey alone to put Belleville up.

Not satisfied Gordon took Greatrix's pass out and whipped that one home before Bush and Greatrix followed each other to the penalty box putting Belleville in a spot that made matters tough for Goalie Dick Fitzpatrick, who was given a busy session before Hamilton picked up a loose puck and rapped it home to end the second period at 3-2 for Belleville.

Ice Gets Heavy

The ice was heavy in the last period but not too 'sticky' to stop Filion who twice went through to be beaten by Fitzpatrick. The game developed into individual efforts until Johnny Semark broke away and went into a corner from where he passed out to Gordon, who was beaten by Harvey on a sensational save. Stijan and Taylor tested before Day broke away, passed to Meagher, who in turn slipped the old boot heel to Billie Holway and there was another Belleville counter. Gordon grabbed his fourth goal on Johnny' Semark's rebound. Then came the fisticuffs between Holway and Filion and with no police around the younger element of the community swarmed the ice, but no damage resulted and the principals were banished.

FOUR 20-GAME PITCHERS IN INTERNATIONAL

All Will Get Tries With Major League Clubs This Summer

HAMLIN GOES UP

New York, Jan. 26—(AP)—There were four 20-game pitchers in the International Baseball League last summer and all of them will get a crack in the major leagues this year.

Ed. Kleiman, of Baltimore, who turned in a record of 23 victories against 11 defeats, will toe the mound for the Cleveland Indians. Luke Hamlin, the old Brooklyn Dodger who hung up a mark of 21 triumphs and eight defeats for Toronto, will try again in the big time with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Tomas De La Cruz, the Syracuse flinger with 21 victories and 11 setbacks, goes up with the Cincinnati Reds on a conditional sales basis and Rufe Gentry, of Buffalo, who won 20 and lost 16, is with the Detroit Tigers. Gentry pitched several games for the Tigers last September and did well.

The official pitching records, released today by President Frank Suahgnessy, discloses Louis Polli, of the Jersey City Giants, tops the earned-run average column with 1.85. Polli, who won 14 and lost 12 with a second-division club, participated in 35 games.

Dick Conger of Toronto, who went to the National League Phillies in July, was second in the E. R. A. with a mark of 1.96 in 22 games. De La Cruz was third with 1.99 for 36 games. The E. R. A. for Hamlin was 2.06 for 31 games; Gentry 2.65 for 40 games and Klieman 2.84 for 45 contests.

The record shows Hamlin pitched the most shutouts, eight, with five of them against the Syracuse Chiefs. He shared the longest winning streak, eight games, with Joe Page, of Newark, and Klieman. Steve Gromek, of Baltimore, struck out the most, 188, in 46 games.

Pessimistic Outlook Taken By Breadon on Ball Situation

By the Canadian Press

In the most pessimistic statement made to date by a Major League Baseball executive, President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals asserted yesterday: "The way players are being taken by the draft, it does seen questionable whether we'll have enough left to operate."

He said he considered 19 players—eight pitchers, two catchers, five infielders and four outfielders— the absolute minimum with which a club could go through the season.

Taking stock of his available material, now that shortstop Martin Marion has been accepted for United States Military Service, Breadon found he did not have 19 men he could depend on definitely to start the race in April.

Second baseman Ray Mack will remain in his war industry job instead of reporting for Spring Training with the Cleveland Indians at Lafayette, Ind., and "may be out of baseball for the duration," vice-President Roger Peckinpaugh announced yesterday.

An application for permission to construct a third race track in Los Angeles County was met yesterday with a statement from a United States War Production Board officially opposing the opening of any race track in Southern California during the war.

At Toronto yesterday Secretary W. A. Hewitt of the O. H. A. said that Canadian Army teams are playing in the O. H. A. Intermediate series but they are in a group by themselves and won't meet civilian clubs even in the play-offs. He said that Inter-provincial Intermediate and Junior "B" class play-offs won't be held this year.

Dit Clapper, veteran Bruins defenceman, who is 37 next month, is at Boston awaiting further orders from his Draft Board. Yesterday he was examined and accepted for Armed Service. Clapper is a resident of Hastings, Ont., and has expressed a preference to serve in the Canadian Army. If Canadian Army authorities reject Clapper, Boston will be notified and his induction would follow.

The score in hammering Henry Armstrong's long comeback campaign now stands at 25 victories against four defeats. He won the 25th at Kansas City last night, knocking out Saverio Tauriello of New York in the seventh round of a 12-round bout before a crowd of 9,372. Armstrong weighed 144, Tauriello 148.

BARONS INCREASE 1ST PLACE LEAD

By the Canadian Press

Cleveland Barons increased their first place advantage in the American Hockey League to four points by whipping the former leaders, Hershey Bears, 5-2 on home ice last night.

The pace-setting Barons, who were trailing behind Bears all season up until about a week ago, have only lost one game in their last 13 starts.

Bears still lead the Eastern Section and hold second place behind Barons. They have a total of 45 points as a result of 20 wins and eight losses in 33 starts. Barons have collected 22 victories and five ties for a total of 49 points in 34 starts.

Last night Cleveland spurted to a 3-0 advantage in the first period on goals by Phil Hergesheimer, Tommy Burlington and Whitney Prokop. Dick Adolph made it 4-0 in the second period.

The Bears' two goals were made in the last period of Bud Jarvis and Peg O'Neil. Late in the period Les Cunningham bagged the fifth counter for Barons.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Adam Brown, and Joe Carveth, Detroit Wingers, who each scored two goals when Red Wings thumped Boston Bruins 6-3.

Murray Armstrong, Detroit, who assisted in setting-up three Detroit counters.

RACE TIGHTENED IN BOTH GROUPS OF JUNIOR O.H.A.

St. Michael's Wallop Hamilton Whizzers by 13-2 Count

SAILORS WIN

By The Canadian Press

The two games in the junior 'A' branch of the Ontario Hockey Association last night tightened the race in both groups although the leaders remain the same. Toronto St. Michael's walloped Hamilton Whizzers 13-2 and now are just two games back of the league-leading Oshawa Generals. In group two, Port Colborne beat St. Catharines 7-4, leaving the three top clubs — Galt, St. Catharines and Port Colborne — only four points apart.

Scoring records were fattened as St. Mikes rammed in nine goals in the third period to amass their big margin over Hamilton. Joe Sadler had four goals and Bobby Schnurr, Ted Lindsay and Frank Dunlap each had two. Mortson, McCormack and Bauer got singles. Comfort and Sanderson scored for Hamilton.

At Port Colborne the Recreationists took a 4-1 lead in the first period over the Falcons and were never headed. Simpell had three of the winner's goals. Savicky, Gravelle, Kaiser and Sergenese got the others. McMurdy, Pollock, Delmonte and Warecki were the scorers for St. Catharines.

N. H. L. LEADERS CHALLENGED BY DETROIT'S STREAK

Wings Defeat Boston 6-3 and Now Only One Point Behind Leafs

ALWAYS ON TOP

By the Canadian Press

It becomes increasingly clear with each performance that Manager Jack Adams finally has a hockey team in Detroit.

The 1943-44 Red Wings sounded another challenge to the front-running Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs last night, conquering Boston Bruins 6-3 to mark their eighth straight game without a defeat.

Playing before 12,000 fans at Boston Garden, Wings scored the only goal of the first period, jumped into a 5-0 lead before the second intermission and then coasted to an easy triumph although outscored 3-1 in the final 20 minutes.

The victory shunted Detroit within one point of the second-place Leafs and consolidated their hold on third place over Bruins, who appeared heading for their first shutout on home ice since Jan. 27, 1942, until Norm Calladine beat Conny Dion for the first time at 1:12 of the third period.

Adam Brown and Joe Carveth provided the cue for Wings, scoring two goals apiece, while Syd Howe and Carl Liscombe also connected. Howe's goal was his 199th in National Hockey League competition. Murray Armstrong had three assists.

Calladine, Art Jackson and Herb Cain counted for Bruins, who played without defenceman Johnny Crawford, centre Bill Cowley and Harvey (Busher) Jackson, three regulars who are on the sidelines because of injuries.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Jan. 26. (AP)— Don't laugh at that Saddle Shoe Susie who's trying manfully to lug your golf clubs around the course, Mister. In another five years you may be taking lessons from her. . . . That's the opinion of George Corcoran, the Greensboro, N.C., golf pro who first proposed a feminine P.G.A. . . . Caddies always have grown up to become pros, George explains, and the gals who have taken up caddying the last year or two are no different. . . . In fact, they're better prospects because girls naturally have better rhythm and are keener students.

One-Minute Sports Page.

Bob Steuber's basketball teammates at Marquette are wondering why Bob, who played with the Chicago Bears during last fall's exhibitions and the first league game before the Navy sent him to Depauw, wasn't given a cut of the Bears' play-off dough. . . . Under similar circumstances the Washington Redskins awarded Johnny Goodyear a nice chunk of dough and the Giants did all right by Don Vosberg the year before. . . When asked to help New York's war bond hockey show, Boston's tough trader Art Ross, gave Goalie Bert Gardiner permission to play and added "the expenses are on me". . . Marine Lieut. Dave Rankin, former Purdue football star, doesn't waste any words describing his feat of shooting down two Jap dive bombers. . . "had a little fracas the other day", Dave wrote, "and ended up shooting down a few Nips".

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

When Sandy holed out on the first green, his companion asked: "And how many strokes did ye take?"

"Eight," was the reply.

"Ah, I took seven," said the other, "so that's my hole."

Sandy regarded his friend with a dour expression, but said nothing. On the second green he asked Sandy the same question.

"Nay, nay, my mannie, objected Sandy. "This time it's my tu'rn to ask first."

(Welcomed additions.)

When FO. Patterson, of the Mountain View R.C.A.F. base, informed us that Johnny McCreedy, former Toronto Maple Leaf star had reported to the Bombers' camp on Monday he did not add that Frank Aube, formerly with the Montreal Royal juniors, was also in the Bombers' camp to say nothing of Gene Bauer, brother of Boston Bruin Bobby Bauer.

Frankly speaking with the recent rulings of the R.C.A.F. pertaining to service teams confining their sport activities to garrison leagues only airmen will be posted to bases where they are most suited to the work of air force Ambitious youths who are "washed out" in initial training schools will immediately be posted to bombing, gunnery or repair depots without being held for sports prowess. This latest regulation should tend to find many named players being posted to one of the four district R.C.A.F. bases and subsequently playing hockey in the Bay of Quinte Air Force league. McCreedy, Bauer and Aube, to team up with Dan Cowley, the veteran left winger of the great Trenton champions of 1937.

At the time of writing Coach Padre Mika's Trenton sextette are leading the parade in the Air Force league, that operates Monday and Thursday nights at the Hume arena. The "Flyers" boast of a formidable collection of ice stars, Dziura, an ex-professional, George Ellis from Waterloo, Voss, formerly with the Montreal Royals, Kelly, a strong defence puck carrier from western Ontario, only to mention a few. There is no reason to believe more named players will be seen in the Quinte Air Force league before long, now that only garrison sport leagues are permitted. Incidentally it's the "Bombers" and No. 6 Repair Depot on Thursday night for your approval.

(Thanks Al Gordon).

With Al Gordon, Belleville's newest puck asset from No. 5 I.T.S. carrying the mail for four of their five goals, Toots Holway's local juniors came out on the long end of a 5-2 score over FT. Stan Jackson's Trenton kids to take over the group leadership last night. However, the locals now have a tough row to hoe ahead—games at Trenton and Stirling before they return to the home ice next month. Johnny Semark set up two for Gordon, but the latter set up enough for the rest to coast in and not have the game terminate in fisticuffs. Which brings us around to the fact there were no police around to quell the minor racket that did break out. Fortunately it was not a serious affair, but the occasion should go to prove to the team management—police are needed at any hockey game. Frankly, maybe the soft ice roused the boys' ire somewhat as is usually the case under such circumstances. Incidentally Filion was the pick of the visitors.

(El Goofy recalls Cronin.)

Lefty Gomez, former New York Yankee southpaw deluxe, never will forget Joe Cronin's debut as manager of the Boston Red Sox on the opening day of the American League in 1935.

Up to that time, Gomez had recorded 11 straight victories over the Boston club. And Lefty was "hot" when he faced the Hubbers in the inaugural at Yankee Stadium.

However, Cronin nominated Wes Ferrell to oppose the New York southpaw, and the righthander allowing only two hits, both in the seventh inning, with two down, matched Gomez, pitch for pitch, during the first five frames. In the sixth, the Red Sox tallied once — and that was the end of the scoring, the Bostonians presenting their new skipper with a 1 to 0 triumph. Cronin, in four plate appearances, made one of the Sox' six hits and handled six chances at short.

(Remember when—)

Howie Morenz was traded by the Chicago Black Hawks to the New York Rangers eight years ago today for Glen Brydson. The great centre from Stratford, who starred with the Montreal Canadiens for nine years before going to Chicago, slumped after the trade. But back with the Habitants in 1936-37 he regained his oldtime dash and color until death cut his career short in March, 1937.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLIE EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Jan. 26 — (CP)— Decline in the quality of National League hockey is undoubtedly one reason Toronto Maple Leafs attendance and gate receipts figures are down from last year. There was an example last Saturday night when Rangers beat Leafs 5-1 before 10,735 fans, a small crowd for Saturday night at the Gardens, and at the same time the Toronto Hockey League's major division drew 4,621 fans to Varsity Arena, largest crowd in the league's 17-year history. For 35 cents at Varsity the fans can see former professional stars like Hank Goldup, Earl Robinson, Johnny Holota, Whitey Farrant, Jim Conacher, Jack Shill. The T.H.L. features doubleheaders with three commercial teams and the Army Service Corps Shamrocks.

You Try It:

Dave (Regina Leader-Post) Dryburgh comes up with a couple of teasers. He reports a sprinter running 100 yards can't beat another running 50 yards carrying another man on his back. The latter, said Dave's informant, can do the 50 in eight seconds. Dryburgh's problem promoter also claims a baseball player will beat a golfer in a novelty golf match, the ball player throwing a baseball around the course.

Prospects:

Our guess is the C.A.H.A. will make a financial mistake if it attempts to run Allan Cup play-offs this year with its few remaining top-rank civilian clubs and a scattering of all-star teams. Rumor says Alberta may be represented by Calgary Buffaloes, last year's western intermediate champions, plus a few star reinforcements.

Incidentally:

Coach Dick Irvin of Canadiens told Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll a hockey player need not develop a switch shot because a back hand is just as effective. Most goalies think the backhand is more difficult to handle because the puck-carrier skates across the goalmouth and it is difficult to anticipate when he will shoot ... Manager Jack Adams of Detroit says Murray Armstrong is already one of the most popular Wings players. "Haven't had one like him on the club in years," says Jack. "He doesn't smoke, doesn't drink and is strictly a team player." ... Art Coles of Vancouver, one of Canada's leading skiers, now is a prisoner of war in Germany. He had 32 operational flights with the R.C.A.F. before being shot down.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 236

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Most good bridge systems are made up of a cluster of rhetorical gems. Horse sense is merely a nugget before it is broken up into glittering phrases.

Settle down to the bidding of this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠A K 6
♥Q 8 7 3
♦K 6 3
♣A K 6
NORTH
♠None
♥A J 6 2
♦A Q J 5
♣9 7 5 3 2

The bidding has progressed to here:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 NT	3 H
4 NT	6 C

As soon as north bids hearts, south knows that hearts will be their trump suit. The one-jump bid by north admits that there are enough tricks to make a game.

With the tricks shown by north with the jump bid, south sees at least 12 tricks in their pair. And with at least two aces and a king, south can see a slam if north has help in aces and kings.

The four no-trump bid by south is the convention signal for telling north what south has discovered about slam probabilities. It orders north to disclose how many aces and kings he has.

To the four no-trump convention, the six club response by north is the convention signal for showing two aces and no kings. Thus, south learns all four aces and three kings are in their pair.

Opponents are known to have no aces. But they do have one king. And, unless south is blind as a bat, he knows it is the trump king. So, he should be content with a final bid of six hearts.

Of course, south could gamble on a grand slam and hope to pick off the heart king. But that would be a sucker bet. If it failed, look at the jolt it is for his pair.

They would lose all the points awaiting them for a small slam, game, trick points, and possible rubber.

You can lose your pantses by taking chances.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Letter"

In those circles where such things are discussed, Bette Davis would be known as a "repeater". The one thing she hasn't learned is how to stay out of jail, and important cities all over the world can boast of having thrown the famed actress into the clink at one time or another. Miss Davis, cinematically speaking, never seems to benefit from these unpleasant experiences so far as regeneration is concerned. According to the boxoffice receipts that attend her every fall from grace, her anti-social conduct is deeply appreciated.

At the present moment Miss Davis is undergoing another investigation b the minions of law and order, this time in Singapore. This legal grilling is for scenes in "The Letter", the picture now playing at the McCarthy Theatre in which Miss Davis stars, with Herbert Marshall and James Stephenson at Warner Bros. In the drama based on Somerset Maugham's famous play, she will spend her usual time in the jail house until she is acquitted.

As mentioned before, this run-in with the law holds no novelty for the errant Miss Davis. It was not so very long ago that she was lodged in the Concierggrie in Paris until the authorities decided what to do with her. Be it said in Miss Davis favor, however, that in "All This and Heaven Too", in which Charles Boyer was the cause of so much of her trouble, she was merely the victim of circumstances beyond her control, as they say in the courtroom, but it serves to illustrate Miss Davis' unflagging affinity for the police of all nations.

The fact that she is acquitted in "The Letter" does not mean that she is innocent. It's just the Davis wiles that obtain for her a brief respite until justice, as it must to all men, catches up.

2nd big hit now playing at the McCarthy Theatre stars Errol Flynn and Olivia De Haviland in "Santa Fe Trail" with Raymond Massey, Ronald Regan, Van Heflin and Alan Hale.

AT THE BELLE

"Thank Your Lucky Stars"

Warne Bros.' tune-full, star-full musical production, "Thank Your Lucky Stars", is now closing at the Belle Theatre.

Starred in the production are most of the contract players on the Warner Bros. roster, including Humphrey Bogart, Eddie Cantor, Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland, Errol Flynn, John Garfield, Joan Leslie, Ida Lupino, Dennis Morgan, Ann Sheridan, Dinah Shore, Alexis Smith and Spike Jones and his City Slickers. Each is seen in a specialty sequence.

Twelve tunes were written for the film by the noted song writers Arthur Schwartz and Frank Loesser

The Canadian Movietone News, and "Desert Playground" a smart sports parade in technicolor complete the program.

English "Mrs. Miniver"

It will be called an "English Mrs. Miniver"—yet it's a more genuine job than the Hollywood best seller—says Roly Young, well-known photoplay critic of the Globe and Mail of "Meet Mr. London", coming next to the Belle Theatre, with the greatest character actor on the British screen, Edward Rigby, and featuring George Robey, Stanley Holloway and Mabel Constanduros.

Fun in the Jungle.

Said to be one of the gayest farce films of the season, RKO Radio's "Rookies in Burma", the added laugh feature stars Wally Brown and Alan Carney in a laughter-packed tale of goofy soldiers in a Jap-ridden jungle.

Erford Gage as a hard-boiled sergeant, Ted Hecht as a Jap captain and Joan Barclay and Claire Carleton as pair of stranded showgirls have the top featured roles.

How the boys are captured by enemy forces and how they make their escape against heavy odds brings about the riotous situations of the picture.

"Sky Science", is the title of an excellent Pete Smith Specialty to be presented on the same program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Background to Danger"

Murder, espionage and romance are the explosive ingredients of the new Warner Bros. film, "Background to Danger," which opens next at the Capitol Theatre.

Starring George Raft and Sydney Greenstreet the picture's strong supporting cast is headed by Peter Lorre, accomplished player of spine-tingling roles, Brenda Marshall and Osa Massen, pretty Danish actress. Locale of this exciting story is Turkey, a focal point of international intrigue and counter-espionage.

George Raft is cast as Joe Barton, a G-Man who runs head-on into murder and trouble when he meets pretty Ana Remzi (Osa Massen) on a Bagdad-Istanbul express. The lady entrusts him with an envelope all her money and securities. The envelope proves to be dynamite that shoots Raft straight into the centre of German intrigue and Russian counter-espionage.

"Wild Horse Stampede"

"Wild Horse Stampede," first of Monogram's new "Trail Blazers" western series featuring Hoot Gibson and Ken Maynard, comes to the Capitol theatre next, presenting a new and potent entrant into the outdoor field. Betty Miles plays the leading feminine role, and other important parts are enacted by Ivan Keith, D. Stewart, B. Baker, Si Jenks, Kenneth Harlan, John Bridges, Glen Strange.

A funny cartoon and the serial "Secret Service in Darkest Africa" make up another grand weekend bill.

AT THE BELLE — Alan Carney and Wally Brown as two nitwit privates on the loose in Burma in their second and funniest comedy "Rookies in Burma," surrounded by Japs, coming next to the Belle Theatre. The English "Mrs. Miniver", "Meet Mr. London," is the major feature attraction.

Hollywood and HERE

BOB MONTGOMERY BLASTS WILLIAMS

Philadelphia, Jan. 26 — (AP) — Bob Montgomery today was on the come-back trail toward his lost lightweight title with fire in his eye after blasting Ike Williams, the Trenton, N. J., terror into oblivion in the last round of their scheduled 12-rounder at Convention Hall last night.

Pointing toward his promised return title match with Beau Jack, the Philadelphia bobcat hammered Williams mercilessly for 11 rounds. The end came for the Trenton lightweight in 2 minutes and 49 seconds of the final stanza.

A fight thirsty crowd, officially announced at 14,807, paid $56,829 to see the bobcat start his comeback by blasting Williams' 32 bout winning streak with a drumming body attack that softened the Trenton boy up for the final smash.

As Williams came out for the last round he walked into a flock of straight rights that floored him twice for counts of eight. As the Trenton fighter lifted his beaten body from the canvas for the second time Montgomery whanged over another right which caught Williams flush on the jaw and draped him face down over the lower rope for the final count.

Casualties of U.S. Forces 142,289 of Whom 32,662 Killed in Action

Washington, Jan. 26—(AP)—Latest available figures on American war casualties total 142,289, including 32,662 killed in action.

The Office of War Information announced figures Tuesday. They cover navy casualties through Jan. 22 and army loses through Dec. 31.

Fresh Fighting Flares in Burma

New Delhi, Jan. 26 — (CP) — Fresh fighting has flared in the Chin Hills and Hukawng Valley of northern Burma where American-trained Chinese troops are clearing a route for the new Ledo Road to China, a southeast Asia Allied command communique said today.

Chinese forces made further gains in the Hukawng Valley. R.A.F. dive-bombers supported ground troops in the Maungdaw area.

Fighter planes over southern Burma ripped up Japanese communications, damaging more than 60 river craft and a steamer, and hitting motor tr[illegible] [illegible] locomotives. No planes were lost.

Further details [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]eep into southern Burma Jan. 23 by American heavy bombers based in India, when shipping at the port of Mergui was blasted, indicate two coastal vessels and a 300-foot merchantman were set on fire and probably destroyed.

NOT SINGLE HOUR OF PRODUCTION LOST IN YONKERS PLANTS

Yonkers, N. Y., Jan. 26—(AP)—Claiming a National Record of War-time Harmony, industrialists of this Hudson River City today said that not a single hour of production has been lost by strike or slow-down in any of the city's 17 war factories since the nation began its war program. Yonkers has a population of 142,000.

2 PAIRS NYLON STOCKS SOLD AT $17,000 AT LOAN AUCTION

Elmira, N. Y., Jan. 26—(AP)—Auction of two pairs of nylon stockings at a Hollywood bond battalion diner here last night netted the fourth war loan drive $17,000.

AT THE McCARTHY — Errol Flynn and Olivia De Havilland stars of "Santa Fe Trail," now playing at the McCarthy Theatre. Second feature presents Bette Davis with Herbert Marshall in "The Letter."

Partisans Reoccupy Bosnian Stronghold Of Mrkonjicgrad

London, Jan. 26 — (CP)—Yugoslav Partisans have stormed and reoccupied the western Bosnian stronghold of Mrkonjicgrad, near Jajce, recently-liberated headquarters bastion of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito), but have been forced to evacuate the strategic town of Tuzla in eastern Bosnia, Tito's war bulletin said today.

Mrkonjicgrad was taken in the German advance down the Vrbas river valley from Banja Luka, 30 miles to the north, two weeks ago, which also overran the nearby hill fortress of Jajce and several other Partisan-held towns northwest of Sarajevo. Jajce was retaken Jan. 21 by Tito's forces.

Tuzla fell before superior German forces, Tito's communique reported. The battle for the town, which continued for more than a week, cost the Germans more than 500 men, the communique said.

Yugoslav 5th Division units have cut the important railway joining Sarajevo with the coastal area of Jercegovina to the southwest and have consolidated their hold on Kalinovic, 25 miles south of the Bosnian capital, the Partisans reported.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was talking and arguing around the letter box with Shorty Judge and Glasses Magee, and Lucky Leroy Shooster started to go passed with his father, Shorty saying, Where you going, Lucky?

Aw, who wants to know? Lucky Leroy said, and his father said, He's going to the dentists, that's where he's going, and I'm seeing to it personly because I'm tired of listening to his excuses of why he hasn't been there yet.

And they kept on going, me saying, Oh boy, here's one time he cant claim he's lucky, and Shorty saying, I bet he's wishing he was us, but we're not wishing we were him, oh no, not this time, and Leroy Shooster saying, Oh boy, anybody that claims they're lucky having to go to the dentist must mean they're bad lucky.

Oh boy, Lucky's unlucky at last, let's follow them so we can actually see him go in, I said.

Which we started to do right behind them, Glasses saying, How you feeling, Leroy, not so lucky, heh?

Oh I dont know, I'm not there yet, Lucky Leroy said, and I said Well you're pretty darn awful close.

Which he was, only being about 5 doors from Dr. Climber's, and he went in with his father, and just when we were starting to enjoy ourselfs imagining what was happening to him he came out again with his father, me saying, G, did he do it to you already?

He's not doing anything to anybody, he's got a fierce toothake himself, Lucky said, and us fellows said, Go on, like fun, dentists dont get toothakes, and Mr. Shooster said, It's quite correct, boys, Dr. Climber was sitting in his own chair holding his jaw and waiting for another dentist to come and stop the pane.

And he kept on going by himself, and Lucky said, So you see, I'll be lucky for at least a week, because it'll take my father at least that long to make up his mind to bring me again.

The result being we went around to the firehouse in diskust.

CHAPTER 12

"Take off that dress," he snapped. "It's terrible."

She obeyed, standing in a little slip of white, startingly lovely, slender, vivid, alluring. Farrish sprang upon the stage and commenced to drape fabrics, so that, presently Darnley seemed to be engulfed in a foaming wave of silks. Then hot lights beat upon her.

"Crimson in the baby spot," Farrish said tensely. "Just let it touch that right shoulder."

Beams of colored lights mingled, crossed, blended, touching her and the foam of fabrics as if they were paints from the palette of an artist.

"Mister," said a voice from the rear, "you know your stuff."

It was the pitchman, Terry Random. Clyde, preoccupied, made no rejoinder.

"Save 'em," Clyde called presently to the electricians, and the lights clicked off. He glanced at his watch. "They're due," he said to Darnley. "It's tough, but can you hold it? As nearly as possible?"

"Don't worry," she said. "Do the curtains pull?"

They slid to with a little singing of rings upon wire, and then opened again.

"Mister," enthused the pitchman. "If I can't sell this show, I'm a cluck."

"When the agency people get here," Darnley said, "play up to Mr. Farrish."

"Leave it to me, Lady! Leave it to me!"

"Go to the office and wait for Mr. Jenks," directly Darnley. "Let us know when they come."

The curtains closed. Darnley rested as much of her weight as possible against the support beside which she stood and waited. She had a feeling that so much depended upon this afternoon.

Before her back commenced to ache she heard her pitchman's voice: "Mr. Jenks and some men are here."

"Let them," Farrish said, with a curious lilt in his voice, "enter the presence."

Then she heard movement and voices. Jenk's voice, familiar to her over the telephone, was speaking. "Mr. Farrish, we appreciate this," Darnley heard him say. "This is Mr. Jameson, president of Pleiades Silk."

"Did it for you," said Clyde. "Don't know Jameson. Dr. Random ask these people to sit and keep from under my feet."

Darnley smiled. Farrish had promoted the pitchman to a doctorate—she wondered in what branch of learning.

"Gentlemen," invited Random in a deep, sonorous voice, "will you select seats. I beg of you to refrain from conversation. The time has been short, Mr. Farrish is near the point of exhaustion." He lowered his voice to a confidential tone: "You notice him! You see how he is! Gentlemen, you're in luck. Out of these moods come masterpieces."

"Silence!" snapped Farrish. "Curtain."

The curtain parted and Darnley looked into a room of velvety blackness. Upon herself and the billows of silk was only a feeble light.

Farrish's voice said words which she recognized:

"When, in disgrace with fortune and men's eyes, I, all alone, bewail my outcast state, and trouble deaf heaven with my bootless cries . . Number two amber."

A golden glow played upon Darnley as the electricians turned on an amber bunch light.

"When," she heard the pitchman say, "his soul's really in a job, he recites poetry. He claims beauty begets beauty, gentlemen. You were but now, listening to the immortal words of Shakespeare's Twenty-ninth Sonnet."

"And look upon myself and curse my fate," Clyde continued. "Bewailing this man's art and that man's scope. Magenta on the left breast. Lower! Lower!"

His voice was rising as if with excitement. A note of triumph crept into it: "Now the Number Six green—smoothly, smoothly. The Number Four yellow! . . And then my state." His voice rang out dramatically, victoriously. "The red, the Number Twelve red, as if it were glancing over the wavelets of silk. There! There!—Like to the lark at break of day arising from sullen earth!"

He was standing now, in a very paroxysm of emotion. His voice was happy, thrilled, a very song of triumph: "Sings songs at heaven's gate. For thy sweet love remembered such wealth brings — Blue waisthigh. Green spot — there! Above the crimson. That when I scorn to change my state with kings." His voice reached a climax.

He stood for an instant and then sank into his chair. "There," he said wearily. "There it is. There it is. I've done my best."

"Gentlemen," intoned "Doctor" Random solemnly, "there's your masterpiece."

"Can he reproduce that in a color photograph?" asked Jenks.

"What you see," declared Random, "is what you get."

"Ahem!" It must have been President Jameson speaking. "Remarkable! Er—remarkable."

"What do you mean remarkable?" snapped Farrish savagely.

"I mean," said the important gentleman, in the voice of one who is taken aback, "I mean—er—remarkable!"

"Why don't you say what you mean?" demanded Farrish. "Take him away, Jenks. He doesn't understand."

"I'm quite sure he understands," Jenks said placatingly. "I know he is delighted—as I am. It has been a privilege."

"A privilege enjoyed by few," remarked Random.

"When can I have delivery?" asked Jenks.

"Tell him tomorrow, Dr. Random," murmured the new maestro of photographic art. "Tell him tomorrow. Now please, everyone go away.

"I would like to shake hands, Mr. Farrish," said Jamieson, "and thank you for—for helping in an emergency."

"Anything. Anything—even this—even this! for a friend like Jenks. Lucky Jenks was your agent." His voice sank to a whisper.

Random shooed the purchasers out of the room. "Now," he told them confidentially, "we'll catch blazes around here for an hour. Then he'll be as sweet as pie. A remarkable man—Farrish. An authentic genius!"

"He—er—seems to be," said Mr. Jameson. "No commercial sense. He didn't seem to get the idea that I am paying for this."

"He wouldn't care," said the pitchman, "if nobody paid for it—so long as it came out as he wanted it. I'll call tomorrow."

Clyde helped Darnley out of her cocoon of silks and placed a chair for her. "Good performance?" he asked.

She smiled approval and then remarked, "Hereafter you must eat popcorn when creating."

"What?"

"Everybody's interested in what people eat. You live exclusively on popcorn when in creative moods. I'll get the story spread. You get the popcorn. You put on a good show. But Dr. Random helped."

A photographer rushed into the room. "Mr. Farrish! Mr. Farrish!" he called excitedly. "Come here! Quick! Somebody's smashed the color camera in the studio!"

Clyde Farrish stood looking at the demolished camera. It had ceased to be. His face was grim. For the first time Darnley noticed that he owned an admirable chin. It was the sort of chin that knew how to jut out belligerently.

"There," he said, "goes your ball game"

"Haven't you another?" she asked.

"Another! It broke the camel's back to get that one. With less, it clawed the bank roll to the tune of thirteen hundred and fifty-seven dollars. That, my lovely child, is a Ludenheim, imported."

"Can't you get another?"

"Using what for money?"

"Is there another to be had?" she asked.

"Probably. But it might as well be an extinct species. I haven't cash. I haven't credit. You don't just go out and pick a color camera as if it were a buttercup in a pasture."

"Come into the office," she said, and he followed her. She closed the door. "You've got to have a camera so that picture can be taken this afternoon," she said severely.

"You get it," he retorted ironically. "I've got another chore."

"What chore?"

He grinned crookedly. "I'm going to step out presently," he said, "and get arrested for felonious assault. I'm going to do it on speculation. As a sort of grand finale. I shall lock the door behind me and toss the key down a sewer."

"You're quitting!"

Farrish ignored her caustic tone. "I haven't a scrap of evidence. I am going to commit this mayhem on speculation. I can't prove anything. Anymore than I can about the sable. I've discovered that we underbid Gorse, to get that fur job, you know. And if Mrs. Van Houten marries Lacey Gorse within thirty days the nuptials will be celebrated in a hospital."

"Not only a quitter," she said, savagely, "but stupid! Stupid," she went on, "because you'll be doing exactly what Gorse or somebody is trying to make you do. If you attack him with your fists, how will you ever catch them at it? Or find out the why of all these things? Why that model, the first day I saw you, pretended to sprain her ankle. Why the fur coat was stolen. Why this place has been broken into more than once. Why the camera was smashed. There's only one place you can find out those things and that is here."

"I just told you I was attending to that."

"Don't you think Gorse would be willing to trade a couple of black eyes for this studio? It looks like a bargain price to me."

"I mean to be thorough," went on Clyde.

"And I," said Darnley, "mean to be the Golden Blend Girl. Do you think I'm going to let you collapse and ruin my chances? I'm not. You are not going to thrash Lacey Gorse. You are going out to get a new Ludenheim camera, and you're going to take this silk picture before dinnertime. You're going to! You're going to!"

He sat down heavily. "Darnley," he declared, "no man likes to be a quitter. I don't think I am a quitter. But no amount of courage or determination can do a darn bit of good when you're up against a total absence of cash."

"I've some money," she said abruptly.

"Eh?"

"When I left home Grandpa Carfax gave me plenty of money. I've enough left. I've done very well as a model, too."

He was leaning forward and scanning her face intently. His brow was wrinkled.

"So," she said, "I'll give you a check and you must hustle out, get your camera and do this job."

He walked to a calendar on the wall and made a cross through the date. "Later," he said, "I'm going to color that. In red. It marks an epoch. It celebrates a great scientific discovery on my part, at least."

"What are you talking about?"

"The world-shaking discovery that a girl can be beautiful and not necessarily a gold digger."

Darnley frowned. "Will you take this check?"

"Miss Carfax," Clyde said. "I think you are very considerate. But up to now I haven't borrowed money from women."

"Then," she said desperately, "sell me an interest in this studio."

"Neither," he replied: "and if you'll excuse me, I think I shall ramble out and get a Ludenheim. Guess I can be back in an hour. Can you wait?"

"You can do it?"

"I hope so."

"If you can't," she said, "will you please, please take my check?"

"If I can't manage myself," he said gravely, "I won't deprive you of the chance to do a very fine thing." He walked to the door and paused. "The Farrish Studio," he said, "will continue to do business at the old stand."

Darnley went into the studio, where the employees stood whispering in a little knot. "Mr. Farrish has stepped out to get another ready so we can make the picture camera. Please have everything as soon as he gets back," she said.

Four o'clock arrived and half past four; then, just before the clock announced five, Clyde arrived and with him a crated camera.

"You did it!" Darnley cried in elation. "How?"

"Simple," answered Farrish, "under a cabbage leaf." He paused, and his brows lifted as he made a grimace signifying distaste. "But don't ask me to do it again."

That was all she could get out of him.

Clyde urged her into the studio, made her reassume the pose, and went about the intricate business of taking the picture. It was nearly seven when he finished.

"Get into your dress," he said, "and we'll celebrate. I've enough left to buy two dinners."

"Can't," she said. "All engaged for the evening. Do I get to know where you got the money?"

"No," he said decisively, turned abruptly and walked away.

Darnley was apprehensive. And she was hurt. She felt she should have been taken into Clyde's confidence. Why should he not tell him where the money came from? Unless it had been acquired in some manner not creditable which he dared not disclose.

So it was in no pleasant frame of mind that she went to her apartment, dressed and waited for Chico Sanson to call for her. In the half-hour before he rang the bell she sat and took stock of herself. . . .

Yes, she wanted to be pre-eminent in some field. Modeling was only a stepping stone. Therefore, the thing to do was to become first in this business. She must become the Golden Blend Girl. That would be the first great advance.

She had arrived at this point in her reflections when Chico arrived. They went to a quiet place where he had ordered in advance. Flowers on the table. It was evident to Darnley that elaborate pains had been taken to make this a very special dinner.

"Your eyes are tired," Darnley said.

"It has been a hard, rather quarrelsome day. We're making an important change, and the news has leaked out. The advertising of Golden Blend."

He veered quickly away from that subject which he believed to be of no interest to Darnley.

"I've told you something about my wife," he said suddenly.

"A little."

"It doesn't seem fair," he said, "that a woman should vindictively shut happiness out of a man's life."

"Is there no way out?" she asked.

"I see none. She will not give me a divorce. And I? Well, I suppose I am too fastidious to apply for one and have my name dragged through courts and newspapers." He paused and stared into his glass. "Therefore," he said, presently, "I seem to be sentenced to loneliness."

He did not refer to Mrs. Sanson again during the dinner. After coffee and liqueurs, he smiled across at Darnley rather embarrassedly. "I half promised," he said "to drop in with you at a party. The Saxons. Would you mind awfully? We don't have to stay?"

"Of course," she assented. It was on the tip of her tongue to tell him of her agreement with Gorse; to tell him she had accepted pay for being his companion. But she did not speak because she did not want to hurt him. It would wound his vanity deeply.

His car hurried them up Park Avenue and stopped before a towering apartment house. They ascended in the luxurious elevator.

"Your friends," remarked Darnley, "like altitude."

"They have the penthouse," said Chico, "one of the loveliest views of New York. Nice young people. They are going to Europe next week."

They were shown into a spacious living-room, where a dozen people stood or sat about. Darnley was presented to her host and hostess.

"If you want to look around Chico, help yourself," said Mr. Saxon.

"Thanks, Paul."

For half an hour they chatted with one person and another; then Chico adroitly separated Darhley from the party. "Darnley," he said diffidently, "I had rather a special reason for asking you to come up here."

"A special reason?"

"Yes, I wanted to talk with you seriously—and here."

"But why here, Chico?"

"Do you like the apartment?"

"It is very attractive."

"The furnishings seem to be comfortable and in excellent taste."

"It is lovely."

"Suppose we go out into the garden. The Saxons have made rather an exquisite garden on the roof outside."

GEN. MacARTHUR DECORATED

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea Jan. 26—(AP) — President Roosevelt awarded Gen. Douglas MacArthur the Distinguished Service Medal for successes in New Guinea and New Britain on the Southwest Pacific commander's 64th birthday today.

The President said in his citation that MacArthur had "established his forces in positions favorable for continuation of offensive operations" in the war to drive the Japanese from their island bases in this sector.

NAVAL VETERAN

Lieut. J. W. Whittall, D.S.C., R.C.N.V.R., of Vancouver, who has returned to Canada a veteran of three invasion leading operations and anti-submarine warfare with the Distinguished Service Cross, the 1939-43 Star, and a mention in dispatches to his credit.

Five Are Held On Vagrancy Count

Three youths and two girls are being held in the Belleville jail today on vagrancy charges after it is said they had escaped from the Deseronto lock-up on Tuesday. Police chasing the quintette fired a volley of shots as they raced east on Highway No. 2, before they surrendered.

The names of the five were given as Theressa Dack, Dorothy Saylors, Pat Kelly, James Dillanger and William Shannon, all of Toronto. They were arraigned before Miss Mary Butler, local justice of the peace, today and remanded on vagrancy charges without bail.

Investigations into reports of a car missing at Newtonville on Tuesday led to Chief Langton of Deseronto and Traffic Officer Morden apprehending the quintette first after complaints had been received that a group had been interfering with motorists in an alleged attempt to procure gasoline coupons. While being held in the Deseronto lock-up they effected escape in the motor car originally driven by them.

The five were subsequently recaptured two miles west of Napanee. They will appear in county police court here tomorrow.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Declair in the loss of her father.

More Peanut Butter Expected This Year

Due to arrangements which have been made for the purchase by Canada of part of the Algerian crop of peanuts, it is fully expected that the production of peanut butter this year will be considerably in advance of that which has recently prevailed.

Depending upon when and if the peanuts in question reach this country, their conversion into palatable and nutritious peanut butter will add materially to the national supply of a spread which has been a stranger to the shelves of many merchants and to the tables of thousands of consumers for a good many months.

GREEK DEPUTY VICE-CONSUL WILL BE SPEAKER

George D. Vlassis Will Address Bridge Street Church Congregation Sunday Evening

GIFT OF FLAGS

Organ Recital in Aid of Greek War Relief Will be Given by Alec Gordon

Speaking on current conditions in Greece, Mr. George D. Vlassis, M.A., Deputy Vice-Consul of Greece in Canada, will address the congregation of Bridge Street United Church at the regular Sunday evening service. Mr. Vlassis is at the present time with the Censor Board at Ottawa and was formerly a teacher of Classical Greek. He is the author of the book "The Greeks in Canada."

The Greek community of the city have presented Bridge Street United Church with the 34 flags of the United Nations, including the Free French. These flags are beautifully made of silk and expert workmanship and will be dedicated at the Sunday night service.

In a report of the Independent Food Institute, an independent organization, regarding the conditions in urope, it is regarding aboutGreece that it is in the worst condition. The 15,000 tons of wheat sent each month from Canada and other countries is only a "drop in the bucket." Peasants can get by, but those in the cities are on the verge of starvation, with a situation similar to the winter of 1942, where as many as two thousand persons died daily. This report is verified by the various underground sources of information, namely that conditions are just as bad as the winter of 1942.

Following the Sunday night service an organ recital by Alec Gordon will be held in the church with proceeds in aid of the Greek War Relief Fund. The program will contain ten selections by Mr. Gordon on the organ and will include "Trumpet Tune and Air" by Purcell, the 17th century composer, who was for two centuries considered the greatest of England's composers: "Scherzo" by Percy Whitlock; a composition by Mr. Gordon himself and played for the first time at this recital. "Black-Eyed Susans." The program will also include a selection by the Ladies' Chorus, directed by Miss Leona Riggs. "The Lost Chord" will be given by Mr. Gordon on special request.

Cradle of Democracy Wrought Out of Hard Rock of Adversity Says Speaker at Kiwanis Club

The Kiwanis Club of Belleville, meeting in the Quinte Hotel at their regular Tuesday noon meeting, received the financial report of the club for the year 1943 from Clarence Jewell, which was seconded by Lorne McDougall. The statement will be released for publication following the next executive meeting of the Board of Directors. A sum of $5,000 was voted by the Board of Directors at their last meeting to meet the needs of the 1944 activities of the club. Broken into special allotments this sum will go to the following committees to carry on their work: Agricultural Committee $200; Advertising for Blood Donors Clinic $100; Boys and Girls Work $150; Floral presentations and recognitions $75.00; Home for the Aged $100; Ki-Y $100; Kiwanis Centre $600; Public Affairs (meeting returned soldiers) $50.00; Red Cross Ladies $100; Victorian Order of Nurses $300; War Services $500; Miscellaneous Items $150; Improvements $250; Insurance $125; Kiwanis Estimation $100; Maintenance of Equipment $100; Soldiers' Rehabilitation $900; Surplus $1,000. Last year the total budget was set at $4,500 with expenditures amounting to $3,300, the increase this year was decided upon to meet newly arising conditions not considered in previous years.

77 Donations From Club

A report was made by Charlie Richardson on the donations of blood made at the Red Cross Blood Donors Clinic during the eighteen months period past disclosed that two Kiwanians, Albert Jones and Ed Shapiro have given six donations, and that 32 members have donated blood, one has given five times, three have given four times, eight have given three times, six have given twice and twelve members once each, making a total of 77 individual donations. Many members of the club would wish to donate blood but are unable to do so owing to some physical condition which prohibits it. The Kiwanis members were urged to get out and appeal to other people of Belleville to answer the calls from the Secretary of the Clinic.

Speaker Introduced

The principal speaker Mr. Franklin Davey McDowell, Regional Public Relations Representative, Canadian National Railways, and author of two Canadian best-seller books, "Champlain road" and his more recent one, published on December 15, 1943, "Joys of Freedom" was introduced to the meeting by Kiwanian O. W. Duff who has known him for many years. Mr. McDowell opened his talk, "The Cradle of Democracy" prefaced by a few remarks upon his school days, which had been brought to light by Mr. Duff. His talk was prepared beforehand and, with a brief remark upon his reading it, opened his discourse by stating that "Back in that grim year when the United Kingdom stood alone, an Island of Freedom in an anguished and enslaved continent, discussing the Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill's profound understanding of English history with the Dean of Studies of one of the largest institutions of learning in Canada, two sentences of the indomnitable Prime Minister were on the tongues of the whole Anglo-Saxon world: "Never have so many owed so much by so few" and "This is England's most glorious hour." Those day, happily, are now behind us, but fortunately Churchill's pungent verbs and nouns are still with us; but how often, as we listen and thrill, do we recall that they go back to the beginnings of the English race ,to those days when the cradle of democracy was wrought out of the hard rock of adversity?"

Era Now Closing

"We wondered how many people of today realized that this era, begun more than 550 years ago, now was closing in the same turmoil and bloodshed? How many know anything of the old Norman era, which preceded our present one? That it was based upon a two-class state, the master race and the serf, or slave? That the Nazi theory of racial dominations was merely a reversion to this system of rule by blood and power? Even more important, that where the German people tamely bent their neck to the Nazi yoke, in 1933, the English rose in arms against a similar yoke, in 1381."

Mr. McDowell carried his audience through the stages of history which held the English people, then Normans and Saxons, enslaved to the Lords and Barons who used them as common chattles with no more rights than had the animals in their flocks and folds and herds. These overlords were hard and dominating, but not all; many were men of probity and humaneness; others were worse. But the truth was that in the Norman era, the common people had few rights and privileges. The Church was among the best of English landlords, and Englishmen were fortunate that the Church in England was a national church. Its priests did more than any other class to point out the road that led to the freedom of the common man.

Individual Reward

"Arguments have been given that the medieval state was a highly-organized socialistic state, Mr. McDowell said, which he stated was true to a degree, that the peasant was bound to the land, the land, in turn, could not be taken away from him, and thus he was assured of a living, but even so, this system did not shut out individual reward. Through military ability the serf could become a knight and a lord of the manor. Several men with lowly beginnings have risen to great heights in the Church and State; Nicholas Breakspeare rose from obscurity to the Throne of St. Peter. As Adrian IV, he was the only Englishman to become a pope. But, chance of this happening was slight and it was against tyranny that the people revolted and struck out for democratic freedom which was achieved only after great bloodshed.

United in Desire

"Today, we are united in our desire to prevent another great depression, but what is the answer to it all. Capital may have one; Labor may have another. Is there no middle of the way? It was the middle of the road people, who fought for our democratic way of life and, eventually, won out; but they did this only after a long and desperate struggle down through the centuries. Today, we are fighting for the same thing; only our enemies are different, not the cause. We must go forward to newer and greater things if our democratic way of life is to survive; but shall we go forward any the wiser from past experience?

'In the riotous days of our national birth, in the time of Chaucer and Watt Tyler, the English people gave leadership to Christendom in the way of freedom; now, it is the fate of the Anglo-Saxon peoples to give leadership to the world. People of destiny never travel the smooth way. The going is always rough, but the reward is what we choose to make it. If we will, we can fashion the future into one of such promise that the world has never known its like before. We must never forget that people of destiny must be people of good will lest they perish from the very magnitude of their task; and ours is the greatest challenge to be found in history." Mr. McDowell concluded his talk impressively as he resumed his seat. The thanks and appreciation of the club was expressed by Kiwanian Bill Pomfret.

A guest of the club at this meeting was Private Joseph Seames, returned veteran of this war. It is the intention of the club to have these returned men as their guests as they return to the city and, today, as Pte. Seames was introduced to the members by Kiwanian Ernie Finkle, they rose to their feet and applauded, a distinction seldom given to a guest of the club other than the principal speaker.

Australians Expect Climate Attractions Will Draw Travellers

Ottawa, Jan. 26 — (CP) — Australians hope their warm climate, varied attractions and favorable exchange rate will draw Canadian winter travellers after the war, Paul Malone, press attache and representative of the Wartime Information Board in Australia, said Tuesday in an interview.

Mr. Malone, a former Edmonton and Vancouver newspaperman, arrived from Australia yesterday for a short visit to Canada.

Australians planning for a post-war tourist industry believe trans-Pacific air travel will make it possible for Canadians to winter as easily in Australia as in the southern United States, he said.

HAD PURSE UNDER ARM.

London, Ont., Jan. 25. (CP)—Joseph Leo Boucher, 27, prefers the tender mercies of the law to a brush with an irate Canadian soldier. Found guilty of theft of a purse here yesterday, the story came out in court. He had been so hotly pursued by the soldier-escort of the purse's owner, that he sought refuge in London police station, the incriminating purse still under his arm.

Seek Declaration Collective Bargaining Act Ultra Vires

Toronto, Jan. 26 — (CP) — A Hamilton lawyer today filed a writ at Osgoode Hall asking a declaration by the Supreme Court of Ontario that the Ontario Collective Bargaining Act passed at the last session of the legislature is ultra vires.

The lawyer — R. R. Evans who is acting for the Canadian Westinghouse Co. — said the writ alternatively asks for a declaration that the Ontario Act does not apply to the Westinghouse Company. It is argued that as the company is engaged in war work it is under the jurisdiction of Wartime Dominion Labor Regulations — Orders-in-Council Nos. P. C. 3946 and P. C. 1708 dealing with labor relations are cited.

Attorney General Blackwell of Ontario is named as defendant.

Story of Spy Intrigue Told In Detroit Court

Detroit, Jan. 25—(AP)— Grace Buchanan-Dinee, former Toronto resident who has told a story of spy intrigue in federal court here, today was cross-examined by attorneys for Dr. Fred W. Thomas, Detroit obstetrician, and Bertrand S. Hoffman, former merchant marine seamen. Both are charged with espionage conspiracy.

Miss Buchanan-Dinee, who has pleaded guilty to similar charges, told Walter M. Nelson, attorney for Dr. Thomas, she was pro-Nazi when she came to the United States two year ago.

The witness, who admitted her use in Detroit of the title of "countess" which she said she had inherited through her grandfather was informal and irregular, said Dr. Thomas visited her three times in 1942 after she became a counter-spy with the federal bureau of investigation.

In addition to Miss Buchanan-Dinee, four other persons have pleaded guilty to the charges of conspiracy.

DOES NOT INTEND TO CREATE STOCK-PILE OF NEWSPRINT

Washington, Jan. 25—(AP)—The United States War Production Board has no intention of creating a stock-pile of newsprint, Arthur R. Treanor, director of the printing and publishing division, today told a House of Representatives sub-committee investigating newsprint supplies.

He said that "should any tonnage remain it will be credited to the newspapers."

Canadian authorities have estimated they can deliver 200,000 tons of newsprint a month for the first half of 1944 and "this is 18,000 tons per month more than they had previously estimated," Treanor testified.

INCIDENTS REPORTED IN MILAN

Berne, Switzerland, Jan. 25—(AP)—A Swiss Telegraph Agency dispatch from Chiasso said today the Allied advance south of Rome had stirred incidents in Milan and Genoa, and the anti-Fascist Secret Press was giving wide publicity to Allied information on progress.

Partisans in Northern Italy in the last 24 hours increased efforts to impede transport of German troops and material to Central Italy, the dispatch added.

DESCRIBE WINDSHIELD

Kitchener, Jan. 25—(CP)—Police evidence of a truck windshield dirty enough to obscure vision slightly was heard as the trial of Martin Rjem, Kitchener, charged with motor manslaughter, opened in supreme court today. The charge arose from the death of five-year-old Kenneth C. Schnarr, on Nov. 23. The trial is continuing.

LONDON LETTER

By SYDNEY GRUSON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

London, Jan. 25 (CP Cable)—The "year of decision," they labelled 1944, and London welcomed it with a heart made light and gay by the vision of victory.

Perhaps there weren't many Londoners in the great snake dances that wound through Picadilly and around Trafalgar Square. But in their pubs and in their homes, there was the same feeling if not the same outlet as for the thousands of servicemen and their girls yipeeing and singing on the streets this New Year's Eve night.

Like adrenalin to the heart was the year-end victory of the home fleet over the Nazi battleship Scharnhorst and like the brandy after dinner was the quick follow-up triumph for the British cruisers Glasgow and Enterprise over a flotilla of German destroyers in the Bay of Biscay when three were sunk and the others routed.

The Briton appreciates the grimness of land battles and an army leader like Montgomery excites his imagination, even as the great achievements of the R.A.F. but it is on the fleet that he lavishes his love and here was the fleet bringing him two year-end gifts in the great tradition of Drake and Nelson.

The crowds on the streets flooded out from the narrowing confines of Piccadilly and Trafalgar and debouched into every side street in the heart of London, hands and hearts linked in the overwhelming camaraderie of the times, the uniforms, the victories of the dying year and the embryonic victories of the year to be born.

And when the two searchlights formed a great "V" behind the dominating dome of St. Paul's, emblem of the unshatterable among all the ruins around it, the strains of "Auld Lang Syne" faded into one great spontaneous cheer.

Londoners remembered when last they had seen the great dome lit up, on that December night in 1940 when it stood outlined against the smoke and flame of fires dancing into and through the buildings about the cathedral.

This was the portent of the things to come in the "year of decision"—the lights now were those of triumph.

Staff Receives Appreciation For Ditty Bag

Appreciation for the ditty bags sent by members of the Queens Hotel staff to members of the Canadian Navy was received in the form of letter sent by Jack Boardman, gunner on a merchant ship, stationed in London. The letter is as follows:

J. Boardman, AB.,
D/JX 391173
care of S.P.O., London England
28, 12, 43.

Dear Miss Christopher,

Thanks very much for the ditty bag, it was a very pleasant surprise, and as I spent Christmas at sea, and didn't get the bag till Christmas Day, I felt to a certain extent, as if I were at home. I wasn't able to write, while at the coast as the ship was only there a day and I didn't get ashore.

After being at sea for a few weeks I often get short of lots of different things and I am glad to say, and I know you will be very pleased to hear that practically every thing you sent seemed to fill an empty spot in my locker. The toothbrush I had at the time had about five or six hairs in it, and socks are my greatest trial in life, as I can't darn, try as I will so you see even if I had received a bag of gold, I couldn't have been more pleased.

I suppose you would like to know what I do in the Navy. Well, at present I am attached to merchant ships as a gunner and my ship now is an oil tanker.

Well, thanks again for the ditty bag and thank your other friends who contributed to it. Cheerio and if you care to write back to me I shall be very pleased as letters are always welcome away from home.

Gratefully yours,
Jack Boardman.

U. S. Servicemen Meet Canadians For Bond Drive

Washington, Jan. 26 — (AP)—The United States Treasury has lined up three R.C.A.F. members and 2 Canadian Army men for an international hockey game in Madison Square Garden, New York, Sunday night as a feature of the $14,000,000,000 United States Fourth War Loan capaign.

The Canadians will meet a team of American servicemen. Both teams are studded with former National Hockey League stars.

British Indian Troops Advance 12 Miles in Burma

By FRANK L. MARTIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

British 14th Army Headquarters at the Burma Frontier, Jan. 26 — (AP) — British Indian troops operating in Arakan — the most southern of the three Allied fronts in Burma — have pushed forward 12 miles in the last two months, advancing approximately a third of the way back to the positions they held before retreating last April in the monsoon rains.

British forces now are astride an irregular line between Maungdaw and Japanese-held Buthedaung. They are now only 40 miles north of Donbaik on the Mayu Peninsula and 30 miles north of Rathedaung on the east bank of the Mayu river.

Both villages were under fire of British artillery last year but never were captured. The present fighting in Arakan is in territory familiar to both the British and Japanese forces, who have fought scores of skirmishes in these low, Brush-covered hills and paddy fields during the past two years.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Garrison called on Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Waterhouse on Sunday.

Friends of Mrs. Everett Elliott, of Holloway, formerly of this community, were sorry to hear that she is a patient at the Belleville Hospital. All wish for her a speedy recovery.

Mrs. M. Kelley is spending some time with her cousin, Mrs. Russell, in Lima, New York.

The W.A. and W.M.S. held their Jan. meeting at the home of Mrs. Fred Aikens, with a good attendance.

Rawdon

Rawdon — A large number of Mount Pleasant people attended the funeral of the late Mrs. George Stone at Wellmans United Church on Wednesday afternoon. The five children are staying with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest White. The three oldest will begin their studies at the Allan school.

Bill McAdam, R.C.A.F., left last Sunday for Terrace B. C., following a furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl McAdam.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McKeown recently visited Mr. and Mrs. Will Morrow and family, Peterboro.

Mr. John Bailey, Windsor, has been ill in Grace Hospital and is now somewhat improved following a heavy cold.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Bailey recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Tucker, Belleville.

Captain Clifford Holmes, Kingston, spent Thursday evening with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes.

Several Rawdonians attended the auction sale of Mr. Stuart Brady on Thursday. Battisby and Williams were in charge and the cows averaged around $100. Owing to the labor shortage, Mr. Brady sold a portion of his surplus stock.

Miss Ferne Hubble, Batawa, spent a recent weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Hubble.

Mrs. James Summers celebrated her 85th birthday on Wednesday, January 26th. Her eldest granddaughter Mrs. Hamilton Donnan, West Huntingdon, is entertaining in her honor. All join in birthday felicitations.

The Young Peoples' Union held a very enjoyable skating party at Hoards rink on January 10th with about 30 in attendance. All enjoyed a lunch of wieners and buns around the bonfire. Hoards Y.P.U. also held a skating party that evening and their group was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoard following the skating.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan and daughter, Helen, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen and Mrs. Sidmer Demorest on Friday evening.

On January 7th, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher entertained on their wedding anniversary Mr. and Mrs. Milton Shaw and Wayne, Ivanhoe, Mr. and Mrs. Will Johnson, Salem, Mr. Ford Stapley, Oak Hills, Mr. and Mrs. James Sharp, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Summers, Eric and Gladys. Owing to illness Mrs. Emma Summers was unable to attend.

The Y.P.U. executive convened at the Williams School on January 12 and mapped out plans for the meetings from now until May. The president, Miss Muriel Welbourn, was in charge.

Mount Pleasant choir held a special practice on Friday evening of last week at the Allan school.

On Sunday morning, January 16, Mr. Ross Hoard began his duties as superintendent of Mount Pleasant Sunday School. Mr. John Holmes will carry on as assistant. Two new assistant teachers were appointed, Mrs. Bert Jeffs and Mrs. Burton Sharp.

Relatives and friends here were sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. Barton Hinchliffe, formerly Miss Freda Hubble, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Hubble, Sidney. Deceased lived here with her parents for a number of years. Several from here attended the funeral on Monday.

Pte. Lorne White arrived at Mt. Pleasant on January 19th and spent a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest White. Lorne had been stationed at Chicoutimi, Quebec, and on Monday he was moved forty-five miles up the line. He was unable to arrive at Mount Pleasant in time for his sister's funeral on Wednesday.

Mr. Ed. McKeown was called to Belleville for jury duty on Monday.

Cisterna, 12 Miles From Coast Under Attack by Bombers Of Allied Command

NAVY BLASTS ROADS

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press War Correspondent

Algiers, Jan. 27 (AP)—The first German counter-attack against the British and American troops just south of Rome, the first of the many that probably will be launched in an effort to wipe out the Allied beachhead, has been thrown back with the crushing of German armor, Allied headquarters announced today.

Men and supplies continued to pile into the strategic wedge threatening the Italian capital.

Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's central Mediterranean headquarters announced that elements of the Herman Goering armored division had been met southwest of Littoria, the chief town of Mussolini's Pontine marsh agricultural development, in a "fierce local engagement."

The Germans left 120 dead on the field as they were tossed back. The Hermann Goering division, formerly an armored grenadier outfit, has been strengthened by new equipment to a fully-armored unit. It was last encountered on the main 5th army front. Its appearance on the beachhead front indicated it had been shifted to face the threat to the German rear.

Close in on Cassino

Meanwhile, other 5th army troops 48 miles southeast of Littoria, continuing to uproot Germans, mines and meshed defences, struggled slowly forward across flooded streams and over steep crags just north of Cassino where field dispatches said they were within half a mile of the Liri Valley gateway and were overlooking the bomb-jumbled ruins of the ancient monastery town. Patrols had penetrated the outskirts of the stronghold.

Some four miles farther north the French moved down from their mountain positions on Mount Il Lago in the Sant' Elia area, across the Secco river and the Cassino-Atina road and attacked the Germans on the slopes of Mount Belvedere.

Cassino itself appeared to have been largely abandoned by the Germans, but their positions on the rugged mass of Mount Cairo and other hills nearby enabled them to rake the streets and ruined houses with their artillery.

Allied naval units continued to exert a powerful control over the coastal roads by which Germans could shift their fighting front from the Cassino area to the northern beachhead, and again plowed up sections near Formia Tuesday night with shells. This sea attack on enemy road traffic is continuing by day and night.

Towns Bombed.

Allied air forces, despite deteriorating weather, put new rents in other sections of the German communication network in the angle between the two Allied fronts, hammering especially at Cisterna, Ceccano and Itri.

The fact that Cisterna was being attacked by Allied bombs was evidence that that pivot point on the Appian Way and the main railway, 24 miles southeast of Rome and 12 miles inland from the Nettuno beach, was still in German hands. The presence of German guns there also indicated it was one of the strong points for defence of the Rome area.

Littoria is 13 miles due east of Nettuno and 4½ miles from the coast. It is four miles from the Appian Way.

The clash with German armor southwest of there may have indicated that British or American troops had pushed forward across the Mussolini canal along which sharp clashes previously occurred with German patrols.

DILL VISITS KINGSTON

Kingston, Jan. 27 — (CP)—Field Marshal Sir John Dill today met senior officers of the Royal Military College and officials of Military District No. 3 here. Sir John, who came here from Toronto and expects to leave for Ottawa in the afternoon, was the guest of Maj.-Gen. and Mrs. H. F. H. Hertzberg on his visit to R.M.C. He is travelling by automobile.

Sir John addressed officers taking courses here in an off-the-record speech this morning. Chief of the British Staff in Washington, he arrived in Toronto by plane yesterday.

Correspondent Says Rome Seems Just Around Corner Tho' 20 Miles Away

SUFFER HAIL STORM

By REYNOLDS PACKARD
Distributed by The Canadian Press

With the 5th Army South of Rome, Jan. 27 — From the British front today I could see action along the entire pancake-like beachhead which seemed in flames and smoke as artillery and tanks on both sides engaged in battle.

The Germans are bringing up reinforcements of tanks, artillery and infantry.

One of the oddest sights was British motorcyclists taking German prisoners to the rear on the back seats of their cycles. Most of the Germans were smiling, relievedly.

Correspondent William Stoneman who is with me said as we watched shells landing, "It looks as though we could just by walking around the bend of that road go into Rome and take over our old apartments. It's 20 miles from here against 80 or 90 miles from Cassino."

Although we could see little of the tank battle itself we could hear terrific machine-gunning and tank firing only three quarters of a mile away, while ambulances sped by us bearing wounded. Several jeeps which had been peppered by shrapnel dashed to the rear, their perforated tires smoking and burning.

German planes were active as soon as the weather cleared up this morning. Hail as large as marbles had filled up many slit trenches causing the troops to dig new ones or bail out the old ones with their helmets.

PROTECTION GIVEN AGAINST THREAT

Woman Foreman of Jury Which Convicted Bahr of Espionage Says Message Threatened Her With Gestapo

Elizabeth, N.J., Jan. 27. (AP)—Police said today protection would be given Mrs. Christian M. Schmidt, who reported she picked up her telephone last night to hear a guttural male voice say, "This is the Gestapo", and threaten her with death.

Mrs. Schmidt was foreman of a Federal jury which convicted Herbert Karl Frederich Bahr of espionage in August, 1942: Bahr, who attempted to enter this country as a refugee early in that year, was apprehended by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He is serving a 30-year sentence in Atlanta Federal penitentiary.

When Mrs. Schmidt answered her phone she heard a thick, obviously Teutonic voice say "This is a long-distance call from Upstate New York. Three men from the Gestapo will get you in the next three days. Don't try to escape and don't call the police.

Smolensk 'Which Stands on Bones' Struggling Slowly Back to Life

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Smolensk, U.S.S.R., Jan. 27 — (AP)—After serving as the ground for two major battles and the scene of some of the most horrible acts of the war, Smolensk—"the city which stands on bones"—today is struggling slowly back to life.

The devastation is surpassed only by that of Stalingrad. Its ground is estimated to hold 135,000 dead from killings. Its reconstruction is planned to take four years.

Along the railroad into Smolensk from the east, gaunt chimneys of burned-out villages, rusted railway cars, twisted rails and broken bridges show the fury of the fighting in this region.

It was here that the Red army first brought the Germans to a full halt and won time to prepare the successful defence of Moscow in 1941.

Population of the city, which formerly numbered 185,000, still stands at only 30,000. Of the pre-war estimate of a total of 7,900 buildings in the city there now are only 300 intact. Every steel bridge across the Dnieper connecting the two sections of the city had been destroyed, but some have been replaced with temporary wooden crossings.

Walking through the streets between gaping walls of burned-out buildings, I saw the celebrated monument which commemorates Marshal Kutuzov's action against Napoleon in 1812, had been removed. Residents said the statue had been taken away by the Germans.

Amid all the gaping walls Smolensk looked surprisingly neat. The first job tackled by the Russians after recapturing the city was cleaning it. The immediate problem being faced is one of living space, people I met on the streets said they were quartered 15 in a room.

The local newspaper published a report of the progress on the four-year construction plan. It said in the Stalin district of the city, 60,000 square yards of living quarters had been repaired and 1,272 persons provided with shelter.

CANADIAN UNITS OCCUPYING KISKA NOW WITHDRAWN

Most of the Troops Went on Leave on Return From Island But Now With Units

NO EXPLANATIONS

Ottawa, Jan. 27 — (CP) — Canadian units which, with United States forces, occupied Kiska in the Aleutian Islands five months ago, have been withdrawn, National Defence headquarters announced today.

No explanation was given and the official annoúncement merely stated:—

"The Department of National Defence announced today that all units of the Canadian force which participated in the occupation of Kiska now have returned to Canada."

It was assumed here that the Kiska garrison now is made up of a strong all-United States formation.

It was reported that most of the troops went on leave when they returned from the island and then rejoined their units at various training stations across the country.

Concentrate Army Effort

One unofficial source believed the reason for the withdrawal was a decision to concentrate the Canadian army effort, for the time being anyhow, in Italy and Britain from where the European invasion is to be launched. Both these forces will presumably need a steady stream of replacements especially after the invasion begins whereas the Kiska garrison duty can more easily be taken care of by United States troops concentrated in that area.

While most of the Canadian units were largely made up of men called up for compulsory training and therefore not available for overseas service, presumably they could be detailed to strengthen various home defence groups, thus freeing general service men for overseas duty. Also it was learned that many of the draftees have since volunteered for general service.

The return of Canadian units to their bases in the Dominion started many weeks ago but the movement has been under censorship restrictions until today.

Canadian and American troops landed on a strangely quiet island of Kiska in the early morning last August 15. Kiska had been a Japanese stronghold in the Aleutian chain, jutting westward from Alaska, since June 7, 1942. But the Japanese had mysteriously left.

The unexpected withdrawal of the enemy force from the 30-mile-long island marked the first time since Japan entered the war that Japanese troops had conceded territory without battle.

The significance of Kiska was much greater than this unopposed landing would suggest. It meant that the Allies had completed their northern road to Japan.

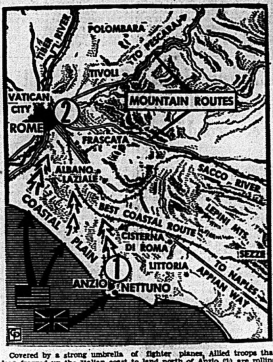
FIFTH ARMY CONTINUES ROME PUSH



Covered by a strong umbrella of fighter planes, Allied troops that leap-frogged up the Italian coast to land north of Anzio (1) are rolling toward Rome (2) without meeting heavy Nazi opposition. That units of Gen. Mark Clark's Fifth Army may now be within 16 miles of that city is borne out by a story in a Stockholm paper which states that Eternal City residents can now hear heavy gunfire.

U. S. AND BRITISH WAR PRISONERS MAY BE TRIED

German Action May be in Retaliation for Kharkov Trials

NAZI REPORT

Stockholm, Jan. 27 — (AP) — The Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter quoted informed German quarters today as saying trials of American and British war prisoners — apparently in retaliation for the Kharkov trials of Germans accused of atrocities in Russia — now are in a "preparatory stage."

The correspondent said, however, there was nothing to indicate the trials would begin soon.

This dispatch recalled that last Dec. 23 the German radio threatened Allied airmen now prisoners in Germany would be tried as war criminals. Berlin propaganda agencies made much at the time of charges that Allied air raiders were gangsters and that one United States bomber shot down over Germany bore the name "Murder, Inc."

A Veiled Threat

New York, Jan. 27 — (AP) — The Berlin radio broadcast a veiled threat yesterday that some action is in preparation against British and American prisoners of war in Germany on the ground of violating international law.

The broadcast, recorded by The Associated Press, first denied what it said were "rumors circulating abroad" that prisoners would be sentenced shortly, then added:—

"There was no information (at the Wilhelmstrasse) that this matter had reached a stage in which early action was expected, but it could not be denied that this matter was a a state of preparation, it was said."

Liberia Declares War Upon Axis

London, Jan. 27 — (CP) — The British Foreign Office received word today that Liberia, the Negro republic on the west coast of Africa, declared war on Germany and Japan yesterday.

Jap Transport Sunk Nov. 29 Carried British Prisoners of War

London, Jan. 27 — (CP) — The sinking of a Japanese transport carrying British prisoners of war from Java last Nov. 29 was disclosed today in a war office announcement that a list of victims had been received from the Japanese government.

The brief statements, which did not give the number of casualties, said urgent inquiries were being made into the circumstances of the sinking.

SEVEN JAP SHIPS SUNK OR SINKING IN RABAUL ATTACK

24 or Possibly 28 Jap Interceptors Shot Down in Same Action

JAP LOSS AT BORGEN

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Jan. 27 (AP)—Making every bomb count, 18 torpedo bombers sank or left sinking seven ships in the harbor at Rabaul Monday while more than 80 escorting fighters shot down 24 and possibly 28 of 60 Japanese intercepting planes.

Utilizing what they call a 'side-splitting bombing from a low level glide," the bomber crews sent their 1,000-pound bombs into the sides of the ships at the waterline. Every bomb hit a ship.

Four cargo ships and a tanker were seen to sink. Three other cargo ships were damaged severely and a south Pacific naval spokesman said two of these were "left sinking." Another tanker also was damaged.

On the ground American invasion forces at Arawe, on New Britain's southwest coast, sent out patrols without contacting Japanese; at Borgen Bay, on the northwest coast, United States marines added 30 Japanese to the more than 3,000 slain since the invasion there opened last Dec. 26; there were no new reports on the resumed drive by Australians in the Ramu Valley on New Guinea aimed at the enemy coastal base of Madang less than 40 miles north of them.

German-Born Nurse Gives Up Citizenship

But Denies She Said She Would "Kiss Hitler's Foot"

Detroit, Jan. 27 —(AP) Johanna Treiber, 53, German-born hospital nurse who surrendered her American citizenship, said today "I worship the ground Hitler walks on" but denied having said she would "kiss Hitler's foot."

"Mr. Hitler would not like one of his subjects to kiss anyone's foot," she told reporters. "He's not a crazy man."

Yesterday, in announcing Miss Treiber's application for cancellation of citizenship, Assistant U. S. Attorney Louis M. Hopping quoted her as saying "If I could return to Germany I'd be so glad I would kiss Hitler's foot."

Miss Treiber said she did not believe in the United States form of government and was "much fonder of Germany."

[illegible] Judge Edward J. Moinet cancelled Miss Treiber's citizenship. [illegible] the court action did not make Miss Treiber deportable. She did not make known her plans.

MERCHANT FLEET OF ARGENTINE FROZEN BY GOV'T

All Vessels Directed To Remain in Port "Until New Orders" Are Given

NOT LONG TIE-UP

By STANLEY ROSS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Buenos Aires, Jan. 27—(AP)—The Argentine military government froze movements of the state merchant fleet today as one of the first follow-up actions to its diplomatic breaks with the Axis, all vessels being directed to remain in port "until new orders."

It was expected here, however, the tieup would not last long, since Argentine economy largely depends on the free movement of the merchant fleet.

(Although no reason was given for the freezing order, it seemed apparent the Ramirez government deemed it unwise to expose the vessels to the menace of any lurking enemy submarine in the South Atlantic until some provision could be made for their protection, possibly in convoys.

(Nazi submarines sank three Argentine ships in 1942 but no mention was made of these torpedoings in yesterday's official announcements concerning the diplomatic break.)

Telephone Communication Cut

As congratulation poured in from all over the continent, the Argentine government turned to another problem attending its diplomatic break—communications with Germany.

Suspension of these facilities loomed as of great importance in view of revelations that Buenos Aires was headquarters for a giant espionage ring. It is believed telephone communications with Germany already have been cut.

The German News Agency Transocean has been notified to wind up its affairs here by Jan. 31 and it was believed the pro-Axis afternoon newspaper Pampero, served by transocean and often said to be maintained by the German Embassy, might close at the same time.

Sweden May Handle Affairs

One question expected to be settled quickly is who will handle Argentine interests in Germany and Japan. The newspaper Noticias Graficas said last night it probably would be Sweden, although Switzerland and Spain were other possibilities.

Buenos Aires generally seemed happy over the action, although most persons expressed curiosity to know the details of the spy story which caused the rupture.

Argentine newspapers, released to some extent from strict censorship rules which forbid criticism of belligerents, turned to with a will yesterday and printed reports of German espionage and propaganda atcivities.

A leading afternoon newspaper, Critica, promptly got itself in trouble with an editorial in an "I-told-you-so" vein, pointing out that it had often called attention to activities of Nazi agents. It was suspended for three days by government order. Noticias Graficas published a photograph of Hitler with the caption "suffered severe reverse."

Springlike Weather Betrays Trees, Birds and Insect Life in Province

(By The Canadian Press)

Springlike weather conditions cheered most Ontario residents today and led to the conviction that the weatherman has been so interested in events elsewhere that he has confused June—or at least April—with January.

Nature also has been stirred by the high temperatures. The sap is running in some parts of Ontario and one farmer at Cobourg has already tapped his trees. Butterflies, caterpillars and robins have been seen in the southern part of the province while at Galt yesterday Alf Allan received a convincing demonstration of conditions when he was stung by a bee as he was sweeping the market square.

However, there seems to be little weather confusion in western Canada where Prince Albert, Sask., shivered in 11-below zero weather last night while it was 10-below at Calgary and an even zero at Saskatoon.

Conflicting views are offered by southern Ontario farmers on whether the lack of snow and generally mild weather will have an adverse affect on crops. Some say that fall wheat is suffering from the lack of protection from frost that snow affords while others say that as long as the frost stays in the ground the crops will be all right. Biggest hardship is a lack of water as a result of the light precipitation.

However lumbering operations in northern Ontario have suffered from the mild weather. Sault Ste. Marie reports that bush operations in Algoma have been tied up for several days as it is impossible to haul timber and pulpwood over the soft snow although one cold night would permit resumption of work. Yesterday's Sault temperature of 41 degrees was an all-time high for Jan. 26. Lumber operators in

Nazis Are Driven 40 to 60 Miles Away From City

Reds Also Reach Bank of the Luga River West of Novogorod

FREAKISH WEATHER

By JAMES M. LONG
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

London, Jan. 27 (AP)—Russian Gen. Leonid A. Govorov announced today that Leningrad had been completely liberated by the two-week Red offensive, with the Nazis driven 40 to 60 miles from the city and more than 700 nearby towns and villages freed.

The exceptional honor of 24 salvoes from 324 guns reserved for the greatest victories was ordered fired by the guns of Leningrad for the armies, the people of Leningrad and the Red fleet.

"As the result of the fighting a task of historic importance has been solved—the city of Leningrad has been completely liberated from the enemy blockade and from barbaric enemy shelling," said a special bulletin recorded from a Moscow broadcast by the Soviet Monitor.

Moscow, Jan. 27 — (AP) — The Russians have reached the bank of the Luga river west of Novogorod, a Pravda dispatch reported today as the Leningrad army of Gen. Leonid A. Govorov and the Volkhov army of Gen. K. A. Meretskov continued to smash from opposite directions into the Germans' Baltic salient.

The Luga is about 10 miles east of the Leningrad-Vitebsk railway, one of the two remaining railways radiating southward from Leningrad that remain available for German use.

The Pravda dispatch said three German regiments were defeated in a clash on the Luga.

A sudden, freakish thaw has turned the front below Leningrad into a mass of quagmires, muddy roads, unlocked swamps and flooded rivers, front dispatches reported today, but the northern offensive continued.

In weather, the like of which seldom has been seen in the Leningrad area, Russian troops strove to clear the last remaining 35 miles of the Leningrad-Moscow trunk railway still in German hands and make possible the resumption of direct rail traffic between Russia's two largest cities.

The big junction towns of Tosno, Luban and Chudovo are in hourly peril from the advancing Soviet forces, dispatches said, and it was difficult to see how all of them will be able to remain in German hands another 24 hours.

An unofficial Moscow broadcast said that Soviet forces "have already broken into Chudovo."

A frontline dispatch to the army newspaper Red Star said the freak thaw was giving Soviet forces much trouble south of captured Krasnogvardeisk, where army engineers are working day and night to rebuild sections of the railway to Pskov which the Nazis dynamited.

Krasnogvardeisk's capture was regarded here as one of the Germans' worst defeats of the Leningrad offensive. The Russians captured huge amounts of booty.

Death of Baby From Starvation Prompts Probe

Buffalo, N.Y., Jan. 27 (AP) — Death by starvation of a nine-month-old baby boy prompted investigation today into conditions on the outskirts of Buffalo said by medical examiner Paul J. Rutecki to make "Tobacco Road" wholesome by comparison.

The baby was found in a two-room cottage a few doors from where another child died recently under similar circumstances from food-poisoning and malnutrition. An autopsy revealed "not an ounce of fat" on the baby's body, Rutecki said.

The cottage was occupied by the baby's mother, Alice Cook, 21; her sister, Mrs. Catherine Magyar, and Mrs. Magyar's three children. Inspection last night disclosed there were no beds in the house, Dr. Rutecki said, and only food on hand consisted of three cans of milk and a sack of flour.

400 Employees Stage Walkout

Windsor, Jan. 27 (CP) — Four hundred employees of Gar Wood Industries Ltd., were idle today as the plant remained closely following a walkout yesterday of 300 workers. The night shift of 100 employees did not report last night.

The walkout was described by the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.) as an "unauthorized strike." Absence from the city of Plant Manager John Braidford and the company's contention they had until Monday to reply to grievances applications presented by the union made it unlikely any action would be taken until Braidford returns.

Spokesmen for the management said today that by striking the men have terminated the union contract they had with the company and the company is no longer bound by any previous agreement to negotiate grievances.

The contract contained a "no strike pledge" which has been violated, the spokesmen said.

Employees insist the grievances were presented last Friday and the company first promised to deal with them on Monday of this week. Yesterday's walkout was caused when no action was taken on their requests, they said.

Grievances reported placed before the management include identification of stock chasers as truck drivers, clarification of the status of other employees, settlement of disputes regarding transfer of employees between departments and changing of shifts, foremen doing work of hourly-rated men, and proper pay for men placed on machines from other duties.

ASKED TO HEAD STAFF

Washington, Jan. 27 — (AP) — Bernard H. Baruch, 73-year-old adviser to two wartime presidents, will be asked to head the staff of the newly-created United States House of Representatives economic policy and planning committee, set up yesterday to help get the country back on a peacetime basis when the time comes.

Chairman William M. Colmer (Dem., Miss.) announced he would invite Baruch to head the committe's staff, "if not actively, then in an advisory capacity."

ACTRESS EXPECTS BABY

Hollywood, Jan. 27—(AP)—Movie Actress Ruth Hussey said Wednesday that she expects a baby early in August. She is the wife of Lieut. Robert Longnecker, former Hollywood agent now serving in the United States Army.

PEANUT VENDOR TAKES UP STAND

Some people accept the robin as the only harbinger of spring, but a definite indication of spring was seen in Belleville on Wednesday when the peanut and pop corn vendor was seen at his conventional stand at the corner of Victoria Ave. and Front St. Without fear of contradiction this is the earliest in the year the street vendor of peanuts and pop corn has ever appeared on the streets of Belleville. Just another indication that goes to prove—Belleville always leads.

COIL OF COPPER WIRE STOLEN FROM CAR

A coil of copper wire weighing 26 1-2 pounds was stolen from a parked motor car on Front Street, Wednesday afternoon. The vehicle had been parked by Stanley Burke, 32 Colborne Street, at the upper end of the main street. Upon his return the roll of copper wire was found to be missing. Police were notified of the theft.

ATTEMPT IS MADE TO ENTER STATION

Attempts to break and enter Clarke's service station, situated at the corner of Charles and Dundas Streets, were indicated Thursday morning, when Mr. James Clarke found that during the night windows of the building had been tampered with. No attempt to break windows was made, but it was quite clear the marauders had attempted to jimmy the windows open from the outside bottom. The attempts proved futile as the windows were securely locked.

POLICE OFFICIALS ATTEND TRIAL

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., Chief Probert, Deputy Chief Harman and Sergt. D. Ellis of the Belleville Police Department are in Toronto today to testify in a trial being heard in the York Township Supreme Court. The case in question is that of a charge of theft preferred against Nick Chaggarres of this city. The accused man elected trial by judge some months ago and entered a plea of not guilty.

ADVISES USE OF ASHES TO DISCOURAGE DOGS UPSETTING CANS

Roving dogs which seek out and disturb garbage placed at the curbside for collection are causing city householders, as well as garbage collectors, considerable annoyance according to the city engineer's department which has come up with a suggestion that may be of assistance in discouraging the practice. Dogs bother most with uncovered or unwrapped garbage and in this case it is suggested that a slight sprinkling of ashes or chloride of lime be spread over the garbage to discourage the pests. Despite wartime restrictions householders have been able to secure quite a number of covered garbage cans with the result that streets have a tidier appearance than otherwise would have been the case.

QUINTETTE REMANDED ON VAGRANCY CHARGES

Held on nominal charges of vagrancy, three youths and two girls, all of Toronto, were further remanded before Magistrate J. L. Lloyd pending further investigations today. The quintette are Theresa Dick, Dorothy Saylors, Pat Kelly, James Dillanger and William Shannon, all of Toronto.

The quintette were apprehended after allegedly breaking jail at Deseronto on Wednesday. Police brought gun-play into action to frighten the five before they were recaptured. Today Chief Noel Langton, of Deseronto, told The Ontario Intelligencer that charges of breaking jail would definitely be preferred against the quintette. "We are holding them in custody, pending further investigations, that may lead to additional charges", stated Chief Langton, who was assisted in the recapture of the party by Traffic Officer Morden of Napanee.

The five are being held in the Belleville jail bail being denied.

TREE CUTTING STARTS IN WEST PART OF CITY

Tree-cutting personnel of the Department of Public Works have swung over to the west side of the city for operations that will serve to weed out diseased trees which are dangerous to the public. Only the worst diseased trees, or those which may be interfering with the city sewerage system or which are obstructing traffic view will be cut at the present time according to City Engineer Charles Mott. There is still considerable tree-cutting to do on the east side of the city, it was stated.

SEA CADET CORPS TRIP CALLED OFF

Contrary to the report in Wednesday's paper that the entire personnel of the "Quinte" Sea Cadet Corps would proceed from Belleville to Kingston on Thursday evening for a visit to the H. M. C. S. Cataraqui, the trip has now been called off, it is announced by local officers. Reasons for postponement of the trip which corps members were looking forward to with a great deal of anticipation were entirely beyond their control, it was stated.

Parade as Usual

In lieu of the trip to Kingston, however, members of the sea cadet corps will be on parade at 7.30 this evening as usual.

TREES, SHRUBS SHOW SIGNS OF BUDDING

What with groundhogs sunning themselves and summer birds being seen here and in other centres, all claimed as harbingers of an early spring, the latest indication that winter is an absent quantity in the Bay of Quinte district is that tree and shrub buds are beginning to swell to the point of apparent bursting. This phenomenon has been noticed in most parts of the city with the branches of trees showing a visible thickening when viewed from a distance. At that a robin was reported seen in the city a short time ago, while from Cobourg comes a report that the sap is running with one farmer having had fresh maple syrup for the past week.

TWO FREIGHTERS SUNK

Chungking, Jan. 27 (AP) — Mitchell bombers of the Chinese-America wing sank two 1,200-ton freighters and a minesweeper during a sea sweep off the east China coast, and fighter-bombers attached Kengtung airdrome and barracks in Burma, an Allied communique said today. The attacks were made Tuesday and Wednesday. All Allied aircraft returned safely.

Hartley Fowler Succeeds Dr. Brace

Hartley Fowler has been appointed national secretary for World Service of the National Council Y.M.C.A., replacing Dr. A. J. Brace who is retiring, general secretary R. S. Hocking announced today.

Few officials in the Canadian Y.M.C.A. have a broader experience in world affairs than Mr. Fowler. As secretary to Sherwood Eddy he circled the globe with Dr Eddy and Dr. John R Mott thirty years ago. During the early years of the Great War he remained in China and later in India with Dr. Eddy

In 1914 Mr. Fowler was appointed secretary of the International committee of the "Y" in India and remained at that post until his return to Canada five years later. He was "Y" secretary in Galt from that time until 1926 when he was named executive secretary to one of the Detroit branches of the Y.M.C.A Last fall he went to Mexico to study the agricultural work being carried out among the peasants by Dr. Hatch of India.

There are remarkable and very valuable services being rendered by Y.M.C.A. secretaries in thirty seven different countries. The local Y.M.C.A. gives its support regularly each year to this work. Directors and senior members, boys at the Y camp and a number of citizens support this work. The Women's Auxiliary make a generous contribution and the boys of the local Association sell Christmas cards the funds from which are donated to more unfortunate boys in other lands.

In Belleville Associated Past Presidents Lorne MacDougall and N. E. Edwards are in charge of raising World Brotherhood funds.

Rubber Dinghys In "Y" Pools

Getting safely aboard a rubber dinghy in the North Sea is not the tough job it might be for men of the R.C.A.F. who are shot down, because of the dinghy practice a lot of them get in the swimming pools of Canadian Y.M.C.A.'s, the "Y" National Council reports today.

In the Y.M.C.A. pools at Vancouver, St. John, Moncton, Sydney and Halifax, it is a common sight to see as many as four dinghys in a pool, while four airmen in regulation suits jump into the water, swim the length of the pool and get on board the dinghy at the deep end. Then they must adjust the oars and row around while their floating radio equipment sends out its message.

At Sydney, N.S., the R.C.A.F. has been using the "Y" pool for the past two years to keep aircrew prepared to use a dinghy should the need arise. At other centres the practice did not get underway until last fall.

Men of the R.A.F. Transport Command get their first introduction to the small rubber boats that may some day save their lives at the Montreal Central "Y". Many of the dinghys, as well as other rubber equipment for the armed services is first tested by National Defence officials in the pool of the Y.M.C.A. at Ottawa.

Commanding officers say it is most important that the men have the actual dinghy practice which the "Y" provides, through its pools. One of them said: "Merely telling the men what to do is not sufficient. They must have the experience so that facing such a situation in the North Sea they would know what to do."

While the dinghys have not appeared in the Belleville pool a great many men of the services take advantage of the swimming facilities in the local "Y".

This service is provided without cost to all men in uniform. The men's uniform is his free pass to the use of the shower and swim in this Association and we accommodate several thousand of them each month, said Mr. Shortt the local secretary.

Bridegroom Lost $116 and Tickets Before Ceremony

It was his wedding day and naturally he was of a happy and jovial mood. Well, that was until he found his wallet, containing all his worldly possession, was missing. In it was his money for the honeymoon, $116.00 in cash, his R.A.F. pass and return tickets for himself and his bride to Toronto for the honeymoon trip.

Wednesday afternoon AC1 David McKnight, of the R.A.F. stationed at Picton, was enjoying himself with other airmen at the recreation rooms in the Y.M.C.A. awaiting the hour he was to marry the girl of his dreams. The wedding was slated for four o'clock, but shortly after three AC1 McKnight discovered his wallet was missing from his pocket. Police were notified and P. C. Horace Wright investigated. No signs of the wallet were found in the building and McKnight could not state for sure exactly where he had lost the purse. With but a few minutes left before the marriage hour, the R.A.F. lad hastened from the building to join his bride-to-be. The ceremony proceeded as scheduled and thanks to the far-seeing bride the happy couple proceeded on their honeymoon as anticipated.

LOTS OF QUESTIONS ASKED

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 27—(AP)—Hundreds of calls flooded police switchboards last night with queries: "Is the war over? Have the Japs dropped bombs? Has Hitler been shot?" The reason: A railroad engine whistle stuck.

'D' Preserves Ration Coupons Will Double Value for Most Items

Ottawa, Jan. 27. (CP)— The Prices Board announced yesterday that "D" preserves ration coupons will be worth twice as much for most items when the next pair become valid Feb. 3, and gave as the reason for the increase the current improved supply situation of some items.

In addition to doubling amounts of preserves, honey and molasses, the board said provision is being made for quantity purchases of maple syrup during the spring production season.

Although the "D" coupon values generally increase, the alternative of one-half pound of sugar in place of preserves remains the same, the announcement said.

Under the revised schedule the coupon value for canned fruit increases from 10 to 20 fluid ounces; jam, jelly, marmalade, maple butter and honey butter from 6 to 12 fluid ounces; molasses from 20 fluid ounces (one pint) to 40 fluid ounces (one quart).

From Feb. 3 until May 31 maple syrup may be purchased on the basis of one coupon for 40 fluid ounces. At the end of that time the coupon will return to its 24-ounce value.

Board officers said that about two-thirds of the 1943 honey crop had been sold when rationing of this product was begun. To bring conditions as near as possible to normal and give producers adequate time to obtain proper containers, the coupon value of comb honey has been changed from one standard section (one pound) to two sections (two pounds), and for extracted honey from 12 fluid ounces (one pound) to 24 fluid ounces (two pounds).

The coupon value of corn, cane or any blended table syrup has been increased from 14 to 15 ounces. Cranberry sauce remains at a coupon value of 12 fluid ounces.

The board's ration administration said "appropriate changes" will be made in the quantities of preserves available to quota users.

L. Lazier Heads Shannonville Fair For Second Term

President Lorne Lazier of Tyendinaga Township was elected to his second term of office to head the Shannonville Agricultural Society when that organization met for its annual meeting and election of officers at the home of Mr. K. R. Vivian recently. Vice-presidents named were Mr. Sid Fitzgerald and Mr. Harold Osborne while Kenneth Vivian was returned as secretary treasurer.

That the 1943 edition of the Shannonville "World's Fair" was a success, both from an interest point of view and financially, was indicated by the secretary in his financial report for the year. The fair's finances were in splendid condition, according to Mr. Vivian, with a current balance of approximately $700.

Last year's directorate board, both in the men's and women's sections, were returned to office for another term.

Impressive Memorial Service Is Held For Cpl. D. Ruttan

Impressive memorial services were held at the Tabernacle United Church on Sunday night in memory of Corporal Douglas Ruttan, a member of the congregation, who was killed in action in Italy on December 17, 1943. The pulpit and communion railing were banked with flowers in tribute to the late soldier. The choir rendered "God shall wipe away all tears", while addresses were made by Mayor Rollins and Mr. Reg. Edmondson, a veteran of the last war. Mr. Edward Shortt sang "There is no Death". During the service the Rev., Dr. Myers, the minister read a letter from Corporal Ruttan's commanding officer in Italy, who stated that he had been buried in a little cemetery in Italy overlooking the sea. At the close of the service George Wardle sounded "The Last Post".

CANADIAN UNITS

Brig. Foster in Command

The Canadians were under the command of Brig. H. W. Foster of Halifax and Picton, Ont. The units included the Winnipeg Grenadiers, whose battle cry was "remember Hong Kong" in remembrance of the first battalion of the Grenadiers, who made a gallant stand at Hong Kong.

Other Canadian units participating were the Canadian Fusiliers; Le Regiment De Hull; the Rocky Mountain Rangers; a company of the Saint John (N.B.) Fusiliers; the 24th. Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery; the 46th. Light Anti-Aircraft Battery; the 24th. Field Company of the Royal Canadian Engineers; the 25th. Field Ambulance; Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps; as well as detachments of Ordnance, Army Service, Provost, Pay and Postal Corps.

Fortifications Developed

Extensive fortifications had been developed by the Japanese during their year at Kiska, including a cement-floored seaplane hangar, and electric lighting system and water system. These were taken over by the Allied force.

The disappearance of the Japanese was explained by high ranking officers as probably due to severe aerial and naval poundings by the Allies prior to the arrival of the landing force, as well as to the previous capture of Attu Island, farther to the west. More than five million, five hundred pounds of bombs had been dropped on the island in addition to naval shelling.

The Canadians had been well trained for their part in the invasion. They went through strenuous special training first on Vancouver Island later up the Alaskan coast. They were officially described as a "compact, self-contained and fully-equipped formation."

Sir John Dill Stops in City

Field Marshal Sir John Dill, chief of the British staff in Washington, D.C., Lady Dill and aide-de-camps, stopped in Belleville Wednesday evening, en route to the Kingston Military Headquarters. Field Marshal Dill and his party were to have flown from Toronto to Kingston for the purpose of military inspection but Sir John's airplane not only caught fire at Malton airport, but visibility was so poor owing to a low ceiling and fog over Toronto and Eastern Ontario, that flying was deemed inadvisable. The party then continued to Kingston by motor.

Field Marshal Dill and his party stopped for a short rest period at the Quinte Hotel early Wednesday evening before continuing to Kingston. The Highway Patrol of the O.P.P. provided a motor escort the entire distance, Traffic Officer Harry Caldwell of the local detachment, being in charge of the escort from Trenton to Napanee.

SPRINGLIKE

the North Bay area also report having difficulty although it is not believed the situation there is serious yet. Snow is fast disappearing in North Bay where it was mild yesterday.

The mild spell has been most cheering to householders who have welcomed the temporary respite. It has given their limited fuel supply.

Hamilton was one of the province's warm spots with the temperature over 60 yesterday and topping the 50-mark early this morning after warm showers during the night.

At Galt Alf Wheeler saw some garter snakes yesterday while frogs are croaking, caterpillars have been seen, pansies and lilacs are blooming, the sap is running and robins are a common sight.

Light rain fell at Brantford today to break the winter drought. Pussy willows are budding and caterpillars are seen.

It was 55 degrees in Kitchener yesterday, just one degree short of the January record of 56. Snowfall has been about the lightest on record with only eight and a half inches so far this year. Last year the snowfall for the corresponding period was five feet.

There was heavy fog today at Woodstock after days of unseasonably mild weather and farmers were fearful fall wheat crops would be damaged.

Snow has practically disappeared at Kingston in Eastern Ontario which is blanketed by heavy fog today. Mild weather has rendered precarious the ice crossings to Amherst, Garden and Wolf islands. Farmers are finding the watering of cattle a problem because of the lack of precipitation during the winter. Many cisterns are drying up.

Heavy rains overnight washed away the last vestiges of snow at Cornwall where streets are miniature rivers and the fields little lakes today.

The temperature was 51 at Windsor this morning but it was not expected to reach yesterday's high of 64. At London it was cloudy and raining with a morning temperature of 47 compared with yesterday's 57-mark.

In Toronto where it was 52 yesterday, weather forecaster Frank O'Donnell said no cold snap was in immediate prospect.

Obituary

AGUSTUS MOORE
(Shannonville)

The death took place early this (Thursday) morning of Agustus Moore, at the home of his son, Percy Moore near Shannonville.

The late Mr. Moore was born in Camden East, Ont., eighty-nine years ago last June and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Moore. He followed the occupation of farming near Frankford and about twenty years ago he came to reside near Shannonville. He had been ill for three months.

Mr. Moore was the last of his family. His wife predeceased him. He leaves three sons and one daughter: John of Belleville, Sylvantis of Wallbridge, Mrs. Manley Lidster of Frankford, and Percy Moore of Shannonville.

The late Mr. Moore was highly esteemed by a wide circle of friends and was one of the best known residents of this district.

He was a member of the United Church.

WILLIAM B. WOOD
(Cantuar, Sask.)

Word received by relatives in this city conveys news of the death of William Baker Wood of Cantuar, Sask. He was the second son of the late Duncan A. Wood and was a native of this county. He was born in the year 1866, and was 77 years of age at the time of his death, which occurred on Dec. 20th., last following an illness of more than a year's duration. Interment took place in the family plot in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Swift Current, Sask.

William B. Wood was born at the family homestead, to the west of Roslin, in the 1st Concession of Huntingdon. He left for Western Canada about fifty years ago and settled first, near Napinka, in south-western Manitoba. Later he removed to Saskatchewan and engaged in large-scale farming operations near Cantuar, about fifteen miles northwest of Swift Current. He paid an extended visit to friends in the Belleville district in the summer of 1937.

He is survived by his wife, formerly, Bertha Yeomans of Tweed, and by a family consisting of one son and four daughters—Everett Irvine of Swift Current; Fostene E., (Mrs. J. P. Jensen); Irene, (Mrs. Clifton A. Lett); Elma G., (Mrs. (Rev.) Geo. B. Griffin, Montreal); and Sarah E.

He is also survived by three sisters,—Alice (engaged in missionary work in the Argentine Republic); Mary (Mrs. E. A. Powell of Biggar, Sask.) and Judith, (Mrs. Melville White, of Swift Current); one brother, Charles F., predeceased him several years ago; also four sisters, — Hannah, (Mrs. Eugene Groves); Sarah Jane, (Mrs. William Brigden), Annie and Lucy.

GEORGE FRANCIS BURNSIDE
(Hazzard's Corners)

Madoc, Jan. 27 (Special)—George Francis Burnside died at his home at Hazzard's Corners, Madoc Township, on Wednesday, Jan. 26th. He was in failing health for some time.

In the death of Mr. Burnside, Madoc Township has lost a highly esteemed and popular resident. All his life was passed in the township and he was engaged in farming in a large way and was eminently successful. Throughout the district many friends will regret to learn of his death, which followed closely after the passing of his wife, the former Lily McCoy, who died on Jan. 20th.

Born in Madoc Township the late Mr. Burnside was in his 76th. year and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burnside. In politics he was a staunch Conservative and in religion he was a member of the United Church at Hazzard's Corners. Fraternally he was a member of the Loyal Orange Lodge at Hazzard's Corners.

Surviving him are three sons, Mr. Earl Burnside, Madoc; Mr. John Burnside, and Mr. Maxwell Burnside, both of Madoc Township; one daughter, Mrs. Burgess, Peterborough; two sisters, Mrs. George Harris and Mrs. Fred McCoy of Madoc Township.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon and will be under the auspices of the Orange Order.

EARL PEARSALL
(Picton.)

Earl Pearsall, home address, R.R. 8, Picton, died in the Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday, Jan. 26th. He was fifty-three years of age and was admitted to the hospital on Jan. 25.

WILBERT ROGERS
(Frankford.)

Wilbert Rogers, of Frankford, died in the Belleville General Hospital, on Wednesday, Jan. 26th. He was forty years of age and was admitted to the hospital on Jan. 25th.

CHARLES MITCHELL
(Stirling)

Stirling, Jan. 27 (Special) — Charles Mitchell of Stirling died in Kingston General Hospital on Tuesday, Jan. 25th. after an illness of six months' duration. He was born in Rawdon Township and was in his 83rd. year, being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Mitchell. All his life was passed in Stirling and district and during his active years he was a painter and decorator. For years he was a valued member of the band and at the time of his death he was the oldest bandsman in Ontario. In religion he was a member of St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, and was well esteemed.

Surviving him are his wife, who prior to her marriage was Mary Ann Lagrow; three daughters, Mrs. William Shaw, Campbellford; Mrs. Fred Neal, Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Arthur Fry, Niagara Falls, Ontario.

The funeral will take place on Jan. 28th., to St. John's Anglican Church for service at 2.30 o'clock

MISS KATHARINE CAIN
(Minto)

Stirling, Jan. 27 (Special)—Miss Katharine Cain, home address, Minto, Ontario, died in Toronto on Jan. 26th.

The late Miss Katharine Cain had reached an advanced age, being in her 83rd. year. She was born in Rawdon Township and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Cain. She lived at Minto for many years and for the past two years she resided in Toronto.

The funeral will take place from the Duffin Funeral Home, Stirling, on Friday morning at 10 o'clock to St. James' Church for Mass. Interment will take place in St. James' cemetery.

MRS. LILLIAN M. FAHEY

The death occurred this Thursday morning at her home, 8 Cedar St., of Mrs. Lillian M. Fahey, beloved wife of Mr. John Fahey, after an illness of a few days' duration.

The deceased was stricken on Sunday morning last with a stroke of paralysis and from which she never rallied. Mrs. Fahey was a daughter of the late Wm. Palmer, of Stoco, where she was born, her father having passed away many years ago. Her mother married a second time to the late R. P. Hamilton.

Mrs. Fahey was an active member of St. Michael's Church and took part in much of the work in connection with the church, being a member of the Catholic Women's League, the Altar Society, the Benevolent Society and the League of the Sacred Heart.

The late Mrs. Fahey was a lady who possessed a genial disposition and had a host of friends who will regret her passing. She is survived by her husband, John Fahey and an aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Reid, of this city, also a number of cousins out of the city. The sympathy of her many friends will be extended to her husband and other relatives.

Funeral notice appears elsewhere in the paper.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of B. C. Hinchliffe wish to express their appreciation for the many acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy extended to them in their loss of a loving wife and mother, also for floral tributes and the use of cars at the funeral and cards of sympathy.

FOXBORO

Housing Subject Of Discussion

Foxboro, Jan. 27.—Foxboro Citizens' Forum met at the home of the President, Mrs. Wanda Sine, on Tuesday, Jan. 25, with sixteen members present. The subject of the CBC broadcast was Housing, or "A Man's Own Castle". The discussion which followed was more of an exploratory character than that of the previous week when the subject was, The School. However, the conclusions reached were that the present cost of house building taken along with the average income of the lower and medium income groups discourages building as an investment; the cost of money and uncertainty of employment are not conducive for the buying or building of one's own home; that a return of ten per cent is necessary to care for upkeep, taxes, etc., and make investment worthwhile, and this necessitates a rental of $25 to $30 which is more than many can afford to pay. In view of this a publicly financed housing program especially for the lower income groups, is greatly needed. It is estimated that Canada will need 250,000 houses in the first five years after the war. Bad housing with all its unfortunate results make it one of our serious national problems.

Public planning is necessary and the lack of it costly. Modern cities often have to publicly finance improvement schemes made necessary by the lack of public control and planning in the past.

The Forum was invited to the home of Mrs. J. W. Daniels for the next week when the subject will be "The Constitutional Barrier".

Editors Advised To Guard Closely Military Secrets

Washington, Jan. 27 — (AP) — The Advisory Board to the Press Division of the United States Censorship Office has advised editors, "With the military situation in Europe approaching the critical stage," that the closest possible watch must be kept over disclosure of even the slightest of military secrets.

The situation is at a stage, said the Board, "where even an inadvertent slip, careless speculation, or ill-advised comment might cost the lives of thousands of our fighting men."

"It becomes imperative," the Board's statement continued, "to give not casual but most earnest and ever-present consideration to the censorship code to which newspapers have subscribed."

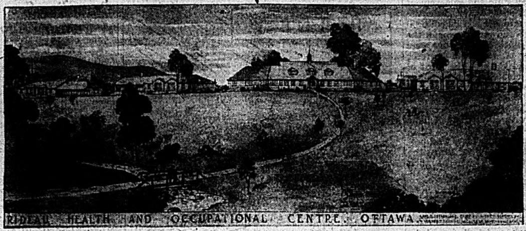
RIDEAU HEALTH AND OCCUPATIONAL CENTRE



RIDEAU HEALTH AND OCCUPATIONAL CENTRE . OTTAWA

The first of five health and occupational centres to be established by the Department of Pensions and National Health across Canada is shown in this architect's drawing. Tenders were opened this week for the construction of the Rideau Centre, located on the Rideau River in one of the most beautiful scenic sections of the Ottawa district.

Shown in the architect's sketch above is the central administration wing, which includes kitchen and dining room, and some of the eight bungalows which will provide residence for 200 ex-service personnel requiring specialized assistance in becoming re-established. Each of the bungalows contains a common room and verandah, for use in the summer; the Canadian Red Cross has offered to construct on the property a building to house a gymnasium, pool, and auditorium for floor games. Mechanical games are planned to develop the functions of partly-disabled men.

The four other centres will be at Toronto, Montreal, London and Vancouver, with those in Toronto and Montreal to accommodate 400 men.

Canadian Brides Of R.A.F. Men Going to Britain

Montreal, Jan. 27 — (CP) — A group of Western-Canadian girls, brides of R.A.F. men formerly stationed in Canada, left Montreal by train last night with a party of some 300 British women and children en route to join husbands and fathers in England.

The young westerners, few of them more than 22 years old, had little fear of homesickness as they settled down for the overnight trip to New York. "Glad and excited" about the journey, they were anxious to see the new homes prepared for them by their husbands who returned to England several months ago after training in Western-Canada stations.

Cold Wave Sweeps Western Provinces

Winnipeg, Jan. 27 — (CP) — Winter hit the comeback trail in Western Canada yesterday blasting premature signs of spring with cold winds and snow.

Alberta recorded the lowest temperatures. Districts in Manitoba and Saskatchewan showed about one and a half inches of snow — the heaviest fall of the season. The coldest spot in the West was Red Deer, Alta., with an official 11 below and thermometers still on the downgrade. Calgary was three below and Jasper and Lethbridge were under the zero mark. Medicine Hat reported continuing mild weather and light snow.

The wind in Winnipeg reached a velocity of 25 miles an hour overnight, but was subsiding this morning. The temperature was 24 above. Mild weather continued in Northwestern Ontario, Fort Frances reporting a temperature of 44 above and drizzling rain.

STOCKINGS CHECK ON LADY'S MORALE

Belfast, Jan. 27 — (CP) — When Lady Brooke, wife of Sir Basil Brooke, prime minister of Northern Ireland, met Hugh Dalton, president of the Board of Trade, recently, she was wearing stockings which had holes in them.

Sir Basil told this later at a luncheon to Mr. Dalton and "confessed" that he had had the tail of his shirt cut off to make a collar — "not for the first time."

Sir Basil said that Mr. Dalton had been tackled by quite a lot of women complaining that stockings are not all they might be.

"Mr. Dalton realizes that above everything else the morale of the ladies must be kept high and if a lady has a hole in her stocking, then her morale falls low," he said.

MERCURY UP TO 66 DEGREES

Philadelphia, Jan. 27 —(AP)— A "heat wave" which hit the city yesterday pushed the mercury up to 66 degrees at 3:15 p.m. and shattered all records for the date in the 73-year history of the Philadelphia weather bureau.

3rd Sidney

3rd Sidney — Many third line residents attended the funeral of Mrs. Barton Hinchliffe at Wallbridge on Monday afternoon.

The deepest sympathy of the community is extended to her husband, her daughter June, her parents and relatives.

Centenary congregational meeting was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Woods.

A Red Cross quilting was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Selburn Westover.

Messrs. Gordon Woods and Douglas McPherson are canvassing the neighborhood in the interests of the Federation of Agriculture.

Mr. Geo. Westover, Mr. and Mrs. Selburn Westover and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Westover were Saturday evening guests at the home of the former's son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Bid Westover, 2nd line.

Mr. T. A. Hinchliffe arrived in Belleville on Sunday to attend the funeral of the late Mrs. Barton Hinchliffe, and will spend a short time with relatives and friends here.

Mrs. Ken Bush has returned home from the hospital with her infant son, Ray William. Mr. and Mrs. Bush are receiving the congratulation of their many friends on the birth of their son.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Bailey of Stirling were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot Bailey, 2nd line.

Pilot Officer Gordon Spafford is home on furlough with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Spafford.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Saylor, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bush and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Moon spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Westover.

Mr. T. A. Hinchliffe spent Tuesday night with Mr. Jas. F. Wellman.

Mrs. Harley Hubble was confined to her home last week suffering from an attack of influenza.

The War Today— Eden's Statement Called Reaffirmation of Atlantic Charter

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Peculiar interest attaches to Foreign Secretary Eden's reaffirmation of the British policy of not recognizing wartime changes in the map of Europe—"unless they take place with the free consent and goodwill of the parties concerned."

The reason for this statement is the Russo-Polish dispute over the territory occupied by the Soviet in 1939 at the time of the German invasion. Mr. Eden was replying in the House of Commons to a question by a member.

When you weigh all the elements of this situation it's easy to believe that the Foreign Secretary seized this opportunity to emphasize something even bigger than the Polish Imbroglio. It struck me that he may have made his main point when he said:-

"His majesty's government of course stands on the principles enunciated in the Atlantic charter."

So, if I'm on the right track, he was concerned not only with the Polish trouble but with reaffirmation of the Atlantic charter. And why should it seem expedient to reaffirm the charter?

Well, as this column has explained numerous times, many countries —especially in the orient—have been suffering doubts and are anxious for assurances that this document, which was drawn up by president Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill and has become the credo of the United Nations, means what it says. I discovered this during a tour of the war theatres a year ago.

One of the eight points laid down in the Atlantic charter declares that "they (Messrs Roosevelt and Churchil) desire to see no territorial changes that do not accord with the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned." What is more natural than that the world should wonder whether this applies to the Polish affair and, if it does, just how it will be implemented.

Desire For Adjustment

There are a lot of angles to this question. For instance, who are the "peoples concerned?" Are the inhabitants of pre-war Eastern Poland to decide whether they want to be incorporated in Russia or Poland, or is the Polish government in London to determine this point?

It is, of course, the anxious hope of Britain and the United States that this dispute will be settled by Russia and Poland themselves. This hope must persist despite Moscow's rejection—in cordial terms—of America's offer to employ its good offices in restoring diplomatic relations between Poland and Russia.

Somewhere in Scotland—(CP)— Eight housewives of this village are credited with booming production at a war factory here by calling each morning for the lists of shopping for whatever the girls in the plant need.

Argentine Breaks With Axis

Another nation has handed Hitler's and Tojo's ambassadors their passports, Argentine has discovered according to her president, Ramirez, an immense spy ring of which revelations are promised and in which citizens of high society are said to be involved.

Not only South America but the entire New World has no relations with Germany and Japan.

The Americas are the offshoot of the enterprise of the enterprising peoples of Europe and they have known what freedom means. Over-ridden Europe is the proof of the evil that lies in German Nazism. The Americas have seen the appalling results of the sway of barbaric Hitler and the savage Tojo and will have no relations with these evil influences and menaces to the world at large.

North America, the entire Continent, is at war with the Huns and the Japs.

Everything that the aggressors stand for and all that they are runs counter to and is foreign to the freedom of the modern world of democracy and to its security and the American nations all see the danger to freedom and its institutions everywhere while the aggressors are at large upon the earth.

No Respite for Hitler

No respite this winter is bringing to Adolf Hitler. Russia is tearing apart his Axis system of satellites and overrun territories and boring deeper and deeper into central Europe to strike the heart of Hitlerism.

A winter campaign, a difficult one is being victoriously fought by the United Nations in Italy and the latest step was the sensational amphibious landing near Anzio and not far from the Tiber River that flows through the Italian capital.

It has been a hard year for the aggressor and it will bring a harder spring.

The man who ran wild among the nations in the proud invention of his blitzkrieg is himself being blitzkrieged to death along with his Germany in a way in which the Nazi blitzkrieg could never achieve.

The central position of Germany, which was so great an asset for him at the beginning of the war has became only a retreat in which he is being locked and in which he will be taken. His fortress of Europe will in time become his cell.

Hitler is a man doomed. He has heard the Allied announcement that nothing but unconditional surrender will do. No chicanery of himself or Goebbels, his propagandist, will keep the trap from closing on him and Germany.

Looking for Spring Signs

Now they are looking for spring signs as stories from various parts of the county indicate. Gananoque has observed chicken hawks, song sparrows, muskrats and a ground hog. Leaves are reported on a berry bush branch in Peterborough district. Some time ago a lone robin was seen in Belleville.

Blessed with a winter mild and snowless, people are not satisfied but go farther than merely enjoying this weather, they expect spring too, though many will admit that there have been days of this present month which have been all that a spring day ought to be in loveliness but so often is not.

In precipitation this month has seen every kind, the slight touch of snow, a little sleet, rain along with winter's fog which according to the old adage "will freeze a dog." But the fall of moisture has always been this year restrained and very much limited. In fact the only heavy precipitation was the rain of some time ago. The frequent attempts at snowfall which have been very ineffectual in providing snowdrifts yet bring quite a supply of moisture, though the snowfall has not once this winter merited the title of snowstorm. This moisture is most valuable for the soil and spring growth. It stays on the ground much as snow stays for there is not sufficient water to run off the fields.

After 185 Years

What man one hundred and eighty-five years after his birth has ever been so much on men's lips and in their hearts as to win so wide a recognition as that which was given to Robert Burns on the anniversary on Wednesday of this week? There were many references in the press to the day and to the poet's life and achievement and the Montreal Star gave an entire column of wide measure on its editorial page to a tribute and two poems in the poet's homage. Countless gatherings were held in all parts of the world wherever Scotsmen dwell and at these the spirit of Burns' humanity created the atmosphere in which Burns' worshippers met and in which his matchless songs were sung and endless tributes paid. Posterity has crowned Robert Burns with an eternity of fame and something greater than fame, a devotion to the memory of the man who provides an undying inspiration for Burns the man and Burns the poet were so much one.

Never Too Cold to Snow

(National Geographic Bulletin)

Too cold to snow?

This age-old "true or false" poser bobs up to test the lore of weather wise amateurs.

It never gets too cold to snow, but it frequently gets too cold for snow to fall in "flakes."

Flakes fall when the air through which they pass is 32 degrees fahrenheit or slightly lower. At this temperature the air usually holds enough moisture to allow the flakes to become fat and mat together and the fall is likely to be heavy.

As the temperature sinks lower the air becomes drier, the snowfall lighter and more powdery. At temperatures below zero a heavy fall of snow is rare. The snow that does fall takes the form of ice spicules, ice needles, or fills the air with fine glittering diamondlike dust. The air at these subzero temperatures is too dry to produce flakes.

Snow has fallen in Little America with the thermometer at 65 below zero. Alaska temperatures well under 50 below have produced snow. In eastern Siberia, temperatures which average under 40 below have been accompanied by snow. Verkhoyansk—the coldest spot in the world—with a recorded winter temperature of 94 below zero, is within this Siberian section where snowfall is apt to be light, but where snow can and does fall.

Lament

Grantland Rice, recalls The National Geographic, wrote a verse that expresses the weatherman's perennial complaint:

> And now among the fading embers,
> These in the main are my regrets:
> When I am right, no one remembers;
> When I am wrong, no one forgets!

Actually, a thirty-six-hour forecast averages ninety-five percent accurate in the first few hours, eighty-five to ninety percent at the end of twenty-four hours, and then drops to eighty to enghty-five. Seldom are warnings of storms or other dangers in error.

Where Gains Greatest

(The United Church Observer)

Recording a total church membership in the United States of 68,501,186, as reported by 256 religious bodies in 1941-42, the Federal Council of Churches revealed that the main growth in church membership is furnished by the fifty larger religious bodies with over 50,000 members. This trend upsets "popular impressions" that the smaller sects show the most rapid gains.

JUST FOLKS

PATIENT FATHER

When I was in that dreadful stage
  Which comes to growing boys,
That horrible, all-knowing age
  Which grown-ups much annoys
My patient father used to say:
  "Of course, unless he dies
Before it comes, he'll see the day
  He will not be so wise."

I told my parents what was what
  And also which was which,
Why someone's venture prospered not
  And someone else got rich.
Then oft my suffering dad would say,
  As well I now recall:
"I hope I'll live to see the day
  He will not know it all."

So positive was I back then
  Of what I thought I knew,
It puzzled me that older men
  Could blunder as they do.
Said dad: "To kill so wise a sage
  Would be too bad, I know.
I'll wait a bit. This ghastly age
  Perhaps he will outgrow."

Now when some "know-it-all" I face
  I think about his dad,
Who never guessed a hopeless case
  Upon his hands he had.
The boastful age he could forgive
  And bothered, wouldn't show it.
He must have let the youngster live,
  Believing he'd outgrow it.

Allied Forces Slowly Knifing Way Into Burma

New Delhi, Jan. 27 (CP)—Allied ground forces, slowly knifing into Burma under aerial support, inflicted casualties on Japanese forces in the Chin hills sector of the west-central front yesterday and made "some progress" on the Mayu peninsula of the southwestern front.

The southwestern drive by British and Indian troops threatening the Japanese port of Akyab has carried south of Rekhat Chaung, 4 1-2 miles northeast of Maungdaw, against determined resistance, the Allied southeast Asia communique said today. Minor enemy counter-attacks on Rasabil, west of the Mayu mountain range, were thrown back Tuesday night by the Allied forces.

The Chin hills offensive, apparently directed at the Chindwin river communications and supply route, has carried the Allied forces to Kyaukchaw, which lies 18 miles southeast of Tamu.

WANTS TO KEEP OUT PUBLIC

Bridgeport, Conn., Jan. 27—(AP)—Sheriff Edward A. Platt has asked authorization to build a fence topped with barbed wire around the Fairfield County jail—but not to keep the prisoners in. He wants to keep out the public, which has been known to slip hacksaws and "occasionally a little liquor" through the windows.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

When railways dragged their steel lengths across the prairies and through the Rockies, the settlers felt that at long last they were within the bounds of civilization. So many times it had seemed that the job undertaken by the Canadian Pacific was doomed to failure; but in 1885, at Craig Ellachie, Donald A. Smith drove the spike that united far-distant Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

* * *

The only people who resented the coming of the railroads were those folk who disliked change. Change, to the adventurers of the prairies, meant the end of independence and happy-go-lucky prosperity. The hunting had been good. Trappers who had started out on shank's mare to make a living had done so well that in a few seasons they were proud possessors of carts and plump ponies. In the carts were great bales of furs . . . and juicy buffalo meat, marrow fat and other choice viands. Home was a tent on the prairie—cosy in winter, cool in summer. Exchange this carefree life for the circumscribed life of civilization? . . . Not if the hunters could help it!

* * *

It takes a while to learn to exchange a sword for a ploughshare. But once the hunter and trapper had conquered their early difficulties they found much to like in a farming existence that was peaceful and uneventful. Quiz contests were a thing of the future . . . but there were many other competitions and rivalries to stir the community. The best wrestlers often got together of an evening. A man would be rated by the number of bags of wheat he could carry on his back, the number of loads of hay he could cut with a scythe in a day, or the quantity of shot bags he could raise above his head. Some families did not confine their efforts at leadership to special assemblies, but strove all year 'round to be first . . . with the planting, the hay-cutting, and wheat-hauling.

Letter To The Editor

OBJECTS TO TERM

To Editor,
The Ontario Intelligencer,

A few days ago I received an assessment paper from Sidney Township and on the back, was a space to make an appeal, if you wished to do so.

But the way this is worded, the person who pays the taxes, puts himself in the position of being a servant, and signs his name to such as I am, Sir, Your obedient servant, etc. What I would like to know is, why does the taxpayer become a servant, when these people are given the jobs to serve the taxpayer, and how the title of "sir" applies to whoever he is.

Perhaps someone can explain, to

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press War Correspondent

With the Canadian Forces in Italy, Jan. 9 — (Delayed) — (CP) —The rudest awakening Pte. V. A. Murphy of Vancouver has ever received was in the early hours of Boxing Day when a German paratrooper shoved an automatic into his face and told him to "get up."

Murphy was one of 15 Canadians taken prisoner in Ortona and then released when a patrol cleared the house where they had been held for seven hours. He was in bed when the Germans surprised his section and he didn't hear the enemy come in.

CSM. John Elaschuk of Turin, Alta., who was taken prisoner on the same day and released at the same time, is called "The Immortal Sergeant" by the men of his nit because he seems to bear a charmed life. He has been in every engagement since the battalion came to the Mediterranean and hasn't yet had to go down the line for illness, injury or wounds.

Cuffnotes from Ortona:

A sign at a point near town reads: "Out of bounds. In full view of enemy. Your first view may be your last"...

They are telling a story here of a British war correspondent's driver who spotted a typewriter in rubble beside a smashed anti-tank gun on one of Ortona's main streets. He picked it up and the gun fired a shell which blew a hole in a building across the street. The morale is: There are still booby traps in Ortona...

Moves: Maj. Frank Schmidlin of Kingston, Ont., secind-in-command of a tank regiment, is returning to Canada to an appointment at the war staff college in his home city... Maj. Clem Dick of Toronto is going to Haifa as first Canadian representative at a Middle East staff college.

Bulgaria Seen Nearing Crisis Like Italy's

Berne, Jan. 27. (AP)—Budapest dispatches said today that Bulgaria was approaching a crisis comparable to that of Italy last July when Fascism was overthrown.

"The decisive factor in Bulgarian politics continues to be the presence of twenty German divisions which have become forces of occupation rather than defenders of the frontier", the Budapest correspondent of the Gazette de Lausanne said. Allied bombings were said to have produced moral, physical and political crisis.

Sofia was said to be desolate with average destruction of 60 per cent throughout three-quarters of the capital. Open discontent was reported, especially against those responsible for state affairs.

Silhouettes

Tall trees against a sky of flame,
A road that seems to have no ending
Are beckoning me on, so am I to blame
If I follow the road with the gypsy wending?

Gone, then are the cares that seem to haunt me,
Yet not really gone, but just replaced,
By pleasanter thoughts of future days,
The sound of a voice, or a smiling face.

Yet back, over the road with the gypsy wending,
Back to the trees with their black silhouettes
I walk—for now I know
The beauty of God and our will to forget.

THE BLARNEY STONE

A person who has the faculty of pleasing and influencing others by a peculiar fluency of speech and flattery is said to have kissed the Blarney stone.

This allusion is to the legend that whoever kisses the Blarney stone—a triangular piece of limestone in the castle of Blarney several miles from Cork, Ireland—will be endowed with the ability of saying agreeable things and the gift of obtaining all his desires by persuasive speech and honeyed words.

Nobody knows how the stone acquired its reputation for conferring on those who kiss it the faculty of telling white lies with unblushing effrontery.

Some suppose the stone and the legend of its peculiar effect on persons who kiss it were associated long before the castle was built.

According to a legend, the stone was at one time the property of the people of Tyre and Carthage who fully understood its magic qualities.

A band of Carthaginian adventurers stole the stone and attempted to conceal it on the island of Minorac, but they were driven by a storm into Cork harbor and finally hid the stone in a wood near the present site of Blarney castle.

When Dermot McCarthy, a South Munster king, built a wooden castle there, according to the legend, he found the stone hidden by the Carthaginians and used it in the walls.

The reputation of the stone, it is said, was further enhanced a couple of centuries later when another owner of the castle, MacCarthy Mor, after a long siege in 1602 agreed to an armistice with Sir George Carew in which he promised to surrender the castle to the English garrison at Cork upon a date in the near future. Day after day the Englishmen waited for the fulfillment of the terms of the armistice, MacCarthy Mor putting him off with one pretext or another.

Lord Carew, duped by the artifice, became the laughing stock of Queen Elizabeth's court.

Another version of the story has it that MacCarthy Mor was asked to renounce the system by which the clan elected him leader and to take tenure directly from the English crown. The wily Irishman, knowing the consequences of positive refusal and not strong enough to resist by arms, stalled off the demand for several months by promises and eloquent pretexts.

RAWDON

UNITED CHURCH CONGREGATIONS' ANNUAL MEETINGS

Mount Pleasant and Wellman Churches Report Successful Year

Rawdon — On Friday evening about thirty members of Mount Pleasant United Church gathered at the hall and enjoyed a tasty supper. Following the supper, the Rev. T. F. Townsend presided with Mr. Irvin Reid as secretary.

Mr. Ernest White reported for the church hall with a small balance on hand.

Mr. Ross Hoard presented his report as cemetery treasurer and there is a substantial balance in this fund with $1,200 in Dominion of Canada bonds.

Mr. Irvin Reid, church treasurer, reported almost $230 of a balance after the year's expenses were paid.

A committee was appointed to hire a caretaker for the church and cemetery and Mr. George Weaver was authorized to purchase wood.

Mr. Ross Hoard was re-elected as treasurer and superintendent of the cemetery.

Mr. Ernest White reported $684.50 received from the stewards.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver remitted $202 to Presbyterial treasurer for W.M.S. The president, Mrs. T. F. Townsend, sent a letter telling of the activities of the Woman's Missionary Society for 1943 which included Good Friday service and Early Morning Worship on Easter Sunday and a visit from Miss Ida Mackenzie, travelling secretary. A large number of Mount Pleasant members also attended St. Paul's W.M.S. Golden Jubilee.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen remitted $35.67 to Presbyterial treasurer for the Mission Band and Mrs. Carleton Potts remitted $7.33 to Trenton for the Baby Band.

Mrs. Raymond McConnell reported for the cradle roll of the Sunday School.

Mr. Ross Hoard, treasurer of the M. and M. Fund, reported $250.

Mr. Edgar McKeown was appointed secretary of the M. and M. for 1944.

Mr. Irvin Reid was re-appointed secretary treasurer of the church; pianist, Mrs. Kenneth Weaver; assistant, Mrs. Carleton Potts; choir leader, Mrs. T. F. Townsend. New choir books will be purchased.

The stewards are treasurer Mr. Ernest White with Messrs John Holmes, Edgar McKeown and Roy Thrasher.

Elders are Messrs. Frank Spencer, John Holmes, Irvin Reid, Allan Bailey, Clifford Sine, with a new one appointed, Mr. Will Potts, to fill the vacancy of Mr. James Sharp who recently moved to Hoards to reside.

A special collection was taken to purchase "The Readers' Digest" for soldier boys overseas.

Mr. Will Jeffs, treasurer of the Sunday School, reported a small balance. Mr. Ross Hoard accepted the position of superintendant with Mr. John Holmes to continue as assistant, and it was suggested that younger members assist with the worship period.

The ushers and plate collectors were Messrs. Allan Reid, Bert Jeffs, Kenneth Weaver and William Jeffs.

Hall committee Messrs. Will Potts, George Weaver, Roy Thrasher and Ernest, to do some needed renovating.

Committee of Mesdames MacMullen, McKeown, Thrasher and Holmes to inform pastor of illness.

Mrs. George Weaver was reappointed as a member of the parsonage committee which will convene at an early date.

The ladies were tendered a vote of thanks for their culinary ability in providing such an excellent supper.

Wellmans Congregational Meeting.

Wellmans United Church held its congregational meeting at the church with a fair number in attendance. All enjoyed a tasty meal. The pastor, Rev. T. F. Townsend, presided and all organizations reported. These reports showed favorable balances and a year of success.

Mr. Walter Scott was re-elected as caretaker of the church.

Mrs. Carl Clancy was again appointed pianist with Mrs. T. F. Townsend as choir leader.

Elders — Messrs. Lewis Pauley, Carl Clancy, Omar Dracup, Charles Dunham and Clifford Clancy.

Stewards—Messrs. Edward Todd, Robert Wallace and Charles Dunham, with all other officers practically the same.

STIRLING

ST. JOHN'S ANGLICAN CHURCH W. A. MEETS

Stirling — The January meeting of St. John's Anglican Church W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. J. Whitehead the President, on Jan. 25th with a splendid attendance. Following the devotional period, the business of the month was attended to with Mrs. G. Clute acting as secretary in the absence of Mrs. G. Cottam. The members present paid their fees for 1944 with a total of 21 paid members at this the first meeting of the year. Some pledge envelopes were distributed and a report was given in the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. F. Kent. The special speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. (Dr.) P. V. Helliwell who gave a very clear and intensely interesting picture of her arrival in China in 1919, via Honolulu and Japan, to Shanghai where she and the Doctor were married at the cathedral by Dr. and Mrs. Taylor of the C.I.M. and from there by river boat, train and horse back to their destination. She told of the habits of the Chinese people and of how hard they work to cultivate rice. Mrs. Helliwell told the ladies present many outstanding incidents which happened during her stay in China and gave all an insight into the life of the Chinese people.

Mrs. C. Clute, speaking on behalf of those present, thanked Mrs. Helliwell for the fine address and also the hostess. Following the Benediction, a lunch was served.

About Sulphonamides: Wonder Medical Drugs

By Professor L. J. Witts, Nuffield, Professor of Clinical Medicines in the University of Oxford, in London Calling

It is not exaggeration when I say that we doctors regard the sulphonamide drugs as one of the greatest discoveries in the history of mankind. The sulphonamides and improved nutrition are the real causes of a remarkable thing—the fact that the death rate from disease in Great Britain has actually fallen during the war.

How did all this come about? Well, it was almost an accident. Or perhaps it is better to say that it was a great bit of luck, because the action of sulphonamide was discovered while following a hunch that was really quite wrong.

A lot of our antiseptics are colored dyes, but while they are very useful to paint on the skin, you cannot use them, or you cannot very often use them to kill germs that have got inside the body, because if they are strong enough to kill the germs they kill the patient too. Now the chemical sulphonamide has been known in the dyestuff industry for 30 years. It is used to make dyes fast—that is to say, to prevent them washing out. And a German scientist had the bright idea of combining an antiseptic dye with sulphonamide on the chance that it would stick to the germs. Then perhaps it would be possible to give a small dose of the dye which would not kill the patient but would kill the germs.

Well, it worked. The new drug cured blood poisoning and cerebro-spinal fever. All over the world medical scientists hurried to develop and advance the discovery. And very soon French workers torpedoed the theory on which the discovery had been made—and incidentally broke the patent, because they showed it was the sulphonamide which was the effective part of the new drug, not the dye, and it worked much better if you gave it by itself.

* * *

Why did we have to wait 25 or 30 years before we discovered that sulphonamide kills germs? That was because sulphonamide was only one of very many chemicals which the chemist has invented. You probably know that a chemical is made out of simple elements or atoms, just as a word is made up of letters. You know, too, that hundreds of thousands of words can be made out of the alphabet. Well, you can make up far more chemicals than words. So the chemist, trying to cure disease, is like someone standing in front of a door with a large dictionary in his hand, wondering which of all the words is Open Sesame, the word of power. He might go on trying till Doomesday unless he had a clue, or a stroke of luck, like sulphonamide.

But once he has his clue—once he knows the language to talk—the chemist can race ahead. Because he has not only discovered a word in Nature's language, the name of a chemical that cures disease, but he has discovered a big idea. It is just as if someone had discovered the idea of a hook for the first time. Once you have the idea of a hook, you can think of all kinds of hooks that might be useful—well, sulphonamide is a kind of hook that catches germs and destroys them. It works like that, as far as we can see, because of the way the atoms are arranged in it. And the chemist can now invent all kinds of sulphonamides. The simplest one of all cures blood poisoning and septic conditions. More complicated ones are needed for pneumonia and venereal disease; others for dysentery, for inflamed eyes and so on.

The chemist is trying to invent others that will cure tuberculosis and malaria, though he has not got that far yet. The White Paper issued this summer by the Medical Research Council names nine different sulphonamides which are high in importance for the war effort. The list of diseases which they have been proved to cure is longer than the most blatant quack would ever have dared to claim. And they cure disease in animals just as well as in man.

Teachers of medicine are beginning, you might almost say, to lament that there are no longer any good old-fashioned cases of pneumonia to demonstrate to the students who walk the hospitals. The anxious waiting for the crisis on the fifth, the seventh, or ninth day—that is a thing of the past. We expect to cure pneumonia now in three days. And we think there is something very wrong if it is not better in five days. A case of cerebro-spinal fever will change from restlessness and delirium to rational behavior in 24 hours. We can cure nine out of 10 cases of gonorrhoea in three days. We can cure the gonorrhoeal inflammation of the eyes that used to lead to blindness in new-born babies. We can cure plague—the Black Death. It destroyed half the population in Chaucer's time and came again as the Plague of London, filling men's hearts with fear. Now we can cure it. It is probable that we can cure cholera, too, though there has hardly been time to settle that yet.

* * *

We can do wonderful things. We can take a wound or a burn, and we can dust sulphonamide over the surface so that the germs are destroyed and it ceases to discharge. Then the plastic surgeon can take a piece of skin from elsewhere and sew it over the wound and mend it as confidently as you would patch a pair of trousers. Because the sulphonamide kills the germs without destroying the flesh, the graft will "take" and weeks or months of tedious convalescence are saved.

All this is wonderful. But I know no powerful remedies which are not also dangerous. The sulphonamides are no exception. We are still in the stage of learning the precautions to prevent these dangers, and it is most unwise to take sulphonamides without medical supervision.

It would be a mistake, too, if I gave you the impression that we have completely conquered the germ. We have not. There are many infectious diseases we cannot affect in the least by drugs—typhus, influenza, the common cold, and so on. There is a lot of disease and suffering not due to germs. No one would expect a drug or chemical to cure a broken leg or a broken heart. But all the same, these drugs have started a revolution.

First of all they have shown that the conquest of the germ—the banishment of infectious disease—is not a vain hope, it is something perfectly feasible. In this war there have been no big outbreaks of cerebro-spinal fever and dysentery as there were in the last war. The sulphonamides nipped them in the bud.

These new drugs are already essentials, not luxuries. I could not conceive practising medicine now without the sulphonamides. Now these sulphonamides are made from coal tar, and nitric and sulphuric acids. They are "fine chemicals." They cost from one to two dollars an ounce—about the price quinine was before the war. To cure a case of pneumonia needs about two ounces, say three to four dollars' worth.

50th Anniversary Of Wedding Is Happy Event

Many Friends Extend Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Caverly

MANY GIFTS

Madoc — On January 24th., Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Caverly were at home to their friends on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Over one hundred guests offered their congratulations and best wishes to the happy couple during the afternoon and evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Caverly have been life-long residents of Madoc and the lovely gifts and beautiful flowers from the family and their many friends near and far show the great esteem in which the honored couple are held. There were long distance calls from Toronto, Niagara Falls, Hamilton and Belleville, and telegrams of congratulations from Vancouver, B.C., Whitby, New Liskeard and Toronto.

Mrs. E. Morrison presided at the tea table which was prettily decorated with daffodils and the anniversary wedding cake. Assisting were Mrs. F. Nayler, Mrs. R. Lewis and Mrs. Wm. McCoy. The immediate family, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Ross and Tom, Mr. and Mrs. Mel. Caverly, Billy and Doris, were present, with Miss Doris having charge of the guest register.

Madoc W. I. Meeting.

The January meeting of the Madoc Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Roy Tayler on Friday afternoon. There was a small attendance due to inclement weather. The minutes and correspondence were dealt with, with the latter showing a number of letters from boys in the service thanking the ladies for parcels and ditty bags received. The delegation to the fair board meeting reported a willingness to co-operate. Mrs. Geo. Hill was voted in as a delegate to attend the agricultural convention in Toronto in January. This delegate is always an Institute member. The proceeds of the war work committee euchre held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Hill was $10.55. The next meeting will include slides shown by Mr. Drinkwater and will be open to the public. A committee consisting of Mrs. Geo. Hill, Mrs. Roy Tayler and Mrs. B. Tanner were appointed to make kitchen arrangements for the February blood donor clinic. Current events were given by Mrs. Hill. One of Edgar Guest's poems, "His Mother Talks," was read by Mrs. Tanner. Mrs. Geo. White gave a very interesting paper on "The Conquest of Diphtheria." Mrs. Moon read a New Year's message from the Federation president. After community singing Bill Hawthorne, Jr., accompanied by Stanley Hawthorne, sang "Smilin' Thru," and "Wait for Me Mary." "Waltzing Matilda" in duet was sung by the Hawthorne brothers who along with Mrs. Hulin and Mrs. White contributed several numbers. Mrs. Moon expressed appreciation to all taking part and closed the meeting with the National Anthem. Refreshments were served.

Crofton

Crofton — Master Jerrold Bongard spent the weekend in Toronto with his sister, L. Cpl. Betty Bongard of the CWAC.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Morden and Beatrice, of Jericho, and Mrs. W. W. Sallsbury called on Mr. and Mrs. B. Jones on Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Ernest Thompson spent Monday with her sisters, Mrs. S. R. Munro and Mrs. Jerry Covert.

The Red Cross met at the home of Mrs. Fred Purtelle on Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Munro spent Saturday evening with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vangeeson.

Mrs. Amel Stavenow of Arnprior, spent a few days last week with her daughter, Mrs. W. Salisbury.

ROWDYISM BANNED

Sheffield, England — (CP) — Sheffied University students have, through their own organisations, banned rowdyism at the annual conferment of degrees. They have their own methods of enforcing the "no noise" rule and dealing with offenders. At a recent ceremony there was only one incident which a student said was to "maintain tradition."

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Harry, Trenton wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Annie Ruth, to Lyle F. Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lewis, Havelock, the marriage to take place in February.

Danny Boy and his merrymakers conducted a splendid show to entertain at the Rebekah anniversary dinner in Napanee on Monday evening, featuring Madeline Walden and her latest dancing numbers. Mrs. Grace Calvert accompanied her at the piano.

Mr. J. R. Hayne has returned to Detroit, Mich., after visiting his mother, Mrs. G. T. Hayne, Pine St.

Mrs. L. Porter, of Detroit, is visiting her sister, Mrs. George Lancaster at the Armouries.

A. G. McKay, of this city, was a recent graduate at the Mont Joli R.C.A.F. training base and received his air gunner's wing.

Mrs. Thomas Hopkin, 178 Station St., who is a patient in the Kingston General Hospital, is progressing favorably.

Mr. A. L. Johnston has returned to Sarnia after spending a few days with his wife and family, Pinnacle St.

Mrs. C. W. Cox entertained at her home at 45 Ridley St., on Tuesday, January 25th, ten little boys at a jolly party in honor of her nephew, Bobby Ross, who was celebrating his sixth birthday. The highlight of the delicious lunch served by the hostess was the birthday cake of pink and white topped with lighted candles. All Bobby's friends chorused "Happy Birthday" to him. After an evening of fun-packed games, the kiddies parted for their homes, wishing the young celebrant many happy returns of the day.

Among the twenty-one nurses of the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, who were successful in passing their registered nurses' examinations, were the following from this district: Margaret Cassidy, Tweed; Patricia Alexander, Belleville; Marjorie Mary McGrath, Marlbank; Mary Ann St. Denis, Belleville; Joan Patricia O'Connor, Marmora; Margaret Maurice Maloney, Marmora; Mary Helen Callaghan, Corbyville; Margaret Elizabeth Stewart, Madoc; Margaret Mary O'Connell, Madoc; Marguerite Agnes Stephens, Marmora; Teresa Elizabeth Shannon, Deloro.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Heasman, 7th line Sidney, received word last week that their son, Pte. Bill Heasman, had arrived overseas early this month.

Mrs. H. P. Crossman, of Napanee is spending this week in Belleville the guest of Mrs. W. L. Tucker.

Miss Shirley Blakely, of Belleville, visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Blakely in Napanee.

Mr. C. W. Bell, who has been relieving as agent at the C.N.R. Express Office in Napanee during the illness of Mr. Ewart Booth, has returned to his home in Belleville.

The condition of the Rev. George Easton, minister of Trinity United Church, Peterboro and President of the Bay of Quinte Conference, shows some improvement, according to word received here. Mr. Easton was taken ill some time ago while in Toronto, but he has since been brought home to Peterboro.

The Red Group, under the leadership of Miss Cecilia Rolland, of the Triangle Hostess Club of the Y.M.C.A., entertained a number of airmen on Wednesday night in the gymnasium of the "Y". Plans had been made for a skating party, but owing to weather conditions, it had to be postponed. Nevertheless, everyone thoroughly enjoyed themselves with dancing to the juke box topped off with the serving of hot-dogs, coffee and cookies.

SWACO Guild Social Evening Is Gala Event

The Trianon ballroom was the scene of a festive occasion on Wednesday night when the SWACO Guild entertained at a dance, a social evening open to the public of Belleville. A large number of the two hundred and fifty merrymakers in attendance were wearing the uniform of the Air Force blue, not to forget the navy blue and the army khaki.

The popular band of Mountain View Jive Bombers displayed to the delight of the dancers its great versatility of rhythm, first with its "hot swing" and then with its soft and smooth melodies.

The master-of-ceremonies, in the person of Mr. Ed. Shortt, conducted an excellent program of novelty dances interspersed with a bit of square dancing, the music of which was provided by Messrs. G. Denyes and Charlie Thorne with Hazel Johnston calling.

The door prize of a $5 War Certificate, drawn by Flt. Lt. Randall, leader of the Mountain View Orchestra, was won by Sgt. Norman Semain, of the R.C.A.F. The spot dance was won by Miss Gwen Ray and LAC. Jack Johnston and the birthday specialty by Maudie and George Barry.

The SWACO Guild since its organization, under the leadership of Mr. Walter Batchelor, has held a number of social evenings such as this one and they have all proven a huge success. The Entertainment Committee of the Guild, in charge of Hazel Johnston, deserves a great deal of commendation for its excellent and untiring preparations on all occasions.

Foxboro Presbyterian Congregation Holds Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of Foxboro Presbyterian Church was held in the Sunday School room on Monday night, 24th January. The meeting was opened with the Scripture lesson and prayer by Rev. Mr. MacDonald, after which he was appointed chairman and Mr. Harold Longwell secretary for the evening. The different organizations presented their reports of the year's activities as follows: Session report, Mr. Clem Ketcheson; Secretary-Treasurer's report, Mr. Harold Longwell; Sabbath School report, Miss Muriel Bartlett; W. M. S. report, Miss Hamm; Guild report, Mrs. B. Hamilton. The printed reports, being distributed before the meeting, saved the reading of detail of the work of all the branches. All the officers were re-elected for another year and a vote of thanks tendered Rev. Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald. It was a prosperous year with all debts paid and a balance in the bank of $147.77. Lunch was served.

IF BABY IS CROSS FIND OUT WHY

HEALTHY BABIES are not cross. Your baby should not be cross. If he is, then something in his little system is "out of order." Probably, Baby's Own Tablets can promptly "put it right." Mrs. H——, of Fenelon Falls, had the experience. She writes: "My little girl was irritable, feverish and sometimes sick at her stomach—what a relief it was, after giving her Baby's Own Tablets, to see how much better she was."

Sweet-tasting—easily crushed to a powder, if desired—absolutely free from harmful narcotics or opiates. Promptly effective in simple fevers, diarrhoea, colds, constipation, simple croup, colic, teething troubles and other minor ills.

Never be without a full box of Baby's Own Tablets. Sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if you are not satisfied.

WEDDINGS

HOGG—FINCH

A quiet wedding was solemnized by Rev. F. E. Dunning on Saturday, January 22nd, at the Standard Church parsonage, Stockdale, when Eileen Rose, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Finch, became the bride of Truman Wesley Hogg, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hogg, of Brighton.

The bride wore an attractive two-piece dress of pink alpaca trimmed with trapunto embroidery and matching headdress. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

The bridesmaid, Miss Mildred Finch, sister of the bride, was attractive in a tan ensemble of alpaca crepe and carried Talisman roses.

Mr. Jack McCredie assisted the groom.

The young couple left by train for a honeymoon to Toronto and other points west.

CRONKRIGHT—MAYBEE

Grace United Church, Trenton, was the setting for a charming wedding on Wednesday afternoon, January 26th, at three o'clock, when the Rev. J. G. McKee united in marriage Audrey Jean Maybee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Maybee, of Belleville, to Trooper Archie Arnold Cronkright, of Camp Borden, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Cronkright of Trenton.

Mr. Wildman presided at the console of the organ and played softly through the ceremony and during the signing of the register. Miss Jean Wilson delightfully rendered "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white brocaded satin and cape length veil which draped softly about her head from a Mary Stuart cap. She carried a cluster of Premier roses.

Her bridesmaid was Miss Doreen Rose, of Belleville, wearing Saxe blue sheer accented with silver sequins about the high rounded neckline and the sleeves. Her chapel veil was caught to her hair with a halo of matching hue adorned with silver sequins. She carried a bouquet of Briarcliffe roses.

Mr. F. Maybee, brother of the bride, was groomsman and the ushers were Douglas Thurston and Orville Smith.

At the reception at Firhurst Manor, the bride's mother received the guests wearing a powder blue two-piece crepe dress with black accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother in rose crepe with black accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

On the wedding trip to Ottawa, the bride donned a blue crepe ensemble and black accessories. On their return, the bride will reside in Belleville, while the groom will return to his unit.

Drab Setting As Parliament Is Opened

Ottawa, Jan. 27—(CP) — Only color at today's opening of the fifth session of the 19th Parliament will be servicemen's ribbons, the gold cord draped from the shoulders of aides-de-camps and women's informal afternoon dresses. Wartime expediency again ruled a drab opening in place of the more colorful peacetime setting.

The diplomatic corps will be present in morning dress and the wives of cabinet ministers, senators and members will not be wearing their usual evening dresses. But smart afternoon styles will add a touch of color to the bank of civilian and service clothes in th background.

A special guest at the opening was Sir Lyman P. Duff, retired Chief Justice, who in the past often read the speech from the throne at openings when the Governor-General was unable to attend.

Only social event in connection with the opening of any official import is the private reception for invited members, senators and officials given by the Speaker of the Senate, Hon. Thomas Vien.

Women's Activities

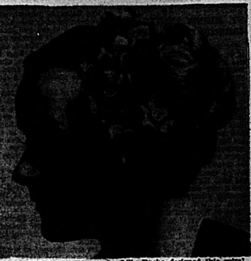
ST. ANDREW'S GUILD

At the regular meeting of St. Andrew's Guild, the installation of officers for the year took place, with the minister, Rev. J. G. Hornsby, officiating. He commended the Guild for the important work they had completed during the year, which included sending 146 parcels overseas to the men in the services and also 26 gifts to aged and shut-in members at Christmas time. The officers for this year are: Hon. President, Mrs. J. G. Hornsby; Past Pres., Mrs. S. R. McCreary; President, Mrs. J. Wilson; Vice-Pres., Mrs. Arthur Hill; Sec., Mrs. W. M. Barlow; Treas., Miss H. Beaumont; Press Sec., Mrs. Morley Ward; Pianist, Mrs. Mantle. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

HOLLOWAY Y.P.U.

The meeting of Holloway Y.P.U. was held on Tuesday evening. The Christian Fellowship group, with Miss Maude Burke as convener, conducted the worship service. Miss Leona Morton favored with two autoharp selections. Rev. Mr. Dilts led in a discussion of the subject, "Is it Old-fashioned to be Saved?" Many votes of thanks were tendered Mr. Dilts by various members in appreciation of the inspiring and helpful message he delivered. The executive of the Y. P. U. gathered at the close of the regular meeting for a short business interview.

Hat and Hairdo



By ALICE ALDEN

More and more we are discovering the affection of important millinery designers for a picture composed of hairdo and hat or something that passes for a hat in order to outline the coiffure. Lilly Dache designed this spiral, a design that follows the curve of the individual hairdo and that leaves the forehead with its centre part, clear and uncluttered. The spiral is of felt flowers in pale blue and pink with deep colored centres.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Gentle Grace of Saying "Thank You".

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I have made a collection of miscellaneous questions that have bothered me for some time. Will you please answer them for me?

1.—When a girl says "Good night" to a boy who has taken her out, does she say "Thank You" for the good time they have had together?

When a boy calls a girl up and ask her for a date and she says "I'd love to go", then does she also thank him for the invitation?

Should a girl thank a boy or man for opening the door for her? For helping her on with her coat?

Should one write "thank-you letters" for gifts received while in a hospital?

How long should one wait before writing a bread-and-butter letter?

2.—In what direction should the edges of the napkin face at the individual places on a dinner table?

3.—What can a girl do if her father insists on embarrassing her in front of her friends, particularly boys?

4.—What should a girl say to a boy after he has thanked her for dancing with him?

5.—When introduced to a young person of your own age, is it all right to say "Hi", or should you say "How do you do?"

6.—Is there a special pronunciation for "Rationing" during wartime?

G. G.

I've taken the liberty . . . and I hope you won't mind . . . of renumbering your questions, grouping under No. 1 those that have to do with the gentle grace of saying "Thank you". For I would so much, so very much, like to have you open your eyes and your ears and your heart to the glorious rewards that so inevitably come from saying "Thank you! Don't hold back these good words. . . spend them generously, lavishly indeed, not as a "perhaps-I-should", but because you just can't help saying you appreciate any kindness or courtesy that is done or said to you. You can say too few thank-you's. . .but I've never seen anyone who said too many! There's magic in "Thank you".

Say "Thank you' to that young man who has asked you to go to the movies or to a dance or whatever with him. . .thank him, enthusiastically, and tell him what a happy time you had. He'll like you better, and you'll like yourself better.

Thank Jim too for asking for a date. . . I'd love to go. Thank you so much for asking me".

Thank anyone for any courtesy, large or small. For opening the door for you. For helping you on with your coat. For any service.

And not only say your thanks, but get the heart-warming habit of writing them. As soon as possible write thank-you notes to kind friends who sent you gifts while you were in the hospital. And don't wait a minute longer than you have to to write the bread-and-butter letter that tells your hostess that you had "a wonderful time". Prompt letters of appreciation are a million times more convincing than delayed ones.

2.—When the napkin is put on the side of the individual place, it is placed on the left of the forks, the edges toward the plate.

3.—Here's a problem that certainly calls for all the tact in a girl's reportoire. And she'll be a genius if she can with at least seeming casualness put a good face on the embarrassing words. For example, "You see Dad does a good deal of worrying about my 'lack of responsibility'. Now I'm going to do everything to show him that I'm really trying to do what he wants me to do. . ."Sunday, Monday. . . and always'."

4.—The girl graciously says something that will show the boy she has enjoyed the dance. . .just that, "I enjoyed the dance so much, Bob", or "That was a grand dance, Bob. . . . I always love to dance with you".

5.—You'd better take for granted that the young person being introduced to you is familiar enough with etiquette to expect you to acknowledge the introduction with "How do you do". Don't frighten off your new acquaintances by gurgling an ugly "Hi"!

6. — Although both ray-tion-ing and rash-ion-ing are permissible pronunciations, rash-ion-ing seems to have won out at present. And "Use is the law of language".

BEAUTY By Helen Jameson

Relaxation Smooths Troubled Brows.

It takes a pretty smart woman, one with a well organized life, to find opportunities for rest these days. There's so much that has to be done, there's so much at stake. Even the lazy little loafers are helping in the war effort. They would be ashamed to be slackers.

Many women who do nothing outside their own homes are carrying on heroically, are overworked, overwrought, feeling the strain of world conflict. The day isn't long enough to get through with the cooking, the bedmaking, scrubbing, mending, care of the babies. Time was when help could be had. Now these women must do heavy work that the men of the family used to attend to. They're knuckling down to the tasks and some of them we know are beginning to show wear and tear. Drawn faces signify that fatigue bugs are working.

They need rest and relaxation, have to have it. Even locomotives wear out in time, we have been told. Those moments of communion with cosmetics won't accomplish much if nerves are jangling, muscles weary. A woman feels that she has travelled far from the days of her youth and soon she will be in slow moving traffic. Bad for the spirits.

It won't do to think only about the comfort and welfare of the Daddy and the kids. If a woman is to carry on she must think of herself now and then. Also, a tired mother in the house depresses the whole family. she is irritated, drags her heels. She must maintain physical health by snatching moments of rest. Mental health comes by having confidence that the future is going to be brighter, burdens lighter. A cheerful state of mind builds strength for the job, no matter what the job may be.

The woman who regards housework as drudgery is in bad way, is likely to suffer quickly from fatigue, while the woman who likes nothing better than yanking everything out of the kitchen cabinets and putting them in order again will be conscious of a feeling of satisfaction. She'll take a bath, wash her hair and look as fresh as a daisy.

What men don't understand about the difficulties of house work is that there are always unexpected duties that interfere with the daily schedule. Little things, of not much importance, but they take time.

The wise woman with time chasing her full speed, will snatch moments of relaxation because she knows she must have them. She may find rest in good books or a movie that is not exciting. A short walk may soothe her frazzled nerves to a state of tranquility. It is a problem that she must work out for herself, this matter of restoration and release.

Scabies

Scabies is an itching disease caused by an animal parasite that burrows under the skin.

The mite that causes scabies is known as the Acarus scabei which was discovered in 1687. Since that time many and various preparations have been used against it, including betanaphthol, balsam of Peru, and tar, but particularly sulphur. More recently such things as rotenone which comes from the derris root and benzol-benzoate have been employed.

According to Doctors William L. Dobes and Philip H. Nippert of Georgia, the sulphur treatment works just about as well as any other. However, these physicians give the patient careful instructions concerning methods of avoiding re-infestation. For example, they tell the patient that he has a catching disease, and that it is inadvisable to sleep with any one who does not have the disorder.

The ointment which is prescribed is rubbed into the skin from the neck to the ankles every night and morning for three days. During this period, the patient is not permitted to take a bath. At the end of the three days' time, the use of the ointment is stopped, and the patient then takes a warm bath and changes to fresh underclothes, sleeping clothes, sheets, and pillow cases. All the bed linen, underclothes, and sleeping clothes which have been used during the time the ointment has been employed must be boiled. After the bath, the patient rubs his skin with vaseline or some oil.

A number of patients were treated in this way, and a complete cure was obtained in most of them. In only two instances was it necessary to repeat the course of treatment. Furthermore, the skin did not become irritated or inflamed as a result of the treatment. Now and then some mild irritation did occur in the groin and in

If a strong sulphur ointment is used, irritation of the skin or dermatitis develops more often.

In 1937, a new form of sulphur treatment for scabies was introduced. This consists of a soap paste containing the sulphur, which was put on gauze pads. The gauze pads were moistened and rubbed on the skin every day for three days. Each day the underwear was changed. The advantages of this treatment were that it did not damage the clothing and bed linen, and there was no discomfort, such as might occur when ointment is kept on the body for a period of three days. It did not require that the affected person lose any time from his work. Some of the patients did complain of discomfort from the dry lather. A number of the patients were also treated with benzol-benzoate, and Doctors Dobes and Nippert thought that this type of treatment was the most effective.

Scabies causes a great deal of itching of the skin and when the patient scratches, inflammation and a rash may develop. Scabies is not a serious disorder but a most uncomfortable one. Fortunately there are many ways of completely getting rid of it quickly.

THANKS
TO ALL OUR CUSTOMERS for Another RECORD YEAR

Another business year comes to a close next Monday, and we, at Woodley's, want to say "Thank You." It was not an easy year in which to do business. Many of the things used in the fur business have "gone to war." Fur skins were hard to get and high in price, as nearly all the trappers are either in the forces or doing essential war work. Occasionally our service "slipped a little" and things happened of which we were not very proud, but our customers appreciated our difficulties and were not too exacting, and this helped a lot.

ALL OUR RECORDS WERE BROKEN

Every standing record in our business was broken in the past year. Our Millinery Department, our Fur Storage and Repairing Departments, and our sales of new Fur Coats. We do feel a little proud of the year's result, but also realise the responsibility such a volume of business brings. We hope that in the year beginning February 1st. we will have the continued confidence of our thousands of customers. That our past service has merited this confidence, is our sincere wish.

AGAIN WE SAY THANK YOU!

Kinsmen Thanked For 'Fags' Sent

Indications just how much Canadian cigarettes are appreciated by the boys serving overseas were received by the Kinsmen "Fag Fund" this week when a score or more Belleville boys replied stating their shipment of smokes had been received just in the nick of time for Christmas consumption. "They sure came at the right time and were a swell Christmas present," Frank Belsey wrote to Chairman "Buster" LaBarr.

Replies from Sgt. W. Laney, Sgt. W. F. Clapp, Jimmie Ling, an airgraph letter from Jack Keary and a note from A. J. MacDonell that read—"these smokes are a great help to the war effort," are only a few of the replies received by the Kinsmen Club to press for the continuance of shipping Canadian cigarettes to Belleville boys serving overseas.

Those local lads sent 300 cigarettes this week were:-

Position Clarified When Argentina Makes Application

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Jan. 27 — (AP) — Argentina's new position in relation to the rest of the Americas probably will be clarified when and if she again applies for lend-lease arms and supplies.

A request for such aid is expected as soon as Buenos Aires has completed re-orientation of her foreign policy begun yesterday when she severed diplomatic relations with Germany and Japan.

The issue is considered by the Argentinians to be of immense importance because they see themselves suffering as a South American power in relation particularly to Brazil, which as a full-fledged fighting ally of the United States has been receiving arms and equipment since 1941.

What United States reaction will be, however, probably will depend on the extent to which the Buenos Aires government eradicates Axis spy nests, propaganda and revolutionary intrigue within her borders. It probably will depend also on the need Argentina can show for lend-lease in the interests of hemispheric defence and the Allied war effort.

The subject of lend-lease help for Argentina was last broached in August, two months after the revolutionary regime of President General Pedro Ramirez seized power.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull rejected the request at that time both because of Axis activities then permitted in Argentina and because the request was based partly on the expressed desire of the Ramirez government to restore "equilibrium" in South America.

Hull said that "questions of military and naval equilibrium as between American republics are surely inconsistent with the inter-American doctrine of the peaceful settlement of international disputes."

CANADIAN CORVETTES RETURN TO PORT VICTORIOUS

Lieutenant J. A. "Hamish" L[illegible], R.C.N.V.R., of Montreal and Victoria, B.C., temporarily in command of H.M.C.S. Snowberry, relieving the regular commanding officer, Lieutenant John B. "Barry" O'Brien, R.C.N.V.R., of Ottawa, who was on leave.

Steaming into port with an enemy submarine to their credit, H.M.C.S. Snowberry and H.M.C.S. Calgary, are shown under the sheltering guns of H.M.C.S. Prince Robert. The two Canadian corvettes have prisoners below decks. The same day as the U-boat was smashed they figured with Prince Robert and other ships of the Canadian and Royal navies in a two-hour battle with enemy glider bomb carrying planes. They repulsed these attacks and escorted the convoy safely to the United Kingdom.

Mess Room Chatter Of Canada's Airmen

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

With the R.C.A.F., Somewhere in Britain, Jan. 27. (CP)— For the first time in 11 years, three members of the Davoud family of Kingston, Ont., sat down together for a meal recently in London. They were Wing Cmdr. Paul Y. Davoud, D.F.C., Flt. Lt. Tandy Davoud, both of the R.C.A.F. and Gordon Davoud.

The last time three had been together was at Christmas in 1932. They chatted for hours over a table in a small Danish restaurant and the Wing Commander said, "we had a lot to talk about".

Paul is C.O. of a Canadian Mosquito squadron. Tandy arrived in England recently from Canada and Gordon, who has been here six years, is engaged in highly specialized research work in connection with the war effort.

Canadian airmen are "saying it with flowers" this Christmas. Through facilities of the Knights of Columbus, cables have been sent to Canada authorizing the delivery of flowers to mothers, wives, and sweethearts at home. Supervisor Frank Coffey of Edmonton alone has turned in 240 orders for flowers from airmen in his area.

Roses topped the list and 'mums took second place.

One of the newest D.F.C.'s is Flt. Lt. I. P. MacIntosh, quiet, unassuming Lindsay, Ont., officer who received his award for outstanding service over a long period with a Canadian Bomber Group squadron.

Veteran of many trips over enemy territory on such targets as Dusseldorf, Essen, Hamburg, Frankfurt and Mannheim, the 32-year-old airman recently was promoted from the rank of flying officer and appointed bombing leader of his squadron.

One of the first R.C.A.F. officers to arrive in Great Britain, Group Capt. G. E. Scott, staff officer in charge of administration at headquarters of the Canadian Bomber Group, has been promoted to that rank from wing commander.

Native of Quebec City, Group Capt. Scott was prominent in Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa business circles before the war. He is the second member of his family to attain that rank, a brother J. S. Scott, being stationed at No. 1 Training Command Headquarters, Toronto.. Group Capt. Scott's wife lives at Barrie, Ont.

Saskatchewan, says a Londonderry Irishman who went to Canada in 1938 to try his luck, is the greatest place on earth, and "I'm definitely going back there after the war".

The Irishman, FO. Patrick Campbell, 33, was a hotel clerk in Estevan when he enlisted and he has just been awarded the D.F.C. Thirty-three, stocky and greying, Navigator Campbell recently completed his first tour of "ops" and now is instructing at a heavy conversion unit. His captain, Sqdn. Ldr. Philip Weedon, Paddockwood, Sask., also was awarded the D.F.C. They did 26 trips together.

Bombing of Brunswick Uproots Past

By H. L. MacPherson, in Windsor Star

When R.A.F. bombers plastered Brunswick the other night, their crews probably didn't give a thought to medieval history, but past and present met with a terrific crash during the twenty-three minutes the raid lasted.

Brunswick, both the city and the tiny duchy or principality that also bears this name, has had a lot to do with the making of history in the Anglo-Celtic world, and most of its work has been bad. Yet, it has left imprints that will not be erased for centuries to come, if at all.

One Canadian province took its name from Brunswick, and there is also a New Brunswick in New Jersey, a Brunswick in Georgia, another in Australia, and perhaps dozens of others.

Exported Line of Bad Kings.

That's pretty good going for a little piece of Germany (1,417 square miles) wedged between Hanover and Saxony. But it wasn't only by providing place names that Brunswick succeeded in advertising itself. It gave Britain the Hanoverian line of kings, sometimes called the House of Brunswick, and no crumbier crew can be found in any history, ancient or modern. The first four Georges gave it a reputation it cannot live down.

The German Brunswick is old; in fact more than 1,000 years old. It was founded about 861 by Bruno, a son of the Duke of Saxony, and developed slowly through the years without expanding much. In 1634 the ruling family died out, and the duchy was shared by two dukes of Luneburg. Only one of them, however, meant much to the Western World, and that was the Duke of Luneburg-Calle, whose descendants became electors of Hanover and kings of England.

Repudiated by Later Monarch.

The line of succession took a sorry twist when it led those prize exhibits of degeneracy and royal stupidity to the throne of England. Even George V is reputed to have repudiated them. Anyway, he is said to have requested that a large "V" be inscribed on coins bearing his image, so he would not be confused with the other Georges.

George I was No. 1 on the list of Hanoverian profligates, and the Encyclopaedia Britannica is trying hard to be fair when it says this about him:

"George I arrived in England (1714) when a great military struggle had come to an end. He had therefore no reason to call upon the nation to make great sacrifices. All that he wanted was to receive for himself and his family a high position which he hardly knew how to occupy, to fill the pockets of his German attendants and his German mistresses, to get away as often as possible from the uncongenial islanders whose language he could not speak, and to use the strength of England to obtain petty advantages for the principality."

Looseness Ran in Family.

That was only the first installment of the serial. Then came his son, George II, termed "as loose a liver as his father;" George III, who confirmed suspicions that he was weak in the head by going insane for a time; and George IV, a "worn-out debauchee." These four set the all-time high in carpet-bagging. The lads who went into the Confederacy for a killing after the American Civil War were just latter day amateurs.

It was only natural, perhaps, as matters evolve in Germany, that Brunswick should have advanced from the export of bad rulers to the manufacture of Messerschmitts, another domestic product that wanders far from home to expedite the looting of Germany's neighbors. The bombing has been about 300 years too late, but even at this date it has helped square a few old accounts.

Brunswick, by the way, became a Communist state after the World War, but this didn't last long. What lies ahead of it is uncertain at the moment, because when 2,240 tons of bombs are dropped on a city of about 200,000 they don't leave it with much basis for a future.

Corporal Faces German Patrol With Empty Gun

(By DOUGLAS AMARON)
(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadian Forces in Italy, Jan. 27. (CP)—There was a Hollywood finish to the adventure of a Canadian corporal who, with five dead Germans at his feet and his tommy-gun empty, stood alone facing an enemy patrol advancing upon him. He was later wounded in action.

The corporal belonged to a Western Canada battalion which engaged the Germans around the Moro valley town of Roatti two days before the main Canadian advance across the narrow stream which flows into the Adriatic.

Supported by British tanks, the Canadians held their bridgehead for two days before being withdrawn for another crossing further east.

Maj. R. P. Clark of Vancouver, battalion second-in-command, telling the story of the corporal, said that just as the Germans were coming up on him the tanks crashed through the brush behind. Literally snatched from captivity or even death, the corporal pointed out the German positions and the enemy was wiped out by the tanks.

"It was the sort of thing you only see in the movies", said Clark, who added that during his battalion's stay around Roatti 35 prisoners were taken and about 100 Germans killed.

Trapped by Nazis.

Another adventurous incident involved Pte. W. G. Packo, Fullers, Man., soldier in another western unit. Packo was one of four soldiers who escaped after being cut off from the rest of their company by German machine-gunners north of San Leonardo.

"We started out with the company to attack a hill and were just getting going when one chap was wounded", Packo said. "Snipers opened up and of course the mortars had to join in too. The eight of us somehow managed to get behind the hill.

"There was a building on the right of us which we had cleared earlier in the day so we didn't bother with it. First thing we knew the Jerries were in the building and had surrounded our place.

"One of our machine-gunners was wounded and our lieutenant called to me to get first aid. By the time I got back four of our lads including the officer had already been captured".

When he was out looking for first aid, Packo was shelled by the Germans who "opened up with everything they had. Shells were dropping "pretty close" and as each one exploded the blast lifted up his steel helmet, jerking the chin strap around his throat.

Packo didn't know the full names of all the men who escaped with him, but one was Pte. D. McLean from the Okanagan Valley in British Columbia.

Engineers have high praise for Spr. M. C. McNaughton of Myrtle, Man., who though his bulldozer was under direct fire from German machineguns made the cut for the diversion across the Moro river.

There have been some strange casualties from shelling. Two men in a slit trench were killed though men standing in the open above them escaped without a scratch . . . . a corporal who took shelter under a truck was crushed to death when shrapnel pierced the tires and the housing collapsed on him.

—A windmill built when the Battle of Waterloo was fought, is to be dismantled for war scrap.

Patriots Liberate 70 Per Cent Of Central Bosnia

London, Jan. 27 — (CP) — Yugoslav Partisans, skilled in the art of mountain warfare, have liberated 70 per cent of central Bosnia from the German invaders, headquarters of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today.

Reporting one of the major Yugoslav successes of the winter campaign, the Yugoslav war bulletin, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav Radio, said the last remnants of German forces have been cleared from the central Bosnian area with the occupation of the town of Prnjavor, 25 airline miles northeast of Banja Luka.

Southwest of Mrkonjicgrad, Vrbas river stronghold recaptured from the Nazis yesterday, the Partisans have advanced about 30 miles to the southwest, mopping up enemy detachments between Mrkonjicgrad and the Livno river, the communique said.

In western Croatia, Yugoslav patriots were said to have ambushed five high-ranking German officers between Zagreb and Karlovac, wiping them out on the spot and capturing important military documents.

The Berlin radio claimed the capture of the island of Hvar off the northern Dalmatian coast.

London, (CP) — Britons have been promised 75,000 new utility radios for 1943. They are standard sets and bear no trade names.

Ottawa, Jan. 27 (CP) — Creation of three new departments of government designed to take long steps in the direction of social security and in the maintenance and development of the national economy after the war was forecast in the Speech from the Throne read today at the opening of the 1944 parliament.

As the fifth session, perhaps the last of the 19th. Parliament, opened the speech gave members the most ambitious budget of prospective legislation offered a single session of parliament in many years.

Here are the principal proposals on which the government will seek the approval of parliament:

1. Family allowances.
2. Establishment of an industrial development bank to provide credits for conversion of war industries to peacetime uses.
3. A bill to ensure or guarantee export credits to aid in obtaining export markets.

May Revise Bank Act.

4. Creation of three departments of government in the fields of post-war planning—Veterans' affairs to handle rehabilitation of service personnel and pensions, reconstruction to promote planning for national development and post-war employment, and social welfare to administer Federal activities in health and social insurance;
5. A revision of the Bank Act.
6. Provision for voting of men and women in the forces.
7. A bill to extend the principle of mutual aid to post-war relief of liberated countries.
8. Approval for Canadian participation in an international organization to maintain peace.
9. A bill to provide war service gratuities for persons who serve in the armed forces and other measures to supplement the existing rehabilitation program.
10. Expansion of research activities
11. New housing legislation.
12. After consultation and agreement with the provinces a National Health Insurance Bill and Provision for a contributory Old Age Pension system on a more generous basis.
13. A bill to place a floor under prices of staple farm products.

The Earl of Athlone read the Speech in the Senate Chamber while members of the House of Commons, grouped at the bar of the Senate, listened closely as he recounted measure after measure certain to occasion long discussion in the House and careful study in committee.

Speech Reviews War.

The speech began with a review of the war, stressing that the winning of the war "clearly remains the first of all objectives" and warning that hostilities may continue for a long time.

Victory could not be counted sure until the German army had been defeated in Europe and the Allied naval forces successfully grappled with the main Japanese fleet. Future operations would involve bitter fighting and heavy losses.

While giving war needs precedence, the ministers were also resolved that Canada should be placed in a position to meet situations foreseen after victory.

The forecast of a measure to extend mutual aid to relief of liberated countries is believed designed to cover Canada's participation in the provision of supplies through United Nations relief and rehabilitation. The Canadian contribution is expected to be about $90,000,000.

The speech stressed the relation of Canada's future prosperity to the expansion of world trade and said discussions with a view to clearing trade channels will be advanced as rapidly as war exigencies permit.

Must Have Enduring Peace.

The government's belief that the time has come for the United Nations to seek means of establishing an enduring peace was stated. The international organization in which it is proposed to participate presumably is that projected at the Moscow conference some time ago of the foreign ministers of Britain, Russia and United States.

While the objective of external policy is world security and general prosperity, the speech stated the objective of post-war domestic policy is "social security and human welfare."

"In the opinion of my ministers, plans for the establishment of a national minimum of social security and human welfare should be advanced as rapidly as possible," it was stated.

Post-war planning in its three divisions of re-establishment of service personnel, economic conversion and reconstruction, and social security produce most of the proposals for specific legislation.

YOU'D NEVER BELIEVE SHE IS 48 . . . .

She's one of the peppiest, happiest-spirited women you ever saw. At the time when most women think life is passing them by—she's right in the midst of things—always ready to go places and do things . . . as popular with the men as girls half her age. To look at her you would never believe she was a day over 38.

How does she do it? She gives the credit to Dr. Williams Pink Pills . . . for well she knows how important it is to have plenty of rich, red blood during those years when so many women are "pulled down" in health by bodily changes.

If you feel "always tired", if you look pale and dragged out, if you are suffering from a feeling of nervous exhaustion, are jittery and irritable, you may be paying the price of poor blood make-up. Don't wait—start Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. Kellogg's All-Bran Muffins

2 tablespoons shortening
¼ cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup Kellogg's All-Bran
¾ cup milk
1 cup sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
2½ teaspoons baking powder

Blend shortening and sugar thoroughly; add egg and beat well. Stir in All-Bran and milk; let soak until most of moisture is taken up. Sift flour with salt and baking powder. Add to first mixture and stir only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin pans two-thirds full and bake in moderately hot oven (400°F.) about 30 minutes. Yield: 8 large muffins.

Recommend Milk Producers To Be Licenced

Toronto, Jan. 27 — (CP) — Recommendations that the Ontario Milk Control Act be amended to provide for the licencing of milk producers and the collection of licence fees was included in decisions reached by the Ontario Agricultural Commission of inquiry. A summary of proceedings was issued today by the Agriculture Department.

Amount of the licence fees would be determined by local producers' associations for their respective markets, the Commission agreed, and the money collected paid over by the distributors and processors to the provincial body representative of the milk producers, which would be responsible for remitting the proper share to the local producer associations.

The Commission's recommendation ruled that the associations use the monies "for their legitimate expenses and for the maintenance of services of benefit to the producers." Such services would not include the creation of capital funds to be used for business enterprises.

A proposed scheme for hog marketing under the Farm Products Control Act was not endorsed. The Commission recommended that the plan be redrafted by its sponsors, the Ontario Hog Producers' Association, to meet the Commission's objections that:

1. It proposes to regulate the marketing of hogs but does not set forth any specific regulations for that purpose.
2. It proposes to establish prices for live hogs and hog carcasses by negotiation, although the effective control of prices for hogs is largely beyond the powers of action of a provincial body.
3. The proposal fails to effect such control of prices as rests within the powers of a provincial body by failure to provide specific regulations for directing the movement of hogs to market.

The Commission will begin another week's session here Feb. 14. In the meantime its livestock committee is sitting today at Clinton, tomorrow at Chatham and Saturday at London.

Text of Throne Speech

Ottawa, Jan. 27. (CP)—Following is the text of the Speech from the Throne read today to members of the House of Commons and the Senate opening the 1944 session of Parliament:

Honorable Members of the Senate:
Members of House of Commons:

The war is now in its fifth year. The coming months will witness decisive battles. They will demand a supreme effort on the part of all nations united in the cause of freedom.

It is true that the military situation is better than it was a year ago, and that co-operation among the United Nations is closer than at any time in the past. At Washington, at Quebec, at Moscow, at Cairo and at Teheran, military plans for the coming campaigns were fully co-ordinated.. Foundations were also laid for a united approach to the problems of transition from war to peace.

The improved military situation does not, however, necessarily mean an early end of the war. Hostilities may continue for a long time in Europe, as well as in the Far East. The German army is still very strong. There are no indications of any general deterioration of German resistance. Germany herself is protected by a vast outwork of conquered territory. She has been fortifying herself against invasion since the beginning of the war.

Must Defeat Germany.

Until the German army has been defeated, the Allied Nations cannot count upon an assured victory in Europe. Until the Allied naval forces have grappled successfully with the main Japanese fleet there can be no assurance of an end to the war against Japan. Future operations will involve bitter fighting and heavy losses.

The winning of the war clearly remains the first of all objectives. My ministers believe it is their duty to see that Canada's war effort is firmly maintained until the enemy is defeated in Europe and in Asia. They believe the governments primary task, and the primary duty of the Canadian people, is to concentrate on the prosecution of the war.

Our fighting men must be assured that there will be no diversion from this vital task and no relaxation of Canada's war effort. Till the war is won, the policies of my government will continue to be shaped to that end.

Armed Forces Add Lustre.

Our armed forces at sea, on land and in the air have added lustre to the name of Canada. The armed might of the United Nations has been strengthened by Canadian mutual aid. In the combined Allied assault upon the Nazi fortress, all branches of the armed forces will have still heavier responsibilities.

While giving to the needs of the war precedence over all else, my ministers are resolved that, so far as the future can be foreseen, Discussions will be advanced as meet the difficult situations which will have to be faced when victory is won.

As occupied countries are liberated from the enemy, it will be necessary to provide for the relief of destitute populations, and for the rehabilitation of devastated areas in those countries which have borne the brunt of the terror and destruction of war. A measure to extend the principle of mutual aid so as to provide for relief, as well as for materials of war, will be submitted for your approval.

Export Markets Essential.

Canada's prosperity and the well-being of her people are bound up with the restoration and expansion of world trade. Export markets are essential to the efficient employment of vast numbers of Canadians. Larger imports are needed to raise the standard of living. In accordance with the principles of the Atlantic Charter, the arrangements required to clear the channels of trade and promote the flow of goods among all nations after the war are being explored with other countries. Discussions will be advanced as rapidly as the exigencies of war will permit.

Should Seek Unity

The revival of world trade and prosperity after the war will depend upon the speedy recovery of the occupied countries. During the period of transition, the provision of international relief will help to maintain full employment of Canadian manpower and resources.

My ministers believe that the time has come when all the nations now united in the common purpose of winning the war should seek unitedly to ensure an enduring peace. The dangers of future aggression can be removed, and world security attained, only by a general international organization of peace-loving nations. You will accordingly be invited to approve of Canadian participation in the establishment of an international organization to further national security through international co-operation.

While the post-war objective of our external policy is world security and general prosperity, the post-war objective of our domestic policy is social security and human welfare.

In the opinion of my ministers plans for the establishment of a national minimum of social security and human welfare should be advanced as rapidly as possible. Such a national minimum contemplates useful employment for all who are willing to work; standards of nutrition and housing adequate to ensure the health of the whole population and social insurance against privation resulting from unemployment, from accident, from the death of the bread-winner, from ill-health and from old age.

Three Broad Fields

Post-war planning falls naturally into three broad fields: Preparation for the demobilization, rehabilitation and re-establishment in civil life of the men and women in the Armed Forces; the reconversion of the economic life of the Nation from a war-time to a peace-time basis, and its reconstruction in a manner which will provide opportunities for useful employment for all who are willing and able to work; and the provision of insurance against major economic and social hazards.

A broad program has already been developed for the re-establishment of veterans of the present war, and for the care of disabled veterans and the dependents of our fighting men and merchant seamen. You will be asked to approve a measure to provide war service gratuities for all who have served in the Armed Forces, and also measures to supplement the existing rehabilitation program.

The maintenance of full employment will require, in the period of transition from war to peace, a rapid and efficient conversion of war industries, the enlargement of markets at home and abroad, intensified research into new uses of our natural resources, program of national and regional development including housing and community planning.

Use For Plants Being Sought

Suitable peace-time uses for war plants are being sought, and plans are being made for their speedy conversion. To assist in the conversion of war plants and in the development of small and medium-scale industrial enterprises, the provision of additional credit facilities, for both fixed and working capital, will be required. To meet this need, your approval will be sought for the establishment of an industrial development bank as a subsidiary of the Bank of Canada. Expenditures on developmental work, in preparation for the transition of industry from war to peace, will be encouraged by suitable tax modifications.

To assist in developing post-war export markets for primary and secondary industries, a measure will be submitted to provide for the insurance or guarantee of export credits, and steps are being taken to expand the Trade Commissioner Service Abroad.

House Legislation Coming.

Provision will be made to expand research activities.

A measure to amend and supplement existing housing legislation will be introduced.

A considerable measure of Social Security is already provided under Federal and Provincial Legislation, but the working out of a comprehensive national scheme, in which federal and provincial activities will be integrated and which will include nation-wide Health Insurance, will require further consultation and close co-operation with the provinces. My ministers will welcome opportunities for such consultation.

Health Insurance Plan

When suitable agreements are reached with the provinces, my ministers will be prepared to recommend measures to provide for Federal assistance in a nation-wide system of health insurance, and for a national scheme of contributory old age pensions on a more generous basis than that at present in operation.

The family and the home are the foundation of national life. To aid in ensuring a minimum of well-being to the children of the nation and to help gain for them a closer approach to equality of opportunity in the battle of life, you will be asked to approve a measure making provision for family allowances.

My ministers believe that the time is rapidly approaching when a minister of the Crown should be responsible for each of the three broad fields of post-war planning. You will accordingly be asked to approve the establishment of the following departments of government:

(1) A department of veterans' affairs to have charge of the rehabilitation and re-establishment of members of the armed forces, and the administration of veterans' pensions and allowances;

(2) A department of reconstruction to promote and co-ordinate planning for national development and post-war employment; and

(3) A department of social welfare to organize and to assist in administering activities of the Federal government in the fields of health and social insurance.

Must Prevent Inflation.

Underlying efforts for the winning of the war and the solution of post-war problems is the necessity of preventing the inflationary effects of war. My ministers believe that to prevent inflation and to safeguard a basic standard of living it remains necessary to maintain the price ceiling and stabilization of wages and salaries.

To ensure economic stability for agriculture, you will be asked to make provision for a price floor for staple farm products.

Among other matters to which your attention will be directed will be the revision of the Bank Act, and the provision of adequate facilities for the exercise of the franchise by men and women serving in the armed forces.

Members of the House of Commons:

You will be asked to make financial provision for the effective prosecution of the war and for other necessary services.

Praises Armed Forces.

Honorable members of the Senate:

Members of the House of Commons:

I express, I know, the thoughts of all Canada when I say with what pride and admiration we have followed the exploits of our armed forces. At sea, on land and in the air, the fighting men of Canada, wherever they have served, have displayed the highest courage, endurance and skill. I give them your assurance that their lives are more precious to their country than all else, and that it is our supreme aim to ensure their early and victorious return to their homeland.

As I invite your consideration of the very difficult problems which will engage your attention in this momentous year, I pray that Divine Providence may guide and bless your deliberations.

Assembly Line Farmer Has 20,000 Acre Truck Farm That Ranks as Big Business

Seabrook Farms in New Jersey Operate 150 Tractors and 415 Trucks and Cars and at Peak Season Have 7,500 Workers on Farm and Packing Plant

The huge operations of Farmer C. F. Seabrook, whose 20,000 acre farm in New Jersey is a marvel of organization, are described in an article by Mona Gardner in "Coronet" Magazine, and reproduced herewith in condensed form:

Word went through the big four-storey New Jersey packing house that the steam plant had failed. The long line of workers looked at each other and at the tons of fresh green asparagus ready for processing. On the receiving platforms tons more were being unloaded. "Phone C.F.," someone suggested:

C. F., the boss, was out in Utah. What could he do at that distance? But the call was put through in desperation. It didn't last three minutes. The directions that came across the wire were short. Within an hour two Jersey Central locomotives were at the packing-plant siding, hooked up to the steam pipes in the plant. The crop was saved.

This is a sample of the direct thinking which has placed a blue-eyed, ruddy-skinned farmer named C. F. Seabrook at the head of the world's largest truck-farming enterprise. It has turned his former 60,-acre New Jersey farm into a lush vegetable bowl of 20,000 acres. It has built a vast dehydrating and canning plant, and a freezing plant which is the largest in the world.

Seabrook Farms, in the flat, sandy stretches of southern New Jersey are probably the most highly mechanized farms in the country. A fleet of 150 tractors does the planting, cultivating and fertilizer drilling, while a fleet of 515 trucks and service cars rush the continuous eight-month-long harvest to the big central processing plant. Four airplanes, in four minutes, dust and spray as many acres. Nineteen artesian wells feed miles of portable overhead pipe lines, to supply man-made rain. Some 12,000,000 bees insure pollination and, as a by-product, add to cash totals with their honey. One hundred and twenty mechanical viners pick and shell peas and lima beans, while a dozen refrigerated trucks carry the frozen pack to railway lines; or to the Seabrook cold-storage warehouse, which isn't crowded until the 20,000,000-pound mark is reached. Shifts run around the clock at the height of the season, with huge floodlights for night work.

During peak months, Seabrook Farms and the packing plant employ as many as 7,500 workers, working under a closed shop agreement with the AFL. This makes Seabrook the first big farm to unionize in this country. The Seabrooks also have group life and hospital insurance plans, and their own school for the children of workers. In addition to the state curricula in the school, C. F. has seen to it that, even in primary grades, children learn the whole intricate story of plant life.

Permanent workers are housed in modernized farmhouses, at rentals of from $4 to $17 a month. Big new glass-and-stone dormitories, each unit housing 750, are under construction for the migratory workers. These quarters will be rent free. There is a piper-music system in the plant; and during the harvest season a free cafeteria is operated for all workers.

From March 10, when the early peas are planted, until the last spinach leaf is plucked in December, there is never more than two days' deviation from the operational chart made out the year before. A million pounds of green peas pass through the plant in 24 hours during the season's peak. When the pea season is over, the machinery is easily converted for lima beans, or spinach or any of 11 other crops. A striking feature about the spinach handling is the prodigal use of water—40 gallons for every pound of leaves to be sure there is no soil left on them. The stainless-steel conveyor buckets are sterilized in a steam tunnel after each round of the conveyor loop. In addition, hourly spot tests are taken by a corps of bacteriologists to check bacteria count.

Until Uncle Sam became the largest customer a year ago, half the output appeared under the Birds Eye brand. Seabrook still supplies 90 per cent of Birds Eye lima beans. Seabrook volume has climbed from 40,000,000 pounds of processed vegetables in 1940 to more than 80,000,000 pounds in 1943.

Seabrook, in the 60's now, is the son of a farmer. Although his formal education stopped at the third grade, he put himself through the equivalent of college majors in botany, agriculture and engineering—largely by the trial-and-error method in his own fields and experimental greenhouse. By 1920 he was shipping fresh vegetables to New York by the dozen-carload lots. But the instability of the fresh vegetable market seemed like too much of a gamble to him. He sold out, and went into road building—in New York State and later in the U.S.S.R. Returning from Russia in 1929, he found that the people who'd bought him out were flirting with insolvency, and he bought the tottering business back. He and his three vice-presidents—all sons—showed a profit the first year. The next year they began experimenting with quick freezing.

Specific treatments for each kind of land on the farms have been worked out by dividing the entire area into five-acre units. Chemical and commercial fertilizers are used by the carload, and 1000 head of Hereford steers help out in this line. Brought in from western ranches as calves weighing 200 to 300 pounds, they are fed the vines from pea and bean harvests, along with cornstalks, until they become prime beef around 1200 pounds. Three economic ends are thus served: fertilizer, disposal of refuse vines, and meat for a beef-hungry market.

Some 500 other farmers have yearly contracts with Seabrook, selling their entire output at a fixed price. They have access to all Seabrook research, seeds, insecticides, fertilizers, and may secure the airplane service for dusting and spraying.

C.F. is still absorted in anything that grows. In six big greenhouses, he tries out every new kind of seed he can get his hands on. Last year the greenhouses bulged with 15,000,000 tomato seedlings of a new strain. He liked their looks and ordered them sold to neighboring farmers.

Ask C.F. what his greatest headache in this vast food business is, and he says right off: "Weather—the same headache all farmers have. It's always too cold or too hot, too dry or too much rain."

But before you have time to feel sorry, you hear the multiple beat of the big viners and the rumble of refrigerating machinery: you see the mist from sprinklers sifting in the window—and you realize Farmer Seabrook has gone a long way in meeting the challenge of weather.

Girls of R.C.A.F. Live Comfortably In English Homes

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 27 — (CP) — Some Canadian girls in England are getting a very intimate acquaintance with the English way of life. Take the members of the R.C.A.F. (Women's Division) for example.

Wids posted in London don't live in barracks, they live however they want, in flats, in boarding houses, in clubs. They struggle with the same problems of apartment hunting and ration buying civilians do. They're learning to cook without butter and eggs and to stay alive in mid-winter without central heating.

It's living the hard way, but they love it, and four air force girls set out to prove to a Canadian Press reporter that they live better than servicewomen in barracks.

Sgt. Myrtle Buchan of Edmonton, Cpl. Pat Letcher of Northport, N.S., Cpl. Eileen Moore of Saskatoon and LAW. Alice Dalgleish of Vancouver have a flat in Putney, that A.S.C. Margaret Long of Winnipeg, who went with me, said was fairly typical.

It's a long ride from the centre of London, but their rent is only the equivalent of $24 a week for five rooms and bath, a bargain in this city of sky-high rents. Myrtle was cooking dinner when we arrived and Alice took us on a tour of the flat.

The large, pretty living room has bright chintz furniture and pastel drapes. A coal fire burned in the grate — there is no central heating —and on the mantle and the scattering of small antique tables were attractive ornaments, most of them very good china.

The largest bedroom was furnished with pretty white furniture and colorful spreads and curtain. Two girls slept here and one in each of the smaller rooms.

Dinner is Served

Buck, as they call Myrtle, called that dinner was ready in the combined dining-room kitchen. It was an attractive room too, with the same gracious furniture, the same pretty watercolors on the walls and a fire in the fireplace. The kitchen part of the room, cupboards, sink and small stove were hidden behind a screen.

Dinner was celery stuffed with cheese, steak, carrots, turnips, potatoes, stewed dried peaches and tarts. It was one of the best-cooked meals I've eaten in England — proving that it isn't the food itself that tastes peculiar, it's the way it seems to be cooked in England.

Every Sunday the girls have full house. Their servicemen friends usually come for dinner. "The boys sure love to taste Canadian cooking," said Eileen.

"We always eat well — we never economize on food," said Alice, "but Sunday's our big day. Then we cook roasts — when we can get them — and make pies and cakes. The boys say it means a lot to them coming here for Sunday dinner. They think it's wonderful to come to a home after barracks.

At first the girls found the food coupons the headache everyone finds them.

"But the shopkeepers were grand to us," said Alice. "They helped us plan so we could get some of everything. And they often keep special things for us — like peanut butter, when they have it."

Paltza was a member of the Nazi party's old guard. He had been named chief of propaganda in East Prussia in 1934 and was transferred to the Ukraine, when the Germns captured Kiev.

A MIXED CREW

San Francisco, Jan. 27 —(AP)— Airmen from all the world make the Mitchell bomber unit of the Netherlands East Indies Army Air Force one of the most unusual in Australia, Aneta, Netherlands News Agency, reported from the Southwest Pacific today. For example, one bomber crew has a Holland-born navigator, Chinese gunner, Sumatran co-pilot and Japanese radioman.

Dairy Farmers Ask Widening of Markets For Canadian Cheese

The following is a resolution introduced by S. L. Joss of this city to the annual meeting of the Dairy Farmers of Canada which is being held this week at the Chateau Frontenac, Quebec City.

WHEREAS 80 to 85 per cent of our total Canadian dairy exports is cheese,

AND WHEREAS the price received for exports has an important bearing on the price of our total production of dairy products,

AND WHEREAS our cheese, because of its high quality, is our most profitable dairy product for export,

AND WHEREAS we have been to a lagre extent deprived of the United States market for cheese because of that country's tariff of 4 cents per pound, or 25 per cent ad valorum,

AND WHEREAS the demand for our cheese in the United States is such that a free market to that country would be of tremendous financial value to the Canadian Dairy Industry.

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the Dairy Farmers of Canada press the Dominion Government to make every effort to widen our markets for cheese, with particular attention toward obtaining free entry for our cheese into the United States.

The resolution was endorsed by the meeting.

BUFFALO BISONS DEFEAT REDS; BARONS WIN

Cleveland Lengthens Lead in American League to Six Points

SMART CONTESTS

(By The Canadian Press.)

Cleveland Barons strengthened their lead in first place in the American Hockey League to six points last night by defeating Pittsburgh Hornets 5-3, their eighth game without a loss. Buffalo Bisons gained a 3-2 win over Providence Reds in the only other scheduled league game.

Hershey Bears are in second place with a total of 45 points, and the Bisons hold third position with 38 points.

Les Cunningham and Tommy Burlington each rifled two goals in the final period last night for Cleveland's 5-3 victory. During the first two periods Wendell Jamieson, Lloyd Roubell and Bob Gracie had given the Hornets goals while Dick Adolph was getting one for Barons.

Freddie Hunt scored the winning tally for Buffalo in the third period. Harold Cooper bagged the first counter of the night at 17.14 in the second period. Tony Demers added the second for Reds little more than a minute later. Larry Thibeault and Walter Atanas tied the count for Bisons in the third period before Hunt came through with the winning tally.

TRUNDLING STARS MEET IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Jan. 27 (AP)—The heaviest trundling of the 1943-44 bowling season gets underway in Chicago this weekend when a galaxy of Kegling stars, both men and women, begins firing in individual classic tournaments for big league money.

The many prizes total more than $35,000 and bowling's richest tournament the 31st renewal of the Petersen classic, is the major event. Some 1,000 bowlers of the record 1,280 entered will take the lanes beginning Saturday and continuing through Feb. 6.

BUDDY BAER WILL RETIRE

West Balmy Beach, Fla. Jan. 27 —Buddy Baer who once dreamed of annexing the world's heavyweight boxing title, looks forward now to retirement on a cattle ranch.

A staff sergeant in the army's physical training program, Buddy said today he would never fight again. He is undergoing treatment for a neck injury resulting from an automobile accident in 1941. Max Baer's kid brother declared he was salting away all his army pay, and the income from a cocktail lounge he operates in California toward that home on the range when the war is over.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Sport Writer

New York, Jan. 27 — (AP) — Guessing game ... Branch Rickey, cheerfully admitting he sometimes talks too much, hints that in the next few days the Dodgers may lose a man "more vital to Brooklyn than Slats Marion was to the Cardinals." ...The only Dodger we could put in that classification would be Mickey Owen, but the Brahmin of Borough Hall may have other ideas about values...Ensign Ollie Hunter, the best two-miler available since Greg Rice has become a seafarin' man, considers the mile the most spectacular foot race and would like to try it — especially if he could win the "Hunter Mile" at Boston...

They Entered a Sleeper:

Here's what became of the mile relay team from the navy midshipmen's school at Columbia U. in the Metropolitan A.A.U. track meet last Saturday...After warming up and giving officials his team's running order, Roy Hollander, onetime North Carolina State athlete who was "captain" of the foursome, retired to the dressing room for a rest...The first three runners were well up in the race, but when the third man finished his leg, there was no one to take the baton . . . still wondering what had become of Hollander, the midshipmen searched the locker room and found Roy sound asleep.

YANK OUTFIELD SHUFFLED AGAIN BY ARMY ORDERS

Roy Weatherly Reclassified 1-A and McCarthy Down to Three Men

LEVY JOINS TEAM

New York, Jan. 27 — (AP)—Any resemblance between the New York Yankees outfield of 1944 and the Keller-DiMaggio-Henrich picket line is going to be purely coincidental, reports indicate.

With Roy Weatherly reclassified 1-A and probably unavailable for the centrefield job, manager Joe McCarthy is down to Johnny Lindell, Bud Metheny, Tuck Stainback and a couple of rookies from Newark and Kansas City.

One of the rookies, big Ed Levy from Newark, is a first baseman by trade but played in the garden for the Bears last year.

Add to that situation the report from Augusta, Ga., that Bill Johnson is due to come before his draft board in the near future, possibly Feb. 7, and you can see another change in the making.

If Johnson goes into service or decides to stay at his job with the fire department at Camp Gordon, the Yanks will lose one of the outstanding young players in the game. Johnson was used at third base last year and performed capably at the hot corner through the pennant drive and the world series.

Don Savage, a Newark graduate, may be in line for either third base or the outfield depending upon the outcome of the Johnson and Weatherly situations.

Kentucky Racing Expected To Attract Best U.S. Stables

By The Canadian Press

With the value of stakes generally increased and with a regrouping of important races immediately before and after Derby Day, Kentucky racing is expected to attract the best stables in the United States for the season which opens April 15 with a 10-day Keeneland meeting. The latter had been transferred from Lexington to Churchill Downs for a second time, it was announced last night at Louisville, Ky.

The 70th running of the Kentucky Derby is scheduled for Saturday, May 6, and the total purse is the usual $75,000, while the Bluegrass Stakes, $10,000 added, feature in the Keeneland program, is dated April 26.

Vice-president William O. DeWitt of the St. Louis Browns was quoted yesterday at New York as saying the major leagues should make a formal decision before the opening of spring training, on whether or not they should operate during the 1944 season because of the player shortage.

PO. Arthur S. Ross, son of the general manager of the Boston Bruins, was reported last night from England as having shot down two Dornier 217 bombers while on operations as pilot of a Typhoon in an R.A.F. fighter unit. Prior to enlistment, Ross, Jr., was a goalkeeper with the team of Lower Canada College, Montreal.

First-baseman Mickey Rocco of the Cleveland Indians yesterday was classified 1-A by the draft board at St. Paul, Minn., and is scheduled to be inducted into the army in March if he passes his medical examination.

Provision for the post-war construction of a national sports Hall of Fame in Washington was made yesterday by the Federal Security Agency's Committee, the financing to be done through sports activities without assistance from the government. Included in proposed exhibits would be the equipment and uniforms used by famous athletes.

With some of the biggest races yet to come including the $15,000 Louisiana Derby Feb. 12 and the $25,000 New Orleans Handicap, fair grounds officials at New Orleans yesterday predicted mutuel betting would exceed last year's total. During the 10-day period ended Jan. 22, patrons wagered $1,471,008.

Baseball's only pitcher of two successive no-hit, no-run games, Johnny Vander Meer of the Cincinnati Reds is reporting at Newark, N.J., today for induction into the U.S. Army although previously classified 4-F because of a stomach disorder.

Sport fans from 11 Pennsylvania counties purchased war bonds valued at $1,111,750 to see the Boston Bruins, of the National Hockey League, defeat the Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League 2-1 in an exhibition game at Hershey last night. About 6,000 attended and used their war bonds as admission tickets.

The Bears, leaders of the eastern division of the American League, held a slender one goal lead until the last half of the final period when the Bruins scored twice in two minutes to win.

When several thousand wrestling fans couldn't gain entrance to the Arena at Boston last night, they started in to wreck the place until police gained control of the situation. The principal attraction was Sgt. Joe Louis, heavyweight boxing champion, who refereed the grunt-and-groan exhibition.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

BY CHARLIE EDWARDS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, Jan. 27 — (CP) — Football fans hope the good burghers of Hamilton take good care of the Grey Cup until after the war because it seems certain the old mug will stay in that city until the armed forces clean up more pressing business.

The headquarters order barring Army-Air Force participation in any championship sport and the Navy's decision to permit its members no competition beyond provincial boundaries almost certainly suspends the East-West football final for the duration.

Only three senior football teams operated in the west last autumn and all three depended almost entirely on service personnel. They won't be able to collect enough football material to make a rug this year.

In the Quebec Union the three services were represented along with McGill University and Verdun's civilian Grads. They could continue to operate without air force and army. Only team definitely ruled out of the Ontario Union is Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes but Toronto Navy will be able to play only within the Union.

The other four O.R.F.U. clubs — Hamilton Wildcats, Toronto Indians, Toronto Balmy Beach and Ottawa Combines — were so liberally studded with Army and Air Force players they will be hard hit. Ottawa was almost entirely composed of servicemen without whom it is unlikely the Combines will be able to operate.

Toronto could probably field one, maybe two, fairly strong teams. Hamilton could dig up a passable contender. Maybe senior football in Canada this year will be confined to one interprovincial circuit with Hamilton-Toronto-Montreal teams.

The barring of the Dominion championship Patricia Bay R.C.A.F. Gremlins from the interprovincial basketball competition they raced through so easily last spring presents a new problem. The Canadian Basketball Association has ruled United States service teams stationed in Edmonton will be eligible for the play-offs. It is claimed the U.S. Engineers of the Edmonton city league are outstanding challengers for the Canadian title. But it doesn't seem fair that Canadian service teams should be barred from competing for their own national title which might thus be thrust with little contest into the laps of representatives of another nation, also comprising service personnel.

That, friends, is a problem for the C.B.A. as well as defence headquarters to consider.

REPORTER FINED

Plymouth, England, Jan. 27—(CP Cable) — Thomas Duncan Webb, 27, a London Daily Express reporter, charged with communicating information concerning ship movements contrary to defence regulations, was convicted and fined £50 yesterday after the court decided the guilt arose from "carelessness rather than intent."

TO PAY DISCHARGED MEN

Washington, Jan. 27—(CP)—The United States Congress voted yesterday a $3,000,000,000 pot of gold for veterans of this war, to be paid out in amounts ranging from $100 to $300 each upon honorable discharge.

NO NEW WHISKY

Washington, Jan. 27—(CP)—No new whisky can be distilled in the United States this year, the War Production Board said yesterday, making previous reports to that effect final and official. Donald M. Nelson, W.P.B. chairman, said war needs will absorb the full output of distilling plants.

WROTE FOR CHILDREN

Sawrey, England—(CP)—Beatrix Potter, one of Britain's most popular authors of books for children, died at her home here after a short illness. Besides writing, she illustrated her books and also designed Queen Mary's Christmas cards.

ST. CATHARINES ADDS TO LEAD IN SENIOR RACE

Saints Nick Toronto Navy 5-4 to Go Three Points Up on Hamilton

GENERALS WIN

(By The Canadian Press)

St. Catharines Saints strengthened their clutch on first place in the Senior Ontario Hockey Association race last night by holding off Toronto Navy 5-4 in a fixture on St. Catharines ice, thus giving them a three-point advantage over the current runners-up, Hamilton Majors, with whom they clash Friday night.

The Tars scored the only tally of the initial period through Snider but did not find the net again until well on in the third frame when Joe Lukkay, Thompson and Livingstone whipped in the final counters. The tying goal was denied them, however. Star scorer for the Saints was Umbo Concessi who counted two, Red Goble, Red Reynolds and Blink Bellinger getting the rest.

In the junior "A" series, Oshawa Generals, away out in front in Group 1, ran up a cricket score, 21-3, on the Stratford Kroehlers at Oshawa to establish the season's game total. Generals had it 7-0 in the second period before Thompson tallied the visitors' first and the period ended 12-1. Sandwiched in the third-period showers were counters by Tindal and Rohfritsch for Stratford. Smith headed the Oshawa parade with no less than nine goals; Ezinicki and Chenier had four each; Love, two, and Curry and Porter one each.

At Toronto, the two local teams, Marlboros and Young Rangers staged nip-and-tuck affairs, the Dukes winning out 6-5. McNabney and James each registered two counters for the victors, with Mackenzie and Lawlor getting one apiece. Dewsbury was the two-times scorer for Rangers, the others being divided by McQueston, Gagnon and Malone.

MONTREAL GAME WITH CANADIENS VITAL FOR LEAFS

Toronto Needs Contest to Keep Ahead of Hard-Pressing Wings

HAWKS, RANGERS PLAY

(By The Canadian Press)

The Montreal Forum already has the "standing room only" sign up for tonight's tilt between the Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs. While the two top teams of the National Hockey League are clashing at Montreal the two bottom teams—Chicago and New York Rangers—are meeting at Chicago. And no matter what happens all four will be in the same positions tomorrow mornign.

Canadiens have a walloping 15-point margin over Leafs and at the other end of the table Chicago is 12 points ahead of the luckless Rangers.

The game at Montreal however is vital for the Leafs, now only half a game in front of the surging Red Wings. The Wings, who haven't suffered a loss in their last eight starts, are idle until Saturday when they entertain Boston. That game incidentally should see the veteran Syd Howe attain the N.H.L.'s coveted 200-goal mark. Howe, the biggest goal--producer in Detroit history, got his 199th when the Wings beat Boston Tuesday.

Leafs, as usual on mid-week road trips, will be without O'Neil and Jackie McLean.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 27 —(CP)— A combination of young Canadians and ice rink usually works itself out into a game of hockey, no matter where the locale or what the conditions.

All of which leads up to word from Sweden that a few Canadian airmen, interned there after crash landings and things, banded together with some Royal Air Force lads and a couple of Swedish players—and were trounced 7-0 by an all-Swedish team.

However, it wasn't as bad as it sounds. The air team, captained by FO. Peter Davies of Montreal, was handicapped through illness of some of the Canadians and through lack of training.

The game was played at Falum, near where the airmen are interned, and attracted a mob of Swedish sports writers who agreed that in another month and with a full team, the airmen would be "dangerous for any club in Sweden."

When two Royal Air Force stations clashed in a rugger trophy competition each team boasted one Canadian.

On one side was Lieut. Ian Bell-Irvine of Vancouver, nephew of Group Capt. Bell-Irvine, commanding officer at the R.C.A.F. station at Trenton Ont. Member of the Seaforth Highlanders. Bell-Irvine is attached to the air station as liaison officer. He learned rugger on Canada's west coast.

The other team featured Wing Cmdr. Paul Davoud, D.F.C., Kingston, Ont., all-round athlete who commands a Canadian night-fighter squadron based on an R.A.F. station.

Incidentally, Bell-Irvine's team emerged 11-3 victors.

PO. Bob Pentland dropped his hockey stick after starring in a game, jumped into his Spitfire for a jaunt over France and disabled a park containing German motor transport vehicles. He also ignited a number of oil drums before wheeling for home to discuss the ice game.

Member of the Canadian Wolf Squadron, Pentland was on the brink of a professional hockey career with New York Rangers when he enlisted.

Mosquito Intruders maintained top place in the R.C.A.F. four-team Southern Hockey League, when, led by Cpl. L. D. Prentice of Regina, they whipped a Liberator team 9-3. Setting a dizzy pace that all but shifted opposing defencemen out of the rink, Prentice scored four times in giving the best solo display of the season.

Good Business

Two magistrates were summoned for exceeding the speed limit. When they arrived at court there were no other magistrates present, so they decided to try each other. Number one went on the Bench and the case proceeded.

"You are charged with exceeding the speed limit. Do you plead guilty or not guilty?"

"Guilty!"

"You will be fined five shillings."

They then changed places and again the plea was "guilty."

"H'm," was the response. "These cases are becoming far too common. This is the second we have had this morning. You will be fined 30 shillings."

(Looking ahead.)

The building of a civic sports centre to take care of all kinds of games is a project that has been under consideration in Kingston as a post-war scheme. Here is what Bill Walshe has to say about the matter in his Kingston sport column: "Directors of the Kingston Frontenac Army hockey team, about eight in number, who have directed the financing and business of Kingston in senior hockey, met last night and officially ended the season. Efforts were made to carry on after the ban ordered by the army keeping soldiers out of organized play but after repeated requests were ignored for permission to play exhibition games it was decided to drop out of senior play for the season and offer assistance to the Kingston Vics in their O.H.A. junior B play. The season, although stopped at the mid-way mark when reaching the profit stage, was considered a financial success and the best hockey played in Kingston in many years. The season provided evidence that Kingston fans will pay the price for good hockey and emphasized the urgent need for a larger and modern arena. Directors of the hockey executive discussed the building of a civic sports centre as a post-war construction job and inquiries will be made into government plans for building after the war. Leaders of various sports organizations will be interviewed regarding a big civic sports centre that would accommodate hockey, baseball, track and field, tennis, lawn bowling, horse racing and other athletics, with the Fair Grounds as the most practical location."

(This and that.)

It's many a day since a hockey player completed the "hat trick" at the Hume Arena....However, Al Gordon went one better for Belleville Tuesday night when he bagged four goals, which is no mean effort ....The Trenton management were casting slight digs about Gordon being in the R.C.A.F. and playing for a civilian team/...Well, Trenton wouldn't look quite so good without Filion, Lesperance and Lemorre, all of whom are in the armed services. After all the three branches of the service have the same rulings insofar as civilian sport is concerned. ....So, those living in celluloid houses shouldn't throw burning matches, er sumpin'....Both the Belleville Sea and Air Cadets are preparing to enter juvenile teams in the local K-Y puck loop, if and when....The recent mild spell didn't do the open air rink at the Collegiate any good either....And it will take considerable freezing weather before the Hume Arena can permit skating.

(Trexler the hexar.)

Jim Trexler, the Boston Braves' new southpaw won 19 games for Indianapolis last year as against only seven setbacks, is undoubtedly the most superstitious flinger on the roster of any club in the majors. The five-foot-ten-inch portsider drives members of opposing teams nearly frantic by being so deliberate in his movements. Jim waits until all his mates are at their respective posts before he ambles slowly slabward. He always insists on having the ball on the mound before picking it up. Trexler also walks around the pellet before beginning his warm-up tosses.

At the third-base line, Jim invariably pauses to kick up chalk with his right and then looks back to make sure he removed the chalk. He never touches the same place twice. On the bench, this 34-year-old Richmond, Va., lefthander sits in the same spot as long as fortune favors his club, but quickly moves to another spot when trouble threatens.

Jim's superstitions apparently pay dividends, in bolstering his confidence, because he pitched 19 complete games for Indianapolis last season, four of them shutouts, allowed but 49 earned runs and fanned 100 enemy batters.

(Remember when—)

Three years ago tonight sharp-hitting Fave Castilloux of Montreal, holder of the Canadian lightweight boxing championship, gained a unanimous ten-round decision over Tommy Spiegal at Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto. The decision evened matters as Spiegal had gained a previous decision over the champ.

(He should know.)

"You'll never see a major league club on the coast as long as you live, because Milwaukee, Buffalo, Baltimore, Montreal and one or two other clubs in the International League are better baseball towns that any of the 'movie' towns," declared Bob Quinn, president of the Boston Braves, commenting on stories of franchise changes. He labeled as "fantastic" reports involving Pacific Coast cities.

USE PORTABLE FORTS

Near Cassino, Italy, Jan. 27 — (CP — Reuters) — The Germans are using portable forts north of Cassino. Brought by rail from Germany to the Cassino area they were installed on the west bank of the Rapido river under direction of the Todt labor organization. Each accommodates between eight and 10 men. The forts are partly buried in the ground and their strength is such that they can only be reduced by a direct hit from a shell or bomb.

ECONOMIC EVACUATION

New York, Jan. 27 — (CP) — A Polish underground radio station broadcast yesterday that a Nazi economic evacuation of Warsaw is under way and said that German engineers, technicians and politicians were "taking with them whole factories — machinery, administrative staffs and the workers."

ONIONS FROM NIGERIA

Lagos—(CP)—Dehydrated onions from Nigeria may be another food contribution from this colony to Britain. The Ministry of Food is to try them and also Nigerian sundried onions.

The Kibitzer

Unflex those brain muscles, big boy. Don't creak under the load of every bridge problem. Oil up a routine for running in a groove and use it for every hand you play.

You are declarer in the north at a contract of six hearts. The opening lead from east is the spade queen. When south spreads the dummy hand, don't pounce on them. They are not going to fly away.

Study them, first. Look carefully at each suit in turn and say to yourself; "How many tricks am I likely to lose in spades; how many in hearts; how many in diamonds; how many in clubs?"

Continue to say to yourself: "Which of those possible losers is there a chance for me to save? Do I save them by trumping, or establishing suit, or finessing, or some unusual play?"

You can see no losers in spades by trumping the third round of that suit in your north hand. No losers are in diamonds. There is one possible loser in trumps and a loser in clubs.

Can you trump the third round of clubs? Not as they are. Can you sluff it on an established suit? Yes. On the fourth round of diamonds after the trumps are drawn.

Thus, you can see that your contract will be made even if you lose a trump trick to the king. Which tells you to pull out trumps as quickly as possible.

All these mental gymnastics should go on in your noodle before you touch the first card in dummy. If opponents tell you to hurry, mentally tell them where to go.

Follow the routine of planning a hand in advance. When you begin to do such things, you can be had as a bridge player.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Background to Danger"

A Nazi plot to destroy diplomatic relations between Russia and Turkey furnishes the theme for the new Warner Bros. film "Background to Danger," which opens Thursday at the Capitol Theatre.

Based on a novel by Eric Ambler, who wrote "Journey Into Fear," the picture stars George Raft, Sydney Greenstreet, Peter Lorre and Brenda Marshall. "Background to Danger" was directed by Raoul Walsh from the screen play by W. R. Burnett.

"Wild Horse Stampede"

In addition to his prowess as a rider and roper, Ken Maynard is a composer of western songs and a versatile musician, playing the guitar, violin, mandolin, banjo and harmonica. Maynard, featured with Hoot Gibson, comes to the Capitol Theatre Thursday in "Wild Horse Stampede," the exciting Monogram drama of the western frontier.

A funny cartoon and the serial, "Secret Service in Darkest Africa," complete the big double action program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Letter"

W. Somerset Maughan wrote the play, Bette Davis is the star and William Wyler, the director. The film is "The Letter", now at the McCarthy Theatre.

Gripping, in the best Maugham style, the play made record runs on Broadway and on the legitimate stage throughout the world. Its powerful drama smoothly drawn by its writer and scenarists, makes a perfect vehicle for the rare talents of Miss Bette Davis.

Bette Davis, a name now full of magic to those who appreciate the art of acting, plays Leslie, wife of a Singapore plantation owner. Sauve, British Herbert Marshall is her husband.

Native music tempers a balmy night, moonlight throws shadows of palms and rubber plants against the huts of the plantation. Coolies are asleep in hammocks. A shot rings out from the quiet house, followed by another and another. A man staggers from the Crosbie home, slumps on the porch. Leslie stands over him at the door, smoking pistol in her hand.

Leslie tells her story. It is a story for which no jury would convict her. She comes to trial and her aloof gentility, known throughout the British Orient, is commended as fortitude. But behind the cool eyes, the distant expressions, the straight back lies a secret, a secret told in a letter.

Second feature hit on the same program is Santa Fe Trail starring Errol Flynn and Olivia DeHaviland with Ronald Reagan, Raymond Massey and Allan Hale.

AT THE BELLE

"Meet Mr. London"

It will be called an English "Mrs. Miniver" yet it's a more genuine job than the Hollywood best-seller, says Roly Young of the Globe and Mail referring to "Meet Mr. London", now at the Belle Theatre, with the greatest character actor on the British screen, Edward Rigby, also included in the cast are George Robey, Stanley Holloway and Mabel Constanduros.

Funny Side of War.

What happens when a pair of dimwit soldiers are captured by the Japs and try to regain their own lines, forms the hilarious theme of "Rookies in Burma", RKO Radio's newest farce feature starring the comedy duo of Wally Brown and Alan Carney, their second and funniest laugh hit, now on the Belle Theatre screen.

The trouble begins when the two privates, scouting in the Burmese jungle, ar strapped by an enemy squad and taken to their prison camp. There, in company with their sergeant who has also been captured, they are questioned by a Jap captain whose academic English can't understand the intricacies of double-talk.

By the adroit theft of some Jap uniforms and a jeep they manage to get away from the camp, but they are hotly pursued and the ensuing adventures of the trio, soon augmented by picking up a pair of stranded American showgirls, are said to be among the funniest scenes filmed in recent years.

Erford Gage as the sergeant and Joan Barclay and Claire Carleton as the two girls head the support- Hecht playing the part of the Jap captain.

An excellent Pete Smith specialty "Sky Science" completes the program.

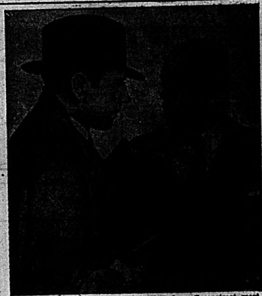
Indian Army

In the two years since I knew the Indian army from the vantage point of G.H.Q., New Delhi (and when for a time also I served with the poorly-supported and ill-starred 11th Indian Division in Malaya), the expansion and re-equipment of the Indian land forces have gone ahead uninterruptedly, H. G. Q. Wales writes in Free World. Last year a peak of recruitment of 75,000 monthly was reached and the two million total must now be in sight. This size could have been exceeded long ago had it not been for priorities in equipment for other Allied war theatres.

Nor would it be accurate to speak of the Indian army as largely untried, except in so far as the same is true of all armies which have not yet had a chance to employ more than a fraction of their strength. In the present war the Fourth Indian Division fought uninterruptedly for three and a half years in African campaigns, took 100,000 prisoners (seven times its own strength) and finished up in Tunisia with the capture of Commander-in-Chief von Arnim.

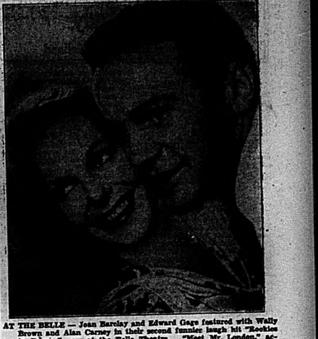
FIRST APPEARANCE IN CIVIES

Toronto, Jan. 27 — (CP) — Sam Factor, Liberal member of the House of Commons for Toronto Spadina, will make his first appearance in civilian clothes in the House since 1940 when it opens its new session today. Mr. Factor, who has been senior organization officer in No. 1 Training Command of the R.C.A.F. with the rank of Squadron Leader, has received his honorable discharge because of ill-health.



AT THE CAPITOL — George Raft and Sydney Greenstreet meet in "Background to Danger," the Capitol Theatre's new adventure thriller now playing. On the same program "Wild Horse Stampede."

AT THE McCARTHY — Bette Davis continues to hold the spotlight as the screen's top dramatic actress, as evidenced by her virtuoso performance in "The Letter," at the McCarthy, along with Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland in "Santa Fe Trail."



AT THE BELLE — Joan Barclay and Edward Gage featured with Wally Brown and Alan Carney in their second funnier laugh hit "Rookies in Burma," now at the Belle Theatre. "Meet Mr. London," acclaimed the English "Mrs. Miniver," is the main feature.

War Jobs Prove Gals No Longer Weaker Sex

By ENID NEMY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Winnipeg, Jan. 27 (CP)—The weaker sex is no longer weak.

They have taken over men's jobs so successfully that the foreman who once scoffed at women replacing men in essential industries now ruefully admit "they've got what it takes."

In the aircraft industry particularly they have disproved the oft-repeated theory that women are not mechanical. They service engines and air frames, do fabric doping and refinishing, and work in instrument, metal and electrical shops. They climb into cockpits and handle switches and throttles, verify oil and air pressures. They drive tractors and tow bars manoeuvring aircraft on and off the field. They steer gas tenders carrying 800 gallons of gas and can gas an aircraft in 2 1-2 minutes. No job is too heavy—wherever there's a man, there's a woman beside him.

Out at one of the largest air observer schools in Manitoba the civilian girls are called "beetles" because they crawl into everything. They are a cross-section of Canada. There's Dorothy Langtved of Winnipeg, a former school teacher, whose only comment on her job is "It's a lot of fun." Cathie Rex of Vancouver might have stepped out of the song, "Rosie the Riveter." Evelyn Nelson from a farm near Saskatoon, works in engine crew. Irene Bolton of Kingston, Ont., does electrical work and wiring.

Praise Patient Men.

The men are wonderful to them, they say. "They have so much patience with us."

At the engineering and maintenance base of one of Canada's leading airlines, women play a major part. Mrs. R M Davis of Regina, a former manicurist, now uses her deft fingers to overhaul and check delicate instrument. Bernice Jones and Rita Cady of Winnipeg work on propellor blades. Pearl Campbell of Yorkton, Sask, plates engine parts. Margaret Lawrence, who once stood behind a deartment store counter, overhauls engines.

Women have also invaded railway yards. They are engine wipers, tank washers jacket cleaners and smoke stack painters. Fern Wilson from Prince Albert Sask, in work-soiled overalls and army boots climbed down from an engine here and confided that "people tell me I look better with a dirty face than a clean one." Mary Shopa of Moose Jaw laughed, "housework will be a picnic compared with this."

There's just one thing that puzzles their foreman. Instead of being lillies of the valley, the girls seem to delight in getting themselves greasy. The greasier the job is, the more vim and vigor they attack it with.

"I guess," concluded one old-timer, shaking his head sadly, "I'll just never understand women."

Kerosene Lanterns

A history of man could be written in terms of his ability to provide himself with light, says The New York Times. No chapter in that history would be more revealing than the story of the service of the humble kerosene lantern. Down through long centuries man has used a lantern. We do not know when he first learned to submerge part of a wick in animal oil and obtain light from the other end. But when kerosene came along man quickly learned to imprison the wick in a globe so that the lantern could be carried. To kerosene, or coal oil, as it is still called in certain areas, we owe much. Uncounted millions of railroad lanterns, with double wire protection around the heavy globe, have followed the railroads as they pushed over mountains and plains toward the land of the setting sun. Today, they guard lives and freight on the nation's 233,670 miles of railroads.

Kerosene lanterns have hung beneath farm wagons on the way to town Saturday night; they have served their turn on the sides of gay carriages and sleighs when city folks drove about the streets in early evening. They have hung as signals on ships, and today stand or hang in sentried rows when a street or road is under repair. They have served for light in man-made caverns deep in the earth. Not too long ago the lamplighter made his daily round along the street, lighting the lamps inside the wrought-iron lanterns that stood on oaken posts.

No one can tell what the sight of a lantern has meant in terms of human happiness. On many a lonely road, in many an isolated home, the sight of a gleaming lantern has given comforting heart glow. It is symbolical that once upon a time a lantern's light gleamed from a church steeple and a man sped off to awaken a new country to its destiny. Lanterns are good companions of man. Giving light to dark places, bringing cheer to human hearts, they help man's feet keep the path that leads upward.

INFANT DEATH RATE HIGH IN SCOTLAND

London, Jan. 27 (CP)—More than 5,000 children who could be saved die in Scotland every year before they reach the age of one year, according to a report brought down by Sir John Boyd Orr, nutrition expert, and a committee which has concluded an investigation of infantile mortality in Scotland.

Indicting bad housing conditions, inadequate feeding and insufficient hospital and medical care for mothers and children, the committee recommended that temporary housing plans be implemented immediately to take people out of the congested areas.

Parliamentarians To Hear Outline Of Legislation

By JAMES McCOOK

Ottawa, Jan. 27 — (CP) — Senate and House of Commons members will hear an outline of legislation plans for the 1944 session today when the Governor-General reads the Speech from the Throne at opening of the fifth session of the 19th Parliament.

The prorogation speech for the fourth session, read yesterday afternoon by Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret, hinted that social security matters would have a prominent place in the legislative program. It mentioned that social security suggestions by parliamentary committees and other groups had been receiving the attention of cabinet ministers.

Sittings in both Houses yesterday were brief.

In the Commons, reports of the Reconstruction and War Expenditures Committees were tabled.

L.D.S. Tremblay (L—Dorchester) will move the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne in the House, with Walter Tucker (L—Rosthern) as seconder and the debate on the reply is expected to start tomorrow.

Four Commoners elected at recent by-elections made their first bows to Speaker J. A. Glen yesterday. They were Fred Rose (LP—Montreal Cartier), Joseph Burton (CCF—Humboldt), William Bryce (CCF—Selkirk) and Armand Choquette (BP—Stanstead).

In the Senate, Senator J. F. Johnston of Bladworth, Sask., took his seat for the first time.

Several House members said they believed the session would last at least six months, and most of them expected it would be the last assembly prior to a general election.

The Reconstruction Committee report and the work of other groups interested in post-war conditions were taken to mean such subjects would have a major share of attention during the new session.

Labor legislation, social security, housing, veterans' re-establishment and similar programs all will come under review.

DEAFNESS IN CHILDREN

Some children are born deaf. In many of these cases there is a history of deafness in the family. In most cases, it is probable that the deafness is due to lack of development of the hearing organs, although injuries to the brain at the time of birth may be responsible in some instances. Not all of these children who are born deaf are stone deaf. That is, they are able to hear a little. If enough hearing is present, such children can be taught how to talk through certain devices which increase the volume of various sounds.

Parents have many questions to ask about the proper way of handling these children. Of course, the proper type of hearing device will aid many of them. Recently a new type of device has been presented which is inexpensive, light and seems to work satisfactorily in most cases. However, in many cases of congenital deafness, that is, deafness present at the time of birth, these devices do not do much good.

Parents want to know whether these young children can be taught lip reading. According to Doctor Douglas Macfarlan of Philadelphia, lip reading should be taught as early as possible, but if there is any hearing at all an effort should be made to use it in every possible way. Parents also may want to know if they should use signs in order to communicate with the deaf child. A certain amount of this sign language is necessary and is helpful but it should not be used to such an extent that it surpasses the child's efforts to use lip reading and hearing.

Of course, parents want to know if the hearing can be brought back. This is not possible in most cases, but nevertheless there is much that can be done to fit the child into a normal life. Since the deaf child does not learn to speak readily, the parents become concerned because they feel that the child is mentally deficient. The child should never be judged as mentally deficient until a careful study has been made to determine if his failure to learn is due to lack of hearing. Many of the children who appear to be subnormal not only are normal, but highly intelligent.

It is not unusual for deaf children to develop behaviour problems. In such cases, the child should be put under the care of a person experienced in child training. If the parents adopt the proper attitude toward the deaf child, many of these behaviour problems, such as lying and stealing, can be avoided.

Stalin Can See the Funny Side, Too

(By PAUL I. WELLMAN in The Kansas City Star).

The world reads of Joseph Stalin the dictator, the ruthless leader of armies, the inscrutable dealer in international politics, and out of this obtains a picture of a grim, hard, unsmiling realist. Photographs of Stalin incline slightly to soften this view, because they reveal crow's feet at the corners of his eyes and an indubitably quizzical quirk to his eyebrows on occasion.

But the notion that the premier of the Soviet republics is anything of a wag or humorist seems strange to most of us. Nevertheless a brief correspondence between Stalin and a Kansas City man, Charles Nutter, new editor of the Kansas City bureau of the Associated Press, is revealing.

Mr. Nutter was in 1936 Associated Press correspondent in Moscow, a difficult assignment even then, because of the difficulty of obtaining news from the Russian government.

In the latter summer of 1936 foreign newspapers began to comment upon the fact that nothing had been heard concerning Stalin for several weeks. Next the rumor began to circulate that the Russian leader was ill. And next it reached the point where the story went around that Stalin was dead.

Nutter did not believe the premier was dead. But he felt it was his duty to find out. Other correspondents were of course, on the trail of the story, employing every indirect method of trying to find out.

Nutter, a product of the middle west, had learned the direct approach and he believed it would work in Moscow. So he sat down and wrote a letter addressed to Stalin himself, in which he bluntly asked: "Are you dead?" He took this down and handed it directly in at the entrance to the Kremlin.

He did not have to wait long for his answer. Almost at once it came—written on unengraved paper, but signed with the easily recognized firm signature of Stalin. The letter was in Russian. Translated it read:

"Mr. Charles P. Nutter, chief of the Associated Press bureau, Moscow:

"Dear Sir: I know from the reports of the foreign news that I long ago abandoned this sinful world and moved into the other world.

"As one cannot doubt such foreign press dispatches unless he wants to be expelled from the list of civilized people, I request you to believe them and don't disturb me in the calm of the other world. With respect. J. STALIN."

CHAPTER 13

Darnley followed him, rather puzzled at both his manner and his words. He led her into a small, quite unbelievable, formal garden, hundreds of feet above the thoroughfares of New York and motioned with his hand to a bench.

"Every man," Chico said abruptly, "has a right to try for happiness. I have not been happy. I have been terribly lonely."

She stretched out her hand impulsively and touched his arm. "I'm sorry Chico."

"It isn't wrong, is it, to try for contentment?"

"Why, no."

"You could give it to me, Darnley. Contentment, happiness, everything I hunger for. It was to tell you this that I brought you here. I feel I have come to know you very well. You have to offer everything that a man could desire to make him happy. Not your beauty alone, but charm, personality, intelligence—and, I am quite certain, character."

"Why, Chico!" she exclaimed. "These things are very sweet to hear—"

"I am a cautious man," he said, "because I have suffered from lack of caution. I have pondered how best to present my hopes to you. How to do so without being ungentle or crude or offensive. And this seemed the better way. I brought you here, Darnley, to tell you I love you."

"Chico!"

She did not stir. She was not shocked. She waited.

"You have," he said, "done nothing to justify my hopes. But I do hope. It is best to be frank. This penthouse, the Saxons go to Europe next week. They wish to lease it."

"You are offering it to me?"

"Yes—with my very real love." He paused, obviously embarrassed, reluctant to go on. "I dislike to mention money. But I am a rich man, Darnley. You are entitled, in such an arrangement, to security, to protection. I will put in trust for you—"

"Please, Chico," she said, not harshly but very gently. "I am not offended or shocked or angry." She smiled wanly at him. "I am even sorry—a little sorry, Chico—that it can't be that way. Perhaps if I loved you—" she paused, then declared: "No, Chico. No man must come between me and what I mean to do. No man shall."

"But, Darnley—"

She placed her hands upon his shoulders and spoke more softly: "You have been very kind, Chico. And I am sorry." And so, in her compassion for his loneliness she raised her head to his. For an instant he held her closely.

A voice, ironic, satisfied, jeering, spoke from the shadows. "Charming! Quite charming!" it said.

They turned, startled, to face Elaine Sanson. Behind her was Lacey Gorse. It was Gorse who had spoken. Then Elaine supplemented his words.

"Charming," she said, "but expensively indiscreet!"

Darnley's sensation, when she was discovered in Chico Sanson's arms by Lacey Gorse and Mrs. Elaine Sanson, was not one of shame. Curiously enough, it was not embarrassment. It was anger. Her sharp and ready tongue was about to flash out searing words, when Chico pressed her arm, commanding silence.

"May I take you inside, Miss Carfax?" he asked courteously, ignoring his wife and Gorse, and he led her past the spot on which they stood and into the crowded room. "After all," he said gently, "one's dignity is worth maintaining. I cannot tell you how sorry I am to have subjected you to this."

"It was no accident," she said.

"I fear it was not," he agreed.

"Why," she asked, "was Lacey Gorse with her?"

"It is Elaine's way to make use of people, remarked Chico.

"No one uses Mr. Gorse," Darnley responded.

"They can have nothing in common."

"It is something to think about," Darnley said, more than half to herself. Then, suddenly, "Chico, if there were a scandal about a girl she could never be selected for Golden Blend."

"I'm afraid not."

"If my name were to be associated with yours, I could never be the Golden Blend Girl. It would make a joke of the contest. The whole country would say it had been unfair; that you, as head of the company, had forced her selection."

Chico smiled, a little wryly. "It's not you Elaine is aiming at," he said. "You are just a means to an end. Elaine is forever trying to make me increase her allowance. Money, not jealousy, is the moving passion."

"No matter what her motive is, Chico, it would be better if I were not seen with you."

"If you say so," he answered sadly.

"Please take me home now."

When she arrived there, Jerry Shafto was in negligee, reading the latest issue of Class. She waved it at Darnley. "Why," she demanded, "don't you get to be a glamour girl and have your picture on this cover?"

"Class?"

"Yeah. Society's new house organ. Look at this one. Betsy Spotford! Ten million dollars and a couple of third-rate legs! With honest models starving in every ash can! Darling, if you could get your map on this cover just one little time, they'd hand you the Golden Blend thing on a silver platter."

"Then," said Darnley gaily, "I'll have to wangle it."

"You've no chance, honeybunch, unless you marry a duke. 'The most beautiful women in the world,' says Class, 'appear on our covers'! They would rather have a cockeyed countess than a shopgirl with a face like Helen of Troy, whoever she was."

Class was expensive. It was printed on the finest paper. It featured Society, Continental and American. The elite were flattered when their pictures appeared on its pages. And its cover!—its cover had been occupied by colored photographs of royalty, nobility, wealth, famous and glamorous women.

"Do they never use models?" asked Darnley.

"Why should they," demanded Jerry, "when every debutante in the world would pay pa-lenty for the privilege of being on its cover?"

"There's no law against trying," Darnley said. "If Clyde Farrish could do my picture and sell it to Class! Perry, it would do a photographer as much good as it would a model."

"It's that way, is it?" Jerry asked.

"What way?"

"If," asked Jerry, "you have to fall for some man, must it be a practically bankrupt photographer?"

"I've not fallen for him."

"Don't tell that to your family doctor," said Jerry.

"Jerry, I'm going to be on the cover of Class!"

"You'd better go to bed," yawned Jerry.

Darnley took this advice. But before she went to sleep she had a plan. When she awoke she lost no time in setting this scheme in motion. She went to the Public Library and studied. She studied styles. Not current fashions in Paris or New York, but ancient fashions, exotic, strange and primitive fashions to be found among remote and picturesque people. After hours of search she found something that approximated what she wanted and, having some skill with the pencil, sketched roughly a costume—a beach costume—adapted from her research.

In her next leisure hour, Darnley carried her sketch to Peter Orrick's studio, where she found him occupied with an illustration and a male model. He greeted her cordially.

"The second Metropolis cover is a wow," he told her. "They're tickled to death with it."

"Splendid." She hesitated. "Mr. Orrick, you've hired me as a model. How about my hiring you as an artist?"

"I'm expensive," he said, with a grin.

"I know; I understand."

He smiled as he regarded her intent face and held out his hand for the sketch, which obviously she had brought for him to see.

"What's this?"

"It's a beach costume."

"And what do you want me to do with it?"

"I want you to design it properly. I want you to make something terribly attractive out of it—in such a way that a dressmaker can make it for me. In color."

"That's quite a job," he murmured, still studying her with interest.

"Please understand," she said earnestly, "that I want to pay you. It is very important to me."

"Two hundred dollars?" he said with rising inflection.

"Right," she said succinctly.

Orrick chuckled. "Of course I'll do it for you. And you can pay for the job by letting me take you to dinner some evening."

She did not protest. Although she had come with real intention to pay him for his work, she did not refuse his offer. "Thank you," she said simply. "You're really a dear."

"Of course you're in a hurry."

"How can I ask you to hurry it?"

"My dear," he said, "I'll have it for you in the morning, if I have to work all night to do it."

Next morning, refusing all engagements to pose, Darnley took Orrick's drawing to Fifth Avenue's most famous and expensive dress shop. Persistence and determination secured for her an interview with the proprietor. "I am Darnley Carfax," she said, as if she were confident he would recognise the name. "I have here a sketch for a beach costume which I would like to have you make for me."

"Delighted," said the proprietor.

"The design is mine," emphasized Darnley. "Properly advertised and popularised, I think it should be valuable."

"It is a clever and unusual idea," agreed the proprietor, "but it costs a great deal of money to advertise an item such as this. And then one never can tell."

"It will cost you nothing to advertise this costume," Darnley said. "I am going to appear in it on the cover of Class."

"The cover of Class!"

"As you know," she went on, "that magazine always states who made the dress worn by the model for its cover."

"I know. But Miss—Miss Carfax, what do you want?"

"I want you to make this costume for me. I give you the design. It becomes yours exclusively upon one condition. It must be called the Darnley Carfax."

"You wish me to make this without cost to you?"

"I do?"

He considered. "Do you guarantee that you will appear, wearing it, on the cover of Class?"

"If I don't," offered Darnley, "I will pay you the regular price for it. If you wish I will deposit the money with you now."

"Young woman," said the proprietor, "you have made a deal—and you do not need to make a deposit."

"I must have it very quickly," she warned him.

"Leave it to me."

He walked with her to the door as if she had been an important customer and stood looking after her as she went out into the street.

Darnley walked up Fifth Avenue. It was exhilarating. It gave her confidence. She had not been so happy since she came to New York. This happy mood was interrupted, not pleasantly. She was aware of a man at her side, and turned to look into the eyes of Lacey Gorse.

"You refused to meet me when I asked the other night," Gorse said, without preliminaries.

"Naturally," Darnley responded. "You should not give orders unless you can enforce them."

"We made an agreement," he said. "You accepted my money."

"And did what I was paid for."

"You knew there was something implicit in our arrangement."

"What was it?" she asked.

"You knew I was not so futile—or Henry Garden—that I would pay you to go around with Chico Sanson just for fun."

"You made me an offer. I accepted it."

"I'll tell you why," he answered, "and it wasn't smart. You accepted because you wanted to find out what I was up to." He paused to rearrange his face into an expression that was not agreeable. "Because you have fallen for Clyde Farrish."

"And so?" she asked.

"Suppose I were to tell Sanson about our little deal?"

"I've considered telling him myself."

"If I were you," he said, "I think I should not do that."

"And if I did?" she retorted. "I am free, white and twenty-one. You called me on the telephone to order me around because I had let myself get mixed in your scheme—whatever it is—to compel Sanson to give Garden the Golden Blend account. But I wasn't afraid. How could you harm me, Mr. Gorse?"

"There are ways and ways."

"Of bluffing. But if you try, I could tell Chico the truth—and add something."

"What do you mean by that?"

"I can understand," she said, not answering his question, "why you and Garden should try some poisonous way to make Chico give Garden that advertising account. There's big money in it. But what I cannot understand is your enmity toward Clyde Farrish. Are you afraid of him for some reason?"

Gorse did not like having the attack carried into his own territory. He scowled. "Nonsense," he rasped.

Darnley considered whether it would be wise to talk more about Chico Sanson, or if it would be better to hold in reserve what she knew. "There may be a few people who want to do business the way you and Mr. Garden do it," she said, "but I do not think there are many. Probably you and Garden have an idea it gives you an advantage to try underhanded means. I don't think so. It is a disadvantage. Especially if you get caught."

"If," echoed Gorse, "you get caught at it."

"I am fond of Chico," she said. "He has been sweet to me. You and Garden had some plan to use me to influence him. Maybe it was just to get me to spy on him and report to you. Maybe you hoped to get him and me in some jam and hold it over his head. But you selected the wrong girl."

"And maybe not."

"Suppose I told him what I know."

"You know nothing except that we paid you to run around with him."

"And," she added, "why it was I accepted that proposition. It wasn't to earn the money you paid me."

"Then what?" he demanded.

"It was," she said, "because I happened to be at that party of Chico's and overheard the start of the thing. I heard you and Henry Garden discuss it. I heard you suggest that you get some girl to work on Chico Sanson. I heard that night the Golden Blend account was looking for a new agency."

"And so?" he asked grimly.

"And so," she said, "I wasn't afraid of you, even when you threatened. And so, I think I shall spoil your whole party by telling the whole thing to Chico."

"If you dare!" he warned.

"Haven't you found out," she asked, "that I'm not allergic to threats? Now, tell me, why are you trying to ruin Farrish?"

"Ruin Farrish? How? I'm a competitor."

"I don't mean competition. Why are you trying to get possession of his studio? Why, for instance, do you have it broken into at night and searched?"

His eyes hardened. "Where did you get that wild idea?"

"Why did you hire someone to smash an expensive camera?" she went on.

"Does Farrish tell you fairy tales?" He was staring at her now, with a trace of apprehension in his narrowed eyes.

"Mr. Farrish did not tell me. I guessed."

"Basing your guess upon what?"

He wanted to know the answer to that question. Urgency was in his voice. He wanted to know if her accusation was based upon known facts, and what the facts were. His mind was only half upon her. The other half was studying, remembering, going along the back trail in an effort to find what had gone amiss, where there could have been a slip that could have directed suspicion toward himself.

"Accusations without facts to sustain them," he said, "are apt to be dangerous, and I—"

"I don't think you are dangerous," she said calmly. "I think you are afraid. I think you are afraid of something in that studio."

"I said you weren't a fool," he snapped venomously. "I've changed my mind."

"Maybe," she said, "you noticed that I omitted the important thing. The sable coat. The same person who smashed the camera and broke in to search the studio stole that forty-thousand-dollar fur coat. Which wasn't a petty theft."

His face was bleak but he did not speak. "If I were you, Mr. Gorse," she said, "I would return it before it gets you into real trouble."

He lifted his hat, bowing slightly from the waist. "Good morning, Miss Carfax," he said. "I'll be seeing you. I certainly will be seeing you—soon!"

Darnley took a sudden resolution. She turned southward and entered the elevator of the building in which Chico Sanson had his office. To the girl at the door she gave her name and presently was shown in to Chico. He was standing, his face alight. "This is wonderful," he said. "You haven't changed—"

"No, Chico," she interrupted. "I came to tell you something. But first, please, give me an envelope."

Surprised, he reached into a drawer and handed her what she asked for. She sat at his desk and opened her handbag. From it she took her little checkbook, opened it, and wrote. Then she handed the check to Chico.

"What's this? Payable to Lacey Gorse! I don't understand."

"I don't want to hurt you, Chico, but I must tell you and try to explain," she said. "You know girls are often paid to attend parties—to dress the table."

NEUTRALITY REAFFIRMED

Madrid, Jan. 27 — (AP) — Count Francisco Gomez Jordana, Spanish Foreign Minister, reaffirmed Spain's neutrality today despite what he said was a war of nerves by the belligerents to force her to choose between the two sides.

The Foreign Minister's statement to the Falangist Party newspaper Arriba said Spain "is determined to assure respect for rights which are due her as a neutral, persecuting with all severity the plans of foreigners who disturb internal order and the line of her policy."

POLICE COURT

Case Dismissed In Theft Charge

George Baptiste, Tyendinaga Township, was dismissed from custody on a charge of stealing 26 muskrat traps by Magistrate J. L. Lloyd in County Police Court today.

"I can't press for a conviction here," admitted Assistant Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson after Provincial Constable Robt. O'Brien testified that Baptiste had told him during investigation that he believed the muskrat traps belonged to him. Baptiste was charged with stealing 26 muskrat traps from Ross Fuller, also of Tyendinaga. Constable O'Brien recovered 16 of the traps, which Baptiste admitted selling to a neighbor. "They were my client's from last season's trapping season," stated Robt. A. Pringle, consel for the defendant. The matter was dismissed without costs.

Charles S. Mann, Brockville, paid ten and costs after being convicted on a careless driving count. Consuming liquor in a public place cost R. E. Curry, Rawdon Township, $13.00, including costs, while Donald Tripp, a neighbor, paid five and costs after being convicted on a vagrancy charge. These charges, as well as two against Cecil Tripp of this city, were preferred by Provincial Constable R. O'Brien following a disturbance at a dance in Springbrook last week. Cecil Tripp was sentenced to one month in the common jail after being convicted of providing liquor to minors at the above mentioned dance. "There is no option of a fine here," explained His Worship.

Failing to stop at a designated stop road before entering upon a highway cost Clayton Prest of Holloway $7.50, including costs.

Local Insurance Group Wins Prized Trophy

Mr. Dave Ketcheson, district manager of the Central Ontario agency of the North American Life Assurance Co., announced through Mr. F. M. Lewis, district manager at Belleville, that the local agency has been successful in winning the company's premier award, the Nalaco Cup, emblematic of the highest accomplishment of any agency on the continent for North American Life. To win this trophy not only requires the largest volume of new business but also business of a type that produces the greatest increase in force.

Mr. Ketcheson formerly was district manager of the company in Belleville but moved to his present position at Peterborough in 1929, where he has resided since. He will be present in Toronto when the presentation of the cup is made when all those associated with the agency gather with the directors and officials of the company to celebrate the occasion and as a fitting tribute to the men and women who put this agency among the foremost of life insurance agencies anywhere.

Those associated with the agency at Belleville are: F. M. Lewis, district manager; J. E. Marsh, J. J. Lee, Arthur Wilson and J. A. Stickle.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 27 (CP)—Mining and western oil groups improved slightly on the Toronto stock exchange today and the industrials were moderately soft. Volume was smaller than in recent sessions at 499,000 shares for the first three hours.

Aunor and Upper Canada featured the golds, both gaining 15 to 30 cents in substantial volume. Other strong golds were Buffalo-Ankerite, Teck Hughes, Malartic Gold Fields, O'Brien, Kerr-Addison and Queenston. McIntyre and Lake Shore were lower on light volume.

Waite-Amulet and Noranda were stronger base metals and in the western oils minor gains were held by mid-continent, Vermilata and East Crest.

Prices were narrowly lower in the industrial section for the foods, senior oils and miscellaneous issues. Prices were higher for Brazilian, Hiram Walker, Canadian Breweries, Bell Telephone, Loblaw B and Canadian Food Products.

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 27 (AP) — The stock market today imbibed a little recovery tonic from liquors and specialties but the general run of leaders failed to attract stimulating bids. Variations generally ran to fractions, with a few wider swings on the upside in evidence.

Park & Tilford jumped to a new 1943-44 peak. In front were Schenley, American Beech and U. S. Steel. Among laggards were Bethlehem, Western Union "A", General Motors, Goodyear, Montgomery Ward, Dupont and Boeing.

Canadian issues were irregular, with Dome Mines, Distillers Seagrams and Hiram Walkers gaining fractions and Lake Shore off a fraction.

LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Jan. 27 (CP)—Cattle trade was dull at steady prices up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. A few butcher steers and heifers brought $11-$11.50 and canner and cutter cows $7-$8.25.

The few veal calves offered were steady at $14-$16.

Hogs were steady at $17.15 dressedweight with sows $13 dressed.

No sheep or lambs were offered.

Receipts reported by the Dominion marketing service were: Cattle 40, calves 10, hogs 250. Unsold from yesterday were 200 head of cattle and 100 lambs. The lambs were still unsold.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 27 — (CP) — Prices were unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight: Hull $16.95 delivered, London, Barrie, Stratford $17 delivered, Hamilton $17.85 delivered, Chatham $16.40 plus transportation.

Ribbentrop Argues Germany Not Loser By Argentina's Stand

London, Jan. 27. (CP)—German Foreign Minister Ribbentrop decried today what he termed Argentina's surrender to United States "benevolence" and declared that in the end Britain and her interests not Germany, was the loser by the Argentine severance of diplomatic relations with the Axis.

Ribbentrop was quoted in a dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio: "The Ramires government now has yielded to pressure and surrendered the sovereignty of the country to United States 'benevolence'.

"The motive given in Buenos Aires for the break—the alleged participation of members of the German Embassy in an espionage affair—is completely untrue. It is merely further proof that the Argentine government is not master of her own decisions any longer".

Be Sure Respirators Are in Order, Says Morrison to Britons

London, Jan. 27 (CP Cable) — Herbert Morrison, Home Security Minister, in the House of Commons today warned the public of the "ever-present need of being sure their respirators are in order."

Answering a question, he said he feared the public response would be small to the government's offer of free gasmask repairs or replacement during January and February.

Defence Plant Lay-Offs Practically Nil Here

Lay-offs of industrial worker personnel at defence plants as the result of cancellation of defence contracts have little affected factories in Belleville district, it was reported today by Mr. H. H. Reed, manager, local National Selective Service. Lay-offs have been practically negligible, it was intimated, due principally to the fact that factories in this area are for the most part comparatively small.

Payments of unemployment insurance claims through the Belleville office have also been negligible in comparison with the size of the district, it was stated by Mr. Reed.

Co-operation of employers with Selective Service officials has been instrumental to a very great extent in making lay-offs almost unnecessary in the Belleville area. When contracts are completed workers wherever possible are switched to other departments in the same factories and thus are kept on the payroll. This results in speeding up of production.

On the other hand, a lay-off of 30 to 40 workers in Belleville may not seem a large number of employees but in comparision with larger plants in other centres the number would be commensurate to the lay-off of three or four hundred in a plant employing several thousand.

"Thus far we have been particularly fortunate in Belleville in respect to factory lay-offs," stated Mr. Reed. "But this is due in a large measure to the nature of contracts upon which local plants are working."

MOTOR CONVOY SMASHED

Algiers, Jan. 27 (C.P.-Reuters) — Canadians on the 8th. Army front in Italy shot up a German motor convoy, it was reported today, while Indian troops threw back two small scale attacks between Orsogna and Arielli.

One British patrol in this sector surprised a German patrol of 50 men near Piedemonte, killing ten of them.

On both the 5th. and 8th. Army fronts the weather is cloudy and showery.

U. S. NURSES IN BURMA

In the Northern Burma Jungle, Jan. 27—(AP)—Something new but definitely nice has been added to the northern Burma jungle. It is a bevy of United States Army Nurses—the first in Burma. They looked mighty good to troops who hadn't seen a white woman in six months.

Transport Wonder in Iran U. S. Transport Men Speed Goods Delivery to Russia

War's Biggest Transportation Job Has Been 800 Mile Truck Service Over Blistering Desert and Modernization of Iran's Only Railway to Do Amazing Job

The story of how transportation has been completely reorganized and modernized to carry enormous quantities of supplies to Russia, is told in an article by John F. Chapman in "Business Weekly."

A few weeks ago a Studebaker truck, driven by a Negro sergeant from Texas, rolled out of a steaming Persian Gulf port and headed north across the Iranian desert toward Russia. There was nothing to distinguish this truck from the hundreds or more others in that day's motor convoy. But as it roared away in billows of desert dust, a Russian general and an American general gripped hands and smiled in satisfaction; for it carried the millionth ton of American lend-lease supplies to be hauled across Iran for delivery to the world's greatest battle front.

This truck service over 800 miles of blistering desert road and tortuous mountain highway is a major achievement, but it is only part of an amazing American triumph. Another part of what has proved to be one of the war's biggest and most dramatic transportation jobs is the modernization of Iran's only railway, the spectacular "single-track wonder," which links the Persian Gulf with the Caspian Sea—and Russia. Before the Americans took over the transportation problem in Iran, a year ago, only a trickle of supplies was reaching the Red Army by this route. Five months later the new truck service and the renovated railroad were moving 11 times as much traffic as the famed Burma Road carried during the peak month of its operation. The volume now is much greater.

• •

Before this supply route could be organized, Americans had to convert ancient Persian Gulf fishing villages into modern ports where heavily laden Liberty ships now tie up. And in a camel-age country they built assembly lines—small but efficient counterparts of the giants in Detroit and San Diego—to put together the trucks, jeeps and planes that arrive knocked-down and crated. In the airplane assembly more than 1000 Americans work on day and night shifts to maintain a flow of fighters and medium bombers for Russian pilots. Mack, Studebaker, Dodge, Chevrolet and Ford trucks roll off the lines, in two plants, at the rate of one every ten minutes. They are assembled by Iranian workmen, trained and supervised by Americans.

The Persian Gulf Service Command is an outstanding example of efficient co-operation between the Army and American businessmen. Major General Donald H. Connolly's headquarters staff consists of regular army officers. But the colonels and majors who boss ship unloading, supervise truck assembly and run the transportation routes are civilians-in-uniform, familiar with the operation of the docks at Hoboken and New Orleans, the great freight yards of the Union Pacific at Omaha, the trucking business in Ohio and Indiana.

• •

When the truck experts arrived they found chaos. Local contractors, operating a few trucks, handled all of Iran's highway business—including goods bound for Russia—on an individual contract basis. Furthermore, the road across the desert's shifting sands was scarcely more than a trail.

American construction men were called in to build a heavy-duty road. The Persian desert is a waste of sand, and the brackish water level is only two feet below the surface. Nobody had ever been able to figure out how to build a stable roadbed on such a foundation. British engineers of the Anglon-Iranian Oil Company licked the problem by developing a new oil product which made a successful binder.

Next step was to organize a shuttle service of drivers, so that trucks could be kept in operation day and night. The truck experts laid out a "block" system, dividing the long haul into runs of 150 to 175 miles. At the end of each block are a rest camp and a maintenance crew. A driver runs his block, drops off to eat and sleep, then picks up a returning empty and drives back to his base. The truck he started with, meanwhile, gets a quick checkup and rolls on with a fresh driver at the wheel.

• •

At first U.S. soldiers drove the trucks, but an American colonel soon organized three driver schools for Iranians. Students are taught the regular Army driving course, 1000 graduating every four to six weeks. Nearly half the drivers in the shuttle service now are Iranians.

Iran's railroad is an engineering marvel, built by the Shah before the war partly as a royal plaything and partly to attract tourists. It cuts straight through the desert to a formidable range of mountains, then threads a precarious way through 220 tunnels and over a 7,200 foot pass before dropping precipitously to below sea level at the small Caspian port of Bandar Shah.

When the first American experts-in-khaki arrived, December 1942, however, they discovered that the Trans-Iranian, as a train service, didn't have much on the Toonerville Trolley. The freight equipment consisted of some small Krupp locomotives and a string of four-wheel, hand-braked cars. There were two passenger trains a week, and people were said to age perceptibly during the trip. All traffic was controlled by a single phone circuit between Teheran and the Gulf, which made for long delays.

• •

The Americans cabled home for equipment needed to insure the monthly delivery quota that Washington had guaranteed Moscow. But for the next four months American train crews, heartily cursing the "toy trains" they were called upon to operate, nursed their overburdened charges across burning desert and through smoke-filled mountain tunnels. Sometimes snow blocked the passes and they had to dig their way through, but somehow they kept the freight moving.

Today the Trans-Iranian is an efficient railroad with a daily express in each direction and a freight service that carries more than half the load of Russian supplies across Iran. Nearly 100 American Diesel locomotives haul heavy trains over the mountains. There are four-wheel-truck freight cars with automatic brakes. And a complete telephone and teletype dispatching service had been installed.

Rolling stock is kept in good condition by new repair shops which run day and night, supervised by men who not long ago were in the great locomotive shops near Philadelphia.

• •

It gives you a strange feeling to ride the Trans-Iranian and find American operating crews all along the line. In the dispatcher's office at every division point you meet an old-timer from the Northern Pacific, say, or the Pennsylvania. He is directing a staff of sergeants who learned the lingo of their business in the United States.

The Persian Gulf Service Command provides medical care for the thousands of maintenance men and the soldiers who police the line, by means of two hospital trains. These bring heat prostration cases, sometimes as many as thirty a day, to mountain rest camps and move injured workmen to hospitals. Two freight cars have been converted into completely equipped dentists' offices.

Iranians have willingly accepted the temporary foreign management of the railroad—and with good reason. The United States is paying for its use, is educating hundreds of Iranian trainmen and repairmen to a high degree of skill, and is providing better train service than the country ever had before. Despite the heavy through traffic pouring into Russia, more local freight is hauled than was possible before the Americans arrived.

So efficient has the truck and train transport system across Iran become that supplies have at times piled up at the Russian end. The Russians admit that they had under-estimated America's ability to deliver the goods.

Feels Like Different Person Since Syntona Built Her Up

Suffered 5 Years with Acid, Upset Stomach, Gastritis, Constipation, Backache and Headache, Was Nervous, Rundown and Losing Weight.

MRS. MARGUERITE WARD

"Everybody remarks about the improvement in my health since I've been taking Syntona and I think it is just grand to feel so well again after years of suffering," said Mrs. Marguerite Ward, 422 King Street, London, Ontario, in a recent statement.

"In the past five years I suffered terribly with stomach troubles, backache, nervous headaches and constipation. I would get so bloated with gas that I could hardly draw a full breath; scalding, sour liquids would rise from my stomach and I constantly felt sick and nauseated. I took all kinds of medicines and treatments, went on a special diet, but I just kept getting steadily worse until I could hardly keep any food in my stomach at all. I had become terribly thin, my nerves were bad, and I couldn't sleep at nights.

"When I first decided to try Syntona I was afraid I couldn't take it, because my stomach was so upset that I used to vomit up most of the light food I tried to eat. But, to my surprise, it didn't give me any trouble and I soon found it was doing me a great deal of good. Before I had finished the first bottle, I could eat fairly well and I was feeling much better. Now, after a few weeks on this medicine, I eat regular meals in comfort, my nerves are relaxed, and I am sleeping fine. I don't get those throbbing headaches or those pains in my back like I used to, and I have regained much of my lost weight. You may use this statement as you wish, and I only hope it will be the means of helping others who suffered like I did."

All who suffer are cordially invited to call at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST, Belleville, and learn the truthful facts about this grand Syntona medicine that is helping so many people.

6th Sidney

6th. Sidney — The Sunday afternoon service at Scott's Church was well attended. The minister, Rev. L. W. Scott, preached a very helpful and interesting sermon on Character Building, stressing the need of a deep and sure foundation in all of life's activities, but the greater need for each one is to have a religious foundation and loyalty to God.

Quite a number of people from here attended the funeral of Mrs. Barton Hinchliffe at the Wallbridge Church on Monday afternoon.

Mr. George Walt, of Murray, was a weekend guest at the home of Mrs. Vera Sine.

Saturday evening dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lott were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bonisteel and Mrs. W. E. Windover, Frankford, and Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Sanborn, Stockdale.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Rose and Mrs. Vera Sine attended Rebekah Lodge and social evening last Tuesday evening in Belleville.

Mrs. J. A. Loucks of Cannifton, is spending a few days at the home of Mr. Clarence Copeland.

Mr. Perry Badgley, of Deseronto, and Mrs. W. N. Badgley of Wallbridge, were Thursday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lott.

White's District

White's W. A.

White's District — Mrs. Glenn Meyers opened her home on January 20th. for a pot-luck dinner for White's Women's Association.

Owing to the illness of the president, the first vice-president, Mrs. Glenn Meyers, conducted the meeting. Following the meeting White's Missionary Society was organized with Mrs. Glenn Meyers as president for 1944. The meetings are to be held the same afternoon as the W. A. meetings.

White's Red Cross was also reorganized with Mrs. A. Paice as president for 1944. The meetings are to be held on a different day from the W.A. and W.M.S.

Mr. Marcus Brant, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Brant and daughters, of Shannonville, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Benson Brant.

Miss Margaret Lindsay was a weekend guest of Miss V. Brant.

Rev. C. P. and Mrs. Heaven, Mrs. R. H. Hill and Miss Ruth Heaven were luncheon guests of Rev. Rural Dean and Mrs. Pringle, Sunday.

Sgt. Huron Brant, M.M., has been seriously wounded in action in Italy.

The annual meeting of the Agricultural Society was held on Thursday in the Council House. These officers were elected: President, Norway Maracle; first vice-president, John C. Brant; second vice-president, Chief Clifford Maracle; secretary, Stuart Hill; treasurer, Delwin Claus; directress, Mrs. Benson Brant; directors, Chief Francis John, Leslie Claus.

An interesting meeting was held Friday afternoon at the Council House, when the Canadian Packers Co. were hosts to their patrons on the Reserve. A practical and very enjoyable address was given by Mr. Adams, of the Canadian Packers, after which contracts were given for tomatoes, peas and pumpkin. Following the meeting, representatives of the Company served refreshments.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was eating her grapefruit diet this morning, saying to pop, I wonder what you'd like for dinner, William? Oh dear, the same old problem of the ages, man and his proverbial stummick, she said.

Supposing I vary it for a change by trying to suggest something you would like yourself? pop said, and ma said, Well, that would be a welcome innovation, I must admit.

It would remind me of old times when we used to dine in resterants and caffays, and you used to bend over backwards trying to find something on the menu card that would meet with my utmost approval. Oh dear, that's when you used to make me feel like a queen for a day, she said.

You shall rain again, your majesty, pop said. I'd like to suggest larks tongues and the breasts of humming birds, or plovers eggs stuffed with caviar, but I'm afraid that would be more romantic than practical. But hold, little queen, I know the very thing. Back in the days you mention so fondly I always used to marvel how such a little slip of a woman could show such pleasure in a great wopping slab of roast beef, so by gollies that's just what I'll suggest, a big over-wheleming section of prime ribs of beef. How's that, your highness? he said, and ma said, That's impossible and you know it for land sakes. We'd have to save up enough meat points to go meatless for weeks before any honest butcher would sell us a big roast like that, she said.

I'm abashed and crestfallen at your royal dissappointment, pop said. I suppose I'll have to fall back meekly on liver and onions, he said, and ma said, William Potts you were falling back on it from the very first word. You know only too well that we had your proverbial liver and onions only the day before yesterday, so you'll just have to fall back on something else this evening, she said.

Which he did, falling back on fish.

POST-WAR HOUSING

BERLIN POSSIBLY OBLITERATED BY LATEST RAID

Ministry Describes 12th Heavy Assault As "Very Strong"

Other RAF Bombers Hit at Heligoland Nazis' Mighty North Sea Island Fortress

34 AIRCRAFT LOST

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 28 — (AP)—Hundreds of R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. heavy night bombers touched off huge flames in Berlin again Thursday night in a possible coup de grace to the Nazi nerve centre, previously described as three-quarters destroyed.

The Air Ministry announcement describes the 12th heavy assault of the obliteration campaign as "very strong," a statement borne out in the loss of 34 aircraft in all the night's operations.

Eight Canadian bombers were listed as missing.

Other R.A.F. bombers hit at Heligoland, the Nazis' mighty North Sea island fortress, while still others struck at unnamed targets in western Germany and northern France and laid mines in enemy waters.

For all practical purposes, this latest attack in the campaign launched last Nov. 18 to knock Berlin from the war might be described as a "mopping-up operation." It certainly was not considered here as the last assault planned against the German capital but was looked upon rather as one of the decisive finishing strokes.

Tonnage Not Announced

The Air Ministry's communique did not announce the tonnage, but it likely approached the 1,500-ton average of all previous heavy attacks. In this case, Berlin now has heaved and trembled to more than 18,000 tons of bombs in a little more than two months.

Early Swedish reports said the raid left great fires burning in the outer districts of Berlin where most of the capital's heavy industry is concentrated. The centre of the city, heavily pulverized in previous attacks, apparently escaped further damage.

The Berlin correspondent of the Swedish newspaper Aftonbladet said the first of last night's bombs fell about 8 p. m., with the full force of the attack concentrated into about a half hour. He said the raid was considered "one of the worst" of the 12 blows but was not on the scale of the first attacks.

Berlin radio, making its usual claims that the raid was a "terror attack," said that "great damage was done, especially in residential quarters."

U. S. Bombers Take Over

American bombers took over the assault on Hitler's Europe shortly after daybreak, thundering over the general area of the Nazis' "Atlantic Wall," and U. S. headquarters said that "a military target in northern France" had been blasted. The raid, in the same general area where mystery targets have been hit heavily several times in the last six weeks, was the Americans' eighth this month and the second of the week.

The Aftonbladet's correspondent said four engined Lancasters making last night's attacks feinted in several directions over Heligoland to confuse the German defenders.

Berlin broadcasts confirmed the feint tactics but asserted that neither these moves nor the thick cloud covering over the capital prevented the Nazi fighters from closing in.

Confirming to some extent the belief that the heavy assaults have reached the "mopping-up" stage, the Aftonbladet's correspondent said a high percentage of the bombs were strewn among the ruins left in previous attacks, thereby piling up destruction upon destruction.

It was the first time Allied heavy bombers made a concentrated assault upon Berlin since the night of Jan. 20, when they dropped a record 2,300 tons on the city.

In 11 massed assaults which preceded last night's raid on Berlin more than 16,000 tons of high explosives have fallen on the German capital.

RETAIL BUTCHERS' PLEA

Kitchener, Jan. 28 — (CP) — Waterloo county Independent Retail Butchers' Association last night passed a resolution asking that small slaughterers be reimbursed by Federal and Provincial governments by at least $3.00 per hog. It was claimed the "hasty" action of the Dominion government on hog bonuses would operate to put small slaughterers out of business.

Admiralty Islands In Bismarck Sea Given Pounding

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea Jan. 28 —(AP)—The Allies' expanding aerial might in the southwest Pacific has been turned on the strategic Admiralty Islands in Bismarck Sea and threatens to bring virtual isolation to the Japanese defenders of New Guinea.

An Allied communique today reported the sixth raid in nine days on the Admiralty Islands. Heavy bombers with fighter escort poured 120 tons of explosives into Japanese positions.

Increasing pressure against the Admiralty group may spell virtual isolation to the enemy defenders of Wewak and Madang, New Guinea, approximately 225 miles to the southwest and south, respectively. Both of these important Japanese bases rely largely upon a supply line from Truk, a supply line over which the Admiralty Islands holds a commanding position.

Two successes were reported in ground fighting, n the northeastern coast of New Guinea, Australian forces have driven the Japanese farther north of Sio and have narrowed the gap between them and the south-driving Americans at Saidor. The Japanese are trapped in the middle.

CUTS OFFICER'S TROUSERS OFF WHEN HE IS CAUGHT IN FENCE IS AWARDED THE D.C.M.

London, Jan. 28. (CP)—For helping his superior officer out of his pants during the fighting in Italy last September Sgt. Walter Lumsden of the Scots Guards has been awarded the D.C.M. Lumsden and an officer had to climb a six-foot spiked gate under machine-gun fire. The officer's trousers caught on the spike. Lumsden calmly pulled out his knife, cut them off and got safely away.

CANARY'S GIFT TO 'MARCH OF DIMES'

New York, Jan. 28 — (AP)—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis received $5 for the March of Dimes yesterday from a canary bird that has its own bank account and stationery. The contribution came from "Mickey Audubon Bishop," pet of Mrs. John E. Bishop of Los Angeles. The money was attached to a note written on the bird's gold and green stationery.

Canadian Airmen in Raid on Berlin Report It One of Easiest on Record

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 28. (CP Cable) — The Thunderbird, Goose and Leaside squadrons of the R.C.A.F. bomber group were included in the Canadian force which joined the R.A.F. in dropping a fresh deluge of bombs on Berlin last night.

The Canadians, Flying Lancaster Bombers, met fighters and encountered rockets, flares and all the varied defences the Germans have used in recent Berlin raids, but the target was hit hard, returning crews said.

Some crews, previous visitors to Berlin, said the raid was one of the easiest.

Canadians accounted for at least one enemy fighter which fell before the guns of Flt. Sgt. S. E. Campbell of Drumheller, Alta., making his 20th trip with the Goose Squadron.

"We were just on the target rim when the fighter starter to attack", said Campbell whose skipper was WO2 J. D. Harvey of Swansea, Ontario.

Others in this crew included S. W. Dempsey, of Oshawa, Ont., and PO. G. R. Buchart of Wiarton, Ont. On the third attack Campbell poured in bullets and saw the enemy plane explode on the ground.

"I've been to Berlin seven times and last night was the easiest yet", said PO. Gerry Philips of Winnipeg. His crew included Flt.-Sgt. D. C. Ryan of Tillsonburg, Ont.

GERMANS FORCED TO FALL BACK TOWARD ESTONIA

Russians Capture Two Railway Junctions Of Volosovo and Tosno

39 MILES FROM BORDER

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
(AP Staff Writer)

Moscow, Jan. 28—(AP)— Mauled German forces in northwest Russia were being hurled back today toward a line extending through Narva, in Estonia, Luga and Staraya Russa by charging Red armies which had ripped to pieces their siege lines around Leningrad and captured the strategic railway junctions of Volosovo and Tosno.

The Germans were fighting to keep Soviet troops from the streets of Lyuban and Chudovo, their only two remaining towns on the double-tracked Leningrad-Moscow trunk line. All but 30 miles of the railway is in Russian hands.

At the lower end of the northwest front, the Nazis were battling frantically to keep the Russians west of Novgorod and Lake Ilmen from rushing upon the Leningrad-Pskov and Leningrad-Vitebsk railways. Ski-men were but two miles from the Vitebsk line at midnight.

(Along the Baltic the Russians were reported within 39 miles of the Estonian border driving westward in the direction of Yamburg.

Heavy Fighting Near Kerch

(The Germans reported heavy fighting near Kerch in the eastern Crimea and around Perekop at the north entrance to the Nazi-held Black Sea peninsula. The Berlin communique claimed German gains in the western Ukraine southwest of Pogrebishche and said 234 Russian tanks had been destroyed yesterday.)

The capture of Volosovo, 47 miles southwest of Leningrad, gave the Red Army an excellent base for a two-day operation west to Narva or southward down a spur line connecting with the Leningrad-Pskov railway.

Red Star, the army newspaper, said the Germans were concentrating remnants of their defeated divisions in the Viritsa sector, indicating that a large force of Germans —probably up to 100,000—had been isolated northwest of Lake Ilmen.

The Russians greeted with great enthusiasm the announcement that the siege of Leningrad had been finally lifted.

Moscow — (AP) — The people of liberated Leningrad rolled out of bed and went to factories today, tired but happy. They were thinking of last night's wild joy of singing and dancing in streets illuminated by brilliant flares and rockets.

Those in the city had not seen a spark of light by night — except that from bursting enemy shells and bombs and burning homes — for 27 months. Last night the guns were theirs, the noise theirs, and the firing theirs.

Exactly at 8 p. m., the first gun was fired. Altogether, 24 salvoes from 324 guns marked the full liberation of the former capital, proclaimed yesterday.

That wasn't Leningrad's first victory salute, but last night's was the wildest, most spontaneous outburst of joy and happiness in the city's history.

People danced in the streets; radio loudspeakers blasted out dance music far into the pleasant night; and great crowds swarmed about the Kirov quarter, on Vasiliev Island, and in Fontanka Street around the Isaak Cathedral.

Atrocities Perpetrated By Japanese at Bataan, Corregidor Described

By WILLIAM FRYE
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Jan. 28 — (AP) — A pent-up story of atrocities, perpetrated by the Japanese army on the captured defenders of Bataan and Corregidor was released by the United States government today in sickening detail.

A joint Army-Navy report finally broke rigid censorship maintained by the high command on the almost unbelievable reports that came out of the Pacific, to tell what happened to the men who delayed the tide of Japanese conquest in the early days of United States participation in the war.

Compiled from sworn statements of officers who survived the starvation and torture and escape, it catalogued the infamy of a brutal enemy, and wrote in shocking terms the code of the Japanese warrior—to subject 36,000 soldiers to deliberate starvation, to shoot in cold blood the thirsty who seek water, to watch sick men writhe and deny them medicine, to horsewhip those who help their fallen comrades; to beat men with two-by-fours, to behead those who try to escape, and to bury tortured men alive.

The three who lived to return and tell what they endured were Cmdr. Melvyn H. McCoy, U. S. N., of Indianapolis, Lt.-Col. S. M. Mellnik, Coast Artillery Corps, of Dunmore, Pa., and Lt.-Col. William E. Dyess, Air Corps, of Albany, Tex.

Statements Verified

Dyess is dead — killed in a fighter plane crash at Burbank, Calif., recently while preparing to return to duty in the Pacific. Mellnik is with Gen. Douglas MacArthur in the Southwest Pacific, McCoy on duty in the United States.

Their sworn statements included no hearsay whatever, but only facts which the officers related from their own personal experience and observations," the official report said.

"The statements have been verified from other sources...

"The three officers stated that several times as many American prisoners of war have died, mostly of starvation, forced hard labor, and general brutality, as the Japanese have ever reported.

"At one prison camp, Camp O'Donnell, about 2,200 American prisoners died in April and May 1942. In the camp at Cabanatuam, about 3,000 Americans had died up to the end of October 1942. Still heavier mortality occurred among the Filipino prisoners of war at Camp O'Donnell."

The campaign of brutality began as soon as the exhausted American and Filipino soldiers on Bataan collapsed under the overwhelming weight of the enemy assault. Dyess reported that, beaten and hopeless as they were, they never would have surrendered if they had guessed what lay ahead.

THREE ARGENTINE MINISTERS RESIGN PROTESTING SPLIT

Germany and Japan Are Sharply Warned Not to Commit Reprisals

PAPERS SUSPENDED

By STANLEY ROSS
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

Buenos Aires, Jan. 28 (AP) — Three cabinet ministers and three lesser officials all known for extreme nationalistic views have resigned because of their opposition to Argentina's diplomatic break with the Axis, it was known today.

This development came as President Pedro Ramirez was sharply warning Germany and Japan to beware of any acts of reprisal against Argentine Nationals or property, advising opponents at home to maintain silence "for their own tranquility," banning all commerce with the Axis, and suspending the newspaper Pampero, major Nazi mouthpiece here.

Those reported to have quit their posts were Dr. Gustavo Martinez Zuviria, Minister of Justice and Public Instruction; Gen. Luis Cesar Perlinger, Interior Minister; Gen. Diego Mason, Minister of Agriculture; Gen. Basilio Pertine, Mayor of Buenos Aires, and Alberto Baldrich and Leon Scasso, Federal Interventors in the provinces of Tucuman and Cordoba.

Martinez Zuviria and Perlinger, who were named to their posts in a cabinet shakeup last October, have been steadfastly opposed to a break with the Axis.

(Dispatches from neighboring capitals at that time said they had replaced ministers who even then were urging the diplomatic rupture that came this week.

(Martinez Zuviria, who under the pen name of Hugo Wast has written a trilogy of violently anti-semitic books, is one of Argentina's most widely known authors. Early in November, a week after Perlinger took office, seven provincial interventors and three territorial governors resigned in what was described as a move to give Perlinger freedom of action. The interventors serve as Federal Administrators. Along with President Ramirez, Perlinger early this month signed the decree setting up drastic new press restrictions in Argentina.

(The Cabinet crisis that brought Martinez Zuviria, Perlinger and Mason to office came during the period that an order was promulgated suspending publication of Jewish newspapers in Argentina. The ban provoked a sharp rebuke by President Roosevelt and was quickly lifted.)

As a follow-up to an order that all Argentine merchant vessels must remain in port for the present, Ramirez said the government had decreed that all commerce between Argentina and Axis countries must stop. He added that the question of controlling mail and telegraphic communications was under study.

CANADIAN ARMY CORPS IN LINE IN ITALY CONFIRMED

Lt.-Gen. H. D. Crerar in Command of Full Canadian Unit

SOME REG'TS. NAMED

Ottawa, Jan. 28 — (CP) — Confirmation that a full Canadian Army Corps under Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar was "in the line" with the British 8th Army on the Italian Adriatic front was given here today.

It was previously known that Canadian formations were in action in Italy, that a Canadian corps was forming there under Gen. Crerar; but today's announcement from defence headquarters here was the first indication of the strength of the Canadians in action.

The announcement gave no hint of the formations in the corps, but it is known the 1st Division is there and it is assumed large reinforcements have arrived to build up the group to corps status.

Reports from time to time have given indications of the growing size of the Canadian force. Name of a Canadian armored formation, which has fought in every sector and includes Canadian tanks from the Three Rivers Regiment which helped turn the tide of battle for infantrymen of the 78th (Imperial) Division at Termoli earlier in the peninsula campaign, has appeared in front-line dispatches.

Douglas Amaron, Canadian Press war correspondent with the 8th. Army, mentioned a Canadian medium artillery regiment in a Jan. 19 story on action south of the Arielli River, and this was the first indication these mediums with their 5.5 guns firing 100-pound shells were supporting the 1st Division.

Previously the division had its own 25-pounder field regiments. This Canadian medium regiment went to Italy with a large contingent which landed last November and is part of the Canadian Corps artillery there.

Ross Munro, Canadian Press war correspondent in London, wrote recently it was possible that some fresh Canadian infantry and possibly some armored units were engaged in the Arielli fighting.

He also said there was a possibility some new troops from the Maritime Provinces, Central Ontario and Western Canada had arrived on the front to join the Princess Patricia's, Canadian Light Infantry, the Loyal Edmontons and the Seaforth Highlanders, who fought the stern action for Ortona.

Other infantry regiments with the division are:

Royal Canadian Regiment, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. 48th. Highlanders of Canada; Royal 22nd. Regiment, Carleton and York Regiment, and West Nova Scotia Regiment.

5TH ALLIED ARMY IN POSITION TO TAKE INITIATIVE

'Everything Is Going Wonderfully' Gen. Alexander Tells News Writers

VALUE OF SURPRISE

New York, Jan. 28—(AP)—A dispatch from correspondent C. L. Sulzberger to the New York Times today quotes Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, Allied Commander-in-Chief in Italy, as saying 5th Army Forces have established themselves firmly south of Rome and are in position to take the initiative.

The dispatch, datelined Wednesday aboard a British warship, quoted Gen. Alexander, as saying after a tour of the area:-

"Everything is very encouraging. We have not only seized the initial beachhead but have built up our forces. Everything is going wonderfully."

Gen. Alexander stressed the element of surprise as a favorable factor for the Allies.

Value of Surprise

"The port of Anzio," he said, "had been highly prepared for demolition. The Germans were ready to touch it off. But they were so surprised that they had no time to explode their demolitions.

"The main 5th Army front troops did an excellent job of drawing in the Germans. I want especially to pay tribute to the Americans along the Rapido, who did a wonderful job in getting across that high, fast-flowing river and establishing two bridgeheads, although they later lost them. (The Americans have now recrossed the Rapido.)

"This action held down German reserves, drawing them into battle and thus facilitating the landings farther up.

"We made the enemy lower his guard and then hit him on the chin. It was not quite a knockout but we rocked him badly."

The landings so surprised the Germans, he said, that "an unfinished drink and beefsteak were waiting on the table in the German commander's house."

Denounces Bombing of Hospital Ship

He also took time to denounce the recent German bombing of a fully-lighted hospital ship off the landing coast.

"He (the enemy) is the same old Hun," the general declared, "He will go for hospital ships if he can . . . I suppose that because he has used hospital ships for illegal purposes he thinks everyone else does."

Eden Says Japs Murdered, Starved And Tortured Thousands of Prisoners

London, Jan. 28—(CP)—Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons today that thousands of British troops had died as prisoners of the Japanese after being compelled to live "under tropical jungle conditions without adequate shelter, clothing, food or medical attention."

Britain, he warned, will not forget Japan's misdeeds.

The Foreign Secretary charged that Japanese authorities had dictated postcards and letters received from prisoners giving the impression they were in good health and well-treated.

"The information which has just reached the government no longer leaves any room for doubt that the true state of affairs is a different one so far as the great majority of prisoners in Japanese hands are concerned," Eden said.

He voiced the warning:—

"Let the Japanese government reflect that in time to come the record of their military authorities in this war will not be forgotten."

No Mention of Canadians

(Mr. Eden did not mention Canadian prisoners. The Canadian government has announced that there were 1,984 officers and men of the Royal Rifles of Canada, Quebec, and the Winnipeg Grenadiers among the Hong Kong garrison when it fell Dec. 25, 1941. Of these 296 are officially assumed to be killed in action or missing and the rest taken prisoners.)

Pointing out that the Japanese government had refused permission for neutral inspection of their prison camps, Mr. Eden said, "For some time past information has been reaching His Majesty's government regarding the conditions under which prisoners are detained and work in some of these areas, and as it was of so grave a character as likely to cause distress to relatives, His Majesty's government felt bound to satisfy themselves that it was authentic before making it public."

Health Deteriorating

Referring to the "many thousands" of British prisoners held in Thailand alone, he said:

"Our information is that their health is rapidly deteriorating, that a high percentage of them are seriously ill, and that there have been several thousand deaths. The number of such deaths reported by the Japanese to us is just over 100."

"Conditions in Hong Kong appear to be growing worse," Eden continued. "The whole story would appear to be very bad indeed, but I have worse to come. We have a growing list of cases of brutal outrage on individuals, or groups of individuals.

"I cannot burden the House with full details of these, but in order to give some idea of their nature I must, I fear, quote one or two typical examples."

25 Enemy Planes Destroyed Plus 25 Over S. France

Allies Extend Grip Up Coast to Point Twelve Miles North Of Anzio

NAZIS ASSEMBLE TANKS

(By WES. GALLAGHER)
(A.P. War Correspondent)

Algiers, Jan. 28 (AP) — The German 10th. Army, backed by planes, struck with fury at the Allies' Nettuno beachhead but was repulsed by British forces in a battle near Carroceto, on the Via Anziate, 10 miles north of Anzio and 21 miles south of Rome, Allied headquarters announced today.

At the same time the Germans suffered their greatest air defeat of the Italian campaign, losing at least 50 planes in 24 hours in sky battles over the beachhead and over Southern France where heavy bombers struck at three airfields near Marseille and Montpellier and crippled the bases from which the Germans raid Allied shipping off the Italian coast.

Armored Trains Used

Heavy German armored trains, backed up almost to Rome, shelled Allied troops in the fan-shaped beachhead area and correspondents' reports said 60-ton Tiger tanks were assembling along the fringes of the beachhead as the enemy recovered from his surprise and mustered resources for a fiery contest for the Italian capital.

But today's communique from advanced headquarters said the 5th. Army had enlarged its bridgehead and taken many German prisoners.

The 5th. Army has extended its grip up the coast to a point 12 miles north of Anzio, another report said, and edged forward two miles in another sector yesterday.

At the same time, the announcement said, French troops continued their advance on the main 5th. Army front several miles north of Cassino, driving forward despite difficult terrain and stiff enemy resistance.

At the same time, the announcement said, French troops continued their advance on the main 5th. Army front several miles north of Cassino, driving forward despite difficult terrain and stiff enemy resistance.

The Germans are still counterattacking in this sector in an effort to slow the French advance, the bulletin reported.

Between Cassino and the coast American troops west of the Rapido River scaled one mountainous height under heavy fire from the Germans' prepared positions and made progress toward several others.

Action on the British 8th Army front on the eastern side of the Italian peninsula was limited again to patrol skirmishes.

Warships Active

Allied warships again provided support for the beachhead troops south of Rome, venturing into the Gulf of Gaeta Wednesday night and shelling enemy targets at the point where the Appian Way skirts the shore. Naval anti-aircraft fire shot down a number of enemy planes.

The German air force sent up one of its biggest formations seen in weeks over the Italian battle areas. The formation attacked the beachhead below Rome but Allied defence planes tore into the Germans, strewing the beaches with wreckage.

Twenty-five enemy planes were downed in this action, it was announced.

This bag, together with enemy losses in the Southern France actions, gave the Allied air force one of its biggest days in this theatre recently.

The day's operations included smashes at communications north of Rome and in the immediate battle zones.

French Hangars Hit

The air fields attacked in France were those at Montpellier, and Istres Le Tube and Salon De Provence, near Marseille. Many hits were scored on hangars and dispersal areas, a communique said.

Meanwhile, medium bombers ranged over a wide area of Italy and attacked roads and rail communications at Terni and Orte on communication lines north of Rome and on Velletri and Colloferro.

The attack on Velletri, an Appian Way town about 18 miles from the outskirts of Rome, indicated the Germans were in error or were groping for information when they broadcast that the Allies had occupied that town.

During the day bombs also were dropped at Valmontone, on the Casilian Way 30 miles northeast of the invasion beachhead; on Belmonte, on the Atina Road six miles north of Cassino, and on Terrelle and Ceccano.

Throughout the day the strategic and tactical air arms flew a total of more than 1,400 sorties.

An announcement from headquarters today said British naval units had attacked a small convoy in the Aegean north of Rhodes, damaging a schooner and forcing the convoy to turn back.

BELLEVILLE BOY STOKER ON "CALGARY"

A picture was carried in The Ontario Intelligencer of Thursday showing the corvettes, Calgary and Snowberry, coming into port after their successful attack against Nazi U-boats in the Bay of Biscay and in which they secured a "kill" and possibly sank two more. Information has been received that Stoker 1st Class, Jack Boyle, son of Mrs. Harry Boyle, 14 Elmer Street, is a member of the Calgary. Jack has been on this ship since he was assigned to sea duty some months ago.

PROMOTED TO RANK OF PETTY OFFICER

Leading Seaman John D. Strickland, Royal Canadian Navy, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Strickland, 231 William Street, has been promoted to the rank of petty officer and is now serving on the west coast, according to information received from the naval department. Married with one child, Petty Officer Strickland has a brother, A. E. Strickland, also serving with the navy overseas as a petty officer sick berth attendant.

DO NOT DISTURB BULBS SAYS EXPERT

"Just leave your bulbs alone and nature will take care of any vagaries of the weather." Such is the advice given by one of Belleville's foremost horticulturists, Mr. A. R. Symons, Sinclair Street, to the many local flower growers who are worried about their bulbs as the result of the unusual weather experienced thus far this season.

"Some days I get as many as ten to a dozen telephone calls from anxious flower lovers asking what to do to protect their bulbs from possible frost danger," stated Mr. Symons. "My only answer is to leave them alone, nature will see that they go unharmed. It is when people go digging around their shrubs and plants during time of frost danger that the damage is done. The same goes in the spring too. My advice then is not to get in too big a hurry."

PROPERTY DAMAGE AMICABLY SETTLED

Minor fender and hub cap damage resulted when two motor cars were in collision on Station Street early Thursday evening. Police were informed that John Shannon, 12 Ashley Street, was about to make a lefthand turn off Station Street to proceed to his home just as another automobile, driven by Fred McCoy, 73 Front Street, was about to pass. McCoy told police Shannon failed to indicate his intentions of making the lefthand turn. The damage was slight insofar as property damage was concerned and amicably settled between the parties concerned. No charges were deemed necessary.

MUSKRAT ESCAPES BY RUNNING TO RIVER

Pedestrians along Front Street late Thursday night were surprised to see a small animal running about the street in an apparent state of excitement. Closer examination revealed the animal to be a muskrat that had apparently come from the vicinity of the Moira river and was unable to find its bearings. Pedestrians gave chase but the animal proved too alert, finally escaping by running down an alleyway towards the river.

Course in Implement Repair Starts Wed.

"Every farm machine is a fighting machine and must be in fighting trim when it goes into action in 1944". Such is the slogan being used to create the highest possible interest on the part of Hastings County farmers in the farm machinery repair courses which are to be held throughout the county during February.

Courses held in four county centres last winter proved of inestimable value to farmers in learning proper care and maintenance of farm machinery and are being expanded this year to take in many more centres. The courses also are more complete with more detailed instruction to be given.

The purpose of the courses is to point out the repair jobs which are most often encountered on the more important farm machines and to suggest to the farmer some practical methods of having the repairing done. Farmers will be encouraged to check their machines for needed repairs and to order repairs early eliminating as much as possible costly delays. Simple but most important adjustments necessary for the most efficient and economical operations of various machines will be pointed out.

Starting Wednesday, Feb. 2 at Cannifton emphasis will be given the first day on plow repairs and adjustments; mower repairs and adjustments and on the care and maintenance of dairy equipment. Slides showing labor saving methods and machines will also be shown.

Practical rope work, such as splicing, will be demonstrated on the second day when binder and combine repairs and adjustments will also be given the necessary time. Slides on tractor maintenance will be shown and the agricultural war production program outlined by H. Lynn Fair, agricultural representative.

Courses will be in charge of competent instructors and after being staged throughout the county will conclude at Belleville where the Kiwanis Club will sponsor a two-day course at Kiwanis Centre. All courses are free.

Membership of 627 is Reported, Current Revenue for 1943 at $7,884

REPORTS, ELECTIONS

The statements and reports of the various church bodies and organizations presented at the annual congregational meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church were indicative of the healthy condition of the organizations functioning in the work of the church.

The statement of the Kirk session given by the session clerk, Mr. A. L. Hill showed a membership of 629.

Church Revenues.

The church treasurer, Mr. A. R. Cameron, reported current revenue for the year of $7,884 with no outstanding bills or any debt on the church property and a credit balance of $137. The treasurer of the Budget Fund reported $1,630 sent to the church treasurer in Toronto. Mr. Geo. A. Reid, chairman of the Foundation Fund Committee reported $1,352 contributed. The reports of the secretary and treasurer of the Women's Guild indicated a very active year. The Guild through group activities and the bazaar raised $1,463. The overseas committee of the Guild reported 146 boxes sent to members serving in the Active Forces overseas.

Mr. Elgin Ford presented the reports of St. Andrew's Sunday School. The Sunday School was using the graded series of lessons and was organized into departments. Much equipment had been added during the year and the school was ably staffed. Parents were urged to co-operate with the staff of the Sunday School in seeing that their children attend regularly. Expenditures for the year were $444, with a credit balance of $37 at the end of the year. The Sunday School had $1,000 in Dominion of Canada bonds.

The Women's Missionary Society reports indicated an active year under the leadership of Mrs. D. L. Fleming, the president. The society raised $526 during the year. The Mae Carruthers Mission Band reported a membership of 27 with a contribution of $69 sent to Miss Fowler in Kingston.

Financial reports from the Choral Society, the Y.P.S. and the Men's Club all showed credit balances for the year. All financial statements were certified correct by the auditors Messrs. D. L. Fleming and E. F. C. Kinnear. The auditors named were re-appointed for the year 1944.

Three elders were nominated and elected, Messrs. C. A. Brown, E. N. Pidgen and G. H. Stokes M.P. The six retiring members of the Board of Managers were re-elected Messrs. A. R. Cameron, K. S. Hill, Dr. J. W. Kinnear, W. L. McDougall, E. F. Rutherford and O. W. Duff. Messrs. John Kirkwood and A. Carswell were appointed to the Board of Managers to replace Messrs. C. A. Brown and E. N. Pigden appointed as elders.

A budget committee representative of the various church bodies was appointed, Messrs. W. V. Fairbairn and I. L. Moore representing the Kirk session, Mr. K. S. Hill the Board of Managers, Mrs. A. R. Cameron the W.M.S., Miss Hazel Beaumont the Women's Guild, Mr. Bruce Beavis the Congregation and Mr. John Wilson the Sunday School.

Commendation and appreciation of the active interest and service of Rev. Mr. Hornsby and Mrs. Hornsby in all phases of the church work were expressed.

December Red Cross Report

An executive meeting of the Belleville branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society was held following the annual meeting in the Y.M.C.A. on Jan. 21. Mr. M. P. Duff presided.

Bills totalling $387.06 were presented by Mr. Hefkey, in the absence of the treasurer, Mr. Zeran.

Delegates to the annual meeting of the provincial council were appointed, namely Mr. Duff, Mrs. Mikel and Mrs. Kinnear or Mrs. Argue.

The report for December of the Women's War Work Committee was presented by Mrs. Mikel as follows:

During December 11 cartons of knitted goods and clothing were shipped to Toronto, besides 12 cases of honey.

453 knitted needs were sent, of which 79 were Air Force, 90 for survivors' bundles, 145 for capture parcels, 80 for civilian relief, 30 for Newfoundland and 29 for liaison work. Besides these there were 448 articles sent. 15 of these were leather jerkins, 211 articles for hospital use, 29 for Greek relief and 193 for British civilian relief.

Besides this, 3 leather jerkins, 1 sleeveless sweater, 2 pairs of service socks and 2 pairs of seaman's stockings were given out to men in service.

Donations of Clothing:

Stone Church, Holloway Missionary Society, Christ Church W. A., Madoc Village, Miss Pritchard, Victoria Ave. Baptist Church, Moult War Workers, Bridge St. United Church.

Donations of Knitted Articles

Holloway Red Cross Unit, Melrose Red Cross, Bridge St. United Church, Belleville Collegiate Institute, Ontario School for the Deaf, Mrs. Carre, Mrs. C. A. Cameron, Mrs. Bernstein.

Chief Inspector For Accident Prevention Heard

Mr. H. Mabson, Chief Inspector of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association of Ontario, addressed the District meeting of Plant Management and Supervisors held in the Y.M.C.A. Wednesday night under the chairmanship of Ald. H. J. Allin, Vice-chairman of the Central Ontario Division of the Association. There were 31 members present, representing 22 industrial firms. Mr. Mabson was introduced to the meeting by H. A. Cranfield, Canadian General Electric Company, Peterborough, and was thanked for his appearance in the city by Mr. H. Legate. In the absence of Mayor Rollins, Ald. Jack Trudeau expressed the thanks of the City for Mr. Mabson's speech.

Mr. Mabson spoke on a subect he entitled "Too Busy For Safety." He said that most people were intensely interested in the happenings of the far-flung battle fronts of the war, in which almost the entire human race is engaged, but that it is not in the interests of safety to become so centred that it clouds the vision of what is actually happening on the home front.

In Ontario alone, in the past 12 months, 131,458 persons were injured, of which 424 were killed, while in the process of earning an honest living; the direct cost of which was $11,144,754.21; the total cost both direct and indirect to industry would be nearer 50 million: a terrific casualty list for industry and one of which no one can feel proud.

Mechanized War

The war, being a mechanized war, is a war of the production lines. It requires the time and skill of about sixteen men in producing the raw materials, fabricating the metals and assembling the machines of war to maintain one man as an efficient fighting unit on the battle front. This means, that unless the productive capacity of those sixteen men is steadily maintained, the soldier at the front is almost certain to lack some of the essential things to ensure victory.

Speed in production and transportation is not possible without safety. Forgetting the humanitarian and emotional aspects of the war altogether, and it still remains a matter of cold, hard efficiency. A Commander of troops takes every precaution, that the lives and weapons of his men will not be needlessly wasted. Industry can learn some real safety lessons from our armed forces. If guards, gogles and good practices were applied by workers as thoroughly as our fighting men apply their safety measures, we can be sure industrial accidents would be decreased. Industrial Management, which neglects a thing so essential in the present crisis as the safety of its employees, is also inviting the disaster, which would befall an army commander, who did not take the precautions necessary to the safety of his men.

Management, in turn must depend on its supervisors and foremen, and in the last analysis on the workers or employees themselves, so that through the co-ordinated efforts of all, we may develop such a spirit of teamwork, that accidents will be brought under control, production accelerated and maintained to such a degree that "Victory will be ours."

Concern Felt For Fall Grain In Hastings

Extracts from reports submitted by Agricultural representatives issued by the Ontario Department of Africulture about the crop situation in Central Ontario, Hastings County say the demand for good dairy cattle continues strong. Water is becoming scarce on many farms, and some farmers are drawing water for their stock. The fields in the south of the county are bare and some concern is being expressed regarding fall grain. The unusual weather which has prevailed since Christmas in Northumberland County, with practically no snow, finds the farmers' wells dry and cisterns empty. Ice harvest is progressing satisfactorily, and the most wood in many years has been cut in the county. In spite of losses from early pruning last year, many fruit men are taking advantage of the good weather for this operation.

In Lennox and Addington County a number of poultry men have already ordered their baby chicks, and expect to receive them early next month. The Hatchery reports better orders than even a year ago. The seed cleaning plants are getting busy. At a meeting of the Directors of the Crop Improvement Association, it was decided to have a seed fair this spring, as it was felt that it would be advantageous to have an exhibit of the seed that is for sale. The Quinte District Seed Growers are bringing in a car load of 1st generation Reg. No. 1 Ajax seed oats from Moose Jaw, Sask.

Canadian Unit Gives Christmas Party for Tots

"I'm not certain, who are having the most fun, . . . my men or the kiddies", is the statement made by the Officer Commanding a Canadian Regiment where men were giving a Christmas Party for tiny tots at a crippled children's Home somewhere in England, contained in a newspaper clipping received by Mr. and Mrs. Sam Turner, 55 Grier Street, from their son, Bombardier Eddie Turner of Murney Street.

The clipping went on to say, "Everyone of the kiddies had an 'Uncle' for the occasion, and two of the most popular 'relatives' were Gunner T. Main and Bdr. Eddie Turner. These two were responsible for the making of over 50 toys out of scrap metal, including windmills with revolving vanes, and ultra modern metal landing craft. During the tea, the Matron thanked the officers, N.C.O.'s and men on behalf of herself, the staff and the kiddies for the great treat given them. "You've given us all a breath of pre-war Christmas", she said. Organizer of the party was Supervisor Wilkinson of the Canadian Y.M.C.A., who arranged that boxes should be placed in all the Regiment's mess rooms so that the men could drop in any sweets, chocolates, gum, they could spare. They "spared" over one hundred pounds of rich Canadian candies".

Included in the gifts to the children were candies and chocolate bars sent to Bdr. Turner in boxes from the various organizations of Belleville, and also from his own people. The clipping also contained a picture of the Christmas Party showing each of the Canadian boys holding a little tot.

Obituary

LATE MRS. RICHARD DUKE

Picton, Jan. 28. — Wife of the late Rev. Richard Duke, Mary Ellen (Sprague) Duke was laid to rest in Glenwood Cemetery here Thursday. A short service was held in Glenwood chapel, Rev. J. F. Reycraft officiating, and entombment in Glenwood vault. On the evening previous, service had been held in the west chapel of Timothy Eaton Memorial church in Toronto, conducted by Rev. Mr. Watts, one of the oldest living associates of her husband, who at one time was stationed at Demorestville and other charges in this district.

Mrs. Duke was born at Demorestville, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Nostrand Sprague. Since 1911 she had resided in Toronto. Survivors are a daughter, Mrs. F. W. O'Flynn of Toronto and a son, R. S. Duke of Seattle, Wash.

5TH ALLIED ARMY

beachhead south of Rome that the German grip on the capital is menaced and enemy troops along the main Cassino front are threatened with being trapped if they cling to their positions in the hills.

This is an optimistic view, but the manner in which British and United States troops gouged a hole in a short time and consolidated their position leave no alternative but to be optimistic.

The Allies smashed in from the sea at probably the most vulnerable spot in all the German defence in Italy and moved swiftly to take advantage of the element of surprise.

Unbroken Flow of Men, Equipment

Men, guns, armor and supplies have poured across the beach in an unbroken flow and in such proportions that no one I have met has any fears that the Germans ever will be able to threaten a break-through such as endangered the Salerno beachhead.

Whether the Germans can concentrate enough force against the beachhead remains to be seen, but at this phase it appears unlikely and this feeling of confidence runs thru the entire section of the 5th Army whose job it is to hold and widen the bridgehead.

Results of the amphibious landing have given the Allies many advantages. Some of them were these: The Army advanced more than 30 miles toward Rome with exceptionally light casualties.

A strong force was able to bypass the enemy's mountain defences and avoid a slow, slogging fight up the valley on a single front.

The move has threatened to bottle up the Cassino sector and isolate parts of at least five enemy divisions which have held up the Allied advance for weeks on the winter line.

CANADIAN ARMY

Allied headquarters has also announced that the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards were taking part in the Italian fighing.

While identity of the divisional commanders of the corps is not given, presumably Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes leads the 1st. Division. His predecessor, Maj.-Gen. Guy Simonds, who led the 1st. in Sicily, was transferred to the command of an armored division, but there is no information to indicate it is fighting with the corps.

Spearheaded by the 1st Division, which took part in the heavy fighting as the left flank of the 8th Army in the six-weeks campaign leading to the cracking of the Mt. Etna line and the occupation of Sicily, the Canadian Corps looks like a tough formation to military circles here.

It was the 1st Division that crossed to Italy proper Sept. 3 and began the advance up the Italian peninsula — again as part of the 8th Army, then in command of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery and now under his successor, Lt.-Gen. Sir Oliver Leese.

In the 38-day Sicilian campaign, the Canadians suffered 2,439 casualties while the total for the Italian campaign up to Jan. 18 and including unofficial figures was 2,073.

Canadian troops overcame the most stubborn resistance of their Mediterranean campaign in winning the Battle of the Moro Valley which ended Dec. 28 when the Germans withdrew from the Adriatic coastal town of Ortona.

Gen. Crerar, the Corps leader has served in many capacities. He went to the United Kingdom in the early days of the war to set up Canadian military headquarters in London and prepare for the arrival of the first contingent of Canadian troops.

He later served as Chief of the General Staff and subsequently as a Corps Commander in Britain.

Defence Minister Ralston announced his appointment as Commander of the Canadian Corps in the Mediterranean theatre Dec. 27. He had gone there last autumn to organize and group his troops.

The purpose of the meeting was to set up a committee to provide equipment and comforts for a corvette to be launched early in April to be named the "Belleville." A campaign to raise the necessary funds will be started very shortly by the committee.

EDEN SAYS

Cited One Incident

Eden then cited the case of a Shanghai police officer who was interned with 300 other Allied nationals there.

"He incurred the displeasure of the Japanese gendarmerie and was taken to their office in another part of town," Eden related.

"When he emerged from the building he was practically out of his mind. His arms and feet were infected where ropes had left deep scars and he had lost 40 pounds weight. He died within a day or two of his release."

He said the hands of a number of Indian soldiers captured in Burma had been tied behind their backs and then the men had been systematically bayonetted from behind —each receiving three bayonet thrusts.

Assailing the "barbarous nature of our Japanese enemies," Eden declared Japan violated not only the principles of international law "but all canons of decent civilized conduct."

Urged to Serve Notice

Sir John Wardlaw Milne, conservative, urged that the British and American governments serve notice on Japan that "every atrocity will be remembered" and bring pressure to permit a commission of Spanish, Portuguese and other neutrals to investigate Japanese prison camps.

Replying, Mr. Eden said:-

"We have tried every representation we can possibly devise. We have put up every suggestion we can think of . . . We have been met by a cynical refusal, and the government feel that there is nothing left to do but make the facts public and hope perhaps that action at long last would bring the Japanese authorities to understand their responsibilities."

Newspaper Executive, Native of Fenelon Falls, Dies in New York

New York, Jan. 28 —(AP)— William T. Dewart, 68, president of the New York Sun who rose from a $12-a-week office manager to become one of the country's leading newspaper executives, died last night.

He had been in ill health for some time and was seriously ill three weeks.

Dewart became president of the Sun Printing and Publishing Company in 1925 after the death of Frank A. Munsey who 27 years before had hired him as an office manager.

While still in his 20's, Dewart became financial director of enterprises including dozens of newspapers and magazines, the Mohican Hotel in New London, Conn., the Mohican Stores, the Munsey Trust Company in Washington, D.C., and a large quantity of real estate.

Dewart, who had been general manager of the Sun, an evening newspaper, since 1903, announced the purchase of the paper, the New York Evening Telegram and other Munsey interests for $13,000,000 in 1926. He said he would mutualize the Sun.

He sold the Telegram a year later to the Scripps-Howard interests, explaining: "Because the growth of the Sun demands that I devote my time to one newspaper."

Dewart was born in Fenelon Falls, Ont., and came to the United States in 1881.

Roar of Artillery Heard in Rome

Stockholm, Jan. 28 — (AP)—The roar of Allied artillery now is heard plainly in all parts of Rome and Allied aircraft swarm the skies about the city, the Rome correspondent of the Goeteborg Handels Sjoefarts Tidningen said in a dispatch yesterday.

The Swedish correspondent said naval officers in Rome estimated that at least 2,800 vessels of all descriptions participated in the Allied landings at Nettuno. He said the immense armada virtually covered the sea off the landing beaches.

AMBASSADOR RESIGNS

Montevideo, Uruguay, Jan. 28 (AP) — Gen. Arturo Rawson has resigned as Argentina's ambassador to Brazil as part of the upheaval in the Argentine government which already has resulted in the resignation of three cabinet ministers and three other officials since the severance of diplomatic relations with the Axis Wednesday.

C.Q.M.S. J. Frair Wounded in Thigh Now in Hospital

Picton, Jan. 28.—C.Q.M.S. James Frair, who was wounded in action in Italy, Dec. 20, suffered shrapnel wounds in the thigh, he reveals in a letter to his wife here. He states that he is in hospital and progressing well. 'We had turkey for Christmas and roast pork for dinner the next day. Every day the Italian children come around selling a variety of fruit. Oranges are about 22 cents a dozen'.

Fifth Birthday Overseas.

Writing home from the Middle East where he is in hospital suffering from a wound in the arm, Pte. Milton Heffernan recalls that he had just marked his 28th birthday, his fifth such observance since he went overseas in December 1939. He expects to be out of hospital in a few days. His brother, Harold, was wounded at the some time, also in the shoulder. Both are with Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Promoted to Major.

Winston C. Hicks, commanding officer of 'C' Co., 2nd Bn. Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, R.F., has been promoted to the rank of major. He enlisted in this unit in 1929, received his commission in 1935 as first lieutenant,, and in 1939 became a captain. He went overseas with the regiment but returned to Canada in August 1940, owing to ill health of his father, and since had been identified with the Reserve. A brother, Dr. Merlin Hicks is a squadron leader with the R.C.A.F. overseas.

Annual Vestry Meeting.

At the annual vestry meeting of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, receipts totalling $8,110 were reported by the Rector, Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne. Officials named were Rector's Warden, E. L. Bronskill; People's Warden, Colin Carter; Lay delegates to Synod, for three years, Judge E. H. McLean, Major Medhurst and F. J. Webster; Vestry Council, L. B. Calnan, W. A. Broadbridge, George Ross, Harry Clarke, C. Patterson, C. G. Rutter, J. B. Arnaud, Dr. J. H. Walmsley; Auditors, J. Arnaud, Harry Hunt. Votes of thanks were extended to all who has assisted in the various organizations. The ladies served refreshments.

Purchase Block.

J. N. Baillie and Edmund Carter have purchased a business block on the corner of Main and Elizabeth Streets, from Richard Hadden. This block is at present occupied by the Bell Telephone Co., and at one time housed Picton Post office. The new owners plan no immediate changes.

Letter From Africa.

Writing to friends from North Africa, Pte. Jack May states, 'The Arabs here will put anything they have up for sale, even their wives if they are hard up. But the army says its illegal so we do not buy any.' Of the Arabs, he stated they are dirty and everything bought from them must be washed. There are no conveniences for the troops and it is a case of eating, washing clothes and dishes and even bathing, all in tin cans. Chocolate bars from home are considered as good as gold. You have got to be A1 to stand the life, he says, and concludes by saying, 'If you know of anyone coming out here, tell them to learn to pray, because we do a lot of it here'.

SGTS. FOLEY, TRUMBLE GRADUATE AS PILOTS

Two Hastings County airmen, one from Belleville and the other from Marmora, were among the pilots who graduated at the wings parade at No. 2 S.F.T.S. at Uplands this afternoon. The airmen are Sgt. Thomas L. Foley, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Foley, George St. and Sgt. E. C. Trumble, of Marmora.

Sgt. Foley was born in Belleville and attended school here, enlisting in the Air Force in November, 1942. Prior to his graduation at Uplands today he had taken a four weeks bombing course at the Carp training station. His mother proceeded to Uplands today to see her son graduate.

Recommendations of War Labor Board Tabled in House

By JACK WILLIAMS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 28 —(CP)—Recommendations for compulsory collective bargaining and other legislation covering labor relations were made by the National War Labor Board in reports tabled today in the House of Commons by Labor Minister Mitchell.

The reports, based on the Board's 1943 inquiry into labor relations and wage conditions, contained lengthy suggestions on both subjects. The wage recommendations provided a basis for the recent amendments to the government's wartime wage-control order. The suggestions for improvement in labor relations have resulted in a government decision to enact a new labor code, expected to be made public shortly.

The majority report on the six-week inquiry was signed by the chairman, Mr. Justice C. P. McTague, and Leon LaLande. J. L. Cohen, K.C., since removed from the Board by order-in-council, signed a minority report.

On many of the more important points, the two reports were in agreement.

The recommendations included:

LABOR RELATIONS.

The majority report proposed a National Labor Relations Board to administer a labor code for war industries providing for compulsory collective bargaining, with safeguards against abuses by either labor or industry and penalties under the War-Time Defence of Canada Regulations. All disputes, whether or not covered by collective agreements, would be compulsorily arbitrated and strikes and lockouts outlawed.

The minority report also proposed a code and included a suggestion that "company unions" be outlawed. Establishment of permanent conciliation boards was proposed to handle disputes outside provisions of the code.

ON LABOR-MANAGEMENT COMMITTEES.

Both reports recommended establishment of labor-management committees on a broad scale, with industry-labor councils for each industry. The majority report proposed the eventful organization of a national council of employers and labor.

ON LABOR REPRESENTATION

Both reports supported Labor's request for representation on government boards.

ON WAGES

The majority report proposed revision of wage-control regulations with the establishment of a floor of 50 cents an hour up to which free bargaining could be carried on. As an alternative, allowances to families with children were suggested. Increases could be authorized to rectify "gross inequalities and injustices" and cost-of-living bonuses should be merged with the base rate or a new bonus instituted from a revised cost-of-living index.

The minority report recommended restriction of wage increases to reward greater productivity, rectify sub-standard or inequitable rates, or in cases justified by man-power needs; removal of restrictions on adjustment of wages up to 50 cents an hour. Payment of the full cost-of-living bonus (then $4.25 a week and since increased to $4.80 for adult workers) to all workers.

ON WOMEN IN INDUSTRY

The majority report recommended organization of a Women's Employment Board.

The minority report advocated encouragement of employment of women in industry, "to the fullest extent necessary in the interests of production," on a basis of equal pay for equal work.

ON INCOME TAX DEDUCTIONS

The majority report proposed "changes in methods of income tax deductions so as to put deductions on a more level basis and dispel the prevailing impression that overtime pay is taxed at unduly heavy rates."

The minority report proposed income tax exemption on overtime pay by Order-in-Council, and a review of the application of taxes on overtime.

The government has already adopted the main recommendations on wages contained in the majority report. The new wage-control order bases authority for increase on "gross inequalities and injustices" and merges the, cost-of-living bonuses workers now are receiving with their basic rate effective Feb. 16, after which no cost-of-living bonus will be paid.

No action was taken through the wage order to free workers receiving less than 5 cents an hour for wage restrictions; but yesterday the government in the Throne speech at the opening of parliament proposed family allowances, indicating it was following the alternative proposal of Mr. Justice McTague and Mr. Lalande.

Draft of Code Not Announced.

The draft of the new labor relations code now being prepared has not been made public, but it has been the subject of consultations between the Dominion and the Provinces and more recently opinions were sought from labor and employer organizations. Final revisions now are being made.

The majority report termed the right of collective bargaining "the most important question involved" in its investigation. Although the right had been recognized in a practical way in Canada for 50 years it had been resisted "by far the majority of employers."

"Generally speaking, the great mass of employers, until comparatively recent years, have employed all weapons in their power to resist and discourage the trade union movement,' the majority report said.

A feeling of helplessness and hopelessness acquired during the depression years had led to a willingness on the part of labor to be organized 'under a new regime of aggressive unionism."

To meet these conditions some employers had organized "independent unions and even financed them. The majority report said that in time of war such a course was "a futile sort of process."

Better Leadership Needed

At another point the report said: "Labor itself, which is fundamentally sound and loyal, suffers from a good deal of irresponsible leadership. Its total legitimate ends cannot be acquired overnight .... a few years from now we venture to predict there will be left little of any unorganized industry.

A satisfactory code of labor relations would have to take cognizance of unnecessary and undesirable tactics on the part of both labor organizers and industry.

"The only solution that we see is to make collective bargaining compulsory under a code providing a set of rules that will be fair to both parties and in the national interest and administered by an umpire who cannot be called into question," the report said.

"Generally speaking we have reached the decision from the evidence that under present war conditions it is in the national interest that such a principle of collective bargaining should be made compulsory. Without going into details, any such measure must take into cognizance that the national interest is more important that that of either industry or organized labor."

Administered by Board

The report recommended that the code be administered by an independent board whose members had no direct connection as industrialists or as officers of a labor organization.

Both labor and industry appeared prepared to accept compulsory arbitration of disputes, if carried out by an independent body with despatch and fairness.

Labor representation on government policy-making bodies would counteract misunderstanding and be particularly valuable at a time of lay-offs.

On the subject of wages and cost-of-living bonuses the majority report mentioned the importance of an education program to inform labor of the government's price and wage control policy.

The suggestion of merging the cost-of-living bonus with the basic rate was described as "the least harmful answer" to overcoming difficulties that had arisen from the bonus.

In proposing a women's employment board the report referred to a plan in effect in Australia and suggested it be followed. The Commonwealth Board has complete judisdiction in employment of women.

Tax Causes Shirking

Present methods of income tax deduction were resulting in "a general tendency to shirk and avoid overtime work" and increased production which would result from a clearer understanding would compensate for the trouble involved in changing from the mechanics of present deductions, the majority report said.

In their conclusions Mr. Justice McTague and Mr. Lalande said they were "seriously concerned" with the effects of inflation on workers.

"We can conceive no greater disaster that could befall the workers of this country than the collapse of the price ceiling, particularly if it were to take place shortly before or shortly after the peace is won," the report said.

On a suggestion by Mr. Cohen in his minority report that all workers receive full cost-of-living bonus, the Majority report said an increase of 25 cents in the bonus, paid for an increase of one percentage point in the index, meant a total payroll increase of from $28,000,000 to $35,000,000.

"To multiply that figure several times to give effect to Mr. Cohen's proposals staggers us to a greater extent than it does Mr. Cohen," the majority report said.

Need Policy to Meet Peace

Mr. Cohen in his report reviewed Canada's industrial expansion under war conditions and urged the importance of framing a policy which would meet peace conditions. Fully effective mobilization of the country's resources was dependent on the morale and sense of security of the workers as well as their physical welfare.

The action of some employers in interfering with or destroying workers' organizations while the government "stands idly by" despite a declaration of policy favoring collective bargaining produced industrial unrest and was harmful to war morale.

Orders-in-council dealing with labor relations had proved highly ineffective, he said, adding:-

"It is an understatement to say that, as a result of this unsatisfactory legislative and administrative record, workers and the public generally now are dubious about the sincerity or clarity of government policy."

Framing of a general Dominion labor code applicable to all industry and enterprise relating to the war effort was advanced by Mr. Cohen as the only practical solution.

Differs in Opinion

Mr. Cohen differed from the majority report in his proposal for the composition of a board to administer the code. Except for the chairman, members should be direct representatives of labor and management, he said. Enforcement power should rest directly with the board, rather than being handled under the Defence of Canada Regulations as the majority report suggested.

He also proposed a wider interpretation of "war industries" than was suggested in the majority report.

In the operation of labor-management committees, Mr. Cohen said, workers should be taken into confidence by management and assured, in turn, that their confidence would not be abused. He proposed the summoning of a conference of Munitions Minister Howe with government officials and representatives of labor and industry to adopt a model working plan for the committees.

Joint production industrial councils were suggested for each industry with an over-all national industrial council to co-ordinate production and industrial planning.

In the conclusion of his report, Mr. Cohen said Labor's voluntary "no-strike" pledge for the war period had not been reciprocated by management and the government, and that this default should be remedied and the pledge revived and adhered to by all parties.

Heavy Losses Inflicted On Japs in North Burma

New Delhi, Jan. 28 —(AP)—Chinese troops have driven the Japanese from an area northeast of Taro in the Dalu river valley of northern Burma, a communique of the Southeast Asia Command announced today.

Heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy, the bulletin said, and the Chinese captured quantities of war equipment from the fleeing Japanese. Bitter fighting still raged eight miles northeast of Taro.

Allied troops were active west of the Mayu region and in the north Razabil sector Jan. 27 and progress was reported.

Airmen Pool Their Food For Midnight Snack

Ottawa, Jan. 28 —(CP)— To 18 ground crewmen of an R.C.A.F. Mosquito intruder squadron overseas a menu of Canadian pork and beans, sausages out of a tin, cheese and brown bread means a home away from home.

At their Maple Leaf Club, an ordinary billet bearing on its door a large maple leaf and squadron number, every day is "Canada Day" as parcels arrive and airmen from Victoria to Halifax pool their food for a midnight snack.

The ground crew are good hosts as their commanding officer, Wing Commander Paul Davoud, D.F.C., of Kingston, Ont., will testify. He is one of those favored with an invitation to dine.

On the club's walls are pin-up pictures of Banff, Alta., Vancouver and Ontario's Niagara peninsula.

Lloyd's May Open Membership To Persons in Empire

London, Jan. 28. (CP)—Membership in Lloyd's — world-famous corporation specializing in marine insurance—may soon be made available to persons resident in the British Dominions, the Daily Sketch said today.

Terming the possibility "one of the most sensational pieces of city news in many years", the Sketch said "new members would be representative of big insurance interests in the Dominions".

The paper gave no further details concerning such new members.

It said there would be manifold advantages in such a step, "among the most important being the opening of the door to much closer co-operation between the maritime nations of the world".

Toronto, Jan. 28. (CP) — Toronto insurance men expressed interest today in a London dispatch quoting the Daily Sketch that membership in Lloyd's— famed association of insurance underwriters—may be available soon to persons living in Canada and other British Dominions.

However, one insurance man said that some Canadian insurance brokers now write marine, fire and other insurance which is placed with Lloyd's through a "cover", or group of underwriters in London who belong to the Association.

C.M.A. EXECUTIVE MEETS

Hamilton, Jan. 28 —(CP)— The executive committee of the Canadian Manufacturers Association is meeting here today to consider post-war problems related to Canadian industry and to devise ways and means whereby industrialists may best accomplish the transformation from war to peacetime production.

New York, Jan. 28 (AP)—Owen Oliver, 77, newspaperman who once induced the New York Central Railroad to run a special train for him to get to and from his home at Yonkers, N.Y., at an odd hour, died in hospital yesterday at Eastview, N.Y. He worked for New York papers from 1900 until his retirement in 1942.

WOOLER

Newlyweds Honored

Wooler — The newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Jeffery were feted to a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Ellis on their return from their wedding trip. Approximately sixty guests were received by the bridal couple, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Ellis and Mr. and Mrs. Everett Ellis. Mr. and Mrs. Jeffery and Miss Mabel Redcliffe presided at the attractively arranged table with white and pink streamers where the gifts were on display. Under the convenership of Miss Mabel Redcliffe, an interesting program with Rev. W. T. R. Delve as chairman was enacted by several entertainers. Mrs. Karl Austin was pianist for community singing.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Arnley Masters and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Hubble were dinner guests on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alden Arthur.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert McColl entertained at a dinner on Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Elgin McMaster, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Sharpe and Kathleen.

The C.G.I.T. girls' club and the Tuxis boys met in the parlors of the United Church on Tuesday evening with a good attendance.

On Tuesday the W. A. gathered in the parlors of the United Church and the crowd was very gratifying. Cash collections amounted to $24 and work on quilts and other needlework kept the ladies busy. The dinner was very appetizing.

Woman Roused Over Loose Stamp 'Price'

New Orleans, Jan. 28. (AP)—M. J. Leumas, district United States office of Price Administration Shoe Rationing officer, reported this telephone call from ah irate female citizen: "A woman in my neighborhood is selling loose shoe stamps above the ceiling price. I have never paid over 50 cents for a loose stamp, and this woman I am telling you about is selling them for three dollars!"

U. S. Gathers Information Of Prisoners' Treatment At Hands of Japanese

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP)—State Secretary Cordell Hull said today that the United States has been gathering all possible information about the treatment of American prisoners held by the Japanese so that war criminals may be punished when the war ends.

Legions of Democracy

Over ground where once the legions of Julius Caesar trod going to war and returning from their conquests with races and wealth in their train, are now marching and fighting the legions of a world democracy to remove the German menace from humanity and usher in a secure world. These modern Allied armies bring liberation and the assurance of the day when the Hitlerite brand of aggression will be ended and the world will be able to breathe freely again.

The young men of Britain, the United States and Canada are the products of a freedom which Italy has never known. Their motive differs from that of the followers of Caesar who was one of the world's conquerors. The conquerors which Italy knew until a few weeks ago were a wretched trio of bandits and gangsters, Mussolini, Hitler and Tojo who cannot be mentioned in the same breath with the name of Caesar for, though dictator and conqueror, he extended Roman law order and civilization. Contrasted with him the gangster trio of modern dictators have been wretched and sorry enough, Hitler, Mussolini and Tojo have not given one good measure to the world, they have been but destroyers of everything that man admires, peace, co-operation of nations in peaceful pursuits of service to the world idea of democracy.

Democracy is advancing not to make slaves of the world but to spread democracy and to provide security to peoples that desire to live in peace and happiness, and to further the ways of international relationship with honor.

Not far ahead of the Allied forces lies the Eternal City of Rome. Some observers expect that Germany will withdraw her forces from Rome to the northern lines. One thing is clear, Germany cannot hold Italy. She knows it and she must know too that she will not be able to hold the "Fortress of Europe" as Hitler calls the part of Europe he has overrun and that Germany herself must yield. They must read the signs of all these events, by air, by the advance of Allies in Italy and Russia. The Allied armies are on the move.

900 Bushels of Potatoes to Acre

(Farmers Advocate)

Just when we get through praising those poto growers in South Simcoe who produced 500 bushels to the acre, word comes through the Northland Post at Cochrane that Dave Hackett grew 650 bushel to the acre and this estimate of yield was made by the Agricultural Representative, D. J. Pomerleau.

But that is not all. A. H. Mercer, manager of the Fraser Valley Milk Producers Association, was reading in the Farmer's Advocate about the wonderful achievement in South Simcoe and it got under his skin. He thereupon sent forward a report signed by the district potato inspector, H. S. MacLeod, that showed where Leslie Gilmore, Lulu Island, B.C., had grown 27 tons or 900 bushels per acre. H. A. Howse was second in the same competition with 26 tons or 867 bushels per acre.

More than that the variety was Netted Gem, which is not a big yielder, Katahdin, Chippewa, Columbia, Russet or White Rose will outyield Netted Gem, under the same conditions, by four or five tons per acre, Mr. Mercer says.

Those Salvoes of Victory

Again and again Premier Stalin has had the satisfaction of ordering 24 salvoes from 324 guns to mark the great victory at Leningrad, the city which held off the Nazi might and withstood the siege of the Hitlerites and is now completely liberated according to the announcement yesterday of the Russian commander, Govorov, who had the honor of liberating the citadel of the north and flinging back the German armies to distances of forty to sixty miles.

The order for salvoes of the booming of the mighty Russian guns is one of the inspirations of the Russian Premier Stalin. Their effect upon the morale of Russia cannot be denied and the iteration with which the salvoes are given—and only for great victories—must have a devastating influence upon the Germans and their neurotic leader Hitler.

The booming must sound like the knocking of fate at the doors of Germany. It is not only the sound or the repetition of the artillery honors given in the event of victory but it is because these Russian victories mean so much additional crushing defeat for the Germans.

Many Russian victories have already been counted by the booming of the guns and these give promise that this Russian thunder will continue, that it will move nearer and nearer to Germany—an event which the people and the military clique of Germany dread.

Stalin's armies have the punch, the Germans know to their sorrow. This latest offensive took the Red soldiery just fourteen days.

Russian winter offensives have been powerful agents for demolition of German strength. Then last summer the Muscovites took the summer offensive away from Hitler and swept the Germans back into withdrawal or retreat which has gone into the powerful winter wallops which the Russians are now giving the Germans.

Liberia

Liberia is now at war with Germany and Japan, having made a declaration against them on Wednesday of this week. Here is a young negro republic on the west coast of Africa, founded in 1820 by liberated American slaves and recognized as an independent state in 1847 linked up with the United Nations. This nation which came into being through the enterprise and vision of free men appreciates the meaning of liberty. It has a population of 1,800,000 among whom 20,0000 American negroes and their descendants are numbered. The English language predominates among the governing class and the native population is gradually attaining a high seate of civilization.

The Germans and the Japanese are the outlaws among the nations—that is the verdict of humanity in an age that knows from experience of war what the German and the Japanese are. Nations throughout the world see that Hitler's and Tojo's hands have been raised against all free men and all free nations.

More Bible Readers

(Christian Science Monitor)

What does it mean when Bible readers in the United States increase from 59 per cent to 64 per cent of the population in a year? What is the significance of the upward jump from 48 per cent to 57 per cent for the 21 to 29 year group?

The answer obviously lies in the war. The mothers are turning to their Bibles. They always have, in every national and personal emergency, and always found solace and comfort. But now the young wives and sisters and sweethearts must be added. A 9 per cent increase of Bible readers among those in their twenties so indicates.

Bible-reading young women presage a coming generation who will have the advantage of being reared by Bible-reading mothers. Children of such mothers will have the advantage of Sunday School tutelage and training. And thousands of lads in the service who will be the fathers of these youngsters will know by actual experience something of the efficacy of prayer and the value of Bible promises over which women at home are poring.

More Bible reading today not only must bless the readers, but it promises much good for the generation to come.

"THE WORD"

When they gossip in the Navy (and there's plenty of it there),
Of who's coming to the station and who's going, when and where;
When the rumors thick are pouring out of mouths that should be shut,
They are spreading, in the Navy, what is known as "scuttlebut."
But the times the chief is talking, he's the man that must be heard,
That's a very different matter, for he's giving out "the word."

If, for breaking regulations you've been brought before the mast
And the Skipper's talking to you, that's a lesson! Learn it fast!
That's not "scuttlebutt" he's spilling as he orders, "go below!"
He is surely telling something it is best for you to know.
That's the truth beyond a question, not just something that's inferred,
You should be a wiser sailor when he's given you "the word."

When the gunnery instructor shows you
how the gun is made,
Bids you tear it down and build it, 'tis for that he's junior grade.
When he's teaching recognition; how to spot both ship and plane,
That's not "scuttlebutt," young sailor.
That is something else again.
And you'd better give attention, lest promotion be deferred.
For that striper of the Navy is just giving you "the word."

Whitehall Notebook

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 28 — (CP) — It is time, griped the parliament of the Isle of Man, that "that island across the water" came to recognize the need for a greater measure of home rule for the 50,000 people who live on these 227 square miles of land in the Irish Sea.

To the government of "that island" — Britain — the House of keys agreed unanimously and strongly to direct a petition asking an amendment to a constitution which, the speaker declared, comes of "a theory of government not much different in its application to the Isle of Man than that applied by Germany to the occupied countries."

The House of Keys would vest powers over finance and appointments now held by Lieut.-Governor Vice Admiral Lord Granville in an executive committee appointed by Tynwald, the legislature, with the Governor as president. They would reserve most seats of the committee for members of their own, Lower, House.

As the isle is governed today, the power lies chiefly in the hands of the Lieutenant-Governor.

The Isle of Man has its own legislature, called the Tynwald, which consists of two branches, the Lieutenant-Governor and Council and House of Keys.

The Council consists of the Lieutenant-Governor, a Bishop, two judges or "Deemsters," the Attorney-General, two members appointed by the Governor and four by the House of Keys. The Lower House has 24 members elected by popular vote.

The franchise is weighted on the side of property by plural voting. A third of the electors return two-thirds of the members.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

Moths were as pestiferous a 100 years ago as they are now. But different methods were used in battling with them! Let's see what a magazine of the 1860's recommended: "Take out every article of fur or woollen from your cupboards, give a thorough shaking and whipping, a long exposure to hot sun, if practicable, and another dressing with the switch before storing them. Put salt and Scotch snuff under the edges of carpets. Fumigate the closets and drawers with tobacco. On returning the articles to their places, put small branches of cedar or distribute little packages of campnor gum among them."

In this year, loving care was expended on the making of the "double-skirted" dress, acclaimed as "a very great novelty." "Imagine a gored skirt of scarlet poplin trimmed on the edge with a fluted ruffle, above which are four rows of black velvet. This may be regarded in the light of a petticoat. Over this is a dress of grey poplin with skirt slightly gored and a plain round corsage with very wide belt and buckle. The peculiarity of the dress is, that the skirt is open from the waist to the edge of the skirt both back and front. It is furnished with buttons and buttonholes, so that it can be fastened up at pleasure. Rows of lace or velvet are carried all the way up the skirt on either side of the buttons and buttonholes. Belt, epaulettes, collar and cuffs should match the underskirt in colour and trimmings."

Two Members In Army Uniform Reply to Speech

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Jan. 28 — (CP) — Two House of Commons members in Army uniform today will move and second the address in reply to the speech from the throne, which yesterday marked the launching of a program of social security and reconstruction by the federal government.

The address will be moved by Lieut. L. D. Tremblay (L—Dorchester) and seconded by Capt. Walter Tucker (L—Rostern). When the mover and seconder have spoken the debate will be adjourned until Monday when leaders of opposition parties will have an opportunity to set forth their views.

The Senate adjourned until Tuesday after hearing the speech from the throne read by the Governor-General.

Several liberal members were frank in admitting they liked the throne speech and the ammunition which they felt it gave them for fighting an election campaign which they said they expect within the year.

Tempered with the warning that Canadians must continue to bend every effort to winning the war, the speech placed emphasis on steps to carry the Dominion over the transition from war to peace without suffering, and to bring into operation services designed to end fear of unemployment, ill-health and old age.

Useful Employment

The administration program as outlined in the speeches contemplates useful employment for all willing to work, and standards of nutrition and housing adequate to ensure the health of the whole population.

The speech said the government intends to leave nothing undone to have Canada in a position to meet difficult situations after the war.

The program envisages creation of three government departments concerned with post-war planning —veterans' affairs, reconstruction and social welfare.

Proposed revision of the bank act will rouse lively debate in view of the money reform proposals supported by the new democracy (social credit) party, and some private members. The C. C. F., too, is likely to advance suggestions as to how the banks should operate.

The promise of government arrangements for the taking of votes by men and women in the services was a reminder that a general election is probable within a year, officials said.

It probably will be necessary to provide voting facilities to Canadians serving all over the world.

Edmonton, Jan. 28.—(CP)—The Alberta Farmers' Union today advocated control of all finance by the Dominion Government in order that "it would not be obliged to listen to orders from the banks or loan companies". A resolution to this effect was passed last night.

Letters to the Editor

RIGHT TO SEEK ONE'S OWN HERITAGE SHOULD BE GUARDED WELL

Editor The Ontario Intelligencer:

We find little interest in the sheltered lives of those who have social security provided for them by others. We are more interested in and more inspired by the venturesome ones who go out and face the unknown, depending on their own energy and resourcefulness to see them through. When the three goddesses were seeking to win the favor of Paris, one of them offered him wealth, power and security, one offered him love and beauty, but Athene, the goddess of Wisdom, offered him "a life of shocks, dangers and deeds." Any boy who has ever read the story will tell you that Athene's gift was the only one worth considering, because it promised abundance of life rather than abundance of possessions.

The best and most satisfactory social security a man can have is the ability and the opportunity to provide for himself and his dependants under laws which protect his basic rights from all who would invade them.

A government, seeking to provide its people with the best social security will adopt measures calculated to put the greatest number of people in a position to provide for themselves; and will call on the taxpayers to provide only for the unfortunate who cannot do so. Such measures would include:

Measures to promote the health and the physical and mental development of the citizens.

Measures to promote the moral development of the citizens, including man's duty to himself and to others.

Measures to encourage technical and occupational training and to keep the citizens abreast of the times in their several occupations.

Measures to protect the right of the citizen to have and to hold what he has honestly earned against the depredations alike of evil men and of evil governments.

Measures to protect the right of the citizen to sell his labor to whoever is willing to buy it, without having to ask leave of or to pay tribute to anyone.

Measures to remove all obstacles that stand in the way of honest trading.

Measures to abolish all privileges enjoyed by individuals or groups at the expense of others.

Measures to remove the disparity between urban and rural incomes.

Measures to encourage investment in enterprises that will give employment, and increase the wealth of the nation.

Measures to encourage people, during the days of their strength, to lay by something for their declining years and for their dependants.

Measures to provide for the care of those who are unable to provide for themselves.

LABOR AND BEER

Foxboro.

The Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.
Dear Sir:-

A news item warns us of a possible mass protest by Labor against present beer restrictions. Such intimations have been given notice before. As one who has had some intimate relations with the Labor movement and has always tried to keep conversant with its progress and has tried at all times to help towards its general aims and goals I hesitate to believe that the Labor movement as a whole would support such a move. Unless coerced a great part of Labor would not do anything to make beer more easily available.

From information published in November, 1943, I learn that of 246 resolutions that came from local unions to the meeting of the Dominion A.F. of L. which met at Quebec City, only two referred to liquor and one of these came from a bar-tender's union. From the meeting of the C.I.O. which gathered shortly after at Montreal, out of more than 300 such resolutions only one had to do with liquor.

In view of the attitude of the public generally towards wartime restrictions, especially in reference to foods and beverages which are essential and nourishing, such a move as proposed would put Labor in a bad light. Further there is no restriction of beer except in relation to appetite for supposed restrictions still leave the amount available 44 percent above pre-war level. This amount, I believe, is somewhere near 90,000,000 gallons. The restriction as it is finds favor with the public apparently, for a Gallup Poll taken in October last showed that only 3 percent of Canadians were critical of current restrictions.

I hope Labor will not allow itself to become the dupe or tool of "Alcohol Unlimited" and feel sure it will not. Beer is neither a nourishing food or a satisfying drink. "Whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise." "Wherefore spend your money for that which satisfieth not and your labor for that which is not bread?"

Yours truly,
E. M. Cook.

Proposal to Give Russia's Various Republics Voice In Foreign Policy, Defence

London, Jan. 28 —(CP)—Moscow moved last night to give the various republics within the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics a voice in foreign policy and defence—a proposal that suggested the possibility of far reaching change in the makeup of post-war Russia. The proposal has been approved by the central committee of the Communist Party, Moscow radio said.

Crerar Commands Canadian Corps

Ottawa, Jan. 28 (CP)—Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, a former Chief of the Canadian General Staff, now is commanding a Canadian Corps serving in Italy as part of the 8th Army.

Defence headquarters said today that Gen. Crerar's appointment as commander of a Canadian Corps in the Mediterranean theatre of war was announced Dec. 27 last by Defence Minister Ralston upon his return from overseas.

But not until today was it officially disclosed that a Canadian formation of corps status was in the line as part of the 8th Army, commanded now by Lt.-Gen. Sir Oliver Leese, successor to Gen. Montgomery.

Gen. Crerar, for the past two years commanding a corps in the 1st Canadian army overseas, went to the Mediterranean area last autumn. Since then he has been organizing and grouping his troops, and preparing them for the day on which they would fight.

Early this month Gen. Crerar was up with forward elements of the Canadian 1st division. He spoke to a number of units and once more expressed his belief in the superlative qualities of Canadians as fighting men. "You have shown the world the unsurpassed qualities of Canadians as fighting soldiers," he told them.

Col. Ralston, referring to the way in which Canadian troops carried out their tasks, said upon his return from a tour of the Italian front, "I am very proud of them."

END JUSTIFIES MEANS

The saying, "The end justifies the means," is not in the Bible in those words, but the idea expressed by it is referred to by St. Paul.

Romans 3:8 says:—"And rather, (as we be slanderously reported, and as some affirm that we say), Let us do evil, that good may come?"

The thought in "the end justifies the means"—an action bad in itself becomes good if done for a good purpose—dates back further than St. Paul.

Ovid, the Roman poet, who died 17 A.D., gave us "Exitus acta probat," the result justifies the action."

"The end justifies the means" is also a free translation of one of the maxims of Publilius Syrus, a Latin writer of mimes, who lived in the first century A.D.

This writer has been unable to trace to any definite source the exact phraseology now generally employed to express the principle.

Matthew Prior (1666-1721), English poet and diplomatist, wrote in "Hans Carvel" that "The end must justify the means."

For centuries the Jesuits have been accused by their enemies of originating, teaching and practicing the maxim.

Some authorities suppose the maxim became associated with the Jesuits from a passage in "Medulla Theologiae," written about 1645 by Hermann Busenbaum, prominent German Jesuit theologian who taught at Cologne.

This book contains the words, "Cum finis est licitus," etiam media sunt licita," which roughly translated means, "When the end is lawful, the means are also lawful."

It is also said that the accusation that the Jesuits taught the doctrine that the end justifies the means arose from Blase Pascal's "Provinciales," which began to be circulated in Latin about 1656.

The Jesuits vigorously repudiate the maxim as immoral and deny it was ever taught by the Society of Jesus. More than once they have offered large monetary rewards to any person who could point out in the writings of the Order any approval or assent to the doctrine. In Europe, according to newspaper reports, courts have awarded damages against men who publicly repeated the common libel.

The verse quoted from the Bible indicates that the same charge was made against St. Paul and his followers 15 centuries before the Society of Jesus was founded by Ignatius Loyola in 1540.

A Jesuit writer says that if some members of the Order do practice the maxim it is certain they have no monopoly on it.

WEDDINGS

DAYMAN—FAIR

St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Port Hope, was the scene of a lovely mid-winter wedding at seven o'clock Monday evening, January 24th, when Rev. G. Rowland united in marriage Margotte Mary Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Fair and Pte. Roy Dayman, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Dayman, in a double ring ceremony.

Baskets of bronze and yellow and white 'mums and ferns adorned the altar, while the guest pews were marked with white bows. Mrs. Greer, organist of the church, played the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was a radiant figure in her wedding gown, a floor-length model of ivory slipper satin fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, three-quarter length sleeves, a tight basque and gathered skirt with a slight train. Her full length net veil was caught with an ivory satin calot sparsely trimmed with opalescent sequins and a jeweled tiara and she carried a muff of orchids.

The bride was attended by Miss Aileen Mason, of Belleville, as maid of honor and Miss Maxine Austin of Port Hope as bridesmaid. Miss Mason's floor-length frock was of rose moire taffeta, fashioned on princess lines with sweetheart neckline and her flowered hat had a shoulder-length veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses and bouvardia. Miss Austin's gown of hyacinth blue moire taffeta was floor-length with tight fitting bodice, square neckline and her petaled headdress was caught with a shoulder-length net veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white carnations and bouvardia.

LAC. Norman Hickey, of Trenton was best man and the ushers were Messrs. Charles Wood, of Peterboro and Jack Jamieson, of Port Hope.

During the signing of the register, Mrs. Charles Wood, of Peterboro very beautifully sang "Because." She was accompanied by Mrs. Greer at the organ.

Following the wedding a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 132 King St., where the guests were received by the bridal party, assisted by the bride and groom's parents.

The rooms were attractively decorated with lighted candles and flowers. Mrs. Fair, the bride's mother, wore a street-length dress of burgundy crepe with black accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. Mrs. Dayman, mother of the groom, wore a frock of printed silk jersey and matching accessories and her corsage was of Briarcliff roses.

Later the bride and groom left for points east, the bride travelling in a smart wool moss green suit trimmed with beige, brown seal coat and a "Casablanca" tam with an over-the-face veil and brown kid pumps. Her corsage was a spray of mauve orchids.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. L. Mason, Mrs. Rickett and Miss Vivian Smith, of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Nelson King, Mr. and Mrs. John King, Mr. and Mrs. William King, of Peterboro; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bryson, of Kirby and Miss Clare England, C.W.A.C. and Miss Phyllis Dayman of Toronto.

The bride is a former resident of Belleville, where she attended the King George Public School and the Belleville Collegiate Institute & Vocational School.

STEPHENS—KELLY

On Tuesday, Jan. 18th, at 9 a.m., at St. George's Catholic Church, Ottawa West, the bride's cousin, Rev. Gerald Kelly, solemnized the marriage of Reta Catharine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Kelly Ottawa, to Petty Officer Herbert Keith Stephens, R.C.N.V.R., son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stephens, Picton. Sister H. Mayotte was organist and Miss Agnes Doucette sang.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long white moire gown with sweetheart neckline, long torso bodice, full skirt, long sleeves ending in points. A halo of orange blossoms held in place her finger-tip veil. The bride's bouquet was Sweetheart rosebuds. Miss Rose Mullens was the bride's attendant, while Lt. Frank Amyot, R.C.N.V.R., assisted the groom.

After the reception, the couple left on a short trip, Mrs. Stephens travelling in coral wool dress with black accessories.

BEAUTY By Helen Jameson

Be Keen About Details of Grooming.

Said a famous dress designer: "To be a lady of fashion a woman must remember that the composition that is herself is made up of tremendous trifles. All the little details count—they count a lot."

The application of a synthetic blush is a trifling matter. Not much of a trick to lay it on, just a few swishes of the rouge pad. Yet, if it is a plotch or uneven edge it is an offense to the eyes. One gets a character picture of the woman who doesn't take pains to display a tidy face. One fancies that if she is the boss of the home there is dust under the beds and the dishes aren't washed as they should be. That's the way the mind works. Not fair, maybe, but there you are.

Two elements contribute to perfect grooming and attractive dress—good taste and a sense of order. Both these qualities are lacking in the woman who puts on her make-up in a messy manner.

Daintiness is external charm in its highest form and you can't be dainty unless you are a daily bather, unless you are fastidious. The dainty woman makes a strong appeal. Daintiness makes up for a lot of beauty losses. You can't criticize a girl because her nose is too long or too short, but if her collar is soiled and there's a button off her coat you're likely to draw conclusions.

Slipshot grooming is not a time saver. The woman who works quickly, who has a well developed sense of order will brush her teeth, have her bath, coddle her complexion, lay on the high lights, arrange her hair and burnish her finger nails in less than half an hour. Women have never been as active as they are now. They have to have schedules for beautifying efforts whether they are orating in the halls of Parliament, piloting airplanes, writing books, working in shops or holding down the big executive's job.

Civilization has set a high standard of appearance and appearance is important. A woman, to be in the first bracket of good lookers, must have an air of vitality and freshness. Her complexion must carry that nice just-scrubbed, just-powdered appearance. Her hair must glisten; it won't if it is not shampooed frequently. Finger nails must be groomed, as well as polished.

Uncleanliness is the unpardonable beauty crime. Better the fresh $9.95 frock than the expensive model that has started to tarnish.

We can't all carry handsome purses, but all of us can avoid the soiled powder pad carried therein and the handkerchief that should be in the soiled clothes hamper. Any woman can see that the seams of her stockings are straight, will know when the heels of her shoes need new taps. Run over heels bring heavy penalties, because they change the contour of the foot, cause strains on the tendons.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

USE THE RETURN ADDRESS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please explain why it is considered incorrect to write one's name and return address on invitations and greeting cards? To my way of thinking, this is the only way of knowing that mail has been properly addressed and has reached its destination.

On a number of occasions, friends have asked if I had received certain mail, and when I told them I hadn't, it invariably developed that they weren't really sure just how they had addressed the letters or cards. If their return address had been on the envelopes, the letters would have been returned to me. Thank you if you will set me might about this.

E.L.

I know that according to Mrs. Grundy it is best form not to put the return address on the envelopes of social correspondence. At least Mrs. Grndy used to say that, when everyone was expected to address letters most carefully and punctiliously ... and when we were always sure of our friends' addresses! But I think that even that finicky lady would loosen up on her dictum nowadays, what with the mails as uncertain as they are now, with many inexperienced postmen, and with friends changing their addresses so often that our address-books get dizzy.

Practically all of us have these days had just the kind of experiences you have had, due to any one of a number of mis-directions or mis-deliveries. (I could certainly add plenty of instances, in my correspondence!) So it seems to me reasonable ... and after all reasonableness should be the reason-for-being of any rule ... to write our return address on an envelope, if we wish to, or if we have even the slightest feeling that this will contribute to safety-in-delivery, or, if the addressee isn't located, to the assurance that the letter will be returned to us. Better be safe than sorry!

By All Means Write in Italian

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a widow, and my grandson has just been sent overseas. He speaks and reads both English and Italian, and I am very anxious to write to him, although it is very hard for me to write in English. Would it be permitted that I write him in Italian?

Reader.

Yes, by all means write to him in the language that is easier for you to write what you would like to write him. This is permitted. The only thing you are asked to do is to write, on the lower left corner of the envelope, and in English, the language in which the enclosed letter is written. So write either "Italian", or "Letter written in Italian." At the Port of Embarkation, your letters will be read and passed on by censors who are experts in Italian.

IBBOTSON—TAYLOR

A quiet wedding took place at St. Peter's Anglican Church, Cobourg, on January 15, at 3.30 p.m., when Ellen, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor, of Sudbury, became the bride of Thomas Ibbotson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Ibbotson, of Morganston. Rev. H. R. Deering officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. Zufelt, of Trenton, looked lovely in a gown of white chiffon with matching veil and corsage of roses and baby's breath. She was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Anne Ibbotson, wearing a dress of blue chiffon with matching veil and corsage of deep red roses. The groom was attended by his brother, Douglas Ibbotson.

After the ceremony the bridal party had dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw and later left for points west.

TUTTLE—POLAKOWSHA

Picton, Jan. 28—A wedding of interest took place at St. Matthew's United Church at Halifax, N.S., when Zofia Polakowsha, of New York City, became the bride of Leading Seaman Ernest Tuttle, R.C.N., son of Mr. and Mrs. George Tuttle, Picton. Rev. D. M. Grant performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Edna Polakowsha, while the groom was supported by Petty Officer Charles Christie. They will make their home at Halifax.

Presentation

On Tuesday evening, January 25, about forty guests gathered at the home of Mrs. M. Mather, Cannifton, to honor Mr. and Mrs. Jack McCall (nee Mary Mather), who were recently married. Jack and Mary were invited to the drawing room by Mr. W. Gould, of Corbyville and with his well chosen remarks in honor of the bride and groom, told of the high esteem in which they were both held. A presentation followed by Mrs. C. Ellisworth, of a beautiful occasional chair, a rug, a silver pickle dish and a vegetable casserole. The evening was spent in euchre and dancing, music being provided by Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. H. Farnham, Mrs. N. Beatty and Mr. Robert Peacock. Lunch was served and the rest of the evening spent in merriment.

Hospitality Dance At Mountain View Delightful Affair

This extraordinarily mild weather for January did not lessen in any way but served to further the festive atmosphere at the gala monthly Hospitality dance in the drill hall of the Mountain View Bombing & Gunnery School on Thursday night. Both the officers and the men from the station, not to forget a few civilians and a number wearing the army khaki, turned out on the occasion to greet the "lassies" of the Belleville Hospitality Club and the St. Michael's Club and before long the large crowd of merrymakers were mingling and dancing together to the mellow music of the Mountain View Jive Bombers. This station band is becoming better as each day goes by and is proving popular at every function at which it plays. To the delight of everyone, they played a great variation of musical numbers. For those dancers who like jive, they "beat it out" in hot swing time, and for those who prefer a slower tempo, the band triumphed with notes soft and smooth. Vocalizing with the Jive Bombers were Edith Ingram a W.D. from the station and Sgt. Alf Cowling, who were both enthusiastically received by their listeners. Master-of-ceremonies for the evening was found in the very capable and efficient person of Sgt. Jack Devine, who conducted a number of novelty and prize dances. But it was a "Acey Deucy" by the name of Vincent Watters and his partner, Mrs. Crouter, who stole the jitterbugging show as they put on a sweet show of rug-cutting as the huge crowd stood around in awed admiration. Nor were the refreshments and the grand music all which lent to the charm of the evening, as a climax to the party, Group Captain Ripley, C.O., of the station, spoke briefly, thanking the girls for coming out, not forgetting to express his appreciation to the entertainment and refreshment committees and all others who contributed to the success of the event.

I.O.D.E. Chapters And Navy League Want More Books

The I.O.D.E., St. Julien Chapter, Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E., the Navy League of Canada, Belleville Branch and other organizations in the city, have amalgamated in the concentrated drive to obtain 350,000 books for the Armed Services. Arrangements have been made for these books to be collected from points where they may be left by any person wishing to contribute to the comfort and entertainment of the four services, the Royal Canadian Navy, The Royal Canadian Army, The Royal Canadian Air Force and the Canadian Merchant Marine.

There are several reasons why the Merchant Navy, especially, appreciates the Navy League's gifts of magazines, books and games, and needs more and more of them. Four hours on and eight hours off.... those are the usual day-by-day rules by which the men of the Merchant Navy work during their long ocean crossings. That means eight hours of duty in every 24 hours, and 16 hours for the mariner himself. Even figuring 8 hours for sleep, and four hours for meals and other daily routine, the seafarer has quite a fair bit of time left on his hands. And, as Sam Briggs, a ship's fireman from Newcastle points out: "Some of the chaps like checkers and chess, and some have hobbies like wood-carving, but all of us like to read. I'll warrant that not many people in Canada know how much we are depending on them for something to read, and how hungry we get for a good book or a magazine when we've read through everything on the ship.

"I sailed on a freighter not so long ago that had only one book aboard. Well, I read that book until I knew it off by heart. Then I took the lining of old faded newspapers out of my sea-chest and read them too. Me and my mates memorized the advertisements in the old papers. Then we made a game of counting the letters of the alphabet in each column making bets on how many A's and Q's and T's and the like there were in each item, each column each page and lastly, in the whole paper. I would have given anything for something different to read that trip—even a seed catalogue, would have been welcome just then."

Arrangements Made.

Arrangements were made on Wednesday afternoon at a meeting attended by the representatives of the I.O.D.E., Mrs. E. J. Neate, Mrs. B. C. Donnan, and Col. B. C. Donnan who offered the fullest co-operation of the Reserve Army facilities for the transportation to collect the books donated by citizens Mr. F. M. Lewis, Chairman of the Navy League of Canada, Belleville Branch, representatives of the press and the citizens mentioned already, conferred upon ways and means of making this campaign a success. Realizing that the need for every kind of book, magazine and reading material is greater than ever before, a special matinee performance of the popular motion picture, "Jack London" was arranged by the management of the local theatre showing the picture to admit school children and present the boy and girl in each class at the Collegiate and the public schools with a pass for two for the largest number of books brought in.

HEALTH CHATS

Dandruff

Dandruff is a disorder of the scalp. The cause of this common trouble is not known. There are authorities who think that it is due to an infection. Others do not agree with this view. It has not been proved that one person can pass dandruff on to another through the use of a comb or similar article.

The scientific name for dandruff is pityriasis capitis or mild seborrheic dermatitis of the scalp. It seems to occur most often in persons who have an oily skin, who suffer from pimples. Persons who have a great deal of dandruff, also develop a scaly condition of the skin called seborrhea dermatitis. Dandruff may be either dry or oily and may be accompanied by inflammation, in some cases. In the dry type there usually is no skin inflammation. The only symptom present is the development of thin fine scales on the scalp. If inflammtaion is present, this inflammation occurs only in patches, and the scalp is usually very oily. If there is severe involvment, loss of hair in spots may occur.

The disorder develops most often in those between twenty and thirty-five, and women have dandruff as often as do men. As with many other disorders of the hair and scalp, there is no sure cure for dandruff but with the persistent treatment, much can be done to hold the disorder in check, and in many instances, to bring about improvement. The treatment, however, must be continued indefinitely. Still, the treatment is not difficult and no one should hesitate to employ it.

One of the treatments suggested is an ointment made up of oil of cade, sulphur and salicylic acid. Another ointment contains salicylic acid and ammoniated mercury. Oily applications frequently make the skin condition worse and scratching should be prevented. After moderate improvement occurs with the daily use of ointment, it is suggested that the patient wash the hair and scalp daily with tincture of green soap and warm water. The soap is allowed to stay on the scalp for ten to fifteen minutes before rinsing. After rinsing, the hair and scalp are dried and then a lotion is rubbed into the scalp. The lotion may contain resorcinol and alcohol or bichloride of mercury and chloral. An improvement occurs, the number of applications of the lotion and shampoo is reduced. Eventually, only one application a week is required.

Of course, the exact strength of the various preparations to be employed must be prescribed by the physician to meet the needs of each case, since the scalp of one person may be more easily irritated than that of another.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Is Miserable, But She Has Everything to be Thankful for.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 24 years old and have been married seven years. We have a beautiful baby, a nice home and my husband is very good to me. The baby is almost two years old. Soon after the baby was born I had a severe nervous breakdown and was treated by a physician and a psychiatrist until I finally convinced myself I'd have to get out of this rut.

It's constantly on my mind that I'm not myself. It breaks my heart to see other mothers enjoying their children when I walk around feeling as though I don't exist. Can you help me get away from these foolish thoughts? I'm trying to tell myself there isn't anything wrong with me.

(Mrs.) M. G.

The trouble may be that you have too much leisure to think about yourself and your feelings. Surely a woman who has a devoted husband who does everything for her and an adorable baby, should not indulge herself in morbid imaginings.

In a nervous ailment like yours, I knew a case where a woman cured herself by taking rhythmic dancing. If that's not practical, why not take up Red Cross work? All said and done, sister, the cure is within your own grasp.

Her Husband Stays Out 'Til Morning

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been married four years. The first year was wonderful, my husband was so considerate of me, and we were happy. Without any reason he started drinking and staying out night, each night a little later, until now it's five and six o'clock in the morning when he comes home.

He says there's no one else, but where in a small town could a man spend so much time? I know he gambles and goodness knows what else. I can't stand it much longer. I've considered getting a job, but what would happen to my little child? She's almost 3 years old. My mother doesn't believe any of these things when I complain to her.

It is plain to me that my husband doesn't care any more. We never go places together; he finds an excuse. What do you think is the best thing to do?

—V. C.

If your mother will agree to take care of your child, a job might be the solution of your problem. Or if there is a good day nursery in your town where you'd feel satisfied the baby would be getting the best of care, that might work out equally well. I can't understand your mother's attitude. Certainly a man who stays out until morning, leaves his wife with plenty of grounds wondering what her next move must be.

Churchill Red Cross Group

During 1943 the following articles were made and turned in to Bridge Street United Church Red Cross unit by the Churchill group: 46 quilts, 62 prs. socks, 15 prs. Air Force gloves, 6 sleeveless sweaters, 1 turtle-neck sweater, 7 ribbed helmets, 14 Air Force tuck-ins, 9 girls' knitted sweaters, 14 boys' knitted sweaters, 2 prs. wristlets, 1 pr. girls' knitted gloves, 2 flannel baby blankets, 1 pr. hospital shoes, 7 boys' wool suits, 16 girls' cotton blouses, 10 girls' plaid skirts, 90 girls' green jumper skirts, 20 girls' flannelette nightgowns, 10 girls' wool plaid dresses, 11 boys' cotton shorts, 2 ladies' blouses, 3 boys' brown shirts, 19 handsewn babies' shirts. The group filled 12 ditty bags for the sailors out of its own funds and also gave $65 to Bridge Street Red Cross unit.

OATMEAL FOR SKIN

Save every sliver of soap and when you have several put them through the food chopper, then mix with a little oatmeal (proportions 1 cup chopped soap to a heaping tablespoon of the oatmeal). Put into bags or mitts made of old bath towels or two thicknesses of butter-cloth, fasten the opening securely and behold you have an economical bath-mitt that will prove a skin beautifier. There's nothing like oatmeal for the skin.

Montreal Canadiens Remain Undefeated on Home Ice By Holding Toronto to 2-2 Tie

Habitants Enter the Third Period One Goal Down but O'Connor Gets the Equalizer

HAWKS BEAT N. Y.

By the Canadian Press

Perhaps it all depends on the point of view, but it still seems strange that Canadiens should lose caste because Toronto Maple Leafs gained a 2-2 tie on Montreal ice last night. The league leaders probably will be chided mildly because they didn't run up the score to the forum dome.

Canadiens have conditioned their camp followers for resounding victories. They haven't lost in 17 games on their own ice surface and the only three they didn't win resulted in 2-2 deadlocks.

This immunity before the home folks—there were a record-shattering 12,876 paid admissions, plus a couple of thousand servicemen who didn't—seemed in jeopardy Thursday night when the Habitants entered the final period trailing 2-1. Elmer Lach had offset Babe Pratt's first-period goal, but Lorne Carr had given the Leafs the lead again early in the second period on a solo sprint. Finally, Buddy O'Connor rifled a 30-feet drive past Bibeault four minutes after the third period started to save the situation for Montreal.

Hawks Trounce Rangers

In the only other National Hockey League game last night, Chicago Black Hawks trounced New York Rangers 6-4 before 10,166 home spectators. The Hawks clinched the issue with third-period goals by Bill Mosienko and George Allen.

Rangers fought gamely, at that, before accepting their 24th loss in 31 starts, but they were always behind. Cully Dahlstrom, Clint Smith and Doug Bentley made it 3-0 for Chicago before Frankie Boucher, appearing as a combatant again, tipped in Bryan Hextall shaved the lead to 3-2 before the second intermission, but Bentley's second goal to open the third period restored Chicago's two-goal working margin. Ab Demarco and Fern Gauthier then made it 4-4 before Mosienko and Allen fired the clinchers.

The results didn't disturb the standings. Canadiens remained 15 points in front of the second-place Leafs, while the Hawks succeeded in closing to within a game and a half of the fourth-place Boston Bruins.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Jan. 28 — (AP)—The finest economium that could be offered Mark Roth, former Yankees road secretary who died yesterday, was that in some 20 years on that exacting job he never lost a trunk or a newspaperman…just by way of emphasis, Harold Parrott who recently took a similar job with the Dodgers, received his baptism to fire yesterday when he helped shepherd a swarm of scribes to Brooklyn's mountain training camp … all went well until the return when Parrott was about to drive boss Branch Rickey from the ferry to Brooklyn … As they strolled toward the parking lot, Harold fumbled in his pockets and moaned "my keys." … He had left them in the car and securely locked the doors.

They Always Did Kick

Another yarn from the Dodger expedition, this one by Capt. Paul Amen, Army's baseball coach … last spring when the Dodgers used the West Point field house, manager Leo Durocher also helped coach the cadets … his teachings weren't very evident, but in mid season Amen saw one of his boys sliding into second with his spikes dangerously high … When the cadet returned to the bench he received a dressing down from the coach … "But sir," the boy protested, "Mr. Durocher told us that when the play was close, even if our own mother was playing second, if she was holding the ball loosely we should do everything we could to kick it out."

R.C.A.F. Prohibits All Sports Where Travel Is Entailed

By the Canadian Press

A spokesman at Ottawa of the Royal Canadian Air Force declared last night participation by Air Force teams or personnel in all forms of sport had been prohibited where competition entailed travel or absence from routine duties. The order applied to basketball, football, baseball and other sports as well as hockey which was first affected in the application of the order effective Jan. 6. The intimation was given that the ban also affected athletic engagements of the other branches of the Armed Forces insofar as it concerned the conflict between organized athletics and military training.

Casey Stengel, in a letter to President Bob Quinn of the Boston Braves, last night announced his resignation as manager of the National League team, giving as his reason that he did not wish to embarrass the new group of stockholders who had taken over control of the club.

President Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers yesterday told sports writers who were inspecting the club's training quarters at Bear Mountain, N. Y., his veteran second-baseman, Billy Herman, had been re-classified 1-A by the draft board, and expressed the view Major League clubs get along with 17 players each if necessary.

A Los Angeles committee yesterday decided to apply to the International Olympic Committee at Lausanne, Switzerland, for permission to stage the 1948 Olympic at the Pacific Coast City. Decision was reached after the Californians had conferred with President Avery Brundage of the American Olympic Committee.

Pitcher Johnny Vander Meer of the Cincinnati Reds yesterday was inducted into the United States Navy at Newark, N. Y., after undergoing three days of medical examination.

Clarence Rowland, recently elected President of the Pacific Coast Baseball League for 10 years, was yesterday succeeded as head of the Los Angeles club by Don Stewart, former business manager of the Milwaukee Brewers in the American Association.

Harold (Jug) McSpaden, recent winner of the $12,500 Los Angeles Open Golf tournament, yesterday was notified to report to the Philadelphia Board Feb. 10 for Army examination. McSpaden will play in a charity tourney at Los Angeles, sponsored to Bing Crosby and Bob Hope, this weekend, before going to Philadelphia.

Former Naval Academy fullback and recently captain of a submarine in the Pacific, Cmdr. Oscar E. (Swede) Hagberg yesterday was ordered to report for duty at Annapolis for presumed appointment as coach of the Navy football team.

Following tonight's lightweight 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden, New York, between Sammy Angott and Beau Jack, the New York Boxing Commission will call together their managers, as well as the handler of Philadelphia Bob Montgomery, to discuss a solution for the lightweight championship tangle.

Toronto, Jan. 28 — (CP)—When Art Ross offered to lend his goalie, Bert Gardiner, to help New York's war bond hockey show and pay Gardiner's expenses to boot, it was typical of the Boston Bruins manager. Art misses no chances to boost war funds. For example, when Canada "Hockey Night" broadcasters sought to broadcast the New Year's night Leaf-Bruins game in Boston, they were staggered by Art's demand for $500 for broadcast rights but accepted when Ross stipulated the money be paid into the R.C.A.F. Benevolent Fund. Boston has contributed several healthy "gates" to war funds.

Ross has more than patriotic reasons for his keen interest in these funds. His two sons, John and Arthur, Jr., are pilots in the R.C.A.F. overseas.

"How can you keep your mind on hockey when it is full of other things," Art said expressively at the N.H.L. meeting here a week ago.

An Idol Still:

Syl Apps, likeable star of Toronto's hockey Leafs and now in the army, remains the idol of the fans. After Apps, Gordon Drillon and Billy Taylor played for the Simcoe Army team against an Air Force team in Brantford Monday night, cheering fans tried to carry Syl off the ice. Al (Brantford Expositor) Rose wrote that Apps "played as if he was in the final of the Stanley Cup series." One of the secrets of Syl's popularity is the fact he gives his best at all times. Simcoe, incidentally, lost 20-18 to the Airmen featuring the forward line of Norm McAtee, Johnny McCreedy and Wally Wilson. Drillon and McAtee got six goals each, Wilson five, McCreedy and Apps four each.

Round and About:

Jack Adams, Detroit manager, says fellows like Art Ross and Lester Patrick will have to help in selecting old-time figures for hockey's hall of fame. "Those fellows can remember way back when players skated on bone skates." … Seagram candidates for the King's Plate are likely to be Kantol and Oblarto Gal . . . The Montreal Star reports Frankie Eddolls' knee is still bothering him and he is likely to get his Air Force discharge shortly.

Miami, Fla. — (AP) — Mar-Kell, champion mare of 1943, won her second race of 1944 yesterday by scoring a half-length victory in the $3,000 winter playground feature, seven furlongs, from Wise Moss. Last Saturday, the Calumet farm entry captured the evening handicap at Hialeah Park.

Quebec — (CP)—Sponsors of the inter-provincial professional baseball league last night decided to invite major league clubs to appoint managers for proposed teams in Quebec and Ontario and to place farm material in the line-ups.

Miami — (AP) — Doris Hart, U. S. girls tennis champion for two years, announced yesterday she would make a bid this season for the Women's Open court title. Even as a junior last summer, Miss Hart, now 18, reached the semi-finals of the national tournament at Forest Hills before she was beaten by champion Pauline Betz.

Vancouver — (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kimball yesterday received notification their son, Flt. Sgt. Richard (Bud) Kimball, 23, had been killed while serving with the R.C.A.F. overseas. Born in Ottawa, the pilot had been prominent in boxing and other sports at Pasadena, Calif., before enlisting in 1940.

Montreal — (CP) — Thistle Curling Club, who had defended the Quebec Challenge Cup seven times since they won it from Ormstown, lost out in a pair of challenge matches last night and the cup passed to Caledonia, who scored 31-27 in total points. Next challenger, is Howick Curling Club, who will meet Caledonia in the near future.

Quebec — (CP) — The weatherman disrupted natural ice play yesterday in Quebec's International Curling Bonspiel and the "Brithers" adopted an emergency 24-hour schedule to end the four-day competition by Saturday, as planned.

John Bracken, the Progressive-Conservative leader, skipped his Winnipeg rink to its third victory in matches for the Holt-Renfrew trophy.

Casual Comment by K.J.C.

Smart

When the farmer saw a stranger fishing in his special stream he was very angry but his wrath faded into laughter when he noticed that the angler was using carrot as bait.

Later in the day he went that way again; but he was surprised to see the basket full of fish.

"Bless my soul!" he exclaimed. "You never caught all those with the carrot bait, did you?"

"Of course not," was the calm reply. "I caught you with that."

(Nothing new?)

Last week we published a story regarding Walter Belair and Bob Hart playing a round of golf up at the Bay of Quinte Country Club, but apparently playing golf in January is an old story. The latest golf yarn we hear comes from Billie Steer, games captain at the Bay of Quinte Club. Bill says Ben Ogilvie, local golfer, has played golf every Sunday since last April. (Here's another for Jack McKeown down in Florida.)

Then Steer comes along with the father of all golf stories, and he tells it for the gospel.

"The other Sunday, when the streets were covered with ice, Joe Legault donned his skates off Zwick's Island and played golf on the Bay of Quinte ice from there to the Bay of Quinte Golf Club dock, a distance of about two miles. Joe took exactly 3 strokes to cover the entire distance and wore his skates over the route," relates Mr. Steer.

With no signs of winter weather to bring about hockey chatter, the boys in the back room are taking golf and even softball. Take for instance Norm Brown, Wally Waldorf, Joe Legault and Ben Ogilvie have been golfing at the Belleville Golf Club on several occasions this month of January of 1944 and that's a record of some kind.

(Played here first.)

According to the memory of some of the older golfers, the game was first introduced in Belleville sometime around, or just prior to the turn of the century.

There were no less than five clubs in Canada before there is any definite proof of the game being played in an organized manner in U.S.A. The authentic dates are as follows:

1873—The Royal Montreal Golf Club was formed. In 1881 W. F. Davis was engaged as professional, the first appointment on the continent.

1875—The Quebec Club was founded.

1882 — The Toronto Golf Club was founded.

1886 — The Kingston Golf Club was founded and after a partial failure it was reconstructed on a permanent basis in 1890.

1888 — Golf was introduced in the United States of America by Mr. R. Lockhart, at Yonkers from which beginning was found the present St. Andrew's Club. Although tradition gives it a beginning in colonial times about 1600.

(History of golf.)

The actual origin of golf remains obscure and it seems likely that the game was developed in Scotland as a modification of a form of ice hockey, which was popular in the 14th century in Holland.

Old Dutch pictures show figures armed with a club, somewhat similar to a ground hockey stick with which a form of puck was driven from post to post let into the ice. The length of the hole appears in some cases to be nearly half a mile. The game was introduced into Scotland and modified by being played on smooth grass bordering the sea, called The Links and using a hole instead of a stick.

For many centuries the balls, which were much the same size as today, were made of a leather covering, stuffed exceedingly tight with feathers. They were hand-made, very fragile, and were quite expensive — especially as heavy duty was placed on foreign importation to preserve the industry in Scotland itself.

(Cradled in Scotland.)

Tradition informs us that the first organized golf club dates back to the year 1399 when the game was played on the Bruntsfield, Scotland. The game was played under great difficulties in the early times, as it was constantly suppressed by kings who found it was interfering with the training of archers, who formed the most important part of the army of the day and it was not until the time of Mary Queen of Scots and the Stuart Kings of England that the game was recognized.

On the arrival of James the 1st in London he established the Blackheath Golf Course consisting then, as it does now, seven holes, on common land. The actual records of this club go back to 1608, the oldest, definite and authentic records of the game. The records of the Honorable Company of Edinburgh Golfers can be traced back to the year 1744 but it is certain that they existed for probably 200 years before. The Society of the Burgers Golfers goes back to the year 1773, the previous records and minutes having been lost. In 1856 the Pau Golf Club was founded in France—the first club outside the British Isles.

(Remember when—)

Defenceman Eddie Shore returned to the Boston Bruins' lineup ten years ago tonight after a 16-game suspension from the National Hockey League following the historic "Ace" Bailey incident. Bailey, Toronto right wing star, had suffered a fractured skull in a collision with Shore in a game at Boston and as a result was forced to quit hockey.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 283

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Good thing most bridge players were born to the use of money. Else they might still be swapping pelts for cornmeal. Look how they keep score in rubber bridge. With pencil and score pad.

In one column, a player jots down the points won by his pair in each deal; in another column, the points lost. On another scoresheet, an opponent does likewise.

At the end of each rubber, each column is added up. The total of points lost by a pair is subtracted from their win total. The net result of one side must balance the net of their opponents.

If net results do not jibe, each item is examined. Records are compared. Past deals may be reviewed. The help of the other players and even kibitzers may be needed before the finals agree.

After each rubber, the net standing of each player is recorded in a separate place. In the recapitulation, the plus and minus nets of all the players must balance before play is resumed.

More often than not, scorers are sensitive. Call attention to an error in their favor and they may be offended. Don't, and you may not get what is coming to you.

If it seems indelicate to ask whether you are ahead or behind, you suffer. If you ask, you may be considered a poor sport. If you don't, you may not know whether it pays to take chances.

The pencil and score pad method of keeping score belongs to the ox-cart era. It seems as inefficient as a bank without an adding machine. It feels clumsy.

Our group can't be bothered that way: :We use chips. As far back as I remember, we have used chips for keeping score. We use them the same as money.

Each color of chip has a specific value in an amount of points. What we win in any deal, our opponents pay us in chips for that sum. What we lose in any deal, we pay in chips to our opponents.

Take a deal like this:

SOUTH
♠Q 10 2
♥A K J 7 5
♦A 4
♣9 7 3
NORTH
♠K 6 3
♥Q 9 4 3
♦6 5 3
♣A K Q

When this deal came up, both sides were vulnerable. South became declarer at a contract of four hearts and took 11 tricks. This being the rubber game, a total of 650 points is won by declarer's side.

West pays south in chips worth 650 points. East pays the same to north. That's all the bookkeeping there is. It streamlines the game.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Jack London"

One of the most authentically exciting films of this or any other season reaches the screen of the McCarthy Theatre this weekend with the opening of "Jack London", Samuel Bronston's initial production for United Artists release.

With Michael O'Shea, young sensational star who scored so roundly in "Lady of Burlesque", cast in the title role, and Susan Hayward, glamorous young redhead appearing as Charmain London, the author's wife "Jack London", emerges as an action-packed picture.

Ernest Pascal, screen writer has picked the high points of the daring life of the courageous author for dramatization. Beginning with London's early life as an oyster pirate on San Francisco Bay, the story follows the author-to-be through his fighting, rough-and-tumble existence on a sealing vessel; through his battle against the elements as a gold hunter in the Yukon and finally to his appearance on the American scene as a foremost and beloved author. A little known side of London's career, that of war-correspondent, plays a vital part in the unfolding story. His coverage of the Russo-Japanese War emerges as a dramatic expose of the double-dealing Japs.

The warmly romantic story of Jack London's wooing-and-winning of Charmain Kittredge runs through the entire film.

Virginia Mayo, luscious, blonde newcomer is featured in the second feminine lead. A cast of such competent players as Frank Craven, Ralph Morgan, Harry Davenport, Louise Beavers, Regis Toomey and Morgan Conway supply brilliant support under Alfred Santell's swiftly paced direction.

AT THE BELLE

"MEET MR. LONDON"

It will be called an English "Mrs. Miniver" yet it's a more genuine job than the Hollywood best-seller, says Roly Young, Canadian Photoplay critic of "Meet Mr. London," that is now closing at the Belle Theatre.

Wally Brown and Alan Carney are co-starred in "Rookies in Burma," the added laugh feature.

An excellent Pete Smith specialty "Sky Science" completes the program.

"I DOOD IT" Red Skelton

Red Skelton and dancing Eleanor Powell team once more in the funniest adventure they ever embarked on in M-G-M's "I Dood It," gay musical comedy, coming this weekend to the Belle Theatre. Red plays a zany pants presser who wears his customers' clothes to pose as a man-about-town; Miss Powell is a musical comedy star whom he induces to marry him, whereupon he finds himself in all manner of comical trials and tribulations.

Vincente Minnelli directed the slick comedy with Richard Ainley, Patricia Dane, Thurston Hall, Sam Levene, Morris Ankrum and other principals aiding in the funmaking and featuring Jimmy Dorsey and his orchestra.

"Tips and Trips" is the title of a Pete Smith specialty to be presented on the same program with the Canadian Paramount News. The 12th chapter of "Batman" serial will be exhibited Saturday matinee.

Continuous shows will prevail Saturday.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Wild Horse Stampede"

There is a constant succession of hair-raising incidents in "Wild Horse Stampede," the Monogram "Trail Blazers" western picture which opened an engagement at the Capitol theatre last night. The film is blazing action from first to last.

The screen has known few cowboy stars who were so popular with the theatregoing public, or were such daring horsemen, as Hoot Gibson and Ken Maynard, who are teamed in the featured roles.

"Background to Danger"

A P-47 of spy-thrillers is "Background to Danger" the Warner Bros. film which opened last night at the Capitol Theatre, moving with the Thunderbolt's hurtling speed as it zooms, swoops and twists through the rapid mazes of a breathless adventure story.

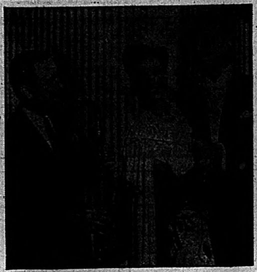
George Raft, this time packing a rod for the G-Men, and Brenda Marshall, exotically lovely as a Russian counter-spy, lead a cast of colorful conspirators, with the smooth menace exuded by Sydney Greenstreet and the soft, pale brand distilled by Peter Lorre.

A funny cartoon and the serial "Secret Service In Darkest Africa" complete a thrilling weekend program.

"Journey for Margaret"

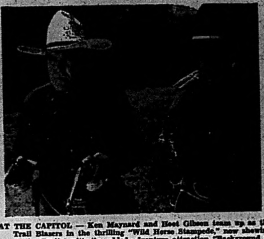
A dramatic, true-life human interest story of the war, "Journey for Margaret," written by War Correspondent W. L. White, son of the famous William Allen White, has been fictionalized by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and comes next to the Capitol Theatre with Robert Young and Laraine Day.

The added musical attraction "Melody Parade" features two big bands.



AT THE BELLE — Red Skelton and Eleanor Powell show how they feel dancing to Jimmy Dorsey and his music in M.G.M.'s super-duper musical comedy, "I Dood It," scheduled to open at the Belle this weekend.

AT THE McCARTHY — Handsome Michael O'Shea and lovely Susan Hayward in a romantic pose as Jack and Charmian London in Samuel Bronston's action-packed film biography "Jack London" coming to the McCarthy Theatre this weekend.



AT THE CAPITOL — Ken Maynard and Hoot Gibson team up as the Trail Blazers in the thrilling "Wild Horse Stampede," now showing at the Capitol with the added adventure attraction "Background to Danger," starring George Raft and Sydney Greenstreet.

Excerpts From Throne Speech

Ottawa, Jan. 28. (CP)—Following are excerpts of the Speech from the Throne, read today by the Governor-General at the opening of the Fifth Session of the 19th Parliament:

"To aid in ensuring a minimum of well-being to the children of the nation and to help gain for them a closer approach to equality of opportunity in the battle of life, you will be asked to approve a measure making provision for family allowances".

"You will be asked to approve the establishment of the following departments of government:

"A department of Veterans' affairs. . . .a department of Reconstruction. ... a department of Social Welfare.

"To ensure stability for agriculture, you will be asked to make provision for a price floor for staple farm products".

"When suitable agreements are reached with the provinces my ministers will be prepared to recommend measures to provide for Federal assistance in a nation-wide system of health insurance, and for a national scheme of contributory Old Age Pensions on a more generous basis than at present in operation".

"The improved military situation does not necessarily mean an early end to the war. . . until the Allied naval forces have grappled successfully with the main Japanese fleet there can be no assurance of an end to the war against Japan. Future operations will involve bitter fighting and heavy losses".

"A measure to extend the principle of mutual aid so as to provide for relief, as well as for materials of war, will be submitted for your approval".

". . .the arrangements required to clear the channels of trade and promote the flow of goods among all nations after the war are being explored with other countries".

"During the period of transition (from war to peace), the provision of international relief will help to maintain full employment of Canadian manpower and resources".

"You will . . . be invited to approve of Canadian participation in the establishment of an international organization to further national security through international co-operation".

". . .plans for the establishment of a national minimum of social security and human welfare should be advanced as rapidly as possible. Such a national minimum contemplates useful employment for all who are willing to work; standards of nutrition and housing adequate to ensure the health of the whole population and social insurance against privation resulting from unemployment, from accident, from the death of the breadwinner, from ill-health and from Old Age.

"You will be asked to approve a measure to provide war service gratuities for all who have served in the armed forces, and also measures to supplement the existing rehabilitation program".

"To assist in the conversion of war plants and in the development of small and medium-scale industrial enterprises, the provision of additional credit facilities, for both fixed and working capital, will be required. To meet this need, your approval will be sought for the establishment of an industrial development bank as a subsidiary of the Bank of Canada".

"Expenditures on development work, in preparation for the transition of industry from war to peace, will be encouraged by suitable tax modifications".

". . . .a measure will be submitted to provide for the insurance or guarantee of export credits, and steps are being taken in expand the trade commissioner service abroad".

"A measure to amend and supplement existing housing legislation will be introduced".

"Among other matters to which your attention will be directed will be the revision of the Bank Act, and the provision of adequate facilities for the exercise of the franchise by men and women serving in the armed forces".

Little Benny's Note Book

I was talking to Shorty Judge on his front steps, and he had some absorbing cotton and we started to put it in our ears as hard as we could stick it to see how much we could hear. Being hardly any, and we saw Reddy Merfy coming around the corner and Shorty said, Oh boy here's our chance, lets get Reddy to stick some in his ears and he wont be able to hear what we're saying about him no matter what we say.

Sounding like a perfect idea, and when he came up I said, Hay Reddy do you want to try something funny?

You better not try anything funny, Reddy said. Why, what do you mean, what? he said, and Shorty said, Just stick a buntch of this absorbing cotton in your ears as tight as you can, and it makes everything sound funny as anything.

How do you mean, funny? Reddy said, and I said, It makes everything kind of turn to music.

Aw go on, you're talking bugs, Reddy said.

Only he put a lot of cotton in his ears anyways just to find out and me and Shorty got in back of him and started to talk so low we couldn't hardly hear ourselfs, Shorty saying Oh boy, that clucky galoot is so dum he'd believe anything, and me saying, Sure, he's so dum he'd believe you if you told him a pie and an apple make a pineapple.

Hay, where's any music, I dont hear any music, Reddy said. Hay, what's you guys talking about back there? I heard somebody say something about somebody dum, he said, and Shorty said loud as anything, Sure, we were saying some guys are so dum they'd believe we would take advantage of them just because they had cotton in our ears, but not you, we were saying.

The result being Reddy took the cotton out and looked at us suspicious, and just then some more of the fellows came up and we got up a game of follow the leader.

Making me and Shorty feel lucky.

DREAMS OF FIRE, TURNS IN ALARM IN HIS SLEEP

Astoria, Ore., Jan. 28.—(AP) — The alarm clanged. City firemen sped into action. But a phone call stopped them. "I often dream I'm in a fire", explained a sleepy naval officer, "until now, I always wakened before turning in an alarm".

The War Today— Ribbentrop's Words Example Of Nazi Propaganda Method

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Nazi Germany generally works by indirection in its efforts to sow seeds of dissension among the United Nations, but Argentina's rupture with Hitler has brought into the open Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop — one of the dozen most dangerous men alive today.

Yesterday Ribbentrop, posing as one more in sorrow than in anger, flung a two-barbed spear into the Allied camp.

It wasn't Germany who was the loser by Argentina's action, he said, but the Argentine itself and poor old England. "The Argentine government is not master of its own decisions any longer," and Britain which already "has been compelled to sacrifice the major part of her Central and South American interests to the United States ally," now "is going to lose her position in Argentina."

This propaganda is a perfect example of the use of the weapon upon which Hitler is gambling desperately to save his skin. While the Nazi armies fight a suicidal delaying action on all fronts, Germany strives to cause a split among the Allies.

Ribbentrop's Words Absurd

However, in this case Ribbentrop has made a statement which to the Argentine or Briton or American is the essence of absurdity. He was not his usual subtle self.

Argentina knows she hasn't surrendered anything to the United States, and she knows this country has no desire to intrude. There is a friendly rivalry between British and American business interests for trade in Central and South America — and why not?

This trade will find its own level, and there's nothing Ribbentrop can say that will alter that natural law.

The only possible way the Argentine could lose out with England would be to play the Axis game. This inevitably would force Britain and the United States to act together in defence of world peace.

Golden Lady

By Clarence Budington Kelland

CHAPTER 14

"I know."

"This," she said, "is that kind of money. I am returning it. Lacey Gorse and Henry Garden paid it to me for going out with you."

He sat down suddenly, his eyes hurt. His face reddened and then grew white.

"Wait," she said. "It wasn't the way you think. No girl asks to be paid to accept your escort. When I made this bargain I did it for one reason only. I had reason to suspect those men were up to something—somthing unfair and dishonest. I knew you were involved in it—but Clyde Farrish was also a part of it. I think, as it concerns you, Chico, it has something to do with the Golden Blend advertising. They knew you were going to make a change almost as soon as you did."

"And you are telling me now—why?"

"First," she said, "because I like to be able to respect myself. Second, because it is right you should be warned. I think something is going to happen—soon."

Chico looked at her steadily, then got to his feet and extended his hand. "Thank you, Darnley," he said quietly. "It hasn't exactly inflated my ego. But it confirms what I knew before." He smiled wistfully. "Good-bye, and thank you again."

After lunch, Darnley walked to the Farrish Studio and encountered a surprising atmosphere of bustle. Everyone was busy.

"What goes on?" she asked Clyde.

"That pitchman of yours!" Farrish said. "He walked in yesterday afternoon with a series of twelve photographs."

"From whom?"

"Sanolin," answered Farrish. "Headache pills."

"But you tried to get some business there yourself."

Farrish shrugged. "Apparently there are salesmen and salesmen," he said.

"How did you do it, Mr. Random?" she called to the new salesman.

"The hand, lady, is quicker than the eyes. What's their slogan? 'They Work Like Magic!' After that it was duck soup."

"But I couldn't even get in to talk," said Farrish.

"Because," the pitchman declared, "you couldn't do this!" He held out both hands for them to see, reached into the air and there in his fingers, was a large, yellow orange. "I go to this office, see? The dame on the desk gives me the hard eye. She says the boss is busy and ain't ever going to be otherwise. I reach down, pick up her pencil, and wham! It ain't a pencil any more, it's a ham sandwich. 'It works like magic,' says I to her. 'Go spill that to the head man!' So I get in.

"So next I stride up to the main guy and hold out my hand to shake. Nothin' in it. He shakes and finds out he's got a box of this here Sanolin in his mitt. 'It works like magic,' I say."

"And then?" asked Darnley.

"Then," said the pitchman, "I set in to tell him how a lot of famous tricks are done. 'Bear down on the magic,' I tell him. I suggests to him pictures of Aladdin and his lamp, and of the Hindu with a boy climbin' a rope into the sky and of a whole mess of magic things out of the Arabian Nights, and fairy stories that everybody's familiar with. With a tag line about 'This is Magic, but Sanolin is More Magical.' And all the time I'm doing little stunts like turning quarters into peanuts and the like. It gets him, see? He falls for it. I sell him not only the pictures but the idea. Five thousand bucks for twelve photos and the expose to go with 'em."

It was not comical to Darnley. It was efficient. It was business. "You see," she said to Clyde. "You didn't get business because you didn't know how to sell."

She sat down and talked to the model who was to be used in explaining the illusion of how a woman can be sawed in two.

"The Golden Blend Contest is announced," said the girl. "See it?"

"No."

"Going to enter?"

"Of course."

"You have to send two pictures, full face and profile. A committee of artists pick forty. Then the finals are in the Chamberlain-Towers ballroom, where the girls have to do a beauty show and the winner is picked."

Darnley watched the posing for a time. Everybody was running about; lights were being placed, models and paraphernalia put where they belonged; camera angles argued over and agreed upon. Clyde, in a pause, sat down beside her.

"I met Gorse on the street," she said.

"Nice for both of you."

"Clyde, I'm positive he's the one who has been searching this studio. I accused him of it. He's afraid of something."

"Did he mention what?"

"No. But it's something here. Something he's got to have."

"Nonsense! What could there be?"

"What else explains what has happened? I tell you, Lacey Gorse has that sable coat. I accused him of that, too."

"You," said Farrish reprovingly, "will be getting yourself in a jam."

"If I'm right, Clyde, what could there be in this studio that is dangerous to him?"

"Nothing."

"Use your head," she said impatiently. "This is a place where pictures are taken. The most likely thing, then, is a photograph. Or a negative. Photographs can be dangerous to people."

"Yes, but in this instance, you're wrong; you're—" began Farrish.

"All right. Skip it. We'll take up another topic: It would be a splendid thing for the business if you could have a cover on Class."

"It would be!" retorted Clyde ironically. He turned and peered at her, his face drawn into a grimace. "Listen," he said, "you haven't an idea of taking me over as well as the studio?"

"If I had such a notion," she said, "your chances would be negligible."

"Go on about the Class cover."

"Don't sneer," Darnley said, "but please consider: If I could just once be featured in that magazine, it would double my chances of becoming the Golden Blend Girl."

"Good luck!" he grinned.

"The reason," she said sharply, "you've been a failure is that you always admit you're beaten before you start to fight. You're a defeatist."

"A failure, eh?" Clyde lifted his shoulders. "All right," he said glumly, "we'll have a cover on Class."

"If you'll do your part," she said.

"Which is?"

"The Peiades Silk preview worked, did it not?"

"It did."

"Do the same thing, only more dramatically, for the editor of Class."

"And how," he asked, "will we get him here to see it? Do you think that gentleman runs around to photographic studios whenever he is asked?"

"I'll be ready tomorrow," she said. "I'll have him here if I have to bring him at the point of a gun."

Before he could frame a suitable retort they were interrupted by a man who looked as if he slept habitually in his clothes. "You Clyde Farrish?" he asked.

"Yes. What is it?"

"Paper for you," declared the fellow and thrust a folded document into Clyde's hands.

Farrish stared at the paper. "Here we go," he said. "I knew it was too good to last."

"What is it, Clyde?"

"Just a summons. I'm sued."

"Not the sable coat?"

"The sable coat," he answered grimly.

"But they were going to give you time—give the police time to find it."

"They seem," he said, "to have lost their patience. Well, Miss Carfax, you don't need to worry about the editor of Class any more."

"No! No! You must fight!" she exclaimed. "Lawsuits take time. It is weeks and months before a case can come to trial. Get a lawyer and tell him to delay things!"

"It just puts off the smash," murmured Clyde gloomily.

"This studio is commencing to make money. We are on our way," declared Darnley. "That's why you must fight and delay. If we can stall this off for a year maybe we can pay the judgment if we have to pay it. I won't have you fall."

"Me! You won't have me fall!"

"No, but if you take this lying down you're licked, and you'll stay licked. Can't you see it, Clyde? You're not fighting now for a miserable studio and a couple of cameras." She was standing over him, her face lovelier in its animated earnestness than he ever had seen it before. "Clyde, Clyde! This is a fight for your self-respect—for your courage—for your backbone. Oh, please, please! Don't give up!"

"So," he mused softly. "So. And what's all that to you?"

"Everything!" she answered. "Everything! Must I tell you that to stir you? Must I tell you why I've been meddling with your affairs; trying to wind you up and make you tick? I hate you for making me say this. But I can't see you go to the dogs, because I love you!"

Darnley turned and ran—ran from the studio, her cheeks scarlet with rage and shame, her eyes blind with tears. Stumbling sightlessly, she collided with the man of all work and his wastepaper wagon.

Darnley's skirt was torn and her knee bruised. She thrust open the door and pressed the elevator button.

Suddenly her sight cleared, she stood wide-eyed, staring at the iron grillwork guarding the elevator shaft. She forgot shame in the shock of the thing that suddenly possessed her mind—the certainty. She half turned as though to go back to the studio, but shook her head and again faced the elevator.

"I know," she said to herself in a tense whisper, "I know how that sable coat was gotten out of the studio."

Darnley was humiliated. She was aghast, not so much at what she had done as at the fact that she could have done it. . . . She had destroyed her plans now. She had nullified long weeks of calculating and strategy. For it would be impossible ever to work with Clyde Farrish again, ever to go to his studio, ever to use him in her campaign to be selected as the Golden Blend Girl.

She was cool now, or thought she was. She had cheapened herself. She had told a man she loved him, when that man had not the slightest interest in whether she loved him or not. He probably thought her an idiot and was laughing at her. Very well, that was that.

"Nothing is hurt but my pride," she insisted to herself. "However, the one important thing is my career."

Another thought came: What about Clyde Farrish? What about his business? And what about the fur coat? Darnley believed she knew how that coat had been removed from the studio—and if she knew the means, then she was on the road to tracing the theft to its perpetrator. But she need not see Farrish to give that information; she could communicate with the police.

Then, before she had formulated any plan, her telephone rang.

"Iss Wolfgang speaking," said the voice of the model agency proprietor. Iss dot you, Miss Carfax?"

"Yes."

"You go, ten sharp, tomorrow morning, the Farrish Studio."

"I won't go. I won't accept any engagements at the Farrish Studio."

"I don't ask you what you accept. Ten o'clock mit promptness," snapped Wolfgang and hung up the 'phone.

Darnley stood by the telephone, her teeth pressed deep into her lower lip. Clyde Farrish had sent for her, but what did he mean by doing it in this manner—through the Wolfgang Agency? He had her telephone number, but he did not call her directly, as would have been natural. She could not determine if she were hurt by this impersonality or merely stunned by any communication at all from him. "He's just another photographer," she said to herself. "If that's the way he wants it, that's how he'll have it."

She would go—go as if the engagement had come from some man she had never met, and, once there, she would conduct herself as if she had never seen him before . . .

Then almost tearfully she thought about the beach costume she had designed with Orrick's help. She would have to pay for that, now—and she would never appear on the cover of Class.

• •

In late afternoon Peter Orrick telephoned. "I'm claiming payment for that design," he said. "How about dinner tonight?"

"I'd love it," she said.

"Shall I call at seven?"

"I'll be ready," she told him.

Orrick called for her. "We're meeting De Groot," he announced, "who is bringing some object of interest. I don't know who she is. All right?"

"Perfectly," Darnley said.

They met Adrian De Groot and a small woman who impressed Darnley as being rather homely in spite of a trim figure. Her name was Martha Orme, and Adrian introduced her as a great poet. It was not until the third or fourth searching glance that Darnley saw in Miss Orme's face something impish, something sophisticated, something thrilling.

De Groot leaned his great hulk across the table toward Darnley. "Are you watching your step?" he asked abruptly.

"Adrian!" exclaimed Miss Orme.

"In the matter of penthouses?" he persisted. "Have you accepted? Yes or no."

"No," said Darnley.

De Groot's eyes were searching, then he smiled. "That's good! The rumor," he said, "derives from Elaine."

That evening taught Darnley an important thing; it gave her a good idea of charm. It convinced her that, exquisite as Darnley might be to behold, she could never hope to compete with Miss Orme until she acquired a share of the priceless quality which that poet possessed—that imponderable thing which emanates from heart and character. . . . It was a step forward.

• •

At ten o'clock next morning Darnley entered Farrish's studio, dreading the meeting, tense to face the situation.

Clyde was not visible. An assistant motioned her to a dressing cubicle. It was as if she had never been in the place before. She opened the door of the little room.

"The things you are to wear are there," said the man.

She opened the parcel without curiosity. Then she caught her breath. The fabric of the dainty garment that met her eyes was not strange to her, because she had labored over it. It was the beach costume she had designed with Orrick's help! Clyde must have gotten it from the couturier!

Quickly she changed into the costume, and, throwing a robe about her, she walked out into the studio.

"In the preview room," she was told.

There she saw Farrish. Beyond him she saw a frame, a background and in letters whose individuality was known throughout the nation, she read the word Class.

Farrish nodded. "In the frame, please," he said curtly. "Brangwin will be here at eleven."

"Brangwin!" she exclaimed. "The editor of Class! How did you get him here?"

He did not reply, but motioned toward the stage and the frame. She mounted and stepped into the picture . . .

For nearly an hour Farrish labored with her, with properties, with lights, until he had achieved the effect desired.

"Can you hold it?" he asked.

"Yes."

"Close the curtain," he said.

At eleven, Mr. Brangwin was announced. He was admitted to the little theatre and Darnley could hear Brangwin's voice. "What's this folderol? What's this funny business of enticing me here?"

"This," said Farrish, "is a demonstration of the real possibilities of color photography; of a method; a means to an article end. I am permitting you to see it because, possibly, you may have professional appreciation of what I am trying to accomplish."

"Rubbish!" said Mr. Brangwin. "Don't try to impress me. Get on with it!"

The curtains rustled aside and Brangwin faced a cover of his magazine, not a thing of paper and tinted inks, but a glowing oblong of glowing, vibrating, living color. It was startling, beautiful. . . .Her costume, designed by her, was daring, smart, appealing.

Brangwin stared silently. "Can you reproduce some of that effect in color," he asked.

"Exactly," said Farrish.

"How much?" asked Brangwin.

"This, sir," said Clyde grandly, "is only a demonstration—"

Effort To Be Made To Place People On Higher Level

By C. R. BLACBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Washington Jan. 28 (CP)—Anglo-American efforts to place the 14,000,000 inhabitants of their island possessions in the Caribbean on a higher level of social and economic well-being will take another step forward at a conference to be held shortly.

It will be the first of a series of "West Indian conferences" for which a committee now is making plans at Barbados under the auspices of the Anglo-American Caribbean Commission set up nearly two years ago.

The commission's aims hold a direct interest for Canada because of its plans to reorganize the economy of the Caribbean islands to make them more self-supporting and to increase inter-island cooperation in matters of trade and transportation.

The war has interrupted Canadian trade with the British West Indies which was carried on under the long-term agreement entered into with the islands about 1926.

When the time comes that the regular line of West Indies shipping may be resumed and normal trading carried on, Canadians may find a vastly-altered situation in the Caribbean.

For instance there was a lucrative exchange of West Indies produce, particularly from Jamaica, for Canadian salted fish. One of the aims of the commission is to increase and improve the fishing industry of the Caribbean islands.

Ambulance Brigade Holds Annual Meeting

The end of a very successful year was marked by the annual business meeting of the combined groups of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, held on Monday evening at brigade headquarters, 217 Pinnacle St. Records and reports showed that a consistent stream of trainees was taking the courses and the examinations, thus earning the coveted St. John certificates. The courses not only supply emergency knowledge and training, which are invaluable to all, but provide also a reservoir of assistants who are trained and equipped to be of genuine service should a catastrophe strike in the district. The immediate usefulness of the members is seen in their willing help at the Blood Donors' Clinic and in quite a number of cases with the Victorian Order of Nurses.

At the meeting Mrs. W. N. Ponton, president of the Women's Nursing Division, tendered her resignation due to a projected trip of undetermined duration to New York. The large and enthusiastic meeting elected as temporary president, Mrs. Francis G. Cushing by the very narrow margin of one vote.

Ambitious plans were laid for a full and active year that will use to the limit the facilities, equipment and training of the group.

Brilliant Officers Serve With Tito

Cairo, Jan. 28. (AP)—Of the 36 officers now composing the High Command of Marshal Josip Broz (Tito), 26 held commissions in the pre-war Yugoslav Army, seven trained in the Spanish Civil War and three rose straight from civilian life, a Partisan authority said today.

In a statement giving the first detailed picture of the principal officers serving under Tito, he said the average age of the chiefs of the nine corps, in the Partisan Army, is less than 29 years.

These corps chiefs serve under a 17-man Supreme High Command led by Tito himself. Tito is a Croat. Of the others, 11 were reported from Serbia and Montenegro, two from Croatia and three from Slovenia.

(This emphasis by the Partisan authority upon the Yugoslav background of the Supreme High Command suggests an effort to discount reports of foreign influences among the red-starred guerillas, who use the Communist salute and work with Allied liaison officers.)

U.S. BOMBERS OVER NORTHERN FRANCE

London, Jan. 28 —(CP)— United States heavy bombers attacked a military objective in northern France today, it was announced today.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY RELIEVED.

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from J S McKeown or any I.D.A. or other drug store, and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results your druggist will gladly return your money.

Social Hygiene Day Will Stress Battle Against Venereal Disease

Toronto, Jan. 28 —(CP)— The Health League of Canada announced today Feb. 2 has been set aside as National Social Hygiene Day, sponsored by the league to focus public attention on the nation's "major wartime public health problem, the spread of venereal disease."

The day will mark the beginning of the voluntary educational program in which the Canadian Junior Chamber of Commerce will be allied with the Health League.

TORONTO EXCHANGE

Toronto, Jan. 28 (CP)—Base metals and industrials were strong this afternoon on Toronto Exchange. Minor losses appeared for golds and oils. Trading was fairly active and turnover totalled 490,000 shares.

Among the strong base metals were Nickel, Smelters, Steep Rock and Waite-Amulet. In golds O'Brien, Chesterville, Beattie, Malartic Gold Fields, McLeod-Cockshutt and Powell Rouyn ruled higher against losses for Sylvanite, Aunor, Queenston, Perron and Central Patricia.

The utility, food and building stocks held a margin of gains over losses. Western Canada Flour Pfd firmed a point. Senior oils were steady. Abitibi Pfd featured the papers, advancing 1 1-2 to 36 in heavy turnover.

British-Dominion, Mid-Continent and Vermilata were slightly weaker western oils.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 28. (AP)—Stocks generally turned around in today's market and pinned on recoveries of fractions to a point or so.

Canadian issues were quiet, with Distillers Seagrams up 1-4 and Dome Mines and Hiram Walker unchanged.

Among assorted new 1943-44 highs near the 4th hour were those of Rustless Iron, Engineers Public Service, Superior Oil (Cal.), Park & Tilford and United Merchants & Manufacturers. Front-liners included U.S. Steel, Chrysler, N.Y., Central, American Distilling "Plain", American Bosch, U.S. Rubber, United Aircraft and Sears Roebuck.

Poultry Market Remains Quiet

Toronto, Jan. 28—(CP) — The fresh dressed poultry market remains quiet, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reports. There is a reported picking up of demand locally and out-of-town. Receipts of chicken continue to arrive in fair volume and surplus is being packed for storage. Some smaller dealers are buying only for immediate needs. Arrivals of fowl are not too plentiful, being about the same as last week. Several mixed cars have been offered from Prairie points but only one car which contained a good percentage of turkeys aroused any interest. This was bought for delivery next month. Shipments consisted of 20,000 lbs. of chicken and 15,000 lbs. of fowl to eastern and southwestern Ontario points.

Quotations to producers and country shippers were: Chicken, Grade A, milk-fed, 5 lbs. and up, 32c lb., 4 to 5 lbs., 31c, under 4 lbs., 30c; Grade B, milk-fed, 5 lbs. and up, 30c, 4 to 5 lbs., 29c, under 4 lbs., 28c; Grade B, 5 lbs. and up 28c, 4 to 5 lbs., 27c, under 4 lbs, 26c; Grade C, 5 lbs. and up, 25c, 4 to 5 lbs, 24c, under 4 lbs., 23c.

Fowl: Grade A, over 5 lbs., 26½c, 4 to 5 lbs., 26c, under 4 lbs., 25c; Grade B, 5 lbs. and up, 24½c, 4 to 5 lbs., 24c, under 4 lbs, 23c; Grade C, 5 lbs. and up, 21½c, 4 to 5 lbs. 21, under 4 lbs., 20c.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 28 — (CP)—Prices were unchanged at bacon-hog markets reporting early today.

Dressedweight: Chatham $16.40 plus transportation, Hull $16.95 delivered, Barrie, Stratford and London $17 delivered, Brantford $16.50 plus transportation, Hamilton $17.05 delivered.

"ONLY A JOKE," SAYS BEVIN

London, Jan. 28 —(CP)— A casual remark by Labor Minister Ernest Bevin in parliament yesterday that "I think I have got a couple of months before I get the sack, so you must trust me for that time" aroused speculation in political quarters last night but Bevin, asked by a reporter to amplify his remark, said "it was only a joke."

The Labor Minister added that he was amazed that any serious notice had been paid to the comment he made during a debate.

Weekly Livestock Review

Toronto, Jan. 28 (CP) — Cattle prices were 15 to 25 cents cwt. lower on steers and heifers and from 50 to 75 cents lower on cows, in trade on the Livestock Market here this week. Lambs dropped 50c to $1 cwt. Veal calves, hogs and sheep were steady.

Wholesalers reported over supplies of beef and lamb with deliveries backing up from retail stores last weekend. The cattle run was light but trade was slow from the opening with pressure on all grades. Strictly choice steers sold at $12.75 to $13 with other grades of weighty steers downward to $11. Butcher steers and heifers were $10 to $11.60 with tops at $11.75. Butcher cows closed at $8.50 to $8 with canners at $4 to $4.50. Bulls sold at $6.50 to $8 for bolognas with light butchers up to $9. Fed yearlings were $11.75 to $15.25. A few stockers and stock calves sold at $6 to $10.50. Good milkers and springers were mostly $130 to $150 each.

Calves were $15 to $16 for choice vealers with common downward to $10. A few grass type calves were $8 to $9 cwt.

Lambs were slow sellers, all were at reduced prices with packers reporting almost no demand from retailers. Good western lambs closed at $13 cwt. with medium to good locals at $12 to $13. Culls sold downward to $7 and some in-between lambs were unsold.

Sheep trade was slow at $2 to $6 cwt. for locals with light western ewes at $6.25 cwt. Some western breeding ewes were unsold.

Hogs sold at $17.15 dressedweight for the basic grade.

WILL DENY SPAIN U.S. OIL REPORTED

Projected Action May Produce Economic Crisis in Spain

Washington, Jan. 28 — (AP) — Spain faced today the necessity of redefining her position toward Germany and the Allies as a result of American suspension of her main oil supplies.

General Franco's government was forced to comfort the possibility of a profound crisis in Spain's entire economy.

The United States, it was learned on highest authority, has stopped scheduled February oil shipments to Spain from the Caribbean area, virtually Spain's only source of supply.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull is expected to announce the move today.

The limited amount of oil Spain has been getting from the Caribbean in her own ships is so tightly calculated that expert observers said the loss or delay of even one tanker's cargo would have extremely serious results.

FLOCK OF CROWS CHEERS FARMERS

Southampton, Ont., Jan. 28 — (CP)—The presence of crows usually bring little joy to the inhabitants of rural regions, but farmers living near Chippawa Hill, five miles east of here, were cheered recently when a flock of them went winging by. Early arrival of the birds was accepted as a sign the winter would continue mild.

Belgrade-Zagreb R. R. Seized by Partisans In 6 Different Sectors

London, Jan. 28 —(AP)— Yugoslav Partisans, striking simultaneously, have severed the important Belgrade-Zagreb railway in six different sectors, Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) reported today, while dispatches from Cairo revealed Yugoslav spearheads were fighting within sight of Belgrade itself.

Tito's communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio and recorded by the Associated Press, said sharp fighting was continuing around German-occupied Tuzla and Zvornik in eastern Bosnia. Cairo reported German relief forces had been dispatched to that area from Danube river bases to the north. These reports said Partisan bands hold commanding positions along the Drina and Bosnia river valleys through which the enemy troops are marching.

The Ontario Intelligencer

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1944

Newsletter From Home

Regulations forbid individuals sending newspapers overseas, though mail subscriptions are still allowed. To overcome this regulation, The Ontario Intelligencer prints the news of the week in letter form. Clip it out and send it to your loved ones and friends who are in distant parts of Canada and overseas.

Forgive the week's delay in preparing the news, but everyone, including the staff of The Ontario Intelligencer has been waiting for some sort of change in the weather before doing anything. It sometimes happens that at the very moment the copy is being prepared, and the writer is going all out to tell about the wonderful weather, a blizzard will blow up from some direction and make a liar out of him; the only change in the weather here has been to become milder. Try to picture Front Street as it would look after a spring rain around Eastertime during the good old days, when winter was winter and there was no fooling. . . . that's Belleville at this very moment. We understand that the Chamber of Commerce at Miami, Florida, has registered a protest with the weatherman because the weather is better here than it is there. There has been no outdoor skating for the past ten days. The open-air rinks and Moira River and the Bay are covered with a sheet of WATER, and the kids don't know whether to dive in, or strike out. Old-timers and amateur weather prognosticators predict an early spring, and some fellow out in western Ontario saw a number of geese flying North, which he claims presages the end of winter. One of these fine balmy mornings we're going to wake up and find about six feet of snow, with the thermometer registering something no one will believe. In the meantime, everyone is enjoying it.

That the Canadian postal authorities will leave no stone unturned to deliver mail to boys overseas despite the fact of insufficient addresses or absence of address, is indicated by the fact that someone overseas a soldier at this moment may be enjoying a Christmas parcel from which the address had been completely torn away. The parcel reached the base post office without identification. The authorities opened the parcel and found the picture of a piper in Highland uniform with badges recognized as belonging to a Winnipeg regiment, and on the back of the snapshot was a name, with regimental numbers and initials standing for the name of the regiment. They communicated with the postal services in Winnipeg, sending the photo and details and, in short time, the information was received, which enabled the base P.O. to rewrap the parcel and forward it for delivery.

Orders for 20 heavy locomotives and a large number of freight cars of various types were announced last week by Canadian National Railways. The new stock is needed to cope with the extremely heavy wartime traffic. The mountain-type locomotives were ordered from Montreal Locomotive Works.

Word has been received by the family of Flt.-Lieut. Ted Lee, who is in the aero-engine branch of the R.C.A.F., that he has remustered for air crew to become a pilot. His twin brother, WO2. Frank Lee is in the Ferry Command at Ottawa.

After being on operations for only a very brief period, Sgt. Leo Corr, 25, son of Mrs. J. Brown, 212 1-2 Coleman Street, is reported as missing following aerial operations with the R.C.A.F., overseas, according to word received by his mother. An air gunner, Sgt. Corr arrived overseas last November. Born in Belleville, son of the late Mr. Joseph Corr and Mrs. Brown, Sgt. Corr attended Belleville schools and prior to his enlistment in the R.C.A.F., was a foreman in a defence plant at Penetanguishene.

Every motor vehicle reported stolen in the city of Belleville during the year 1943 was subsequently recovered. According to the annual police report submitted to the Board of Police Commissioners by Chief of Police R. W. Probert over the weekend. Court cases in the Belleville police court for 1943 showed an increase of 71 over the previous year when 827 cases were heard. Only one fatal motor accident occurred on Belleville streets in 1943, that being the case of a pedestrian being struck on Coleman Street as the man was crossing the thoroughfare.

Returning to the subject of the weather, a topic heard more than any other now-a-days on the street, official figures released by the Water Purification Plant in the city reveal, that, there has been only seven-tenths of an inch of snow so far this winter. One year ago there was 19 inches of snow.

Indications that civilian courts intend to uphold and enforce, as far as their jurisdiction goes, the attendance of members of Canada's Reserve Army to parades was seen in local police court one day recently when one local young man was convicted on three separate charges of failing or neglecting to attend military parade while a member of the Argyll Light Infantry (R). The man was convicted of missing three separate reserve army parades and fined $7.50, including costs on each charge, making the total assessment levied by Magistrate Lloyd exactly $22.50.

Answering four alarms in the brief space of only a few hours, members of the Belleville Fire Department spent rather a busy day last week. Blazes in each case were extinguished before any material damage resulted. A swamp fire, a work bench in a factory, a chimney ablaze and the fourth and final call was to a Front Street address, where there was smoke but no fire.

Thomas Fleming, Huntingdon Township was installed as Warden at the First Session of the County Council. Calling for a united effort on the part of county residents to back Canadian fighting boys to the limit and prepare for their victorious return from overseas, Reeve Thomas Fleming of Huntingdon Township accepted graciously the highest honor than can be bestowed upon a councillor. "I have no radical changes in mind for the general procedure of council", said the new Warden. "I ask only that you back our boys to the very limit. The war is brighter, yes, but we are yet far from winning it. We must now prepare for the return of our boys from overseas; the most that we can do will not be too much."

An accelerated drive to bring more cadets into the ranks of the Belleville Branch of the Sea Cadet Corps netted fifteen new recruits in one night. The Corps will be sponsoring a much wider campaign for recruits in the near future and it is anticipated that the strength of the unit will rise rapidly from its present number to approximately 150.

Branches of the I.O.D.E. across Canada are making a concerted drive to provide better reading material for the members of Canada's armed services in the matter of good books. These books will be placed in the camp libraries of the armed services where sailors, soldiers and airmen can have access to good reading matter during recreation and rest periods. In order to assist this worthy cause the entire membership of the Kinsmen, Kiwanis and the St. Julien Chapter of the I.O.D.E. has been pledged to collect books and magazines. The Navy League of Canada, Belleville Branch are joining these other organizations to swell the total number of books to be sent from the city to the services.

The weather again. . . .Further evidence of the exceptionally mild winter which has been experienced in the Bay of Quinte district this season was seen this week when pussy-willows, some in bud and others burst open, were cut in the vicinity of Belleville. Apparently even the shrubs have been misled into the belief that spring is just around the corner. The pussy-willows were cut by Mr. Sidney Galpin, North Park St., on the right-of-way of the C.N.R. in the vicinity of the roundhouse.

An all-time high in the number of births registered at the city hall was seen during 1943. During the year there were 1,022 births registered in the city, 53 more than were registered in 1942, and 60 per cent over 1940, when there were 634 visits from the stork. The boys won out during 1943, there being 529 male births as compared with 493 female. Although last year saw a zenith in the number of births recorded, there has been a slight falling off in the number of marriages recorded in the city in the past two years. The peak year for Dan Cupid to get in his deadly work was in 1941 when 278 couples tripped blithely to the altar. Last year the number of marriages dropped off to 263, just five less than in 1942. In the first full year of the war, 1940, the number of weddings recorded was 233. The number of deaths in the city during the past year was 384; 240 male and 144 females.

Proving that even the Chief Magistrate of a city may be human . . . .Mayor Harry Rollins fell off a box in his basement and broke his hand. . . .(the one he uses during election time), but, His Worship remains the same gay and hearty person he always is. There have been several stories circulated through the 'gathering-places in the city, one which maintains that His Worship was already electioneering for 1945, and another which insists that the false-spring-like attitude was too much for a man of his years, and that he should not have tried clicking his heels in the air. Mayor Rollins has been busy arranging for a reception committee of citizens to meet returning men from overseas and give them the city's welcome home. He has also been busy compiling a Roll of Honor, which will contain the names of every man and woman from the city, who has joined the armed forces.

It was the first definite notification that he was actually a P.O.W. since he was seen captured. His brother, Pte. Edmund Long, manning a machine gun on the battle front was one of the last to see him.

Here is a little different angle on the weather . . . . Twenty inches of snow-free ice so clear that the bottom of the lake may be seen in places, is being cut at Oak Lake by farmers and other jobbers storing their next summer's supply. Almost entirely free of snow, the ice this year is the finest seen in years and is the right thickness for easy handling and for packing in ice houses.

Not that we want to rub it in, but here is another reference to the weather. . .One of the heaviest fogs seen here for some time blanketed the city before the noon hour last Wednesday. However, it cleared somewhat in the early afternoon. Some weather observers think a fog appearing at this time is advance notice of colder weather in the near future. Hm-m-m.

Claiming wide popularity in Belleville and throughout the district by her frequent appearances as a vocalist at social functions and other entertainments, Miss Ethel Smith, Ann Street, will shortly make her radio debut over a Buffalo station. Sometime in February Miss Smith's voice will be heard over Station WGR, Buffalo, during an amateur program, which is broadcast on Sunday afternoons.

ATROCITIES

In groups of 500 to 1,000, they began the six-day march, along the national road off Bataan toward San Fernando in Pampanga province — the "march of death" so hideous it would make the Black Hole of Calcutta sound like a haven of refuge.

Gave Man's Water to Horse

A Japanese soldier took Dyess' canteen, gave the water to a horse, threw the canteen away. In a broiling sun, the prisoners were herded through clouds of dust. Men recently killed lay along the road, their bodies flattened by Japanese trucks. Patients bombed out of a field hospital were pushed into the marching column. At midnight the entire group was penned in an enclosure too narrow to allow any of them to lie down. They had had no water—a Japanese officer finally permitted them to drink at a dirty carabao wallow.

Before daylight the next day the march was resumed. When exhausted men fell out moaning, no one was allowed to help—those who still marched heard shots behind them.

On the third day "we were introduced to a form of torture which came to be known as the sun treatment. We were made to sit in the boiling sun all day without cover. We had very little water; our thirst was intense. Many of us went crazy and several died. Three Filipino and three American soldiers were buried while still alive. . .

"I made that arch of about 85 miles in six days on one mess kit of rice. Other Americans made 'the march of death' in 12 days, without any food whatever."

The prisoners taken at Corregidor did not experience that march, but 7,000 Americans and 5,000 Filipinos were packed for a week with no food on a concrete pavement 100 yards square. There was one water spigot for the 12,000—the average wait to fill a canteen was 12-hours. They got their first food— a mess kit of rice and a can of sardines—after seven days.

No Water Facilities

At Camp O'Donnell there were almost no water facilities. Prisoners stood in line six to 10 hours to get a drink. Clothing went unchanged a month and a half. The principal food was rice.

There was a hospital—a dilapidated building with no facilities, no medicine. Hundreds lay on the bare floor without cover. After one week, the death rate was 20 Americans a day, 150 Filipinos; after two weeks, 50 and 500 respectively. The sick as well as the merely starving were forced into work gangs, and worked until they dropped dead.

About June 1, the Americans were removed from Camp O'Donnell to Cabanatuan, where Dyess joined Melnik and McCoy, who had come in from Corregidor. Conditions there were a little better, but the diet did not improve.

The brutality continued — men were beaten with shovels and golf clubs, "men were literally worked to death."

Pulled Up by Ropes

Three officers who tried to escape were caught, stripped to their shorts, their hands tied behind them and pulled up by ropes fastened overhead, and kept in this position in the blazing sun for two days; periodically the Japs beat them with a two-by-four; finally one was beheaded and the others shot. By Oct. 26, when Dyess, McCoy and Melnik left Cabantuan, 3,000 of the American prisoners had died.

"The salvation of the American prisoners of war," Dyess reported, was the American and British Red Cross supplies, both clothing and food, that finally began to arrive, months late.

This was the life from which McCoy, Dyess and Mellnik escaped April 4, 1943. The account is based solely on their official reports, but the Army and Navy said at least four others were known to have escaped from the Philippines—Majors Michiel Dobervitch, Ironton, Minn., Auston C. Shofner, Shelbyville, Tenn., and Jack Hawkins, Roxton, Tex., and Cpl. Reid Carlor Chamberlain, El Cajone, Calif., all of the Marine Corps.

Trenton and District

Trenton, (Special)—, The regular meeting of the Red Cross in the work rooms on Tuesday was well attended and several shipments of finished articles were made to Headquarters at Toronto as well as one shipment of quilts and some small articles to the Corvette "Trentonian".

A basket of apples donated by Mrs. C. Crews was raffled and brought in $2.05. Mrs. L. Post was the lucky winner.

Two donations of money were received from the schools, $2 from Miss Walker's Room No. 14 at College St. School and $2.50 from Miss May's Grade 1 of Dufferin School.

A number of the ladies volunteered to attend the work rooms again on Wednesday to do extra cutting of the refugee clothing in the sewing department.

4th Thurlow

4th Thurlow — About 30 members of the Y.P.U. of Bethany held a skating party on Monday evening. After enjoying themselves on the ice for a couple of hours they all returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russel Ritz where they were treated to hot dogs and coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Cole and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cooke of Stirling.

Mrs. Bertha Cole of Cannifton, spent the weekend with her daughter, Mrs. H Walker.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Sills and boys, also Mr. and Mrs. John Ritz and Audrey were tea hour guests on Friday of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Beer, 3rd line.

Mr. Charlie Miller has returned home from the hospital, but is still in a plaster cast and confined to his bed.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Yateman have moved to their new home in Stirling.

Mr. E. Pascoe of Melrose, is busy on this line sawing the farmer's wood. Owing to the lack of snow many have had to have their wood sawed in the woods.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Burris and boys of Hillier were Sunday visitors at the home of Robt. Miller.

AWARDED $8,000 DAMAGES

Kitchener, Jan. 28 — (CP) — John Beechey, 25-year-old Preston, Ont., milk deliveryman, yesterday was awarded $8,000 in a damage action against Central Transport Ltd., and Harvey Goldsmith, Kitchener truck driver. The action arose from an accident in which Beechey suffered injuries he said kept him idle for nine months.

Here are the Tweeds!

I'm Jean! He's Tommy! I bet you're saying, right now, "Well! And what about it? Who are these people anyway?" So, I'm going to try and explain.

We're an ordinary Canadian couple . . . with an extraordinary amount of curiosity. A little while ago, we decided to find out for ourselves how other families were living. We've met some very swell people and it's been terribly interesting, so we thought we'd pass on our impressions. Tommy's made sketches and I've added a few comments—all about families here and there, far and near. Hope you like them . . .

But first, we're going to give you our impression of us!

WHAT A WELCOME! Our Terry's quite a girl, as you can see, and mighty nice to come home to. She's a very wise kid, too. You should just see her reach for those Kellogg's Corn Flakes at lunch. She'll have a bowl of her own when she grows up, I tell her, but you should see her s-t-r-e-t-c-h for them now!

DOWN AND OUT? Not really! It's Tommy's idea of how he looked as an out-of-worker in one of his movie roles. I wish I could draw you a picture of how he looks wolfing down a dish of Kellogg's Corn Flakes the nights he works late. No matter how tired he is, his eyes just light up at the sight of that Kellogg package!

"CHANGED YOUR JOB?" Tommy asked me, when he caught me hard at work in the Canteen the other day. "No," I told him, "I've just taken on another one!" They need help so badly here—doing all sorts of jobs. I'd love to give the Canteen more time but three afternoons is all I can do. A house, husband, and baby really fill up the day!

SAVE TIME... SAVE WORK... SAVE FUEL!

Here is the flavour favourite! Yes, 4 out of 5 housewives across Canada vote Kellogg's Corn Flakes first for flavour! Ready in only 30 seconds, they star for breakfast when time is short. Grand for odd-hour snacks, too! Easy to digest. Leave no messy pots and pans to clean up. Kellogg's Corn Flakes are economical—cost less than 1¢ a serving. Have you tried Kellogg's lately? Two convenient sizes. Order a couple of packages from your grocer today. Made by Kellogg's in London, Canada.

BERLIN SMASHED AGAIN IN GREAT ATTACK; 800 U. S. BOMBERS HIT FRANKFURT BY DAY

Complete Evacuation of Nazi Capital Reported Planned; 'Large Damage' Admitted

47 Bombers Lost In Night's Attack

BY GLADWIN HILL, AP STAFF WRITER)

London, Jan. 29 —(AP)— Berlin smoked and burned anew today from the second heavy R.A.F. - R.C.A.F. raid in a row Friday night, an assault that was followed up during the day by an attack by more than 800 American four-engined bombers on the Nazi industrial city of Frankfurt.

Immediate details of perhaps the heaviest daylight blow in aerial warfare were lacking, and the Nazis clamped a tight censorship on detail of the terrible new damage to Berlin as reports from Sweden said the capital's evacuation was planned.

Forty-seven bombers did not return from the Berlin and other night blows—the heaviest R.A.F. loss in the 72-night battle to erase Berlin but less than the losses of some of the earlier attacks on the capital.

Many hundreds of tons of shattering explosives and fire bombs thundered down on Berlin already flaming in a score of places from Thursday night's massive 1,500-ton attack.

Few Details

Although the Air Ministry's communique gave few details, there was little doubt this second successive assault in the mopping operations against the battered and torn city was a paralyzing blow.

Nazi sources themselves acknowledged "very large damage."

Travellers reaching Sweden, apparently even before last night's terrific blow, said women and children were pouring from the apparently-doomed city and that the capital's complete evacuation was planned.

The German-dominated Scandinavian telegraph bureau said tersely that "details of the huge raid are not allowed to be published."

One Berlin broadcast asserted that "as in the previous night, bombs were dropped indiscriminately on residential areas of the Reich capital. The sky was heavily clouded and visibility was extremely bad. German night fighters in fierce air combats brought down 40 enemy terror bombers."

It was the third raid by Allied heavy bombers from Britain in 24 hours—following close on the American daylight stroke yesterday against mystery targets in the Pas-De-Calais coastal region of France.

Total 20,000 Tons in Raid

It brought the total bombweight on Berlin since the start of the campaign Nov. 18 to about 20,000 tons of explosives—approximately twice the amount that was required to devastate Hamburg, a city less than half as big.

The Stockholm newspaper Svenska Morgonbladet quoted a traveller arriving from Berlin for its report that full evacuation of the city was being prepared.

Women and children are pouring from the city in steady streams, the Stockholm account said, all regular public schools have been closed and an "evacuation school" has been set up away from the flaming capital.

The 13th attack on Berlin came while the Germans were giving London its 700th alert of the war. A few bombs were dropped and caused some damage and a few casualties.

Daylight Raids by Allies

The daylight attack yesterday was carried out by heavy American bombers escorted by R.A.F. and U.S. fighters. All bombers returned safely. Six fighters were lost.

Squadrons of the Canadian bomber group formed part of the force which attacked the German capital last night. In operations during daylight yesterday, R.C.A.F. planes shot down four German fighters, for a total of 11 in two days.

389 Planes Lost in 13 Raids.

It brought the total bombers failing to return from all 13 attacks on the capital and other targets hit in the same night to 389.

In lives and pounds sterling the R.A.F. has lost some 2300 airmen and planes worth roughly around $96,780,000 in the effort to erase the German capital from the map of Europe. Some of the airmen are prisoners of war.

In last night's attack, the largest force was concentrated on the capital itself while other formations executed what was described officially as "an extensive mine-laying operation" in unspecified waters and bombed western Germany. Intruder planes shot up airfields and destroyed two Nazi planes.

Today's assault was the fourth raid by Allied heavy bombers from Britain in 24 hours and was a followup to yesterday's American daylight stroke against mystery targets in the coastal region of France.

The Berlin raid brought the total bombweight dropped on the city since Nov. 18 to about 20,000 tons—approximately twice the tonnage required to devastate Hamburg—a city less than half as large.

"We have gone through one of the most horrible nights since the English raids of annihilation began against Berlin," said the Stockholm newspaper Aftonbladet's Berlin correspondent.

"Disastrous fires" are blazing in the shattered city, he wrote, adding that the Nazi censorship prohibited him from giving a detailed picture of the damage and the number of victims.

All Swedish correspondents made it clear the attack was one of the severest yet directed against Berlin.

"One felt the ground shaking as the result of the enormous air mines which crushed whole aparment house blocks," one correspondent reported.

When the sirens announced the last bomber was gone the correspondent said the streets were full of incendiaries as he drove home to see if his house was still standing, and Berliners were racing through the streets trying to stamp out the blazes.

Franco Warned By Oil Embargo

Washington, Jan. 29 —(AP)— The implication today of the Allied choking off of oil shipments to Spain was that unless Gen. Francisco Franco stops helping the Axis, other drastic blows may follow.

In effect, the action announced by the State Department yesterday told Franco that it is time for him to decide which side he wants to play with, and act accordingly.

By hitting Spain's economic system, the concerted move apparently was intended to force Franco out of the paradoxical situation where Spain has been a "non-belligerent," gradually showing warmness toward the Allies as the war progressed in their favor, yet continuing to aid the Axis.

The concrete expression of Allied censure towards Spain's policy also indicated Britain and the United States no longer fear a flood of German troops down the Iberian peninsula to Gibraltar.

HIGHWAY ENGINEER DIES

Port Hope, Jan. 29 (CP) — John Sears, divisional engineer for the Ontario Highways Department since 1935, died yesterday in hospital here. He was 64, and a native of Kingston, Ont., where interment will be made.

Japs 'Lepers', 'Nation of Savages' In Modern Attire, Say British Papers

London, Jan. 29 (CP).—The London Daily Express declared today the revelations of Japanese atrocities against Allied prisoners should dispel any last doubts that Britain will hurl her full might against Japan when Germany is defeated.

The British press as a whole lashed out against the Japanese, calling them barbarians and savages and demanding retribution.

"When the Japanese are beaten back to their own savage land," said the London Daily Mail, "let them live in complete isolation from the rest of the world as in a leper compound, unclean."

The Daily Herald suggested that "delicate though the situation is", a direct approach by the Russians to the Japanese might have a chance of remedying the situation, if the Russians felt it wise to make such a move.

"Are they (the Japanese) humans?" asked the Daily Mirror, and the Yorkshire Post denounced them as "a nation of savages tricked out deceptively in modern dress".

O.W.I. POSSESSES NO INFORMATION CONFIRMING STORY

Probably 50,000 Prisoners Taken by Japanese in Philippines

JAPS DENY CHARGES

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP).—A review of official casualty reports indicates the Japanese probably captured at least 50,000 American and Filipino fighting men in the Philippines.

Of the total, approximately 22,331 were American soldiers, sailors and marines, 12,037 Philippine scouts, and the others members of the Philippine Commonwealth army.

An exact count is impossible—reports did not come with any regularity from either Bataan or Corregidor during the last weeks of the fighting.

Washington (AP).—Director Elmer Davis of the Office of War Information said yesterday that O.W.I. did not possess information confirming that most of 50,000 prisoners taken by the Japanese in the Philippines have been murdered by brutality.

The figures are given in an article appearing in the American Magazine next week, written by Palmer Hoyt, who resigned this month as domestic director of O.W.I.

"That is not information in the possession of O.W.I.," Davis said. "If the army has it we don't know about it. Mr. Hoyt apparently obtained it from unofficial sources."

Casualty figures for the armed services issued Tuesday by O.W.I. included 1,933 deaths in prison camps "mostly in Japanese-occupied territory". The Japanese atrocity report issued by the War and Navy Departments Thursday night showed 5,200 deaths of American soldiers in two Japanese prison camps in the Philippines, plus many thousands of deaths among the Filipino prisoners.

New York, Jan. 29 (AP).—In the first Japanese reaction to United States and British disclosures of brutal Japanese treatment of war prisoners, the Tokyo Domei agency said last light in a wireless dispatch for American consumption that the charges were "a mere recurrence of the enemy's vicious propaganda".

COINCIDENCE

Camp Blanding, Fla., Jan. 29 (AP) — Army service forces experts identify laundry marks with the last initial and last four digits of the soldier's serial number, figuring that only once in 100,000 times would two men have the same laundry mark. Pte. Alfred Stoll and Pte. Alex. K. Sherman hit that long shot. Since they share quarters at Camp Blanding, however, authorities said they could straighten out their own problems.

Stockholm, Jan. 29—(AP)—Interned American pilots and crewmen have trained Swedish aviators to fly a heavy bomber which was forced down in Sweden in October, the newspaper Aftonbladet reports.

"CHIMPS" NOT DEPENDENTS

Richmond, Va., Jan. 20—(AP)— A man reclassified 1-A appeared at Selective Service headquarters and asked whether three chimpanzees used in his carnival act were dependents. Draft officials ruled that chimpanzees are not family dependents.

Allied Forces Within 19 Miles Of Rome

Americans Demand Merciless Vengeance on Guilty Japs

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, Jan. 29 — (CP) — Angry cries for swift revenge went up from Americans today as they grasped the latest revelations of Japanese atrocities inflicted upon Allied prisoners and many interpreted the official release at this time as an indication new and powerful Allied assaults in the Pacific are about to be launched.

Here in Washington observers sought from officials an explanation of the purposes behind the release which would bring fresh anguish to those with loved ones in the hands of the Japs.

But officials were reticent although the general explanation was that it was based upon a belief that the people should know what they are up against in the Pacific, and that there was little hope of gaining any better treatment for prisoners by remaining silent.

In some quarters it was believed the release was permitted now because the Allied authorities are convinced new campaigns against the Japanese would quickly convince Tokyo that retribution is swiftly approaching.

The reaction at the capitol was a chorus of demands for the greatest possible effort to speed the day when those prisoners still alive could be liberated from Japanese control and their torturers punished.

Local Campaigners in the current $14,000,000,000 War Bond effort immediately seized upon the atrocities story as a basis for a fresh appeal to potential investors.

But the fact the official release so closely coincided with a similar statement by Anthony Eden in the British House of Commons made it appear that the purpose behind the story was more than a move to stimulate bond sales.

There were also reports that the release was timed to anticipate a forthcoming syndicated series of stories obtained from the late Col. Wm. E. Dyess whose sworn testimony constituted a part of the government release.

The Times-Herald, Washington member of the Chicago Tribune press service, headed the government release with the announcement that it would begin the series Sunday.

At his press conference yesterday, Cordell Hull was asked if the Chicago Tribune's pressure for release of the story had prejudiced future exchanges of internees with the Japanese.

Hull said that was something he would not care to discuss.

There was also a suggestion here that the release was timed to anticipate a Japanese campaign to convince the world that the Allies were indulging in atrocities, such as the sinking of Japanese hospital ships.

WM. ALLEN WHITE, NOTED EDITOR, DEAD AT AGE OF 75

Became Famous in 1896 With Editorial 'What's the Matter With Kansas?'

PRESIDENTS' FRIEND

Emporia, Kas., Jan. 29 —(AP)— William Allen White, noted editor of the Emporia Gazette, died at 4:15 a.m. today.

In ill health for nearly a year, White, 75, underwent a major operation last Oct. 20 at the Mayo Brothers Clinic at Rochester, Minn.

He wrote his last editorial for the Gazette a short time before he entered the Mayo hospital. He titled in "The New Baby" and it concerned a new linotype in the Gazette plant.

White returned to Emporia last November, but was unable to resume his duties and has been confined to his home since. Mrs. White, herself ailing, has been his constant companion and was with him when he died.

The editor's only son, W. L. White, who succeeded as editor and publisher of the Gazette recently, announced his father's death.

The elder White's illness began with an attack of influenza nearly a year ago when he was in New York. He returned to Emporia and continued his work, but went to Colorado for the summer. It was shortly after his return that he decided to undergo the operation in an attempt to recover his health.

Bought Gazette.

White, who bought the Gazette in 1895 with $3,000 he borrowed, was the friend and adviser of presidents and governors. In his later years he was an elder statesman of the Republican party.

White's famous editorial, "What's the matter with Kansas?" which he wrote a year after he took over the Gazette, skyrocketed him to prominence. It was a masterpiece of epigrams.

From then on his fame grew. He wrote numerous books, most of which concerned politics and political figures. His "Masks in a pageant" reviewed the life and times of the 10 presidents he knew intimately.

During the past several years, White had been writing an autobiography. He had completed the first draft and completed parts of the final version. His son plans to finish the book for publication at an early date.

ARREST 50 TO 75 DANES DAILY

Stockholm, Jan. 29—(AP)—Using paid informers to combat acts of sabotage, the Germans are arresting Danes at the rate of 50 to 75 daily, the Free Danish Press service said last night.

RED SKI TROOPS DRIVE TO CLOSE LAST BOTTLENECK

Germans in Chudovo Cut Off, Those at Staraya Russa Threatened

DRIVE DOWN L. ILMEN

By EDDIE GILMOUR
(AP Staff Writer)

Moscow, Jan. 29 —(AP)— Red army units west of Novogord were but 20 miles from the Leningrad-Pskov railway today and were smashing forward across a country white with a deep new snowfall toward that last supply artery for all Germans pinched between Lake Ilmen and Lake Peipus.

Lake Peipus forms part of the Estonian border.

With the Leningrad-Moscow line almost completely in Russian hands, the Leningrad-Vitebsk railway severed by Gen. K. A. Meretskov's forces, and Gen. Leonid A. Govorov's units astride the Leningrad-Reval (Tallinn) east-west line, Red army ski-men pushed the drive to close the last bottleneck south of Stalingrad.

This battle over difficult country west of captured Peredolskaya on the Leningrad-Vitebsk railway was a repitition of the Soviet strategy of the autumn and winter in the Ukraine where the constant aim was to cut German communications.

Already cut off were the Germans in the Chudovo sector on the Leningrad-Moscow railway, while to the south of Lake Ilmen another large body of the enemy at Staraya Russa faced the distinct possibility of being isolated likewise.

A Russian drive down the western shore of Lake Ilmen toward Shinsk was aimed at the rear of the Staraya, Russa garrison.

2,000 Prints of Canadian Landscapes For British Canteens

London, Jan. 29 —(CP Cable)— Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, today presented Sir James Grigg, secretary of war, with 2,000 prints of 25 Canadian landscapes as a gift from Canada for exhibition in British army canteens and messes.

LIQUOR STORES CLOSED

Toronto, Jan. 29—(CP)—The Ontario Liquor Board announced last night after the regular closing of liquor stores in Ontario that the stores will not reopen until 10 a.m. E.D.T. Tuesday, Feb. 1. The closing order was necessary, a spokesman said, because gallonage available to the board under Dominion Government regulations now is exhausted.

KING TELLS HOUSE OF JAPS' NEGLECT OF PRISONERS

Those in Hong Kong Appear Suffering More From Neglect Than Mistreatment

500 TO 600 HELD THERE

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)...

Ottawa, Jan. 29 (CP).—House of Commons members who on Thursday heard Throne Speech forecasts of a rosy new age of social security yesterday sat in silence as Prime Minister Mackenzie King told them of Japanese neglect of Canadian fighting men held prisoner in the Orient.

Mr. King spoke of some 1,000 Canadians transferred to Japan from Hong Kong, where they had been taken prisoner on Christmas Day, 1941, and 500 to 600 still held captive in the former British naval base.

He said the prisoners still at Hong Kong appeared to be suffering more from neglect than mistreatment such as that reported in horrifying detail, being meted out to United States captives in the Philippines.

Government efforts to obtain information about Canadian prisoners, to send them adequate supplies and mail, to have action follow protests by a neutral power, and to have reports made on conditions in prison camps all had been largely thwarted by the Japanese, said the prime minister.

Mr. King said that reports of atrocities committed by the Japanese against Allied prisoners of war are "so horrible and overwhelming as to be almost incredible."

There were no reports on the prisoners in Japan, but it was believed they received better treatment than those at Hong Kong, the prime minister said.

Guilt of Japan.

He closed his statement with the declaration that the responsibility for inhuman treatment of prisoners rests with the government at Tokyo and added:

"This guilt will not be forgotten."

The grim anxiety of war overshadowed what is usually one of the House's happier days in any session, with the mover and seconder of the address in reply to the Throne Speech having precedence over the other speakers.

Lieut. L. D. Tremblay (La-Dorchester), the mover, and Capt. Walter Tucker (L-Rosthern), seconder, both had praise for the proposed social security program outlined in the Throne Speech, including family allowances, steps to prevent mass unemployment and aid agriculture.

Both spoke of the recent proposals of Lord Halifax, British ambassador to the United States, that the British Commonwealth Nations and Colonies draw closer together so they would represent, as a unit, one power equal to Russia, the United States or China, the other great Allied powers.

Looking also at the general welfare of Canadians and the post-war world were reports cabled at

Several American Fliers Who Bombed Tokyo Tortured Before Execution

This story of Japanese treatment of prisoners was told by J. B. Powell, editor of the China Weekly Review in Shanghai, to his assistant of four years ago, Frances Long. She tried to get home before the Pacific war broke out, was captured in Manila, while Powell suffered loss of his feet through Japanese treatment while an espionage suspect, she was interned in the Philippines.

They came home together in the first exchange of American and Japanese Nationals and met again this week to talk over the latest revelations of Japanese atrocities.

By FRANCES LONG
(AP Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 29 — (AP) — The Japanese not only executed American fliers captured after the April, 1941, raid on Tokyo, but also tortured at least six of them beforehand, J. B. Powell, former editor of the China Weekly Review, said today.

Powell, a prisoner in the notorious Bridgehouse in Shanghai at the time, now is in Presbyterian Hospital here.

"In the next cell to us were six American boys," he said. "They were aviators captured after the Doolittle raid.

"They were tortured unmercifully. The Japanese seemed to delight in torturing them, more than the civilians. Later two or three of them were taken to Japan and executed."

The Bridgehouse, near the bridge which joins Shanghai proper and Chapel, is a drab brown building.

The Japanese constructed little cells and the Bridgehouse has become a place of torture for Chinese and, since the Pacific war broke out, for whites.

Cisterna Under Range of Light Artillery Fire

Germans Lose 36 Planes in Heavy Attacks on Targets In Allied Area

CANADIANS IN ACTION

By EDWARD KENNEDY
(A.P. War Correspondent)

Algiers, Jan. 29 (AP). — Allied beachhead troops, striking toward the Appian Way and the main rail line to the Cassino front, have advanced to within light artillery range of Cisterna astride both arteries 14 miles northeast of Anzio, it was announced today.

At the same time other Allied forces pushing north from Anzio up the Anziate Road captured a bridge two miles beyond Carroceto where British troops routed a German unit Thursday. This Allied force was about 19 miles southeast of Rome, and 12 miles north of Anzio.

German Air Attacks Suffer.

The Germans launched heavy air attacks against shipping on the beachhead yesterday and again suffered badly at the hands of the Allied air forces which shot down 21 enemy planes over the area.

Fourteen other planes were shot down during a heavy bomber raid on Ferrara. The day's total bag was 36 Nazi aircraft for a loss of five Allied planes.

Violent fighting raged north of Cassino where American tanks and infantry hacked out gains against fierce opposition and repeated counter-attacks. Farther north, French troops seized two hills north of Belvedere Mountain and smashed down three German counter-thrusts.

Shell Hits Train

A communique said that during the "heavy and accurate" bombardment of the Germans in the Anzio sector by British warships a train moving up supplies "was cut in half by a direct hit." The town of Formia, on the Gulf of Gaeta to the south, also was bombarded and traffic on a coast road disrupted. The British warships also shelled German batteries in the Antio sector.

The Navy said the Germans now were so far back from the beachhead that they are out of range of destroyers which fire between seven and eight miles, but within reach of cruiser guns.

Canadian units of the 8th Army have made a slight advance along the 8th Army's sector of the Italian front. The gain was in the vicinity of Orsogna, some 12 miles from the Adriatic coast and southwest of Ortona which the Canadians captured last month.

This was the first report that Canadians were in action near Orsogna but with the announcement from Ottawa that Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's Canadian Army Corps is in the front an expansion of the line previously held by the Canadian 1st Division was to be expected.

Activity on the 8th Army front, where the German overseas news agency said the German command expects a new onslaught, was mainly limited to patrolling and artillery exchanges.

Yesterday's communique reported that Allied invasion forces were slowly enlarging their bridgehead south of Rome and had dealt the Nazis a twin defeat in the battle for the Italian capital.

Brenner Traffic Reduced

A bomber base in Italy, (AP)— German rail traffic from the Brenner Pass down to Bologna in northern Italy and thence to the fronts was reduced to a trickle, or perhaps completely blocked by new aerial blows at the junction of Verona in northern Italy.

This intersection or northern Italy's main north-south and east-west rail lines was chocked with debris, twisted rails and charred freight cars.

At the same time another formation plastered the Aviano Airfield, 40 miles north of Venice, shooting down 14 German planes.

In spite of a rainstorm sky battles over the beachhead continued in violence unmatched since the last stages of the Tunisia campaign.

A total of 36 planes brought down yesterday boosted the two-day total in the air over Italy and southern France to 86 Nazi craft destroyed.

More than 100 German planes started attacking the invasion fleets landing troops and supplies at dawn, and in the first six hours of daylight Allied fighters knocked down 21 of the enemy.

This furious pace apparently rebuffed the Germans, for during the afternoon their attacks dwindled to almost nothing.

Altogether, it was announced, the Allied Air Force sent up more than 1,500 sorties during the day, approximately 100 more than the day before. Five Allied planes were missing.

Ottawa Faces Acute Shortage of Houses

Ottawa, Jan. 29 (CP) — Officials of Ottawa housing registry predict the worst housing shortage in the capital's history this spring.

They said last night 300 Ottawa families face eviction from their homes May 1 and that 75 per cent of them are permanent Ottawa residents. During December, nearly 2,000 people sought the registry's help in finding homes. Officials termed "very acute" the shortage of homes in the $20 to $40 a month bracket.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

PUBLIC WARNED OF COUNTERFEIT 50-CENT PIECES

Hamilton police yesterday warned merchants and public to watch for counterfeit 50-cent pieces following appearance of what Inspector of Detectives John Thompson terms, "the most perfect looking coins I have ever seen," in stores here. He said the only distinguishing quality of the coins is a "greasy" feeling.

TWO DISTRICT BOYS GRADUATE AS PILOTS

Two Belleville district boys were winged as pilots in the Royal Canadian Air Force at wings presentation ceremony held at Centralia, Ontario on Friday afternoon. The flyers to graduate were R. C. Alexander of Bloomfield and E. H. Metcalfe of Bancroft.

NEPHEW OF RURAL RESIDENT RESCUED FROM NORTH SEA

Forced down into the North Sea on his return to England following a bombing raid over Berlin, Flying Officer Douglas Keeble, nephew of Mr. J. D. Keeble, R.R. 7 Belleville, has been rescued and is now in a naval hospital on the east English coast, according to word received. As result of the raid over the continent the flyer was suffering from a bullet wound in his leg. Flying Officer Keeble received part of his training at the R.A.F. station at Picton.

LIGHT SNOWFALL DURING THE NIGHT

A complete reversal of weather conditions greeted the early risers of the city this morning when they arose to find the city blanketed with a white substance almost forgotten as far as this winter is concerned. Two inches of snow fell before midnight Friday night to refresh the streets and lawns of the district. The snowfall is the heaviest of the year to date. The greatest depth prior to today was 7-10th of an inch. Early indications are that unless further snow falls, there will be little left by night. The mild weather continues and rapid thawing is eating its way into the snow. Snow men are appearing in back yards and on front lawns of home throughout the city as the youngsters revel in their first taste of winter this year. Snowballs whizz by unsuspecting heads from ambush as the war of youth versus adult opens. The question arises: what about those geese seen flying north a few weeks ago?

DAMAGE CAUSED BY CAR COLLISIONS

When Howard Carr, 418 Front Street, Trenton, retarded the speed of his car to allow a pedestrian to cross East Dundas St., here, Friday evening, he was surprised when suddenly his motorcar was struck in the rear by another automobile. Richard E. Cole, 271 Coleman St., Belleville, was following Carr in an easterly direction when it became necessary for Carr suddenly to slow down. Police were notified and found bumpers broken, as well as the rear spring of Mr. Carr's motor car and the radiator and grill of Mr. Cole's automobile.

Property damage resulted to the side of a motorcar on Bridge St., Friday afternoon when it was sideswiped by a truck driven by Gerald Way, 159 Foster Ave. The automobile, driven by J. Goodfellow, Brougham, Ont., had been parked in the vicinity of the post office when Way drove past causing approximately $40. damage as the result of the sideswipe, police reported.

CANADIAN MAJOR DEVISED TRICK IN ORTONA BATTLE

Had Holes Cut in Upper Walls of Houses to Let Soldiers in to Clear Out Hives

MEN UNDER COVER

(By DOUGLAS AMARON)
(C. P. War Correspondent)

With the Canadian Forces in Italy, Jan. 29 (CP) — A Canadian with imagination turned the tide in the battle for Ortona with a trick which outsmarted even the battle-wise Germans.

He was Major Bill Longhurst of Edmonton, company commander of the Loyal Edmonton Regiment who, his fellow officers say, was the spearhead of the final drive to clear the town of the enemy. A captain when the battle began, he was promoted major in the field "for distinguished conduct."

The Germans found in answer to every Canadian move in the early days of street fighting in the Adriatic coastal town last month. There seemed to be no choice left but to smash forward house by house in full view of the enemy and at heavy cost.

Then Longhurst devised a plan for clearing out the enemy and at the same time keeping his own men under cover.

Pioneers Blew Openings in Upper Walls

In brief, this is what happened. Pioneers blew openings in the walls of the top storeys of houses and infantrymen entered these and worked their way downstairs, clearing the Germans room by room and floor by floor.

While the riflemen were room cleaning, pioneers blew a hole into the next house and once one building was cleared, the soldiers climbed back upstairs and entered the next. There was never any need to go into the open, except where there were gaps between houses.

Clear Houses from Top Down

"I never saw the men keener, because they weren't in the street," said Longhurst who left Canada early in the war as a corporal. "They cleared houses from the top down and were on top of the Germans before they knew it."

L. Cpl. P. B. McBratney, whose sister lives at Meadowville, Ont., and Cpl. J. H. Johnman, Barrhead, Alta., were pioneers he praised specifically. On one occasion when an igniter failed, they returned to a building and while one held the fuse the other lighted it with a cigaret or match.

GEN. CLARK UNDER FIRE

New York, Jan. 29 (AP) — Lt.-Gen. Mark Clark, commander of the Allied 5th. Army came under direct German gunfire yesterday during a visit to the Anzio Bay beachhead south of Rome but escaped injury although several men near him were hit.

CBS in a broadcast from Algiers said that when the enemy fire began Clark dropped to the ground and later helped care for the injured men.

Several City And District Men In Casualty List

Awarded the Military Medal for action during the Allied invasion of Sicily, Corporal H. Eldon Brant, 211 Coleman Street, city, has been wounded in action in fighting on the Italian front, according to the Canadian Army casualty list released for publication today. A member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Cpl. Brant with several other members of his unit, was decorated for bravery following the Sicilian invasion.

Several other Belleville and Belleville district names are included in the list, incuding Pte. Hubert D. Mitchel, 61 St. Charles Street, member of a Central Ontario Regiment, who is listed as dangerously wounded, and Lieut. Francis P. Clarke, 28 Sinclair Street, member of a Canadian Armoured Corps who is also listed as wounded.

A Campbellford boy, Pte. James Angus Donald, member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, is listed as killed in action, while Cpl. Charles R. Whittaker, brother of Henry H. Whittaker, Harriet Street, Belleville, has also been killed in action. Cpl. Whittaker was a member of a Manitoba regiment.

American Navy Pilot Lands Near Thomasburg

Making a forced landing in a plowed field near Thomasburg after becoming lost in fog, an American Navy pilot escaped injury late Friday afternoon. The plane came down on the farm owned by Mrs. Albert Porter, one and one-half miles west of Thomasburg, far off its course from the American base. No mention was made by the pilot of snowstorm being encountered, he stating he had become completely lost in the fog evident at higher altitude. Unable to find his home station the pilot stayed aloft until he ran short of gas and had to set his plane down. There was only one person in the plane.

FOXBORO

St. Andrew's Church Holds Annual Congregational Meeting

Foxboro — St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Foxboro, held its annual business meeting January 24th., with the Rev. J. W. MacDonald, the minister, in the chair. H. M. Longwell was elected secretary for the meeting. Reports were read by the minister, the clerk of session, and the various representatives of the departments of the church's work and other affiliated organizations showing a very active and successful year. The reports show a satisfactory balance on hand after all bills were paid by all societies reporting. The total amount raised for all purposes being $1,275, of which $170 was sent for the missionary support of the church.

W. Woods and R. B. Hamilton, retiring managers, were re-elected for another term of three years. W. R. Bartlett was named chairman of trustees. The plate collectors appointed were, G. Peacock, H. Watt, H. Longwell and C. Sullivan. The secretary-treasurer, H. M. Longwell, was re-elected.

The death, during the past year, of two valued members, Mrs. English and Mrs. McMullen, was suitably noted.

The attention of the meeting was called to the fact that it was the eve of Mr. T. B. Watt's 80th birthday. Warm greetings and good wishes were tendered him followed by the spontaneous singing of "Happy Birthday."

Further words of appreciation for loyal and faithful support of all branches of the church's work followed. Included in the expressions of appreciation was the presentation to the minister and his wife of a substantial cheque.

After the business meeting, a social hour was spent; the ladies serving a delightful lunch.

Jobs for All Keynote Of Post-War Era

Montreal, Jan. 29 (CP)—E. Howard Smith, President of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, told yesterday at its 26th annual meeting that "jobs for all is the keynote of Canada's post-war and there is no single industry that can contribute as much to this end as the pulp and paper industry."

"If the peace treaties do not seriously interfere with our regular markets," he added, "this industry will be able to continue maintaining a high rate of employment for the manufacture of its products; and, in addition, provide immediate orders from its backlog of war-deferred maintenance to the heavy machinery industries,—whose transition from war to peace operations presents complex problems on account of wartime diversion of their normal production."

SNOW TRAPS CULPRIT

Salt Lake City, Jan. 29 (AP)—Firemen arrived at a signal box and found it was a false alarm. A few minutes lter police hauled a youngster out of bed in a nearby house. He admitted he was the culprit, then asked: "How'd you know it was me?" "asy bud," ws the reply. We can follow tracks in the snow."

Improved Exhibits at Fairs Boosted Attendance in '43 Association Told

Teeswater Sets Record Without Assistance of a Midway With Receipts of $3,960

OFFICERS ELECTED

Dates of fall fairs in Central Ontario for the coming season were set in Belleville Friday afternoon when district fair representatives met at the annual meeting of the Central Fairs Association. Officers for the current year were elected with a report from J. A. Carrol, superintendent of Ontario Fairs, indicating agricultural societies across the province last year enjoyed one of the best years in history.

Increased attendance at fall fairs had generally been the case last year, according to Mr. Carrol, who before the 50 or 60 delegates present briefed the Ontario fairs situation. During 1943 gate receipts at Ontario fairs had increased 70 per cent over the year previous while 1942 had seen a 50 per cent increase over 1941. Societies were taking advantage of the fact to pay off mortgages, he said.

Record gate receipts for a one-day fair was at Teeswater in Western Ontario where a total of $3,960 had been realized, and this at a fair where there was no midway. "This goes to show," he said, "that a midway is not essential to a successful fair, but don't take this as an argument against a midway."

Reason for increased attendance at fall fairs was given by Mr. Carrol as because the larger exhibitions had been cancelled and as a result stock breeders turned to the smaller fairs to show their animals. Livestock exhibits had shown a considerable increase.

Cattle Rings and Good Races Needed

Speaking of fair procedure, Mr. Carrol indicated the cattle rings a splendid idea and served to "get the cattle out of the fence corner." He stated a fair is first of all educational and that cattle should be judged when spectators are around and not in the mornings. Promptness of running off events served to maintain interest. Good races help to bring the crowds while good agricultural exhibits were essential.

The speaker congratulated the women on the revision of prize lists to include changes made necessary because of the war and also upon the prominence being given to patriotic exhibits. Splendid food exhibits in some sections were noted despite rationing, while agricultural and home exhibits were what people expected to see at fall fairs and should not be neglected. He was pleased to note that many societies were increasing the number of junior attractions.

Because trouble of obtaining a suitable midway had been experienced in many centres fair directors had demonstrated that home attractions could hold the interest of crowds. Horse drawing contests were gaining in popularity while sawing competitions had their place and novelty attractions had gone over big in some centres.

Grants would be continued for field crop competitions according to the superintendent and he advised all societies to continue this branch of activities as there never was a time when good seed would be in greater demand than in the immediate future.

Conservation Policy Advised

In closing Mr. Carrol referred to the interest being taken in soil and timber conservation and indicated that agricultural societies had in this line of work a splendid opportunity for post-war rehabilitation programs which would be of immense benefit to rural residents. "In the emergency people look for somebody with a plan to put into operation," he said, "and these plans must be ready so the rural people will get some benefit. We must not delay as the rehabilitation of industrial workers has already commenced."

Officers For 1944

Mr. Fred Denyes of Brighton was re-elected president of the organization for the current year, while vice-presidents named were Kenneth Vivian, Shannonville and Elmer Sandercock of Belleville. District director is Mr. Ben Bleecker, past-president of Belleville Fair. Secretary Treasurer is Miss Margaret Lapp of Brighton.

Lady delegates to the Central Fairs Association also met during the day and as the result of discussion recommended that women directors of fairs should be supplied with badges to wear. They also wanted to see more emphasis placed on children's work and recommended to all societies that this be placed in their prize lists. Mrs. Fred Meyers was re-appointed as district director.

Mr. H. F. Henderson, last year's district director, reported there had been 16 fairs held in the district in 1943, all of which had seen increased enthusiasm on the part of exhibitors and gave good prospects for 1944. He also thought that agricultural societies should be more active throughout the year and urged wherever possible that field crop competitions be held. Mayor Harry Rollins extended a welcome to the delegates.

Several Turkeys Feature Market

Customers on the local produce market blinked their eyes in surprise on Saturday when one vendor offered ten or a dozen turkeys for sale. The farmer claimed the birds had been too small to offer during the Christmas market. He quoted them at 45 cents the pound, fully dressed, but they did not seem to be in the same demand as prior to the Christmas season.

Fresh eggs held at last week's quotation of 38 cents the dozen for firsts with mediums bringing 35 cents and pullet eggs 30 cents the dozen. A few vendors offered dairy butter at 40 cents the pound, while a fair offering of chickens sold at 45 cents the pound for top grade.

On the outside market the offering of seasonal apples predominated with best grade McIntosh, Spies and Delicious bringing $3 the bushel. Lesser quality sold at $2.50 the bushel as did Cranberry Pippins and Snows. Salones and Starks were offered at $2 the bushel, and Talman Sweets at 75 cents peck.

Potatoes were a bit firmer with vendors quoting $2.14 per bag and 49 cents peck. Turnips sold at 5 to 15 cents each or at $1.25 bushel, while carrots and parsnips brought the usual 25 cents half-peck. Sauerkraut was 15 cents quart.

Two loads of wood were offered, both sawed into stove-wood lengths. Price quoted was $12.50 per cord or $25 the load.

Capital Closeups

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 29 (CP) — His Majesty's loyal Houses of Parliament this week opened their sessions with their customary demonstration that they are able to do business independent of him.

So old that the origin is sometimes forgotton, but in fact an echo of the days when the British Commoners defied the supreme authority of kings, is the procedure of introducing a bill in the House as soon as the Speech from the Throne has been read by the Governor-General.

This is Bill No. 1, respecting the administration of oats of office. It is moved by the Prime Minister, who asks leave to introduce it. The House quickly assents, gives its first reading, and it is never heard of again. The procedure simply demonstrates that the members are supreme in the matter of legislation, and that, while the King may call them into session, they make their own decisions.

A similar procedure is followed in the Senate, where the first bill is a measure "relating to railways." Leave to introduce it is given and after first reading is disappears.

HATS ON: In some ways the House of Commons is like a church in the solemnity of its proceedings. But a little privilege treasured by members is their right to wear their hats. Ross MacDonald, Liberal member for Brantford City, sometimes wears his hat, but few of the others bother.

CHANGE: Times have changed. Women have done a notable job in helping maintain the price ceiling. And so, when Donald Gordon, Prices Board Chairman, addressed a meeting of leaders of women's organizations the other day, he started:

"Ladies — and members of the weaker sex who happen to be present."

No Socialization Of Newspapers States Coldwell

Ottawa, Jan. 29 (CP).—The Ottawa Citizen in a copyright story yesterday quoted M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, as saying in an interview that Canadian newspapers will not be socialized by a C.C.F. government because the party feels there should be no interference with free discussion.

Mr. Coldwell said his party believes the Canadian currency, credit and banking system should not be tied to the gold standard but should be related to the economy of the nation so that goods and service produced can be distributed.

The C.C.F. would consider businesses which had become "monopolistic", such as railways, air lines, telephones, telegraphs, electric power, meat packing and organizations which would be incorporated in a national marketing and trading plan as those which might be considered the most urgent to be socialized after the C.C.F. took office.

Obituary

LATE MRS. JOHN FAHEY

The funeral of Mrs. John Fahey took place this Saturday morning from her late residence, 8 Cedar Street, to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father A. L. O'Donnell, who also said the committal prayers at St. James' cemetery.

During the Offertory Mr. Ed Brown sang, "Pray for the Dead," and at the close of the Mass Mr. Harold Barrett sang, "Nearer My God to Thee." Many friends were present in the church.

The bearers were Messrs. Charles Bawden, Maurice Connell, James McEvoy, Walter Allore, George Lee, and Stephen Garvin.

Hastings Hog Producers Seek Price Increase

Appointed as provisional head of the Hastings County Hog Producers' Association when that body was first organized last April, Mr. Wilfred Spencer of R. R. 2 Campbellford, was elected president at the annual meeting held in Stirling this week. Vice president named was Mr. Ed. Pyear of Stirling, while H. Lynn Fair, agricultural representative was renamed secretary-treasurer.

A general discussion on the grading and price of hogs took place at the annual meeting, those present expressing their appreciation to the Dominion Department of Agriculture for the recently announced premiums on quality hogs. The meeting felt, however, that these premiums did not add sufficiently to the general price structure to give farmers very much encouragement to increase hog production.

It was felt that the price of hogs, f.o.b., dressed weight, Toronto, should be as least 20 cents per pound and a resolution to this effect was passed to be forwarded to the secretary of the Ontario Hog Producers' Association.

Directors of the organization named at the meeting were as follows: Sidney, David Hollinger, Stirling; Thurlow, Wesley Gray, R. R. Belleville; Tyendinaga, Ed. Shannon, Plainfield; Rawdon, Clayton Thompson; Huntingdon, J. C. Sills, West Huntingdon; Hungerford, Bernard Hunt, Tweed; Marmora, Irwin McCoy, Marmora; Madoc, James Nickle, Malone; Elzevir, James A. Moore, Queensboro, with Joseph E. Davis of Greenview being named director for North Hastings.

Escaped Allied Prisoners Said Hiding in Rome

Stockholm, Jan. 29 — (AP) —Numerous escaped British and American prisoners of war are hiding in Rome and working with the Italian underground in a campaign of sabotage since Allied troops landed south of the Italian capital, it was reported today.

A Swedish businessman who left Rome three days ago said the escaped prisoners hide during the day and at night help destroy communications and make the hours of darkness a nightmare for the Germans. Between 5,000 and 10,000 Gestapo men are working with Italian informers trying to ferret them out, he said.

The Italian capital was described as a scene of excited discussion and wild rumors since the landings at Nettuno, but German censorship is keeping the citizens pretty much in the dark.

The population is estimated to have swelled by 100,000 or 200,000 by Italians swarming into the city to escape the battle areas.

At night the streets reverberate to the sounds of gunfire and bombs and the work of saboteurs.

He estimated 25,000 German troops were stationed in Rome.

yesterday's sitting. The Advisory Committee on reconstruction presented proposals for taxation adjustments, credit facilities and surveys to adjust the Canadian economy and benefit those in need of assistance.

Impressive Load of Reports

The National War Labor Board recommended compulsory collective bargaining and other legislation covering labor relations.

Also laid before the House was an impressive load of annual reports and other documents which have gathered since House sitting adjourned last July 24.

The debate on the Throne Speech continues Monday, with Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, as the first speaker. He will be followed by Mr. King. New Democracy Leader Blackmore and M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, then will speak.

Tremblay Opposes Mass Immigration

Lieut. Tremblay, speaking in French said in moving the address in reply that Canada should not draw up any program of mass immigration until all members of the armed forces have been rehabilitated and given remunerative and useful work, and until war industries have been transformed to peacetime use.

Lieut. Tremblay said he could not understand why "certain personages from across the Atlantic" come to Canada and "lavish upon us their directives, which are indiscreet to say the least."

"The latest edition of these mysterious travellers appears to want to refloat the sunken ship of the imperial federation," he said. "If that is the case...let me say as a Canadian to this distinguished but indiscreet person that in 1944 as in 1897 and 1902, that today as in the time of Sir Wilfred 'this dusty block tells us nothing of value.' "

Tucker Wants Canada in League of Free Nations

Capt. Tucker said he advocated some form of organization to see that Germany and Japan are kept disarmed for all time to come.

Canada's place in the new international set-up should be as a member of some league of free nations and as an absolutely autonomous nation within the British Commonwealth.

If Lord Halifax in his Toronto speech had been arguing for the greatest possible consultation between free and equal nations within the Commonwealth to find ways of assisting each other, there would be general agreement with him. But the speech had been considered by some as an argument for retracing steps which Canada had taken towards complete nationhood.

"I, for one, do not think it either feasible or wise to attempt now to turn back the clock — nor in the best interests either of Canada or the British Commonwealth," he said.

BELCH — Died January 29th., 1942, beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Belch, Jr., Belleville.

No stain was on his little heart,
Sin had not entered there;
And innocence slept sweetly on
That pale white brow so fair.
He was too pure for this cold earth,
Too beautiful to stay,
And so God's Holy Angel bore
Our darling one away.

Reconstruction Report Tabled In House Of Commons

Improved Credit Facilities For Farmers Recommendedby Committee

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 29 (CP).—Improved credit facilities for farmers, research to find new uses for agricultural products, extension of overseas markets, and classification of all agricultural lands in Canada were recommended in the report of the advisory committee on reconstruction, tabled late Friday in the House of Commons.

The Farm Loan Board could make effective an interest rate of four or 4½ per cent without loss to the government and be a greater factor in contributing to the security and stabilization of the farming industry and in forcing interest rates generally to a lower level, said the report.

The Canadian government should take the lead in promoting an international policy of freeing trade relations and a standing committee should keep under continuous study means of expanding Canadian trade.

The government should seek to have wheat made a free-trade commodity through the world, with a national wheat marketing council to promote increased export of wheat and wheat products. The council would be financed by an initial appropriation from federal funds and later by an annual levy of not more than one-half of one per cent of the value of wheat exported.

In seeking to retain present markets for cattle, cheese, bacon, apples, poultry and other farm products, the government should be ready to make arrangements to facilitate payment by other nations, the committee said.

Food Export Commitments.

Food export commitments similar to those now in effect with the United Kingdom should be negotiated to bridge the transition period after the war. Action should be taken in the domestic field to see that prices are held at reasonable levels during this period.

Other recommendations:

1. National marketing legislation should be considered for application if necessary.

2. All governments should use "all reasonable means" to encourage the organization and development of co-operative activities in relation to agriculture.

3. Modern, efficient and well-organized terminal market facilities should be established in larger urban centres.

4. Research on farm-product utilization should be extended.

5. A new government-supported laboratory on central and eastern Canadian agricultural problems should be established by the National Research Council and Federal Agriculture Department.

6. A Federal Council should be established to shape nutrition policies. Consideration should be given to a plan like the United States "stamp plan" to increase consumption of nutritional foods by low-income families.

7. Widened economic research should be carried out and considerations be given to financial help to agriculture colleges, with appropriations for experimental work, and increased research in the natural sciences.

8. Extended facilities should be provided for agricultural vocational training and extension services.

9. Expanded research on land utilization, with legislation similar to the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act, should be made applicable to agriculture throughout Canada.

10. Soil surveys should be made prior to land settlement and consideration should be given to increasing the density of population in desirable areas rather than new settlement in less-promising districts.

11. Consideration should be given to assisting farmers' sons to establish themselves on a farm and to the placing of settlers on farms which are for sale or rent because of the advanced age or infirmity of the present operators.

12. A housing scheme to provide homes for farm help and assistance to farmers in building and renovating farm dwellings and obtaining labor-saving household devices should be instituted.

13. A national home-beautification program, including the painting of buildings on farms and in villages, should be started.

14. The Dominion Government should study the need of assisting rural electrification, with possible loans to provinces.

15. A national survey should be made of efforts to promote handcrafts.

16. The Dominion should encourage development of community cultural and recreational centres in rural areas.

"The Dominion Government (should) give early consideration to the establishment of a central mortgage bank, either under the existing act or a revised act, and the services of district agricultural agents (should) be used for valuation and administrative purposes," said the report.

Major Changes in Tax Structure After War and Provision of Work For All Able Men Objectives

By FRANK FLLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 29 (CP). — Major changes in the Canadian tax structure should be made after the war as a means of encouraging economic development and stabilizing conditions during the period of adjustment to peace conditions, it was recommended by the government's advisory committee on reconstruction in a report tabled last Friday in the House of Commons.

The suggested changes include reduction in the corporation profits tax, elimination of the excess profits tax, and reconsideration of the consumer sales tax—with a view to reliance on the personal income tax to produce sufficient government revenue.

The report, accompanied by reports of sub-committees dealing with agriculture, publicly-financed construction projects, women's problems, conservation and development of natural resources, post-war employment opportunities, was submitted to Prime Minister Mackenzie King some time ago and is believed already to have influenced the government's legislative program as announced yesterday in the speech from the throne.

Heading the committee was Dr. F. Cyril James, principal of McGill University, Montreal. The other members were Percy Bengough, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada; D. G. McKenzie of Winnipeg; J. S. McLean, president of Canada Packers Ltd.; Arthur Surveyer of Montreal; and Dr. R. C. Wallace, principal of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont. Several government officials were ex-officio members and Dr. L. C. Marsh was research adviser.

Increase of Productive Capacity.

The most marked feature of the impact of war on Canadian economy, the committee round, is the increase in productive capacity. This would have a profound effect after the war since Canada would be equipped to produce more than before.

Against this productive capacity would be a vast accumulation of spending power and delayed demand for new goods.

"All of the evidence available at the present time suggests a tremendous spending spree and a serious danger of post-war inflation if rapid adjustments are not made to changing circumstances by governments and private enterprise," said the report.

Objectives Favored.

A summary of the objectives expressed by the committee for the post-war period follows:

1. Provision of peacetime employment for all men able and willing to work;
2. Production of goods and services adequate to demand;
3. A social security program to protect those unable to work or to obtain employment and ensure adequate nutrition and educational opportunities for children;
4. A minimum of delay in restoring free functioning of markets, domestic and foreign;
5. Modification of monetary policy, price control and rationing from time to time to prevent particular segments of the economy from developing inflationary conditions.

Private Enterprise Stressed.

The role of private enterprise in the post-war period was stressed, but the committee found that the government should make known its policies as soon as possible and recommended that every private enterprise be encouraged to develop a long-range program of capital expenditure.

The report said private enterprise must recognize more than before the stake of labor in the national economy. Security of employment was basic to stable conditions and businesses should plan to provide continuous employment at steady wages for an appropriate number of workers.

Annual income rather than hourly or weekly wage rates should be stressed and more consideration should be given to profit sharing, holidays with pay and pensions. Labor-management committees were important but should not interfere with organized labor nor the right of workers to chose their bargaining agency.

Question of Wages.

The committee warned against an attempt by labor to maintain for all workers the highest wages received by some workers during the war. It said organized labor must take a share in responsibility for attaining full employment at reasonable wages and while some wages might increase, it was also possible some present rates would prove too high.

Under the heading "governmental responsibility", the committee urged speedy demobilization of key men to facilitate expanding of training facilities and reconversion of industry.

Tax System to Foster Enterprise.

The government's responsibility for fiscal policy calls for creation of a tax system which will foster enterprise and employment, the committee said. It found the excess profits tax and the corporation tax tend to remove part of the incentive to production.

By reducing and increasing the corporation profits tax the government could alternatively discourage and encourage private investment as fiscal conditions warranted. Another possible stabilizing instrument would be a cyclical public investment budget" under which governments would invest public funds in works projects when depression threatened and curtail such spending in periods of considerable business activity.

Systematic Prospecting.

For the mining industry, the report urged systematic prospecting under government auspices and a review of present taxation to make the industry more attractive to capital.

Controls should be abandoned as soon as possible, the committee said, but many controls on prices would be required during the transition period if inflation were to be avoided. Food and clothing prices would probably require control.

Social security, the report stated, should be pursued not as an end itself but as part of a broad program for improvement of the human resources of the nation. Housing nutrition and education would have to have a part.

Sharp Difference of Opinion In Majority and Minority Reports On Question of Family Allowances

Ottawa, Jan. 28. (CP)—Sharp difference of opinion on the introduction of family allowances —proposed by the government yesterday in the Speech from the Throne opening the new session of parliament—was expressed in the majority and minority reports of the national war labor board's wage and labor relations inquiry, tabled in the House of Commons.

The majority report, submitted by Mr. Justice C. P. McTague, Board Chairman, and Leon Lalande, recommended a family allowance scheme as an alternative to removing wage restrictions on workers earning less than 50 cents an hour.

J. L. Cohen, K.C., in a minority report, voiced flat opposition to the plan.

Majority Report.

The majority report said the Board had received clear evidence that a worker receiving 50 cents an hour or $24 a week could not support a family at a proper living standard. The first proposal of the majority report was than an amended wage-control order should not apply to workers up to that wage level.

(The government after submission of the Labor Board reports introduced a new wage order which makes no distinction between income groups.)

"Another answer would appear to be a system of family allowances to be paid by the Dominion government", the majority report said. "There can be no doubt that the administration of such a system will present complexities and complications. However, it probably can be done.

Family Allowance.

"The family allowance could be made available to the worker who is the head of a family for each child below the age of 16 years, the allowance to be on a reducing scale for each subsequent child.

"We are aware that family allowances usually find their place in a general program of social security, rather than as a part of a wage-control policy.

Sub-Standard Wages.

"But sub-standard wages are indefensible at all times and if the authorities having the responsibility of policy with regard to fiscal matters and cost-price relationships do not see their way clear to remove during the war emergency the control of wages below the level of 50 cents, then we can think of no other solution for the care of the head of a family who is receiving a sub-standard wage than a system of family allowances."

Minority Report.

Mr. Cohen, who said he was "utterly opposed" to the scheme, said instead of correcting substandard wage ignores the true charcater of wages," he said.

The proposal denied the principle of equal pay for equal work", he contended, and ignored the fact that unmarried workers might have dependents or that they were entitled to provide for a future in which they could support dependents.

Mr. Cohen said such a scheme was commendable as part of a general social security program applying to both rural and urban areas; but it should not be introduced as a correction for low wage standards.

"I cannot think of any proposal which would do more damage to national unity than one which would inevitably carry such taxation consequences," he said.

Japanese Atrocities

Civilized mankind is shocked at the revelations of Japanese barbarism and sadism as told in the United States government statement of the atrocities perpetrated upon the American and Filipino defenders of Bataan and Corregidor after they were captured by the enemy. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Great Britain told of authentic reports of Japanese savage treatment and murder of British soldiers.

These almost unbelievable stories of Japanese depravity have awakened the world of civilized people to the depths of degradation and evil to which the Japanese soldier's and militarist's mind will descend. Ever since the date of Pearl Harbor the world has had many revelations of the cruelty and indifference of the Japanese soldiers.

Japan's socalled code of honor is one that exalts sin and evil, and treachery and cruelty are virtues under this code.

The world knows how treacherous and deceitful is the savage Japanese warrior's heart.

Washington and London are collecting information for the day when there will come retribution and the war criminals will be tried.

This treatment of the American and British soldiers shows how low in the scale of development and how deep in depravity is the spirit of Japanese militarism. These atrocities can be blamed on the barbaric or savage nature of the Japanese and they have been inflicted for the satisfaction of the sadist lust of the soldiery and with every intention of torturing the prisoners and of making them suffer the most terrible cruelties. It was mass cruelty by the Japanese captors. How completely they carried out their desire for inflicting pain the story of the atrocities alone can reveal. But words cannot fully depict the fiendishness of the acts of the Japanese troops and their officers.

Warrior Germany and Japan have never understood the great virtues of restraint and the civilizing influences of democracy. They scorned and were jealous of the democratic nations' progress, their development, their energy and their acceptance of a challenge, when right is at stake. How well the democracies stood up to the challenge Germany knows and so do the Japanese know to their grief. The Japanese have worn the attire of civilization, but the Japanese nation has not any of the virtues which the civilized world admires. They have stood for everything evil, everything that would bring the world to ruin if they had the power to do it. Their diplomats wear a smirk and grin of deceit but it has won them nothing. The world has come to know Japanese savagery as it is and a great deal about the Japanese character that it did not know before December 1917.

These atrocities steel the determination of the United Nations that there can only be one end to the war against the aggressor powers and that is unconditional surrender. These powers and the spirit they cherish and foster and try to develop must be crushed and eradicated. The whole of mankind by this time knows that the United Nations are fighting the war for humanity for the betterment of the world against the very spirit of evil of the Axis.

Italian Climate

Whether it was due to the poets, the tourists, or the Italian tourist agents, Italy had a name for being sunny and for possessing skies of Mediterranean blue, but Canadian boys going there in the forces who are fighting and driving back the Germans have been surprised at the cold, the snow and the ice of Italy. Many letters have given expression to this surprise and disappointment as well as disgust with the climatic conditions in "sunny Italy." Newspaper correspondents have also pointed in detail to the wintry conditions in the mountains in that area through which the Allied troops have been fighting their way forward. They tell of deep drifts of snow in the hills, of military vehicles almost buried in the snow and then at times of the deep mud and slushy snow and ice.

The whole climatic story of Italy had evidently not been told. Tourists seeing Italy and her famed resorts and bathing places at certain seasons no doubt had reasons for warbling about the beauties of Italy but have hardly seen all that there was to experience in Italian precipitation whether, rain or snow or sleet, or in touring the mountain ways.

Canadian boys are hardy lads but they were surprised at what Italy had to offer them. If they had not experienced the conditions they would hardly have believed them though too they no doubt can hardly believe that this part of Canada has been so mild as not to have brought enough snow to call out shovels generally for even once.

The Secret Weapon of God

(New York Herald-Tribune)

One deeply serious assurance to happiness we can carry to the gates of Hitler's uncertain fortress. We can know that we will be bringing every fine faith, every high hope and, even behind the stern and terrible face of war, every gentle, free belief man has ever owned or fought for. We bring them and they may not be defeated. For they are the indestructible battalions of the spirit of man. They are, in all truth, the secret weapons of God. They have outlived every war and outfought every tyrant. They are doing it again. It is this truth which is part of the feeling of inevitable defeat which now eats at the heart of Hitler's armies. For men, even though buttressed by the heaviest entrenchments of the powers of evil, may not defeat Man. His cause is eternal and for it this war is being fought. It is this unconquerable Man who will restore bombed cities and raise shattered altars. He will rebuild, as he has so often done before, his Creator's world again. And in it he will face ancient seasons of seedtime and harvest—and new years the more happy because they have been died for and awaited now.

Spare Parts for Body

(By Arthur H. Steinhaus, in "Coronet" Magazine)

The body handily and foresightedly carries many spare parts. You could get along very well minus one lung, two-thirds of each kidney, nine-tenths of the adrenal gland, four-fifths of the thyroid, two of the four parathyroids and three-fourths of the liver.

A thermostat sunk in the floor of the brain keeps your body temperature on an even keel to within a degree, even though outside temperatures may range from below zero to over a hundred in the shade.

Will a mind equipped with a memory that is capable of accumulating the play-by-play tensions of a lifetime struggle crack under its burden? Or will it find ways to protect itself in the midst of turmoil and frustration before the ten per cent trek to mental hospitals becomes a mass movement and nervous indigestion a universal ill?

The brain is "wired" to every body part. Beridden with strong emotions, it discharges tension into muscles, paralysis into stomach and intestines, mounting blood pressure into heart and arteries, constriction into the blood supplies of skin and viscera, and general upset into delicate physio-chemical equilibria.

The result of this can be a superb fighting machine, like the she-bear, poised to protect her cubs. Or in modern man, this emergency mechanism unnecessarily prolonged by memory, too often miscarries into apoplexy, ulcer, indigestion, emaciation or a nervous dermatitis. In final desperation the mind may go on a "sit-down" strike, leaving another derelict wreck to be towed in for repairs or dead storage.

This most wonderful of creations—the human machine—is ours by inheritance, a treasure handed down through the ages. Whether we use it wisely or wreck it is the test of our contemporary period.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

NOW

Not far away is spring, they say,
And back of April, gentle May,
But life is lived from day to day
And faith is needed now!
Now strength is needed! Young and old
Today must brave the winter cold,
And wake at morning to behold
Bleak field and barren bough.

'Tis good to know the streams will flow
And laughing, dancing seawards go,
But now the biting north winds blow
And snow lies deep today.
Today the call for all is made
To wake to duty unafraid,
And as stout hearts have worked and prayed,
Today to work and pray.

Soon tree and flower and glade and bower
Will come to their triumphal hour,
But now the clouds of winter lour
And now the skies are gray.
Where roses blossomed lies the snow,
And cruel are the winds that blow,
And strength is needed now, and so
God grant us strength today.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

JAN. 29th., 1924.

The report of Fire Chief W. J. Brown to the city council showed that the firemen answered 111 fire alarms during the year and the property loss during the year amounted to $30,764.75. During the previous year, 1922, 64 alarms were answered and the Property loss was $17,699.15.

Ald. W. R. McCreary introduced a bylaw in the city council whereby the assessment of the year 1923 will be accepted as the assessment for this year. The bylaw was passed through its various stages and confirmed. The adoption of this system of assessment is that the estimates for the year can be prepared in the near future and the collection of taxes will take place in the spring instead of the late summer or early fall. It is also said that a considerable amount will be saved the city in interest.

Report Jap Attache Held in Bucharest

Ankara, Turkey, Jan. 29 — (AP) —The Japanese military attache in Bucharest has been jailed by Rumanian authorities on a charge of maintaining illicit radio communication with Moscow, according to a report from Bucharest.

The report said the Japanese diplomat attempted suicide when his residence was raided but was captured too quickly. Two Japanese soldiers who assisted in the operation of the secret radio link with Russia, with which Rumania is at war, were reported to have been arrested with him.

Meanwhile the Turkish government ordered the expulsion from the country of Yosikozu Oda, Japanese representative of the Domei news agency, on the ground that he had written untruthful articles about Turkey.

Canadian Scene A Century Ago

By J. L. G.

How would you like to be so far away from civilization that you'd see newspapers only once a year? This was the lot of many folk living in the North-West 100 years ago. English-born officers of the Hudson's Bay Company posted to remote parts of Canada received their copies of the London Times every twelve months. The usual practice was to start reading the oldest paper and work up to the newest—which was a mere year behind the times.

• •

To these officials, and the more enterprising settlers of the wild and woolly West, the coming of the railroad was an extraordinarily important event. At last they were in touch with the world — in daily touch! The drama of the occasion prompted a brilliant speech by Lord Dufferin, the Governor General of Canada, at a dinner in Winnipeg. Quoting from this speech: "From its geographical position and its peculiar characteristics, Manitoba may be regarded as the keystone of that mighty arch of sister provinces which spans the continent from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It was here that Canada, emerging from her woods and forests, first gazed upon her rolling prairies and unexplored North-West, and learned as by an unexpected revelation, that her historical territories of the Canadas, her eastern seaboards of New Brunswick, Labrador and Nova Scotia, her Laurentian lakes and valleys, lowlands and pastures, though themselves more extensive than half a dozen European kingdoms, were but the vestibules and ante-chambers to that till then undreamed—of Dominion, whose illimitable dimensions confound the arithmetic of the surveyors and the verification of the explorer. It was hence that, counting her past achievements as but the preface and prelude to her future exertions and expanding destinies, she took a new departure, received the afflatus of a more important inspiration, and felt herself no longer a mere settler along the banks of a single river, but the owner of half a continent, and in the magnitude of her possession in the wealth of her resources, in the sinews of her material might, the peer of any power on earth."

More About Diverticulitis— Pouches in Lower Bowel.

There are so many individuals with pain in left lower side of abdomen that some have called it left sided appendicitis. However, Xray examination by means of a barium enema has shown that the cause in many cases is diverticulitis—pouches or pockets in the wall of the last lower part of the large intestine just above the rectum (last six inches of lower bowel).

I described the symptoms of diverticulitis some months ago as attacks of pain that come and go, sometimes with diarrhoea and at other times with constipation. In time a solid mass of waste matter accumulates which may block the bowel. Bed rest, a liquid diet, and an ice bag on abdomen usually bring relief. No cathartics or enemas should be given during an acute attack.

Dr. E. J. Kilfoy in California and Western Medicine, states that from 5 to 15 per cent of the general population after the age of forty have diverticulitis but in only 5 to 10 per cent of these cases do complications arise and in only about 15 per cent of these with complications is surgical operation necessary.

What causes diverticulitis, that is an inflammation of these pouches or pockets? They are caused by such conditions as overweight, constipation, excess gas formation in bowel, and weakness of the muscular wall of the intestine which helps to drive wastes downward and out of the bowel.

Once these pouches have been discovered, treatment consists of a smooth diet rich in food value such as meats, eggs, and butter and the use of enemas. The enemas consist of liquid petroleum (mineral or paraffin oil) In some cases the mineral oil, taken by mouth, is effective in relieving symptoms and preventing attacks.

Where these simple measures—rich smooth diet and enemas of mineral oil—are not effective and there is severe pain, great increase in number of white cells in the blood, tenderness and rigidity in abdomen (as in appendicitis on right side of abdomen), immediate surgical operation is the treatment. When there is only one pouch or pocket it can be cut out but where there are several, removal of a part of the bowel may be necessary.

The facts then are that diverticulitis occurs in about ten per cent of those past forty but only about one or two in every twenty who have diverticulitis have any symptoms.

Harry Manos Fined $50 In Toronto Court

Toronto, Jan. 29 (CP) — Harry Manos, Niagara Falls hotelman, yesterday was fined $50 and costs after conviction on a reduced charge of common assault arising from the death in a Toronto club last fall of Sam Laggis. Manos and an eyewitness, Nick Chaggeras, of Belleville, said they left the club not knowing Laggis was dead.

On Thursday a charge of theft against Chaggeras was dismissed in a Toronto court, the case arising out of the same incident.

The War Today— Japanese Literally Barbarians, Instincts Still Those of Savages

(By DeWITT MacKENZIE)
(Associated Press War Analyst)

What explanation is there in this 20th. Century for the horrible atrocities which have been perpetrated wholesale on helpless British, American and Filipino prisoners of war by the Japanese, as exposed by London and Washington?

At first glance this tigerish exhibition seems inexplicable. But the answer is there clear enough —or so it seems to me—and it's this:

The Japs are barbarians—literally barbarians. It's less than a century ago that the Mikado's domains were opened to the outside world and civilization. Since then the Nipponese have made considerable progress, but their instincts remain the same as they were in the savage days of pre-historic times. That's a hard thing to have to say, but it's true. While they have a veneer of civilization, their instincts are primordial.

"But," somebody challenges, "the Germans have been committing similar atrocities. Do you also claim that they're uncivilized?"

The reply is that Hitlerite Germany—the Nazi portion of the population—has deliberately reverted to barbarism under the Fuehrer's lead.

In stating this we must note that not all Germans are Nazis. On the contrary, there are many of the older generation who abhor Hitler and all his works, but are forced to do his bidding by the brutal Gestapo. They execute people in Germany these days for even talking out of turn.

Hitler, whom Winston Churchill has described as "this evil man . . . this monstrous abortion of hatred and deceit," has turned back the clock in his country to methods which make the barbarities of Attila the Hun look like the golden rule. He had to do this in order to impose his "master race" on the world by force.

War crimes will be punished, but there remains a far greater problem for the Allies. That is the inauguration of an educational program which will complete the civilization of the Japanese, and re-educate the Nazified Germans.

Powell is one of those who came back. When I was Powell's assistant before the war, he was a cheerful, slender man of 157 pounds.

I saw him today in hospital, a changed man: haggard, nervous, embittered. He has lost both feet. His weight today is 120, a gain of 45 pounds since his repatriation.

Powell's story is an example of the treatment of which he speaks. Long regarded as an enemy because of his sympathy for the Chinese and his outspoken editorials in their behalf the Japanese threw him into the Bridgehouse Dec. 20, 1941.

From that day until March, 1942, he lived in a 12-by-18-foot cell with 40 other persons, most of them Chinese.

"Twenty-two people could have sat in that cell fairly comfortable," he said, "bt we were forced to sit, day in and day out, with our knees hugged closely to our chests.

"But that was not so painful as sitting Japanese style, with our knees crossed and most of our weight on our feet...

"We received regular beatings, even if there was no disobedience ...they beat every part of our bodies with clubs, with malicious delight.

"We could not touch or help any of those who were beaten. That was the worst part, because so many of the prisoners died as a result.

On March 1, 1942, Powell was taken to Kiangwan and put in solitary confinement until the latter part of May.

"By that time I was more dead than alive," he said. "Gangrene had set in my feet because of malnutrition, cold weather and also because of the way I was made to sit. I finally became unconscious with pain and was taken to the general hospital, where my feet were amputated."

NUGGETS OF KNOWLEDGE

Six men took the oath of President of the United States while they were still in their forties.

They were: Theodore Roosevelt, 42; Grant, 46; Cleveland, 47; Pierce, 43; Garfield, 49; and Polk, 49.

Five men were in their sixties when they took the oath of President. They were: John Adams, 61; Jackson, 61; William Henry Harrison, 68; Taylor, 64, and Buchanan, 65.

All the other Presidents were in their fifties when they took the oath of office. Arthur Tyler, Taft, and Fillmore were 50; Coolidge and Franklin D. Roosevelt were 51; Lincoln was 52; none was 53; Van Buren, McKinley and Hoover were 54; Benjamin Harrison and Harding were 55; Madison, Johnson and Wilson were 56; Washington, Jefferson and John Quincy Adams were 57; Monroe and Hayes were 58, and none was 59.

So if you plan to be President it would be wise to run in your fifties.

Thus far no man in his thirties or seventies has become President.

A note in Tolstoy's "War and Peace" says of Russia in the Napoleonic period: "A proprietor could send any of his serfs as exiles to Siberia, and when going there one side of the head was shaved, that the man might more easily be recaptured should he run away."

Robert Charles Winthrop, Speaker of the House of Representatives and Senator from Massachusetts, wrote when he was 85 years old in 1894: "I have known, and many of them intimately, every one of the twenty-tree Presidents, except Washington, who died nine years before I was born."

After Washington's death in 1799, not a single man who had been President died for 25 years, when Jefferson and John Adams died on the same day.

Robert Winthrop was the chief speaker when the cornerstone of the Washington Monument was dedicated in 1848, and again when the Monument was completed in 1885.

In 1861 the provisional government of the Confederate States of America established its capital on "foreign soil." The capital of the Confederacy was removed from Montgomery, Alabama, to Richmond, Virginia, weeks before the day appointed for the Virginia plebiscite to determine whether the state would leave or remain in the Union.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Col. Vanderwater. The collection was $1.96 and $3 was received from the sale of quilt and quiltings. Lunch and a social time followed.

"MAKE-DO" ERA

The "make-do" era is upon us. Be fair and keep a spot in your budget book and give yourself credit for the dickey you make at home, for gloves repaired or for a dress you have made over into something wearable or a hat turned back into the real of chic-on-your-own head. Why not give yourself credit? Add it all up and you may have saved a bond. This has been done before and will be again. Be of current thought about your clothes always and remember today's current trend is to save and make-do.

The financial reports for the choir, Young People's Union and boys' groups and C.G.I.T. all showed a successful year with credit balances. Mrs. Johnston reported for the choir, Mr. G. Mifflin for Y.P.U., R. Barry and D. Joss for the boys, Miss M. Fawkes for C. G. I. T.

The work of the junior congregation was reported by Miss D. Kirkpatrick. She stated the work was progressing favorably under the leadership of Mrs. Branscombe, Miss B. Bews and Miss B. Read, Miss Jean Archibald and Miss June Buck, Ronald Moorman and Ronald Walmsley. She also stated that the congregation would be given an opportunity to review the work these young people are doing at a later date. The Young Worshipper's League report was given by Mrs. Gausden, showing that $93.95 had been raised by this group of boys and girls.

Dr. Myers in his address thanked all the officials and all those who had contributed to the work of the church during the past year and that he and Mrs. Myers had been well received by the congregation of this church.

A motion of confidence and assurance of support was given to Dr. Myers by Mr. R. Edmondson, seconded by Capt. J. Buchanan, to which the congregation showed their approval by applause. The meeting was closed by benediction.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Boy Meets Girl—A Real Romance.

Thanks be, for a real love story. The girl with the flowing bob, a molar-to-molar smile, had her picture taken waving on high a document. Glancing at the picture I surmised it could be nothing less than one of those astronomical Hollywood contracts.

Continuing to read I was made aware of the fact that "Army bride gets finest Christmas present". With bated breath I read on, wondering what could be new under the sun in the way of Christmas gifts. So often I'd been through the lists to find something new and had fallen back on the same old things.

The dispatch revealed the girl with the flowing bob was sending to her husband, serving in the Army overseas, a cablegram telling him that Judge Dunne had declined to annul their marriage and the news was the finest Christmas present in all the world. Like many another Romeo and Juliet down the ages, these two youngsters stopped arguing with the stern parent, made up their minds—and so they were married.

Before the judge rendered the decision that the marriage was legal and would hold, the bride, Mrs. Muriel Vial Godar showed the judge a letter from her husband on the battlefront, in which he said he was praying every day and every night that their marriage would not be annulled.

Here's the background of this true love-story "Boy Meets Girl". Girl was 17, boy was 20. They fell in love as only youth falls in love, but the stern parent in the shape of the girl's father refuses to give consent. He protests the girl is in school and doesn't know her own mind. The boy is only 20; though he's old enough to fight and run the risk of stopping a bullet, he's not old enough to know when he's in love.

Well, these youngsters took things into their own hands, and went off and were married. It was a heavenly three days' honeymoon before the boy was sent overseas. The bride came home and her father immediately set to work to procure an annulment of her marriage to Private James Bruce Godar, last April.

Now there are some judges who are as learned in the ways of human nature as they are in the intricacies of the law. Among them is Circuit Judge Robert J. Dunne, who has rendered many decisions as wise as they are humane. He said "Even though both husband and wife are under age, and didn't have parental consent, there is proof that the parties entered into the contract of marriage with no lack of understanding".

Belleville Executive W.M.S. Meets

By FLORENCE MacMULLEN

Belleville executive W.M.S. held their January meeting in the parlors of Holloway Street Church on January 27th, with all vice-presidents and several secretaries in attendance. The president, Mrs. Stanley Spafford, presided over both sessions. The morning devotional was conducted by Mrs. Cecil Macklin, based on "The Power of Intercession." She pointed out that prayerless giving will never evangelize the world and she gave an apt illustration to prove the power of prayer.

Miss Mata Mellow called the roll and read the September executive.

The five vice-presidents spoke briefly, telling of their work in the various sections in regard to the fall rallies and the itinerary of Miss Ida MacKenzie.

Mrs. Erie Denyes reported an increase in membership of 109 and nine annual and four life members.

Owing to the illness of Mrs. E. L. Fraser, the treasurer, her report was not presented, but it looks as if $14,000 will be remitted to branch treasurer for Belleville presbyterial. Her resignation was also accepted.

Reports from Mrs. Nickle and Mrs. McCreary and Mrs. Harrison were read, showing 806 subscriptions to World Friends and increase of 263 and 1228 subscriptions to Missionary Monthly, an increase of 62. One hundred and thirty study books and 74 blue books. Marmora participated in the reading course. There were 5 new mission bands organized, Victoria, Picton, Ameliasburgh, Trenton, King and Newburgh.

Mrs. Wilson closed the morning session with prayer and a group of Holloway ladies served an excellent hot dinner.

The president based the afternoon devotional on a poem written by Dr. Kagawa.

Mrs. Way presented the refugee problem and urged all to read page 14 of January Monthly.

Mrs. Findlay reported 12 affiliated C.G.I.T. groups with 134 members and givings $44. The rally last fall was a success, with 100 in attendance.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen reported 846 items of missionary news published in the fifteen newspapers covering the presbyterial. Three auxiliaries have scrap books. About twenty reports have not been received.

Mrs. Earl Bailey spoke on "Stewardship" and Miss Mae Hawley gave a list of where bales had been forwarded and read letters of thanks.

Rev. Fred Lane, chairman of Home Missionaries gave a comprehensive outline of the Home Mission field in Belleville presbytery and fully explained the war emergency which has arisen because of scarcity of ordained ministers. He complimented the W.M.S. on their fine way of raising funds and denounced shady ways of raising money, which tends toward gambling.

Mrs. Osborne gave her work on "Community Friendship" and said the evening auxiliaries are the encouraging feature and pointed out that the auxiliaries who have executive members in their midst, give a splendid response to the various departments.

The Bay of Quinte branch executive and the Belleville presbyterial will convene in Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, with the presbyterial meeting on Wednesday, April 19th and a committee was appointed to arrange the program. The service closed with prayer by Mrs. Findlay.

Fashion Flashes

A FAVORITE SPECIFICATION for a youthful evening frock is a dark, sweater-like top and a bright, billowy skirt. Sleek black rayon jersey makes a pretty bodice on an evening frock of white net on bouffant lines. The off-shoulder line of the bodice has a white net ruching.

A SURE THING when it comes to prettiness in a hat, is a large rose or trimming. A tiny black satin sailor with all-over tucking has a full-blown deep pink rose anchored on its tiny brim.

A GOOD NOTION in the glove line is the button-on cuff. A smart little shortie of black kid has a trimming of white kid-covered buttons that also serve to fasten on detachable gauntlet cuffs of white kid.

A Good Choice

Flattering for Mature Figure
By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Black with white lingerie touches is a perennial favorite for the first early spring dress, for both young and adult. The type illustrated is especially nice for the more mature figure. It is softly gathered from shoulder to yoke, belted at the normal waistline. A cluster of tucks is released into graceful folds at one side of the skirt, which makes for a slimming line through the hips. The spanking white lingerie bow is detachable.

Home Service

A PARTY GAME

Don't sit and worry about your party being a success? If you're entertaining a few servicemen during the coming festive season at your-home do not be at a loss as to how to entertain them. It's so easy to work up a few interesting games.

The illustration above shows the mixed music game. The leader of this imaginary orchestra stands in front of players who sit in semicircle. To begin, leader pantomimes a violinist, and players imitate trumpeters. When the leader changes and blows a saxophone, the orchestra begins to fiddle.

As the leader switches from one instrument to another, players immediately start to perform on the instrument the leader has just stopped playing. Those failing to do so, pay a forfeit when game stops.

Our 32-page booklet is full of games for all kinds of parties. The games are of all types—from brain teasers to rollicking action games. No party will be dull with these to play.

You can easily make your party a success with a few of these games.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of PARTY GAMES FOR ALL OCCASIONS to The Ontario Intelligencer Home Service, 166 Front St., Belleville, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

HOUSEHOLD HINT

When you wash your flour sifter, rinse it with cold water before you give it a hot suds bath. If you put it into hot water first the flour thickens and clings to the sifter. Rinse in the cold water until all flour is removed, then in hot suds, and the results will be satisfactory.

Wife Preservers

If buttonholes in a garment are raveled or weak, rework with a buttonhole or blanket stitch. If completely raveled, machine stitch close to the edge of the buttonhole, then work buttonhole by hand.

The Marry-Go-Round

Wives Who Rate Decoration.

There are no decorations or service stripes for those who have come through the Battle of Matrimony. But if there were, Cynical Sybil says she would recommend the following for the D.S.C. or the Purple Heart.

1. The patient, smiling wife of the gay Philanderer. You know the type—the man who is "after every girl's heart". He may be a "wolf" or a glamor-man to you; but he is always a headache to the woman who loves him. The wounds in her heart or her vanity go deep—especially, when some young thing comes along, and offers to play her a game of craps for her husband.

2. The wife of the Critic-on-the-hearth, who is always being sniped at from unsuspected angles, and being hit in the self-esteem by stray shrapnel.

3. The girl who is married to a chronic Elbow-bender. He breaks her heart, at every bar; and then tries to mend it with an alibi, a kiss and a few promises. He is often a very lovable fellow; but his wife's pride is constantly getting wounded in action.

4. The wife of the Othello—the man who can put two and two together and make FOURTEEN! His secret weapons are the poison-gas of suspicion and the rocket-bomb of jealousy—and no woman can escape both of them.

5. The spouse of the Human Clam. Do not be deceived by his harmless appearance. . .After marriage, his non-committal silence develops into chronic sulleness. He is like a prima donna saving her voice for a concert. He will pretend to go to sleep right in the middle of a swell scrap. And he will tell his wife NOTHING—not even that the house is on fire! This wounds here in the most sensitive part of her make-up—her CURIOSITY.

6. The wife of the carefree irresponsible Spendthrift. He is a Good Time Charlie—a delightful happy-go-lucky fellow, who believes that generosity begins at the corner bar-and-grill—and ends at home. His wife carries her wounds in her pocket-book and wears her service strips in the line in her face.

7. The wife of the eternal Playboy. There is no use describing this type. Because, if you are married to one of these you are either suing him for alimony or holding down a job to keep him in spending money, and too busy to read this column. Either way you are wounded in your amour propre.

DON'T PLAY FAVORITES

Use top units on an electric stove in rotation for the same reason you change the tires on your car occasionally—they wear more evenly. Most people favour one unit—do you? For the same reason it's a good idea to switch the lids on a coal or wood range from time to time. Those directly over the firebox bear the brunt of heat and work and cracked lids are difficult to replace nowadays.

"SEEING IS BELIEVING"

How closely we live by that old adage is not fully realized. Every nationally advertised product is taking advantage of that known fact. The manufacturer realizes that our judgments regarding objects and people are very largely affected by what we see.

That being the case, how can reasoning people expect equally efficient professional Sight Service by a specialist and by a part-time practitioner? And economically is it good business to pay the same amount of cash for the same materials (spectacles) for two quite different types of service?

HYDRO Lightens The Way

● The familiar Hydro towers, striding across the countryside, are symbolic of a great public enterprise that has contributed much to the development of Ontario. Along the transmission lines, carried by these towers, flows the power that lightens the way in many thousands of homes, industries and farms.

Hydro power is accessible. It reaches out across the miles to far off city, town or farm . . . ready to serve at the flip of a switch.

Hydro power is flexible. It turns the wheels of our factories, mills and mines. It weaves our cloth, grinds our grain, milks our cows, pumps our water. It lifts our elevators, washes our clothes, refrigerates and cooks our food. It lights our homes, runs our radios. Day and night it serves our needs, in hundreds of different ways.

Hydro power is dependable. Well-equipped emergency crews and repair equipment stand by day and night ready to keep power flowing at all times.

Hydro power is economical. Through the years it is one factor, essential to our everyday living, that has been consistently reduced in price.

Hydro serves the people in thousands of ways. It brings them comfort, ease and convenience. Yet, Hydro's contribution to the welfare of the people, up to now, is but a preview of the promise which the electrical world holds for tomorrow. Since war began, Hydro power has been, and will be, available wherever and whenever it is required by Ontario's war industries. When peace comes, electricity supplied by Hydro will perform services that are certain to contribute much toward creating new and finer standards of living. This indispensible element, in our everyday life, lightens the way in everything we do.

THE HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER COMMISSION OF ONTARIO

HAMILTON MAJORS MOVE CLOSE TO LEADERSHIP

Trounce St. Catharines 11-2 With Discarded Jerry Davey Leading Attack

Hamilton Majors came to within one point of league leadership in the senior series of the Ontario Hockey Association last night by taking St. Catharines Saints into camp 11-2 at Hamilton, the visitors continuing to hold top position in the standing by the smallest margin.

The cause of most trouble for the Saints was Jerry Davey, a reject from the St. Catharines' squad, who rifled four shots into the net and made the play for three other goals. Johnny Conick almost equalled that performance with four counters and a couple of assists while other tallies were garnered by Dillon Brady, Shillington and Robertson. For Saints, the scorers were Red Reynolds and Mundrick.

Majors led 3-0 at the first intermission, made it 6-1 before the close of the second period and scored five to the Saints' one in the closing canto.

In the junior "A" series, Oshawa Generals won their 17th match of the season with an 8-3 win over the Kroehlers at Stratford but the latter were not outclassed as they were earlier in the week at Oshawa when the motor city crew registered a season's record of 21 goals. With less than three minutes to go last night, Oshawa held only a two-goal advantage, then ran in three before full time. Chief scorer for Generals was Ezenicki with three; Smith and Curry had two each and Love found the cage once. For Stratford, McKelvey, Schlisizzi and Tindal divided the count.

OSHAWA'S SMITH PACES JUNIOR HOCKEY SCORING

Gets Eleven Points in One Game to Boost Total to 33 Goals

Toronto, Jan. 29 — (CP) — Ken Smith of Oshawa Generals skyrocketed to the leadership of the individual scoring race in eastern and western divisions of the Ontario Hockey Association's junior "A" series by collecting nine goals and two assists for a seasonal record in Oshawa's 21-3 victory over Stratford this week, official O.H.A. records showed today.

Smith's splurge boosted his total to 33 goals and 17 assists, good for a two-point lead over team-mate Bobby Love, who leads another Oshawa player, Bill Ezinicki, by three points. Bobby Schnurr, of Toronto St. Michael's College is in fourth place in the eastern division with 45 points, one ahead of Joe Sadler, also of St. Mike's.

Johnny Ubriaco, the Sault Ste. Marie boy now with Galt Kists, has 15 goals and 22 assists to head the western section. Nellie Podolsky, of Galt, with 21 goals and 10 assists, ranks next with 31 points. Nick Warecki, of St. Catharines and Kenny Gravelle of Port Colborne Recreationists share third spot with 28 points, one ahead of Bobby Thorpe of St. Catharines.

BRUINS SINGING THE BLUES WITH LOSS OF PLAYERS

Last Blow Sees Goalie Gardiner Hit in the Face

By The Canadian Press

Assorted misfortunes continue to plague Boston Bruins, regarded before the season started as the team to beat in the National Hockey League.

Smitten by injuries to Bill Cowley, Johnny Crawford and Busher Jackson and impending loss of Dit Clapper to the armed services, the Bruins have slipped from second to fourth place in the last few weeks. Now they're faced with the possibility of playing without goalie Bert Gardiner, who suffered a fractured cheek bone when struck in the face by a stick during a war bond game at Hershey, Pa., Thursday.

Gardiner may be unable to play tonight when Bruins travel to Detroit for an engagement with the fast-travelling Red Wings, who are unbeaten in their last eight starts.

Now only three points ahead of the fifth-place Chicago Black Hawks, Bruins need a victory to safeguard that status against the Hawks, who play Maple Leafs at Toronto Saturday and Red Wings at Chicago Sunday. The only other weekend National League game matched the league-leading Montreal Canadiens against the tail-end New York Rangers in New York Sunday.

CANADA-WIDE INTER-SERVICE HOCKEY LEAGUE

That's the Program Proposed to Replace Allan Cup Series, Says Army Head

Ottawa, Jan. 29 (CP)—Maj. Ian Eisenhardt, sports officer at defence headquarters, said today that an upsurge of interest in Dominion-wide inter-service hockey among service personnel probably will result from the recent ban on Allan or Memorial Cup participation by the Canadian army and R.C.A.F.

He predicted that next season would probably see Canada-wide inter-service leagues in full swing, and added, "the main thing, of course, is to keep hockey alive in the forces, and the army is going to see that everything possible is done to maintain interest in the game."

Maj. Eisenhardt indicated an inter-service league might be organized in each military district, with the teams near enough to each other to obviate any interruption of military training and overcome transportation difficulties.

Army teams which have been affected by the new ruling are Ottawa Commandos of Quebec Senior Hockey League; Petawawa, Ont., team of the Ottawa Senior City League; Kingston, Ont., Senior Ontario Hockey Association squad; the Army team in the Winnipeg City loop; Calgary and Red Deer of Alberta Senior League, which now has severed connections with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association; and the Nanaimo, B.C., team, which now drops from competition in the West Coast League.

Sports Roundup

New York, Jan. 29—(AP)—If the Whirlaways and Count Fleets of the racing world care to show their speed over one furlong instead of the customary mile or more, they can pick up a lot of loose change in Tucson, Ariz. . . . Racing in Tucson is strictly for "quarter horses"—a higher development of cow ponies who can turn on a dime and hit top speed in nothing flat—and Del Orr, owner of Red Bird, challenges any horse in the world to an eighth of a mile race for $5,000 a side. . . . That's just a sample of the way the cattlemen lay it on the line for their favorites.

Two Honolulu boys, both star swimmers, will meet for the first time tonight 4,400 miles from home in the swimming pool of Lawrence College at Appleton, Wis. Bill Smith, former Ohio State record-smasher, is listed to swim for the Greta Lakes Naval Training Station, against Robert Pringle, a Navy trainee at Lawrence . . . and just for the records, Virginia and North Carolina boxing teams clash for the 20th year tonight in what Virginians believe to be the oldest continuous college ring rivalry.

Government Refuses To Permit Former Rangers To Play War Benefit Game

Jolting Jake La Motta of New York gained a split decision last night for his seventh victory in eight Detroit fights but the 8,751 customers at Olympia Stadium thought stocky Ossie (Bulldog) Harris of Pittsburgh was magnificent in defeat.

In fact, many in the crowd that paid $23,061 thought Harris was so magnificent he should have received the decision. An enormous howl went up after the 10th round when referee Elmer (Slim) McClelland raised La Motta's hand.

McClelland scored the fight for La Motta, six rounds to four, and was backed by one judge, Joe Lenahan. The other judge, Sam Hennessy, said he gave the fight to Harris because of sharper punching. There was no knockdown. La Motta weighed 158½, Harris 158.

When the Canadian government refused to permit five former members of the New York Rangers, now in the Canadian Army, to travel to New York, the proposed U. S. war loan exhibition game in New York Sunday was cancelled. The teams were to have been the ex-Rangers and the Brooklyn Crescents.

Although he had picked up the horse as a yearling for $2,500, trainer G. R. Bryson at Miami yesterday refused to sell Director J. E. for $75,000 because of his prospects as a Kentucky Derby candidate. Director J. E. will get a test in the Flamingo at Hialeah Park before being shipped to Churchill Downs.

Following an operation to repair a head inury caused by a blow from a baseball early in 1940, Paul O'Dea, 24, former outfielder of the Indians, yesterday was signed by the Cleveland club of the American League as a free agent. He had been out of organized ball for some time.

Lieut. Don Budge, former amateur and pro. tennis champion, and Cadet Jack Kramer of the U. S. Coast Guard, last night staged an hour-long court battle at New York which brought $2,500,000 worth of war bond subscriptions. Budge won in straight sets. In another match, champion Pauline Betz of New York defeated Miss Katharine Winthrop, Boston, in two sets.

Miami (AP)—A field of 14 three-year-olds, minus the star gallopers, is scheduled to go to the post today in the $5,000 Bahamas Handicap at seven furlongs. The most promising entry appeared to be H. E. Jacoby's Good Bid which won a six-furlong race at Hialeah in his last appearance Jan. 21.

Sherbrooke, Que., (CP)—Vanguard of an estimated 2,000 snowshoers expected at the annual International convention of snowshoers over the weekend, about 800 enthusiasts from a score of Canadian and United States centres arrived last night.

Pontiac, Mich. (AP)—This is the season for ski meets and skating championships, but owner Frank Syron of the Pontiac Country Club thinks 60-degree temperatures are better for golf. Accordingly he has scheduled an 18-hole tournament for tomorrow. If the good weather holds out, this undoubtedly will be Michigan's first midwinter golf meet.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By CHARLIE EDWARDS

Toronto, Jan. 29 — (CP) — Put Campbellford, Ont., on your future book as a town which will be producing hockey players about three years hence. A service club (Rotary) is sponsoring hockey for Campbellford boys and girls, aged nine to 17. Approximately 100 boys and 70 girls have enrolled. The club has rented the arena for two hours daily and engaged an instructor, Pat Shannon, former hockey player. Hockey and skating are free to the children...a supervised youth program is a great asset to any community...the odds are on Campbellford to produce happier and healthier citizens than, say, the Ontario towns of Acton and Elora where the rinks are in use to store wool.

Quip of the week:

Jack (Cornwall Standard-Freeholder) Park: "Conny Dion, still starring with Detroit Red Wings, is probably the only goalie in hockey who ever parlayed a pair of flat feet into N.H.L. stardom. The pedal extremities of the Asbestos Kid are as flat as a duck's, and this had more than anything else to do with his drawing an army discharge."

Hall of Fame:

The Kingston Whig-Standard has sent out a questionnaire asking five nominations to hockey's hall of fame. Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara named Tom Phillips, Frank Nighbor, Howie Morenz, Nels Stewart, and Eddie Shore. Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson chose Frank Calder, Frank Patrick, Frank McGee, Nels Stewart and Howie Morenz. Fergie, explaining choice of two whose fame was chiefly executive said Calder laid the foundations for professional hockey and Patrick revolutionized the rules.

Incidentally:

Doug McCaig, former Detroit defenceman who graduated this week as an R.C.A.F. pilot was the first N.H.L. player to get his wings. Other hockey stars who graduated with McCaig at Brantford were Norm McAtee, Wally Wilson, Murray Henderson and Arnold McDuffe...winter solved the transportation problem for some Regina golfers last Sunday. Several skated out Wascana Creek to the Wascana Club, then changed to golf shoes for a round in snow-free, mild weather ... Butch Keeling, the former New York Rangers puck star, dug out his skates for a Toronto commercial league game this week.

Netherlanders Will Hate Nazis Hundreds of Years

Sanfrancisco, Jan. 29 — (CP) — Princess Juliana of the Netherlands told a press conference yesterday it would be "hundreds of years" before the people of Holland can cease to hate the Germans.

SECOND WARNING GIVEN

London, Jan. 29 — (CP) — Britons yesterday received their second gas warning in two days as government sources warned them to be prepared for a German attempt to upset invasion plans with desperate and suicidal attacks on the country.

"JUST RELAX"

Miami, Fla., Jan. 29 (AP)—Blond Marjorie Row, 22, a bookkeeper in an Anniston, Ala., war plant, gave her receipe today for the straight-shooting brand of golf that brought her victory in the Helen Lee Doherty trophy tournament.

"Just Relax", says Miss Row, who practised what she preached by chatting brightly with friends while defeating Mrs. George . Wilcox, of Miami in the 36-hole finals yesterday, 7 and 6.

Although she drew the toughest opposition in the women's amateur tournament, perhaps the fastest field of the winter, Miss Row played easily in defeating three favorites in succession. She won the Michigan State title last year when she lived in Detroit.

Trenton R.C.A.F. Sports

Trenton, Jan. 29 — Embracing more than one hundred teams and involving a very large number of personnel, the Trenton R.C.A.F. Main Station intra-mural sports program is probably one of the most gigantic sustained athletic campaigns ever planned by an R. C. A. F. station.

Each evening the station sports hangar is the scene of keen inter-unit competition in basketball, volleyball, bordenball, floor hockey and other gymnastic games. A schedule has been drawn up whereby any man on the station who desires to engage in organized sport may do so under competent guidance and under regulation rules.

Among the teams participating in the intra-mural program are representatives of disciplinarians, physical training and drill instructors, administration officers, senior N.C.O.'s, members of the R.C.A.F. Women's Division, service police, hospital assistants, equipment trainees, fire-fighters, flight control men, motor transport drivers, flying instructors, staff and trainees as well as eight hundred Manning Depot lads.

The intra-mural program is drawn up under the supervision of Flt.-Lieut. F. E. Horton, sports officer of the Trenton Main Station, who is largely responsible for a greatly accelerated interest in sports activities on the station.

It is the object of the program to interest as many as possible of the Trenton personnel in sports in an active manner instead of being merely interested bystanders. To this effect every effort is being exerted by the P. T. and drill staff to get the largest possible turnouts at the nightly program. All participation in this undertaking is voluntary.

Mixed swimming every evening, with beginners classes on Tuesday and Thursday as the routine for the natators.

In addition to the games program, a boxing show is presented in the sports hangar every Tuesday evening. This tourney is open to all personnel and provides an opportunity for anyone interested in boxing to learn something about the sport. Quality of the boxing displayed is surprisingly good and spectators have enjoyed these novice shows tremendously.

It is pointed out that all bouts are carefully matched by experienced officials and that overmatching is closely guarded against. Master-of-ceremonies at the exhibition is Station Warrant Officer John Silver.

A twenty team inter-unit hockey league operated right on the station provides plenty of outdoor activity. Skating every evening for those not playing hockey brings many more to the rink.

SINGS THE BLUES

St. Louis, Jan. 29—(AP)—After being doleful about major league prospects for the 1944 season, President Sam Breadon, of the Cardinals changed his tune last night by saying he did not want to gain the reputation of being a pessimist. He talked hopefully despite the news catchers Ken O'Dea and Jerry Burmeister had been re-classified 1-A and he might wind up with one backstop, Sam Narrow, who batted .091 in his few appearances last season.

ANGOTT AND BEAU JACK COLLECT CASH

No Decision, but Gate Receipts Rocket to $84,870 in Cash

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sport Writer)

New York, Jan. 29—(AP)—Beau Jack and Sammy Angott, the two lightweight champions of the world (in certain neighborhoods), still have their titles, a pocketful of jingle-jangle and happy prospects of future cash deposits after last night's 10-round draw before a $84,870 Madison Square Garden sellout.

With New York recognizing the Beau from Augusta, Ga., as king and the National Boxing Association tabbing Angott as its man, none of the 19,113 customers hoped for anything more than a hint of a decision of the muddled 135-pound situation. No titles were at stake and both boys got away without loss of prestige.

The first definite move toward clearing up the problem child of fistiana will be a title meeting of Jack and Bob Montgomery in New York March 31, with Angott getting a crack at the winner with the crown on the line May 26.

Angott got away in front with a fine exhibition of outboxing the Beau but was shaken up in the second by a hard left hook to the head. Sammy was clutching and hitting with his free paw in his familiar style throughout the middle rounds as the Beau first tried to outbox, then to outslug his Washington, Pa., foe.

Jack scored repeatedly with a right hand to the head and body and both men slipped down for no counts in the seventh when Angott enjoyed his widest margin.

Canadian Soldiers In Army Boxing

Ottawa, Jan. 29 (CP)—Defence headquarters today announced that Canadian soldiers will be represented in the British army individual boxing championships which will highlight army sports overseas during February. Finals will be fought at the Royal Albert Hall, London.

In softball, a light aircraft regiment's team won the 1943 Canadian army overseas championship by defeating a Canadian infantry reinforcement unit team in the finals.

Members of the championship team were all from Toronto district.

Those on the losing side included: Cpl. J. J. Childerhose, Oshawa, Ont.; Maj. F. L. Fisher, Kingston, Ont

CASUAL COMMENT by K.J.C.

Courtesy never gets a man into trouble.

Two men, one a business success and the other a failure, met and the failure wanted to know how the successful one got along:

Rich Man—I eat plenty of fish.

Poor Man—Any special kind?

Rich Man—Tell you what I'll do. I'll get you a piece of the fish we use if you'll pay me $5.

The fish and money were transferred. Next day the man who paid the $5 met the other.

Poor Man—I ate the fish but I don't feel any different. But I got to thinking that $5 was a big price to pay for that fish.

Rich Man—Ah, excellent. Your business sense is beginning to work already.

(Louis packs 'em in.)

Down in Boston the other night wrestling promoter Paul Bowser, who twice visited the Hume Arena during wrestling bouts here and was amazed at the following the muscle-benders had in Belleville engaged Sergt. Joe Louis to referee a bout between "Gentleman Jack" Claybourne, the colored flash, and the "Golden Terror."

Bowser had to close the ticket office a half hour before the show started as his entire seating capacity of over 7,200 had been sold out. The boys did not pay to see the grapplers, but rather the heavyweight boxing champion of the world. Of the four names mentioned in the press dispatch, two had appeared here during wrestling shows. Incidentally mounted police were called out to disperse the crowd that threatened to break down the doors of the Boston wrestling arena in an effort to see Louis manhandle the pachyderms.

(Baseball helps war.)

The figures released by the American League the other day show that baseball has been doing its bit in Uncle Sam's war effort. During the last two seasons, the statistics reveal, organized baseball contributed more than $2,130,000 for war purposes. The two big leagues managed to raise $725,100 last year for war relief as against $1,054,953 in 1942 while the minor leagues collected some $350,000. The baseball equipment fund to supply bats, balls and gloves to service men raised a big total last year, with $65,174 coming from the annual All-Star game. As for the 1943 world series it was responsible for a baseball donation of war relief to the extent of $308,373—and that, friends, cannot by any stretch of imagination be classified as hay.

(Remember when—)

Canada's second Olympic team, Toronto Granites, ruled as favorites 20 years ago today when they whipped Sweden 22-0 at Chamonix, Switzerland and Great Britain proved easy marks in succeeding rounds and the Canadians became champions with a 6-1 victory over United States in the final. Olympic winner since 1920, Canada relinquished the crown to Great Britain's Canadian-studded representatives in 1936.

(A costly pitch.)

Jim Walkup was generally regarded as a mild-mannered citizen when he was pitching for St. Louis during the 1930s, but he's still credited with one of the strangest and loudest "beefs" in diamond lore.

Walkup pitched during the managerial reign of Rogers Hornsby, who had a few pet rules about the conduct of his athletes on the playing field. One of Hornsby's unbreakable rules for his pitching staff was that, on a two-strike, no-ball count, the next pitch should NOT be over the plate. Any Brown pitcher who broke the rule was subject to a $50 fine.

One afternoon it happened. With a 2-0 count on the batter, Walkup just cut the corner with his next pitch.

"Strike three!" called the umpire.

Walkup rushed protestingly to the umpire, but the arbiter wouldn't change his decision. And neither would Hornsby waive the $50 fine.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO. 281

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

What is so rare as a day in bridge without an argument? But there should be no argument about an opening bid of one. For all practical purposes, the basis is the same in every sound system.

Each system may have its own terms for saying it. But get this sizzing around in your think tank: When you open with a bid of one, you say you have more than your share in all essentials.

Horse Sense bridge is more specific than others. It states that an opening bid of one in a suit shows five suit tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks, and a biddable suit.

When you know that, it makes no difference whether you have this or that distribution; how many suits you have; how long are your suits; what position you are in; whether you are vulnerable or not.

With only one biddable suit, you show that. With two biddable suits of the same length, you first show the higher ranking. With two biddable suits of different length, you first show the longer.

Peck away at this hand:

♠Q 4
♥A Q 10 5
♦7 2
♣A 8 6 4 3

You have two sure tricks; two aces. Also four high cards; two aces and two queens. And six tricks; four high cards, a short card in spades, and a short card in diamonds.

There you have all the needs for an opening bid of one. And you have two biddable suits; one in hearts and one in clubs. The clubs are longer. So, your opening bid is one club.

Another system might say you had so many and a half of this or that with thus and so distribution. Or that you had a point count of so much with this many controls or quick tricks or primary tricks.

But they all mean the same thing in the end. They intend to say you have more than your share in all the essential departments.

A bridge expert is like the fuddy-duddy watchmaker. You may not know how he does it but he does it.

AT THE BELLE

"I Dood It," Funny

The fun reigns fast and furious at the Belle Theatre now showing M-G-M's slick comedy riot, "I Dood It," starring Red Skelton and Eleanor Powell. The tuneful musical brings the successful team of Skelton and Powell together for the third laugh-happy time with Red in his most hilarious characterization to date. There are a host of popular stars to round out the stellar supporting cast.

Red plays a zany pant's presser who falls in love with a Broadway star. By wearing his customers' clothes he manages to impress her and the next thing he knows they are married and involved in a hunt for a gang of saboteurs. And his troubles are only beginning!

Amid the absured situations that arise there is a wealth of musical entertainment supplied by Jimmy Dorsey and his orchestra and a breath-taking musical number played by Hazel Scott, Broadway's swing sensation, and sung by Lena Horne. Miss Powell does a "western" dance number during which she twirls a lariat in time to the music while performing the most intricate steps.

Directed by Vincente Minnelli.

Vincente Minnelli, who made his directoral debut on the screen with "Cabin in the Sky," handled the lilting laugh-musical with skill and artistry. The players include Richard Ainley as Skelton's rival for the hand of Miss Powell, luscious Patricia Dane, fast-talking Sam Levene, Morris Ankrum, Butterfly McQueen and Thurston Hall.

The Canadian Paramount News, and an excellent Pete Smith specialty "Tips on Trips" will also be exhibited. Continuous shows will be presented today.

AT THE McCARTHY

"JACK LONDON"

The romantic, adventurous image of one of America's most dashing figures, flashed across the screen Saturday night at the McCarthy Theatre and his presence was a welcome one.

The occasion was the showing of Samuel Bronston's first independent production, "Jack London", released through United Artists.

The title role is played by Michael O'Shea, newcomer to films who scored so roundly in his first picture, "Lady of Burlesque". O'Shea, whose resemblance to the author is so remarkable that old-timers in the audience gasped in astonishment the first time he appeared on screen recreated the birile, daring London in a big-league performance the like of which has not been seen in these parts for an age. Young and beautiful Susan Hayward starring as Charmain London, wife and beloved travelling companion of Jack London, served as an outstanding partner for the vigorous brilliance of O'Shea's performance.

Alternating swift blood and thunder excitement with warm, human romance which kept Saturday's audience constantly at the edge of its seat, Ernest Pascal, writer of the screen play has provided a well rounded cast with a punch-packed tale of the author-adventurer's life. The story follows London from his first wild escapades as an oyster pirate on San Francisco Bay through his hard-fighting life at sea and in the Arctic, to his emergence as one of America's greatest authors and war correspondents.

It is this little known side of Jack's life, that of war correspondent which provides some of the most vivid sequences of a film packed with drama.

Called from plans of his wedding to Charmian to cover the outbreak of hostilities between Russia and Japan, Jack goes to Nippon to learn some startling facts about the aggression-mad Japanese. Under the guidance of a Japanese officer, Captain Tanaka (Leonard Strong), Jack sees the Japanese in action against the Russians and learns from Tanaka the insane desire of the Nips for world conquest.

Full of this knowledge, Jack returns to America determined to speak and write until the people of his country become aware of the peril to their homeland from their "friendly neighbors" across the Pacific.

Under Alfred Santell's swiftly-paced direction, and with a cast including such competent standbys as Osa Massen, Harry Davenport, Frank Craven, Louise Beavers and a host of others, "Jack London" emerges as one of the "must" events of the current season on the whole family's movie list.

AT THE CAPITOL

"JOURNEY FOR MARGARET"

One of the year's most coveted child roles, that of Peter in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Journey For Margaret", opening next at the Capitol Theatre, was awarded to four-year-old William Severn, youngest member of Hollywood's "acting family".

The role is on a par with that of the girl, Margaret, played by five-year-old Margaret O'Brien. The picture was adapted from the book by William L. White, writing of his own experiences as a war correspondent. The children appear as English youngsters whose parents are killed by Nazi bombs.

William is one of seven children in the Severn family. All are in motion pictures and between them have appeared in more than sixty films since the family moved to Hollywood from Johannesburg, South Africa, six years ago.

Outstanding to date have been William's three brothers, Christopher, Raymond and Clifford. Christopher appeared as the son of Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon in "Mrs. Miniver", Raymond was Mickey Rooney's pal in "A Yank at Eton", Clifford was the boy bully in "How Green Was My Valley".

"MELODY PARADE"

(First Belleville showing.)

One of the most ambitious musical productions ever filmed by Monogram is "Melody Parade", which opens an engagement at the Capitol Theatre next, with the lovely Mary Beth Hughes in the starring role. Eddie Quillan is seen in the leading male part, and the big cast of entertainers also includes the famous radio comedy team of Tim and Irene; the negro comedian, Mantan Moreland; Jerry Cooper, one of the country's most popular ballad singers; Armida, the fascinating little Mexican singer and dancer; and Andre Charlot, noted English actor and producer.

Orchestral music is provided by two of America's outstanding musical organizations, headed by Ted Fio Rito and Anson Weeks. Also contributing to the merriment are the comedy ballroom dancing trio, Ruloff, Follette and Lunard; and the singing threesome, the Loumell Morgan Trio.

The Canadian Universal News completes the big double attraction.

AT THE CAPITOL — Mexican pepper-pot Armida leads a bevy of slick senoritas in the Latin American number, "Melody Parade," next at the Capitol Theatre with the added attraction 'Journey for Margaret."

AT THE McCARTHY — Young Michael O'Shea, and Mammy Jenny (played by Louise Beavers), in a tense scene from "Jack London," Samuel Bronston's production currently at the McCarthy Theatre, through United Artists release.

AT THE BELLE — Red Skelton and Eleanor Powell are more than buddies in M.G.M.'s slick musical comedy, "I Dood It," now playing at the Belle Theatre. Jimmy Dorsey's music provides the background in this musical funfest, featuring Patricia Dane, Lena Horne, and Hazel Scott.

Trenton and District

RCAF Personnel Entertained By Rotary Club

Trenton, Jan. 29 — (Special) — The sports hangar of the Trenton Air Station on Wednesday night was the scene of a gala frolic provided for the entertainment of the R.C.A.F. personnel, and which was sponsored by the Trenton Rotary Club. One thousand girls and boys spent three and a half hours enjoying the program arranged for them. Bingo was the feature of the evening and over $200 in cash prizes was given away. Another feature was the presentation of two "GIVE A LIFT STATIONS" to the armed forces in general of this community.

The presentation was made possible by Rotarian Tom McNeill, manager of Crosse & Blackwell Co., who donated the hutments on behalf of the Trenton Rotary Club. The presentation was acknowledged by Group Captain Bell-Irving, Commanding Officer of the South Station, and Wing Commander Laird, Commanding Officer of No. 6 Repair Depot. Rotary President Geo. Cobley acknowledged accordingly also.

The Air Force band, under the direction of Warrant Officer Hancock, provided the audience with excellent music and also led in the community singing. A. W. 2 Pat Collins gave a gymnastic display on the parallel bars which was well received.

As a climax, and a complete surprise to everyone, the city of Belleville through the kindness of Lt. Col. B. C. Donnan, sent up their Pipe Band which delighted the Scotch lads and lassies to the fullest, including the Commanding Officer of the Station.

Rotarian Norman Banfield, organizer and director of the evening's entertainment, acted the roll of Master of Ceremonies, and did a grand job in keeping everyone happy and on their toes.

Too much praise cannot be given the War Services Committee of the Trenton Rotary Club, and their all out hard working Chairman H. B. Smith, in their effort to provide means of entertainment for the members of the armed forces of this vicinity.

The citizens of Trenton came through in grand style in providing the cash prizes, apples and cigarettes for the evening's entertainment.

Rotarian Norman Banfield was the recipient of hundreds of congratulations from the boys and girls of the Air Station who expressed their appreciation in a most sincere manner for the grand interest being taken on their behalf by the citizens of Trenton.

Give-a-Lift Stations

The two "GIVE-A-LIFT STATIONS are now placed one on either end of Dundas St., the West one near the intersection of Dundas and Dufferin, and the East one opposite Hill's service station at the outskirts of town. Here the boys and girls may rest free from the perils of weather while they are waiting transportation to their respective stations.

West Huntingdon

Mrs. E. Summers Entertained On 85th Birthday

West Huntingdon — Mr. and Mrs. Melville Donnan entertained a large number of their friends on January 26, in honor of Mrs. Emma Summers of Mount Pleasant, who was celebrating her 85th birthday. Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Sharpe of Hoards, Mrs. Ellen Sharpe of Mount Pleasant (who is also 86 years old), Mr. and Mrs. William Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Murney Johnson and son of Harold, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Shaw and Wayne of Ivanhoe, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Sarles and Harold of Minto, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Summers, Gladys and Eric of Mount Pleasant. A beautiful birthday cake adorned with 85 candles was the centre of attraction on the banquet table and as the last candle was lighted Mrs. Summers was surprised to hear her birthday announced over the Home Folks hour program from Peterboro and a beautiful song sung in her honor. Mrs. Summers is hale and hearty and takes a great interest in the events of the world. Her many friends wish for her many more happy birthdays.

In Manhattan

By H. M. PETERS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

New York, Jan. 29 (CP)—In a year in which revivals of excellent plays are vying with new productions for the attention of New York's teeming theatre-goers, the National Theatre this week opened with a fine performance of Chekhov's comedy, "The Cherry Orchard."

Produced and directed by Margaret Webster and Eva Le Gallienne, with Miss Le Gallienne herself in the leading feminine role, the revival seems destined to achieve the same success that Miss Webster is scoring this year with her production of Shakespeare's "Othello."

Imprisoned Peer: Another opening this week, in an entirely different mood was Philip Merivale in "The Duke of Darkness," a new play by Patrick Hamilton, author of "Angel Street" which has been running here for more than two years.

This show, at the Playhouse, was much better received by the audiences than by the critics who generally found it lacking in the suspense and excitement that could be expected from its theme and setting.

Risque Comedy: A third opening this week "Wallflower," at the Cort Theatre, is a comedy on the Cinderella motive in which the plain sister captures the man upon whom her pretty sister's heart was set.

London — (CP) — Cpl. J. J. Llewellin, Minister of Food, said here recently that between January and April of next year everybody in Britain will get at least one pound of oranges from Spain and Palestine.

Manchester — (CP) — Sir William Beveridge's report on the cure of mass unemployment will be purchased in April and, Sir William said here, its content "will be as startling" as his report on social security.

CHAPTER 15

"Rats!" shouted the impatient Brangwin. "Don't tell me that! I hear about town that you're setting up as a genius with trimmings. Good enough! But don't kid me. I've worked a few gags myself. I know slick salesmanship when I see it. The idea is to sell me a cover, isn't it?"

Clyde grinned. "Sure thing!"

"How do I know you can deliver the goods?" asked Brangwin.

"I know my business," Clyde replied. "You don't have to give a definite order for the first one. If you don't like it, don't pay for it."

"The first one?" snorted Brangwin.

"I'm expecting," said Farrish, "to do many other Class covers." He interrupted himself. "There's just one condition."

"Which is what?"

"That the model you just saw shall be used."

"So. Suppose I want to furnish a model to wear that costume?"

"Miss Carfax, my model, designed it. It is hers."

"Call her out."

Farrish did so. "Miss Carfax, Mr. Brangwin," said Clyde.

"Designed it, eh? And had it made. Expensive?"

Darnley had been studying Brangwin. She knew what would please him. "It doesn't cost me a penny," she said. "If—"

"If?"

"If it appears on the cover of Class."

"Smart girl. I like smart girls. I like your cover, Farrish. I like the costume. I like Miss Carfax. But never try to bamboozle me again. Save such sales salve for the saps. How soon?"

Farrish understood this to be an inquiry as to how quickly he could deliver. "For the best job I can turn out," he said, "forty-eight hours."

"I won't pay over a thousand."

"Done!" agreed Farrish.

"We'll argue over a series," concluded Brangwin. "How do I get out of this chamber of horrors?"

"This way," said Farrish. Presently he returned and Darnley was alone with him. He extended his hand, saying, "Thanks!" And then: "By the way, Darnley, you may like to know I've instructed my lawyer to scrap. I'm going to pull this business out of the fire. But I can't do it alone."

He wanted her. And he was going to pretend he had not heard her say that she loved him.

"Will you stick with me?" he asked.

• •

The requirements of the Golden Blend contest were that each girl who entered should send two photographs of herself of a certain size, one of the full face and figure, the other in profile. To be eligible, the entrant must be a professional model, which very properly barred publicity-seeking debutantes and refugee noblewomen. Darnley had attended to her application promptly.

From the pictures submitted, forty girls were to be selected and these were to appear in person upon the stage of the ballroom of the Chamberlain-Towers where a jury of eminent artists would choose the Golden Blend Girl before a large audience of invited guests.

Having dispatched the pictures, there was nothing to do but wait and hope. During these days Clyde Farrish's manner toward her had been curious. She had endeavored to maintain a sort of formal dignity in her relations with him and he had accepted it with laughter in his eyes, but with a demeanor that was both grave and courteous. It irritated her.

Darnley spent many odd minutes in the studio—not studying photography, but testing her theory of how the sable coat had been removed from the studio, and by whom. She wanted to be sure, and after making such tests as she considered safe, she was sure. To her own satisfaction, at any rate, she had proved who must have stolen that costly fur.

• •

Sam Britton's presentation, which Farrish and he had worked over, was completed at last and had been delivered to the manufacturers of Golden Blend cigarettes. It was not by any means the only effort of an advertising agency to secure this glittering piece of business, but both Clyde and Sam Britton felt they had something new, something original, and that it was certain, at least, to receive serious consideration.

One afternoon Darnley was posing for an artist in a great building in midtown New York. His studio was on the same floor with that of Lacey Gorse, and she walked past the latter's door rapidly lest she should encounter him. She finished late in the afternoon and stepped out into the hall on her way to the elevators. As she did so a man who had just gotten off the lift was walking rapidly down the long corridor. She could see only his back, a roughly clad back, but there was something vaguely familiar about it. She saw him enter Gorse's door. She had not been able to see his face only his forehead and an eye.

It annoyed her that she could not place him. All the way home it troubled her and, even in her warm tub, which was very grateful to her after a day of posing, she continued to try to fit that back to some face that she knew. It was like a word which is just on the tip of one's tongue, but cannot be pronounced.

Jerry Shafto came in waving a paper. "What ho, Darnley!" she called. "Have ye heard the news?"

"No. What is it?"

"The list of girls who have been picked for the finals in the Golden Blend Contest is in Mr. Manhattan's column tonight."

Darnley rushed out of the bathroom, dripping and lovely as a drayad. "Oh, Jerry! Am I in it?"

"Your name is printed there," chortled Jerry, "on the page quite bright and fair. It's in the bag. Yeah! All you got to do, honey, is beat out thirty-nine top models."

Darnley, for an instant, thought she detected a note of envy, perhaps of malice, in her chum's voice. But Jerry clapped her on the back and cried, "If they could see you now, baby, there'd be nothing to it but handing over the check!"

"We'll celebrate," Darnley said gaily. "I'll buy you a dinner and a show."

As she spoke the doorbell rang stridently, and Darnley, hastily slipping her feet into slippers and throwing a robe about herself, opened the door cautiously. A man stood there whose shoulders filled the doorway.

"Thought you'd be in, Miss Carfax," he said and Darnley drew back, with sudden fear in her heart, for it was the lieutenant of detectives whose face she had resoundly slapped on the day the sable coat was stolen.

"What—what do you want?" she asked.

"Just dropped up to chat," he said, walking past her into the room. "Miss Shafto here, too?"

"Yes?"

"Ain't I the lucky one?"

"Well," said Darnley, "now that we have that point settled, what do you want?"

"I just want to know how you sneaked that coat out of the studio and what you did with it?"

"I didn't," stressed Darnley.

"You 'n' Miss Shafto," said the detective.

"Tell him," piped Jerry's voice from the bedroom, "that he's all wet!"

Darnley's lips pressed together and her little jaw set. She was more angry than frightened now. "Did you ever," she asked, "hear of a thing called a bluff?"

"I've heard of almost everything. You do, in my business."

"Grandpa Carfax used to say," said Darnley, "that you could tell a second-rate poker player by the way he bluffed the wrong people."

"Miss Carfax," purred the lieutenant, "the police always get the facts in the end."

His manner was that of a patient schoolmaster trying to explain to a backward pupil. "You see Miss Carfax, we been working on this case. We ain't been laying down. We've proved it's got to be you."

"How?"

"Well, we've proved it can't be anybody else."

"Good old reductio ad absurdum. I haven't met that proving process since I left high school."

"Listen; if you were to give up the coat I could get you a short sentence."

"I couldn't give it up even to get a long paragraph," she said. "I don't know where it is."

His eyes looked sorrowful. "I'd hate awful to have to take you down to headquarters to have the boys work over you."

"Let me see, isn't there something about false arrest? I mean, doesn't it cost money to do it?" countered Darnley.

"It's been known to," the detective admitted.

"Is it a pinch?" Jerry asked, emerging from the bedroom. "Because if it is, I want my lawyer."

"It isn't," said Darnley. "The lieutenant is trying to make—" Suddenly her face lighted and she clapped her hands upon her knees. "I knew I'd remember. I know who that man was."

"What man?"

"The one I saw this afternoon coming out of an elevator."

"Coming out of what elevator and going into where?"

Darnley frowned. She did not answer immediately while she considered all the implications of that man going into Lacey Gorse's studio.

"Well?"

"I'm studying whether it's the time to tell you," she said.

"You were posing this afternoon?"

"Yes, for Leonard Sneed in the Maritime Building."

"Maritime Building, eh? What floor?"

"Twenty-first," said Darnley.

"Well, well! Twenty-first, eh? Same floor as that photographer, Lacey Gorse, was it? And who did you see that is mixed up with this sable coat?"

"I won't tell you, because you wouldn't believe it. It's one of those things that has to be — demonstrated."

"What has to be?"

"Why," said Darnley, "how that sable coat got out of Mr. Farrish's studio without anybody seeing it, or a bundle or anything."

"You know?" asked the lieutenant.

She nodded. "I think I do."

"Kick in!" urged the detective with sudden harshness.

"No," said Darnley, "but I'll demonstrate my theory of the theft."

"When?" asked the detective.

She considered. "Tomorrow morning. Mr. Farrish won't be busy. I must be there and Jerry. Everybody must be on hand who was there the day of the theft. You'll have to see to that. Everybody but one man. And he mustn't be there. You'll have to find some way of keeping him some place else."

"We're good at that." He peered at her intently. "You wouldn't be kiddin' an old-timer?"

"No."

"Who is the man I'm to keep away from your showdown?"

Darnley glanced at Jerry, and her eyes were dancing. "I want this to be a surprise even to you, Jerry" she said and then whispered in the lieutenant's ear.

He clucked. "So? Now what you got on him?"

"The demonstration will show," insisted Darnley, "and it will knock the spots off your old Latin reductio ad absurdum line."

"Forget the Greek stuff!" said the lieutenant. "I'll be seeing you at Farrish's at nine-thirty tomorrow." He got up and lumbered to the door. "I hope you're as smart as you think you are."

"I hope so, too," Darnley said.

As soon as the detective departed, Jerry clutched her temples and with a wry look, exclaimed: "Your boy friend certainly gave me a rip-snorting headache!"

"Oh, I'm sorry."

"These headaches knock me for a row. We'll celebrate some other night, eh? Me for bed and the light out."

"I don't feel so much like celebrating, myself," Darnley said. "But I do have to eat." So she dressed as Jerry went to bed.

Darnley dressed and stopped at Jerry's door. "Anything I can get you?"

"A cop to chase away the Brooklyn boys," Jerry said and hid her face in the pillow.

When Darnley shut the door and went down the hall, Jerry Shafto sat up in bed, listening to the whir of the descending elevator. She waited another space, then sprang out of bed, went to the telephone and dialed a number. There was an answer.

"Who's this?" Jerry asked . . . "It's you I want . . . Yes, it's Jerry. Jerry Shafto. That flatfoot was just here digging. Darnley Carfax has got something new and it's hot. Yes, you better strut your stuff and strut it pronto."

Jerry hung up the receiver, got back into bed and snuggled under the light covers. When Darnley came back her roommate was sound asleep. At least, her eyes were shut and she breathed regularly—just like a person with a clear conscience.

The morning mail brought Darnley Carfax formal notification of her selection as one of the girls to compete for the Golden Blend Girl prize and requiring her to present herself at the Chamberlain-Towers on Friday evening before the judges and the audience.

"Jerry," she called, "get out of that bathtub. The letter's come!"

There was a splashing and Jerry Shafto stood dripping in the door. "Many happy returns," she said.

"Thanks!" Darnley replied. "And now we've got to entertain policemen at the Farrish Studio."

"I dote on cops," Jerry said. "I'll probably marry one. I hope he's the kind that rides a horse. What kind of a party are you going to give?"

"Surprise party," answered Darnley.

The girls dressed and taxied to the studio where the police were already in possession and Clyde Farrish was in a state of mind.

"What goes on?" he demanded. "This is a studio, not a police station. These cops say you invited them here."

"Hush your fuss," chided Darnley. "Where's the lieutenant?"

"Sitting in a place so everybody has to walk around him," snapped Clyde.

"I want," said Darnley, "the studio to be set exactly as it was the day the sable coat was stolen. Get something to represent the coat. We'll go ahead just as if we were making that picture."

She looked around. "Where's Terry Random? I want to see Random."

She went into the studio and spoke to the ex-pitchman. Then she addressed the group. "We'll pretend to assume the poses and take the pictures. Everybody is to do as nearly as they can remember what they did that day."

Cameras were placed; lights set; Darnley and Jerry took the indicated poses . . .

She tossed the wrap that represented the sable coat on a table where she had tossed the expensive fur after its picture had been taken. "We rested here," she said, "and had some sandwiches. We can make believe about the food." She turned casually to Terry Random and suggested, "You can amuse us."

"Ladies and gentlemen," orated Terry, advancing with a six-foot loop of rope in his hand, "you've heard of the Hindu rope trick, where the magician throws a rope into the air and it stands straight with nothing to support it. Then a small boy climbs the rope and disappears. . . . Yeah. Well, this isn't that trick." He tossed the rope to the lieutenant. "Look it over. Examine it. Just a rope tied into a loop." He took it back and held it in his hands, the knotted end on the floor. "Got a knife, Lieutenant? Cut the rope—that's right—cut it through." He held out the severed ends so all could see. Then he took the ends, placed them together and covered them with his hand.

"Just a bit of repair work," he said. "Comes in handy around the house. Lieutenant take hold. Mr. Farrish, you take hold here. Now pull!"

They jerked, Terry removed his hand and the rope was whole again, as it had been in the beginning.

"Doggone!" exclaimed the lieutenant.

"Who was it," Darnley asked, "who first noticed the sable coat had disappeared?"

"I did," answered Farrish as he turned to the table where the pseudo-coat had been tossed. He jerked his head and turned. "It's gone!" he barked.

"Gone!" roared the lieutenant. "It can't be!"

"Then," asked Darnley, "where is it?"

"I don't get the hocus-pocus. But this time it's in the studio. I've got men watching every exit."

"Suppose you search," suggested Darnley.

Skilfully, thoroughly, they searched the premises, but the wrap, a property thing of red velvet and very visible indeed, was not to be found. The lieutenant called in his men and questioned them. Nothing in the nature of a wrap had been taken from the place, no bundle, nothing. No stranger had entered or left.

"It couldn't get out. It must be here," the lieutenant insisted.

"It is not here," Darnley said. "At the moment it is in the basement of this building—or probably on its way up again. Would you like me to show you?"

"The hand," said Terry Random, "is quicker than the eye."

"Where," asked Darnley, "is the man I asked you to have here in overalls, lieutenant?"

Little Benny's Note Book

I was starting to take a Saturday walk with pop, an ma said to him, By the way, William, theres not a strip of bacon in the house, and you'd rather face the end of the world than Sunday breakfast without bacon, so you'd better pick some up while you're out. Get Eagle Brand if you can, that seems to be the only kind you really like, she said.

Well, I'll go so far as to say it's the only kind for which I feel more than a platonic affection, pop said.

And we went in the Miracle Market on our way passed, pop saying to the meat man, I'll have a pound of Eagle Brand bacon.

Not here you wont, the meat man said. You're lucky at that, though, I can let you have a quarter pound of Little Squaw bacon, he said, and pop sad, I never heard of it.

Neither did I before this war, the meat man raid, and pop said, Well, better luck next time ,maybe.

And we kept on going and went in the Buy and Save chain store, pop saying to the man, How's chances for a half pound or so of Eagle Brand bacon?

Mighty slim, brother, the man said. Slim so the vanishing point. Asking for your favorite brand of anything these days is like asking for an orkester seat in heaven. I'll look and see if I can sell you a few strips of some other kind, he said, and pop said, No, dont look, I'll see you after we lick the Huns and the Yellow Monkeys.

The next place we went in being the New Era delicatessen, pop saying to the delicatessen an, Do you think you canm scare up a quarter pound or less of Eagle Brand bacon? and the delicatessen man saying. Not a chance. I can let you have all you want of Run of the Mill bacon. I can garantee it's not more than 9 tenths fat, although it's marked Second Quality, he said, and pop said, Good, it's exactly what I haven't been looking for.

And he told the man to give him a pound and wrap it up tight so the buzzerds wouldn't get wind of it.

No. 13 No Jinx For Lyric Pons

By JOHN SELBY
Associated Press Writer

New York, Jan. 27 —(CP)—Lily Pons, apostle of the number 13, had her 13th anniversary at the Metropolitan in a performance of "Lucia." It was the work in which she made her debut in January, 1931.

Pons arrived from France a scared girl with no advance publicity. She sang the Lucia "Mad Scene" for Gatti-Casazza after waiting hours in the dark auditorium of the Met. In 30 minutes (it should have been 13) he had signed her contract.

I heard the debut and the Pons performance was exciting, a little unsteady from nerves, but a great relief to the management. They needed a coloratura with glamor and they had it. They still do, and in the meantime Lily Pons has increased her musical stature, beaten down her rivals, and got sick to death of always singing mad or tragic roles or both.

But she continues to sing, although in 13 years she has reached the point where she can, and does, refuse to sing half the dates she is offered. The law of diminishing returns and the income tax have made it actually unprofitable to sing a full schedule.

Born Friday The 13th

Pons was born on Friday the 13th in Cannes. She gives parties on that mysterious day if she can. Her husband, Andre Kostelanetz, flew 13 times from New York to California during the courtship period, proposed 13 times, and two now live at 13 Silvermine road, in Silvermine, Conn.

Her automobile licence is LP-13, there were 13 letters in the name of the studio where she made her first movie, 13 in the title of the picture ("I Dream Too Much"), 13 in the producer's name (Pandro S. Berman), in her leading man's name, which was Osgood Perkins, even in her costumer's name although I have forgotten that one. She began work on the opus on July 13.

The word ovation was used after the first "Mad Scene" in 1931; it could have been used after the 13th anniversary performance just as well. The house was stuffed both nights, too.

Pons can sing, can draw audiences, loves big rooms well-filled with French-looking doo-dads, reaches a high "A" with ease. She is also the only 104-pound prima donna in the world who can look like Queen Victoria at a masquerade, viewed at a distance under lights.

THROUGH THE DIAL SIGHT

A Weekly Column Devoted to the Activities of the Members of the Armed Services at Home and Abroad

Col. L. W. W. Slack, commanding officer of the 33rd. Reserve Brigade group, made an informal inspection of the 34th, Battery, R.C.A., at the Armouries Monday night. The affair was purely impromptu, as Col. Slack dropped in unexpectedly and was accompanied by Col. J. H. Hogan, of the Governor General's Foot Guards, G.S.O. 1. Col. Slack observed the junior officers' class of the Battery in working, taking lectures in advanced mathematics. The headquarters staff officers were pleased with the advanced training of the 34th. personnel and congratulated Captain S. A. Sword, the battery commander, upon the efficiency of the unit.

Next Wednesday night the 34th. Battery, R.C.A., will hold its annual muster inspection for pay parade when a complete check on all personnel will be made prior to the end of the fiscal year.

OH, NEVER MIND.

Bill wanted to slip out of barracks—unofficially—to see his girl, and he went to the sentry and stated the case.

"Well," said the sentry, "I'll be off duty when you come back, so you ought to have the password for tonight. It's 'Idiosyncracy'."

"Idio-what?"

"Idiosyncracy."

"I'll stay in barracks," said Bill.

Now that Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan E. D., commanding officer of the Argyll Light Infantry, has officially announced that the battalion is a Reconnaissance Regiment, enlistments in the local reserve unit should increase.

All phases of military training are to be featured by the Regiment commencing with ski training regardless as to the present lack of snow. Wanted for this phase of training are two ski experts to act as instructors. Then also 24 boys under 18 years of age to take special ski instructions. Here is an opportunity for young men who are not of active military age to get some advanced training and get paid for it.

New six-pound, anti-tank guns have arrived at the Armouries for reserve army training and gunners, over 45 years of age, are being sought for this interesting phase of present military training. Drivers for motor vehicles (righthand drive) are also required by the Argyll and the 34th Battery. The new reconnaissance training should provide an added interest to the training of the reserve army units here. Enlistment are being received in the Armouries every night of the week.

His Opportunity

A young woman, her mother, an Italian officer, and a Nazi trooper were in an Italian train. It came to a tunnel. As soon as darkness enveloped the compartment, a kiss was heard — followed by a hard slap.

When the train emerged into sunlight, the passengers' thoughts were these:-

(1) The Nazi: "Those mad, romantic Latins. How dare he kiss that girl. How cowardly, to try it only in the dark."

(2) The Girl: "The nerve of him. trying to kiss my mother. I'm glad she was able to defend herself."

(3) The Mother: "So they'd kiss my daughter, eh? Well, I brought her up properly, and I'm glad she took proper action."

(4) The Italian: "It was worth kissing my hand, just for the opportunity of slapping that German."

Next week will be a busy time around the Armouries for the officers and members of the Argyll Light Infantry (Recce) unit. On Tuesday night it's muster parade when the all ranks must be present to collect their do-re-mi as it is the end of the fiscal year for military authorities. Those missing the muster parade will not be able to collect their parade pay for some time to come

Then on Thursday night, Feb. 3rd, their will be a general inspection of the Armouries, the Argyll Light Infantry at the Armouries, with Col. Slack of M. D. No. 3 chief inspecting officer. The general public is cordially invited to attend the annual general inspection and preparations to accommodate the public are being provided for in the spacious Armouries gallery Classes in small arms, anti-tank, gas and other phases of training completed by the reserve army will be included in the general inspection. A staff of headquarters officers from Kingston will accompany Col. Slack on his inspection.

Following a medical examination in the Kingston Military Hospital Captain K. R. Holmes returned to his post as adjutant of the Argyll unit this week, reporting as fit as the proverbial fiddle. Captain Blair M. C. has assumed the duties of training officer for the Argyll Light Infantry.

Just Like Home

A bishop had three sons in the Services. Two were Army chaplains, the third was a naval man. All spent their first leave at home.

The bishop was standing in front of the dining-room fire when the first chaplain son came and took his place by his father's side.

"Did you have a good night?" asked the bishop.

"Yes," replied the son. "I "Yes," replied the son. "I just like home, so very peaceful."

The second chaplain son then came into the room and took up his position with the others in front of the fire. He also told his father that he had dreamt that he was in Heaven and that it reminded him of home.

Then the sailor son burst into the room.

"Well, my boy" said his father, "did you sleep well?"

"No, dad," the son replied. "I had a beastly dream. I dreamt I was in Hades, and, do you know, it reminded me of home. You couldn't see the fire for parsons."

Officers and members of the Argyll Light Infantry were the guests of the Belleville juniors and the Hume Arena at Tuesday night's O.H.A. game. Tuesday Jan. 25th had been designated sports night for the members of the Argylls, which prompted Lieut.-Col. Donnan to arrange for the boys to attend a hockey game in a body. The unit paraded from the Armouries to the Arena and marched into the building led by their pipe band. During the intermission periods the pipe band, that boasts of six women members, played selections for the entertainment of the patrons. The officers and members of the unit wish to thank the local hockey officials and Hume Arena management for an enjoyable evening's entertainment.

Sergeant: Sorry, but you'll have to get permission from the company commander before you can see Colonel Buttsford.

Private Jones: Commander Jinks, Sir, I have an important message for Colonel Buttsford.

Commanding Officer: You'll have to see Adjutant Bloops for permission, Private Jones.

Private Jones: Adjutant Bloops, sir. I have an important message for Colonel Buttsford.

Adjutant Bloops: Okay, Private Jones, the Colonel will see you now.

Private Jones: Colonel Buttsford, sir. I want to tell you that your house is on fire . . . er (looking out the window) . . . I mean . . . it's burnt down, sir!

R.: "I had them in private life, sir."

S.M.: "What were you in private life?"

R.: "On the Stock Exchange, sir."

S.M.: "Did you have a silk hat as well?"

R.: "Yes, sir."

S.M.: "Then why don't you wear that?"

R.: "I don't care for a silk hat with brown shoes, sir?"

No Man's Land.

Captain Marion Harden, commanding officer of the local unit of the C.W.S.F., was promoted to the rank of major this week, Lieut.-Col. B. C. Donnan announced. Major Harden took over the C.W.S.F. command upon the resignation of Miss C. Maloney.

The C.W.S.F. is planning a gala Sunday night band concert at the armouries for Feb. 27 when the Trenton R.C.A.F. band and entertainers will present the program.

The C.W.S.F. will be included in the inspection of troops at the Armouries on Feb. 3 and this week prepared for the occasion. Their matching and manoeuvres leave nothing for the imagination, the lassies step right up and "swing those arms".

With the Red Triangle Club holding monthly dances in the armouries for members of the armed services the canteen will be open under the direction of the C.W.S.F.

On Wednesday night the Argyll pipe band, with six girls playing along with the men, participated in the presentation of "waiting huts" placed outside the gates at the Trenton R.C.A.F. base. Clearly painted on the sides of these huts are the words: "Give the boys a lift". Airmen can wait in these shelters for motorists to stop and give them a ride when on furlough. Incidentally Drummer Veronica Tracey, of the Argyll Pipe Band, won the special $5 bingo prize at the air station Wednesday.

Captain D. M. Adcock of Cobourg and recruiting officer for the C.W.A.C. for Military District No. 3 headquarters at Kingston, visited the local C.W.A.C. recruiting office on Bridge street for two days this wk. Cpl. Lois Pilkington, in charge of the office, reveals increased interest is being taken in the activities of the C.W.S.F. here.

Sergeant Swims Icy River After Slaying Hun Soldier

Was Surrounded by Germans in Italy When Attempting to Establish Bridgehead

By HAL BOYLE
(Associated Press Writer)

On the Fifth Army Front, Italy, Jan. 23 —(Delayed)—A little Mexican sergeant who killed a German with his own machine-pistol, told today how he ran two and a half-miles barefooted to safety after swimming the icy Rapido river when his unit was surrounded and cut off while trying to establish a bridgehead.

He was one of four shivering survivors who said:

Would Rather Die.

"We would rather die than be captured by the Germans."

They plunged into the raging mountain torrent, risking death in its waters instead of German imprisonment. Many similar bands have been forcing their way back across the Rapido after the sustained enemy attacks with mortars, artillery and machine gun fire destroyed the American bridgehead in 24 hours of battle.

Casualties were heavy as the group tied up an entire German division—thus draining off forces which might otherwise have impeded Fifth Army landings on the beaches south of Rome. As a result of the loss of the bridgehead, the Rapido has again become the boundary between American and German lines.

"But we know we are still going across that river and the next time I am going to kill more than one German," said Sgt. Santiago Jaramillo, El Paso, Texas.

Jaramillo and three other soldiers—Sgt. Alex Carrillo, El Paso; Pte. Morris Crain, Barlow, Ky. and Pte. Jack Moochnek, Brooklyn—found refuge in the dispensary of an artillery battalion.

As they stretched full length on the straw-covered floor of the old Italian stone house which shook from artillery bombardment outside the windows, medics worked on their half frozen feet to restore circulation.

"These men walked two and a half miles on bare feet after getting across the river this morning," said Sgt. George C. Fox, a medic from Amarillo, Texas, pointing to Jaramillo, Carrilo and Crain.

Ran Two and a Half Miles.

"Like heck we walked—we ran two and a half miles," said Jaramillo. "Those Germans were shooting at us with rifles all the way across that river."

Before dawn yesterday, his unit crossed a pontoon bridge thrown up during the night near San Angelo by army engineers. "They were pinned down after getting only a short way past the river banks. After pounding them with a terrific mortar barrage, German infantry gradually closed in. Except for fog and timely American artillery fire laid down less than 200 yards in front of the slender bridgehead, all the Yanks might have been wiped out.

"We held out all day and from about 1,700 yards, we heard Germans around us begin calling, 'Give up, give up'," Jaramillo related. "I raised up out of my foxhole and saw about seven or eight German soldiers scattered around in the fog taking back some of our men.

"'Give up, hell,' I yelled and grabbed for my gun. There were Germans right by my side who had me covered. Suddenly I heard a shot. It apparently nicked a German's shoulder because he dropped his machine-pistol. I knew then that it was him or me.

Flying Tackle.

"I lowered my hands and made a flying tackle for that pistol. He dived for it at the same time but I got it first. When I let go at him with a couple of bursts, he threw up his hands and cried: 'No, no, kamerad.' But he was too late. I already had six or eight bullets in him and they finished him off.

"I was afraid this firing might bring other Germans over but they were some distance away in the fog and seemed to have their hands full. They weren't anxious to come any closer. That fog saved a lot of our necks."

Jamamillo, Carrillo and Crain hid in a shell crater which the Nazis overlooked. Twice during the night, they tried to make their way across the river but German small-arm fire drove them back.

"This morning we knew we had to swim that river then or never get over it and we surely weren't going to spend the rest of the war in a German prison camp," said Jaramillo. "We took off our shoes and all our heavy clothing and slid into the water. We waded as far as we could and then swam as fast as we could when the German bullets began splashing around.

Kept Running.

"That river is only 30 to 40 yards across, but they didn't name it Rapido for nothing. It was all we could do to keep from being swept away by that current. Some of the other boys who tried to get across during the night didn't make it. When we got to the other side, we kept running until we were behind safe cover.

"I will surely be glad for a chance to get back at the Germans for making me run across those rocks barefooted."

Bathing his feet in hot water and with his teeth still chattering from his icy bath, Pte. Moochnek, who forded the river with another group, told how his group tried to move the wrecked pontoon bridge into position for a crossing.

"They told us Friday night that we were going to try and establish a bridgehead," he said. "We all were issued two hand grenades each to be ready for a close-up job. We had to walk in complete silence to keep from tripping over the Germans and we did not get to the bridge until about 4 a.m. It was cold and foggy and the whole area was well smoked up to give us as much cover as possible.

"You couldn't see more than ten yards ahead of you and we didn't hear a sound until we were across. The Germans shouted somewhere near us and the enemy started popping at us from all directions and throwing grenades. All of us hit the ground, but held our fire for fear of giving away our positions. We began digging in immediately. We didn't have any tanks or artillery with us and there were snipers concealed all around us, trying to pick us off. They kept us buttoned up with our heads down. If you got up to start moving around, you were a dead man.

"Suddenly mortars opened up and they really were zeroed. It was hell. There were men all around me being hit and killed. I didn't even have a foxhole. I was below a small crest of ground like a Coney Island beach, rocky and so hard I couldn't dig in."

As he talked, the voice of the young private who formerly worked at an aircraft factory at Linden, N.J., shook with excitement. He had a two-week stubble of thin, blond beard.

"Late in the afternoon, the Germans succeeded in cutting off some of our men and firing eased up," he said. "When they came up to take prisoners some of our fellows took advantage of the recess in firing to jump into the river. It was no place for a poor swimmer—and all the boys weren't good swimmers. I saw some swept downstream. There was an awful undertow.

"Just when it looked like all the rest of us would be rounded up by the Germans, our artillery back across the river opened up over our heads and began popping shells in a kind of semi-circle about 200 yards ahead. That was more metal than the Jerries wanted to walk through and they pulled back.

Current Was Strong.

"Toward evening, a group of us worked our way back to the beach but the current was too strong for most of us. However, a lieutenant with a leg almost shot off hopped in and swam right over. What a man that guy was. We waited a couple of hours, hoping he would be able to arrange to send a small boat back but it didn't come.

"So we went back about 100 yards from the river and found a hole and slept in German territory until 5.30. It was miserably cold and our feet were freezing. We had no blankets.

"The next morning we found the wrecked pontoon bridge in the middle of the stream and tried to pull it into position by throwing out a pick axe with a rope tied to the handle. It was a great idea but it didn't work. Finally some guy swam across with a rope and made it fast on the other side. The rest of us were able to pull ourselves over, hand over hand.

Hot Battle.

"Before we could all get across, the Germans opened up on us again with mortar and machine gun fire. The whole thing was one hot battle from beginning to end—and those of us who came back don't think the fight is over yet."

"It ain't—not by a long shot," said Jaramillo, who is proud of the fact that he has been with his outfit ever since it was mobilized.

"We were lucky they didn't shoot at us as we were working our way across," Moochnek said, "but they threw a lot of machine gun and mortar fire at us when they picked us up with their field glasses after we were across the river. But they didn't hurt a single man. I picked a piece of shrapnel out of my pants while they were pouring it on yesterday.

"When it was at its worst, we didn't know whether to pray or to cry."

Helping to make the men comfortable was a cheery priest, Father Bernard J. Fenton of Stoughton, Mass.

A battery artillery surgeon, Capt. H. P. Hawk of Gainesville, Texas, stayed for 24 hours fixing a haven for the wet and half frozen men as they dragged their way down the crest from the river.

"They have been coming in a steady stream," the big, hearty surgeon said with a smile. "I have been giving them coffee all day and had a pot on the stove last night. I just run a country boarding house."

The windows shook and the floor trembled as a battery of 105's sent a fresh volley thundering across the Rapido River—whose banks will be crossed again.

Special Diets Tax Ingenuity Of Dietitians

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Somewhere in England, Jan. 27—(CP) — It's a headache at a hospital in England when a patient is put on a special diet — but ingenuity and the Canadian Red Cross usually save the day, said Alice P. McGuigan of Charlottetown, P.E.I. and Windsor, Ont., dietitian at the large Canadian general hospital here.

In the big, steamy kitchen here, Lieut. McGuigan, a member of the Canadian Army Medical Corps, supervised the loading of food trucks for the Canadian servicemen in the hospital's wards. Waiting to discuss the menus for the next meal was the chief cook, Sgt. Stuart McLeod of Calgary.

For noonday meal the patients—those on normal diets at least — were getting cream of celery soup, roast lamb with boiled potatoes, garden peas, toast and tea and a caramel pudding. For supper, according to the menu, they were to get barley broth, roast beef, scalloped potatoes, cole slaw, bread and butter, tea and peach custard. Not many civilians eat so well in England.

"The food setup in Canadian hospitals in England is very good," said the dietitian. "It's hard to get variety sometimes, but that makes my job interesting.

Red Cross To Rescue

"The big problem is special diets for diabetics, or men returning from Sicily and Italy, usually underweight and suffering from dysentry. They need fruit and tomato juices and there are none in Canadian army rations, though the Americans have them."

But the Canadian Red Cross comes to the rescue. On a table, carefully guarded, were tins of tomato juice, orange juice, grapefruit juice and canned peaches, for patients whose treatment makes such things essential.

The hospital is situated in a good farming district, so that the patients are supplied all the fresh milk they need and enough eggs for one a week per patient, and three for special diets.

"Vitamin C deficiency is one of our worries," said Lieut. McGuigan. "And will be so long as we can't get oranges, lemons and tomato juice."

Bomber Bags Two Subs In Two Days in Running Battle

EDITOR'S NOTE:—This is an article by Joseph Morton of Associated Press, who visited Ascension Island when its use as an American base was still a military secret.

(By JOSEPH MORTON)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

ASCENSION ISLAND, Jan. 29—When the late afternoon patrol planes come back and the sun drops through the western sky into the sea, soldiers on this barren rock reverse gears just like doughboys everywhere else.

They take off their shoes, drag out a bottle, and, as they put it, whip up the breeze.

LOT TO TALK ABOUT.

You might think there would be nothing to talk about on Ascension, far off the beaten path in the South Atlantic. But you would be wrong.

For instance, a casual listener, such as myself, hears about the rugged individualist of the garrison who wandered away to a quiet cove one day, dug a cosy little cave, assembled a few scrapped pipes and coils, and ere long was turning out "the best white lightning you ever tasted."

And he hears, too, about the trained sea turtles which win or lose hundreds of dollars for their soldier backers in the Saturday afternoon Ascension derbys.

But sooner or later the bull sessions always turn to the army bombers, assigned to anti-submarine patrol duty, which sank a very special white sub one day, and then went out the next day and sank another.

PILOT RE-LIVES FEAT

The pilot was Lieut. James B. Harden of Oklahoma City. One night when he lit up a cigar, leaned back in his chair, and re-lived an almost incredible experience.

"We were cruising about 300 miles off the island one morning when we sighted this fat, white sub, more than 750 tons—the biggest I ever saw. It was flying a white flag with a red cross, but it also had two guns that looked like anti-aircraft. It was towing two lifeboats. Two others were nearby. All had people in them.

"We circled for 40 minutes, challenging with the international visual signal to get it to show its flag. Finally it blinked a signal that looked like 'German, sir.'

"We were pretty sure it was an enemy sub, unable to dive because of low batteries. Keeping lifeboats around is an old trick. But since they were there we decided to wait for instructions.

"After a while we got a radio message from the island. There were no friendly subs near by. Our instructions were: 'Sink it.'

"We went in without fooling around. Some of the bombs didn't fall. Those that did were near misses. Then I dove to 400 feet, so close we didn't need the bomb sight, and laid a bomb on each side, not more than 15 or 20 feet away. The sub rolled over and we last saw it bottom up.

ABANDONED BY CREW.

"The crew abandoned it like a hot cake. The lifeboats gathered the men in. When we got through and left there were about 60 in each."

The youthful lieutenant, son of an Oklahoma millionaire, paused. Somebody else filled in missing details—details that had trickled in weeks, even months later.

The sub—one of Italy's newest and biggest—went to the bottom only a few hours, ironically, after it had sunk a British transport loaded with Italian prisoners from Libya. Some who managed to get in the lifeboats eventually reached Africa; many died at sea.

Then Lt. Harden went on:

"Next day we took off on another patrol, and after we'd been out three hours we saw another sub. We jumped our speed and made the first run just as it was crash-diving, conning tower and deck awash. The bombs hung. I whipped the plane into a 90-degree bank and came in again 45 seconds later. This time we got off two 500-pound demolition bombs and two 350-pound depth charges in a train, completely covering the wake of the sub. We were so low the boys hollered at me, 'Lieutenant, we're getting wet.'

"We came back over and saw an oil slick. They credited us with 'sinking or damaging' it."

GIVES CREW CREDIT.

That was all. That was all, except that Harden said his bombardier, Lt. Edgar W. Keller, Toccoa, Ga., deserved credit, as well as the other members of the crew. He wanted their families to know their commanding officer had commended them for "courage, initiative and judgment displayed in the true American tradition." He wrote all their names down on a piece of paper:

U. S. Warships Startled Ascension Island Britons

By JOSEPH MORTON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Ascension Island — The manager of the British cable station jumped up and tore past the long row of clacking teletypewriters to the big window overlooking the sea.

The eyes of the employes followed him and the man behind him, the dark-skinned janitor who had entered the room a moment before and had walked quickly across to the boss.

CALL OUT GARRISON

From the window the manager could see them. There was no doubt, no mistake by a half-educated servant who might well have been mistaken. Far out on the horizon several warships were steaming toward the isle.

There was cause for excitement—for alarm. When British vessels touched at Ascension, word of their coming came in advance. No other vessels ever came—not with submarine warfare at its zenith in the South Atlantic.

It seemed wise to call out the tiny garrison. The troops hustled up Green Mountain, a vantage point from which the island's entire 34 square miles could be observed. Civilians hurried to the little dock.

As the ships drew closer the excited technicians could pick out a flag on the mast of a cruiser. Still closer, and it could be identified. It was the Stars and Stripes. A U.S. naval force was paying a call that obviously was not purely social.

OFFICER EXPLAINS

By noon the ships had anchored and the officer in charge, affable and polite, was ready with full explanation.

He was there to make a survey. Under negotiations taking place between the United States and Great Britain, the island, discovered by a Portuguese navigator on Ascension Day, 1501, and garrisoned by the British three centuries later when Napoleon arrived on nearby St. Helena, was to have a new place in history. It was to become an air base of tremendous importance in fighting the war.

The naval party arrived in mid-March, 1942. Had Germany known, she might have changed her entire course of conduct in Africa. Had Field Marshal Erwin Rommell realized a means soon would exist for flying American attack bombers and fighters to Alexandria and Cairo he might have redoubled his efforts to capture them while there still was time.

But the secret was well kept. In three months American planes were blazing a new trail from Brazil to Ascension, and from Ascension to Africa.

UNIQUE, HERCULEAN JOB

Construction of the base wrote a new epic chapter in the history of the U.S. Army Engineer corps. No job quite like it ever had been undertaken, and doubtless few ever will be again. It was unique—and herculean.

Because Ascension's dock could handle only the smallest vessels, every ton of supplies and equipment had to be brought ashore from the ships in surfboats—trucks, bulldozers and everything. While performing this task the soldiers lived on the beach, digging caves and fox holes to get out of the wind. Before starting work they had to build a road across three miles of granite-like lava to connect Georgetown, the tiny cable station settlement, with the air field site.

Then came the runway. To give it enough length a pass had to be cut through a hill—just as if it were a highway or railroad. Like everything else, the hill was lava. In the first month's battle the men wore out all their drill steel and tools. They made a few new ones from scrap metal in their own crude machine shop, but overcame the handicap principally by stepping up blasting operations. All told they used 35 tons of dynamite, and on one eventful day used 14 tons in a single charge. Ninety days later the runway was finished.

MARINE PIPELINE

Next they turned their effort to a 2,200-foot marine pipeline, extending from shore to a buoy where tankers could drop anchor and discharge gasoline. It was assembled on land, lashed to 150 barrels, and floated into position. Soldiers rode the barrels, convoyed by small boats which fought off the sharks. When the line was in place holes were shot in the barrels. It sank to the ocean floor without a break, a remarkable engineering accomplishment.

The final bout was fought with great hordes of terns and boobies, big birds which had been laying their eggs on Ascension for centuries. Because their favorite nesting place was smack at one end of the runway, they were a distinct menace to planes.

At first soldier patrols went out nightly and frightened the birds away with dynamite and firecrackers, but later Dr. James P. Chaplin, associate curator of the American museum of natural history, was summoned. He covered the nesting area with fine wire mesh, rendering it unfit—and most uncomfortable—for any fowl trying to build a nest.

"Horace" always takes his action station in the engine room whenever the Canadian corvette goes into action. That was where he was when Snowberry's four-inch gun helped send a U-boat to the bottom of the ocean for good. "Horace" is an African grass monkey. He chews gum, drinks and generally makes a fuss when there are ladies around. — (R.C.N. Photo.)

Bonarlaw

Bonarlaw, Ont., Jan. 25—Cpl. Geo. F. Wellman and Pte. Morley Stocker of Veterans' Guard, Niagara Falls, spent the weekend with their families here.

Mr. Thos. Caldwell returned to Toronto on Saturday after spending a few days in this vicinity.

Mrs. John McLaren was admitted to Belleville General Hospital on Monday evening and underwent an operation Tuesday morning. Her condition is reported as quite satisfactory. Her many friends wish her a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Brown entertained a number of friends at a euchre party on Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Baker of Bonarlaw and Ord. Seaman Kennard A. Baker of Kingston were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Baker at Stirling on Saturday evening.

BERLIN BLITZED THIRD TIME IN FOUR NIGHTS

Attack Follows Raids on Hanover And Brunswick

7,000 Tons Bombs Dropped on Reich And Occupied Areas In Four Days

33 PLANES LOST

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 31 — (P) — Hundreds of big R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. bombers smashed at Berlin again Sunday night with a holocaust of fire and explosives in history's greatest sustained aerial offensive, which left the Nazi capital and three other great industrial cities aflame and heaped with rubble.

It was the third terrific blow in four nights upon Berlin, and Mosquito bombers darted in after the heavy bombers to add to the spreading ruin.

An ominous silence fell over the whole of Germany in the wake of four days of night-and-day bombings, including powerful American raids Sunday on Brunswick and Hanover and a record United States bomber blow at Frankfurt Saturday.

Communications between Sweden and Berlin, broken Sunday, were not restored until midday today, and the first dispatch reaching Stockholm said the night's attack caused "great damage."

City Still in Flames

The Air Ministry said "a very strong force" of bombers struck Berlin, still flaming from assaults on Thursday and Friday nights.

Thus Germany today began her 12th year under Nazi rule with the homeland strewn with debris and death.

Smaller forces of night raiders stabbed at other objectives in central and western Germany. The entire night's work which also included mine-laying operations, cost 33 planes — including four from the R.C.A.F. — the smallest loss in the last four Berlin attacks. This indicated that the sustained assaults were proving a heavy drain on enemy fighter forces.

First announcement of last night's Berlin raid failed to give the tonnage dropped but it probably was at least 1,500 tons, which is about average for the heavy assaults since the Battle of Berlin began last Nov. 18.

That would mean that approximately 21,000 tons of bombs have cascaded on the city in an actual bombing time of less than 10 hours.

Offensive Continued

Large fleets of Allied bombers and fighters kept the air battle roaring on today, striking out toward northern France.

In little more than 72 hours, the Allies have pounded Germany and German-occupied territory with six heavy assaults and several lighter sweeps, dropping more than 8,000 tons of bombs in the greatest sustained offensive of the war.

The German-controlled Scandinavian telegraph bureau said the R.A.F. bombed large areas of Berlin Sunday night, and indicated the centre of the city was hard hit. German fighters met the raiders at the coast, but many of the bombers took new routes to reach Berlin, it added.

Up to mid-afternoon, the German radio made no mention of the Berlin attack in broadcasts to German listeners. In a broadcast beamed abroad, Berlin claimed at least 44 bombers had been shot down.

R.C.A.F. Group in Raid

R.C.A.F. headquarters here said Lancasters and Halifaxes from the Canadian bomber group joined R.A.F. planes in cascading destruction upon the Nazi capital. Although the number of squadrons taking part was not announced it seemed apparent a full force of Canadian heavy bombers were sent against the target.

Mosquito pilots who attacked Berlin later, reported great fires visible within the city, with pillars of smoke towering to a great height.

Last night's blow at Berlin was the third in four nights, the sixth this month, and the 14th since the beginning of the "Battle of Berlin" two and a half months ago — a mighty campaign that already has cascaded about 19,500 tons of bombs on the hapless city.

The R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. night shift took over before the last of a great American daylight fleet had returned Sunday from dealing a heavy blow to Messerschmitt plants at Brunswick and giving a violent pasting to Hanover's great freight yards and locomotive, tank and aircraft parts factories.

Frankfurt Mortally Wounded.

Meanwhile, Frankfurt, pounded by a record American daylight assault, as on the ground. The four big days ports as mortally wounded.

Interspersed with the major blow against Germany were daylight attacks on the French invasion coast, and it was reliably estimated that the over-all air offensive had dumped some 7,000 tons of bombs on the Reich and occupied territory in less than four days.

German losses aloft were as heavy as on the ground. The four bid days cost the Nazi air force at least 215 first line fighters against an Allied toll, up to last night, of 164 aircraft, mostly heavy bombers.

Berlin took its last previous pounding Friday night when four-engined Lancasters and two-engined Mosquitos visited the groggy and scarred city while other formations were pounding Magdeburg.

(A Tokyo broadcast heard by United States Government monitors said "half of the Japanese embassy was damaged" in the Friday raid, but the Japanese ambassador and all his staff were said to be safe."

Destroy 103 Planes

In attacking Brunswick and Hanover yesterday, hundreds of American heavy bombers rumbled through one of the most heavily defended air regions in the world. The bomber-gunners and escorting fighters downed 91 Nazi planes.

A joint British-American communique said 20 United States heavy bombers and five Allied fighters failed to return yesterday from all operations, including sweeps by British and Dominion light bombers and fighters over northern France and Holland.

Allied guns knocked down an additional 12 enemy planes during these side forays, bringing the total bag for the day to 103.

By every indication, yesterday's American aerial task force at least equalled in size the record-breaking armada of more than 800 U.S. heavy bombers and an estimated 700 American fighters which plastered 1,800 tons of bombs on industrial Frankfurt Saturday.

Escorting American fighters yesterday bagged 45 German planes, setting a new record for the second day in a row. The previous high of 36 in one day was broken Saturday when 42 were downed.

CHINESE TROOPS HACK TO PIECES JAPANESE REG'T

Clearing Way For Ledo Road Being Built From India Across North Burma

100 MILES INLAND

By PRESTON GROVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

New Delhi, Jan. 31 — (AP) — An entire Japanese regiment has been hacked to pieces and eliminated by Chinese troops fighting on the Ledo Road, and another is being drawn in for a similar fate, Brig.-Gen. Hayden Boatner, Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's Chief of Staff, said today.

His statement threw new light on the scope of the operations by which the Chinese are clearing the way for the Ledo Road, being built from extreme northwest India across north Burma into China along the trail of the old Burma Road.

Allied troops already have penetrated nearly 100 miles into Burma, the deepest strike in a three-pronged attack now under way.

The Chinese first met elements of the Japanese regiment at Yupbang village on the upper tributary of the Chindwin which runs along the western side of Burma. The Japanese ambushed the Chinese there and inflicted casualties, but the Chinese dug in and held.

The Japanese immediately sent in a force behind and surrounded them. For 30 days Allied pilots flew rations, ammunition and other supplies to the trapped battalion.

Form New Line

The Chinese formed a new line still farther back so the outer ring of Japanese in turn was surrounded. Then they began a tree-to-tree elimination. First the outer ring was wiped out, and 45 Japanese bodies were counted there. Then the Chinese encircled the second ring of the enemy, and there a Japanese major and three captains — the whole top row of battalion officers — were found among scores of other enemy bodies.

The battle gradually spread eastward and southward toward Taipha Ga on another Chindwin tributary. A communique indicated the Japanese still were holding Taipha Ga, with the Chinese besieging it. Boatner said 400 to 500 Japanese dead had been counted in the Yupbang-Taipha Ga area.

300 Japs Killed

More than 300 Japanese were killed in the Taro sector on the right flank of this operation, and 80 others, including a major, died at another spot. Thick jungles probably hid many more bodies.

"That many killed together with the certainty that hundreds more were wounded means the regiment is eliminated for a long time," Boatner said. "The Chinese were elated to find themselves better fed, clothed and equipped than the Japanese they were facing."

R.A.F. divebombers pounded Japanese airfields at the western Burma post of Akyab and surrounding areas yesterday, as Allied troops continued their slow advance on the Arakan front, an Allied communique reported today.

Atrocity Stories Will Harden U. S. Peace Terms for Japanese

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Jan. 31 — (AP) — The United States government's determination to impose a just but pitiless peace on Japan has been hardened by the enemy's ruthless treatment of prisoners, it was learned today, and some ranking authorities are advocating a three-point program to strip the Japanese of their economic ability ever to make war again.

The main points of this program are:—

1. Deprive the Japanese of all heavy industries which can be readily converted to munitions production.

2. Permit them to operate no merchant marine or commercial air fleets and to possess no ships larger than 1,000 tons capacity. This would limit their seafaring activities to fishing and small-scale trading.

3. Allow them to engage fully in the farming necessary to support their population.

Strip Whole Empire

Beyond these purely economic measures lie postwar measures regarding Japan on which the United States has already agreed with its Allies in the Pacific and Asia. These are to strip the Japs of their whole empire of conquest built up through half a century of aggression and to punish war criminals, such as military officials, responsible for the atrocities inflicted on British and American prisoners.

Release of information on the Philippine atrocities was one step in giving out factual, documented stories of the suffering which the Japanese have caused among groups of helpless people in their power. The stories have begun to come out in volume now largely because a majority of experts on Japan within the government finally agreed that the situation of prisoners still in Japanese hands is so bad it could hardly be worse and might eventually be improved by the force of outraged public opinion.

May Prohibit Steel Buying

According to at least one line of thinking the Japanese should not be permitted to buy any more steel or other metals than is necessary to build, light, consumer-goods industries. They would have access to sea and air lines, since no nation can be permanently isolated from the rest of the world, but the ships and the planes would be owned and probably operated by friendly nations.

Those and similar conditions, under this plan, would be rigidly enforced until the Japanese people had so far broken away from that past that they could be trusted to assume a responsible and peaceful place in the world once more.

JAPANESE AGENTS REACHING EUROPE REPORTS STATE

Enemy's Secret Shipping Also Transporting Valuable Cargoes

BRING IN PEARLS

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

Algiers, Jan. 31 — (AP) — Japanese agents are reaching Europe on Axis air and sea blockade runners but the enemy's secret shipping also is transporting cargo more valuable than jewels between Germany and Japan. Reports of the successful enemy traffic have reached here from various sources.

Recently a Vichy dispatch reported the arrival by submarine of Japanese diplomats to replace colleagues at various European posts.

A more detailed account of the enemy movements was brought by a young Frenchman who managed to reach North Africa. He said the Japanese are bringing pearls which they use as "currency" and for bribery.

The Frenchman said he had observed arrivals and departures of German and Japanese merchant ships at Bordeaux.

The air routes use two bases in the west, Odessa on the Black Sea and Rhodes in the Aegean. From these points planes fly by way of Afghanistan to bases in Burma or Manchuria. Big four-motored transports are used, mainly flying at night and preferably in bad weather.

Circle Cape of Good Hope

Ships and submarines leave Bordeaux, circle the Cape of Good Hope and skirt the fringe of the Indian Ocean to Singapore and other ports in the Orient.

The Frenchman estimated that in 1942 the Axis succeeded in shipping 300,000 tons of vital war materials in each direction. The Nazis received by this means, he said, 150,000 tons of oil, 70,000 tons of rubber and 15,000 tons of tin — possibly enough to satisfy Germany's basic needs.

In addition, Germany obtained tungsten, manila hemp, silk and drugs such as quinine, iodine and opium.

The Nazis exchanged machinery, ship plates, ball bearings, potash and abrasives for industrial grinding, and supplied virtually all Japan's needs for mercury, a vital ingredient in explosives.

The Germans also shipped at least 3,000 marine diesel engines.

The Allies, of course, are aware of this traffic and have been working to cut it off, as witness the recent sinking of a blockade runner off France.

LT.-GEN. SIMONDS WILL COMMAND CANADIAN CORPS

Kingston Officer Promoted in Latest Shift of High Command

LT.-GEN. SANSOM ILL

Ottawa, Jan. 31 — (CP) — Appointment of a Canadian Army Corps Commander and retirement of another were highlights of an announcement here today by Defence Minister Ralston.

He announced these changes:—

1. Maj.-Gen. Guy Simonds, 40, has been promoted to the acting rank of Lieutenant-General and to command of a Canadian Corps;

2. Lt.-Gen. E. W. Sansom, 53, has relinquished command of a corps through illness;

3. Brig. Charles Foulkes, 41, has been appointed to command a Canadian division overseas with the acting rank of Major-General.

4. Lt.-Col. James Curry Jefferson, 38, Edmonton, Alta., has been appointed to the acting rank of Brigadier and will assume command of an infantry brigade.

The announcement did not name the formations which Gens. Simonds and Foulkes and Brig. Jefferson will command.

There has been some speculation that Gen. Simonds would succeed Lt.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, now Commander of the Canadian Corps in Italy, if Gen. Crerar were appointed to succeed Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton as Commander of the 1st Canadian Army. However this would still leave Gen. Sansom's post to fill.

A native of England and resident of Kingston, Ont., Gen. Simonds has recently been in command of an armored division, rounding out his experience after command of the 1st Division in Sicily and Italy. The 1st. now is in command of Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes of Winnipeg.

Maj.-Gen. Foulkes, whose home is in London, Ont., and whose family reside in Victoria, B.C., is also an Englishman. He commanded an infantry brigade in the 1st Division for eight months and was appointed a Brigadier, General Staff, 1st. Canadian Army, in April, 1943.

Brig. Jefferson is another Englishman and he won the Distinguished Service Order as a battalion leader in the Sicilian campaign.

The announcement said that Gen. Sansom, a native of Stanley, N. B., has been forced to return to hospital which he left only in December and his condition "makes it impossible for him to continue so he is relinquishing command of his Canadian Corps and is returning to Canada for further treatment."

Gen. Sansom was an expert on armored formations and the fact his retirement was announced at the same time of Gen. Simonds' appointment led to some speculation that Gen. Simonds might be Gen. Sansom's successor, especially as the former has recently been in command of an armored division.

GOVOROV'S ARMY 17 MILES FROM ESTONIAN BORDER

South Troops Under Meretskov Seize Veliskoe Selo on Nazi Escape Line

100 TOWNS TAKEN

Moscow, Jan. 31. (AP) — Russian troops, pushing rapidly west from Leningrad today along the shores of the Gulf of Finland, reached the approaches of Kingisepp, gateway to the Baltics.

Gen. Leonid A. Govorov's army passed Veimarn, 17 miles from the border of Estonia on the railway from Leningrad to Reval (Tallinn.) The junction is east of Kingisepp, which controls entry into Estonia through a strip of ground between the Gulf and Lake Chudov.

Troops of Gen. Markian Popov's second pre-Baltic front maintained pressure from Novosokolniki, approaching within less than 60 miles of Latvia along the Moscow-Riga railroad. This force encountered alternate blizzards and thaws which made the advance difficult.

Heavy Battles.

The German communique said the Russians had launched a big scale attack on the Dnieper Bend southwest of Dnepropetrovsk and achieved one penetration. Heavy battles were reported southwest of Cherkasy and southeast of Byela Tserkov. The Germans acknowledged that the Russians "gained further ground" in several sectors between Lake Ilmen and the Gulf of Finland. Several infiltrations were claimed sealed off between the Pripet and Berezina Rivers in Southern White Russia.

Sixty miles to the south of Govorov's advance, troops under Gen. K. A. Meretskov seized Veliskoe, 17 miles southeast of Luga, a junction on the last German escape line to Pskov.

The Germans admitted the Russians were advancing southwest of Cherkasy and southeast of Belaya Tserkov, but asserted the Nazis had scored an important victory south of Pogrebishche in a six-day battle with the wiping out of more than ten Soviet Infantry divisions and severtal tank corps. The Germans said they took 6,800 prisoners, killed 8,000 Russians, and captured or destroyed several hundred tanks and 680 guns.

Govorov's forces, racing toward the 30-mile wide Narva gap between the Gulf of Finland and Lake Peipus, swept up 50 more localities, capturing the rail junction of Viemarn, only 17 miles from the Estonian border. Veimarn is 7½ miles from Kingisepp, last rail station short of the frontier on the line to Narva. Moscow said German colonists were fleeing from the Baltic area along with retreating Nazi troops.

Rapido R. Bottom Flooded by Nazis To Form Barrier

63 German Planes Knocked Down in Flattening Assaults On Nazi Air Bases

ENLARGE GRIP AT ANZIO

By WES GALLAGHER
(AP War Correspondent)

Algiers, Jan. 31—(AP) — British and American forces threw themselves forward with redoubled fury today from both the beachhead arc south of Rome and their main trans-Italy line at Cassino.

While Allied headquarters announced new gains in both areas, the German high command's communique, as heard here, admitted that powerful tank and infantry forces had launched an offensive in a northerly and northeasterly direction from the stategic wedge near Rome, and that battles on the main front had attained great violence.

The communique said the Allies were attacking the main German defences in the Cassino area and admitted that some penetrations had been made, but claimed these gains lacked significance.

Allied headquarters said American infantry and tank teams, in a surprise thrust across the Rapido Rover bottom which had been deliberately flooded by the Germans, had broken through a part of the German defences north of Cassino.

Naval Ships Assist.

British warships patrolling along the coast in support, bombarded the Terracina area and German transport moving from the main 5th Army front toward the bridgehead.

News from the bridgehead indicated the Germans had dug in for five miles along the Cisterna-Rome railroad from a point two miles north of Cisterna.

At a point three miles southwest of Cisterna Allied troops repulsed one strong German counter-attack. Americans were last reported in this sector, representing the centre of the bridgehead, while the British were ranged to the north facing Rome across the Via Anziate.

Admiral 1Sr John Cunningham, Commander-in-Chief of Allied naval forces in the Mediterranean, went ashore to inspect Anzio's harbor facilities.

The destruction of 63 Nazi planes over the northeastern airfields of Villorba, Maniago, Lavarino and Udine brought the total bag in the past four days to 153 against a loss of 19 Allied aircraft. Six of the Allied aircraft were lost yesterday.

One Thunderbolt Lost.

Of those destroyed yesterday, 36 were knocked down by American Thunderbolts in their first big engagement in this theatre. Only one Thunderbolt was lost.

In additioh, bany enemy planes were destroyed on the ground as the strategic air force hit the enemy nests with everything it had. The four bases have been used by the Germans to supply aircraft brought from the Balkans to attack Allied invasion fleets off Anzio.

The size of the air battles there indicated the Germans had built up their air fleets in northern Italy to contest the bridgehead drive but were caught on their home grounds.

Among the enemy planes destroyed were Junkers-52 transports, apparently being used to rush in supplies.

Bad weather held down Allied air activity over the bridgehead and only 900 sorties were flown, but medium bombers put in attacks on road junctions south of Rome, and light bombers attacked shipping off the Yugoslav coast.

While Allied fighters and bombers scored a record bag in Italy in knocking down 63 German planes in a series of flattening assaults yesterday on four enemy air bases in northeastern Italy, British Tommies and American Rangers with tanks and tank-destroyer teams fought a series of sharp actions along the perimeter of the Anzio bridgehead and enlarged their grip on the strategic wedge 19 or 20 miles below Rome.

The Germans evidently had gained time to prepare a line of defences through the Alban hills along the railroad from Rome to Cisterna, 26 miles southwest of the Ternal city, and the British and Americans were methodically blasting them out of haystacks, silos, farm buildings and villages hastily converted into camouflaged pillboxes and forts.

Strong Offensive Started.

(A Berlin broadcast today said a strong British-American offensive had been started from the bridgehead. Dispatches from the bridgehead yesterday said the Allies had poured six infantry divisions into the wedge, along with armor and guns.)

Despite floods caused by Germans diverting the Rapido River to a new course, American infantry and tanks north of Cassino on the main 5th army front, captured two key hills, Nos. 223 and 167, and fought their way into the villages of Cairo and Monte Villa where they now are mopping up.

Cairo is a little more than two miles north Cassino, and Monte Villa is just over a mile.

"The American attack broke through German defences in the area north of Cassino, known as the Facciano Mountains, catching the Germans by surprise", an Allied headquarters commentator said.

Crew Taken Intact.

"A 75-millemetre gun with its crew of 15 was taken intact along with a prisoner bag of 42".

Cassino still was being held strongly by the Germans but it was now outflanked from the north.

Tanks, pushed across the rapid flood on a log bridge constructed by engineers working under shellfire, were of great assistance in smashing German pillboxes. Infantrymen, crouching in the path of the tank treads to avoid German minefields, worked closely with the tanks in the Russian style.

A mile and a half north of Cairo French troops consolidated their gains in the Mount Belvedere sector and probed Mount Croce, which they found strongly fortified.

Along the coastal sector of the main 5th Army front the British captured Mount Rotundo, 2 1-2 miles northwaet of Castelforte and the 2,000-foot peak of Mount Jugan, three miles northeats of Castleforte.

Indian Wrestler Dies in Hospital After Fierce Battle in Dental Office

Charlotte, N.C., Jan. 31 (AP) — A theory that James Clinstock, 38-year-old massive India wrestler, was strangled with a towel in a dental laboratory Saturday night after he went berserk and "acted like Frankenstein" was advanced by the State, Sunday at a habeas corpus hearing for two men charged with murder. Dr. Henry C. Parker, dentist, and Lee Sikes, co-owner of a dental laboratory, admitted to $5,000 bail each. A hearing was set for February 11.

The 240-pound Clinstock was removed unconscious from the dental laboratory offices here Saturday night. He died in hospital.

Mrs. Jeanette Clinstock, widow of the wrestler, said Dr. Parker called her last night, and told her "we've had a helluva fight and you'd better come over and bring an ambulance."

"Jim had his head on the floor," she said. "Mr. Sikes was holding a towel around his neck, twisting it. I said, 'Look at his tongue; it's hanging out'."

Mrs. Lee Sikes said Clinstock and Dr. Parker had come to the laboratory, and Dr. Parker had taken a denture impression for the wrestler.

In the outside office, she said, Clinstock 'grabbed Mrs. Stewart (Mrs. W. A. Stewart, wife of the co-owner of the laboratories) by the head."

"The man seemed crazy," she said. " . . . Clinstock pushed me around and knocked me over a wastebasket. He fell and hit his head on the corner of a desk. He bled pretty bad.

"We put a towel to Clinstock's head and he revived. Then he pulled the chair out from under Mrs. Parker and threw her on the floor. He was fighting everybody, mostly the women. He acted like —like Frankenstein. He hit me on the nose and made it bleed. He told Mrs. Parker he was going to pick her up and throw her out of the window.

She said Clinstock was obviously under the influence of liquor. She did not, she said, see anyone strike him."

TAMMANY LEADER RESIGNS

New York, Jan. 31 — (AP)—Michael J. Kennedy, leader of Tammany Hall, resigned Saturday night and was succeeded by Edward V. Loughlin, Secretary to Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora and leader of the 14th Assembly District.

Many Cases of Brutality Highlight Stories of Jap Inhumanity to Prisoners

Russell Brines, Associated Press correspondent in Manila, when the Japanese struck, was interned for nine months at Santo Tomas camp there. In September, 1942, he was taken to Shanghai where he was interned for a year before he boarded a repatriation ship last September.

By RUSSELL BRINES
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP) — Revelations of Japanese brutality to American and Filipino war prisoners from Bataan and Corregidor highlight many stories of Japanese militarists' inhumanity reported in scraps of information reaching me while I was a civilian internee at Manila and Shanghai.

Manila internees who underwent unrestrained Japanese tortures came back to Santo Tomas camp with tense faces and tight lips, betraying the full measure of their experiences.

Once in gendarmerie clutches, the prisoner was entirely at the mercy of unprincipled secret police officers who consider force and brutality essential to their trade.

Their methods of eliciting information vary from plain beatings with a lead-weighed club to more vicious measures—the rack; the "water cure" which involves the first stages of drowning; day-long kneeling on a concrete floor, with an iron bar between the victim's knees, and other, more unspeakable "refinements."

The gendarmerie operates thru' all occupied Asia. Thousands of natives in every locality and more than 200 Occidentals have felt their brutality. In Shanghai, particularly, the moans of gendarmerie victims in half a dozen central stations have been heard for months by neighboring residents.

No foreigner can say accurately how many have died in gendarmerie stations. The prisoners are thrown back into dingy, barren and crowded cells, without medical treatment, after undergoing torture. The weak die and are hauled away; the strong recover somehow.

Kuangson Young, Chinese consul-general in Manila, and at least ten of his staff were shot after undergoing gendarmerie torture.

A prominent British business man in Hong Kong died in a gendarm-cause was beri-beri, but they re-erie station. The Japanese said the frained from delivering his body to the widow until it was so decomposed that interned British doctors could not make an autopsy.

I was in Santo Tomas when two Britons and an Australian were captured while attempting to escape. Foreign Secretary Eden reported their preliminary beatings and their summary execution after a brief court-martial.

They were shot while sitting on the edge of a large communal grave in a local cemetery. Other internees, forced by the Japanese to attend as witnesses, said the men still were moaning when laborers started shovelling dirt over them.

DECLINES TO POSE

Toronto, Jan. 31 — (CP)—Sqdn. Ldr. BiBil Langstaff shook his head when photographers asked him to pose for a news picture beside a camera shot of bombed-out Berlin. "Not Berlin," he said, "its too dangerous." Langstaff, a veteran of 51 trips over enemy territory, and holder of the D.F.C. and Bar, is the first airman in No. 1 Training Command to win the Air Force's new Operational Wing.

FRIENDSHIP GROUP MEETS AFTER RECITAL

The Friendship Group of Bridge Street United Church met at the close of the splendid organ recital given by Mr. Alec Gordon in aid of the Greek War Relief Fund. LAC. Allan Thompson led the singsong of some of the old favourites. The thanks of the group are extended to the Greek people in the community who so generously donated the delicious lunch. During the lunch Mr. Gordon announced that the grand sum of $380 was donated for the Greek War Relief Fund at the recital but also that more is expected. Mr. Gordon is to be congratulated on the fine work he has done for the fund. The Mayor, Mr. Rollins, then spoke about the debt we owe the Greeks for the fine effort they have made to oppose the enemy. The thirty-four silk flags of our Allies presented to the Church by the Greek Friends were on display for all to see. The meeting with a record number in attendance closed with the singing of their National Anthem by the Greeks and then one verse of "Abide With Me".

WAR CORRESPONDENT WRITES B. LATTIMER

A letter received by Bruce Lattimer today reveals that Ross Munro is in London following his experiences with the Canadian troops in the Sicilian and Italian campaigns. Munro reported in his letter that his health is greatly improved and that he will be returning to "The Army Beat", as he puts it. He wrote that he was doing some writing in London. Bruce Lattimer and Munro are former school friends, having attended school in Toronto together. In his letter Munro said that he was looking forward to the time when he could return to Canada and visit the places he used to before the war. Mr. Lattimer had sent a box of chocolates to Munro which were received by the war correspondent and greatly appreciated.

PENNSYLVANIA CAR FOUND ABANDONED

Stolen in Kingston over the weekend, an automobile bearing state of Pennsylvania licence plates was recovered by Traffic Officer Harry Caldwell when the vehicle was found abandoned near Marysville.

The property of Lieut. John Marshall, 474 Albert St., Kingston, the vehicle was a 1939 model Oldsmobile sedan bearing Pennsylvania state plates number 1-U-E-76 and was stolen in Kingston Saturday night. Constable Caldwell found the vehicle Sunday while on patrol. It was later returned to Kingston.

DANGEROUS PRACTICE TO PLAY ON STREETS

The fact that playing hockey on the travelled portion of city streets is a dangerous practice was well proven on Hillside St. on Saturday when a small boy narrowly escaped injury when he ran into the side of a moving motor car during the excitement of a hockey scrimmage. Mrs. Jean Wiggins, 8 Dunbar St., reported to police she had been driving her car along Hillside St. while some boys were playing hockey. One of the lads ran into the side of the moving vehicle and was knocked to the pavement. Fortunately no serious injuries resulted, but caution should be exercised in the matter of permitting children to play on the public thoroughfares.

THREE CITY MEN ENLIST IN NAVY

Three city men have enlisted in the Royal Canadian Navy during the past month, reporting to H.M.C.S. "Cataraqui" at Kingston Naval Centre. Thomas Partridge, 161 Dufferin Street, has enlisted as an assistant junior fourth-class cook; Albert E. Brown, 326 Foster, stoker second-class, and Carl C. Goodyear, 296 Foster, as an ordinary seaman. It is estimated that over six hundred city men have joined the Navy since the outbreak of war.

Rev. J. L. Hutchinson, 90 King Street, Trenton, joined the Navy during the month as a Protestant Chaplain. Two men from Picton, Frederick Welsh and Donald T. Thomas, have enlisted for active service, as has Dennis G. Hayden, ordinary-seaman, from Bloomfield. All are taking their basic training aboard H.M.C.S. "Cataraqui" at the present time.

MINOR DAMAGE IN REAR END COLLISION

When the automobile ahead halted to permit passengers to alight, a motor car driven by J. E. Embury, Shannonville, collided with the rear of the lead vehicle during a snow storm at Foxboro over the weekend. Lorne Ash, Foxboro, was driving the lead vehicle and stopped to permit some children to alight from his vehicle, when Mr. Embury's car collided with the rear of Ash's vehicle. Fender and other minor property damage resulted to both vehicles but fortunately no person was injured, including the children getting out of Mr. Ash's car. Traffic Officer Harry Caldwell investigated.

LEADING STOKER PROMOTED TO P.O.

Word has been received that Raymond R. Boyd, Leading Stoker with the R.C.N.V.R., has been promoted to the rank of Petty Officer. Petty Officer Boyd enlisted on September 10, 1939, with the 48th Highlanders, Toronto, and was discharged in August, 1940, on account of ill health. He re-enlisted on January 6, 1941, with the R.C.N.V.R., and since then has served on Atlantic convoys up until August, 1943. PO. Boyd is a son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Boyd, 181 Station Street.

POLICE COURT

Constable M. A. McNairn, of the R.C.M.P., apprehended one, Alonzo A. Fox, formerly of 86 Station Street, on a charge of failing to notify the district registrar of a change of address. Fox is being held in custody until Thursday.

Only minor damage resulted when a truck, being backed out from the west curb on Pinnacle St., was in collision with a motor car, driven by Morris Parks, R.R. No. 7, Belleville, Saturday afternoon. The truck was driven by Wm. Grant, of this city. Police learned the damage to a fender as less than $5.00.

75 Pennies Stolen

Robbers forced their way into the Tucker and Coombs radio store on Campbell St., some time over the weekend and stole 75 pennies from the cash till. Efforts to open the store safe were unsuccessful. No indications as to how entrance was gained were reported by investigating police.

The Provincial Tire Company, Front Street, reported the theft of a four-ply synthetic tire from their premises. The tire was taken some time last week, but not missed until the weekend.

Cooks Are Needed In Canadian Navy

The Commanding Officer of H.M.C.S. "Cataraqui," Lt. Cmdr. G. E. Kernohan, R.C.N.V.R. has released the information, that a very serious shortage of cooks prevails in the service. Cooks are always in demand, but this, at the moment is most urgent and all possible effort is being put forth to obtain men who will qualify in this capacity. Any man with the following requirements, or better, would be considered as suitable applicant and should apply to the Naval Centre, Kingston, transportation will be forwarded for interview. Qualifications for cook (S) 1. Must be between 18 and 35, and must have two years experience as baker or cook. 2. Assistant Cook (S) Must be between 18 and 35; and must have at least Grade 8 education and be willing to learn trade.

Storage Barn Gutted by Fire

Fire of an undetermined origin badly gutted a storage barn on Wallbridge Road Saturday evening, the property of Miss Quincey, destroying a quantity of furniture which had been stored in the building as well as other contents.

Owner of the building was at a loss as to the cause of the fire stating she had been in the barn only about an hour before to get coal to replenish fires in her nearby residence. The building was not wired for electricity and there was no fire maintained for heating purposes.

Firemen quickly answered the alarm which was sent in following the discovery of the fire and pouring streams of water onto the flames extinguished the fire but not before the interior of the building was badly gutted. Furniture in the barn, owned by Mrs. Doucett, was a complete loss according to firemen. Insurance was carried on the building but none on the contents, it was stated.

Former City Resident Arrested in California

Wanted here on a charge of seduction, Herman Klaaskate, formerly of Belleville, was arrested in Los Angeles, Cal., this week. The original charge was preferred in a local court in November of 1939, at which time Klaaskate was admitted to $500 bail after facing a seduction charge that implicated him with a 17-year-old girl at the time. Klaaskate jumped his bail and later it was estreated. Prior to the seduction charge here Klaaskate faced a charge of assault, but the matter was dismissed. Two days later the seduction charge was preferred.

Chief C. F. Horral, of Los Angeles, notified Belleville police that Klaaskate had been arrested on another charge in the movie colony city. After Klaaskate left here a police circular was sent out to all the principal cities on the continent stating Klaaskate was wanted in Belleville on a charge of seduction.

However, as the accused man's bail bond has already been estreated and Chief Horral made it known that Klaaskate was about to fight extradition out of California, Deputy Chief Harman has wired Chief Horral to the effect that Klaaskate is no longer wanted here.

12,000 Kiwanians In Armed Forces

Kiwanis International will celebrate the 29th anniversary of its founding during the week of January 31st., to February 5th., with some 2,200 clubs and 122,000 members throughout the United States and Canada participating in war service projects and activities designed to speed the day of victory.

This announcement came today from Mr. Jack McVeigh, president of the Belleville Kiwanis Club, who said the anniversary will serve to launch the organization's 1944 "All-Out-For-Victory" program.

Mr. McVeigh said that Kiwanis International, founded in January, 1915 at Detroit, has organized clubs in each of the 48 states and the provinces of Canada, all dedicated to the aim of promoting better and more effective community service.

Donald B. Rice, Oakland, Calif., president of Kiwnis International declared today at Chicago that clubs should pay tribute at their anniversary meetings to the more than 12,000 Kiwanians in the armed services.

During the coming year, Rice, said, Kiwanis International will exert its influence for a just and lasting peace, re-emphasize the good-will and understanding that exists between Canada and the United States, provide community leadership, and publicize freedom of opportunity and private enterprise as fundamental to the democratic way of life.

When the Belleville Kiwanis club meets February 1st., at the Hotel Quinte to observe the anniversary, the committee on Kiwanis Education, of which Bruce Lattimer in chairman, will be in charge of the program.

A feature of the meeting will be the reading of a special message from the International president Donald B. Rice, while the principal address will be delivered by Mr. J. B. Boyce, past-president of the Belleville Rotary Club.

Greeks' Contribution to Victory Honored in Church Service

34 Allied Flags Gift of Local Greeks Dedicated at Bridge St. United Church

ORGAN RECITAL

Thirty-four silk flags of the United Nations, the gift of the members of the Greek community of Belleville, were dedicated at a service in Bridge Street United Church by the Rev. Dr. J. Semple, minister, before a large congregation on Sunday evening at which the Deputy Vice-Consul for Greece in Canada, Mr. George D. Vlassis, M.A., delivered an address on the part which Greece has played in frustrating the aggression of the Axis by her heroic service. It was an evening devoted to the contribution Greece has made to humanity.

Members of the local Greek community were present at the service.

The minister, Rev. Dr. J. Semple paid a high tribute to the people of Greece and honored the members of the Greek race now resident in Belleville, as occupying an important part in the community life.

The flags were dedicated in these words: "In the name of freedom and of our religion and the compassion of Christ for suffering humanity we dedicate these flags in the Name of the Father, the Son and the Holy Ghost. Amen."

"We shall proudly display these flags on many occasions and we shall ever be grateful to the Greek people," said the minister.

A collection for the Aid-for-Greece fund was taken up, amounting to $395 which with pledges will amount to over $400.

Organ Recital by Alec Gordon

A recital on the organ by Alec Gordon, organist of the church, was given at the close in aid of the Greek fund. Mr. Gordon was praised by Mr. Vlassis for his contribution to the service which the Greek people appreciate very deeply.

A ladies' chorus sang under direction of Miss Leona Riggs, with Mr. Gordon at the organ, two noble compositions "Ave Maria" by Schubert, and "Handel's "Where-er You Walk." These numbers were exquisitely sung with perfect blending and shading.

Mr. Gordon played a number of great organ classics, and some lighter numbers, all of which proved his skill as organist and interpreter of the master instrument, and of music. A delightful number was one of his own compositions written last summer, named "Black-Eyed Susans." The rhythm of the piece and the rendition by Mr. Gordon received a wealth of appreciation from the congregation.

The program numbered selections from Purcell, Coupurin, Whitlock, Prelude, Bach, Widor, Sullivan ("The Lost Chord"), the Negro folk song arranged "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," and Murphee's "Humoresque Americana."

Greece as in 1936.

"I am very glad of the opportunity given to me to address you this evening on Greece, the land of my birth, which I left some years ago to come to Canada and make this my country," said Mr. Vlassis in his address, who said he had been back to Greece several times, the last visit being in 1936 when he spent some months with his relatives.

"Greece was different then from what it is today. She was, for one thing, free and happy. People there, although they have not in abundance the things and conveniences we have in this country, try to enjoy themselves and find peace and contentment in the simple things of life, tilling the land, cultivating the vineyards, pruning their olive trees, gathering their oranges and lemons and tangerines, going out to fish, returning to their simple abode in the evening, tired and contented of a day's honest labor, with a prayer of thankfulness on their lips for His unbounded benevolence returning at night to find relief and to renew their strength in peaceful slumber.

"Human beings in their fundamentals, are the same the world over unless their minds are distorted and their normal emotions perverted by insidious ideas of greatness and pernicious teachings of a Hitler's master, or a Mussolini's mad dreams of a Roman Empire, which have plunged the world into a chaos of misery and destruction, the like of which the world has never known before."

"Greek Miracle."

Turning to the contribution made by Greece to the war Mr. Vlassis said "One speaks of the Greek miracle. The miracle of this war is the fatal blow given by the Greeks against the prestige of Italian Fascism, wrote an English journalist."

Up to the moment Mussolini delivered his ultimatum to Greece, Italy found herself at the height of her power. The battle of England was lost for the Germans and the centre of gravity of the war against England was transferred to the Mediterranean. At the Brenner and Florence conferences the two dictators decided to attempt to bring about the end of the British Empire.

Ultimately at a critical moment for all humanity Mussolini threw himself against Greece, thinking he was falling on an easy prey. The Axis asked how a small land like Greece could dare hold its head up against the Axis giant. But Greece did stand up and resist.

The world of free people admired Greece but trembled for her fate. After initial successes by the Italians the Greeks arrested the Italian army's progress, the enemy machinery started to break down. "It turns back. Within three weeks only the Italians were chased out of Greek territory and at the end of the second month of war the Greeks had brought their fighting lines into the heart of Albania. Greece had burst the Italian bluff with the bayonet. But German strength combined with Italian and within after six months of heroic resistance Greece succumbed to the weight of the combined forces of Germany and Italy.

"She (Greece) covered herself with glory and has given the world a magnificent example of a people who know how to defend their independence and to die for freedom. Great Britain, true to her pledge came to her assistance by depleting her African front. However, the odds were against them and Greece was lost and Crete later."

Alters Course of War.

While the resistance of the Greeks was only an episode in the war, "the fact is that by this resistance Greece has altered the course of the war."

"It has contributed to the downfall of Italy.

"It has upset the plans of Germany in the Balkans by forcing Germany to undertake actions that not only she had not foreseen but which she herself did not wish to undertake.

"Germany looked to the Balkans as a reservoir of needed materials and of farm products. She occupied Rumania to bar the way to Russia and to protect the oil wells. Greece destroyed German plans in the Balkans.

"It was the last supreme service rendered by Greece to victory. The six months of Greek resistance gave England time to prepare and upset German's time-table of her war against Russia by a month and a half, thus losing the battle of Moscow.

"For the first time Hitler now tried to accustom the German people to a long war which they had dreaded.

German Inhumanity

Mr. Vlassis said, "Germany knows that Greece has contributed to her final downfall. That is why she is so inhumanly cruel to the Greeks."

Reports coming into his hands are replete with stories of atrocities and bestial treatment against the enslaved Greeks, especially children. Unless he had known the people who sent these reports, he said, "I would have disbelieved that human beings, even Germans and Bulgarians, could creep as low as that."

The speaker read an extract from the last issue of the report of the International Red Cross at Geneva telling of the results of the enemy occupation of Greece, importations cut off, crops seized, everything despoiled. The whole world's sympathy turned to Greece and especially to the Greek children, so as to rescue as many as possible from the physicial and moral dangers of the famine. But imagination cannot conjure up the true picture in all its suffering. He said the world is filled with wonder and amazement at the extraordinary dignity in suffering of the people of Greece, their patience and unfailing gratitude and their acceptance of every measure judged necessary by those who are trying to help them.

Greece has shown on many a time her moral superiority towards the different barbaric invaders and has had many an opportunity through the ages to become the bastion of civilization with the blood of her children. Thus this creator of an unattainable civilization and the depository of the dignity of human nature has seen many a time in the course of centuries conquerors invade her national home and ruin it.

Her Great Mission

"Never however has Greece forgotten for a moment her mission, never has she betrayed her trusted place. She has always stood a vigilant sentry of the honor of man as this honor is understood by God, has fought for the preservation and the spreading of the lights of civilization which she first gave to the world and has been sacrificed for the creation of a better tomorrow.

"With such a tradition, a tradition of 3,000 years, Greece could not do anything but fight and die and starve. Anything else would have been a betrayal of her historic position. She would have sullied her glorious past. She would have been unworthy of her great name."

At the close of the service the Greek National Anthem was played on the organ, followed by "God Save the King."

Alleged Deserter Held for Theft By City Police

Deserting the Canadian Army last October and wanted in Toronto for theft, 18-year-old John Auld was arrested in Belleville Sunday on a charge of theft. Today he was arraigned before H. B. Wilson, local justice of the peace, and remanded in custody on a theft charge. Auld is charged with stealing a wallet containing $51.00, the property of AC1. John Marks of No. 5 I.T.S.

When apprehended by P.C. Evans Auld was wearing a Canadian army uniform with three stripes indicating he was a sergeant. Later it was learned Auld had put up the stripes himself after deserting the army from Peterborough last October as a private. He wore a Highland Regiment cap, had para-trooper wings mounted on his tunic indicating he was a member of the air-borne troops, while numerous military insignias were on his tunic, ranging from artillery insignias to service stripes, which police learned Auld had purchased and put up himself. "He had more insignias than a decorated marine," remarked police officials as Auld was removed to the county jail.

On Sunday AC1. Marks reported his wallet, containing $51.00, had been stolen from his room at the Y.M.C.A. Gaining a description of a soldier seen loitering around, P.C. Evans later arrested Auld and after questioning him the officer went to the Quinte Hotel, where he found Marks' wallet secluded behind a radiator, where Auld had hidden it. On the accused man's person was $44.30, which police allege is part of the money taken from Marks.

Toronto police were notified of the apprehension of Auld and from Toronto came word he was wanted in that city on a purse-stealing charge also. Auld is also wanted by the Canadian army as a deserter.

Six City and District Boys in Casualty List, One Dead, 5 Wounded

Names of six Belleville and Belleville district boys are contained in the 416th Canadian Army casualty list, one a Marmora boy, having died as the result of wounds received on active service, and the five others being listed as wounded, one seriously.

Member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, Acting Lance Sergeant Ronald A. Palmateer, of Marmora, brother of Mrs. C. Tandy of that village, is listed as having died of wounds while Pte. Robert R. Turner, son of Mrs. Florence Turner and the late Gilbert Turner, 58½ Moira Street, is listed as being dangerously wounded.

The our others rom the Belleville district listed as wounded are also members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. They are Acting Corporal Leonard G. Brant, son of Mrs. Emma Parkhurst of McArthur's Mills; Acting Corporal G. Blake Faulkner, son of Mr. Hubbard Faulkner, Stirling; Pte. Gerald Wannamaker, son of Mrs. Annie Wannamaker of Picton and Pte. Ernest H. W. Hay, son of Mrs. Clara Hay of Campbellford, formerly of Belleville.

RUSS INCREASE BUDGET

London, Jan. 31 — (CP) — Adoption of a 1944 national budget of 245,600,000,000 rubles — 17 per cent over 1943 — was announced by the Moscow radio as the 10th session of the Russian Supreme Soviet opened in the Kremlin.

(The nominal value of the ruble is 19 cents, but accurate conversion into Canadian figures is impossible because of the lack of an open market. However, on the 19-cent basis, the new Russian budget approximated $46,664,000,000.)

More than half — 138,400,000,000 rubles — was allocated to the army and navy "for the earliest and final defeat of Hitlerite Germany," said the broadcast, recorded by the Soviet Monitor.

Central Hastings Hockey League Has Four Teams

After remaining inactive during the past season, the Central Hastings Hockey League will again operate this season at Stirling, it has been announced following a meeting of the league executive and team representatives held in Stirling Department of Agriculture office on Saturday evening. Four district teams will comprise the league with the first three teams to commence playoffs on February 21st.

Originally organized in 1929, the Central Hastings Hockey League operated continuously until last iwnter, when, due to shortage of transportation, the boys decided to let things slide for one season. The league was rejuvenated Saturday, however, when with four teams entered, a schedule was drawn up and officers were elected for the year.

H. Lynn Fair will head the league as president with Dr. R. B. Murray as vice president and Wm. Wilkinson as treasurer. Earl Wallace was appointed to act as referee for all the league games.

Teams entering the league are Zion Hill, West Huntingdon, Centenary and one new entrant, Corbyville.

Schedule drown up is as follows:

February 1st.
Centenary vs. Corbyville
West Huntingdon vs. Zion

February 4th.
Corbyville vs. West Huntingdon
Zion Hill vs. Centenary

February 8th.
Centenary vs. West Huntingdon
Corbyville vs. Zion Hill

February 11th.
Zion Hill vs. West Huntingdon
Corbyville vs. Centenary

February 15th.
Centenary vs. Zion Hill
West Huntingdon vs. Corbyville

February 18th.
Zion Hill vs. Corbyville
West Huntingdon vs. Centenary.

Following completion of the schedule the second and third teams will play home and home games with goals to count, the winners to meet the first place team in the finals in a three out of five series.

Army Officer Heads Graduates From No. 5 I.T.S.

2nd. Lieutenant D. H. Rowan, of Toronto, the first of Army personnel remustered to air-crew to be trained at No. 5 I.T.S., R.C.A.F., has been selected as the outstanding trainee in one of the best courses to graduate from this school. Wing Cmdr. A. J. Snetsinger, E.D., Commanding Officer of the Station, presented Lieutenant Rowan with an identification bracelet as an award for leading the course, and stated that he was proud to have Army personnel like Lieut. Rowan taking the I.T.S. course, and that his standing could undoubtedly be attributed to his excellent training in the Army.

Under the recent arrangement whereby Army personnel are permitted to remuster to air-crew in the R.C.A.F., Lieut. Rowan, formerly holding the rank of captain and filling the position of Adjutant with the R.C.A.S.C. at Camp Borden, Ont., voluntarily reverted to the rank of 2nd. Lieutenant so that he could remuster to air-crew and was posted to No. 5 I.T.S.

During his course, Lieut. Rowan participated in all station activities and graduated with an excellent academic record. He now goes to an E.F.T.S. to commence his training as a pilot.

LAC. D. H. Scobie, son of Lieut.-Colonel T. J. Scobie serving overseas with the R.C.A.M.C., and Mrs. Scobie of Ottawa, was a close runner-up for the award and was highly commended by Wing Cmdr. Snetsinger for his excellent showing.

14 Jap Vessels Sunk by U.S. Subs

Washington, Jan. 31 (AP) — The United States navy reported today the sinking of 14 Japanese ships, some of which may have been endeavouring to reinforce enemy positions in the Marshall Islands in the Pacific, now being battered by American air and surface forces.

All of the Japanese ships went down after attacks by American submarines, but just where the submersibles struck was not disclosed.

Two large transports, which could have been carrying troops for enemy positions in the Marshalls, were included among the 14 ships. The total also included eight freighters presumably laden with supplies for enemy bases.

The new report of damage to the battered Japanese merchant fleet brings to 572 the number of enemy ships sunk, probably sunk or damaged by submarine action since the war spread to the Pacific.

Of that number, 422 have been sunk, 36 probably were sunk and 114 damaged.

QUESTIONED, THEN SHOT SELF

McAdam, N. B., Jan. 31 — (CP) —Clinton Copp, 22, shot and killed himself Saturday after breaking into the high school building here after midnight and causing extensive damage in the commercial classroom. The death occurred at his home after he was questioned by officials.

Capt. Samuel G. Grashio, one of the men who escaped from the Philippines after the fall of Bataan and Corregidor, is shown with Mrs. William E. Dyess, in her Hollywood, California, apartment looking over her late husband's scrapbook. Lieut.-Col. Dyess was another one of the men who escaped from the Philippines after being held as a Jap prisoner and reported the horror and torture meted out to the prisoners from Jap hands. Col. Dyess was killed in a plane crash recently while preparing to return to duty in the Pacific.

Pathfinders Perform Remarkable Work in Bombing Raids on Reich

By GLADWIN HILL

At an R.A.F. Pathfinder Headquarters in England, Jan. 31. (AP) On a bleak expanse of English moor, which for a few kaleidoscopic minutes was a "Little Berlin" I got a tabloid view of the awesome sights which assail German eyes when the R.A.F. hurls down its thousands of tons of high explosive death and destruction.

Even without bombs the spectacle, shown lay observers for the first time, is a nightmare of bursting fireballs, weirdly floating flares, great sheets of light outlining miles of terrain, and seething masses of signal fires set on the ground, so fierce in intensity and persistence you think, "this is what the fires of hell must be like".

This grim visual symphony is the "secret weapon" of the R.A.F.'s remarkable Pathfinder force—trail-blazing bombers with specifically trained crews which mark the target on which succeeding waves of bombers can drop their loads even when they can't see the objective.

Canadians in Group.

It was the Pathfinders, it now is divulged, which made possible the shattering of the Ruhr in the face of a perpetual industrial haze, helped to speed up R.A.F. attacks to the rate of nearly 100 tons of bombs a minute, beat major weather obstacles and enabled the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. to make recent great attacks on Berlin and other cities through solid cloud.

Among the Pathfinders is the first R.C.A.F. bomber squadron formed in Britain. The Air Ministry last Nov. 5 disclosed that this squadron, formed in June, 1941, by Group Capt. John Fauquier, D.S.O., D.F.C., of Ottawa, was part of the force, called "target indicators". The squadron boasts the cream of R.C.A.F. crews, and their log-books read like a tour of Germany.

Although the existence of the Pathfinders became known several months ago when top Pathfinder men appeared with additional small gold eagles on their blouses below the regular R.A.F. wings it now is disclosed that preliminary methods were used as far back as the 1,000-bomber raid on Cologne May 30, 1942. The Pathfinders were organized as a distinct unit Aug. 15, 1942.

The succeeding steps in the evolution of the Pathfinders highlight the logical development of the R.A.F.'s campaign aimed at the utter destruction of Germany's war-making ability.

Beat Industrial Haze.

The raid on Essen March 5, 1943, proved the Pathfinders could beat the industrial haze in the Ruhr, and then all Western Germany was at the mercy of Allied bombers. The destruction of Hamburg brought the attacks within 150 miles of Berlin, and the big fall attacks against Kassel and Hanover carried the campaign inland. Then began the Battle of Berlin.

Here, as I saw it, is what Berlin is seeing:

One minute the sky was an empty, star-flecked, black bowl. Then bombers droned overhead. As they passed by a small globe of light burst below, dropping downward at an almost imperceptible rate from a parachute sling.

Abruptly it discharged a shower of small, but infinitely brighter, globes, which slowly floated downward, turning the black, windy night into semi-daylight, highlighting the landscape, and transforming a formless shadow many feet away into a recognizable person.

When the flares finally reached the ground they were dragged along by the chutes like mysterious fireballs, still casting their eerie light.

Then, suddenly, a stretch of black, barren ground 500 yards away sprang to life with a miniature forest fire. A passing bomber had dropped what is prosaically called a "ground marker"— an indicator for fairly clear nights.

Flames Spread Wide.

Flames rose only a few feet above the ground, but they spread out steadily for several hundred feet, seething like a blast furnace and obviously fed by such potent chemicals that it would be impossible to approach or extinguish them with ordinary firefighting methods. In addition, the R.A.F. plants bombs in the middle of the fires to discourage interference. Varying colors of flames are designed to foil German imitations planted to lure bombers to vacant areas.

When ground markers are obscured by thick clouds the R.A.F. has an answer. Another plane droned by and dropped a pair of colored parachute flares — "sky markers"—over the target.

From the flares there suddenly dropped in perfect synchrony a pair of fireballs whose path downward drew a virtual dotted line toward the target. As they burned out another pair popped down. It happened again and again until as the original flares drifted away minutes later a seventh pair of balls dropped.

The remarkable fireworks, squeezed into so little space and weight, doesn't prevent the Pathfinders from carrying bombs as well. Pathfinder men, on whose flying skill the work depends as much as on their scientific devices, are laconic about it. They say, "We just show the boys where to drop their bombs, that's all".

Leadership Needed From Nation's Youth Says Mt. View Padre

A challenging message to youth was heard at Victoria Ave. Baptist Church on Sunday night when Flt. Lt. G. N. Hamilton, padre at Mountain View R.C.A.F. station, addressed a large congregation on the occasion of the B.Y.P.U. Life Service meeting.

"The world desperately needs young people who are not obsessed with the idea of amassing a fortune," stated Padre Hamilton, "but with strength of character to give leadership. We have boys and girls in this country second to none in the world and the best we have to give them to lay a foundation for character is the gospel of Jesus Christ.

"There are two classes in the world, the good and the bad," said the speaker. "The conflict between these classes is being waged today the same as it has since the history of man began. The decision on which side we will align ourselves depends on ourselves. We can follow the way of life selected by Jesus. It is the best way of life that we know. It is the only possible hope for men and women. It is a system that meets all the needs of the individual, mentally, morally and physically. This way of life has been committed to our trust. We must guard it well lest it be taken from us."

The speaker pointed out that the guarding of our Christian way of life was an individual responsibility and could be accomplished by sharing the trust with others. A cold storage type of theology never saved any one, he asserted.

On the platform were members of the young people's society who assisted in conducting the service. Miss Edna Jobson announced the hymns and introduced the guest preacher. Miss Jean Cook read the Scripture lesson and prayer was offered by Mr. Howard Hall.

Special music was given by the choir under the leadership of Mr. Fred Jobson. The anthem, "Seek Ye The Lord" was beautifully rendered, Miss Phyllis May being heard in the solo parts, while two splendid cornet duets, "Watchman. What of the Night" and "God Will Not Forget Me," were played by Mr. F. Jobson and Mr. A. Wonnacott. Mr. Dorland Houston performed at the organ console.

The regular monthly Communion Service was observed with the Rev. H. O. Eastman in charge.

Presbyterian Ch. In Madoc Shows Steady Growth

Madoc.—The congregation of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church held their annual meeting on Wednesday evening and it was well attended by members and adherents. Reports from the various organizations revealed that the past year had been a very successful one. The membership had only grown slightly but the givings to the funds of the church had grown considerably. The congregation had contributed nearly $100 more to the Missionary Fund than in the previous year. The Foundation Fund was generously supported by $233. The Young Women's Club had a very active year and the choir reported a successful year also officers for coming year were elected as follows:

Trustees: John McKenzie and Thos. Nicol.

Board of Managers: Walter Whytock, Sam Rollins, Robert McCoy.

Church Treasurer: George West.

Walter Brett was elected clerk of the session to succeed the late George Wright.

The Ladies' Aid and Young Women's Club provided refreshments at the conclusion of the meeting.

Trinity United Church Congregational Meeting.

The annual meeting of Trinity United Church was held in the school rooms on Friday evening, following a supper served by the Young Women's Club. The reports of the various organizations were given:

Women's Association, Mrs. L. Ashley reported a membership of 21. Money raised during year $297, balance on hand $134. Mrs. B. Tanner, president.

Women's Missionary Society: — Mrs. Poulter reported money raised $255. Mrs. Poulter, president; Mrs. L. Ashley, secretary.

Ever Onward Mission Band:— Nadine Yearwood reported $36 raised and of this $28 was forwarded to treasurer of Presbyterial.

Trinity C.G.I.T.: — Lillian Derry reported proceeds for year, $28. Twenty-four group meetings were held and many activities during the year. Anne Nickle, president; Lillian Derry, secretary.

Trinity Ladies' Club:—Mrs. S. R. Beatty reported $230 was net proceeds for the year. A special War Work Fund netted $38 and many articles of knitted goods and etc., were donated to the Red Cross. Mrs. S. R. Beatty, president; Mrs. G. White, secretary.

Sunday School:—Anna Smith reporting $162 raised during the year.

Board of Elders presented by Mr. Poulter in the absence of Mr. Frank Dafoe showed a marked increase in members and attendance during the year.

Nursery Roll was presented by Mrs. G. C. Moon.

The treasurer's report submitted by Chas. Johnson was most gratifying. Total receipts were $3,366 with a bank balance of $397. Of this amount $75 has been set aside for an Honor Roll for the men and women in Active Service. Two appointments were made to Board of Stewards, Messrs. R. Binch and E. McBride. A vote of thanks was extended to the Women's Club for the supper provided. A vote of appreciation to Rev. A. and Mrs. Poulter for their faithful services during the year and an invitation to remain was unanimously supported by the congregational meeting. Mr. Poulter expressed his sincere thanks for the loyal support of all during the four and half years of service in the church.

Memorial Service.

A memorial service in memory of Pte. James Young of the Hastings and Pr. Edward Regiment, who died of wounds December 24 in Italy, was held in Trinity United Church on Sunday morning. The pastor Rev. A. Poulter chose his text from Rev. 6:9. During the service Mr. C. I. Ross and Mrs. L. Ashley sang a duet "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere". The church was decorated appropriately for the service and a large congregation was in attendance. Last Post and Reveille were sounded by Sgt. Geo. Brooks.

Personal Items.

Mrs. Walter Campbell, Don Campbell and Miss Campbell of Bloomfield, visited Mrs. McCaffrey on Wednesday.

Feed Grain Stocks Adequate for Year

Toronto, Jan. 31. (CP)—J. G. Davidson, Feeds Administrator for the Prices Board, said here today that Canadian Feed Grain Stocks are adequate for this crop year but that feeders should endeavor to keep supplies on hand in advance of immediate requirements in case of temporary shortages in supply because of transportation difficulties.

In an address prepared for delivery to the Yorkshire Swine Breeders' Society of Ontario, Mr. Davidson said that the tremendous increase in hog production and greater killing off of livestock has accelerated the supply of packing-house by-products such as tankage and meat meal.

However, not more than two pounds per pig killed is returnable in the form of tankage that can be used by the feeder; consequently feeders must use other suitable products to provide necessary proteins to balance the ration and supplement packing house by-products.

Mr. Davidson said importation of soy bean from the United States is difficult due to their own protein situation, but there is still hope that it will be possible to import "sufficient to meet at least part of our needs".

4 TORONTO HOMES ROBBED

Toronto, Jan. 31 (CP) — Police said today thieves escaped with $1,177 in cash, $200 in Victory Bonds and considerable jewelry in weekend robberies of four homes in the city.

Most profitable visit was at the home of Mrsh. Impi Rejales, where a robber took $1,000 in cash and a gold watch. A revolver was included in the loot stolen from the home of D. D. Ross.

Early Monthend Closing Of Liquor Store Disappoints Many People

When Government liquor stores remained closed on Saturday, and again on Monday for that matter, many Belleville liquor permit holders who had "saved their January quota of hard liquor for the last weekend of the month" just commonly found themselves out of luck. Government liquor stores will reopen on Tuesday, but those who missed their 26 ounce quota for January will not be able to procure it.

"Take it from me, I'll get my quota so early in February it won't even be funny. They'll never fool me again," cracked one irritated downtown merchant, who was planning a weekend party for himself and the wife on the January quota.

As the result of the liquor store shut down the wine and beer stores did a land office business here on Saturday, having the biggest run since Christmas and New Years with the result that here quotas also soon ran out as the result of increased business.

In larger cities like Toronto and Hamilton the closing of the government liquor stores was reported as a "boom for bootleggers". However, as far as Belleville is concerned no serious reports of the illegal sale of hard liquor could be heard. Whether this in an indication of the absence of bootleggers in this city is not known, but in Toronto cheap rye, retailing at government stores for $3.00, was being bootlegged for $10. and $12. per quart, take it or leave it.

The February quota will be in effect on Tuesday when the government liquor stores reopen following the surprise closing of the stores.

Raid After Raid on Huns

Germany over the weekend had possibly the worst weekend she has ever spent in the history of air war for the two great blows at Berlin, Saturday's day assault upon Frankfurt and Saturday night's blows at Brunswick brought a continuous battering at the industrial and chief cities of the Reich.

So serious have been the results that the Germans have clamped down on information as to the results of the raids but enough is known to show that the devastation has been very great.

Germans can see that the R.A.F. and the U. S. Army Air Force are relentless in their object to smash the Hitler war machine and the Huns can expect nothing of a let-up or end in the raids and the attacks by the Allied air forces until Germany unconditionally surrenders.

So the war is already a war of a number of fronts as far as Germany is concerned, the great Russian front, the mighty Allied aerial assault front which reaches right into the heart of Germany and across the Reich and the front in Italy, together with the Yugoslav Partisan front in the Balkans.

Japan's Guilt

The Japanese have been told by the press of the democratic countries that they are "lepers" and "unclean," that they are "a nation of savages tricked out deceptively" in modern western dress, and that their inhumanities are the work of a people still in the savage state. When it is recalled that the Japanese did not know the world or the world did not know them a century ago when they lived in the depths of savagery, the manifestations of Japanese sadism in the atrocities enacted upon Allied prisoners of war are explainable, according to War Analyst DeWitt MacKenzie. He adds that "while they (the Japanese) have a veneer of civilization, their instincts are primordial." But that won't excuse their savagery.

This barbarism which the Japanese have demonstrated as a part of their real nature and the barbaric and savage character of Nazism which Hitler, according to MacKenzie, intentionally adopted in order to try to impose his "master race" upon the world by force, have revealed to the democratic nations the savagery that still exists and it also makes clear that there is a very great problem for the United Nations for the future after the Japanese and Germans are defeated. He suggests "the inauguration of an educational program which will complete the civilization of the Japanese and re-educate the Nazified Germans."

It is no wonder that the United Nations have declared that there will be a day of reckoning for these and such like inhumanities and brutalities contrary to the conventions of war and the spirit of the world outside these savage people.

The Japanese government has shown a disregard of the protests of the Allied Powers as to treatment of and information regarding prisoners. Prime Minister King stated Friday in the Commons that the Canadian government has naturally been gravely concerned over reports of conditions among prisoners of war in Japanese hands. Every effort has been made to secure information and every possible method of improving conditions has been explored. In collaboration with the other Commonwealth governments, official protests have repeatedly been made through the protecting power. "The Japanese have ignored these protests or made hypocritical or cynical replies," he said and mentioned that about 1,000 Canadian prisoners of war had been transferred to Japan and that about five hundred or six hundred remain in Hong Kong. He explained that "it would seem that the prisoners at Hong Kong are not suffering nearly so much from ill-treatment and abuse as from neglect. They are suffering from the failure of the Japanese government to provide adequate clothing, food and medical care." No reports have been received from camps in Japan to which Canadians were removed, and "it is believed these men are better off than they were in Hong Kong." He charged that the Japanese have largely frustrated the efforts of the Red Cross to send in the needed supplies. They have also done little to assist and much to obstruct the forwarding of mail to and from prisoners of war. The Premier went into detail of the neglect of the Japanese to transmit reports through the protecting power and the International Red Cross and declared reports of deaths of prisoners are transmitted by the Japanese only after being long delayed.

"All this is in marked contrast with the treatment which Japanese nationals have received in Canada," he explained and Japan is not living up to her obligation. Mr. King remarked that "whether the Japanese government is unable to or unwilling to induce the military authorities outside Japan to act like human beings, the responsibility for inhuman treatment of prisoners rests none the less at Tokio." His warning "this guilt will not be forgotten" expresses the view that certainly the Canadian people, the British people and all other peoples will remember at the time when Japan is forced to surrender.

Nazis Irritated by Slogans

The Germans do not like letters delivered to American prisoners of war which have patriotic slogans such as the "V" sign for "Victory" or "Win the War." They have said they will confiscate any mail bearing these marks. So the United States Postmaster General has been notified. He has suggested that to assure delivery of mail to prisoners it is better to leave off slogans of this kind.

Of course the Germans would begrudge cheering letters from home reaching the prisoners of war in Germany if they contained a slogan or sign about victory or winning the war. The Huns don't like to see them.

The reason of course is that the Germans are realizing or have already realized that their chances of victory are non-existent. Hitler's rash promises, made out of the whole cloth of his "intuitions" that Germany was certain to win have been long ago exploded as the Germans well know from the series of defeats they have suffered in Russia and now in Poland. The Germans have had nothing to stir their enthusiasm or hope in the past two years for they have run into disaster after disaster.

Anyway the slogans have annoyed the "supermen" as Hitler calls the race that he dominates as willing slaves and that irritation is a sign that all is not going well in the land of the Huns. Victorious people would not bother about such little things, but a nation that is at the receiving end of blows from the Allied Nations as Germany is today is not a winning nation and therefore the use of the slogans finds a real sore spot in their morale.

Oil and Nitrogen

If it is decided that Germany must be prevented from rearming, this goal can be achieved by the simple but drastic means of restricting her supply of only two raw materials—oil and nitrogen. Thus goes a proposal made in the January Reader's Digest by R. E. McConnell, special assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury. It parallels a suggestion laid on the peace table at Versailles.

Germany would have never have started the Second World War in 1939 if she had not had a large stockpile of oil products and if she had not learned to extract nitrogen—the base for virtually all modern explosives—from the air, McConnell asserts. The author suggests that we supply Germany with enough oil and nitrogen to meet civilian needs but that her synthetic gasoline and nitrogen fixation plants be dismantled and removed.

He believes, however, that "with such an unruly nation we must be doubly, triply sure, . . . Therefore we should also control some of the other materials which Germany lacks and without which no nation can wage war . . . But the chances of success are greater if we narrow down our restrictions to a few basic raw materials without which a German war will be only a Prussian officer's day dream."

SILENT FRIENDSHIP

That friendship runs too deep for speech
The most of us know well.
The heart can feel, but not reveal,
What oft it aches to tell.

'Twixt tongue and heart a chasm lies
Which speech can seldom cross.
Who would impart what's in his heart
For words seem at a loss.

Too deep for phrase devotion runs,
Too deep for tongue or pen.
Genius alone can quite make known
Its thoughts to other men.

And so in silence for the most
Our years are lived away,
And friends must guess what deeds express
But lips can never say.

The snow storm yesterday and last night was the heaviest of the season. About one foot of snow fell and a strong northeast wind that accompanied it piled the snow in great drifts, especially in the country. The stages were very late in reaching here.

Mr. W. G. Reed, former Locomotive Foreman here with the G.T.R., is the guest of Mr. William Docter. Mr. Reed is now Mechanical Superintendent of the Chicago, St. Paul and Kansas City Railway.

Snow drifts in many places in town are three feet in depth.

The annual 'at home' given by the staff of the D. & D. Institute was held last evening and was a most enjoyable event. Excellent music was furnished by Messrs. O'Rourke, Blaind and Lear.

Hundreds of Russian Girls Sent to Germany

Moscow, Jan. 31 — (AP) — A dispatch today to Red Star, Russian Army newspaper, said hidden messages found in two recaptured cities south of Leningrad indicated hundreds of girls had been transported to Germany.

The communities are Taitsi and Krasnoye Selo, both about 15 miles south of Leningrad in a section from which come some of Russia's most beautiful girls.

Red Star said this letter had been found in one house at Krasnoye Selo:—

"Liolia Krylova and Valya Krashenninikova and many other young girls from here were taken to Germany. We don't know where they went. A train of 58 cars awaited at the railway station. Although there was room for but 40 girls in each, the Germans packed in 60."

The dispatch said that in Taitsi, where similar messages were discovered, not a single inhabitant remained when the Red Army troops arrived. The town normally had a population of 15,000.

Right Hand Driving Foreseen in Britain

By J. L. G.

Nobody had the bright idea of sending a "singing" telegram until long after 1871. '71 was memorable in the west as the year that brought the facilities of telegraphic communication to Western Canada. Yes, the west was getting ahead when Forty Garry could "talk" to Ottawa by wire!'

* * *

Successful experiments in the conveying of intelligence quickly and with a messenger have existed from early times. There was the signal fire, that blazed up on high hilltops. There were the flag signals, used by ships at sea. The semaphore telegraph consisted of bars pivoted to an upright stationary post and made to swing vertically or horizontally. But the utilization of electricity as an agent for the transmission of signals was not considered until 1729, and not a commerical practical success until 1844. In that year the first formal message was transmitted on the new line laid from Washington to Baltimore and recorded by the Morse dot and dash alphabet. The Morse system has been improved, but its fundamental principles have not been changed.

Canadians Fighting In Orsogna Area

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(CP War Correspondent)

With the Canadians in Italy, Jan. 31 — (CP Cable) — Intensity of patrolling on the Canadian fronts —both along the Adriatic and near Orsogna, about 12 miles southwest of the captured Adriatic coastal town of Ortona — is increasing daily as the opposing forces seek information and prisoners.

It was disclosed Friday that the Canadians are fighting in the Orsogna area, where so far they have got the better of the Germans who are new troops and not as wary as the paratroopers fighting in the coastal sector.

(First official reference to Canadians fighting near Orsogna came Saturday but with the disclosure at Ottawa Friday that Lt.-Gen. H.D.G. Crerar's Canadian Corps is in the line, an expansion of the line previously held by the Canadian 1st Division was to be expected.)

Orsogna sits upon a hill overlooking a valley scarcely two miles wide. The Canadians are on one side and the Germans on the other and it is possible to see enemy sentries with the naked eye. Front-line troops northeast of the town are less than 100 yards apart in some places, said Ma. Dennis Jotcham of Montreal.

The area resembles the Laurentians — without the lakes. It is foothill country and the Apennines look down on a series of green valleys.

Letters to the Editor

NOTE OF CORRECTION FROM MISS EARSHMAN

Military Hospital,
Petawawa, Ont.

Editor:
Ontario Intelligencer.

Like every other Belleville citizen away from home, I look forward eagerly to the receipt of the "Daily Paper." Also frequently have the pleasure of sharing it with lads from the Belleville district who happen to be patients in our hospital.

Naturally, I take special interest in those items of news that deal with the Belleville schools. Consequently was somewhat amazed to see my name mentioned in a City News item regarding a correction in a report dealing with Red Cross activities in Pine Street School for 1943. Since I entered the Army Nursing Service at the beginning of 1942, I had no connection with the 1943 school activities. Your informant must momentarily have forgotten how quickly time passes!!

With best wishes to your paper, and the hope that wherever I am stationed the "Intell" may always reach me.

Yours truly,
E. A. Earshman,

COMMENTS ON CARTOON

Plainfield.

Editor Ontario Intelligencer:

Will you please print the following in your paper:

The cartoon in Monday 24th. issue of your valuable paper merits some comment, if you will kindly spare me space.

It intimates that corruption of youth has lessened under the new system; but has it? Many an old-timer can tell you that in the old days when hotels and open bars were plentiful, (even to a hotel on almost every corner in the country) the drinking of liquors was not a fraction of the present time, even considering the increase in population. Also the mothers and girls (keepers of the home front) did not indulge as now, of course.

We can, and do bear restrictions on food, but the recent news item of a threatened cessation of work across the country, in protest of the liquor regulations, should be food for thought.

MALLARDS RAID STORED GRAIN

Calgary, Jan. 31 — (CP)—Thousands of ducks that would normally have migrated to the south several months ago were reported raiding grain stored in southern Alberta this week.

A Raymond, Alta., farmer estimated that between 5,000 and 10,000 Mallards cleaned out his barley stocks which he planned as food for hogs and cattle during the nevt two months.

The ducks, apparently "hunter-wise," have been doing their feeding at night. It was estimated a Mallard can eat up to a pound of barley in one night.

UNION CHECKOFF

A Circuit Court at Grand Rapids, Michigan, recently ruled that it was illegal and improper for a utility company to make a checkoff of union dues against its non-union employees.

The judge held that a contract between the labor union and the company was "not a union or a closed-shop contract but rather a maintenance of membership contract," and ordered that non-union employees who protested against a $1.50 monthly checkoff were entitled to refunds of their money.

The "checkoff" originated in Britain, not in America.

Originally it was applied in the coal mining industry to a system whereby the operators made deductions from the wages of employees for sharpening tools, house rent, professional fees, and merchandise bought in company stores.

This system originated in the British coal fields, and was at that time considered peculiarly adapted to that industry.

Coal, particularly bituminous coal, is generally produced in isolated communities where the miners and their families are largely dependent on facilities provided by the mine owners.

In course of time the term "checkoff" was extended to include the system by means of which an employer, by agreement with a trade union, deducted union dues, fines and assessments from the wages of the workers on payday and turned them over directly to the officers of the union. For instance, suppose a union required each one of its members to pay one dollar a month in dues. Under the checkoff the employer deducts that amount from the employee's monthly pay check and turns it over to the union.

Until about 15 years ago the checkoff system had not been widely adopted except in the soft coal industry.

The Alaska Fishermen's Union was one of the first unions to use the system outside the coal industry. In 1929 Seattle adopted it for its street-car system.

Union leaders favored the checkoff because it solidified and strengthened their organizations by insuring prompt payment of dues, and the soft coal operators who employ union labor exclusively accepted it because it aided the unions to live up to their contracts and to discipline recalcitrant members.

Two years ago a representative of the Ford Motor Co. was reported as saying that the checkoff system as applied to his company should be eliminated from contracts with unions on the ground that it was a costly procedure.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Shall She Invite Serviceman to Dine—Or Would it Make Trouble?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 22 years of age and am going out occasionally with a boy in the service. He's very nice and I'd like to invite him to dinner, but I'm just a little worried that he has a steady girl friend. I wouldn't want to make any trouble between him and his girl friend, so hesitate asking him. How can I find out whether he has a girl friend back home without seeming too curious?

P. L. S.

These days everyone invites servicemen to dine or sup. It's part of the hospitality program we are expected to extend to men in uniform. Granted this young man has a girl of his own, there could be no possible objection to your inviting him to a meal. The same rule would hold good if he were married, in which case it's better to invite a couple of servicemen than one.

Think the Question is up to the Girl

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Our problem is how can we come to an understanding about our mutual girl friend before entering the service. For three years, I have been going with a certain girl and last year G. started getting interested in her. She has been out with both of us.

Last night as I rang her doorbell to call, I saw G. leave hurriedly by the back door. And when I confronted her with the issue, she seemed indifferent.

We are both going into the service very soon and would like to know whether I should write to her or turn the whole thing over to G.? I think she favors him more. Can you help us decide this matter?

P. and G.

As long as neither of you is engaged to the girl, I can't see why it's not proper for both of you to write to her. All said and done, the power of choice is up to the young lady and until she makes a definite decision, in favor of either each has a fair chance.

What Shall She Give Him for a Birthday Gift?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been corresponding with a young man in the service for several months, and whenever he has had a weekend pass, he has come to see me and has given me several presents. He has a birthday very soon and is coming over to dinner on that day and I'd like to give him something.

I read in a magazine that a girl should not give a young man a present until they're engaged. Do you think this is fair? Would I seem forward if I gave him a little remembrance on his birthday?

I. S.

It's all right for a girl to give a man, who has been attentive to her and has given her presents, some sort of little return gift. Nothing too expensive of course. Some girls write to this column that they'd like to give service men, whom they've met only once or twice, expensive watches which would of course be in the worst possible taste.

Give him a book if he's fond of reading, a toilet kit for his belongings, a money belt, furlough bag, or a box of homemade cookies if he has a sweet tooth.

Women's Activities

BRIDGE ST. UNITED CHURCH W. A.

The regular meeting of the Women's Association of Bridge St. United Church, was held on Jan. 28, in the form of a pot luck luncheon with a good attendance. The installation of the new officers for 1944 was conducted by Dr. James Semple, during which Mrs. Fred Houston rendered two solos. Mrs. J. M. Wood, the new president then took the chair and the usual business followed. Owing to the women's day of prayer falling on the 25th of February, the next regular meeting will be held on Thursday, the 24th of February. The ladies enjoyed a reading by Miss Helen Sulman and a piano solo by Mrs. J. R. Guthridge, after which the meeting closed. Past Pres., Miss Ivy Dickens; President, Mrs. J. M. Wood; 1st Vice-Pres., Mrs. Harry Rollins; Rec. Sec. Mrs. C. E. Myers; Treas., Mrs. Ray Grant; Cor. Sec., Mrs. Hamm; Pianist, Mrs. J. R. Guthridge; Asso. Pianist, Mrs. S. Ketcheson; Press, Mrs. E. J. CENTENARY Y.P.U.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Aikins kindly opened their home to a large crowd of young people for their weekly meeting on Friday evening. Fellowship convener, Anita Calvert, took charge of a brief worship service and gave the topic, "The Splendid readings were given by Mr. and Mrs. G. Woods, Dorothy Ray and Ross Marshall. The "Religion of the Helping Hand." president took charge of the business period and prayer closed the meeting. Evelyn Ray, recreation convener, led in several lively games which were enjoyed by all. The hostess, assisted by Doris Aikins, served a delicious lunch and Douglas Harder moved a vote of thanks to the Aikins family for their kindness.

Expresses Thanks For Canned Food Gifts

A letter of appreciation and thanks from Mrs. W. H. Rollins, President of the Belleville Women's Progressive-Conservative Association, has been received in which she expresses the appreciation of the association and herself for the co-operation they have received from members and others in the city. The letter follows:

"Dear Mesdames:

As President of the Belleville Women's Progressive-Conservative Association, I wish to take this opportunity through our local press, to thank each and everyone who has contributed to our "Can-a-Month-Club" and, from my recent visit to headquarters at Ottawa, I wish to convey on their behalf, our thanks to you for your co-operation. After only two years since this club was formed in Belleville, we now lead the entire Dominion of Canada in this worthy effort. To those of you who might not yet understand this war effort, this club was organized to raise funds for the purchase of food to furnish mobile kitchens, of which seven in number already have been presented by the Progressive-Conservative Women's Associations across Canada to our Queen by our representative in England, Viscount Bennett."

Presbyterial Executive Meeting of W.M.S. Held

The Presbyterian Executive meeting of the W.M.S. of the Presbyterian Church was held January 28th, at the home of Mrs. M. Penwarden, Kingston, with ten members present. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. George Darling, President. Reports were heard from Mrs. A. E. Cameron, secretary and Mrs. Penwarden. Reports of all auxiliaries were read by the secretary which revealed that the allocation of the society was well over subscribed. Two new organizations in girls' work were reported by Mrs. Penwarden. The nominating committee met for a few minutes at the close of the meeting, consisting of Mrs. C. A. Smart, Miss M. Henry and Mrs. A. E. Cameron.

The two new organizations reported by Mrs. Penwarden are in Belleville, the "Joy Club" of St. Andrew's Church, which is made up of 30 members with Miss Margaret Fairbairn, president and Mrs. Lillian Rutherford, secretary and Gananoque C.G.I.T., with 17 members meeting each week. Mrs. Mabel MacKay, leader and Miss Jessie Glances, secretary.

Holloway United Church Ladies Entertain at 'Y'

The ladies of the Holloway United Women's Association acted as hosts at the "Y" Open House program yesterday. A good crowd was on hand to enjoy the afternoon of small games and sociability,—and the excellent refreshments provided by the ladies. Mrs. G. Dobbs was in charge of arrangements, and a large number of ladies were on hand to assist her.

The evening concert was arranged by Mrs. Houston, leader of the Holloway St. choir, and included piano solos by William Connors, readings by Miss Bernice Arbuckle, vocal solos by Miss Margaret Houston and Mr. Ed. Shortt, with accompaniments by Mrs. Houston and the singing of a number of old hymns by the entire group present in rousing style. The program was well received, particularly Miss Houston's offering of "My Hero" from the Chocolate Soldier.

The thanks of the association and of the assembled people in uniform to the ladies and the artists was heartily expressed.

A Disorder of the Spine

The spinal column is a complicated structure. Between each of the vertebrae, or bones of the spine there is a cartilage pad called the intervertebral disk. In recent times it has been recognized that frequently these disks may get out of position. The condition is then called protruded intervertebral disk.

Dr. Walter G. Haynes of the United States Army Medical Corps has made a study of a large number of soldiers with protruded intervertebral disk. The condition is by no means limited to army people, but is also quite common in civilian life. It is interesting to note that with operation only one out of ten of these men has been unable to return to full military activity.

The disorder is not, as a rule, difficult to diagnose. For example, it causes pain in the back or legs particularly down the back of the legs along the course of the sciatic nerve. The pain is worse when a person coughs or sneezes. There is tenderness over the vertebra which is affected, and the reflex over the tendon which is fastened to the heel bone, called the Achilles tendon reflex is absent or at least weaker than normal. X-rays, according to Dr. Haynes, are not helpful in making a diagnosis. Sometimes there is loss of sensation along the course of the nerves which come from the spinal column at the level of the vertebra which is affected by the disorder.

During the operation for this condition the disk which has protruded is removed. As little of the bone as possible is removed during this operation, since to take away too much bone may weaken the back.

Following the operation, the patient is kept in bed for two weeks and wears a tight-fitting belt. Then he is allowed to be up and about for a week, and following this, he has a thirty-day rest period. During this period the belt is worn and activities are only gradually resumed. After this thirty-day period, exercises for strengthening the back and also such things as heat and massage, are employed. As a general rule, following the operation, the pain and other symptoms disappear rapidly. However, there may be some tingling along the course of the sciatic nerve for some period of time.

A protruded intervertebral disk is just one more of the many conditions responsible for pain in the back. When pain in the back occurs, a complete study is necessary to find its cause before proper treatment can be carried out.

Fashion Flashes

ALWAYS SUCCESSFUL as a combination is black allied with blazing embroidery. A grand after-dark frock is a street-length slim sheath of black crepe with a wide shouldered yoke of gold, silver or copper thread embroidery which serves as a background for turquoise beads, for seed pearls, for jet and silver bugle beads all beautifully worked.

CHEER UP your wardrobe with a winter-white hat. White beaver felt is used for a miniature postillion hat trimmed with tiny pink and blue iridescent birds hovering on the brim.

ONE WAY to do right by a simple frock is to dress it up with a beautiful belt, as for instance a belt of pink suede trimmed with over-all lavish jet embroidery.

Presentation

On Thursday evening, January 27, about one hundred friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pound, 3rd of Thurlow, to spend an evening with their son, Stanley, of the R.C.A.F., who was home on a short leave.

During the evening, Rev. Mr. Trumpour took charge of a short program consisting of community singing, led by Mrs. Gerald Brenton, with Mrs. Harry Farnham at the piano. Mrs. Charles Mills gave a humorous reading. Miss Joy Oaland favored with a piano instrumental. A reading was given by Mrs. G. Brenton. A piano instrumental was given by Miss Betty Twiddy. Mrs. Trumpour gave a reading, "My Prayer is For You." Rev. Mr. Trumpour gave a short address, after which Miss Claudia Farnham, on behalf of the community, presented Stanley with a wrist watch. Stanley thanked his friends for their thoughtfulness and said that it would always remind him of his friends at home. "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" was then sung. Lunch was served after which everyone left for their homes, wishing Stanley the best of luck in the future.

Continuous Caudal Analgesia Technique Eases Childbirth

Long the goal of medical men and women, safe and painless childbirth may not be a thing of the too distant future if the new continuous caudal analgesia technique demonstrated in Windsor, this week, by two noted American doctors comes into general use reports the Windsor Star.

Assigned to Windsor for consultation with the Essex County Medical Society by the surgeon-general of the United States, Dr Robert A. Hingson and Dr. Waldo D. Edwards, explained to Windsor doctors the method which was designed to relieve the pains of labor and delivery.

Vigorous Babies.

Properly administered it furnishes a comfortable labor and delivery and a vigorous, crying baby in the overwhelming majority of instances, they pointed out.

The noted Americans, who hold the rank of surgeon in the United States Public Health Service, held a clinic at Hotel Dieu Hospital.

It was pointed out that perhaps the greatest use of continuous caudal analgesia will be in the case of first babies where the pain of the mother is usually much more severe than in subsequent births. Of course it is not limited to first babies.

It is the only technique known where no drugs are administered which might prove harmful to either mother or baby.

Caudal analgesia is a form of regional pain deadening produced by injection of a local anesthetic drug into the spinal canal at the cocyx or rudimentary tail at the very end of the spine. The two noted Windsor visitors are credited with greatly increasing its utility and scope by developing the practical technique for indefinite prolongation of the pain deadening affect and for extension of the relief from pain to levels above the umbilicus.

Continuous caudal analgesia is revolutionary in its implications for obstetrics.

Absolute Safety.

Drs. Hingson and Edwards are convinced it will give complete relief of pain with absolute safety to mother and her baby provided the procedure is supervised by a specially trained person.

The babies born are just as alert and wide-awake at birth as those born to mothers who have had no form of anesthesia, they told the physicians. Apparently there is less birth shock by the new method than by any other.

The entire course of labor is altered. The first stage of labor is definitely shortened and the third stage is shortened and simplified.

Warning that an immediate change in methods cannot be looked for all over the country was seen in the advice that for success with continuous caudal analgesia a knowledge of the related principles of the basic sciences must be combined with a high degree of obstetric competence and a skilful application of this new technique.

It is advised that continuous caudal analgesia not be started until the patient is in actual distress as well as in labor. Best results are secured when the contractions are regular, of at least 30 seconds duration, and not more than five minutes apart.

No Discomfort.

The patient is left in her hospital room until time for delivery and may read, listen to the radio, have visitors or enjoy natural sleep because she has no discomfort.

In the experience of Drs. Hingson and Edwards, delivery, of the abnormal breech presentation is greatly facilitated by the new method. The premature baby has an improved chance since labor has been shortened and the child spared a severe dehydration period and excessive birth injury from resistance in the birth canal.

The normal physiological processes of the patient are little disturbed by continuous caudal analgesia and pain afterwards is practically nil. It is therefore of especial value in the aged, the debilitated and those recently subjected to shock, in addition to being useful in childbirth.

SWIFT'S WEEKLY FOOD HINTS
Martha Logan, Swift's famed Home Economist, whose weekly cooking column is a regular feature of this page. Look for these valuable hints every Monday — by Martha Logan

"Waste Not—Want Not"

Every scrap of food saved is a step toward the home-front victory

Grandmother used to say "wilful waste makes woeful want." Today we say "Buy wisely; cook correctly; eat it up." Right now when we need so much food for our armed forces, our Allies and the Red Cross, it's up to us not to waste a spoonful of anything. One of our "kitchen police" duties is to use up scraps of food in attractive dishes.

Those teaspoons of left-over vegetables, vegetable water, meat, and dried ends of bread can be made into a tasty meat loaf. Serve it hot for supper—then slice the leavings for the sandwich box carried by your family war worker.

In the panel you'll find a honey of a left-over meat dish, called "Western Ranch Meat Loaf" because those hardy western men of our land swear by it.

Martha Logan

WESTERN RANCH MEAT LOAF
1 medium-sized onion, chopped
¾ cup diced celery
4 tbsps. dripping
3 cups ground cooked meat
3 cups soft bread crumbs
½ cup finely-chopped green pepper
1 tbsp. salt
1 egg, beaten
½ cup vegetable water
½ cup tomato juice or meat stock
2 tbsps. cooking fat

Cook onion and celery in dripping, over low heat, until lightly browned. Mix into meat. Combine bread crumbs, green pepper, salt, beaten egg and vegetable water; add half this stuffing mixture to the meat, mixing well. Pat half the meat mixture into a greased loaf pan and cover with remaining stuffing then the last of the meat mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) 1¼ hours. Baste twice during cooking, with the tomato juice or meat stock and fat which have been heated together, to keep loaf moist.

Clint 'Snuffy' Smith Makes Chicago's First Line One of Best In N.H.L. at Present Time

Teams With Doug Bentley and Bill Mosienko to Put Hawks in Running

TIED FOR SECOND

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Without probing into the motives which prompted Lester Patrick to place Clint (Snuffy) Smith on the open market last fall, there can be no doubt today that the New York manager's asking price was slightly conservative. For Smith, a $3,500 investment, has given Chicago Black Hawks a $1,000,000 forward line.

Apparently all washed up after several brilliant seasons with Rangers, Smith has clicked at Chicago. Fitted at centre between Doug Bentley and Bill Mosienko, the trio has bagged 61 goals in 32 games, more than half the club total of 121 and tops for any combination in the circuit.

Score Four of Seven Goals

During the weekend the threesome scored four of seven Chicago goals as the Hawks defeated Detroit Red Wings 3-2 at home Sunday after taking a 4-3 decision from Maple Leafs on Toronto ice Saturday. The double victory boosted their victory string to four straight and gave them a one-point lead over Boston's fifth-place Bruins.

Defeat interrupted Detroit's undefeated streak at nine games and cost the champions a chance to snap their second-place deadlock with Leafs, an impasse achieved Saturday when the Wings quelled Bruins 6-1. Veteran Syd Howe scored his 200th goal in major league competition with the first of two scores against the injury-smitten Bruins, who borrowed Jimmy Franks from Detroit to replace ailing Bert Gardiner in goal. Mud Bruneteau (2), Carl Liscombe and Flash Hollett contributed the other Detroit tallies. Buzz Boll saved Boston from a shutout 81 seconds from the end.

Canadiens Stretch Lead

Montreal Canadiens made the race appear more of a runaway than ever Sunday, stretching their league lead to 8½ games by scoring their 23rd victory in 32 games, 5-3 at the expense of Rangers. It was Rangers 25th defeat. A first-period melee resulted in majors for the four principal combatants — Ott Heller and Bob (Killer) Dill of Rangers and Maurice Richard and Mike McMahon of Canadiens.

Phil Watson scored two goals against his former team-mates but suffered a cut forehead and a badly bruised left eye when struck by a butt end.

Chicago used different tactics. Except for a brief stretch in the second period, they were always ahead against Toronto, while they were forced to come from behind against Detroit Sunday. Adam Brown and Bruneteau gave Detroit a 2-0 lead before Mush March scored his 2nd weekend goal midway through the second period. Bentley and Johnny Gottselig scored less than five minutes apart early in the third to thrill 18,261 paid admissions, possibly an all-time league record. It was Conny Dion's first defeat since he assumed Detroit netminding responsibilities seven games ago.

Life Imprisonment For Jos. Kennedy

Hamilton, Jan. 27—(CP)—Joseph Kennedy, 52-year-old candy-maker, today was sentenced to life imprisonment for the Thanksgiving Day slaying of his neighbor, Mrs. Betty Edwards, 24.

Sentence was passed by Mr. Justice A. W. Greene. Last Thursday a supreme court jury returned a reduced verdict of manslaughter against Kennedy who had been charged with murder of Mrs. Edwards, wife of LAC. Bert Edwards, stationed at Guelph, Ont., at the time of her death. Her body was found in the burning basement of her Bolt Avenue home.

When asked if he had anything to say Kennedy answered: "I thank you, my lord, for the fair trial."

Honus Wagner Sends Contract To the Pittsburgh Pirates

By The Canadian Press

One of the first of the game's "immortals" to be toted into baseball's hall of fame, white-haired Honus Wagner, 69, Saturday sent in his signed contract to the Pittsburgh Pirates to serve as coach of the National League team in one more season, thus retaining active connection with the club for which he played from 1900 to 1917. It was his 33rd contract as a major leaguer and his 12th as coach of the Pirates, having come out of retirement in 1933 to handle the squad.

Turf followers at New Orleans expressed the belief yesterday William Helis financed the purchase by Henry Knight, Kentucky breeder and trainer, of the Valdina farm's stock of 160 horses for a reported $250,000. Helis announced he had bought three horses from Knight including Valdina Zenith which is a candidate for the Kentucky Derby.

President A. J. Greene of the National Boxing Association yesterday at Paterson, N.J., issued an order to Phil Terranova, featherweight champion, to defend his title forthwith and named Chalky Wright, Willie Pep and Sal Bartolo as principal contenders.

Star of the Snow Eagle slalom championship races at St. Jovite, Que., Saturday was 14-year-old Jack Griffin of Montreal who, as a junior, covered the course in 1:20.3, 15 seconds faster than the senior winner, Ken Scott of Montreal, and seven seconds ahead of Rhona Wurtele of Montreal in the women's division.

In a dual swimming meet between Yale and Pennsylvania Saturday at New Haven, Alan Ford of Yale set a new world's record of 50.1 seconds for the 100-yard free-style event. The Yale team won on points, 52-22.

While returning to Port Colborne by automobile Saturday night after losing a junior O.H.A. fixture at St. Catharines, four players were injured in a highway collision. The casualties were: Ace Ketola, head injury; Shorty Sergenese, concussion; Bill Granville and Barry Pipper, minor hurts.

Visiting rinks, outnumbered 28 to 23 by their local hosts in the 31st international curling bonspiel at Quebec, carried off the lion's share of prizes in the four-day competition which ended Saturday night. Big winner of the spiel was a Winnipeg rink originally skipped by John Bracken, the Progressive Conservative leader, which won both the Holt-Renfrew Trophy and the Centenary Trophy.

Lulu Constantino, New York lightweight, Saturday signed on the dotted line for two bouts, both 10-rounders. He will clash with Tippy Larkin Feb. 9 in New York and will next take on Henry Armstrong in the Boston Garden March 3.

U.S., CANADIAN TEAMS TO MEET

London, Jan. 31 (CP Cable)—Teams representing the Canadian and United States armies will clash in a football game here Feb. 13—in the "tea bowl."

The Canadian squad will include: Maj. Dennis Whitaker and Capt. "Huck" Welch of Hamilton Tiger fame; Capt. Bill Drnkwater, former Toronto Balmy Beach stalwart; Capt. Paul Rowe who used to perform for Calgary Bronks; Lieut. Orville Burke, former Ottawa Roughrider; two one-time Sarnia Oilers—Lieut. Nick Paithouski and Capt. Alex Hayes—and M. P. Ryan, former intercollegiate performer with the University of Minnesota.

The Canucks will be coached by Capt. E. H. Leather.

Former stars of Purdue, Wisconsin, Texas, Detroit and Columbia universities will be in the lineup.

Toronto, Jan. 31 — (CP) —When Toronto Maple Leafs returned home after that 2-2 tie with Canadiens in Montreal, coach Hap Day gave the newspapers a terrific blast against referee Bill Chadwick. Hap didn't like any part of Chadwick's "weak-kneed" officiating. The "gag rule" has, in truth, become properly ungagged...an all-Chinese line is playing juvenile hockey in Lucknow, Ont. They are the brothers A., B. and G. Chin ... Pittsburgh plans a big new rink and may return to the N.H.L. after the war.

Across Canada:

Bowling is booming in Moose Jaw, Sask., where more than 1,400 are competing in organized leagues... the Fort William Hurricane-Rangers junior hockey club sent a $25 cheque to city council as a contribution to a fund for a recreational memorial building after the war... Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Navy will play an exhibition hockey game in Windsor Feb. 18 to raise funds for navy athletic equipment in Windsor ... An outstanding football star with the University of Western Ontario Mustangs and later a Belleville, Ont., physician, Capt. E. G. (Kewpie) Kennedy is serving with the medical corps in the Mediterranean area.

Incidentally:

Hockey players are so scarce in the U. S. now that the other night John Thomas, owner of the Brooklyn rink, had to put on a uniform with Jamaica Hawks so a game might go on ... Perk Galbraith, old-time Boston hockey star, now is running a roller rink in Minneapolis .... Montreal Canadiens' defence star, Glen Harman, hasn't practiced with the team all season because he is too busy on his war job ... Ottawa Commandos are not doing too well since the Army hockey ban cost services of Joe Cooper, Wilf Field, Alex Shibicky, Jake Brunning, Ab Barnes, Walt Murray and Bobby Copp.

KISTS, FALCONS TIED FOR LEAD IN GROUP TWO

Oshawa Continues Six Points Ahead of St. Mikes in Group One

HAMILTON WINS

By The Canadian Press

Leadership in the race of group 2 of the junior "A" O.H.A. series became deadlocked when Galt Kists fell 7-6 before Brantford Lions in overtime at Galt Saturday night and St. Catharines Falcons turned back Port Colborne Recreationists 6-3 at St. Catharines. The Kists and Falcons are now on even terms with 24 points for top ledge in the standing, with Oshawa continuing six points ahead of St. Michaels in group 1 after the Collegians had disposed of Toronto Young Rangers at Maple Leaf Gardens Saturday afternoon in an 11-3 rout. The fourth game of the day took place at Hamilton where the Whizzers turned back Toronto Marlboros 6-5.

The set-to at Galt was a sizzler with Lions and Kists tied 2-2 for the first period, 4-4 in the second and 5-5 at the end of 60 minutes. Jack Jeffrey was the hero for Brantford, firing the equalizer in the third frame and scoring two more in overtime to win the tilt. Davis of the Lions and Barry Sullivan for the losers also earned a trio of counters.

Double scorers in the clash at Hamilton were Stewart for the winning Whizzers and Matthews and James for Marlboros. The Toronto team were leading 5-3 in the second period but Hamilton came from behind on scores by Stewart, Comfort and Brown to win out in the third.

Kodatsky of Port Colborne was the only sniper to register two goals in the fixture at St. Catharines. The home club's six were spread among Delmonte, Warecki, P. and F. Long, Welch and Peterson.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Herb Cain, Boston, got one assist Saturday night when Detroit walloped Bruins 6-1 to put himself in a first-place tie with Lorne Carr, Toronto, on the National Hockey League's high-scoring list. Doug Bentley, Chicago, picked up two goals and one assist when Hawks defeated Toronto 4-1 Saturday night and Detroit 3-2 last night, to put himself in fourth place which was previously held by his teammate Billie Mosienko.

HERSHEY BEARS GAIN TWO POINTS ON LOOP LEADER

Bears Win Two Games Over Weekend While Barons Collect One

CAPITALS WIN

(By The Canadian Press)

Hershey Bears gained two points on the American Hockey League's leaders—Cleveland Barons—over the weekend by winning their two scheduled games, while the leaders played only one encounter when they defeated Buffalo Bisons 4-2 Saturday night. Buffalo drew 2-2 with Indianapolis last night.

Leading the eastern section of the circuit, Bears walloped Providence Reds 10-1 Saturday night and 3-2 last night.

Indianapolis defeated Pittsburgh Hornets 3-2 Saturday in the loop's other scheduled encounter.

Bears now have a total of 49 points—four behind Barons—stacked up from 22 victories, and five draws in 35 starts.

It was the eighth straight victory for Barons, when they defeated Bisons. Earl Bartholome shot two of the goals and Tommy Burlington, the league's leading scorer, got one assist to increase his total to 52 points.

On Saturday Bears rapped five goals in the Providence net in the first period, while Reds collected their lone tally. Fred Hergert, Bud Jarvis, Billy Moe, and Gaston Gauthier, each scored a pair of tallies. Pat Patterson and Peggy O'Neill scored the other two.

Last night Hershey took the lead in the second period of the home-and-home series against Reds. Gauthier and Hergert tallied after Jack Toupin had put Reds in front during the first minute of the frame.

Tony Demers scored the second Red goal after Gauthier tallied the third for Hershey during the final minute of play.

In the Indianapolis-Pittsburgh encounter Saturday night, Bill Thompson won the game for Caps when he flicked in two sensational goals within 15 seconds, breaking a 1-1 deadlock, in the final period. Tony Hemmerling scored the first counter for Hornets and Johnny Sorrell retaliated.

Last night the Caps held Bisons to a 2-2 draw. Nakina Smith and Thurier tallied for Bisons in the opening frame, while Eldred Kobussen scored for Caps. In the final frame Winky Smith tied the count.

What's Doing in Sport

London, Ont. — (CP) — The Western Counties Baseball Association decided at its annual meeting yesterday to conduct a survey of its territory for young players to promote the organization of minor leagues which would operate before the schools close for the summer. Fred Ruckle of Thamesville was elected president in succession to James R. Millman of Chatham.

Sherbrooke, Que. — (CP) — The 10-mile snowshoe championship of the 34th Annual International Snowshoers Convention yesterday resulted in a surprise when Lloyd Evans of Montreal won from Sgt. Gerard Cote, noted marathoner, in 1:28.01.

Portland, Ore., — (AP) — Promoter Joe Waterman said last night Portland has been offered a 15-round lightweight championship bout between Sammy Angott and Henry Armstrong for late in March or early in April.

Victoria — (CP) — Sub.-Lt. Andy Anton, manager of the Esquimalt Navy hockey team, announced last night the Sailors have decided to disband. This decision leaves only two clubs in the Pacific Coast Senior League — Vancouver St. Regis and New Westminster Lodestars.

Chicago — (AP) — The National Baseball Congress decided today to test president Ray Dumont's proposal under which the batter could run either to first or third and then around the bases forthwith. The test will be Aug. 11 in Wichita between two certified teams which will open the 10th annual semi-pro tournament.

WEEKEND STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Modere (Mud) Bruneteau, Detroit, who collected two tallies when Red Wings whipped Bruins 6-1 Saturday night.

Carl Liscombe, Detroit, who bagged one counter and set up three others in the Wings-Bruins encounter.

Phil Watson, Canadiens, who chalked up two counters, one of them unassisted, when Montreal defeated Rangers 5-3 last night.

Ab Demarco, Rangers, who scored two of the New York tallies.

His Fate

Grandpappy Morgan, a hillbilly of the Ozarks had wandered off into the hills and when supper time came and he failed to return, young Jake was sent out to search for him and bring him in. Jake located Grandpappy standing quietly in a clump of bushes.

"Gittin' dark Grandpap,' said Jake.

"Yep," said Grandpappy.

"Supper's ready."

"Yep."

"Ain't ye hungry, Grandpap?"

"Yep."

"Wal, ain't ye comin' home?"

"Nope."

"Why not?"

"Can't."

"Why cain't ye?"

"Standin' in a b'ar trap."

(At it tonight.)

With the weatherman providing more seasonable temperatures over the weekend, hockey moved back into its proper atmosphere tonight. At the Hume Arena the long awaited Trenton-Mountain View "Bomber" service league match will be the centre of attraction, when Coach Toots Holway's Belleville juniors make their initial trip to Stirling to do battle with Ralph Neal's "Combines." Incidentally the scores of the junior O.H.A. game will be announced over the public address system at the Hume Arena during the Flyer-Bomber game.

Fans have long been waiting for these two R.C.A.F. sextettes to tangle, especially after it was revealed that Johnny McCreedy former Toronto Maple Leaf star, and Gene Bauer, brother of Boston Bobby, had joined the Bombers. Then last week Lou Boudreau, formerly with the Quebec Aces, was posted at Mountain View as was Ray Reading of Toronto. Of course Fl. Horton still has some high class pucksters in Mike Dziura, Ralph Benson, Ellis, Kelly, Fitzpatrick, Voss and Tessier to reckon with.

(Sports lingo.)

Editorially in the Hamilton Spectator recently was an article on international sports language, that has a message to all.

It went something like this: "The realm of sports has its own language, and sometimes, in an international sense, the terms are incomprehensible to those strange to them. British and American troops in England are endeavoring to overcome these difficulties through mutual interpretation. For example, the Americans are learning the meaning of "jolly well bowled old chap," or 'he came a cropper on that one." So far so good. But what is going to happen when some of the boys from Brooklyn start to shout at an army baseball game: "We's been robbed. Moider the bums"? Or when the umpire's decision on the pitcher's throw is challenged with: "G'wan. He flang it right over the plate"? Some form of Esperanto still looks to be the best way out."

(Baseball mysteries.)

Within the past week major league baseball has seen some of its outstanding stars inducted into the United States armed forces, including Rudy York of the Tigers, Johnny Vander Meer of Cincinnati, who was previously classed 4F, Charlie Keller of the Yanks and other lesser stars. However, this was to be expected, but over the weekend a couple of real baseball mysteries hit the sport pages.

First there was the release of Casey Stengel manager of the Boston Braves. Now Stengel is a large stockholder in the Braves' interests, but no word as to why he was ousted has been announced at an early hour today.

Then Branch Rickey has lost his manager, Leo Durocher. No "Lippy Leo" didn't quit the helm of the Dodgers, but recently he was slated to make a tour of the American Army camps in Italy, but the trip was called off for some unknown reason and no person has heard of Durocher since. Rickey let out with some press ballyhoo over the weekend, but no reply was forthcoming insofar as Durocher is concerned. His whereabouts seem to be a complete mystery, as of Sunday.

(Remember when—)

Just seven years ago today Max Schmeling's chances of meeting Jimmy Braddock for the world's heavyweight boxing championship exploded when Braddock signed to meet Joe Louis. Braddock had contracted to meet Schmeling—victor over Louis—but an offer of $500,000 with an option of 50 per cent of the gate for the Louis bout changed his mind. Louis won the title.

(Leafs keep slipping.)

Bill Mosienko, Clint Smith and Doug Bentley of Chicago outplayed any line the Leafs sent out on Saturday night with the result the Hawks grabbed off a 4-3 win that did not hurt them any. There was a sell-out crowd on hand and the Leafs were held at 22-10 in the bull ring but didn't look that way on the ice. The game has been so changed that kids down on the bay with their shinny matches resemble the N.H.L. of today. Defence has been thrown to the wind and it is every man for himself. The poor goalies take an awful shellacking during an evening. The main idea is to get the rubber into the opposition zone and then muck about.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By ALLAN NICKLESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the R.C.A.F., Somewhere in England, Jan. 31. (CP)—A fellow whose ability to judge ring fighters should not be overlooked took time out from physical training duties to nominate Harry Hurst as "the finest lightweight boxer in the world".

A professional boxer, 22-year-old Cpl. Roy Oulmet of (228 De Castelman St.) Montreal came to the conclusion after meeting Hurst, also an R.C.A.F., corporal, in several exhibition bouts here. Hurst was a leading lightweight back home.

Oulmet, P.T.I. with Canada's Thunderbird squadron, fought some of the best amateurs in Canada and Britain before turning to monied ranks. He has won every one of his eight fights here.

Roy's brother, Jean Paul, just started amateur boxing back in Montreal and won six of his first seven battles. An older brother, Marcel, former professional wrestler and once Canadian welterweight wrestling champion, is P. T. instructor at Montreal's No. 1 Wireless School.

Professional figure skater and instructor in peacetime, LAC. Nick Krilow of North Battleford, Sask., finds time over here to carry on his teachings as physical instructor at a bombing station commanded by Group Capt. W. A. Jones of Vancouver. Nick cut a mean figure on the ice of skating clubs in Kitchener, Ont., Portage La Prairie, Man., and Toronto.

Another P. T. instructor, Cpl. E. E. Carson of (380 Redwood Ave.), Winnipeg, holds forth with Canada's Goose Squadron. Known throughout Western Canada weight-lifting circles, Carson was in charge of collective and therapeutic treatment at Toronto Manning Pool. Before enlisting he was physical director of the Winnipeg Y.M.H.A.

Well-known in Windsor, Ont., LAC. R. H. (Ray) Doumani, 23-year-old former hurler for Amsterdam Rugmakers in the Canadian-American Baseball League, is an instrument maker for the Thunderbirds. . . .LAC. Arnold Tobin, who played basketball in Toronto with Central Technical Schools, is an aero-engine mechanic with the same unit. The 23-year-old athletic helped his squadron win the R.C.A.F. overseas softball championship a couple of months back.

Another Thunderbird mechanic is Cpl. Dave Hutton, (96 Simcoe St. E.), Hamilton, Ont., who played with Italo-Canadians when they won the Eastern Canada junior football title for Hamilton.

The most heated competition anywhere in the Canadian Bomber Group comes from a couple of ardent Montreal cribbage players attached to the Leaside Squadron. Flt. Lt. H. G. Phillips, the Adjutant, claims to be miles ahead of Flt.-Lt. Guy Rainville, D.F.M., in this "sport" contest which has been going on for months.

Horse Sense Bridge

LESSON NO 290

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Elva Tyme is disgustingly healthy. Each of the other girls in her bridge club has some ache or pain or operation to complain about. She has nothing to create sympathy.

That's why bridge is a godsend to Elva. It gives her something to beef about. She can always say, when she gets a poor hand; "That's the kind of a hand I always get."

Elva does not really get more than her share of poor hands. She merely thinks she does. Because even when she gets a good hand, she does not make the most of it. When your partner starts with an opening bid of one in a suit, he shows, among other things, five tricks. He expects you to have two tricks. If you have more than that, you bid something.

Thus, when you make a normal bid in response, he expects you to have three tricks. So, if you have an unusually good hand, he does not know it unless you tell him so with some signal.

No bidding system is worth a boot unless it uses step-by-step disclosures. But rare hands may sacrifice a round of other advices for the sake of giving more important information.

A strong responding hand is shown by a one-jump. That is the signal for showing enough tricks to help make a game. If the one-jump is immediate, it also shows two sure tricks.

Suppose your partner starts with an opening bid of one club and you have this hand:

♠A K 5
♥K J 9 4
♦A K 8 4 2
♣7

Your hand contains seven tricks, four of which are sure tricks. You have plenty for an immediate one-jump response.

With two different length suits, first show the longer. Your tiffanys are longer than your tickers. Your first answer is a one-jump to two diamonds.

Hop to it.

"Jack London"

Hollywood's 4F's are proving as fierce in battle as the millions of their 1A brothers now serving in the Army and the Navy.

As extras, they have seen action in Russia, in France, Sicily and Great Britain—at Dunkirk, Tunisia and Stalingrad and they have boasted a sizeable number of wounded, though such casualties rarely required more than first aid.

Because of the numerous war sequences being made at the studios they have become experienced 'soldiers' in a short time. They know how to crawl through barbed wire, to take cover, leap over a parapet or bayonet the "enemy." They have fought on more fronts than any real soldier, and on both sides. And many have "died" for the sake of the script.

Strangest of all the wars in which they have enlisted is the Russo-Japanese conflict of 1904, filmed for the first time in sequences in Samuel Bronston's initial production, "Jack London", currently at the McCarthy Theatre, with Michael O'Shea and Susan Hayward in the leading roles.

"It was a particularly gory and vicious war according to eyewitness reports of "Jack London," who in addition to being an intrepid explorer, adventurer and one of America's top authors was also an extremely daring and perceptive war correspondent.

Bronston directed his "soldiers" to assure the minimum damage to their anatomies. A large-scale battle scene called for detailed advance planning and extras were manoeuvred like "vets."

For the Ualu River battle sequence, for example, manoeuvres were first planned on paper and then executed at slow motion speed with covered bayonets until each player appeared accident proof. Then the producer sent his "soldiers through 'shot and shell' and didn't worry about doctor bills.

Dr. Geoffrey Grace and Nurse Lucille Lang, who stood in attendance during the shooting, repacked gauze and iodine midway through the sequence. Said Dr. Grace, "this was the most bloodless cinematic battle in my career." Said Nurse Lang with a touch of asperity, "the only medication I handed out was vitamin pills. These Hollywood 4F's are building themselves up for the second front."

AT THE CAPITOL

"Journey For Margaret"

A new child star, Margaret O'Brien, appears in the title role of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Journey for Margaret," drama of bomb-blasted London which opens tonight at the Capitol Theatre.

After only one previous screen appearance, a small part in "Babes on Broadway," little Miss O'Brien was handed the important role in "Journey for Margaret" after 1500 other little girls had been tested for the part.

Robert Young and Laraine Day are featured in the film. Fay Bainter and Nigel Bruce head the supporting cast.

The story, taken from a best-selling book by William L. White, deals with the adventures of an American correspondent in London, who adopts two British war orphans, Margaret and Peter. How he re-adjusts their war-shattered nerves to the comparative peace of America is the theme of the story.

"Melody Parade"
(First Belleville Showing)

An exceptional cast appears in "Melody Parade," the Monogram musical comedy revue which opens tonight at the Capitol Theatre. Mary Beth Hughes is seen in the starring role, and her company of supporting players includes Eddie Quillan, Tim & Irene, Mantan Moreland, Jerry Cooper, Armida, Andre Charlot, Loumell Morgan Trio and the Ruloff group of comedy adagio dancers. Orchestral music is provided by the popular bands of Anson Weeks and Ted Fio Rito, and the film is described as a swift succession of comedy specialties, songs, dances and colorful production numbers, with large numbers of pretty girls in evidence.

The Canadian Universal News completes the big double program.

AT THE BELLE

"I Dood It"

Red Skelton clowns himself into the heart of Eleanor Powell once again in M-G-M-'s laughmusical, "I Dood It" now closing at the Belle Theatre.

Jimmy Dorsey and his band furnish the musical background and Lena Horne and Hazel Scott appear together for the first time on the screen in a sensational production number, "Jericho". Miss Powell performs one of the most difficult dance routines ever seen on the screen. In the "So Long, Sarah Jane" number she not only dances the rhythm but twirls a lariat with a skilful hand while tapping out the intricate steps.

The Canadian Paramount News and an excellent Pete Smith specialty "Tips on Trips", will also be exhibited.

"The Fallen Sparrow"

A one-man fight against enemy agents, whose sole mission was against him personally, makes the plot of "The Fallen Sparrow" stand out among mystery adventure thrillers.

The big picture opening next at the Belle Theatre co-stars Maureen O'Hara and John Garfield, whose strikingly different romance also hits a new note. Their kisses and embraces are exchanged despite the heroine's knowledge that she is Number One on the hard-boiled hero's list of spy suspects!

Garfield also makes love to blonde Martha Driscoll and brunette Patricia Morison, and through women finally smokes his enemies out of hiding among New York City's horde of refugees. He deals with them as ruthlessly as they would have dealt with him, particularly as they've been working under Corporal Hitler's orders.

Robert Fellowes produced the big RKO Radio movie and Richard Wallace directed it. Walter Slezak, John Miljan, Hugh Beaumont, John Banner and other clever actors appear in the supporting cast.

Lost in Bush For Five Hours Child Is Found

Bancroft —(Special)— Although lost in the woods five miles west of here for more than five hours on Sunday afternoon and evening, five-year-old Ronald Fuller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Fuller, Faraday Township, is little the worse for his experience today. The lad had strayed from other children with whom he had been playing at the edge of the woods and was not found until almost nine o'clock Sunday evening.

Playing with his brothers and sisters and neighbor children the lad was not missed until late afternoon when he failed to return to the house with the other children for supper. A search party was immediately organized and after a three hour search in the woods the lad was found near Bierworth Bay on Trout Lake. He had been crying but had bravely dried his tears before being found by Harry Ashley, one of the search party.

"Nicky wouldn't stay with me," were the first words with which the lad greeted his rescuer as he came upon him in the dark woods. "He stayed for a while and then left me." Ronald was referring to his pet dog which had stayed with him when he became separated from the other children.

There is only approximately three inches of snow in the woods in the district where the lad was lost, according to rescuers.

Drive Into Poland Confronts Nazis With New Disaster

(By WADE WERNER)
(A.P. Staff Writer)

Lisbon, Jan. 31 (AP) — The current Russian drive into Poland has confronted the Germans with the spectre of an economic disaster that may have far-reaching consequences.

In four years of intensive effort the Germans have developed the central core of Poland into one of the main sources of sustenance not only for their armed forces but for the home front.

Situated conveniently near Germany proper as well as her eastern army bases, this area has supplied both with a minimum expenditure of transportation and at the same time has served as an economic link between Germany and her Balkan satellites.

Technical articles in German newspapers published in Krakow and other eastern points reflect this intensive development and the progress achieved. They describe an increase of livestock herds, the improvement of quality in breeding in livestock and poultry, and the restocking of lakes and streams with fish.

Area Reorganized

Many research institutes have been established, numerous new dams have been built, vast drainage projects have been completed and the entire agriculture of the area reorganized to produce what Germany needs most, these accounts reveal.

For instance, vegetable oil production has been greatly extended, and steps have been made in increasing the output of silk, flax and tobacco. Pasturage areas have been reorganized with a view to conserving transportation of livestock fodder, and the dairy industry has been revamped to produce more cheese in a month than it used to turn out in a year.

Supervision of the agricultural setup has been carried out under the eye of German specialists and district administrators. A system of penalties has been established in an effort to squeeze the utmost out of every Polish farm. Rewards also are offered for good production in the form of permits to buy goods, otherwise unobtainable by the peasant.

The effectiveness of this pressure is seen in reports that four times as much meat and three times as many potatoes were shipped to Germany in 1942 as in 1941.

Reds Turn Down King Peter's Offer

London, Jan. 31. (CP) — The Russian government's attitude toward the political situation in Yugoslavia was the subject of new speculation today following reports the Russians had turned down a proposal by King Peter's government in Cairo for a treaty of alliance and friendship.

A Reuters dispatch from Cairo said it had been learned unofficially there that King Peter's Premier, Dr. Bozhidar Purio had transmitted the proposal to Moscow and that Premier Stalin had turned it aside with the reply:—

"The time is not yet".

Tito's communique broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio today said hard fighting was going on in Montenegro and in the Croat coastal area between Senj Vinodol

Ottawa, Jan. 31. (AP) — The Prices Board announced today that the increase in preserves rations effective Feb. 3 applies to all valid "D" coupons in the hands of consumers on that date. Consumers and retailers had asked, the Board said, whether the new coupon value applied only to those coupons becoming valid on and after Feb. 3 or to all coupons which a consumer may have accumulated.

Army Reveals One-Man Weapon Battering Enemy Tanks in Italy

Ottawa, January 31—(CP)—Defence Headquarters today announced that the newest "tank buster" of the Canadian and British armies has been in action in Italy for some time, and that Canadian soldiers have already knocked out several tanks with it in close fighting and have found it "devastating" against pillboxes and machine-gun nests.

The weapon, known as the Piat Projector, came off the secret list today. It is not to be confused with the American army's famed Bazooka, although its role is primarily the same as that of the Bazooka.

As its name implies, the Piat projects a two and three-quarter pound bomb filled with high explosive which explodes on impact with the target, the propellent force being derived from the expulsion of a cartridge in the tail assembly. The weapon is said to be highly accurate at effective ranges.

It weighs only 33 pounds, against 35 pounds for the anti-tank rifle previously used by the infantry, is easily carried by one man and can be brought into action in a few seconds.

An assistant carries the bombs and, in practice, reloads as soon as the weapon is fired. The headquarters statement said the projector has been found to be a match for most types of enemy tanks.

The exploding bomb will penetrate four inches of the finest armor plate, damaging the tank's interior and killing the crew. Its effect is comparable to that of the 75-millimetre field gun at similar ranges.

The projector consists of a light steel tube inclosing a spring developing 200 pounds' pressure. When released, the spring carries forward a steel rod which fires the cartridge in the tail of the bomb.

The resultant explosion not only propels the bomb but also recompresses the spring, automatically recocking the weapon. There is little or no recoil or kick—rather a steady thrust— and the projector can be fired just as readily from the shoulder as from the ground.

The Ministry of Supplies in Great Britain is producing the new "tank buster" in quantity, and the Munitions Department here has announced that at least one type of bomb will be manufactured in Canada.

The Piat has already been introduced into Canadian training camps in the Dominion, and soldiers will be expert in its operation when they arrive overseas.

Western Burma Port of Akyab Heavily Hit

New Delhi, Jan. 31. (CP)—R.A.F. divebombers pounded Japanese airfields at the Western Burma port of Akyab and surrounding areas yesterday as Allied troops continued their slow advance on the Arakan front, a communique said today.

At the same time United States medium bombers struck at the important Meza bridge in the Katha area of Central Burma for the second straight day, damaging three spans.

The bulletin said Vitali, half a mile north of Htindaw on the Arakan front, was occupied without opposition by Allied forces and also reported Japanese infiltration attempts east and northeast of Buthedaung were frustrated Saturday night.

Friends Give Surprise Party to Mr., Mrs. Kouri

Marmora — (Special) — A social evening was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Kouri on Saturday evening in honor of their twenty-eighth wedding anniversary. A number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Gordon and from there proceeded in a group to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kouri who were completely taken by surprise. The evening was spent in dancing to music provided by Mr. Fred Matthews and cards were played. A delicious lunch was served by the ladies after which Mr. Frank Leal read an address and Mr. and Mrs. Kouri were presented with a Silex Coffee Maker, a glass saucepan and a cut glass cream and sugar set for which the recipients expressed their thanks and appreciation.

The War Today— Hitler's Speech Desperate Cry Of Beaten and Doomed Man

(By DeWITT MacKENZIE)
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Hitler's speech yesterday on the 11th. anniversary of Nazi rule, was one of the strange developments of the war, for it was in its essence the desperate cry of a beaten and terrified man for aid from the Anglo-American Allies to save him from the vengeance of the Red Armies.

Success of his scheme would mean a rupture among the big three and in an effort to put his appeal across he once more prophesied dire things from Bolshevism. America and England, he warned, were menaced.

The master gangster has reached the point where he undoubtedly would make any sort of bargain with the Anglo-American pair in order to defeat the Russians. Short of that preposterous suggestion, any kind of split among the Allies would give the wavering Reich a shot in the arm.

Western Allies Answer with Raids

Hitler's scared, and with reason. Even as he spoke, American warplanes were dumping destruction on the airplane factories of Brunswick and the great rail centre of Hanover. And the R.A.F. gave the Fuehrer his direct answer last night when a great fleet of heavy bombers again attacked stricken Berlin, to emphasize the Allied determination to destroy his capital.

No wonder Hitler the Hun is frightened, but he chose a particularly inopportune moment to try to win Allied support or cause a rupture. Both England and the United States have been roused to fury by the disclosure of the barbaric atrocities on American, British and Filipino prisoners of war by his barbaric Jap Ally. We have full proof that Nazidom is no less savage, though possibly not quite so sadistically crude in its tortures. We're not helping preserve Hitler's "civilization" for Europe.

Juvenile Team To Hold First Practice of Season

Belleville juvenile hockey team will hold its first practice at the Hume arena Monday evening, Coach Bill Dennis announced. Besides having a junior team in the O.H.A. circles the Belleville Hockey Club has also entered a team in the Ontario Minor Hockey League. Boys 17 years of age and under are eligible for positions with the juveniles. The initial practice will start at 6.30 o'clock Monday evening. Tonight the Belleville juniors are playing an O.H.A. match in Stirling.

MAY CHANGE SIDES

New York, Jan. 31.—(CP)—Britain's traditional left-hand-side of the road driving may be on the way out. Spencer Miller, New Jersey Highway Commissioner just returned from Britain, said the British Ministry of Transport will recommend right-hand-side driving as a post war project.

ACTOR LEADS RAIDERS

A U.S. Bomber Base in England, Jan. 31 (AP)—Major Jimmy Stewart flew his bomber "Nine Yanks and a Jerk" from this base Saturday as the command pilot of his squadron on the Frankfurt daylight raid. "We ran into quite heavy flak and saw a lot of German fighters, but they didn't hit our group," the peacetime movie star said afterward.

Chapter 16

At the moment an overalled figure came through the door leading to the freight elevators. He pushed before him a trunk upon which was a slatted rack to hold waste paper. Darnley walked to it, reached into its depths, and extracted the make-believe sable coat. "Not only can I get it out without being seen, I can get it back again," she said. Then to the man in overalls, "Would you mind showing them how?"

She dropped the wrap on the table again. The detective who impersonated the janitor went casually about his business of cleaning up the studio. He approached the table, stood between the group and the velvet wrap, swept it into his receptacle swiftly, and then, slowly, moved toward the door that led to the freight elevator.

"See?" asked Darnley proudly. "Who notices a janitor?"

"Listen, Brown," the lieutenant roared at his man who had been watching that exit: "did this lug go past you with his handcart?"

"Why — maybe he did. I guess so."

"For a plugged nickel," the lieutenant roared, "I'd set you back on your heels!"

"So that," said Darnley, "was how the sable coat was stolen. Because there simply couldn't have been any other way. From this on, lieutenant, it's your party."

"Yeah?"

"All you have to do is pry it out of the janitor."

"But," said the lieutenant, "where's the janitor?"

"I told you to attend to him."

"Miss," said the lieutenant, "we were set to give him the business. You said to keep him away from this mill today. Our notion was to put the finger on him outside. But he didn't show up."

"Well," declared Darnley, "he's the only one who can lead us to the person that did this thing."

"We'll grab him, Miss. Don't give it a thought."

"He didn't come to work?"

"No, ma'am."

"It shouldn't have been like that" she said. "Why didn't he come as usual? How could he have known not to come today?"

"Maybe he's sick."

"And maybe," said Darnley, "he was warned. But how? By whom? Nobody knew what we were going to do here today. Nobody could have warned him." She frowned. "But how could anyone have guessed? You're quite sure you can find him, lieutenant?"

"Like he was an egg in a paper bag."

"Yes, lieutenant," she replied, "But you do feel so sure that when you find him he will be able to talk?"

"He'll talk," said the lieutenant grimly.

"There have been times," observed Darnley crisply, "when a man who knew too much was never able to tell what he knew."

The lieutenant elicited from Clyde all the known facts, about janitor. Then with set face he went away, taking his men with him. Jerry Shafto followed to keep a posing engagement, leaving Darnley and Clyde alone.

"They'll never find him," Darnley mused, "And he was our only connection with that sable coat and Lacey Gorse."

"If," said Farrish, "You're right about Gorse, the coat is probably on the bottom of the river."

"I'm right about Lacey Gorse. He is afraid of something."

"But why did he get afraid of it all of a sudden"? asked Clyde.

"What has happened within the past few weeks to stir him up?" she wanted to know, and then paused, wide-eyed. "The most important thing that has happened to him is his engagement to marry Mrs. Dion Van Houten and her millions," she said.

"Suppose you were able to stop this marriage," she emphasized.

"I wouldn't bother. I don't care how many millionaire ladies he leads to the altar."

"Nevertheless," Darnley insisted, "he's afraid of something that can interfere with this marriage. And that something is in this studio. I tell you, Clyde, there's something important here. You've got to dig in and discover it."

"I might try," he said, "if I knew what I was searching for."

"I told you once. It must be a picture or a negative that would break up this marriage. And it must be here. Lacey Gorse used to work for the man you bought this business from. Where is that man?"

"Dead," said Clyde.

"Have you an inventory of what you bought?"

"Heavens, no!"

"He used to take news photographs, too, you told me."

"Yes."

"And sell them to papers and magazines."

"Yes."

"But you haven't destroyed anything?"

"Not a thing."

"You've never gone through his collection of pictures and negatives?"

"Why should I? I was going to heave them out some day."

"How many are there?"

"Thousands."

"Are they kept in any systematic way?"

"Probably they were once. But I moved, you know. I think they were just stowed away helter-skelter."

"Where are they?"

"In the storeroom."

"Well," she announced, "I'm going through them with a fine-tooth comb. And I'm going to start now."

"Fine," he said sardonically "It'll keep you and your cops from underfoot so I can take a couple of pictures."

"By the way," she asked, "when does Sam Britton expect to hear from the Golden Blend people about that cigarette account?"

"He didn't say. The presentation has been in Chico Sanson's hands —and it was the first one in."

"Thanks," she said, "to my knowing he was going to change agencies. And now, will you show me where those old negatives are stored?"

"Gladly," he agreed. "And I'll lock you in with them if you say so."

Darnley went into the room where the old collection of negatives and prints was stowed and faced an almost hopeless task. Because she was persistent, she set to work. She found pictures of statesmen, athletes, society people, criminals, horses, houses, yachts, but after hours of wearisome, grimy toil, she discovered nothing that could have the slightest interest to Lacey Gorse.

When she was quite exhausted, she emerged and locked the door after her. It seemed there was not enough soap and water in the world to cleanse her hands.

"You found nothing," said Clyde sardonically.

"Not even," she admitted bitterly, "anything to help me."

"You have," he told her, "a smudge on your chin."

It was not like her to refrain from retorting to this pertly, but she was so tired, she permitted a feeling of helplessness and hopelessness to overcome her.

• • •

Darnley longed for a hot bath and bed. Once in the tub she relaxed and lay there scarcely thinking. The telephone rang repeatedly, but she did not answer ... She glanced at the clock. Vaguely she wondered where Jerry was. Then, as if a spring had been touched, she sprang from the bath.

The janitor had been warned to stay away from the studio, or he had been prevented from coming. That meant, must mean, that someone who knew of her plan, must have got in touch with Gorse. But who knew of her scheme to demonstrate how the sable coat had been abstracted from the studio? The police. But the police would not send a warning. There remained only one other person. In all the world there was but one individual who could have done what must have been done — who could have seen or telephoned to Gorse. And that person was the only other person who knew.

Jerry Shafto!

Darnley did not dress. She made a cup of tea, poached an egg, and, having eaten lightly, sat for an hour thinking. Jerry Shafto! She must not allow Jerry, when she returned, to become aware of suspicion, but she did not feel able to face her roommate, so to avoid the necessity she retired to her room and shut the door.

In the morning she called Wolfgang. "No engagements for me today," she said. "I'm resting. Tonight is the Golden Blend show."

Jerry had gotten up quietly, and gone out before Darnley awoke. This was unusual, for Jerry was a morning sleepyhead. Darnley was unhappy. It was her first experience in life with treachery — if Jerry was guilty of treachery. It seemed incredible that a girl who had been her friend, with whom she had lived so intimately, could conduct herself in so unspeakable a fashion.

The judging of the selected contestants was to be done at the Chamberlain-Towers in the grand ballroom. The hour was to be eight-thirty. So Darnley spent the afternoon in a beauty parlor. She returned to the apartment well after six and made ready to dress for the occasion.

First she went to her closet to get out the gown she intended to wear. She did not light the light there, because she knew exactly where the dress hung. But her groping fingers did not touch fabric; instead, they touched something wonderfully soft, almost alive—not fabric, but fur. She gasped.

Suddenly frightened, she snapped on the light, and there, on a hanger, in her own closet, was the sable coat that had been stolen from Clyde Farrish's studio!

Darnley stood for a moment as if she had been turned to ice. Then, instinctively, she ran to the door and put on the chain, so that no one could enter. She felt again of the rich fur, took it from the closet and held it up before her eyes. There could be no mistaking that soft richness. It was no imitation, no cheap fur, but a garment fit for an empress.

Her knees trembled; her legs became liquid, and she sat suddenly on the floor holding the coat, staring at it with wide, terrified eyes.

A saying of Grandpa Carfax's came unbidden to her mind: "When you run into a fact, there it is, you can't change it. So don't dodge it."

Well, here was a fact, tangible, ponderable. Here, spread across her lap was thousands of dollars' worth of stolen goods—which had not been in her closet when she went out to the beauty parlor. It had been placed there during the afternoon. Such a thing did not happen without a purpose, and there could be only one purpose; that it should be found in her possession.

But again, why had the thief parted with the fur? To do so brought to nothing the original object of the theft, which was the ruin of Clyde Farrish. She halted a moment on this thought. Clyde would not be destroyed. He would not have to pay for the coat, but could return it. But, somehow, in that moment she could not rejoice. All she could realize was that the garment was there and that a knock might come on her door at any moment—the heavy, demanding knock of the police.

But why had the thief given up possession of the coat? Why had he foisted it upon her and so brought to nothing his purpose to drive Clyde Farrish into bankruptcy? To that question there could be but one answer, and that answer was fear. The thief was afraid to keep the fur in his possession. He was afraid because Darnley had discovered how it had been abstracted from the studio and by whom.

Possession of the sables had become perilous because the investigation was drawing near to the perpetrator of the theft. It was, in effect, an act of desperation. If it could be discovered by the police in Darnley's possession—and Darnley one of the original suspects—the police probably would ask few questions. She would be caught red-handed and the thief would be safe.

Then the police must not find it, was Darnley's first thought. But again came into her mind Grandpa Carfax's saying about not trying to dodge a fact.

She summoned the resources of her will to halt the trembling of her body and restore her balance of mind so that she could think cooly and efficiently. What was best to do for her own safety? Here, again, she faced a fact, but this time a fact on the right side of the ledger. The fact of her innocence. That was a tremendous fact. Grandpa Carfax would base all his actions upon it. He would call the police and tell them the coat was there and to come and get it—and hope that they would believe the plain, truthful story of how she had found it hanging in her closet.

But that would mean questioning. It would mean that she would have to spend hours with detectives, and this evening she had not hours to spend, for in a little more than one hour she must be at the hotel, dressed and beautiful, to stand before the judges who were to make the Golden Blend Girl award.

However, there was another thing to fear, and that was that the thief had notified the police and that they would come to search for the coat. In that case Darnley must hurry. She must not be there and the coat must not be there when the detectives arrived.

She dressed swiftly, surveyed herself in the glass and was astonished that her face showed no traces of the emergency she was facing.

Darnley turned from the mirror and faced the sable coat. She would not roll it into a bundle nor conceal it in a suitcase. She would not attempt to hide it, but would walk out wearing it boldly.

As she stepped out of the elevator, she thought of her roommate, and it was with a surge of realization. In no other way could that sable coat have gotten into her locked apartment that afternoon but with the help of Jerry Shafto.

Darnley traversed the lobby with firm steps, not hurrying, but deliberate. She crossed the walk and stood upon the curb to signal a taxicab. A cruiser drew up and the driver leaned back to open the door. When Darnley stepped inside, the cab seemed a sort of refuge but this comfortable sensation was not to endure.

As the taxi got under way she saw her acquaintance, the lieutenant of detectives, striding purposefully toward the entrance of the apartment house.

She considered very briefly the expedient of going back to face the fact, but discarded the idea at once. Nothing must prevent her from appearing in the Golden Blend Girl contest.

The police would not find her at home, but they would know where to look for her. It was a matter of public knowledge that she would be among the models competing at the Chamberlain-Towers. The police would come. Well, let them come.

The taxi left Darnley at the entrance to the great hotel and she was not unconscious of the glances that followed her as she walked to the elevators leading to the ballroom. She was early, but that did not matter.

Approaching the ballroom, Darnley heard her name spoken, and, turning saw Chico Sanson on the stairs.

She paused and smiled, "Will you wish me good luck, Chico?"

"You know you have my best wishes, Darnley."

"I know," she said.

He was staring at her, not with admiration, but with something like horror.

"What is it, Chico?"

"That coat!"

"Confidentially," she said. "This coat was stolen. And the police are looking for it."

"Darnley!"

"No, Chico, I didn't steal it."

"I don't understand. How come you are wearing it?"

"I don't understand fully either. But I had to wear it. It was the only way I could be here tonight to compete. I am turning it over to the police as soon as I can."

"But they know you have it? They are coming here?"

"Probably."

"Have you thought," Sanson asked gravely, "of what that means to me and to this contest? A competitor for the Golden Blend Girl award arrested for theft! Perhaps the winner of it involved in a scandal!" He compressed his lips. "I'm afraid, Darnley, I can't let you compete. I'm afraid I must ask you to go away."

Mrs. Charles West Struck by Car, Taken to Hospital

Trenton, Jan. 31 (Special)—Mrs. Charles West of Warkworth, Ont., was rushed by ambulance to Belleville Hospital on Saturday evening about 8.35 in an unconscious condition as the result of being struck by a car owned and driven it is said, by E. M. Parker, Queen St., Trenton, as she attempted to cross Dundas Street, at the intersection of Albert Street at the post office.

Apparently Mrs. West had been walking with two other women and when they saw the car approaching the three stopped and for some unknown reason she started again to cross, taking a few paces and was struck by the car.

Dr. Farley was in attendance and she was attended at the Belleville Hospital by Dr. Cronk. It is understood she is suffering from head injuries.

Gasoline Pump Broken Off.

A gasoline pump in front of Fitzgibbon & Clegg's garage on Dundas Street West was completely smashed off by a motorist at 7.10 p.m. Sunday. Fortunately there was no gasoline in the pump at the time as results might have been serious.

A hit-and-run driver, running through a traffic signal at the intersection of Front and Dundas Street on Saturday night crashed into a Graham taxi driven by Isaac Cook. The number of the car was obtained by the driven and turned into the police.

Shrapnel Wounds in Hip.

Miss Clara Harrington, 143 Wragge Street, has received official word from Ottawa that her brother acting Lance Corporal Reginald (Jim) Harrington wounded in the battle of Italy is suffering from shrapnel wounds in the hip. He enlisted at Kingston with the artillery but on arrival overseas transferred to the 48th Highlanders.

First wounded in Sicily he was recovered sufficiently to move on into Italy where he was wounded the second time. He is the son of Mrs. M. A. Harrington of Saskatchewan and has two other brothers in the service. His brother Pte. Charles Harrington, also with the 48th, was wounded in Sicily on the same day as Jim, his being an elbow injury while Jim's first wound was in the hand.

Another brother Pte. Peter Harrington enlisted at Kingston and has been overseas three years most of which time has been spent in hospital where he is still recuperating from a serious operation. According to latest letters to his sister he is awaiting return of sufficient health to make the trip home to Canada.

Likely Use Rome As Battleground Experts Believe

(By SYDNEY GRUSON)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 31 (C.P. Cable) — Rome today lies within 20 miles of Allied arms, almost within range of heavy artillery, and soon the Germans must resolve the anxious question of the Christian world, whether they will make a battleground of the Eternal City's timeless streets, monuments and buildings.

Many people in London believe they have already decided; that they will fight for Rome and if necessary destroy it as surely as they fought for Naples and Ortona and destroyed them and every other important village, town and city in their backtracking march through Italy.

Indications are the Germans are doing the same kind of a job in Rome as they did in Naples. They are reported sowing explosives and mining key points and utilities. Refugees from Rome have told of wholesale demolitions in progress.

Militarily and politically Rome is as important to one side as to the other. It is, as Marshal Badoglio said, "the head and soul" of Italy. And the same considerations govern Allied policy now as when the question of bombing Rome arose last July.

Right to Bomb

Then through the mild outcry against the first bombing of Rome government officials here said — and repeated it later — that the right to bomb Rome could not be relinquished if the situation required it. If the situation requires it, the Allies are patently ready to battle for Rome.

The Germans if for no other reason than burning hatred of what they call the Italian "betrayal" are apparently prepared to make such a battle necessary.

A simple statement by the Nazis that they are not using Rome as a military base never would be accepted even if they are bold enough to make it. It would be virtually impossible for them to supply their armies battling south of Rome without using the capital.

The Germans probably will fight for Rome with as little regard for its historical and religious values as they have shown toward these things in the past.

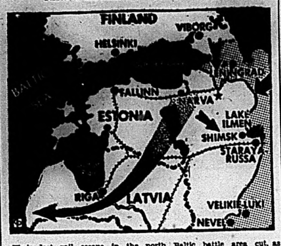
NARVA LOOMS AS BATTLEGROUND



Their last rail escape in the north Baltic battle area cut, as indicated by star, Nazi troops are expected to make their next desperate stand at Narva, key point from which the Reds are expected to swing toward the Baltic, through Estonia. Meanwhile, a double trap is being sprung on the huge German force that once trapped Leningrad. As arrows indicate, the lower end of the net is now at Shimsk and from Leningrad to Shimsk, the entire German line is reported crumbling.

Jap Atrocities Will Be Probed By Australia

Canberra, Jan. 31 — (CP)—Attorney-General H. V. Evatt announced today the establishment of a special commission under Queensland Chief Justice Sir William Webb to investigate Japanese atrocities inflicted on Australians in the Southwest Pacific.

At the same time, Prime Minister John Curtin, commenting on the disclosures of Japanese barbarities against American and Filipino soldiers and sailors, said the facts "were so horrifying they surely speak for themselves and reveal to everybody the nature of the enemy we have for more than two years been resisting.

"To relieve prisoners of war in Japanese hands who include not only members of the fighting forces, but also civilians of our own and friendly races calls for the earliest termination of the war. Resolutions, protests and expressions of horror are insufficient. What is needed is earliest victorious termination of the war and the best viewpoint Australia can have if this is to work all out for complete, early victory.

'Only Allies Can Effect Such a Change'

"It must be clear that the protecting power in this matter is not able to accomplish much. Only the Allies themselves with all their strength can effect a change and the only change will be the earliest realization on the part of Japan that she'll be defeated."

In contrast to the Prime Minister's statement, a Melbourne government spokesman said "The government view is that such stories lead to a vicious circle of retaliation and reprisal as well as causing unnecessary distress to relatives of war prisoners."

Commenting on the reports, Army Minister Francis Forde said the independent protecting powers tried unsuccessfully to get supplies to Australian prisoners in Japanese hands.

"Unfortunately," he added, "Japan is not prepared to observe the international agreement followed. On our part we are honoring the international agreement in handling enemy prisoners."

It was stated the Australian government's investigation of the report will not likely be made public as the government's view is that such allegations cause unnecessary distress to relatives of Australian prisoners. There were no Australian prisoners involved in the Philippines but 23,258 Australian soldiers were taken in the fall of Singapore.

Playing With Gun Boy of 6 Killed

Toronto, Jan. 31 — (CP)—Denny Prosser, six, of Burketon Station in Durham county, died in hospital here today of a bullet wound in the head suffered yesterday when a rifle discharged as he played with it. Also in hospital is Buddie Clayton, 10, of Toronto, wounded in the hand when a revolver loaded with blanks discharged.

The Burketon boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Prosser, was playing with another child in his farm home yesterday afternoon. The gun was on a kitchen shelf and was taken down by one of the children, Prosser said.

Police said the Clayton boy took the revolver, an old type, from a trunk.

REV. W. SMITH M.D., WAS MISSIONARY FOR MANY YEARS

Man Who Was Three Times in Centre of Great National Events in China, Dies in Toronto

A. C. GRADUATE

Rev. W. E. Smith, M.D., for forty years outstanding medical missionary of the Methodist and United Churches in West China, died in Toronto on Friday evening last. One of eleven children and a native of Clarke Township, Durham County, Ontario, he secured his education, graduating in turn from Albert College, Belleville, and Victoria College, Toronto, and was ordained as a Methodist minister, later graduating in Medicine at Trinity College, Toronto. He had the distinction of being the first missionary to go to the foreign field entirely supported by a church district, being sent in 1896 as Cobourg District Forward Movement Missionary. His close friend, Rev. F. C. Stephenson, M.D., secretary of that movement being also from that area. During college days and preparation he preached in the Frankford, Hall's Bridge, Epsom and Bancroft fields of the Methodist Church.

His work in China was centred in the city of Jungshien, the "Glory" country, and that of Tzeliutsing, the Salt Wells. Eminently successful because of his deep understanding of the Chinese and adaption of their manner of dress and life, he was greatly beloved by them. Three times he was in the centre of great national events and had to leave the interior; in 1900 from the Boxer Rebellion; 1911 the Revolution, and narrowly escaped the firing squad at the hands of Communists in 1927. He was a pioneer worker and the Founder of a Forward Missionary Movement in the Chinese Church. Maintaining throughout his close friendship with the Cobourg District (now Presbytery), he was given along with Dr. and Mrs. F. C. Stephenson, a great welcome home by his fellow workers and supporters in Port Hope Church in 1936. Cobourg remembers him too as the founder of the Della McCullough Memorial Kindergarten, Fushun City which was a part of the Grace Young Smith Memorial Mission, commemorating the lives of two beloved workers: Miss Della McCullough of Cobourg, and Miss Grace Olivia Young of Peterborough County, to whom he was married in 1895 and who died in Toronto just on arrival home on furlough in June, 1922. He was married a second time in Chentu, W. China, 1927, to Dr. A. Steers, a medical missionary of the Women's Missionary Society, who was his fellow-worker in China until retirement in 1936, since when they have lived in Toronto. Four children of his first marriage live in Toronto, Dora, Mrs. J. D. Conover; Jean, Mrs. (Rev.) W. M. A. Irwin; Miss Ethel, and Captain Douglas of the engineering section of the R.C.O.C., who has been returned from service overseas and posted at Kingston. Mr. J. R. Smith of Belleville is a brother.

Dr. Smith was the author of "A Canadian Doctor in West China," in which he refers to his early days at Albert College, a member of the Bay of Quinte Conference; and well known figure in recent years at church gatherings. He was the proud wearer of a Chinese decoration for service to that country.

The funeral of the late Dr. Smith took place in Toronto today and was conducted by Rev. Dr. J. H. Arnup, secretary of Foreign Missions of the United Church.

Some years ago Dr. Smith was honored in the dedication of a classroom at Albert College.

This morning a brief memorial service was held in Albert College chapel conducted by Mr. Taylor K. Franklin.

Principal Dr. Bert Howard of the college attended the funeral in Toronto this afternoon.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 31. (CP)— Prices were narrowly higher this afternoon on Toronto exchange. Turnover totalled 496,000 shares.

Kerr-Addison was a gold feature. It advanced 50 cents to $9.90 in active trading. Other strong golds were Teck Hughes, Lamaque, Aunor, Kirkland Lake, Sullivan and Cochenour Willans. Quemont weakened 8 cents to 38.

Ventures, Steep Rock and Sudbury Basin were stronger Base Metals and in Western Oils Calgary-Edmonton and East Crest were slightly higher.

Slightly better prices ruled for the Utilities, Steels and Foods. Fanny Farmer, Ford A and C.P.R. were stronger and Brazilian weakened 1-4 to 23.

WALL STREET

New York, Jan. 31—(AP)—Specialties continued to act fairly well in today's stock market but numerous leaders virtually were at a standstill. Dealings were among the slowest for the month, the ticker tape frequently coming to a full stop.

General Bronze, Cudahy Packing and Consolidated Laundries edged into new high ground for 1943-44. Ahead at intervals were Pullman, Bethlehem, N.Y. Central, General Motors and Eastman Kodak. Occasional losers included Western Union "A," J. C. Penney, Montgomery Ward, Kennecott, American Smelting and Radio Corp.

Canadian stocks were quiet but firm with Canadian Pacific and Lake Shore up fractions.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Will Roosevelt Run for 4th Term Big Question Asked by Americans

The prospects are that Franklin Roosevelt will be a candidate for a fourth term as President of the United States when the campaign starts this summer. In this story, the first of three on presidential prospects, The Canadian Press Washington Correspondent tells why. Tomorrow: Tom Dewey, Republican.

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Washington, Jan. 31 (CP)—All politically-minded Americans are waiting, in various stages of anxiety, for the answer to the nation's sixty-four dollar question — will President Roosevelt be a candidate for a fourth term?

It is quite possible no American is more eagerly searching for the answer than the President himself. But it may not be forthcoming until the Democratic national convention is held in Chicago next July.

However, there is growing army of correspondents and political strategists here who are forecasting without qualification that Roosevelt will be the Democratic candidate when Americans go to the polls next November.

This correspondent made a similar but less downright forecast last Jan. 1. Many things have happened since to strengthen the likelihood that, barring now unforeseeable events, the President will seek to extend his 12-year tenancy of the White House to 16 years.

Most important of the late developments was the resolution adopted at the meeting of the National Democratic Committee here "soliciting" him as a fourth term candidate.

This was followed by the declaration of 2,500 committee for industrial organization officers meeting in New York that they would support a fourth term effort, after endorsing his national service law proposal.

Earlier there had come from Illinois, California, New Hampshire and other scattered areas, reports of a general Democratic demand that F.D.R. become the 1944 candidate.

Gould Lincoln, veteran political columnist in the Washington Star and one whose opinions are most respected says the Democrats are so convinced that Roosevelt will be their candidate that they are concerned only with a vice-presidential candidate.

But Lincoln comments that in 1944 as in 1940, Roosevelt probably will himself pick the vice-presidential candidate and Sam Rayburn (D Texas), House speaker, is said to be a likely choice.

The chief argument of those who forecast Roosevelt's candidacy is that he is the Democrats only hope of victory in 1944, and this has been the theme of such forecasts from the start.

But some others put in on a higher plane. One of these is former Governor Olson of California who said Roosevelt should be permitted to complete his efforts to win the war and lend his prestige, experience and ability to winning the peace.

Marshall Group Attacked by U.S. Says Tokyo Radio

New York, Jan. 31 —(AP)— The Tokyo radio said today "Japanese army and navy units have intercepted powerful enemy units which have been attacking the Marshall group since the morning of Jan. 30 and fierce fighting is now going on."

The broadcast, an English language transmission beamed to North America, was recorded by the United States Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service.

Tokyo's reference to "Japanese army and navy units" suggested the possibility that American landing forces may have gone ashore on one or more of the islands or that surface warships may have clashed. On the other hand, it may have meant only that the air arms of both services were in action.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz' communique issued at Pearl Harbor Sunday night made no mention of landings, but did say that surface forces—presumably battleships, cruisers and destroyers—had moved to within 10 to 20 miles of the atolls and fired thousands of rounds of shells. The Nimitz communique was issued long after the time given by Tokyo for the attack. The "morning of Jan. 30," Tokyo time, would be Jan. 29, Pearl Harbor time, since the Marshals lie west of the International date line.

Another Tokyo broadcast, beamed to Italy, was recorded by United States government monitors later today.

3,900 Tons of Bombs Fall in 48 Hours On Hitler's Machine

London, Jan. 31. (CP)— United States Army headquarters announced today that heavy bombers of the American strategic airforces based in Britain and Italy dropped more than 3,900 tons of bombs on the German war machine in the 48 hours ended Sunday night.

Attacking from both the west and south American planes in two days destroyed 255 enemy aircraft. Fighters downed 131 while 124 fell to bomber gunners.

Nazis Claim U-Boats Attack Convoy Bound for Murmansk

London, Jan. 31 (CP)—The German radio said today Nazi U-boats, in an attack still in progress against a uM5..FORavtnmskr t--(Tl a Murmansk-bound convoy, had sunk 10 destroyers and escort vessels and five merchant ships in the Arctic. The broadcast, by a Nazi prfopaganda agency, was without Allied confirmation.

It said the sinkings raised the number of Allied convoy losses in the past few days to 12 supply ships totallihg 83,000 tons, 14 destroyers and other convoy escorts.

MERCHANT SHIP MISSING

Halifax, Jan. 31 — (CP) — Discovery of the bodies of two seamen off Nova Scotia's southwest tip lent strength yesterday to reports that a merchant ship was missing on a voyage from Halifax to Saint John, N.B. It was learned the vessel — a coalboat — had left Halifax about a week ago on the 260-mile voyage that normally would take only a day.

MONTY ALWAYS FOLLOWS ROMMEL

New York, Jan. 31 — (CP)—CBS correspondent Albin Johnson reported from Stockholm today "on the best story of the week."

It comes from Copenhagen. Recently huge crowds gathered at the Hotel Angiotere to get a parting glimpse of Nazi Marshal Rommel. After he was gone the crowds remained.

The police told them to move on. "We're waiting for Gen. Montgomery," was the retort, "he always follows right after Rommel."

CANADIANS REPULSE ATTACK—TAKE PRISONERS

Writing glorious chapters into the history of the war, Canadian troops in Italy have met the flower of the German army and sent enemy divisions reeling back after grim battles. These two pictures, just in from Italy, show two phases of the fight. LEFT—The war is over for these German soldiers captured by Canadians on the Italian front, and Cpl. W. R. Hardy, of Winnipeg, is telling their Sergeant-Major in fluent German how they should behave on parade. RIGHT—The Canadian soldier shown crouched at the corner of the building, had the road covered during a German counter-attack repulsed by Canadians near San Leonardo. — (Canadian Army Overseas Photo.)

WOMEN BEGGARS IN ITALY

Canadian troops in Italy have visited many famous places, including the ruins of ancient civilizations, but they found women beggars something new. Two of them are shown above, sitting on the steps of a church in Naples, waiting for someone to give them some money and food. Victims of the war, they do not seem to be having much success judging from their emaciated appearance. — (Canadian Army Overseas Photo.)

Cause of Head Noises

When we think of head noises we are apt to blame them on some ear disturbances and in this we right in the great majority of cases but just what condition about the ear causes the head noises requires investigation.

I have written several times about Meniere's disease where there is head uoises or ringing in the ear together with partial loss of hearing and nausea and vomiting. By cutting down on table salt, in and on food, the water held in the tissues adjoining balancing canals of ear by table salt is removed and the symptoms disappear. However, it is now known that there are several other conditions about the ear causing head noises, all of which seem to act directly or indirectly on the blood supply to the hearing nerves and tissues.

In Archives of Otolaryngology (ear and throat) Dr. Edmund P. Fowler, New York, speaks of these several conditions that cause head noises.

1.—Impacted cerumen (wax). Cerumen by pressing on the ear drum thus producing positive and negative pressure causes positive and negative pressure in the outer canal, and, by way of the ear drum and tiny bones of middle ear, can change the pressure about balancing canals and surrounding air spaces.

2.—Closure from eustachian tube. Closure of this tube which carries air from back of throat to inner side of the ear drum in middle ear causes a partial vacuum in the middle ear and results in congestion of the tiny blood vessels there.

3.—Injury to ear by loud noises. This causes damage to the tiny nerves and bloodvessels of the hearing apparatus just as a hammer blow damages the tiny nerves and bloodvessels of the finger.

4.—Otitis media and otosclerosis, which means inflammation of the middle ear and hardening of the tiny bones preventing them from vibrating.

5.—Drugs and poisons, tobacco, cessive salt, coffee, tea, alcohol, carbon monoxide, arsenic, lead, and others will irritate and in time destroy the nerve endings which receive sound.

6.—Heart and bloodvessel changes. Hardening of the arteries in brain tissues, or changes in blood pressure from emotional disturbances, anemia, and Meniere's disease, are common causes of head noises.

7.—Stomach and intestinal disorders. Gall bladder and stomach disturbances cause head noises which can often be prevented by sipping boiling hot water slowly an hour before meals.

8.—Other causes of head noises are emotional disturbance, allergy and growths.

Trenton and District

Arrives Safely.

Trenton —(Special)— Mr. and Mrs. J. Brant, Division St., have received a cable from their son, Flying Officer Harry Brant, advising them of his safe arrival in Great Britain.

FO. Brant enlisted Oct. 23, 1939, when only 19 and took a wireless and air gunner's course at Brandon, Dafoe, and MacDonald, Man., graduating at the latter station in the fall of 1942.

He reported for duty on the East Coast and was later sent to Prince Rupert and other points on the West Coast, returning to the East and winning his commission at Yarmouth, N.S., in August 1942. In July of last year he was promoted to flying officer and has been stationed on the East Coast until his recent departure for overseas.

FINAL SHOWDOWN

London, Jan. 29 — (CP) — The British press today interpreted the suspension of United States shipments of oil to Spain as a final showdown and the Daily Express headlined the story "Allies give Franco a month to decide."

The United States government "has decided to seek a showdown with Franco Spain over continued aid to Germany," the Express said.

"At long last it has been realised that purely diplomatic pressure is having no effect upon this most unneutral 'neutral,' " said the News Chronicle.

Britain is joining the United States in embargoing shipments of petroleum products to Spain, it was learned authoritatively today.

It was pointed out, however, that Britain has little or no oil to spare for Spain, whose chief source has been the Western Hemisphere.

FAMILIAR POSTERS IN CITY OF NAPLES

Posters of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill are stuck up all over the city of Naples. Other posters underlining the scourge of Nazi tyranny in Italy, like those in this picture, are also numerous. — (Canadian Army Overseas Photo.)

Before you blame your telephone...

ENGINEERS designed the mouthpiece of your telephone to give best results at one-quarter of an inch from the lips. When your lips are farther away than this, your voice is transmitted less strongly . . . less clearly.

Failure to remember these simple facts accounts for the great majority of "trouble" reports.

Help avoid needless service check-ups, and at the same time let those you talk to hear you without strain. Just remember: Talk clearly, normally, directly into the telephone, with your lips just one-quarter of an inch from the mouthpiece.

Smoking while you talk may cause distorted reception. It also prevents your holding the mouthpiece directly in front of the lips.

If you need to reach across your desk as you talk, continue to hold the telephone in correct position, close to the lips.

A wall set can't come to you; stand or sit so that your lips are directly in front of and close to the mouthpiece. Don't "talk across" it.

For clear, noise-free transmission, always keep your desk telephone upright — not at or near the horizontal position.
